In 1935 at Upland the Lord granted His blessing upon the Diamond Jubilee of the Conference. What should be our motto for 1938? Who has suggestions? Send them to our Conference Secretary, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, Newton, Kansas.

The Testimony of Chiang Kai-Shek

"I have now been a Christian for nearly ten years and during that time I have been a constant reader of the Bible. Never before has this sacred Book been so interesting to me as during my two weeks' captivity in Sian. This unfortunate affair took place all of a sudden and I found myself placed under detention without having a single earthly belonging. From my captors I asked but one thing, a single copy of the Bible. In my solitude I had ample time for reading and meditation. The greatness and the love of Christ burst upon me with new inspiration, increasing my strength to struggle against evil, to overcome temptation and to uphold righteousness.

"Dr. Sun Yat-sen was a Christian, and the greatest thing he received from Christ was love—love for the emancipation of the weaker races, and for the welfare of the oppressed people. This spirit remains with us and reaches to the skies. I am an ardent follower of the Chinese revolution, and although my faith in Dr. Sun at the outset did not appear to have any religious significance, it was similar to a religious faith. . . . Today, I find that I have taken a further step and have become a follower of Jesus Christ. This makes me realize more fully that the success of the revolution depends upon men of faith, and that men of character, because of their faith, cannot sacrifice their principles for personal safety under circumstances of difficulty and crisis. In other words, a man's life may be sacrificed, his person held in bondage, but his spirit can never be restrained. This is due to confidence brought about by faith."—Federal Council Bulletin.

HALF TRUTHS MAY BE MISLEADING

A Spanish Roman Catholic issued the following statement to his church: 'Oh, if you had preached a Christ the Friend of the poor, instead of a Christ the Friend of the wealthy; if you had preached a Christ the Friend of the lowly and suffering, instead of a Christ the Friend of the mighty and influential; a Christ the Friend of sinners and criminals and not a Christ the Friend of monarchs, aristocracy and exalted people, they would have accepted the true Christ of the Gospel. These are not days for justice, but for forgiveness."

This charge against the Catholic church is undoubtedly true, but it savors of class distinction. Christ came to help all men regardles of station in life or any other division. For He like his Father that sent Him is no respector of persons. True, he devoted much of his time and energy to those who were poor and sick, in body and soul, because they needed him most. Yet he befriended the rich as well as the poor, the high as well as the low. The only condition that people had to meet, to enlist his sympathy and help, was to believe in Him and accept Him as their Saviour. That requirement still pertains.

OVERCOMING INSURMOUNTABLE DIFFICULTIES

Heb. 11:30

Can a difficulty that is insurmountable be overcome? In the world of natural things that would be impossible, but when we take into consideration the working of the power of God in man that which is apparently impossible becomess possible. No one can predict the end of man's achievement when he is moved by the Spirit of God. Walls thicker and stronger than those of Jericho are overthrown as Christianity triumphantly marches forward.

As we consider the story of the taking of Jericho we discover some basic principles which also function today in the conquest of insurmountable difficulties.

Difficulties are overcome by men of vision. While Joshua was standing over against the task he was to undertake he had a vision. He knew then that he was not going forward alone and consequently that he would not fail in his undertaking. Unless we have had a clear vision of the Christ whom we serve we will not be successful in our ministry. The person who has had this vision is aware of a power beyond himself. He knows that he is a co-worker with God and therefore can not fail.

Difficulties are overcome by men of courage. Joshua's fear vanished when the Lord spoke to him this reassuring word: "Be strong and of good courage: be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." Fear is one of the most common causes of failure. But there is no need of being afraid when we are doing the Lord's work, for he has given us the assurance that he is with us to strengthen us for the task to which we are called.

Difficulties are overcome by men of faith. "By faith the walls of Jericho fell down." What the men of Israel attempted to do must have seemed like a useless and hopeless undertaking to those who lacked faith. The work before which Christians stand often seems hopeless and impossible. The Christian is often oppressed by the apparent futility of his work. But by faith he continues to encompass the fortresses of sin until finally the power of God prevails.

Difficulties are overcome through cooperation. We see the men of Israel going about their task silently, patiently moving forward with a common purpose until their work is done. I am thrilled to think what a power the Christian Church will be when she will put forward a united front against the sins of our day. The united effort of sixty million like-minded men and women could outlaw war and other social wrongs that demoralize the civilized nations of the world today.

Life is filled with difficulties, but for the Christian these difficulties are turned into victory. "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

GOD PROVIDES A LEADER

Exodus 2:1-3:12 Printed: Exodus 3:1-12

Introduction

Moses is the outstanding character of the entire Old Testament. He was providentially prepared for the task or tasks which no other among his people could perform. From earliest childhood divine Providence was directing his preparation.

The Schooling of Moses v. 1

God heard the cry of his people in Egypt and so led events that Moses, as the foster child of an Egyptian princess, was thoroughly instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians' high standard of civilization. Thus at the expense of the royal family, he was fitted intellectually for a later outstanding service.

His early training by his mother led to his close identification with the history and cause of his own people (Heb. 11:24, 25). His patriotic zeal led him to the rash act of slaying an Egyptian taskmaster (Ex. 2:12). He had to flee the country. It is not safe to be zealous, even in a righteous cause, without the direct leading of God.

Moses, so well schooled in Egyptian wisdom, must learn further lessons to complete his training. God led him to the Midian desert training-school, where during the many years in lowly and lonely service, he came into close contact with God and acquired a spirit of true meekness.

God Appears to Moses in the Burning Bush vs. 2 6.

Moses, now eighty years old, is summoned to his life-work. One day an amazing sight riveted his attention (v. 2). The bush was burning but not consumed. He must learn the meaning of this marvel. Thus he was led to learn God's purpose for his own people in Egypt. Then a voice spoke to him out of the bush (v. 4) and he realized that he was in God's presence. God wants our ear so He can speak to us.

This vision and the response of Moses was the turning point of his life. All before was but preparation. Now he is to become the deliverer, legislator and prophet for his people. God impressed upon him the sacredness of the place and hour (v. 5) He must learn the unapproachable majesty and holiness of Jehovah. Wherever God meets the soul, there is a holy place. To Moses the desert was a temple, the thorn-bush a shrine. God reveals Himself as the God of his fathers (v. 6). Moses is now prepared for the responsibility of leadership.

God speaking to, calling Moses vs. 7-12

God gives Moses three comforting assurances (v. 7). In every hour of hopeless trouble we may be sure "He knows" (Ps. 142:3). Moses is the chosen instrument to carry out God's will and purpose, but God himself is the deliverer. He came down, so He tells Moses, (v. 8) for a three-fold purpose, (1) to deliver his people, (2) to bring them out of Egypt and (3) to bring them into a good and large land. Israel's cry under oppression, not their merit, brought God down to deliver them (v. 9). God was waiting and ready. He brought the answer in the person of Moses. He definitely calls him to a great task (v. 10), "Come and I will send thee unto Pharaoh to bring forth my people." God sees that Moses is now ready for the great commission. God always uses men to save men. Moses realizes the greatness of the task, he feels his inability, he hesitates (v. 11) All truly great souls have similar experiences when facing momentous tasks. God does not censure him, but instead gives the definite assurance of His help and presence, "Certainly I will be with thee." That changes all for Moses. His preparation was completed after eighty years. We need not shrink from any task when God is with us.

Nuggets of Truth

There are many administrators today—Moses was a leader.

Leaders are seers who speak forth for God.

God gives people a definite call today and promises definite help. When He calls, our duty is plain.

When God has a great work to perform, He has some one ready to do it.

Intelligent curiosity is the forerunner of discovery.

When a man really wants to know, God finds a way to tell him.

GOD ENCOURAGES A LEADER

Exodus 3:13 to 6:1 Printed: 3:13-16; 4:10-16; 5:1

Introduction

Moses was commissioned to a stupendous task. God assured him of His help and continued presence. Moses has a very real appreciation of the difficulties ahead, so different from his attempt to be a deliverer forty years before. He asks God for very explicit directions, commands and promises before he is wholly ready to undertake the task.

Moses' Credentials 3:13-16

Moses is deeply concerned about convincing his people that he represents the true God (v. 13). "What shall I say unto them when they ask his name?" With the Hebrews, proper names indicated character. God tells him (v. 14), say to them, the eternal "I AM," Jehovah, the Infinite Being, the unchanging, self-existent One, has sent me. Say to them also (v. 15) that this Jehovah is the Lord God of their fathers, the covenant God, and that only as they trust in Him, can He work out His purpose for them, deliver them. He is authorized to furnish proof of his credentials from God, by performing miraculous signs, if needed, to convince the Hebrew people.

Moses' Excuses, God's Reply 4:10-12

Moses still feels himself unfitted for the great task. Jehovah had promised His help, assured him of success, outlined the plan of action for him, even told him what to say (3:16-22). Still Moses hesitated (v. 10). He feels that a fluent and persuasive tongue is essential for success. God knew all about that when He called him. Intense conviction and earnest feelnig are more effective and convincing than mere fluency of speech.

We find here the crux of the real reason for his hesitation. Moses was still looking too much at himself and did not yet see that he was merely to be the instrument in God's hand. He seemed to think that the success of the task depended upon his personal qualifications. How often those engaged in God's work have similar thoughts. God definitely promises to make up in whatever Moses may lack in power of speech (vs. 11-12).

Aaron Appointed Helper vs. 13-16

Even the tender response of God (v. 12) does not fully overcome Moses' reluctance. Verse 13 clearly seems to be a plea that God would send some one else on this difficult task. His attitude is greatly displeasing to God (14a). Moses had been preserved, trained, prepared for this one mission in life. Had he responded more readily it probably would have meant a greater development of his gift of speech.

God showed respect unto Moses' feelings and gave him further encouragement in appointing Aaron to be his helper, spokesman (vs. 14-16). God promised to be with both of them and teach them what they should do. He infused His spirit into them (vs. 15, 16). They were to work together, each to supply what the other lacked. This power in cooperative labor by fellow Christians in God's service, is a recognized principle today. All of Moses' reluctance was now removed and at once he made ready to go to Egypt (v. 18). First he and Aaron convinced their own people of their divine commission to deliver them, then as God's servants they stood before Pharaoh with God's message, "Let my people go."

Nuggets of Truth

When God calls to a task, He also empowers (2 Cor. 12:9) and it is ours to respond willingly. He has an answer for every doubt.

God's spirit has ever been a fire in the words of His genuine messengers.

Before a mass movement, there must be a small group thoroughly "sold on the idea."

God's promise to be with us is a guarantee to sufficient help to finish a task.

When God calls men, He equips them with an adequate message.

TRULY THE GREATEST LIVING MAN

A school master once asked his class of boys, "Who would you say is the greatest living man?" Some of the boys claimed that certain politicians were, others chose famous explorers or sportsmen, but one boy said, "Please, sir, the greatest living Man is Jesus Christ." "Oh, no," said the master, "I said living man." Not to be thwarted the little fellow replied, "My mother told me that Jesus Christ rose from the dead, and is alive forever more."—Frederick P. Wood, in Thinking Youth.

CORRESPONDENCE

Eden Church, near Moundridge, Kansas.

A reception was given our new pastor, Rev. Walter Gering and family, formerly of Freeman, South Dakota, on June 20. The morning service was in charge of the Rev. C. E. Krehbiel of Newton and Rev. P. H. Unruh of the Alexanderwohl Church near Goessel. Rev. Krehbiel spoke in German on the topic, "Was kann die Gemeinde von ihrem Prediger erwarten?" Rev. Unruh also spoke in German on , "Was kann der Prediger von seiner Gemeinde erwarten?" The evening meeting consisted of talks and special music by the various organizations of the church, followed by a few remarks from Rev. Gering.

On June 7, the Eden Sunday School had its annual Sunday School picnic. The morning was spent in listening to a program. In the afternoon the folks had recreation games. The Unlighted Cross, a play in one act, was given by the Eden Sunday School at the Sunday School Convention in Newton, on June 6.

Grace Mennonite Church, Dallas, Ore.

The S. S. and C. E. Convention was held on the 16th of May in the Presbyterian Church with the Pratum, Albany, Portland and Dallas Churches taking an active part. The topics, readings and songs were very well received as well as given. We had a very good turnout for which we are very thankful, although it rained the biggest part of the day. Brother S. S. Baumgartner of Monroe, Wash., Rev. S. C. Williams of Portland, and Bro. H. A. Fast, field secretary, were the principal speakers of the day and the messages were very inspiring.

Sunday, June 13, was a big day again. After the morning services we all partook of a basket dinner in the church. In the evening we had a short service in the church, after which we went to the river for a baptisimal service. There were eight who received the baptism through faith, and two were taken in as members. That evening, Rev. Widmer and family left for Elmira, Ore., where Mrs. Widmer's parents live. She will stay there while Brother Widmer goes on to Reedley, California, to attend the Pacific District Conference to be held from June 17th to 20. May the Lord be with them for a safe return home!—Mrs. Leonard Schmidt, Corr.

Ebenezer Mennonite Church, near Bluffton, Ohio

An impressive service was held here Sunday morning, May 16, when nine lovely babes were consecrated unto the Lord. Psa. 128:3, "Thy children shall be like olive plants round about Thy table." In the evening our church dismissed its service to attend the program at Bluffton for the consolidated grade schools of this community.

We are glad our Gospel team is leading some souls to Christ. A friend of fifty years testified at one of their meetings, "Now I shall heed my mother's prayer." Oh that many might be reached in this way. "How hard it would be to miss Heaven!"

May 30 we were favored with musical numbers by six talented students of the Moody Bible Institute. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Burkholder who preached his first sermon to the home church. We rejoice that these young people "Remember thy (their) Creator in the days of thy (their) youth." June 6 Rev. John Haas of Fort Myers, Florida, who as a young man, forty-five years ago, taught his first Sunday School class in the Ebenezer church, preached a powerful sermon on II Tim. 2:15.

Our pastor, Rev. P. A. Kliewer, urges all who like to sing to participate in the rehearsals of "The Holy City" which is being prepared for the joyous event ahead for the Fourth of July at Bluffton, celebrating the centenary of the founding of the Swiss Mennonite churches in this vicinity. YOU ARE INVITED!

Sunday evening, June 13, a nice church wedding took place when Miss Mabel Luginbuhl and Milo Lora, both active members in this church, were united in marriage by Rev. P. A. Kliewer. Our best wishes follow them.—June 14 the Bible School buses called at many homes to gather the children for instruction in the Lord's service at the Ebenezer school. "Whosoever will may come."—Sunday, June 13, a collection was taken to contribute to the Community Hospital at Bluffton, Ohio. They are now rendering service in their new building.—Tuesday, June 15, the Gospel team meets at the home of Clarence Jones for one and one-half hour of prayer and Bible study. Subject: "Do you love His work? Do you want to see souls saved?"

Upper Milford Menn. Ch., Zionsville, Pa.

The upper Milford Church is one of the old congregations in the Eastern District Conference.

The Young People's Society celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary, Sunday, May 16. The church has had two Young People's Societies previous to the present society. The first society was started by the Rev. C. Van der Smissen, late in the eighties. Regular meetings were held about three years. The second society was started by the Rev. Anthony S. Shelly, early in the nineties. Meetings were held fairly regularly for several years. The third or present society was started by the Rev. Samuel P. Preheim, in 1912. This society has held regular meetings during the twenty-five years since its organization.

Greetings were read at the Anniversary Meeting from Rev. Van der Smissen, Rev. Preheim, and from the United Society of Christian Endeavor.

The society has thirty members at the present time. Two members have entered the ministry, the Rev. Wilmer S. Shelly, pastor of the Mennonite Church, Wadsworth, Ohio, and the Rev. William H. Stauffer, pastor of the Mennonite Church, Sugar Creek, Ohio.

The society has accomplished the ideals of Christian Endeavor, in that it has prepared young men and women to become active in Sunday School and Church work. It continues to be normally active at the present time. — Daniel A. Schultz, Corr.

The books of men have their day and grow obsolete. God's word is like Himself, "the same yesterday, today, and forever."—R. Payne Smith.

What a Real Christian Student Expects in a Real Christian College

Faculty:

Consecrated Christians, friendly counsellors, intelligent teachers, and useful citizens of the college community, of the nation, and of the world.

Students:

Intellectually honest and open-minded young people seeking Truth, Christian character, abundant life, and opportunities to serve others.

Studies:

A variety of courses with a prevailing attitude in each that all knowledge is sacred and that recognition of God is the beginning of wisdom.

Constituency:

A friendly, well-informed constituency which has sufficient faith in young people to be willing to make repeated sacrifices to improve youth's opportunities for Christian education.

Alumni:

A group of men and women who measure success in terms of Christian service rather than in dollars and cents; a group which stands as a bulwark against Communism, militarism, Fascism, and other enemies of Christian democracy; a group which is loyal to their alma mater and to the ideals for which she stands.

Buildings and Equipment:

Adequate to meet student needs; well-built and well-cared-for; friendly and unpretentious.

Social Life:

Numerous occasions for friendly relations between members of the college community and friends in other schools and communities. No discriminations because of race, creed, or station in life.

Physical Education:

Numerous opportunities for wholesome recreation, for normal physical development, and for the maintenance of good health.

Other Activities:

Frequent contacts with dynamic Christian leaders; conferences; retreats; chapel programs; deputation work; fine music, drama, and art.

Campus:

A retreat from unwholesome aspects of modern life; a center of Christian activity and influence felt around the world.

Ideals do count in this practical world and so the above statements may furnish a challenge to students and colleges which strive to be Christian.

JESUS, THE AVAILABLE FRIEND. John 15:12-16

Meditation:

M. John 15:16 and John 4:23b. Did you ever stop to think how much easier it is for two people to meet in a crowd if each is looking for the other? If God is looking for us isn't there much chance of our finding him?

T. No man ever had greater love for his friends than to lay down his life for them. But Christ laid down His life for enemies. Have not some Christians also attained to this?

W. " 'But I have chosen you,' knowing all your weaknesses and failings, foreseeing what tests you will be exposed to, and yet selecting you as followers who can be depended upon."

T. Jonathan and David, the classic example of true friendship. "Jonathan shines most in this friendship, because it was he who had least to gain and most to lose in connection with it."

F. "Where did Jonathan and David have their conversation? Out in the field, where there would be no spying and listening. Doubtless in some hidden nook where the two were wont to go." Where do we practice the presence of God or realize Jesus' friendship?

S. "There was one at the table reclining in Jesus' bosom, one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved."

Sun. Topic: Jesus the Available Friend. John 15:12-16.

Some Thoughts:

"Nigh beyond the limits of my seeing
And folded far within the inmost heart
And deep beneath the conscious being
Thy splendor shineth, there, oh God, Thou art.

I cannot lose Thee still in Thee abiding
The end is clear, how wide so e'er I roam
The law that holds the worlds, my step is guiding
And I must rest at last in Thee my home."

Jesus said unto them: You in me and I in you.

1. John 4:20 and 21. He is always available. What are a few present day applications of this scripture passage? Some one said, "I have a little postern gate where Jesus enters any time I open."
2. Jesus is an ever-ready friend. We are in need of counsel and guidance and love. Why do we so often not get together on this? Is it our lack of response? "Ask and it shall be given you." How?
3. Friends are the thing that make life worthwhile. Do you feel that to meet Jesus' requirements of friendship is an impediment to your life?. What is wrong if we give the impression that it is so?
4. Jesus' friends can not harshly, coldly criticize and gossip about each other. Discuss. What does it really mean: to understand all is to forgive all?
5. Have you ever thought whether it did, or what a difference it might make in your family relations, student-faculty relations, daily occupation of harvesting or feeding cattle if you and Jesus are friends? Is religion any good if it does not permeate the whole of life?
6. A beautiful song to sing in unison is: "In the Secret of His Presence."

"Remember at Wits-end Corner
The Bearer of burdens stands."

BE THE BEST

If you can't be a pine on the top of a hill
Be a scrub in the valley,
But the best little scrub by the side of the hill.
Be a bush if you can't be a tree,
If you can't be a bush, be a bit of the grass,
And some highway happier make.
If you can't be a muskie, then just be a bass,
But the liveliest bass in the lake.
We can't all be captains, some have to be crew,
There's something for all of us here.
There's work to be done, and we've all got to do
Our part in a way that's sincere.
If you can't be a highway, then just be a trail,
If you can't be a sun, be a star,
It isn't by size that we win or we lose,
Be the best of whatever you are.

WHAT ONE SOCIETY HAS DONE

Ethel Richert
Bethel College, Kansas

Our Intermediate Christian Endeavor has as its main project, sending flowers and plants to all the sick members in our church. We have found this to be a very successful project. Many of our older members who got sick were very grateful to think that the younger folks thought of them. At Christmas we fix up food for poor families.

Our society has given a number of plays that were very worth while. We gave a Christmas play at Christmas time and a Mother's Day play for our mothers. We are planning a picnic to be given with our fathers. We have had a chance to mingle with our friends' parents, which is very worth while.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

FOR THE SUMMER

On a recent page of a magazine I saw the heading "Summer Menus to Tease the Appetite." I noticed the words "crisp" and "fresh" predominating throughout the article. I noticed ,too, the menus were carefully planned so that, though lighter, they still retained the food values necessary. Our endeavor work, too, if carried on through the summer months, must be crisp and fresh. How can we make it so, keeping it rich in food value for the soul?

A NEW MENU

For July 11, 1937

I would take the children out to some nearby spot for a sunset meeting. Perhaps one of the group has a secluded back yard where you could meet. Ask them to bring a simple lunch in a paper bag. Create a definite seat for each child by placing newspapers in circle outline. When the group is seated

1. Open with singing first two verses of "My Jesus I Love Thee"
2. Lead children in learning two verses of "There's Sunshine in My Soul Today." When they know these, let them rise, hold hands, and sing the words as they walk in a circle to the rythm of the music
3. Remain standing for prayer by leader
4. Before partaking of the lunch, remind the children of the feeding of the 5,000 and the part the boy's lunch had in it. Lead the children to give a part of their lunch. Decide with them to whom their "offering" shall be brought. Gather the bits in a basket prepared for this purpose
5. Ask blessing upon the children's remaining lunch and upon the filled basket
6. After eating, let the empty sacks be gathered up and let each junior answer roll call with a Bible verse on giving. Have a few ready to hand to those who did not remember to learn one.
7. Sing a medley of evening hymns
8. Heart-talks: Isaiah 58:7-9. Let the group read these verses in unison and allow them to take part in the discussion of this passage. Lead them to see that the unselfish life is the rich life. Point them to the One who changes our hearts to obey His commandments and to find joy in doing so
9. Special music: Two verses of "Jesus I Come"
10. Closing prayer by leader
11. Take the juniors in a group to the person for whom the basket was designated. Let your president hand it over
12. Ask those in the home to join in the singing of a hymn of their own choice

CAN YOU DO THIS?

Can you fill in the missing words? If you do not know it, sit down and read this passage aloud three times, then try to fill in what is missing here.

"Let not your .... be ....:
Ye believe in God, believe also in ....
In my Father's .... are many ....:
if it were not so, I would have told you.
I go to .... a place for ...., I will .... and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there .... may be also.

Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest: and how can we know ....?
Jesus saith unto him, I am the ......, the ......, and the ......: no man cometh unto the ...... but by ...." (John 14:1-6)

Junior Corner

TO THE LEADER

"Open the door for the children,
Tenderly gather them in,
In from the highways and hedges,
In from the places of sin.

Some are so young and so helpless;
Some are so hungry and cold;
Gather them into the fold."

Some of you will be leaning back in relaxation, basking in the summer's sun. Some of you will still be leafing, trying to find material for your summer endeavor work. They tell us it is good to "cut" lose, to forget, to rest. Why not let this summer find us enjoying Point Look Out or Inspiration Point? In other words, would it not be helpful to our endeavor work if each leader, whether in active work or not, be on the look out for endeavor material? Our ears, our eyes, our hearts will still be open whether we are resting or not. Thoughts will come to us. Why not "clip" these and enter them in a scrap book? It may come to you in the form of a poem, or through a message heard; it may be a project you saw worked out, or something worth while that you, yourself, thought of quite unexpectedly. It may come to you in the quiet hours with God. Why not keep a scrap book and send us a leaf from it now and then that we might print it here?

What a wonderful experience it is to stand on Inspiration Point along the Yellowstone Canyon. It is as though it were a receiving station for thoughts deep and sacred and challenging. My prayer is that, during the summer months, this page might be to you an inspiration point. Why not share your experiences of the past winter with us and your "harvest" in the summer months?

"MY CUP RUNNETH OVER"

Why not share with us?

The Great Teacher--His Method of Approach

Paper read by Rev. David Wedel before the Kansas Mennonite S. S. Convention

It is my privilege to open the discussion on the topic of the day—THE GREAT TEACHER. We have gathered here as Sunday School teachers and workers and those greatly interested in the work of the Sunday School. As such our relation to the GREAT TEACHER is a unique relation. Our work was Jesus' work. While in other work we may as completely do his will as in teaching, here our work is identical with his. Jesus, too, was a teacher even though this did not describe and define his work and mission. Teachers then, in a very real sense, are followers in his footsteps. His work is our work. He is our Ideal. He was the MASTER TEACHER. He took a dozen unlearned men and so taught them that He could leave his work in their hands. It is most esential that we should at this Sunday School convention look to the GREAT TEACHER for guidance in our endeavor to teach. Perhaps our failures in teaching are due to the fact that we are not sufficiently acquainted with the Great Teacher.

Our education has come to the place where there is no direct method of communicating the values of the Christian religion except by means of the Sunday School. While we may deplore this situation, it is perhaps much more profitable that we stop to consider what we are actually accomplishing in our Sunday Schools.

Our fruits in the endeavor of Christian education in the Sunday School are too meager; so much so that it has been spoken of in these words, "It (the Sunday School) can be estimated by its fruits and by its obvious limitations. No one will claim that its fruits are satisfactory. The Sunday School is little more than a gesture, a futile tribute to a kind of ghostly ideal which still haunts the church's conscience. To say this is no reflection upon the faithful teachers and officers who serve the Sunday School. What could they be expected to do within the limitations of a half hour per week of casual instruction, under conditions without discipline or dignity? Such a system cannot be expected to produce churchmen and churchwomen, and no one should be surprised that the recruiting of church members from the church's own sons and daughters has to be accomplished by artificial methods of evangelism and the appeal to secondary motives." That analysis is quite severe and yet is there not a great deal of truth in it?

With that much too lengthy introduction let me turn to the subject assigned to me—HIS METHOD OF APPROACH. We are dealing here with a twofold subject. We are interested in the pupil and also in the teacher, looking at both from the point of view of the teacher. By method of approach we shall understand everything involved in the process of attracting attention to the gaining of the desired end in teaching. That is to say, we include everything in Jesus' dealing with people from the time Jesus meets people, to the stage where he presents to them the particular truth needed by the individual. This paper will include nothing of the attempt to adapt Jesus method to a modern Sunday School, or suggestion for classroom adaptation. Neither will there be included a discussion of the practicability of Jesus' method for modern teaching. While these are exceedingly important, I shall confine myself to my subject and leave all application and adaptations out of consideration.

While the message with which Jesus began his ministry was identical with that of John the Baptist, it lacked nothing of that which attracts the attention of the people. The Kingdom of heaven is about to break in upon you, he said. Unless you leave your present life you will not be a part of that Kingdom. You must turn about completely. Your present way of living is keeping you out of the Kingdom. To people who were trusting in their ritual and the religious obesrvance of the fathers, this was startling. This message was different. It arrested and held their attention.

I submit to you the statement that Jesus approach was a fine use of those things which gain and hold attention. Our discussion will therefore first of all be centered upon those things which gained and attracted the attention of the people.

1. Jesus gained attention by the use of striking illustration. Rather than to speak in a short sentence, he often employed word pictures. When he spoke of using life in different ways and for different purposes he said, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven." To those who were spending their energy in a great deal of worry he did not say, stop worrying. He said, "Behold the fowls of the air . . . . Consider the lillies of the field. . . ."

2. Again he gained attention by his story-telling. His stories were short, simple, full of action. They had point. Read the story of the lost coin, how the woman lights the lamp to look for it, or the story of the prodigal son. Jesus could make splendid use of parables. As we read them we can see the exact picture he portrays. We see the sower broadcasting seed, some falling on good ground and some on unproductive ground. Or again we see the sower sowing good seed and by night the enemy comes to sow tares among the wheat.

3. Another way in which Jesus gained the attention of the people was by statements of the new in contrast with the old. "Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth." The new way is to let others strike on both cheeks; not only to go one miles but to go two miles. "Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy." The new way is to "love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you."

4. Again Jesus uses startling statements which attract attention. After his interview with the rich young ruler he makes this statement. "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God." Or when he speaks of things that offend he says, "And if thy hand offend thee cut it off; for it is better for thee to enter into life maimed than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched. . . . And if thy foot offend thee cut it off. .

..And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and he were cast into the midst of the sea."

Report of Kansas Sunday School Convention

Held at Bethel College, June 6, 1937

Convention theme: "The Great Teacher." (Jesus)

The afternoon session was opened with singing led by Walter Graber. Rev. J. N. Smucker conducted the devotionals, based on Matthew 16:13. Special music was rendered by the First Mennonite Church choir of Newton, Kansas.

Rev. David Wedel spoke on "His Method of Approach." He said that because teachers are followers in His footsteps, we should look to Him for guidance. The speaker cited three methods of approach which Christ used: (1) Gaining and attracting of attention, (2) finding means of contact, and (3) preparing each pupil for the question He wished to present.

The Wichita Sunday School next rendered a choir number.

Miss Laurine Quiring of Hutchinson gave her version on "Life as a High School Girl Sees It." She said that life is the only important thing for each individual, hence we must do everything we can to make it worthwhile. Death is life's only obstacle. This was followed by a general song.

Rev. Albert Gaeddert discussed the topic "His Message and Inspiration." He related that Christ both spoke and lived his message. Jesus' message and inspiration challenge us all to study ourselves approved of God, workmen that need not be ashamed.

A ten minute open discussion on the topics of the afternoon brought out that Jesus is not only the Master Teacher but also the teachers' master.

Next followed the business meeting. The following officers were elected: Chairman—Alvin Reimer; Vice chairman—Hans Regier; Secretary-Treasurer—Elma Flaming; Retreat Committee member—Rev. Arnold Funk. The Resolutions Commitee presented the usual tokens of gratitude to God for His kindnesses, to Bethel College, to the officers, to the speakers and singers, with the following as being of special importance:

6) In view of the challenge presented to us by the fine themes: Be it resolved that we as Sunday School workers reconsecrate ourselves to Christ and His cause in a real way; and bring to our pupils the need of a definite experience with Christ.

7) In view of the present state of unrest in the world: Be it resolved that we as Sunday School workers make a more determined effort to stand fast in times of persecution and affliction.

8) Resolved, that we as a Sunday School Convention cooperate with other conferences and conventions in observing July 4 as a day of prayer for our country and the leaders of our nation, that they might lead us in a right and Christian way.

A duet from the Pawnee Rock Sunday School rendered a very appropriate closing selection, after which Rev. T. A. van der Smissen led in the closing prayer.

The evening session opened with a trombone solo by Leslie Sperling. Rev. Arnold Funk led the devotionals.

A children's chorus from the Brudertal Sunday School sang "Ich liebe meinen Heiland," followed by a quartet from the Alexanderwohl Sunday School and a men's chorus from the Emmanuel Sunday School.

A play, "The Unlighted Cross," directed by Mrs. Herbert Flickner, was presented by the young people of the Eden Church.

The convention was closed with the benediction.

Substitute secretary,
Elma Flaming

CORRESPONDENCE

Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minn.

We have had a most wonderful spring this year. There has been an abundance of moisture and enough warm weather to bring forth luxurious growth. At some places they have felt there was almost an over supply of moisture. Everything is lovely to look at and we feel that the drouth has taught us to appreciate some blessings that we have always taken for granted until we experienced the lack of them. We value these blessings very highly, but still more our spiritual blessings.

In January we were privileged to hear Rev. Rosenberg, a Christian Jew. He is a missionary among his own people. There we had an opportunity of seeing the Jew through the eyes of a Jew, and we learned to understand the Jew much better, and also learned to look at him with more sympathy and less criticism.

Easter morning, Rev. Arnold Schultz of Chicago spoke to an overfilled church. He emphasized especially the proofs that we have of a risen Savior. He also spoke every night the week following. The last night he showed us pictures that he had taken while studying in Palestine the past year. We noticed with great interest that there time seems to be at a stand still in contrast to our own, where nothing stands still but moves on with leaps and bounds.

For the last week of April the different churches got together and observed the D. L. Moody Centenary by having union services, with Dr. Henry Ostrum of Chicago, speaking. Each night a different church was in charge of the meeting and also of the music. These meetings were held in the High School Auditorium, for no church was large enough to seat the large audiences.

While Rev. Bartel was gone to the Northern District Conference, Rev. J. J. Balzer, our retired minister, occupied the pulpit. It is a great blessing to hear a retired minister speak and feel the deep understanding that he has of God's Word. Rev. Balzer will always remain a student of the Bible and spur the rest of us on to more study and a desire for a better knowledge of the Scriptures.

At our annual meeting last winter it was decided to have the morning services on two Sundays each month in the English language instead of only on one as heretofore. The need of a new church building was also discussed. Do we not have every reason to thank God, when we know that the number attending church services have outgrown the size of the building? At Pentecost 14 new members were added to our numbers, after they had been baptized on the confession of their faith in Christ Jesus their living Savior.

Death, the grim reaper, has been taking a heavy toll this spring. Neither old nor young were spared. One could not help but feel the uncertainty of life, even for the next day, as one heard of death entering one home after another, and several times without any warning whatsoever. It teaches us to live our lives each day as though it were our last day.—Correspondent.

IMPARTIAL CHILD FEEDING IN SPAIN NOW POSSIBLE THROUGH QUAKERS

Hosts of Americans have longed to "do something" for the innocent victims of Spain's civil war, and particularly for the children. Hot sympathy has led 1,700 American youths, so it is reported, to enlist on one side alone. In ten months more than 500 of these volunteers are said to have died for the cause in which they believed. Is it not incumbent upon those of us who support the policy of isolating this war and preventing it from spreading to manifest somewhat of the same sacrificial spirit on the humanitarian side? Until recently non-partisan relief in Spain was out of the question. Now the Quakers are promising it through the American Friends Service Committee, with the support of the Federal Council of Churches, THE MENNONITES, the Church of the Brethren and other religious, peace and social organizations. Immunity from seizure is guaranteed under agreements with both the Loyalists and the Insurgent forces. A minimum of $10,000 a month is required at once. Contributors should address the Committee on Spain of the American Friends Service Committee, 20 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, making checks payable to the American Friends Service Committee.—Peace Action.

Note.—Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kansas, treasurer of the General Conference Relief Committee, is ready to receive our contributions and make remittance to headquarters. During the Great War we did much to help feed and clothe German children. Can we refuse to do our bit with the starving Spanish children?—T.

—News from Halstead Church—Six boys and one girl were recently baptized and received into the church. Rev. H. T. Unruh and family paid the Halstead church a visit, when they came west from Bluffton, Ohio, to see their son Earl graduate from Bethel College, and to celebrate their silver wedding among their kin. Rev. Unruh preached at the morning service, May 30. The Protestant churches of Halstead are holding union evening services in their respective churches during the summer season, the three ministers taking turns in conducting the meetings, so also the choirs in rendering special music. This is a fine plan to fraternize and to build out the Kingdom of God.

—In a Peace Meeting at Dalton, Ohio, Rev. Carl Landes and Prof. Lantz of Bluffton College "gave very interesting and stirring accounts of present trends toward war, and how a conscientious objector fared during the World War."

—The Midwest Farm Service Bulletin, sent to us regularly, strongly advises that farmers should hold their wheat, for "it seems that the farmer is certain to get higher prices for wheat this year than the present level. This is bound to be the fact unless, by rushing his wheat to market, the farmer spoils his own market. The demand for the farmer's wheat this year will be greater than for many years, for these reasons: 1) The U. S. carry-over of wheat is the smallest since the War; it is only 90 million bushels as against 320 million bushels in 1934. 2) The Canadian carry-over this year is only 39 million bushels as against 129 million bushels last year, and 286 million bushels in 1934. 3) The European carry-over is only 485 million bushels this year, as against 1,158 million bushels in 1934. 4) Their yield this year will be 75 to 100 million bushels less than last year."

—Get-together of Iowa churches—The four General Conference Mennonite Churches in Iowa: the Emanuel Church at Noble, the Church at Wayland, the Zion Church at Donnellson, and the Church at Pulaski, had a get-together at Fairground stadium at Donnellson on June 20. In the forenoon they joined in a union Sunday School session. This was followed by a preaching service, with Rev. W. W. Miller giving the sermon. The exercises were interspersed with special music. At noon they had a common basket dinner at Art Hall, and the afternon was given over to social intercourse and recreation.

—Rev. Adolph Friesen, pastor of the Zion Mennonite Church, Donnellson, Iowa, has sent us a bulletin and a program, from which we gather that the town had a Daily Vacation Bible School this spring, in which the different churches participated, and which closed with a splendid program by the children.

—The Mennonite Messenger, Sugar Creek, Ohio, also reports a community Daily Vacation Bible School in that place, with eight teachers and assistants. Of the pastors of the cooperating churches. Rev. William H. Stauffer of the Mennonite Church teaches, Rev. Howell is in charge of the worship period, and Rev. Zechiel is superintendent of the school.

—BETHANY CHURCH, Quakertown, Pa.—Rev. George S. Stoneback, who was ordained as minister by A. J. Neuenschwander in the Bethany Church, Sunday, June 20, with Rev. Freeman Swartz, chairman of the Eastern Conference, delivering the charge to the candidate, will serve the Mission Church at Altoona this summer. In September he will take charge of the Eighth Street Mennonite Church, Goshen, Indiana, for nine months, and then complete his studies at Hartford Seminary.

—Rev. William H. Stauffer, pastor of the church at Sugar Creek, Ohio, will be a counsellor at Camp Kamsatahe, near Altona, Pennsylvania, June 25 to July 4. He may also spend three weeks in July at the Tunesassa Indian School in Quaker Bridge, New York, as a representative of the Mennonites at the Quaker-Brethren-Mennonite Work Camp, to help foster the interests of peace.—Mennonite Messenger.

—The Soviet Union is preparing a third five-year plan that is intended to catch up with and overtake the United States. — Der Bote.

—The Institute of International Relations held at Bethel College, June 8 to 18, was attended by 158 regularly enrolled students, while scores of others listened to the forenoon lectures, and several hundreds attended the popular meetings held in the spacious Newton City auditorium each evening. The recitals of the tangled up conditions in the world, with plans and suggestions for improvement, may not have left a very pleasing impression on some individuals who attended only a lecture or two, but those who stayed throughout and took it all in, with an unbiased mind, will admit that on the whole the Institute was worthwhile and should prove productive of a great deal of good. Some felt, however, that more of a religious woof should have been worked into the lectures and it may be well for the local sponsors to give heed to this feeling in making their recommendations to Friends' headquarters.

—The Freeman Courier, Freeman South Dakota, reporting from the territory where the people have experienced the seven proverbial lean years, reports "Another week has passed and prospects for a harvest are still good. We had two rains the past week." The report adds that in some places they had too much rain.

—"Rev. Walter Gering and family departed for their new home in Moundridge, Kansas, where he will serve a large congregation. His friendly face will be greatly missed in church and on the street . . . Rev. Gering is a born minister. . . . He is very strong with the young people, and with the old as well, as the Bethany congregation knows it . . . . It would be very hard to find one member who had anything against him."—Freeman Courier.

—Mrs. D. O. Rupp of Moundridge, Kansas, faithful editor of the English section of the Kinderbote — Junior Messenger, took rather suddenly ill and was confined about three weeks at the Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kansas. She is now again at her home, and is recovering satisfactorily. God be praised!

—Der Bote, Rosthern, Sask., reports that Manitoba has been receiving good general rains and Alberta in parts, but no such reports came in from Saskatchewan. May God graciously give the good people in those provinces the rains that will produce good crops which they so badly need to ease their burdens!

—The child of distinguished parents is, no doubt, entitled to a distinguishing name. So Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lindberg of aviation fame have named their second son, recently born, Land Morrow Lindberg, Land being the maiden surname of his maternal grandmother and Morrow that of his maternal grandfather.

—Representative Clare Hoffman, R., Michigan, rising on the House floor recently threatened to lead a well-armed army and reliable band of citizenry to the relief of Monroe, Michigan, to take care of the C. I. O. strikers, and then asked the question, "Is President Roosevelt or Lewis boss? Who does give the orders? Where do they originate?"

—The Duke of Windsor has now been assured a yearly pension of $250,000.

ANNOUNCING

TREASURE SONGS
SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES

A new Song Book especially adapted for use in Homes, Schools, and Churches, compiled by the Committee on Schools and Education of the Western District Conference, assisted by the Faculty of the Department of Music of Bethel College and other lovers of Christian songs. An excellent selection of song favorites, which will evidently fill a large place in the educational program of Churches and Christian day schools.

A collection of 291 songs and hymns, many of which have been extensively used in our Mennonite Churches, including some thirty translations of favorite German hymns and songs. Twenty-four carefully selected Responsive Readings.

This book has already sold well in the Western District Conference and deserves a place in the congregations of other district conferences.

Sample copies will gladly be sent on approval to leaders of Sunday Schools, Churches, and Christian Endeavor Societies.

This book is printed on heavy white paper and artistically bound in blue-gray fabrikoid binding. Complete Topical Index and Index to First Lines for convenience of selection.

Prices: Single copy, 95c; $9.00 per Dozen; 50 to 99 books 2½% Discount from the Dozen price; 100 books and more, 5% Discount from the Dozen price.

Orders and requests for samples may be sent to:

IS DEMOCRATIC AMERICA SLIPPING?

Are we drifting toward a revolution, a dictatorship by the forces of labor? We already have had what the papers call "Labor Wars" in seven industrial states. Whole cities have been living in terror, soldiers have been pressed into service, bombs have exploded, bloody encounters between strikers and officers have taken place. Strange, isn't it! Tens of thousands of workmen resisting or fighting their bread givers, with armies of pickets organizing for regular battle, while national guards and police officers were concentrating for counter attacks, and all this in democratic America, under a government of the people, by the people, for the people! Strange, that appeals like the following by C. I. O. leaders have to be sent to the President: "Once again we appeal to you in these critical days. Five thousand national guards, 1,000 deputy sheriffs, and 500 police are mobilized to break our strike. Within the next twelve hours all these forces will be used in a concentrated attack on strikers. . . . in preparation for a massacre."—From a representative of those who want work and peace, not strike nor violence, we have this confession: "Work among the men in the automobile factory is becoming fierce . . . . I have not joined the C. I. O., but it looks like they will soon kick me out where I have been employed fourteen years. The C. I. O. called a strike here a 'labor holiday.' It was a disgrace to our State and Nation. The men drove their cars down town, placed them cross ways on the streets, halted all traffic, kept the newspapers from being printed, and ordered business places to close up. Of course all stores closed for the men had clubs, baseball bats, pieces of pipes, etc. We could not purchase a bottle of milk. And not a policeman could be found on the street. They all went home . . . . If we follow them (the C. I. O. in the direction they are going, we will soon find our country without a flag or a constitution . . . I saw men in the parade here giving the communist salute, i. e., the hands clenched and fists raised, in defiance of God. . . Are we at the point of dictatorship?" The following solemn words of warning were recently uttered in the United States Senate by Senator Hiram Johnson of California, "The most ominous thing in our national life of today is the sit-down strike. It is bad for the government and in the long run will be worse for labor."—T.

DO WE NEED THE CHURCH?

"I CAN'T AFFORD to belong to church" is the way some people put it. They have a family to support, their income is meager, they are afraid of the poorhouse. Then church seems to them an added expense they cannot shoulder. They hope some day to be better off financially, but in the meantime they will get along without the church. Now look at the other side of the argument. The church is here to help you; not to be ministered unto but to minister. Its work is to teach the Bible, to preach the good news of Christ, to help you on your pilgrimage from earth to heaven. The church is very important to you and your family. Its message means everything in your life. Christ is the pearl of great price; without Him, other possessions have no true value. If you are poor, if you are afraid of the future, if you are discouraged, if you are tormented by fears—then you need the church. Its worship, its fellowship, its ministry should help you over the rough places. It should give direction and meaning to your life. It should inspire you to be a good soldier of Jesus Christ, in season and out of season. The church needs financial support; but it never asks for something which you have not got or cannot afford. Its first concern is not yours, but you. If you are poorer than the woman who had only one mite, you need the church and the church welcomes you.—Lester Hostettler, in "The Herald."

FAITH AND HEALTH are closely related. It is difficult for a dyspeptic to maintain in his life the joy and radiance, the hope and love that shines out of the Gospel pages. It is, on the other hand, difficult to keep your body at its best without the moral restraint, the peace, and the confidence, which comes from religious faith. We give much attention to our physical health. And this is right. But our spiritual health is still more important, the elder, John, prayed that Gaius may "prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth." 3 John 2.—L. H.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. Richert

Announcement and Request

Dear Mission Friends:

The Lord has answered our prayers for new workers in China. D. V., Brother and Sister Albert Jantzen, who have served the Ransom church for some years, are willing to go to China this fall.

The installation and ordination service is to be held on Sunday, July 18, 1937, in the home church of sister Jantzen, Medford, Oklahoma. Brother Jantzen comes from Paso Robles, Calif.

In the forenoon there will be a mission service, and in the afternoon the installation service. In the evening the farewell service is to take place. All mission friends are invited to take part by intercession and personal presence.

For forenoon and the evening the local church will make the program.

The program for the afternon is as follows:

Song

Scripture reading, prayer and opening address—John Lichti

Song

Mission sermon—P. H. Richert

Mission sermon and officiation—P. P. Wedel

Remarks—Brother and Sister Jantzen

Collection

Close

These new workers are scheduled to sail on September 11th from Seattle on the Jefferson and we are glad to report that with them will go another new worker from Lansdale, Pa., Sister Etta R. Davis, and also sister Elizabeth Goertz, who returns from her furlough.

On Oct. 6th, three workers are to return to India on the S. S. Queen Mary from New York, namely Brother and Sister W. F. Unruh, and sister Helen E. Nickel. With them a new sister is going, Eva Pauls, a nurse who is much needed there. Sister Pauls is from the Bethel church, Inman. The workers in India sent a special plea for a new nurse.

This makes 8 workers to be sent this fall, which will be a heavy load for our treasury. But in view of the good harvest this year, the Board felt that the mission friends would be able and willing to carry the load. We wish to make a special appeal herewith for traveling money above the regular contributions for salaries, etc. One good mission sermon every month in every church would no doubt be a sufficient reminder for all these needs.

With thankful hearts for the past, and with hopeful prayers for the future,

In the name of the Board,

P. H. Richert, Sec.

EVANGELISTIC COMMITTEE REPORT to the Worker's Conference at Kai Chow, China, Nov. 1936 (Concluded)

Women's Work

The Biblewomen help along at instruction classes, and teach in women's groups throughout the field. Some are stationed at certain places while others again are shifted from place to place, as the local need of help arises. Some visitors have been struck by the fact and have been amazed, that so many of our Christian women use their Bibles and song books in the services. This is a direct fruit of this faithful and persistent work of teaching them to read and use their Bibles.

4. The Churches

The larger churches have continued on the former principles and ways of working. There have been changes in the pulpits of most of them. In no case, however, has the change resulted in retarding the progress, but rather they have strengthened the work. The smaller churches in the country are going ahead very slowly. Even the last year's offer of part support, if they provide a suitable meeting place and engage an evangelist, has so far not yet been accepted in all the churches. Not that they are unwilling to engage a worker, but in the last few years the crops have been rather poor and the struggle for existence is very real. Some have not the buildings ready, but are working ahead with plans and are using the time to raise funds. In most churches catechism classes have been held twice during the year, and some even had a week of revival meetings. All the churches register definite spiritual growth, for which we praise the Lord.

5. Instruction Classes and Baptisms

As before catechism and Bible instruction classes were held in all churches twice this year. The total number of inquirers was 760 and the number of baptisms was 139. So the Christian constituency is steadily growing. In a number of places where we have no church so far, we have opened Bible classes and thus helped them along in acquiring Bible knowledge.

6. Revival Meetings

Rev. Wang Hun Ch'en of Ts'ae Chow Fu last fall held a series of meetings in the K'ai Chow City church. Chao Te Li from Peiping held meetings throughout our field. This summer Wang Hun Ch'en again with Liu Mung Shun as song leader held meetings in Tung Ming, Ta Sang Shu, Ch'ang Yuan, Chin Ch'i, Uang Ts'un, Tsing Feng, Nan Loa and Tamingfu. Rev. Wang P'ei Ch'ien of K'ai Feng has of late joined the band for two or three weeks campaigns. From all places come good reports of new converts and believers revived. The most outstanding meetings were those in connection with the twenty-fifth anniversary of our mission. Mr. Wang Ming Tao of Peiping is a well known evangelist. We thank God for the earnest messages of the Gospel that he brought on that occasion. May the Word of God continue to be powerful in our midsts!

7. Vacation Bible Schools

In the line of vacation Bible schools we have not been able to increase very much above the last year's figures. The report shows, that for about a month, 734 pupils regularly attended, and that over forty teachers, largely volunteers, taught. Besides these schools some efforts were made in several country places to teach classes. However, because they did not follow a regular course, they have not been included in these figures.

This report is only a short synopsis of the work done. There is also much evangelistic work done through the Bible school and hospital, of which other departments can report. May it all be richly blessed from above!

The Great Teacher--His Method of Approach

Paper read by Rev. David Wedel at the Kansas Mennonite S. S. Convention

(Concluded)

There are other ways of gaining attention which Jesus uses, but we must let these suffice for the present. We will turn rather to the matter of finding a point of contact with his pupils. Jesus always dealt with people where he found them. His experiences were those of the people. He used illustrations from nature and from common life of the people. His stories were events of everyday life. His teachings grew out of his immediate situations. When he saw fishermen at their work he said to them, "I will make you fishers of men." To the people who tried to make him their King because he had fed them, he uses this event as a point of contact to tell them of the "bread of life." His lesson on forgiveness grows out of the situation when Peter questioned his Master about how many times he should forgive his brother. Jesus uses this as a point of contact to say that forgiveness is a matter of "seventy times seven." Always Jesus finds some means of contact which is present in the situation in which the pupil finds himself.

Another bit of technique which Jesus employs is that of using the question in preparing the pupil for the lesson which he wishes to impress. He was an excellent questioner. He prepared his pupil by questions and by conversation. He believed that teacher and pupil must work together in discovering a truth. When a man came to Jesus with a question, he usually asked one in return. "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" "What is written in the law? how readest thou?" When on one occasion Simon was worried over the presence of a sinful woman, Jesus told the story of the man who forgave two debtors, to one he gave a large sum, to the other a small sum, and then he asked, "Tell me, therefore which of them will love him most?" "He, I suppose, to whom he forgave the most." In every situation Jesus knew how to prepare the pupil by conversation and by question for the truth that he wished to impart.

Two other things that helped to make Jesus an accepted teacher must be mentioned. He was himself the embodiment of that which he taught. Consequently he was himself the Ideal which he held up before his pupils. Again Jesus knowledge was adequate for the task. He knew the truth and he knew the pupils. He was quick to discern the needs of the doubting, sinful, self-righteous or perverse individual.

In concluding this paper I wish to show Jesus in one actual teaching situation, where he deals with a difficult pupil. I am using the account of the Samaritan woman at the well. You are familiar with the story, so I will not read the account. Jesus was seated at the well when the Samaritan woman came to draw water. In all probability she had no intention of speaking to Jesus. But Jesus begins a conversation with a very ordinary request, one which was perfectly common and appropriate. "Give me to drink." That is the point of contact with this pupil. This ordinary request might have the effect of lessening emotional tension of having a perfect stranger speak. In this case it did relieve the tension in spite of the woman's reference that she was a Samaritan. This reference to her status gave her an outlet to her pent up feeling when a Jew spoke to her, who she feared did not know that she was a Samaritan. His frank and simple request may have inspired confidence, since it was not conditioned by any other remark. Jesus uses her remark for a clue to what he wants to say to her. "If thou knewest the gift of God and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink, thou wouldst have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water." "If thou knewest," that phrase is used to arouse her curiosity to the extent that she forgets self and all that has kept them at a distance. She is ready to receive more information, herself asking the question that bothered her about this conversation. "Sir thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep, from whence then hast thou that living water?" Now is the time to make her want this living water still more, so Jesus says, "Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again. But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst." This statement of Jesus serves further as a connecting link between the physical satisfaction (the level on which this woman lived) and the higher truth he wanted her to attain. Now she is willing to learn of his water but Jesus does not think that she is ready. He begins to talk about her family situation. She tries to meet his question about her husband with evasion. Jesus recognizes her answer as such and turns it into a frank admission, which she must affirm. He not only meets her evasion but states the truth about her family situation which was not pleasant to her. He breaks down the resistance that she has maintained toward him up to this point. He makes difficult admission on her part unnecessary.

Now that she is face to face with her life situation, her attitude changes. She now desires help from Jesus. She is bothered with a religious question, one about the place of worship. Now all inhibitions have been removed. Everything that stood in the way to the presentation of a truth is gone. Jesus can now present the truth he wishes her to know. In the words of the topic we would say, here ends the approach of Jesus. Everything up to this point belongs to it. Now the truth can be presented.

Let me summarize the approach of Jesus in this situation. He helps the pupil through the following stages in preparation for the lesson to be taught: 1. Intense emotion being addressed by a stranger, a Jew. 2. Gaining of confidence in the teacher, 3. The change of attitude from evasion to a desire for help.

Jesus method of approach, as I see it, may be summarized as follows:

1. Gaining the attention of those to be taught
2. Finding a point of contact
3. Preparing each pupil for the particular lesson to be taught.

THE EFFECTIVE SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Importance of the Sunday School

America has become the most lawless nation in the civilized world. This is the testimony of the American Bar Association. Police commissioners and jurists declare that 80 to 90 per cent of our criminals today are under 25 years of age. Alongside of this alarming condition there is another more appalling condition; the woeful neglect of religious education, to say nothing of the lack of Bible teaching. Too much of our modern religious education occupies itself with remote problems of social reform and internationalism, and neglects the weightier matters of personal salvation from sin's guilt and dominion.

In the field of religious education there is not an institution that reaches as many lives as the Sunday School. It may be said that it is the church's most effective agency. It ministers to its constituency and reaches out as a recruiting agency to the unsaved. Whether in the rural areas, the small town, or in the city, invariably the Sunday School attendance is far greater than the attendance at any other service. This places the Sunday School in a strategic position to teach the Word of God, to transform and mold lives after the image of Christ. The importance of this ministry can hardly be over-estimated. An outstanding military man recently said, "The army cannot save the nation. The Navy cannot save the nation. Nothing but multiplying Sunday Schools, until they are as thick as school houses, can save the nation." It is important that these Sunday Schools teach and inspire faith in and obedience to the Word of God, that they exalt the Lord Jesus Christ as the only Saviour from sin and that boys and girls, men and women be led to accept Him as Saviour and Lord.

Here is a need that is felt in every community. The Sunday School offers the best facilities to meet that need and our love for our Lord should stir us to Christian action. Read Matthew 9:36-38.

The hope of the nation and of Christendom, and of the lands called heathen, alike is to be found in the indoctrination of little children in the knowledge of God's truth; for the missionaries will tell you that the adult heathen population of today are to die heathen; the minister will tell you that the adult, virtually heathen population of Christian lands today are to die in that condition, unless God showers down altogether unprecedented grace—with only such occasional exceptions as confirm this general and terrible law. If this is so, the hope of Christianity is in childhood. Towards children must be directed the work of the sappers and miners of the church. Here is the weak point of the enemy's fortress. Here let the breach be made, and his topmost turret shall be laid low.

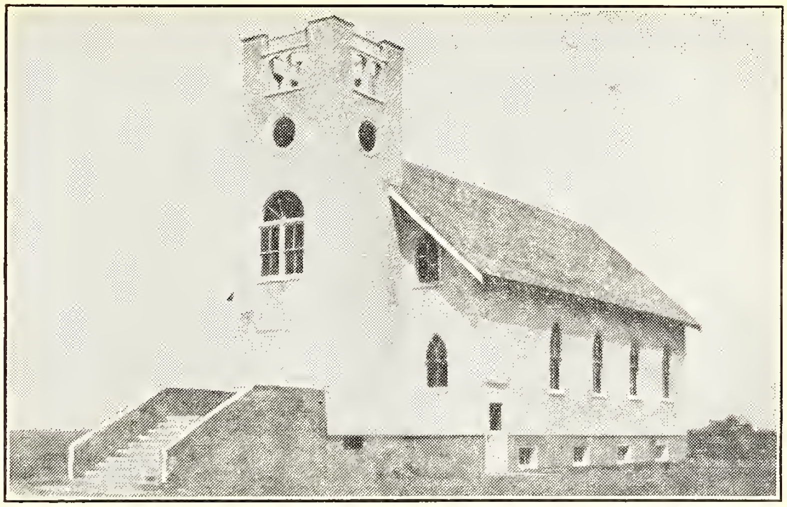
Bethel Mennonite Church

Wolf Point, Montana



This church was dedicated Sunday, June 13, with appropriate ceremonies. Much credit for its erection belongs to the building committee, Ferd Zerbe, N. F. Toavs and Frank Toavs. The church stands as a monument to the faith of the people in God and this country. Many sacrifices were made in securing the church building, which cost a little more than $2,200 and is debt free. The lumber was purchased from the Farmers Lumber Co., and Mr. Nason has taken a great interest in the promotion and proper erection of the building.

The Mennonite people settled on the Ft. Peck reservation in 1917. Their first gathering was held on May 5th, 1917, and was called together by Missionary Schrag from China. As a result of this meeting a Sunday school was organized the following day at the home of J. S. Schmidt. Until 1929, meetings were held in homes and schoolhouses. That year the basement of the present church was built and served as a meting place until the completion of the present church.

On July 27, 1924, the people joined together and formed a local assembly with 18 charter members. This number has increased until now there are 66 members of the Bethel Mennonite congregation.

From time to time men have been sent by the Northern District Conference to serve as pastors. Among those sent to this field were Rev. D. D. Eitzen of Los Angeles, Rev. J. C. Kaufman of Moundridge, Kansas, Rev. Clyde Dirks, Hutchinson, Kansas, who was the first pastor. Rev. Albert Schultz, the present pastor, has served three years.

Resolution by Northern District Conference

Resolved, in reply to the proposed plan of organization of a Mennonite Seminary under consideration by the General Conference Board of Education:

1. That the Northern District Conference is interested in the establishment of such an institution, only on the foundation of the Scriptures and under the control of various interested branches of the Mennonite church, without any official Board representation other than by election of conferences.

2. That we commit ourselves to the seeking of a solution to this problem by prayer.

3. That we hereby authorize Rev. J. F. Epp, president of the N. D. Conference, Rev. P. R. Schroeder, Pres. of the General Conference, and Rev. H. A. Klassen, during our next conference year to represent the Northern District Conference in communicating with the General Conference Board of Education on the Seminary question.

PUBLICATION

The Annual Report of our Book Concern has just been placed in the hands of the Board of Publications. It is quite encouraging as far as the sale of books and periodicals is concerned, with the exception of THE MENNONITE. This old sinner is true to form. For nearly fifty years this paper has been the Sorgenkind of the Concern and the Board of Publication, with an average annual deficit in excess of $1,000.00. This year it is in the red to the extent of $637.60, with $1,232.75 due the Concern on arrears, figured only on the January 1937 basis. The full amount of dues would probably be close to $2,000.00. One wonders if it might not be possible for the English speaking churches with their ministers and readers to get busy and by concerted action stop these deficits. All that is needed is (1) to get three or four hundred more subscribers; (2) and then see to it that the subscriptions are kept up and paid. The German speaking constituency of the Conference somehow manage not only to keep der Bundesbote out of debt, but a little ahead. Why shouldn't the Mennonite fare just as well?

GOD PREPARES A PEOPLE

Exodus 11:4 to 12:36 Printed 12:21-28

Introduction

Moses and Aaron went to Pharoah with God's demand that he let His people go into the wilderness (5:1) to hold a feast. Pharoah rejected the plea of Moses. "Who is Jehovah that I should hearken to him and let Israel go?" He greatly increased the oppressive burdens and bade his taskmasters to treat them more harshly (5:1-14). God sent Moses unto Pharaoh repeatedly to plead for Israel. There followed the long struggle during which Egypt suffered fearfully from the ten plagues divinely sent, so that the Egyptians might know that Jehovah is the true God. Moses, strong in the justice of his cause and Pharaoh, the very incarnation of the power and might, were the opponents in this contest. Moses was the representative of God, Pharaoh resisted God himself.

God Institutes the Passover vs. 21-23

In God's wisdom the hour for deliverance had come. Before the last, most fearful of the plagues was sent, God gave to Moses definite directions for their departure and the institution of the Passover (12:1-20). Israel was now under the direct government of Jehovah with Moses as leader and guide. Success now depended on their implicit faith in Jehovah and full obedience to His commands. This must needs be burned into their consciousness and they must by a solemn act, as a united people, avow their readiness to obey. God provided this in the Passover feast.

A lamb was to be slain, without blemish—the best they had—an offering to God. He deserves the best we can bring to Him. Very specific were the directions by which the families of the Israelites could be saved from the angel of death (vs. 22, 23). Those sheltered behind the blood of the sacrificial lamb, were safe. Obedience to the directions of God was purely voluntary. The blood sign on the door was proof of their faith in Him and respect for His authority. With this united pledged obedience, Israel was now ready to leave Egypt, to carry out God's great purpose for them.

A Perpetual Memorial vs. 24-28

God gave directions for the yearly observance of the miraculous deliverance in Egypt, a great national memorial, so that their children would be reminded of God's love and mercy (v27). The Passover would always remind them of God's care for them. It would be a testimonial to the truth of their religion. The emphasis is upon the sacrifice which is the very soul of the Passover.

Israel celebrated God's grace in their deliverance from Egypt. We celebrate it in our redemption through Christ, our Passover (1 Cor. 5:7). He, the spotless Lamb, became our Sacrifice. The Israelites were safe when the blood was sprinkled on their door-posts. We are safe when Christ's blood is sprinkled on the lintels of our hearts.

Nuggets of Truth

The designs of evil men can not wreck God's plans.

Memorials are necessary to fasten events and their significance in the memory.

God wanted Israel to now that He would redeem them.

The Passover was to Israel the time of new beginnings. We enter into new life through Christ.

Our safety lies in the blood of Christ.

God prepares a people in so far as the people make preparation for Him.

Sermon Sketch

TWO KINDS OF PEACE AND WARFARE

(Sermon outline on Peace by request of the Peace Committee of the Western District)

P. H. Richert

Text: "The God of Peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly." Rom. 16:20.

Introduction: This text shows clearly that there are two kinds of peace, one of which is a godly peace, because God is a "God of peace," and the other is a devilish peace, because it would be a peace with Satan, instead of "bruising him under our feet."

I. What is godly peace?

1. It is, first of all, our peace with God in Christ, who is "our peace," as Paul says.

2. It is our peace with God's children, not only with the best of them, but also with the worst of them. All those who have peace with God through Christ are my brethren, and I must not hate them nor fight against them either by word or sword, even if I have to fight against their errors and sins by the sword of the spirit.

3. Godly peace is also this, as Paul puts it: "If possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with ALL men."

Four things are expressed or implied in this passage:

a. It is not always possible to live in peace with all men.

b. Some men will hate and fight even the best and most peaceful people, as they did even the Prince of Peace.

c. All we can do scripturally in such a case, is to try to overcome evil with good, pray for them, preach Christ to them, and if necessary suffer, rather than injure them.

d. But we should never make peace with their sins and errors.

II. What is devilish peace?

1. It is that peace, which prevents us from cooperating with God as our text expresses it. God wants to use "our feet" to bruise Satan, and we should permit him to use them, and readily cooperate with God, no matter what it costs. It cost Christ his life, and the same has been true of thousands of his followers.

2. All pace with Satan, sin, and worldliness is sin. Such peace leads to open war with the sword very often. Senator Sloan told me in Washington shortly after Congress had voted for the last war: "We senators knew that it was wrong to vote for this war, but we did it anyway, because we were cowards." They did not want to take up the spiritual fight with the press and the war makers, because they might lose their reputation and their office.

2. It is also that peace, which some preach today for the heart, which promises forgiveness without Christ, just because God is love.

3. It is also that toleration that for the sake of peace permits false teachings to come into the church. We should never hate heretics nor fight them personally, but rather hate and fight their heresies.

4. Dr. Richards from England who spoke in Bethel College this summer during the I.I.R., even went so far as to call England's peace with Mussolini wrong, not because Richards believes in war (he is as nonresistant as any Mennonite), but because he claims England kept peace with Mussolini because of selfish ease etc., and not because England thought war was wrong. He said that any one who believes in war, should fight with the sword against sin and evil in this world.

Conclusion.—All this shows us, how necessary it is for us to keep our eyes open and look closely at all peace movements today, and join up only with those that pursue a godly peace, and a spiritual warfare against evil, by the grace of God.—Amen.

CORRESPONDENCE

Brudertal Church, near Hillsboro, Kansas

Baptism was held in our church on Penticost. Seven young people were admitted into our fellowship. Two Sundays later Communion was observed.

Mother's day an impressive service was held. Five young babes were consecrated to the Lord. May the Lord bless the little ones as well as the parents.

Our yearly vacation Bible School held five weeks came to a close June 4th. In connection with this close, consisting of a well rendered program given in the forenoon, our Sunday School had our all day picnic.

Several of our Mary Martha Circle members and Rev. Arnold Funk attended the Institute of International Relations held at Bethel College.

We are looking forward to the time when Elizabeth Goertz will spend a few days with the home church, before she returns to the mission field in China, in September.

Our church is joining in on the Union meetings held in July and August in town, on the First Mennonite Church grounds.

Mennonite Church, Alsen, N. Dak., June 25

Dead Editor:

Prospects for a good crop are good here. If the Lord will grant his blessings upon it, we should get a good harvest. We had a very good rain the 23rd, but it is reported that they had hail in places. In our church we are still trying to foster and promote the spiritual life, though it seems to go hard at times. On Mother's Day, May 9, we had a good program, and June 17 we had the County Sunday School Convention at our church, with representatives from all churches. It was very good, and we hope that all that was said and done added to the honor and glory of God.

May 3 our minister, Rev. Duerksen, and Mrs. Duerksen went visiting in South Dakota. We are glad they are home again. Sister Steile (?) had an operation on May 21 at the hospital in Greenforest. She is now almost well again, God be praised!

On May 31 we had the pleasant privilege to have the Senners from South Dakota with us. This proved to be a blessing for us. Come again!

Mrs. J. Kunkel, Corr.

Salem Mennonite Church, Dalton, Ohio

Miss Inda Sprunger of Berne, Ind., Young People's secretary of the Middle District, spoke to the Women's Missionary Sewing Society during their session on May 8th, to the Juniors at the church the next morning, addressed the general assembly of the Sunday School session, led devotionals for the morning services and gave a message in the evening at the session of the C. E. Society. Her messages were concise and inspirational, adapted to our special need in renewing the interest in Christian work. The same evening a young Japanese couple, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Chinnen from Auburn, N. Y., also spoke to the assembled. They stopped with friends here on their way to Hawaii, their former home, where Mr. Chinnen will have charge of a church.

Sunday, April 25, a delegation of our Christian Endeavorers attended the county C. E. convention at Burbank.

A Peace Conference convening at our church on Sunday afternoon and evening of May 23, attracted over eighty visitors from a distance. Speakers were Rev. Carl Landis of Cardale, Pa., Prof. Russel Lantz and Rollin Moser of Bluffton College. And in the evening Prof. Holtcamp of Bluffton favored the audience with a recital of organ music.

Miss Helen Nickel, missionary on furlough from India, spoke interestingly and impressively to the Women's Missionary Sewing Society during its monthly meeting on June 5 and gave impressive messages at our church on Sunday morning and evening of June 6. Miss Inna Schnick of Pandora, missionary on furlough from Jimma, Ethiopia, brought us a gospel message on June 20 and gave us a picture of conditions at their station in the interior of the Dark Continent. On the same Sunday we had children's services in the forenoon and in the evening, with a good program by the children. On Sunday, June 27, Rev. Vernon Sprunger, missionary on furlough from the Congo Belge, Africa, in a message at our church, answered the challenge of whether missions pay, by observations and personal experiences, and gave convincing evidence of the immediate need of active interest in this cause.

The pastor, with wife and son made a visit to the home of his parents at Milford Square, Pa., the middle of June. On the Sunday of his absence Stanley Tschantz spoke to the congregation.—Mrs. L. E. Amstutz, Corr.

West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa.

What blessings the Swamp charge has this spring! The effect will undoubtedly show in the growth of missionary interest.

Several weeks ago we had the unusual privilege of having missionaries from three different countries in our church for the same meeting. We had most inspirational messages from Miss Helen Nickel of India and Miss Mary Schirmer from Arizona. The latter giving us the added pleasure of seeing her Indian boy, Paul Andrew. In the audience also were the Missionary Boehrs of China. Christ's commission to go into all the world should mean more than ever. Miss Nickel spoke at the Junior, Intermediate and Senior C. E. Conventions.

One June 11 and 16 we had another treat when Miss Elizabeth Goertz was in our charge.

Surely a greater knowledge of the joys and problems of our missionaries will yield results which cannot all be estimated. Our prayer is that we may do all we can both materially and spiritually. Let all give their fullest support to this greatest work of harvesting precious souls. Correspondent

Bethel Church, Wolf Point, Montana

Dear Editor and Readers:

I'll give a brief summary of the happenings in our congregation the past church year.

I'll first mention the visiting ministers, missionaries and their wives that visited us the past year: Rev. David Schultz, Avon, South Dakota, preached; Rev. D. S. Wipf talked on Freeman College; Peter Voth, missionary from India, spoke on his field; Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Tieszen served us, Mrs. Tieszen sang several solos; Rev. and Mrs. Duerksen, missionaries from China, held services in our church.

On Sunday, September 13, seven girls and Robert Heinricks were baptized. The same evening those that had been baptized and Mrs. Robert Heinricks were taken into the church membership, and on Good Friday we had the Lord's Supper.

Our choir broadcast a Christmas and an Easter program over our local station KGCX.

On May 2, 1937, the church gave a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Goerz. Mr. Goerz is a member of our church. On June 3 the Ladies' Aid served lunch in the church basement for the Freeman College choir.

June 10, 1937, Rev. P. P. Wedel of Moundridge, Kansas, preached for us, and June 14 Rev. and Mrs. August Ewert, missionaries from China told of the habits, customs, and superstitions of the Chinese people. June 15, 1937 we had our annual church meeting. Plans and arrangements for the coming year were made. Several changes in the Sunday School classes were made. A. F. Toavs was elected deacon of the church. Rev. Albert Schultz will serve us another year.

The past year has been a very busy one. We have completed our church building and our church is debt free. That is something to be very thankful for in these hard times. June 13, 1937 was a big day, the dedication of our church. About one hundred cars were there and over four hundred people attended the dedication services.

CHRISTIANITY bears all the marks of a divine original; it came down from heaven, and its gracious purpose is to carry us up thither. Its author is God; it was foretold from the beginning, by prophecies, which grew clearer and brighter as they approached the period of their accomplishment. It was confirmed by miracles, which continued until the religion they illustrated was established. It was ratified by the blood of its author; its doctrines are pure, sublime, consistent; its precepts just and holy; its worship is spiritual; its service reasonable and rendered practicable by the offers of divine aid to human weakness. It is sanctioned by the promise of eternal happiness to the faithful, and the threat of everlasting misery to the disobedient.—Hannah More.

THIS FREEDOM WE TALK OF

The swing of events as we read them in our daily newspapers makes any thoughtful reader examine critically our concept of democracy. The movement of great masses of underprivileged people for a something which is called Freedom, which they feel they do not posssess, and which they feel it is their natural right to possess. We do not need to speak of a revolution not bounded by social strata nor national boundaries, but a movement of the mind of mankind, breaking through old established patterns like "new wine in old wineskins."

Just what do they mean? What do they want? What are they after? Will they be satisfied when they get it? Will they know what to do with it when they have it? I do not recall reading a finer bit of philosophy on the question anywhere which so incisively cuts down to the very rock of it, as a little passage from Bogoslovsky's THE IDEAL SCHOOL:

"To me, personally, the nature of freedom is best crystalized in terms of a mental picture; I see myself driving a car; before me are many roads radiating in different directions, but every road is blocked either by a red light or a gate. I can't go ahead, my freedom is nil; as any motorist knows, the situation is most irritating and uncomforatable. Gradually, however, one after another the red lights change into green ones. The more green lights appear, the more my freedom increases. When there are no more red lights in sight, my freedom is complete. I can go anywhere I wish. But where do I wish to go? Which road shall I take? This is the main question, in the solution of which the green lights of freedom are of no help whatever. Everything depends on my purpose, on what I want. If I want rest, a hike, the beauty of nature, or the glory of solitude, I take the road to the mountains or the ocean. If I wish to study, read, work, investigate, I go to some dull but respectable university town. If I like noise, mobs, excitement, and vulgarity, I drive to some Coney Island. If I am handy with my 'rod,' versed in racketeering, fond of the lazy and 'swell' life, and do not worrry about 'being taken for a ride,' I turn to Chicago. All these escapes are made possible by freedom, but not led by it. The main and most difficult problems always arise when freedom, has already been gained. All revolutions show that."*

Bogolovsky then goes on to quote Walter Lipmann's Preface to Morals, thus:

"We have come to see that Huxley was right when he said that 'a man's worst difficulties begin when he is able to do as he likes.' The evidences of these greater difficulties lie all about us: in the brave and brilliant atheists who have defied . . . God, and have become verry nervous; in the women who have emancipateed themselves from the tyranny of fathers, husbands, and homes, and who, with the intermittent but expensive help of a psychoanalyst, are now enduring liberty as interior decorators; in the young men and women who are world-weary at twenty-two; in the multitudes who drug themselves with pleasure; in the crowds, enfranchised by the blood of heroes, who cannot be persuaded to take an interest in their destiny; in the millions at last free to think without fear of priest or policeman, who have made the moving pictures and popular newspapers what they are."†

Thus we see man being thrown back upon something or someone Higher than himself, for an interpretation and guidance in the use of that freedom. Happy is that young Christian who finds this Higher Source, and who has revealed to him what the mind of man, yea, even the philosopher himself, cannot reveal—the eternal and abiding things worth going after. The sense of values is not generated; it is revealed.

THE UNIVERSE GOD MADE

Topic for August 1, 1937

Gen. 1:1-8, 31; Ps. 8:3-4; Ps. 19:1-2

(Consecration Meeting)

Meditation

M. July 26

"This is my Father's world,
He shines in all that's fair,

In the rustling grass I hear Him pass,
He speaks to me everywhere."

T. July 27

"I need not shout my faith
Thrice elequent
Are quiet trees and the green glistening sod,
Hushed are the stars whose power is never spent;
The hills are mute—yet how they speak of God!"

W. July 28

"Give me Thy harmony, O Lord, that I
May understand the beauty of the sky,
The rythm of the soft winds lullaby
The sun and shadow of the wood in spring
And Thy great love that dwells in everything."

T. July 29

Ps. 8:3-9. Which is the more marvelous: God's wonderful works of creation in our universe or Man's God-given ability to comprehend it, be it in very small measure.

F. July 30

Job. 40 and 41. Job searches for evidence of God's authorship of the universe.

S. July 31

Ps. 42:6-8. The deep of man calls unto the Deep of God."

"But chief of all Thy wondrous works
Supreme of all Thy plan,
Thou hast put the upward reach
In the heart of man."

Sun. Aug. 1.

The Universe God Made. Gen. 1:1-8, 31; Ps. 8:3,4; Ps. 19:1-2.

Program Suggestions:

1. Why or what is it that eternally in the heart of man there is the worship of some god, regardless of having heard the Christian gospel? Ps. 42:1-2; Acts 17:23; Rom. 2:12-15. Discuss and name some specific points.

2. God's creation is as broad as our imagination can picture and infinitely much beyond. Think of some most earnest desires of mankind. Are they creations of God? Has God in His creation something to satisfy them?

3. The "Universe" must include more than merely the visible things. "That which we see passes away." Thus, is not the spiritual realm more real than the physical? Courage, kindness, human sympathy are some qualities of the spiritual universe. What others can you think of? A suggestion is given in Job 38:36b.

4. We often speak of finding God's will. What is natural law? Discuss some practical applications of showing how it is God's will. What other than God's will are the laws of human relationships?

5. Have several members tell what to them in our universe is most revealing of God, and the how and why of their choice.

6. Gen. 1:27-28; Gen. 2:20. Marriage is one of God's most sacred creations. His method of providing for more personalities, more souls to develop to perfection.

7. Discuss the absolute regularity concerning the solar system, return of the seasons, of mathematical law and of "like begets like" in flowers, animals and fruit.

8. Think of ways God has provided for defense of various animals and plants. Horses, cattle, deer, snakes, lizards, cactus, thistles, and so forth.

"My garden is a lovesome thing—
God wot!
Rose plot
Fringed pool,
Fern grot
The veriest school
Of peace; and yet the fool
Contends that God is not—
Not God in gardens! when the sun is cool?
Nay, but I have a sign!
'Tis very sure God walks in mine!
—Thomas Edward Browne

What blessedness it is to dwell amidst this transparent air, which the eye can pierce without limit, amidst these floods of pure, soft, cheering light, under this immeasurable arch of heaven, and in the sight of these countless stars! An infinite universe is each moment opened to our view. And this universe is the sign and symbol of Infinite Power, Intelligence, Purity, Bliss, and Love.—W. E. Channing.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

MAKING LEISURE TIME COUNT

Topic for August 1, 1937

What the Bible Teaches

July 26. The shortness of time. Jas. 4:13-17
July 27. Give time to God. Eccl. 12:1-7
July 28. Give time to study. Luke 2:41-52
July 29. Give time to charity. Acts 9:36-43
July 30. Give time to help suffering. Acts 3:1-11
July 31. Give time to higher living. Ps. 119:9-16
Aug. 1. Topic—Kill time? Put it to good use. Eph 5:15-21

Hymns of Praise

"In His Keeping"; "What If It Were Today"; "To The Work"

Worship Service

Piano prelude: "Take Time to Be Holy"

Leader: "To every thing there is a season and a time to every purpose under the heaven"

Sing: "Take Time to Be Holy"

Scripture reading: Eph. 5:15-21 (by a member)

Silent directed prayer (The leader should suggest the thoughts for prayer, then pray silently with the group after each suggestion)

Thank God for your ability to learn to do things;

Thank Him for homes and schools to teach you;

Ask Him to give you an interest in the really worthwhile things in life.

Ask Him to be present in this meeting to bless and use what is said.

Closing prayer song: "Spirit of the Living God"

Special number and offering

Discussing the Topic

1. For the leader. If you discussed the topic of "Hobbies" last Sunday, you will probably want to discuss standards by which they can determine, what hobbies are most worthwhile to pursue. Your discussion should also help them to know how to find time for the hobbies which interest them.

2. What the Bible suggests for our leisure time. Use as many of the topics given above for short talks as you can.

3. Practical demonstrations. Let several young people sing, play some instrument, or give a reading. Before they do this ask them to tell why they have chosen to spend their time in this way, and how they have found time for it.

4. General participation.

(1) What do you think of budgeting out time? Suggest a budget of the time for one day and put it on the blackboard for discussion.

(2) How much time should we take daily for personal devotions? Why? Can we leave it to chance or should it be a part of the daily schedule? Why?

(3) Some one has said that it is possible to judge a person's whole life by what he does during his leisure hours. Do you agree with this statement? Give examples of the use of leisure time that indicate types of persons?

(4) How can you use your spare time to discover and cultivate your talents?

(5) "I never count time wasted when I use it to make a friend", said a college student. How can you use leisure time to make friends?

(6) How can our church and C. E. society help young people to use their leisure time wisely?

(7) Someone has said, "You always find time to do the things you want most to do?" Is this true? How can we help people to want to do worthwhile things in their leisure time?

Closing Moments

Song: "Give of your best to the Master"

Closing thought:

"I have only just a minute,
Just sixty seconds in it;
Forced upon me—can't refuse it,
I must suffer if I lose it,
Give account if I abuse it;
Just a tiny little minute
But eternity is in it."

Closing prayer by sponsor and the benediction Ps. 19:14

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

"A builder builded a temple,
He wrought it with grace and skill;
Pillars and grains and arches,
All fashioned to work his will
Men said as they saw its beauty,
'It shall never know decay,
Great is Thy skill, O builder!
Thy fame shall endure for aye.'

A teacher builded a temple
With loving and infinite care,
Planning each arch with patience,
Laying each stone with prayer.
None praised her unceasing efforts,
None knew of her wondrous plan,
For the temple the teacher builded
Was unseen by the eyes of man.

Gone is the builder's temple,
Crumbled into the dust;
Low lies each stately pillar,
Food for consuming rust.
But the temple the teacher builded
Will last while the ages roll,
For that beautiful unseen temple
Is a child's immortal soul."

Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world.—Jesus.

ANOTHER SUMMER "MENU"

Program for July 25, 1937

Let this again be an outdoor meeting with the theme: "An Hour With Our Missionaries." Such an hour should be full of interest and blessing.

1. Call to quietness:
    a. The leader: repeat as prayer the lines:
      O Jesus, lift our spirits up,
      O lift us up to Thee."
    b. The group: sing in unison "The Lord is in His holy temple"
2. Introductory remarks by chairman
3. The call
    a. Sing in unison "Send the Light" and "From Greenland's Icy Mountains"
    b. Solo: "Hark, 'Tis the Shepherds Voice I Hear"
    c. Prayer for readiness to answer. Knit the prayer to the thought that follows
4. The answer:
    a. Sing in unison "I'll go where you want me to go, dear Lord" and verse one and four of "Where He leads me, I will follow"
    b. Prayer spoken by a junior using the words of the hymn: "Something for Thee."
    c. Sing in unison "I will sing the wondrous Story"
5. Scripture: each child contributing a verse with the thought of missions
6. Sing in unison: "Bringing in the Sheaves"
7. "Harvest"—Reports from our stations by several juniors
8. "Pray Ye Therefore"—heart-talk by leader showing the need on our fields and awakening longing and willingness to become co-workers of Christ. Show how a junior can be a co-worker now. Give a few definite objectives for prayer and let the children chose one of these as the object of prayer in this week
9. Remembering now. Have names of mission workers and mission worker's juniors ready for distribution. Read these and allow the children to choose the one whom they wish to remember with a short letter. With the name give also a sheet of paper and a pencil so that, each junior receiving his supplies, can begin his letter immediately. Tell them that a reply must not be asked for since our missionaries are so busy
10. Two wonderful verses: by a junior reading Prov. 11:30 and Daniel 12:3
11. Special music: "Will there be any Stars in my Crown?"
12. Closing song: "I need Thee Every Hour"
13. Prayer: asking blessing upon the letters and asking that we might be made co-workers of Christ.

TO THE JUNIOR

"A call for loyal soldiers comes to one and all;
Soldiers for the conflict, will you heed the call!
Will you answer quickly with a ready cheer,
Will you be enlisted as a volunteer?

Yes, Jesus calls for soldiers who are filled with power,
Soldiers who will serve Him every day and hour;
He will not forsake you, He is ever near;
Will you be enlisted as a volunteer?

He calls you for He loves you with a heart most kind,
He whose heart was broken, broken for mankind;
Now, just now He calls you, calls in accents clear,
Will you be enlisted as a volunteer?

A volunteer for Jesus,
A soldier true!
Others have enlisted,
Why not you?
Jesus is the captain, we will never fear;
Will you be enlisted as a volunteer?"

NON-RESISTANCE—IN THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENT

The longer treatise on this subject, "Should a Christian Take Part in War?", which I promised for publication some weeks ago, is now ready. It is written by our son, Theodore, Meno, Okla.—This is his graduation thesis, on completing his course for the Th. M. in a seminary where they do not teach non-resistance.

The almost new thought in this treatise is that non-resistance is taught in the Old Testament as well as in the New. Usually we hear it said, "In the O. T. war was not only permitted but was even commanded, and that not only to the nations of the world, but also to God's own people of Israel"; and also "the God of the O. T. was a God of war. Only when Jesus, the Son of that O. T. God, came, He taught, saying, 'But I say unto you . . .' " Jesus is thus correcting his Father's teaching, or else contradicting it. No, no! How can God change His view? Jesus being God as well as the Father. Or how can the Father have his teaching corrected by His Son Jesus? Unthinkable! Confusing! No, the O. T. God was not a God of war in the sense in which we usually take that word. His warriers were not soldiers, but heavenly hosts. God's Word is consistent throughout. The N. T. does not teach things different from the O. T.; but enlarges upon them, explains them or shows their fulfilment.

Our people will be interested in this treatise, especially since it is written by a young Mennonite. We hope it is a worthy contribution to a better understanding of this very vital subject in our Christian life.
—J. B. Epp.

Nobody ever outgrows Scripture; the book widens and deepens with our years.—Spurgeon.

DEATHS

DANIEL HAURY

Daniel Haury, was born October 5, 1845 in Ingolstadt, Bavaria, Germany, the eldest child of John and Maria Haury.

When Daniel was eleven years old, the family came to America and settled at Summerfield, Ill., where the boy received his education and became a member of the Mennonite church.

In 1871 he was united in marriage to Miss Anna Strohm and four years later they came to Kansas, where they founded a new home on a farm four miles north of Halstead. This was in the pioneer days when it took courage and determination to see a future in these treeless plains. With an indomitable will and a steadfast faith in God these early settlers succeeded in converting the vast plains of Kansas into the garden spot of our nation.

In 1884 Mr. Haury lost his faithful helpmate through death and a year later he married Miss Elizabeth Dester who became a loving mother to his seven young children. To this second union six children were born of whom two died in infancy. Mrs. Haury passed away in 1913 and two adult sons, Edwin J. and Samuel also preceded their father in death.

The children who remain to mourn the passing of their greatly beloved and revered father are: Misses Bertha, Laura and Irma Haury of the home, Mrs. Otto Rupp of Moundridge, Mrs. Samuel Langenwalter of Gulfport, Miss., Albert Haury of Hutchinson, Carl Haury of Halstead, Dr. Paul Haury of Lewiston, Ida., and Dr. Richard Haury of Newton.

Besides these there are two sons-in-law, five daughters-in-law, five grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Mr. Haury was the last charter member of the First Mennonite church of Halstead and throughout the years he was always a faithful and enthusiastic supporter of the church, of missions and of the cause of Christian education. He was a lover of people and was ever interested in the welfare of the sick and unfortunate.

On April 30 he suffered a stroke of paralysis as a result of which he passed to his heavenly reward on June 2, having reached the age of 91 years, 7 months and 27 days.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

Funeral services were held at the Halstead Mennonite Church, June 5, in charge of the pastor, Rev. David Wedel, who also delivered the message. Near relatives served with special music.

MRS. JACOB P. VOGT

Mrs. Jacob P. Vogt, the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Valentine Krehbiel, was born at Summerfield, Illinois, December 30, 1863. The family moved to Kansas in 1875 and lived there for many years.

The deceased accepted Christ in her early womanhood. She became a member of the Mennonite Church, in which she served faithfully until her declining years, when illness prevented her from being as active as she had formerly ben. However, her influence as a consistent Christian was very wholesome and deeply appreciated.

She was married to Jacob P. Vogt, February 17, 1884. This union was blessed with three sons and three daughters. Two of the latter have preceded her in death. In 1912 the Vogt family moved to California and have lived here ever since that time.

The deceased reached the age of 73 years, five months and 28 days. She leaves a step-mother in Oklahoma, 3 sons, Edward of San Francisco, Dr. Ray H. of Reedley, Dr. Gerhard O. of Corcoran and one daughter, Mrs. J. J. Eyman of Reedley; 8 grandchildren and 5 brothers and 5 sisters. Beyond the immediate family circle there is a large number of friends who hold her character in grateful remembrance.

Funeral services were held June 29, at the Reedley Church, Rev. J. H. Langenwalter speaking on the text Gen. 33:27 and Rev. H. J. Krehbiel on Mark 14:5.

PETER PREHEIM

Peter Preheim, son of Carl and Kathryn Preheim, was born March 12, 1868, in Southwestern Russia, and departed this life at Zenda, Kans., June 4, 1937, at the age of 69 years, 2 months and 24 days.

When six years of age he came with his parents to this country and they established their home near Yankton, S. D. Soon after arrival there, he suffered the loss of his mother and one sister, through a prairie fire, and endured all the trials attendant to this tragedy, as well as the other hardships of pioneer life.

He joined the Salem Zion Mennonite church in his early youth, later becoming a charter member of the Pretty Prairie Mennonite church, and was loyal to this faith until his death. He was married October 6, 1888, to Anna Saner. They moved to Kansas and made their home near Pretty Prairie, where they lived until February 19, 1929, when his wife preceded him in death. Of the eleven children born to this union, two passed away in early childhood.

He was a kind and thoughtful husband and father, and was held in high esteem by all his neighbors and friends. His congenial disposition and his tolerance and broadmindedness won him friends wherever he went. The loss of his wife was a blow from which he never fully recovered.

Mr. Preheim is survived by six sons: John and Rudolph of Hutchinson; Jacob of Reedly, Calif.; Benjamin of Spivey; Edward of Monroe, Wash., and Walter of Junction City, and three daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth McClure of Hutchinson; Mrs. Ida Walker of Bluff City, and Mrs. Marie Wager of Kingman. Thirty-four grandchildren, one great grandchild, three brothers, three sisters, his eldest sister, Mary Stucky, surviving him only a few hours, and a great many other relatives and friends who are saddened by his sudden passing.

Funeral services were held at the Pretty Prairie Mennonite Church, Monday afternoon, June 7, conducted by Rev. J. W. Lorenz of Hutchinson, and Sol. Mouttet from Oklahoma. Interment in the church cemetery.

PETER D. GRABER

Peter D. Graber, son of Daniel and Marie Graber, was born April 9, 1858, in Waldheim, Russia, and departed this life, June 13, 1937, at the age of 79 years, 2 months, 4 days.

He joined the church through the holy rite of Baptism in 1873. In the year of 1874, he immigrated with his parents to America.

In the years of 1884, he united in holy wedlock with Marie Krehbiel and shared with her joy and sorrow eleven years. This union was blessed with six children, one of whom, a daughter, preceded him in death. In 1895, it pleased the Lord to take his companion home to him. In 1897, he was married the second time, to Fanny Krehbiel, with whom he shared the joys and sorrows of this life twenty-eight years. This union was blessed with seven children. In 1925 it pleased the Lord again to take his beloved wife from him. The remaining twelve years of his life he lived with his children.

Then he too answered the call of the Master and went to be at rest with Him. He leaves to mourn his departure twelve children, twenty-seven grand children, four great grand children, two sisters, one half brother, two half sisters, and many relatives and friends. Interment was made at Pretty Prairie Church cemetery. Rev. George Kopper and Rev. J. W. Lorenz were in charge of the burial services.

MARIAN NEISWANDER

Marian (Gratz) Neiswander, daughter of Christian and Catherine (Steiner) Gratz, was born at Bluffton, Ohio, March 1, 1864, and died at her late home in Pandora, Ohio, in the early morning hours of June 26, 1937. She was one of a family of fifteen children of whom three survive her. On Dec. 10, 1885, she was united in marriage with Benjamin Neiswander, with whom she lived in happy wedlock for nearly forty years, when the union was broken by the death of Mr. Neiswander, twelve years ago. She is survived by three children—Malinda, Mrs. J. A. Watt and Alvin of Dayton, Ohio. When she was sixteen she became a Christian and was baptized and received into the Swiss Mennonite Church by the Reverend John Moser. Later she transferred her membership to the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio. She lived a good Christian life. After much suffering she went home to be with her Lord. Funeral services werer conducted at the Grace Church, June 28, by her pastor, Rev. Paul E. Whitmer.

MRS. AUGUSTA GOEBEL LOHRENTZ

Mrs. Augusta Goebel Lohrentz, daughter of Jacob Goebel and Lydia Reusser Goebel, and wife of Henry Lohrentz, was born near Moundridge, Kansas, on September 15, 1892 and passed away at the Halstead Hospital, Halstead, Kansas, on Sunday, June 27, 1937, at the age of 44 years, 9 months, and 12 days.

On July 26, 1908 she was baptized and united with the First Mennonite Church of Christian, at Moundridge, Kansas. Here she remained a faithful member until her departure through death. She loved the Church and was very regular in her attendance at its services, if it was at all possible for her to attend.

She was married to Henry Lohrentz on June 17, 1918. To this union five children were born, four of which died in infancy.

The deceased was failing in health for a number of years, but was patient and resigned in her suffering. A few weeks before her death her condition became worse, and she did not seem to respond to medical treatment. She felt that her end was near, and desired to set her house in order. To her loved ones and to her pastor she expressed her assurance that death would be a means to eternal blessed life through the grace of Christ. In this faith she tarried until her Spirit took flight to be with Christ. She leaves to mourn her departure her husband, Henry Lohrentz, her eight year old son, Robert Lee, her mother, five sisters, four brothers, many other relatives and a large circle of friends.

Funeral services were conducted on June 30 from the First Mennonite Church of Christian, with the pastor, Rev. P. P. Wedel in charge. He used as a text 2 Kings 20:1, the words that the deceased kept so definitely in mind in the last days of her life.

CHARLES M. GEORGE

Charles M. George, son of Charles Y. and Lydia Moyer George, was born January 15th, 1863, in Richland Township.

On August 7th, 1886, he was united in marriage with Lizzie S. Shelly, with whom he shared the joys and tasks of life for more than 50 years.

Eight children were born into this union. Two died in their infancy. Those surviving their father are: Wilmer S. of Slatington, Harrison, Mrs. Elsie Martin, Mrs. Nellie Maugle and Alfred in this community, and Oliver in Lancaster. Sixteen grandchildren and six great-grandchildren survive besides two brothers, David of Quakertown and Zecheriah of Richlandtown. Mrs. Lizzie S. George outlived her husband. For many years Mr. George was a regular and faithful member of Bethany Mennonite Church and Sunday School.

After a brief sickness the end came on the evening of June 28th, thus bringing his age to 74 years, 5 months and 13 days.

Text used by his pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, was Isaiah 35:10. Rev. H. W. Hartman, Pastor, Grace Church, Mennonite Brethren in Christ, assisted.

— Since 1933, Germany has built more than a million new residences and settlements. And the building program for the next few years provides for the erection of 300,000 more homes and dwellings annually.

—The Pretty Prairie, Kansas, Mennonite Church gave its new pastor, Rev. P. P. Tschetter, and family a reception on Sunday, June 20, which was largely attended.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—Rev. S. M. Musselman, who for several years served the Mennonite Church at Pretty Prairie, Kan., as its pastor, and then temporarily took charge of the Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church, Wichita, Kansas, has now accepted a call from the Johannestal Mennonite Church near Hillsboro, Kansas.

—Rev. Sam Goering, returned missionary from China, who devotedly served Bethel College as its business manager for one year, has been ordered by the doctor to quit work for needed rest and recuperation. The family left the campus last Friday for 1818 Cheyenne Boulevard, Colorado Springs, Colorado, their own residence, for an indefinite stay. Bethel is sorry to lose these good people and sincerely wishes Brother Goering an early recovery to normal health.

—Prof. E. L. Harshbarger of Bethel College, who has been engaged by the Ponoco Study Tour of New York to conduct a group of Americans on a trip through Europe, for the study of international relations, sailed from New York with his party late in June. They arrived safely at Cherbourg, France, July 6. Going from there to Geneva by way of Paris, they will then meet at Oetz in the Tyrol for a week's study of Present Day Europe, at the American People's College. Then they will visit Vienna, Budapest, Prague, Dresden, Berlin, Copenhagen, going as far north as Helsingfors, Finland. Returning to London they will attend the International Peace Conference, to be held there Aug. 16-19, where among other items the International Aspect for Adult Education will receive much attention. The party expect to return the latter part of August.

—Dr. Abr. Warkentin of the Bethel College faculty served the Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minn., as guest speaker at their missionary festival, Sunday, July 4, and then conducted a series of evangelistic meetings during the week.

—An item sent us by the Wheaton College News Bureau, reads in part as follows: "Among the recipients of honorary degrees conferred by Wheaton College at the institution's seventy-eighth annual commencent was Peter Reuben Schroeder, president of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America . . . . The degree was conferred upon him because of his distinguished service in his particular field of Christian work. He was awarded Doctor of Divinity." It is hoped that, having been so signally honored for his Christian service by Wheaton College, Dr. Schroeder will now see his way clear to give his undivided support toward making our own colleges the best Christian colleges in the land.

—Prof. Russel A. Lantz, is again directing union choirs in four central points in the Eastern District Conference, preparatory for the Second Annual Mennonite Music Festival, to be held Sunday, August 8th in Perkasie Park. The Oratorio, "The Holy City" by Gaul is being prepared for the concert. A large number of singers are busy rehearsing each week for the musical and spiritual treat.

— Rev. H. J. Krehbiel writes, "The Pacific District Conference, held at Reedley, Calif., June 17-20, has been exceptionally good and inspiring, favored by cool weather which the 65 delegates and visitors enjoyed. The outside visitors were Rev. J. H. Janzen, Vancouver, B. C., and Rev. J. M. Regier, Bethel College. The latter presented Bethel College: Its Needs and Possibilities. The former presented the Mission Work in W. Canada."

— From The Herald of the Upland Mennonite Church, L. Hostetler, Editor, we glean the following about the same Conference, "Reedley hospitality was first class in every respect. It was of the good old-fashioned Mennonite variety, which provides every comfort for the visitors and adds much to the fine spirit of the delegates. . . The Conference sessions were efficiently directed by the President, Rev. D. D. Eitzen. Certain items of business pertaining to the new constitution and to certain committee reports called forth vigorous debates at times. But a conference without some debates would, in reality, not be a conference. . . The Evangelistic Committee reported a new settlement of Mennonites, 30 or more families, at Bellingham, Wash., and stands ready to render any assistance needed to care for their spiritual welfare. . . New officers were elected as follows: President, P. A. Wedel, Aberdeen, Ida.; Vice-Pres., Herbert Widmer, Dallas, Oregon; Secretary, M. J. Galle, Odessa, Wash.; Treasurer, J. C. Jantz, Odessa, Wash.; Business Committee, Lester Hostetler, Homer Leisy, and P. A. Wedel; Evangelization, Harley King, J. M. Franz, J. H. Langenwalter, S. S. Baumgartner; Candidates for Board of Directors, Bethel College, L. J. Horsch, P. A. Wedel. The 1938 session of the Conference will be held at Monroe, Wash. . . M. M. Lehman is the pastor of the Monroe Church. . . Conspicuous for their absence were Rev. P. R. Aeschliman, father and organizer of the Pacific Conference and M. J. Galle, etc."

— The Galle families, children and grandchildren of the early settlers, William, Jacob, and Peter Galle, and other relatives in the neighborhood of Moundridge, Kansas, held their reunion in the park there, June 22. An interesting feature was a family history of the Galle clan, prepared and presented by Rev. M. J. Galle, Odessa, Washington, which dated back to 1685 in Germany. And it was at the West Zion Church, Moundridge, Kansas, with his father, Rev. Wm. Galle, as its pastor, where Rev. M. J. Galle preached his first sermon just twenty-five years ago.

— The Missionary P. J. Wiens family are now located at 319 East Fourth Street, Newton, Kansas.

— A beautiful new parsonage in cottage style is being erected by the Bethel College Congregation for their pastor, Rev. J. N. Smucker and family, in one of the best locations on the College campus. Rev. Smucker is serving the congregation so well that they are anxious to do all they can for him and his family.

— At the annual meeting of the Bethel Hospital at Mt. Lake, Minn., it was reported that the Institution cared for 463 patients during the year, in a total of 4,156 nursing days, with 199 operations.

— Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Wiens who have moved to Newton, have been fortunate in being able to move into the furnished home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Claassen, 400 East Fourth Street, Newton, while the Claassens have moved into the residence of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Claassen, who are spending the hot summer season at Manitou, Colorado.

— From tne Bulletin of the Souderton, Pa. Mennonite Church, which Rev. E. J. Bohn, pastor, sends us regularly, we glean the following: The church has a fine enrollment and attendance in its Vacation Bible School, 76 pupils and six teachers.—Rev. Grover T. Soldner, formerly pastor of this church, now field worker for Bluffton College, is working in that community in the interests of the College.—John C. Wenger, student at the University of Zuerich, Switzerland, has written a book on the history of the Mennonites, also one on the schism in 1847 which brought into existence the Eastern District Conference. The books can be procured at 82 Hamlin Street, Tedford, at $2.25.

— Unitied Menn. Church, Leanington, Ont.—On June 20, four Mennonite mixed choirs and the mail choir of our church gave a program of songs, three songs being presented by each choir and two by the whole ensemble. Like last year, the festival was well attended.—Corr.

— Rev. P. P. Wedel of Moundridge, Chairman of the Board of Foreign Missions, writes: "It is a little more than two weeks since my return from Montana where I spent three weeks on our Mission Field, at the Northern District Conference, and in visiting our three Montana churches. I had a blessed time, and hope that others were blessed through me. Where possible, I tried to speak a good word for our General Conference Publications, also for "THE MENNONITE." Wishing you the Lord's blessing in your work and in your home, I remain—P. P. Wedel."

— We thank Rev. P. E. Whitmer, Pandora, Ohio, for sending us a copy of a Findley, Ohio, daily with a splendidly written and illustrated account of the 100th Anniversary celebration of the coming of the Swiss Mennonites to Ohio, which was to take place at Bluffton, Ohio., July 1, and which is now history. We hope to be able to bring snatches of the many interesting things.

— The Berne Witness, Berne, Ind., has been elected to membership of Indiana Greater Weeklies, an organization of outstanding weekly, semi- and tri-weekly papers in the state.—Witness. We congratulate the Witness and its live editor, Edward Liechty, in particular, to this recognition and honor.

— Rev. Van der Smissen preached the German sermon at the Berne, Ind., Mennonite Church, Sunday, June 27.

— This neighborhood had over two inches of rain Friday, and vegetation and population have undergone quite a change. It was a general rain, and at many places it rained as much as four inches. The yield of small grain will be increased, and you ought to see the pep in rural communities.—Freeman Courier, July 1.

IN PARTNERSHIP WITH GOD.—"Ye meant evil against me, but God meant it for good." This is what the prime minister of Egypt, Joseph, said to his frightened brothers, when he had it in his power to take revenge on them for once plotting to destroy him. There he was, the most exalted man in Egypt, the savior of millions, while they were groveling before him in conscience-stricken abjection, and his dream of the sheaves had found its fulfillment. What a wonderful man, this Joseph! Why? Because he was thinking the thoughts of God after Him. Genuinely pure and upright at heart, how could he condone and hide from his father the evil deeds of his brothers? Occupied with thinking the thoughts of God, as he was, is it any wonder that in his dreams he had glimpses of the great things that God had in store for him? And in his sufferings, what a prototype of Jesus! When seized, stripped of his garments, and thrown into the pit, no resistance on his part, for an inner voice whispered to him, "Fear not, it will all be well!"When serving as a slave, when thrown into prison for resisting temptation, there is no report of even a murmur. He endured it bravely, because of an inner assurance, "Take courage, God will turn this to good!" In spite of tribulations and humiliations of all sorts, this Hebrew youth kept on growing in favor with God and man, until he stood before Pharaoh interpreting his dreams, as a result of which he came to be revealed as the co-worker with God. How true, "All things work for good to them that love the Lord." What a challenge to young people, to live a life in partnership with God!

HAS THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH FAILED?—Christ's coming has brought to this world a glorious message and a great commission: "Peace on earth and good will among men," and "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." With His departure the Savior left the task of spreading peace among men and preaching the gospel of salvation to the church which he had founded. Now after nearly two thousand years this church has brought the gospel message to only about a third of the people on earth and has ignominiously failed to make a definite start at propagating peace. Not only that, but it has for centuries aided Christian nations in warring with each other. Even worse! It has helped to teach the heathen the art of modern warfare. Is it any wonder that leaders of nominally Christian countries are so little impressed with its small success in its influence upon the lives of men that they are casting about for a religion that is to be more invigorating, more dynamic? Is it any wonder that a great many serious minded Christians live in fear and trembling as to what may become of Christianity in case of another world war, which is apt to be so terrible that one shudders in horror in trying to picture the results? But we should not despair, for did not the Savior say that his church would be so solidly founded "that the gates of hell shall not prevail against it"? God is still in the heavens and He will have his way yet.

LODGE, SOCIAL GOSPEL, GOD.—The lodge is an institution planted on Christian soil. It is actuated by fraternal motives and charity toward brother lodgemen. But it is weak in so far as it does not satisfy the innermost longings of the heart for true peace. And membership in it is apt to make its devotees indifferent to the church and the real means of salvation. The social gospel tries to create better living conditions, more wholesome surroundings, a purer moral atmosphere to live in, and certainly makes valuable contributions toward cleaner and happier community life. But it is failing for want of a real vital appeal to the human heart. It is as James Colville, President of the National Free Church Council of London, recently indicated in The Christian magazine:

"The church's most urgent task is the restoration of belief, the recovery for our people of the conviction that there is a living God, a God who acts, a God who speaks, a God who seeks the salvation of mankind and has made provision for it. It is the absence of this belief which is the source of the greater part of the world's confusion." Yes, the church and the Christian world are in need of a mass return to God and an all-round regeneration of the hearts of men.

A TASK FOR MOTHERS

From a Mothers' Day Sermon by J. N. Smucker
Pastor of the Bethel College Church

Many ministers have discovered that real mothers are not at all enthusiastic about the usual Mothers' Day Services. Some mothers have a feeling that they would almost rather not attend Church Services that day than to go and hear so much sentimental praise about themselves. In general it may be said, that mothers who deserve such praise most, desire it the least; while those deserving it least, desire it most. Good mothers do not care to hear people speak of the great sacrifices they have made; they have felt many times repaid by the compensating joys of motherphood. To be sure, those of us who are not mothers, as well as all of us, could show a deeper appreciation for all that our mothers have done for us. But our finest and deepest appreciation is not shown by boxes of candy, flowers and greeting cards, but by living such worthy lives as fills a mother's heart with real and abiding joy.

But there is a possibility of turning Mothers' Day to a great force for good which gives mothers everywhere a real challenge to service rather than mere praise and flattery; a change which will no doubt be welcomed by mothers in general: MAKE MOTHERS' DAY A MOTHERS-FOR-PEACE DAY. Mothers are really more interested in peace than in praise; more interested in abolishing the curse of war than in receiving honor and glory for themselves. The curse of war flows on from one generation to another and can be effectively abolished only if it is made to die a natural death. May not the mothers have a large part in striking this death blow?

The question may well be asked, Why place this burden on the already over-burdened mothers of the world? At least four reasons may be given:

In the first place mothers are the heaviest sufferers in any war. Men make wars and women suffer. They see their sons and husbands killed and their daughters ravished by war fiends. Men scheme and plot and plan to make profits and satisfy their greed, and women pay in agonizing tears and broken hearts. As one mother has put it:

"It is we who lie and listen in the trenches
When the shells burst like thunder overhead;
It is we who turn the piteous faces over
In the search for the living and the dead;
It is we who stand and hear the sentries calling,
As they pace in the wind and the rain;
We who hear the broken roll-call and the silence
For the names that will never come again."

Since wars are made by men and suffered by mothers they have a right to speak in reference to this matter.

In the second place, it is time that mothers take a hand in abolishing war for men seem unable to do so! They have failed all through the centuries in spite of their claiming to be Christian. So that

"After two thousand years of saying Mass,
They have come as far as poison gas."

Men's thinking is sadly warped on this subject. They talk peace but think war. They talk of the beauties of peace but all the while are frantically getting ready for war. They are desperately inconsistent and seem unable to free themselves from the old fallacies of war-mindedness. Let the mothers have a chance at this problem! They are more stable in their thinking, less flighty and less gullible then men. While men delude themselves with high-sounding phrases about "giving one's life for a great cause," women know soldiers are being sent out to kill all they can. "The aroused conscience of the womanhood of the world must speak if this tragedy (war) is to be averted. Men will never kill war by themselves. We have waited too long for that. The deciding vote is in the hands of the women. When they choose to use it, war will end."

In the third place, this is a task for mothers because they are more familiar with the roots of peace. The roots of peace are not alliances and intrigues and armaments and diplomacies as men seem to think, but love and sacrifice and unselfishness. In these qualities mothers are in their native element; in these things they are specialists. Thy understand their power. They can better understand the principles of Jesus in His teaching of sacrificial love. Their faith is more simple and direct. They take the teachings of Jesus more literally instead of thinning them down, diluting and twisting them to selfish ends. Therefore they understand more about the roots of abiding peace than men for in the realm of unselfish love they are experts.

In the fourth place, we believe mothers must take up the task of peace because they can do it! The burden of establishing Peace is a heavy load but women are equal to it. When the motherhood of the world is fully aroused, mankind can no more wage war. Many soldiers declare they would never go out to fight, if the women did not encourage them to do so by calling them heroes and telling them how proud they would be of them. Generals would be helpless if women emphatically declared that they would never give themselves to a man that turned into a murderer. The so-called glamor and glory of war would quickly fade if women declared it hideous and murderous and would give no expression to false hero talk.

But women can bring peace in more permanent and lasting ways. Joseph Fort-Newton has said: "What we need is more light, more love, more understanding; and here lies the divine opportunity of women. Indeed, a great thinker, now recently dead, held that the women of the world, in one generation can so alter the spirit of the race as to make war undreamed of. Let me make appeal to the flower of American womanhood, with all the passion of my heart, to their organized power, to their forward-looking intelligence, to their spiritual insight and practical sagacity, to help the world disarm its mind and purify its power that war may be abolished from the earth. It can be done; it must be done; it is written in the book of the will of God that it shall be done." (quoted in H. P. Krehbiel's new book, "War, Peace, Amity")

But granted that the responsibility of Peace rests largely on the mothers, just what can they do to discharge that responsibility? But they need scarcely be told by men how to accomplish this hard task. Once the mothers of the world fervently "seek peace and pursue it" they will find abundant means of bringing it to pass. They will probably decide that peace can be effectively built with Childhood and that their own life and character will have a tremendous influence.

Consider what might be done in this matter through childhood. The world could be rebuilt with childhood and war could be abolished with this same great weapon,—childhood. "We who desire peace must write it in the hearts of children." The mothers of the world are in the best position to rightly use this power of childhood; it is their particular field. Through childhood the roots of war could be destroyed in the coming generation and also children could be immunized against the dread disease of war; for war is a great social disease with definite causes, symptoms and curses.

Notice what could be done in destroying the roots of war in children. By thoroughly inculcating into the hearts and lives of all children the Christian principles of love, sacrifice, respect for all personality, and by carefully guarding against the evil roots of hate, pride, selfishness, greed, thus are the foundations of peace permanently built. Nursery rhymes and children's stories should be carefully selected. Hero stories should have as the heroes the great men and women who have made constructive contributions to the world, not those engaged in war's destruction of all that is fine. Children could be taught the love for children of all races and classes by studying children of other nations and by writing to such children. Instead of developing in the child a mere national mind let them be brought to see the "mind of Christ."

We are coming to realize that the toys of children have a powerful influence upon molding their characters. If we put into their hands toys suggesting war we are definitely teaching war to their receptive minds. One is shocked at the great increase in recent years in the display and sale of military toys; soldiers, guns, machine-guns, pistols, tanks, all in glitering colors to attract children. How we plant the seeds of war in young minds and then are later horrified to see these seeds produce fruit! How strange that we who wish to build for peace should flaunt all these war toys before our children, give them toy pistols and guns and fireworks, and then smile as they stake their mock wars. But all these war toys are unnecessary! In some towns the mothers have become aroused have taken action and successfully insisted that merchants put away all military toys,—and the merchants have done so. In those towns children are just as happy and no war toys are temptingly displayed before them.

But the most powerful way of planting the ideals of peace in the hearts of the children is by the example of the mother herself! When her godly character so accurately reflects the Christ life that children have before them a living example of the Prince of Peace, —an atmosphere is created in which war ideas simply sicken and die. Thousands of years ago, we are told, there were great monstrous animals on the earth known as Dinosauria, the largest known land animals. They were so huge and terrible with their great horny slates that other animals seemed helpless before them. What has become of these monsters? Science tells us the atmosphere changed and they died. "A woman's sphere is an atmosphere." Mothers can so decidedly change the atmosphere of the world that the great war dragon cannot live! The monster must be slain by a changed atmosphere rather than allowed to live but confined by treaties and alliances. He is too strong for such feeble restrictions. He will again break loose. Mothers of the world,—change the atmosphere!

Yes, mothers have a great opportunity in turning a sentimental Mothers' Day into a sacrificial Mothers-for-Peace Day at which time they give definite thought, prayer and action on the great question of Peace. "Who knows but what you are come to the kingdom for such a time as this." A nation of Peace Mothers will produce a Nation of Peace, for when mothers really "seek peace and pursue it," nothing in the world can stop them. God is on their side. Let all come to the support of the mothers in this great task and strengthen their hands in the home, the church and the community and thus preserve all that is dearest to the hearts of mothers.

One good mother is worth a hundred schoolmasters.

LETTER FROM KAI CHOW, HOPEI, CHINA

Just a year ago, April 26th to May 3rd, there was held at Kai Chow a week of services commemorating the 25th Anniversary of the China Mission. 1100 Christians, of whom 850 were church members from our own field, gathered day after day, taxing to capacity the large church in the East Suburb for every service, including the 6:00 o'clock morning prayermeeting. Now after considerable delay a little publication is being gotten out in Chinese, recording the stirring reports and heart searching messages given during those days. The following is taken from the introduction to the pamphlet:

"With our 25th year past and the Celebration well behind us, the results might be summarized under three points:

First, the inspiration to higher living that came from eight conseecutive days devoted to consideration of spiritual things. Some who had left the Christian pathway were recalled to new life, many others were led to take definite forward steps and everyone during those days lived on a higher plane. We believe the inspiration so received continues to operate in the life of the church even yet.

"Secondly, there was the feeling of stability that comes with maturity, or perhaps better with the experience, for twenty-five years hardly enables a church to mature. It does however give much experienece and provides that members increasingly come from a Christian background. The 25th Anniversary Celebration brought this clearly into mind by gathering together talented and trained Christian Chinese leaders and by displaying a healthy and growing young church.

"The last and by no means least, is the sense of unity that comes from gathering at on time, in one place and for one purpose a great proportion of the Christians of our field. Here were Christians separated by hundreds of 'li' meeting together and finding that we worship and love one Lord and find communion in one church. This getting acquainted and living together for one week in fellowship with each other and the same Lord and the resulting sense of unity was probably the greatest contribution of the 25th Anniversary Celebration.

"It is with the idea of keeping fresh these memories and conserving these values that this record of the occasion is put out . . . Looking forward to the future we see by faith a church which shall increasingly be thoroughly Christian and truly indigenous. Under God's leading we desire to bend every effort to this end."

Continue to remember this young and growing church in our China Mission Field.

Very sincerely yours,
S. F. Pannabecker.

WHAT CONSTITUTES PASTORAL AND PAROCHIAL SUCCESS

Paper read by Rev. H. J. Krehbiel at the Pacific District Conference, Reedley, California, June 17-20

In order that we may have an intelligent understanding of the question which we are to discuss, it will be necessary to define the three terms: Pastor, Parochial and Success. Pastor is the Latin and French word for shepherd and is used in the English language to designate one who shepherds and cares for souls. The word parochial is derived from the Greek word Pariokia, meaning sojourning, going from house to house, or Paroikos, par meaning beside or near, and oikos, the home or house. Consequently the one who lives near or besides the neighbor.

In England, with a state church, a parish is an ecclesiastical unit, a village and the surrounding territory, presided over by a rector, vicar or priest. But here in America we will have to define our second term as community, and the question would then read, Pastoral success in the community in which the pastor's church is located. It remains, then, to define the word success, and Webster tells us it is the favorable termination of anything attempted, the attainment of a proposed or desired objective.

In the light of these definitions, what is pastoral and parochial success? That would depend upon what we consider the proposed or desired objectives of the pastor. About twenty years ago the magazines of America published many articles on successful business men. Invariably they ran about as follows: The man had been born in some obscure village or country home; he went to work at an early age, because his family was poor. He began in a lowly position, at a meager salary, and by patience and persistence worked his way up until today he is president of some great railway system, or the head of some great industry which employs thousands of men. He is a millionaire and lives in a palace in the suburb of some great city. He has his private railroad car, perhaps a yacht, and a retinue of servants. That this was not a proper criterion of success was realized by Andrew Carnegie, himself one of these successful men, when he said, "The time will come when it will be a disgrace to die a millionaire."

Years ago in Ohio there rode with me in my buggy from Collinsville to Trenton, a distance of ten miles, a grammar school teacher. In the conversation he lamented the fact that he would never make a success in life. He would keep on teaching and making a living for his family, and that was about all. I comforted him with the assurance that if through his teaching and by his example he would instill in the soul of his pupils high ideals, noble purposes, a due regard for honesty, charity and morality, his life would be a greater success than that of any millionaire.

Like the writers of these articles, perhaps we have had an equally erroneous and perverse conception of what constitutes pastoral success, of what ought to be the proposed or desired objectives of a pastor. Some thought it should be, to come to a church and community, be a hale fellow, well met with the glad hand, create a great excitement and attract the crowd to his church by sensational stunts and sermons; raise the budget, build a new church and then explode in a blaze of glory like some sky rocket, and go to some new field, there to repeat the process, leaving the church and community in which he staged his success poorer financially and spiritually than they were when he came. That is success on the Billy Sunday order which is of a very low quality and of rather doubtful value.

I should like to consider as pastoral and parochial success such work as was done by Joseph Parker in London, A. J. Gordon in Boston, and Dr. Cyler in Brooklyn, men who stood for a generation in the same pulpit in the same community, as prophets of God, declaring his will; a tower of strength, a source of consolation; not only to the members of their church, but a blessing to the whole community—until it was said of Dr. A. J. Gordon, "He is the best loved man in New England."

Pastoral and parochial success includes, according to my estimation, the following items: First, on the part of the minister such a deep consecration to the person and teaching of Jesus Christ that he can say with Paul, the apostle, "Christ liveth in me," and such love and sympathy with his fellowmen that he can say, "The love of God constraineth me." He should have such fidelity to the revelation of God as given in the Bible that he can present it to his people as the will of God, for their good, for their highest attainment and greatest enjoyment in life. He ought to build up in his people, in the membership of his church such a high degree of moral and ethical standards that his church will be the salt of the earth and the light of the world, to the community in which it is located. These things constitute real pastoral success, measured by the standard of eternity, and they will also be duly appreciated by men, as evidenced by the testimony of a poor man in a small town in Illinois, where I had conducted the funeral of a faithful pastor who had lived in that community the greater part of his life. I met this poor man, who was not a member of that pastor's church, in the evening after the funeral, and he said to me with tears in his eyes, "Today we buried the best man in town." That is pastoral success.

GOD LEADS A PEOPLE

Exodus 13:17 to 15:21 Printed: 13:17-22; 14:10-15

Introduction

Our lesson of about two chapters, contains the account of God leading His people out of Egypt and across the Red Sea, the most stirring and impressive event in Old Testament history. After the last plague, Pharaoh hastily summoned Moses and Aaron in the night and urged them to leave at once with all their possessions (Ex. 12:31-34).

God Leads in Longer Way vs. 17-22

The Israelites, a large undisciplined throng of two millions or more, were entirely unprepared for the inevitable conflict with the fierce Philistine which the direct route into Canaan would have led them into. God saw this clearly (v. 17). In later years they "repented" rather easily of their leaving Egypt when difficulties arose. They readily complained about slight discomforts.

God led them (v. 18) by a longer route, because before they were ready for the Promised Land, they must undergo a long course of disciplinary training and teaching. The people, even Moses possibly, must have wondered. We too prefer short cuts to the desired goal and readily seek them.

God knew then, knows now, what He is doing. He wanted above all, a people who were strong in faith and character. The wilderness training was needed. God Himself went before them to show the way (vs. 21, 22). The pillar, a cloud by day and a fire by night, was the visible guarantee of His presence in their midst, the visible embodiment of His glory. God is always with His own.

A Perilous Situation vs. 10-12

Pharaoh quickly regretted the loss of his profitable slaves. He hastily pursues them with a large army (v. 9) and overtakes them encamped on the west side of the Red Sea. The Israelites were desperately alarmed (v. 10), the waters before them, mountains on both sides of them and the Egyptian army behind them, seemingly no escape was possible. They were sized by a panic of fear. They blamed Moses (vs 11, 12) for bringing them into this danger. In reality they were in no danger at all. God who had led them there also had a way for their escape from the enemy. He never brings His children into danger without preparing a way out. Moses had a difficult task on his hands.

A Way Through the Sea vs. 13-15

Moses reassured the fearfully-trembling people (v. 13). They did not have his great faith. They saw only the enemy. He saw God. They must "stand still," firmly, without fear and await "the salvation of the Lord." Israel was now in a place where God alone could save them.

Moses assures them that "God will fight for them." They must trust Him and cease murmuring. The time for action had come, they must go forward (v. 15), go as far as they could on God's promises.

God who led Israel of old and protected them, is able and ready to lead people and nations today. Leaders need to look humbly to Him for guidance. Wars would soon cease.

Nuggets of Truth

The way God leads is the only safe way.

The shortest way is not always the best way. Israel needed the wilderness discipline.

It is easy to blame leaders—in church and state—for disagreeable situations.

God can help nations today in so far as they are willing to follow His plans for them.

"THE END OF DESIRE."

Text—"O that I knew."—Job 23:3.

Everybody at one time or another has uttered the words, "If I only knew." Thus the human heart cries out for enlightment.

From the depths of despair, Job cried out the words of our text, "O that I knew where I might find him." The reason for this question can be noted in 13:6 where he says, "Surely I would speak to the Almighty, and I desire to reason with God."

Jesus said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Immediately we hear some one say, "What things?" Says one, "If I only knew that I would fare better then I would seek after Him." Others, trying to probe into the future cry out, "If I only knew what it would be like, I would fashion my life accordingly." Still others, "If I only were sure that there might be no hereafter, then I would satisfy all my desires."

In the business world, we find the same thing. "If I only knew, I would purchase that stock, or I would go into partnership, or I would make this deal or that." Others regretfully say, "Had I only known."

People do the same concerning the physical body, especially in time of illness. "If I only knew that this or that would help me, I would gladly submit." Others, later, "Had I only known."

Scientists tell us that life is a continual adjustment of the internal relations to external relations. How true! Some people have never risen above the animal desires and for that reason they claim that no one else has either. We are no longer conformed to this world but transformed by the renewing of our mind, by the new life within. The desires of pleasing self then disappear, and a new desire, that of pleasing Christ will possess us.

There is no promise of mere future life in the Bible; the promise is of life eternal, the life of love for which we do wait until we die. Eternal life begins here—now, as soon as we apply the law of Christ to our daily life. It means more than professing Christ; it means living Christ.

So many people search for the thing that they think will minister to their pleasure, and surround themselves with the materials for a full and satisfying life, so that those desires become a part of their own construction. Often-times when we seek happiness, we do not find it, when we cease to seek for it, we find it right at our very door. When we realize that we are a part of the Infinite, we are no longer dependent upon circumstances for happiness. As we grow, in spiritual things, by the grace of God, we shall have all we want. This is God's promise to His followers.

To enjoy all things and all persons and yet be dependent upon none, to be enslaved by nothing; to live our lives to the fullest extent, as Christ would have us live—should be the end of desire.

A Tribute to Freeman College

During our participation in the recent commencement festivities of Freeman Junior College, we were so deeply and favorably impressed with what we observed and visioned that we feel constrained to write this article. At the turn of this century some men of vision among the Mennonites of south-eastern South Dakota decided they needed an institution of learning, where their sons and daughters might obtain a Christian education, for service in the public school, Sunday school, church, and life generally. The result was the founding of South Dakota Mennonite College, later named Freeman Junior College at Freeman, South Dakota, with departments and courses of college rank as the ultimate objective. A simple but suitable frame school building was erected during the summer of 1903 with two teachers, and the school was opened in the fall of that year.

We who were then teaching at Bethel College, cast our lot with the new school in the summer of 1904 and stayed with it until 1908, when we went abroad for further study. The work was pioneering in the real sense. For a good many years the school was merely an academy, when only high school and even common school subjects were taught. Many of the students were inadequately prepared and a lot of individual teaching beside the class work was necessary. With no dormitory at first, the students were lodging in private homes, which hampered supervision, and the town had several saloons. So, plenty and hard work was the lot of the teachers then. But the interest in the school manifested by the constituency, the splendid type of youths represented in the student body, and their eagerness to learn, gave hope and encouragement. Although perhaps the busiest four years in our teaching career of more than forty years, we thoroughly enjoyed the work.

As an illustration of what manner of material the students were made of and still are, we cite this: Fourteen students where graduated from the school while we were there, four young women and ten young men. Of these two are ministers, two are physicians, two are lawyers who have held the position of state's attorney and county judge, one is a banker, seven have been and two are still teaching. Of the teachers, two have held positions of county superintendents and two of town superintendents of schools, and there is plenty of evidence that later graduates as well as ex-students have given an equally good account of themselves. Thus scores of young people, eager to serve their fellowmen in many capacities, have gone out from this school and have proved a blessing wherever their lot cast them. In the churches, in the homes, in business, everywhere, one can see traces of the beneficent influence that has been disseminated by the school. One finds culture, the appreciation of the better and nobler things in life, well informed minds with whom it is a pleasure to contact, and genuine Christian living.

How well has the prophecy of the chief founder of Bethel College, Rev. David Goerz, come true! When we were about to leave for Freeman in 1904, he said in substance this: Of the several acadamies found among our Mennonite people, the school at Freeman is the only one likely to have permanency and the prospects to develop into a college. Yes, Freeman College has, during the thirty-four years of its existence, done so well and has been so signally blessed of God, that its constituency would not, could not get along without it any more. It is there to stay.

Like other schools, it has had its struggles. Just as growing children outgrow their clothing, it had to have larger and better housing and more adequate equipment, all at considerable cost. And, due to the fact that there are three other colleges within a radius of forty to fifty miles of Freeman, all hustling for students, considerable competition had to be faced, and tuition rates kept moderate; hence the rather meagre income had to be replenished through voluntary help. And as the school doesn't have wealthy people among its supporters, the administration has had its share of financial problems to solve.

However, things went pretty well until the advent of the seven years of unprecedented drouth and crop failures, from 1930-36, which almost paralleled the seven lean years of Bible lore. Just how the school, the farmers and everybody else in that part of the country managed to pull through that long drawn out crisis, is almost a miracle. Faith in God, with sacrifices to the utmost must have done it. The people stood by the school loyally, and did what they could. But if it had not been for the faithful, consecrated Christian teachers that the school had, who stuck to their posts with heroic fortitude, living on starvation wages, the school could not have remained open. To them more than anybody else belongs the prize for saving the cause and the school. It is to be hoped that with the return of better times and better crops, the people will show their appreciation of that self-sacrificing service in a tangible way.

The enrollment of the school has been around 150. But strenous efforts are to be made to raise it to 200. And there is no reason why Freeman College should not draw students and loyal support from the different churches of the Northern District Conference, which is its natural territory, if it earnestly endeavors to serve them as a church school, with an eye single to the preparation and training of workers for these churches, teachers for their schools, and the spread of God's kingdom generally.

The College is fortunate in having as its head Professor J. D. Unruh. In the prime of life, possessed of a pleasing personality, easy of approach, of good adddress, industrious, level headed, conscious of the needs of the school and the people whom it serves, and above all a child of God, he appears to be the right man in the right place. With him and his lovely wife at the head, supported by the present loyal faculty, by a united constituency, and with God ready to bless all honest efforts made in His name and for His cause, Freeman College seems destined to become an increasingly strong force for good within its sphere of influence. May God richly bless the School, the President, the Teachers, the Board, and all its supporters.

OUR FOREIGN MISSION TREASURY

Dear Mission Friends:

You will be glad to have read last week in our papers that at least eight workers are to be sent out this fall, four to China and four to India, four new ones and four returning.

This is especially god news in view of the fact that no new workers could be sent out the last 5 or 6 years, except one sister last year to China. No wonder that the workers on the field get tired, and worried about it. They will take new courage now.

This joy, of course, brings with it the responsibility to pay for their sending. But gratitude for the good crops, both in our mission fields during the last year, with an increase of 345 souls, and on our farms, with millions of bushels of grain, will no doubt make us willing for the sacrifice in tithing, and going even beyond that.

It has been a precious experience of the writer during the more than 25 years he served on this Board, that whenever the needs were clearly and squarely placed before our churches and mission friends, they always met the needs.

Yesterday an old mother who has not any too much of earthly goods, gave me $100.00, as a special thank offering for the Lord's answering her prayers against insects that threatened to destroy all her wheat.

If the Lord hears prayers for our earthly harvest, how much more willing will he be, and has he been, to hear prayers for the harvest of souls. Let us continue to pray, praise, and give, and do it better than ever. We need it.

In the name of the Board, P. H. Richert, Sec.

Rev. Abraham Albrecht, who conducted the Mennonite Bible Academy at Hillsboro, Kansas, for a number of years, until it was discontinued, and has since been doing work for the Missionary committee of the Western District, has been engaged to take charge of the Mennonite church at Ransom, and is now moving there with his family. This church has been served by Rev. A. L. Jantzen for about three years, who with his wife, Wilma Lichti Jantzen, were ordained as missionaries to China at the Medford, Oklahoma church, Sunday, July 18.

CORRESPONDENCE

Colfax, Washington, July 7, 1937

Rev. Harrley King and family have safely returned from the Pacific Conference at Reedley, California. On Pentecost six young people were baptized on confession of faith in Christ and received into the church, and two others by letter of recommendation and hand of fellowship.

Dr. H. A. Fast, Bethel College, Kansas, Field Secretary of the General Conference, was with us June 2-4 and presented the many fields of activity of our Conference and the growth of the work since its beginning. The present open door in the mission field should challenge us to our best endeavor.

From June 5-7 we had the privilege of entertaining the Sunday School-Christian Endeavor Convention of this statee. The theme for the convention was "Others for Christ." The addresses were truly inspiring. On Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning they centered around this theme. Rev. M. M. Lehman, of Monroe, Washington, and Rev. H. A. Fast were the speakers. Sunday afternoon and Monday morning were given over to topics, music, and addresses by Miss Gertrude Apel of Seattle and Rev. H. A. Fast. Miss Apel pictured how the Sunday School reports of the United States indicate a decline in actual results and the need for a united effort to bring young people to a saving knowledge of Christ. The address by Dr. Fast centered in "The Practical Aspect of Living the Christian Life vs. a Mere Profession." A practical talk by Rev. Earl Shonp on Sunday afternoon was very timely. On Monday afternoon Rev. P. R. Aeschliman gave a short sermon on "The Vine and the Branches."

The general feeling was that this was one of the best conventions yet. We trust it shall bring fruit for time and eternity.—Correspondent.

Menn. Church, Hillsboro, Kansas, July 8, 1937

Sunday, June 20, nine young girls were united with the church through baptism. The Rev. A. J. Dyck assisted Rev. J. H. Epp in the services. The following Sunday communion services were observed.

We are glad to report that our union services started off beautifully last Sunday night. We had lovely weather, a fine crowd and most of all a very fitting and inspiring sermon, which was delivered by the Rev. P. K. Regier of Moundridge.

We are glad for these series of meetings, for we know the committee has worked hard to work out a program suited to the needs of the community. They secure very good ministers, among them also the Rev. J. E. Hartzler. The "blessings" will be there. Will we be there to receive them?—Mrs. Jno. Bartel, Corr.

The effects of opposition are wonderful. There are men who rise refreshed on hearing of a threat; men to whom a crisis which intimidates and paralyzes the majority—demanding, not the faculties of prudence and thrift, but comprehension, immovableness, the readiness of sacrifice, comes graceful and beloved as a bride.—Emerson.

Convention E.D.C. Young People's Union

At the First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa.

The morning session opened with an organ prelude, followed by devotions by Mr. Merrill Achey, president of the Allentown Society, who also welcomed the audience.

Mrs. Homer Clemens, of Schwenksville, gave an instrumental number on the violin.

The business session followed with the chairlady, Miss Huldah Myers, president, presiding.

As a project for the year, 1937-38 the convention pledged itself to raise $400.00 as a contribution toward the sending of Miss Etta Davis, one of our own members, to our Mission Field in China. Miss Davis has just recently been accepted by our Foreign Mission Board as a worker in China. She is a member of the Grace Church at Lansdale, Pa.

New Officers elected to serve for the coming year were: President, Mr. Norman Geisinger, Upper Milford Church; Vice-Pres., Miss Huldah Myers, West Swamp Church; Corresponding Sec'y., Mary Kerr, Schwenksville Church; Recording Rec'y., Margaret Stover, Second Church, Philadelphia; Mission Sec'y., Marie Gerhart, East Swamp Church; Treasurer, Mr. DeWitt Temple, Germantown, Philadelphia; Junior Sup't., Mrs. Clarence Kooker, Flatland; Intermediate Sup't, Mrs. Emma Rappold, Souderton.

It was reported that one project for the past year had been completed. $400 was donated toward a worker's home at Napier, Pa., and $150 toward the work at Saskatoon, Canada.

A piano and organ duet by the Souderton Society and a hymn brought the morning session to a close.

The afternoon devotions were conducted by Mr. Earnest Leitzel, of Richfield, followed by the hymn "Am I A Soldier Of The Cross," and a girl's trio from East Swamp, composed of the Misses Mildred and Lillian Landis and Lucy Auckland, who sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

The Attendance Banner was awarded to the Group representing the Richfield Society; this was the first time that a Church so far distant from the center of activity carried the banner away.

Gambling, a Racket

Ex. 2:15; Matt. 27:35

Young People Topic for Aug. 8, 1937

Meditation:

Mon. Aug. 2

Ex. 21:16—Is not this, so to speak, exactly the occupation of pool hall owners? Has not many a husband and brother been taken captive in that way?

Tues., Aug. 3

Lev. 19:11. What is there in gambling that is contrary to this command?

Wed., August 4

Gambling: to hazard something on a chance. In a sense, is not God doing this with the success of His Cause? How can we help Him win His wager?

Thurs., Aug. 5

In Bible times lots were cast in many instances. Why is it not more commonly observed today? They said God cast the lots, (Prov. 16:33) as they were supposed to fall; then, did God help cast lots when the garment of His Son was at stake under the cross? Matt. 27:35.

Fri., Aug. 6

Have you ever thought out just what to you was wrong in gambling, or did you take it on the word of others? If the latter is true, think of reasons now.

Sat., Aug. 7

Our pursuit in life is ultimate happiness and peace. What place can there be in it for gambling? Can you think of any advantages derived from engagement in it?

Sun., Aug. 8

Topic: Gambling, A Racket. Ex. 20:15; Matt. 27:35.

Program Thoughts:

1. What is so alluring about gambling? What is it that forces people to try again and again, though they lose? What bearing has "following the line of least resistance" on gambling? What about desire for adventure? How may the latter be directed into wholesome lines of expression? What comparison is there between life as such and gambling?

2. Discuss fast and reckless driving as a method of gambling, as to lives, property and loved ones involved. Not only the driver's side of it but that of the victim hit.

3. For the present let us define gambling as giving or getting money in underhanded or otherwise dishonorable ways. Think of the following in this connection as examples:

a. Chain letters (especially common a year or so ago.)
b. Forging names
c. High-pressure salesmanship
d. Betting on horse races or other kinds
e. Incorrect advertising
f. Selling poor quality at exhorbitant prices

4. Supposing a group of men decide to play for money. Each one is fully responsible, no one was forced into it. And all are aware of the fact that they may lose, yet they decide to try it. What objections would you raise? Is not each his own boss? Is probably not one or the other in need of money to buy supplies for the family? What effect is seen on character through getting money without working for it.

5. What would you answer a pool hall owner, if he says he does not take anyone's money, he is merely answering a demand for human expression in form of play; he can not help it if they do it by dishonest ways and means.

6. Many people cannot see through the tricks and turns gamblers employ and their ignorance is taken advantage of. How do you think education can help people to see straight in these matters? What about being trained in clear logical thinking? Knowing how emotional strain often prevents right thought and action?

7. What do you think of these things as gambling or taking chances against God.

a. Casting lots instead of developing your God-given power of choice. (Although some psychololists say we can not choose we will assume for the present that we do.)
b. Letting your Bible fall open and placing your finger somewhere on the page without looking and saying to yourself "Where my finger rests that is the answer of my prayer, a message or God's special direction to me for the day."
c. Coming to your Sunday School class or pulpit without any preparation on your part, saying that the Holy Spirit will inspire as you rise to give your presentation.

8. Two young men in the same city have decided on the work they will take up. A is interested in social service work and the particular country where he is going has brought death to many another. Friends discourage him, pleading to place his talents in some "safe" place where he may accomplish much and rise fast. But he is undismayed.

B is going into bootlegging with a gang that has been found by the police but once. It is easy money, he says. He hopes his work or location will not be found out.

Are these young men gambling with their lives? How? Are the possible chances worth the effort? If so, what are various gains to be hoped for?

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

What Members Should Bring To the Meeting

1. Bible
2. A friend
3. Sympathy
4. Attention
5. Ideas on the topic
6. Cheerful face
7. Desire to worship
8. Desire to learn

Meetings cannot be a success without the cooperation of the members. First of all, be there, and on time. If you are appointed as a leader, accept the responsibility and plan a good meeting. If you have a topic, be there to give what you can, regardless of your feeling of inability to do as well as someone else you know. Your society will be what you make it. Your society will help you to grow if you let it.

Everyone working together for a definite cause will soon make a society of which you can be proud. Your friends will like to come back to enjoyable meetings.

Some Worthwhile Things Our Society Has Done In the Past Year

By Dennis A. Lehman
Berne, Indiana

We had a dedicatory service the first meeting in 1937. At this meeting we dedicated our newly enlarged and remodeled Christian Endeavor room. We now have adequate room for our 200 Intermediate members.

Our society has not undertaken any definite project this year, although we are keenly interested in the return of our missionaries to the foreign field. For this reason the proposal to give a large proportion of our funds to that cause met with immediate approval by the Intermediates. In this way we helped two missionaries who have now gone back to the Tibetan border.

To add interest to the C. E. meetings we began a Bible reading contest. The object is to read the Bible through by the end of this year. The society is divided into two teams, thus the team which has the greatest number reading the Bible through wins the contest. This in itself is interesting, but to add even wore interest to the contest and to the programs we leave five or ten minutes from time to time, in which any members give testimonies as to how far they have read and what great blessing they receive from reading the Bible. It is indeed surprising what a large per cent is reading or has already read the Bible through.

"You are writing a gospel,
  A chapter each day,
By the deeds that you do
  And the words that you say,
Men read what you write,
  Whether faithless or true,
Say! What is the gospel
  According to you?"

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

A Leader's Prayer

"O Master, let me walk with Thee
In lowly paths of service free;
Tell me Thy secret; help me bear
The stain of toil, the fret of care.

Help me the slow of heart to move
By some clear, winning word of love;
Teach me the wayward feet to stay,
And guide them in the homeward way."

"Dear Lord and Father of mankind,
Forgive our foolish ways!
Reclothe us in our rightful mind;
In purer lives Thy service find,
In deeper reverence, praise."

A leader's prayer. The life we live would reach with greedy hands to take from us the hour of quietness. "Enter into thine inner chamber, and having shut thy door, pray to thy Father who is in secret, and thy Father who seeth in secret shall recompense thee." How rich the leader's recompense when, in a quiet hour, he has said, "Here am I, use even me."

Something for August

We have not had a Bible verse contest. Why not have one now? A very interesting method is that of Bible Baseball. The meetings should then be out of doors. August has five Sundays. I would run the contest through these five Sundays, thus giving time for competitive interest. This would close the summer quarter and afford splendid opportunity for a social at which the winning team could be guest of the losers. Make out a list of forty Bible verses Juniors should know. This may seem too much memory work but do not hesitate, for Juniors love to memorize and do it quickly. The method of this contest is as follows: (simplified) Two teams with a pitcher and three basemen each. The pitcher calls the scripture reference to first batter. If he can quote the verse, he may go to first base: if he cannot, first base man is allowed to quote it. If he is able to do this, he has put the first batter out and made a score for his team. The second batter is then given a reference. Should he know it, he passes to first base. Should the next batter also know his reference, he walks to first base and first base batter to second base. Should the new batter fail, then first baseman is given the reference, should he also fail, second baseman receives it, and if he can quote it, the batter at his base is out, making another score for the field team. Should he, however, fail, a new batter takes the reference. When three "outs" have been made, the teams exchange positions.

Other Suggestions for August 1, 1937

A Bible-baseball contest might be a drawing "card" for some children who have not attended your group meetings. Why not let your juniors canvass the territory and bring all outsiders who will come. They will want to be fair and stay the five weeks for the sake of the team. It may be that in these five weeks you may have the joy of being a fisher of "little men" and "little women."

Opening service:

1. Hymns I love and why. In charge of junior chairman with group participation
2. Scripture reading, Psalm 119:9-16, and prayer by chairman
3. Hymn in unison: "We praise Thee, O God, for the Son of Thy love"

Five minutes with our Missionaries

1. Have reports from Mission News and Notes or mission page of Mennonite
1. Notice: "Needs or Projects" of June issue of Missionary News and Notes. Your boys could gather Sunday School pictures and your girls quilt blocks for Arizona and Montana
3. Notice also the August Mission Children list in the Junior Messenger, July 1, issue. A committee would enjoy sending birthday cards to these. I would chose a new committee each month to serve in this capacity
4. Mission offering. Let this offering be for missions only and for expenses of any mission project

5. Chose a mission song. This you could use at the close of each "Five Minute with Our Missionaries."

Bible-Baseball—twenty minutes

Closing service

1. One verse of "O How I Love Jesus"
2. Heart-talk:

"O Jesus, Lord and Saviour,
I give myself to Thee,
For Thou, in Thy atonement,
Didst give Thyself for mee;
I own no other Master,
My heart shall be Thy throne,
My life I give, henceforth to live,
O Christ for Thee alone."

3. Sing in unison: "Living for Jesus"
4. Closing prayer

TO THE JUNIORS

Once upon a time there was a cobbler. The boys of the village knew this young cobbler that cobbled shoes all day long. They came often because he could tell such good stories about people everywhere.

On the wall opposite the cobblers bench was a curious map made out of brown paper with clippings of all sorts pasted all over it. These clippings told about what was going on in all the strange countries across the seas. Sometimes he added a drawing of his own or a sentence telling what he thought of the strange customs of these people.

Besides him on the bench lay a Bible. It was always there for this cobbler loved it, and he thought about the words he found there as he cobbled away all day long. The clippings that this cobbler had posted on the map told strange stories to him: how people, black people were eating one another and how yellow people drowned their girl babies. It made him want to go and tell them that it was wrong, that it was sinful, that Jesus could cleanse their sinful hearts and help them to live right, that they could become children of God if they wanted to. The longer he thought of these terrible stories, the more he wanted to go to help these people and when he read his Bible it always seemed to say: "Go ye! Go ye!"

One day, when he could stand it no longer, he put away his cobbler bench and tools and went to a big meeting. He stood up and said to the large assembly that Christians must go out to heathen lands to tell the story of Jesus. That made the chairman very angry because, you see, they were not used to sending missionaries as we are today. He told the cobbler: "Sit down, young man! When God wants to convert the heathen, He will do it without your help and mine!" The cobbler went home. Still he heard the two little words "Go ye!" He began to write articles for papers. All of these told of the need of going across the seas to tell other people the story of Jesus. One day he preached a wonderful sermon on the same subject. Some of the same ministers who had been so cross with him at the other meeting, were present at this one. Their hearts were changing. They began to think as the cobbler did. They organized a society and raised enough money to send the cobbler to India.

Have you guessed the name of the cobbler? His real name was Mr. William Carey who became the first missionary to India, because he believed that everyone should obey God's voice. God's voice said "Go Ye" to him and Mr. Carey went.

PERILS OF THE SUMMER.—"Then came a viper out of the heat." Acts 23:3. Paul had been shipwrecked on the island of Melita and as he gathered driftwood and cast it on the fire that they made to dry themselves this viper attached itself to his hand.

How often does the heat of the sumer bring forth vipers that seek to destroy the spiritual life of an individual. We need to watch out for their poisonous venom. Some make the lame excuse for their absence from church services that they are worshipping God in nature. Like the golfer who told his pastor that it did him much good to think of the fine sermon being preached while he was on the golf course on Sunday morning. The call of the wilds is not always the call of God.

"Oh, it's too hot to go to church," characterizes the sentiment of a great number when the thermometer gets up to around 90 degrees. Others are attracted here, there and yonder, while the church is forgotten in the mad rush for vacation grounds. Too often is it true today that people need another vacation to recuperate from their vacation.

People need to learn that although they can take a rest from the routine religious duties, yet they are never to rest in their Christian life. For, if there ever is a time that a person should live as Christ would want him to, then that time is during vacation. A well spent vacation should renew us in a physical, mental and spiritual way. So take note whether your's measures up to this standard as you make plans for the summer.—Grace Menn. Messenger, Lansdale, Pa.

—The Gospel Team of Bluffton College have saved $100.00 from the offerings they received from Churches. With this they have created two Bluffton scholarships of $50.00 each.

THE ISSUE AT OXFORD

Before us lies a folder with the above title, pertaining to the WORLD CONFERENCE ON CHURCH, COMMUNITY AND STATE which meets at Oxford, England, July 12-26, 1937.

Unfortunately this folder did not come to our attention in time to give our people details of the Conference and to give our leaders an opportunity to examine and possibly answer the questionaire which the sponsors of the Oxford meeting have been circulating. We have, however, called attention to the meeting in THE MENNONITE, and the need for prayer.

"This Conference has been called by the UNIVERSAL CHRISTIAN COUNCIL FOR LIFE AND WORK, in succession to the Stockholm Conference of 1925, to face the grave issues which confront the world today, and to consider the responsibility of the Church to them. A similar conference on FAITH and ORDER will be held in Edinburgh, August 3-18."

Feeling that the questionaire referred to would be of considerable interest to many of the readers we give them here:

I. THE CHURCH AND THE COMMUNITY

1. Which of the following represents your conception of the function of the Church?
   (1) To nourish the inner life of the individual and prepare the soul for eternity.
   (2) To redeem society as well as the individual frrom the power of evil; and to make life now, as well as hereafter, conform to the purposes of God.
   (3) Your own view if differing from above.
2. In endeavoring to transform the life of the community, how many of the following should the Church use?
   (1) Appeal to moral and spiritual principles by educational and inspirational methods.
   (2) A program of social activities arising from the needs of the community.
   (3) A legislative campaign to establish and maintain Christian standards in society.
3. What should be the attitude of the Church toward secular agencies which like itself are seeking the betterment of society?
4. Should the Christian Church regard itself as the religious expression of a national or racial community or as a Christian world community transcending such limitations?

II. THE CHURCH AND THE STATE

1. How far are you in accord with that historic position which thinks of the Church and the State as differing aspects of a single entity—the national community?
2. What in present conditions or habits of thought weakens such a position today?
3. Is the State ever justified in nationalizing the Church?
4. How far is the Church responsible for the antagonisms which have grown up against it in various parts of the world?
5. What are the dangers to the spiritual life of the individual and society in regarding the State as the final and absolute object of loyalty?
6. What serious elements or possibilities of conflict between Church and State do you note in North America?

III. CHURCH, COMMUNITY AND STATE IN RELATION TO THE SOCIAL STATE

1. Does Christ's frequent use of illustration drawn from the economic life of His day create an obligation for the Christian follower to be interested in the economic life of today?
2. What goals or standards for economic life are implicit in the Christian Gospel?
3. What is the function of the Church in a time of economic stress and social struggle?
4. How far should the churches allow their ministers freedom to discuss the ethical aspects of business and politics?
5. What should be the attitude of the Church toward Labor Unions?

IV. CHURCH, COMMUNITY AND STATE IN RELATION TO EDUCATION

1. Should complete control of education be in the hands of either the Church or the State?
2. In what areas of education should the Church and the State each have a free hand?
3. In what manner, if any, should religion be taught in the public schools of North America?
4. Is freedom of thought and speech essential to the welfare of the Community?
5. Are "Teacher's Oaths" and state censorship of school textbook materially advantageous to a democracy?
6. What tendencies that threaten free speech are to be found in North America today?
7. Should public funds be used in support of the Church's program of education?

V. (a) THE CHURCH UNIVERSAL AND A WORLD OF NATIONS

1. In view of the great diversity of racial and cultural backgrounds among the nations, is it practicable for the Church Universal to attempt to formulate world Christian opinion?
2. Is it possible for the churches of the world to influence effectively the nations of the world without uniting in some manner for expression and action?
3. What form of visible organization will best give embodiment to the universality of the Church?
4. What responsibility has the Church Universal for the welfare of each of the individual churches which constitute it?
5. Should the Church Universal, speaking either through the churches of each nation or through ecumenical councils, be concerned with practical international issues such as: tariffs, more equitable distribution of colonial territory, the war in Spain, the League of Nations, etc.?

V. (b) THE CHRISTIAN ATTITUDE TO WAR

1. Should the Church, in fidelity to the teachings of Christ, advocate absolute non-participation in war?
2. If a nation becomes involved in war, what position should the churches of that nation take with reference to the conflict?
3. Should the churches of North America advocate complete neutrality for their nations in time of war?

4. Which of the following is the most potent cause of war?

National pride
Traditional glorification of war
Economic disadvantage
Desire for empire
Over-population
Conflict of political philosophies

5. What do you think the most potent influence for peace?

Issued by Universal Christian Council for Life and Work, 287 Fourth Ave., New York City.

THE CHILDREN OF TODAY ARE THE CHURCH OF TOMORROW

The type of the church of tomorrow is determined by what is instilled into the hearts and lives of our little ones. There is no greater agency in this land in which character is moulded into the lives of children than the church and Sunday school.

A man once said: "We shall never wander from Christ while we make character the end and aim of our intellectual discipline; and we shall never misconceive character while we hold fast to Christ, keep Him first in our motto and our hearts."

Think of those beautiful words that fell from the Master's lips: "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God, etc (Mark 14:13-16)." Jesus not only wants you to come to His house, but He would like to have you bring your children with you. Jesus wants all the children to come to Him and His services. He will just as truly bless the children of today who come to His house and do His service as those who are brought to Him in holy baptism, and will strengthen and help them to love and serve Him.

There is much in child nature that is noble, beautiful and true, notwithstanding the fact of original sin, and the gospel is the only thing that can preserve the beauty, innocence, virtue and trust of the little child and prevent the blighting seeds of sin from bearing fruit in its life.

The gospel is God's power unto salvation and no one will question for a moment its transforming power to change the life of sin to a life of godliness, but its saving power is just as great. Then why not avail ourselves of the ounce of prevention now and save the pound of cure later?

You should follow the example of the mothers in our Lord's day who brought their children to Him. Bring them to Sunday School and the services of God's house. Nor is this all. The home environment, the home training and the family altar, after all, is what counts most. The home is a most sacred institution of God and when we neglect our children there for business, pleasure or society, we are endangering their souls. Be sure that while we parents are thus sleeping, the enemy is sowing evil tares in this precious harvest field.—Wm. H. Stauffer.

CORRESPONDENCE

Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa.

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:

It has been a long time since you have heard from our thriving Grace church. After Rev. D. J. Unruh left us last November 1, we had supply pastors for three and one half months, until our newly elected Pastor Olin A. Krehbiel of Wichita, Kansas, arrived with his family on March 19 to take up the work here.

He had been called by our congregation at a business meeting December 13, but it was impossible for him to leave the Wichita work before March 15. Palm Sunday was therefore a happy occasion for our church, as our new pastor preached for us, both morning and evening, bringing us inspiring messages.

On Thursday evening, March 23, a reception was held for the new pastor and his family. On March 26 he assisted in the Lansdale Community Good Friday Service, held in the Methodist church. Easter Sunday was a very busy day, opening with the Young People's Dawn Service at 6 o'clock, followed by the regular Sunday School session at 9:30, and an inspiring Spring Communion Service at 10:30. In the evening the Bluffton College Gospel Team had charge of the service.

After more receptions by the Ministerial Association of our town, and the churches of our community, the installation of our new pastor took place on Sunday afternoon, April 11. Rev. F. H. Swartz, Eastern District Conference President, brought the charge to the new pastor, and had charge of the installation, while Rev. A. M. Fretz, pastor Emeritus of our church, gave the charge to the congregation. It was indeed a very touching service.

On Pentecostal Sunday, May 16, twelve young persons were baptized and taken into the church. There will be more taken in by letter and the right hand of fellowship in the near future. On May 25, Miss Helen Nickel of our India Mission field was with us and told about her work. Miss Elizabeth Goertz of our China Mission field was with us on Tuesday, June 8. Miss Elsie Pfister, a member of our church, was home recently for a short visit, from Kentucky, where she is engaged in mountain mission work. It is indeed interesting to hear about their work for Christ, and we as Christians should support them by our prayers and by our gifts.

Miss Etta Davis, a member of our church, expects to leave for the China Mission field in the near future, and surely she needs our prayers as she leaves home and friends to follow Him and to preach the gospel of salvation to the ends of the earth.

The Brotherhood of our church is very active and recently held two fellowship suppers, one for the Fathers and Sons, and later one for the Mothers and Daughters, in order to become better acquainted and to know each other better.

Our congregation is sincerely grateful to God for the blessings He has bestowed upon us, and we ask His continued blessings upon our church and our new pastor, and His guidance as we strive to work together, and with Him, as co-workers with Christ. For we know that only as we trust in Him are we made strong.

"Oh, Lord, this task I ne'er can do,
For I am weak," we say;
And from God's call to growth and power
We shrink and turn away.
Yet not one task God sets for us,
But we that task can do.
For, "As I was with Moses, so,
I will be with thee, too."—Heb. 13:20-21.

DEATHS

MAUDE KREHBIEL FRIESEN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Krehbiel, was born March 23, 1893 at Moundridge, Kansas, and departed this life May 24, 1937, at Halstead, Kansas, after a brief illness. Her abbreviated life, spaning a period of forty-four years, two months and one day, was still full and promising when she heard and answered the call of God to "Enter thou into the joy of the Lord."

Her early life was spent at her parental home near Moundridge. She received her elementary education in the public schools near Moundridge, and later spent five more years in academic and college training at Bethel College. From 1918 to 1920, she taught a rural school near Hillsboro, Kansas.

Her deep interest in spiritual things, supplemented by home and church training, led her early in life to accept Jesus Christ as her personal Savior. On April 26, 1908 she received baptism and was admitted into the membership of the West Zion Mennonite Church of Moundridge, Kansas. In 1934 she transferred her membership to the First Mennonite Church of Hillsboro, where she remained a faithful member until death. In the church she was always most faithful and dependable. She was missionary in spirit and in deed, and gave much to aid the poor and needy. In death she was not unlike her Lord; she looked well to the needs of her family and also found time to consider the needs of others.

Her passing brought tragedy and sorrow to a very happy home and family circle. Maude Krehbiel was married on Sept. 14, 1920, to John S. Friesen of Hillsboro, Kansas. God granted many blessings to this home, the best of which was His gift of two lovely daughters, Alice Elaine and Gladys Krehbiel.

In addition to her immediate family, she leaves to mourn her untimely death: her father, two sisters, two brothers and a large number of close relatives and many friends.

Some of her last words were: "When I get well I will be glad to help wherever I am needed. I hope to get well, but I may not. When one faces this experience in life, worldly things recede into the background and the spiritual things rise high in the foreground." These words seem to reveal best her living consecration and dying resignation to the perfect will of God.

PETER B. FRIESEN was born Dec. 2, 1861 in the village Sprau in South Russia. In 1875 he came to America with his parents, Brother and Sister Bernhard Friesen, who settled in the southeastern part of Hamilton county, Nebraska. In 1884, he was baptized upon confession of his faith by Elder Wilhelm Ewert of Kansas, and accepted as member into the Bethesda Mennonite Church.

January 13, 1885 he was united in marriage to Margaretha Abrahams. This union was blessed with six children. The oldest son died in infancy. August 25, 1931, his dear wife was taken from his side. They were privileged to spend this life together for over forty-six years. On May 18, 1932 he was again united in marriage, this time with Mrs. Jacob Voth of Mountain Lake, Minnesota.

Father Friesen lived a quiet life. He loved company, although he was more of a listener than a talker. Seldom would he complain, although circumstances seemed to be against him. During the last few months his health seemed to fail. On the last day of his life, July 2, he complained of not feeling well, and consulted a physician, who told him that his heart was not functioning properly, but that there was nothing to be alarmed about. He passed a restless night. In the morning he gave notice that his breast was hurting him, but in spite of this he still went about his morning chores. About 9:45 a car passed by and noticed him lying on the ground. Help was immediately summoned, but life had passed away due to heart failure.

He leaves to mourn his departure his second wife; two sons, George A. and Bernhard A. of Henderson; three daughters, Mrs. Gerhard Epp, Mrs. Rev. A. W. Friesen of Henderson, and Mrs. Albert Dalke of Madrid, Nebraska; also two daughters-in-law and three sons-in-law; thirty grandchildren; one great grandchild; three brothers and two sisters.

Father Friesen attained an age of 75 years, 7 months, and 1 day. Funeral services were held on July 6. Rev. J. F. Epp spoke in German and Rev. H. D. Epp in English.

—A CENTENARY HISTORY OF THE SWISS MENNONITE CHURCHES OF PUTMAN AND ALLEN COUNTIES, OHIO.—That is the title of a fifty page booklet, splendidly edited by Prof. E. J. Hirschler of Bluffton College, a complimentary copy of which has just reached us. The dedicatory paragraph significantly states the purpose of the book in these words: "We believe that it (the history of these Swiss churches) presents a true picture of their origin and development and gives the proper emphasis to the significant contribution that they have made to the Mennonite church life in America during a century of progress in the land of religious liberty." The book is printed on a fine grade of paper, in easily legible type, and contains a well chosen selection of photographs of the leaders of the church or churches, the meeting houses as they evolved from a mere loghouse to the fine brick edifices, with towers and bells, of the four present-day churches. From a nucleus of some twenty families, burried in the primeval forests of western Ohio, the congregation has grown and prospered until today the four daughter churches have a total membership of nearly 1700, and the wilderness where the founders settled is today one of the garden spots of America. The book may be had for thirty cents. And since it tells the story of what God has wrought among these good people, in words and picture, it is worth several times that. Orders should be sent to Mr. D. W. Bixler, Bluffton, Ohio.

—Harold Gross, a son of the Bethany Mennonite Church, Freeman, S. Dak., who was graduated from Bethel College this year, is acceptably serving that church as supply preacher during the summer. His articles in the Bethany Messenger are so good that we shall be tempted to make use of some of them, like the one "Science and Religion in the Future." For next year he has a graduate fellowship at Princeton University Seminary.

—Burrton, Kans., Mennonite Church.—Four young people were recently baptized and then received as members with five other persons. On the Sunday following communion services were held. The C. E. with the assistance of neighboring C. E.'s gave a musical program. The Burrton churches are again holding union evening services at the city park during July and August, the three ministers taking turn in conducting the meetings.

—P. H. Krehbiel's book on Peace, Amity and War for which some of our people have been looking with a good deal of interest, is now coming off the press. A review of it is to appear in The Mennonite next week. It is a valuable treatise of a great theme.

—The Shipshewana Retreat for Mennonite Young People of Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio, will be held Aug. 2 to 8. It is to be a gathering for Inspiration, Instruction, and Recreation. The following compose the faculty: Jerry Sauder, Grabill, Ind.; Harvey Nunemaker, Tiskilwa, Ill.; H. A. Fast, Bethel College; A. E. Kreider, Bethel College and Goshen, Ind.; John Thut, Chicago, Ill.

—One wonders if our Conference has another man who can equal Bro. E. W. Baumgartner in capacity for work. He is cashier of the First Bank of Berne, Ind., whose deposits total nearly $1,600,000, treasurer of our Board of Publication, deacon of the Berne Church, a member of other boards, committees, and musical organizations, while recently he gave one of the main addresses at the Centenary of the Swiss churches at Bluffton, Ohio, and is also one of the principal speakers at the Mennonite Y. P. Conference of Ohio and Indiana, at Goshen, Ind., July 17 and 18.

—Next week we hope to be able to give the obituaries of the three Mennonite youths, Orrin and Peter Rutschman and Norman Dirks, who lost their lives in an auto crash, and also the true story of the accident.

—Hutterite Colonies.—Before the war a good many Hutter brethren were living in South Dakota, in the Bon Homme, Wolf Creek, Maxwell, Huron and other colonies. During the war some of them were shamefully treated by pseudo patriots and overzealous officials, until they decided to move to Canada. Now they seem to be in a notion to move back. The Huron colony group have re-purchased the Jamesville colony properties, on which the federal and state governments had meanwhile spent a good deal of money, with nothing to show for. The deal is for 2418 acres at $25.00 an acre. The group comes from Roseile, Manitoba, and numbers 110 souls.—Freeman Courier.

—Concerning a Hutterite colony in Europe which two American Hutter brethren, Reverends Waldner and Hofer, have been helping to settle in England, the Freeman, South Dakota, Courier writes, that a Hutterite colony was founded in Germany a good many years ago. Ten years after the founding of that colony they found out that similar colonies existed here in the United States, and they corresponded with their American brethren. Then six years ago their head man, Dr. Arnold Eberhard, visited the colonies in this country, to solicit help, for, being non-resistant and Germany being militaristic, they were in trouble and had to move. Some went temporarily to Lichtenstein, some to Holland. But it was found that England was a safer place for them. However, England would not admit them unless they could prove that they could support themselves which, it was figured, would take $25,000. Of this sum Mennonites in Holland and Germany, together with sympathetic Lutherans and Reformed Christians, raised $15,000, and their Hutterite kinsmen in Canada and South Dakota $10,000. With such help the colony in now apparently safely settled in England, and the Revs. Waldner and Hofer are about to return. Before leaving Germany, while on their mission there, they received notice to leave the Reich in twenty-four hours. Thus another chapter has been added to Mennonite history.—It should be stated in this connection that the Mennonites of Germany have given up the adherence to the doctrine of non-resistance.

—The Zion Mennonite Church, Kingman county, Kansas, dedicated its new church on Sunday, July 11. We would have preferred to bring the announcement of this event and the invitation going with it before it occurred, but they reached us too late to do that. The fact that THE MENNONITE is not published during the week of the fourth of July caused the difficulty. The nice, new church stands in Kingman.

—The Mennonites of Kansas, generally speaking, again have a good wheat crop, with prices of $1.15 and up. But the continued dry weather is badly hurting the corn and alfalfa crops, at least in sections. Similar conditions pertain in Oklahoma. Would that the brethren in Indiana, Ohio, and Pennsylvania could share with their mid-west brethren their super abundance of rain!

—On July fourth and fifth 563 persons lost their lives, 310 on highways and streets, 142 were drowned, 107 from other unnecessary cause, but, fortunately only four as the result of fire works.

OUR FATHER IN HEAVEN (Luke 11:2).—Father! What warmth, what depth in this word! Never was God thus addressed in the Old Testament. It was left for Jesus, his Son, to make Him Our Father. Not even David, the man after the heart of God, seems to have dared to call Him Father. Jesus thus initiated a new deal for us here on earth. As first-born Brother he makes us God's children. To be able to say Father truly is to be conscious of a new power within us, the power of a new birth. Do we all have this power? Does the child spirit dwell in our hearts? Our! With this we are placed in the midst of the community of Jesus Christ, the true church, of which he is the head. We cease to stand alone, to feel alone, to live for ourselves. Isolation has no place in the Kingdom of God. The fraternal spirit is the mark of a new life. —In Heaven! If our Father is in heaven, then heaven is our goal, and we must learn to lead a life that is in harmony with the life there. That liberates us from sin, frees us from carnal inclinations. That draws us heavenward, toward the Home He has gone to prepare for us.

THE USE OF MONEY.—It is said that John Wesley, the founder of methodism and one of the most spiritual and effective missionary forces in protestantism, followed three rules with regard to earthly possessions: Get honestly all the money you can; save sensibly all the money you can, and give wisely all the money you can. And when the good man died all that he had left was some books, some silver spoons, and just enough money to pay four poor men to carry his body to the grave. This is a wise way of handling money. If all earnestly striving Christians would observe these rules like Wesley did, there could be no trouble between capital and labor. Money becomes a curse, when it is hoarded, as it proved to be in the lives of Dives and the rich young ruler in the Bible, because their wealth had gotten into their hearts. It proved a blessing to Martha, Mary, and Lazarus, who must have possessed considerable wealth, because it was in their hands (not in their hearts) to pass it on where needed. Riches that are handed on to do good are like a stream that waters the land and spreads blessings along its course. Jesus does not condemn the honest acquisition of riches. He praises the men who had made gains of one hundred per cent with their investments of two and five pounds, and condemns the man who failed to put to use his one pound. So John Wesley was right. Get what you can, honestly; save what you can, sensibly, that is, not in a miserly fashion, and pass on all you can, wisely, so that it will keep on doing others good.

A BIBLE SHYLOCK.—The Bible is a wonderful book in the variety and multiplicity of characters that it presents—good, bad, and otherwise. Of the characters that must be counted among the undesirables, whose deeds God nevertheless managed to turn to some good use, is Laban, the uncle of Jacob When his sister Rebekah was being wooed to marry Isaac, he very cunningly contrived to get a good share of the jewels that Abraham's servant had brought along. When his nephew Jacob arrived, his eyes must have sparkled, for here was a young man with strong arms, the heir of a rich kin, ambitious and, withal, marriageable, while he had two marriageable daughters in his home. He tricked Jacob into fourteen years of hard labor and exposure in exchange for his daughters. Then he coerced him to give him six more years of the same strenuous labor, so that Jacob might acquire a living for his large family. Thus Laban exacted three pounds of flesh, as it were, from his son-in-law, where Shakespeare's Shylock demanded only one. But Jacob outwitted his father-in-law in the end, for he had God on his side, and he became a man of large possessions in those six years. Then Laban's anger was kindled against Jacob so that God advised the latter to flee with all that he had. When he pursued the fugitives to bring back what he calls "my daughters, my children, and my cattle," God warns him to do them no harm. And when he overtakes Jacob's caravan, the two at last agree to refrain from doing each other any harm.

ONCE UPON A TIME

There was a hospital in the far off jungles of India. And to this hospital there came the blind, the lame, and the halt. However, that 'Once Upon A Time' was just a few years ago and the hospital is now really just in its beginnings. In this hospital there is a large and well-lit operating room. In a small room adjoining it, water is sterilized in several copper kettles, and dressings in a pressure cooker. That was all well and good, but there was a need of better equipment for sterilizing. To meet this need the young people of th Western District Conference collected $1000.00.

There is a good sterilizer company in Erie, Pa., who would have supplied good sterilizers for somewhat less than the funds available, but to ship them to India and pay the duty would have cost three to four hundred dollars additional. They, however, offered some used sterilizers which they agreed to have in good condition, suitable for the needs of the work for many years. One dressing, also hot and cold water sterilizers were purchased. In the final check up the company found it necessary to put in some new parts and rebuild the sterilizers, so that they are now practically as good as new.

These sterilizers are now in the process of being installed in the hospital at Basna. The water sterilizer had a small pipe broken which we were able to repair, and the dressing sterilizer has several parts missing for which we will have to wait. The company, I am sure, will regret this as much as we and will no doubt send the needed parts as soon as possible. Besides buying the sterilizers, there were sufficient funds to purchase quite a few surgical instruments and some special equipment.

Three busy months have passed since we arrived in India. The building of the bungalow is progressing nicely under Mr. Isaac's supervision. He has been here much of the time, still some of the responsibility falls upon me. That with the hospital work which is heavy, has kept us very busy. Shortage of trained helpers at the hospital adds to our difficulty. There is a large field of need in our Basna area. Continue to pray that we might more adequately meet that need and make Christ known to men. I made the statement the other day that I had seen some twenty-five to thirty people in the past three months who are hopelessly blind, that is whose condition was such that we could do nothing to restore their eyesight. Our hearts go out to them as well as to the many who are spiritually blind.

DEAD YET LIVING

H. J. Brown

In the vicinity of K'ai Chow, Hopei, China, lives Chang Kuan Ching, in a village of the same name. Formerly he was in the same position as all the other villagers. He lived continually in great fear of evil spirits and of ghosts of every kind. Therefore he was faithful in worshiping the idols on all holidays. Incense always had to be burned on such occasions and all manner of homage was done in abundance. His children were forced from early childhood to join in. And yet he himself was continually in the grip of sorrow and fear. Finally he tried his luck in Manchuria. There were many opportunities to earn something, but the dollars were round. Instead of saving something, he spent everything in pleasant social evenings, so that oftentimes he even had debts. It is easy to understand that the poor family at home did not receive much support. Then too the letters came very sparingly. The wife was worried a good deal about her husband. Luckily he came into touch with a colporter, called Son. This man helped him. He found salvation in Christ. This brought a stop to his loose life. With industry and economy he soon had fifty dollars laid by and now he made for home in K'ai Chow. Just as he entered his room in the village Chang, there sat his wife and wept bitterly. "Oh wife, why do you weep? Here I am at home now." She answered, "Yes, but last night I had such a bad dream. My dear husband, you were dead." "Very true, wife, very true. I am dead to myself and to sin, and I want to remain dead forever. But Christ lives in me now. Your husband, Chang Kuan Ching, is dead forever, but Christ shall ever live in him!" And it really is so. His wife, children, and neighbors have already found, through him, salvation and eternal life in Christ.

Schools and Education

THE EFFECTIVE SUNDAY SCHOOL

D. J. Unruh

II. The Mission of the Sunday School

The Mission of a school is to teach. The Mission of the Sunday School is to teach the Bible. That this is not always done is evident in the reports of the prevailing ignorance among nominal Christians in this our day. No truly Christian character can be achieved except as the individual is instructed and his conduct is based on the Word of God.

Three names are frequently used to designate the school commonly known as Sunday school, namely: Sunday school, Church school or Bible School. The term Sunday school tells us when this school convenes, while the name Church school tells us of the relationship of the school, as distinguished from the public school, but the name Bible school tells of its mission and should be more commonly used among us. Is it not possible that the name Sunday school has in some instances deflected the real aim of the school? Are schools, because they meet on Sunday and are related to the Church, and because they impart some form of religious education, adequately meeting the need of human souls and of society that is corrupted by sin? Are we always conscious of the fact that the mission of the Sunday school is of far greater importance than the Sunday school? A Sunday school may serve as a deterrent to crime by keeping boys and girls off the streets, developing an appreciation for the beautiful or stimulating a desire for useful service, may even awaken aspiration for philantropic, sociologic, or international service and yet fail miserably in its real mission, for the mission of the Sunday school is to teach the Bible.

Teaching the Bible has some very important and fundamental implications. Why should we teach the Bible rather than some other useful literature and beautiful ideals? Because the Bible is a unique book; it is God's Word and has for its object the right relationship of man to God. To believe it is the highest mark of intelligence and to obey it is the essence of true wisdom. Job 28:28. The Mission of the Sunday school then is to teach the Bible in such a way that the pupil will exemplify its teaching in his every day life, that is to say so that the teaching will result in decisions for Christ and develop Christian character, ever remembering that you can not have Christian character before you have a Christian. Teach that which will produce regeneration and then develop the new born life 'afterr the image of Him that created him.'

No work that God has entrusted to us has such far-reaching possibilities as the Sunday school. A Sunday school that is true to her mission becomes the chief agency for the dissemination of the Word of God, the recruiting agency for the followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, the training camp for the Christian service and the field of action for those who will serve their Lord. It behooves us as good Christians to see well to our Sunday schools, so that we may through them fulfill her mission and perform our God-given task in this world. II Corinthians 5:14-21, II Tim. 4:1-5.

Oh, be assured, fellow-teachers, that there is no time in life so favorable to sound conversion as early childhood.—T. L. Cuyler.

PUBLICATION

TO THE READERS OF THE MENNONITE

As reported in a recent number of this paper, THE MENNONITE on July 1 showed a deficit, for the fiscal year just closed, of $637.60, but with subscriptions in arrears amounting to $1232.75. Surmising that many of our readers who are in arrears probably just let the matter slip their mind, and all they need is a reminder, the Board of Publication, through its secretary, is addressing a letter to them, asking them in all kindness and in a spirit of brotherly cooperation to pay up.

This letter will go, first, to those who are in arrears since 1936, 1935, and 1934. If they could all manage to pay up, until Jan. 1938, their payments would almost wipe out the above deficit.

Next the letter will go to those who are paid up to January, 1937, with the hope that they, too, will pay up to January, 1938.

Not only is the Board, with the Book Concern, anxious to see the deficit on THE MENNONITE wiped out, but it is also solicitous to pay promptly each month the recurring expense bills for printing, salaries, rent of building, etc., amounting to something like $550.00.

Yet, however urgently we may need these subscription dues, we do not want any subscribers to stop taking the paper. If any of you find it impossible to pay up at this time, kindly drop the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana, a line, stating the time when you think you can do so. Please, make some reply to the letter.

If there should be someone here or there who cannot pay at all, but feels that he really needs the paper, kindly write the secretary of our Board, Rev. M. J. Galle, Odessa, Washington, and we shall try, with the help of kind-hearted brethern, to send the paper anyway.—The Board of Publication.

Since the Board of Publication is looking for a suitable person for full manager of the Mennonite Book Concern, now located at Berne, Indiana, but which may be moved to a more centrally located town, like Newton, Kansas, and since the question has repeatedly come up, as to what qualifications the Board would like to see in the proposed manager, we have set up, and give on next page, a set of them. We can hardly expect to find all of them in a single person, but they will serve as a guide in the choice. Persons interested in the position should write to the undersigned, stating their qualifications.—For the Board of Publication, M. J. Galle, Secr., Odessa, Wash.

Desired Qualifications in Candidates for Manager of Book Concern

1. He should be a Christian.

2. He should be a loyal Mennonite, member of one of our churches and somewhat familiar with the history of our General Conference, and especially with its aims.

3. He should be imbued with a missionary spirit, willing to work in a great cause and to look to God for a share of the reward for his services, as the Board of Publication is not in a position to pay a competative salary.

4. He should be a college graduate or have a somewhat equivalent education.

5. He should have some business training or, if not that, considerable business ability. He should also be a good manager of his own personal and household affairs.

6. He should have good speaking and writing knowledge of English and German, and be a good writer.

7. He should have a literary bent of mind, i. e., be a lover of reading, be well-read and well informed.

8. He should be a man of sufficient maturity.

9. He should have a wife that is a real helpmate to him.

10. He should have a pleasing personality that makes friends and impresses favorably.

What is the Peace Movement and Why Should Mennonite Youth Not Join It?

Address by Rev. P. R. Schroeder at Northern District Conference

There are many, many peace movements in our day. The theme probably means those movements that are not built on the foundation of our Christian nonresistance.

A. WHAT IS THE PEACE MOVEMENT?

It may be well to examine the principles, advocated here and there to bring about world peace. Of many of them it can be said that they would be good if they could accomplish the desired end.

1. Drastic reductions in armament budgets. Very desirable but possible only as long as fear of aggression from other nations does not get the upper hand.

2. Disarmament conferences. They worked for a while but have become an almost total failure during the last five or six years, due to the impossibility of getting all nations to participate.

3. Law, not war. Bad laws should make any nation blush, but if the law of God failed to save Israel in Old Testament times, how can the best laws of man in the present day be expected to hinder war among gentile nations, that have the same selfish disposition?

4. Only understanding will dispel suspicion and fear. Very desirable, again. But why do people act against better knowledge? Isn't it common experience that wicked men are made worse and not better by greater knowledge? It takes a different force than understanding to cure men of suspicion and fear and hate.

5. We must substitute peace machinery for war machinery. The waste resulting from manufacturing and using war machinery is a matter of common knowledge. It drags nations to the brink of bankruptcy. But as desirable as peace machinery may be it does not change the hearts of war makers.

6. Preparedness is the only way to peace. This is the hopeless propaganda of materialistically minded men and nations. The normal outcome of placing an efficient tool into the hands of a man or nation is that sooner or later that tool will be used. Preparedness will temporarily make the enemy afraid but not peaceful.

7. Security through federation. The League of Nations is the classic example of this principle. Perhaps no greater disappointment has confronted modern peacemakers than the failure of the League to stop war and war propaganda. Pan-America, Pan-Europe, and Pan-Asia are other federations of the day. Each is a potential powder keg if threatened or attacked by another.

8. Peace through socialism or communism. While these two schemes of economic and political world-reorganization are not identical they are similar. Each builds on a class basis, excluding groups that are not of one mind with it. Peace is an impossibility as long as this class exclusion program is in control. Communism, the more prominent of these two world-reorganization schemes, boasts of its peace program. This is contradicted in practice, when it is realized that communistic Russia has the most powerful standing army in the world. The atheistic foundation of Communism makes it untrustworthy, perhaps it should be said, treacherous, for the dismissal of God involves the dismissal of conscience and justice.

9. Peace through propaganda. Two American propaganda groups, and perhaps the largest, are the National Council for the Prevention of War and the Fellowship of Reconciliation. Noble mindedness may well characterize both of them. Both are voluntary organizations. Both are inclusive as to membership. Both cater to Christians and Churches, but neither is committed to the Gospel. Both are based upon ethics rather than the Gospel. Both implicitly, though not explicitly, deny the regenerating power of Christ, by reason of their program and their association with non-Christians. Both stake their hope upon the religious and moral man whether regenerated or unregenerated through Christ. Such an alliance between believers and unbelievers in matters that depend upon loyalty to Christ, the Prince of Peace, the Saviour and coming King, is an act of unfaithfulness to Him (see 2 Cor. 6:14-16). Peace propaganda through such organizations, though perhaps temporarily effective is ultimately and fundamentally powerless.

Many men are deceived into setting their hope upon peace programs that cannot bring peace. "....they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved. And for this cause God sendeth them a working error, that they should believe a lie." 2 Thess. 2:10-11. There is a cry of peace and safety abroad, "then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child; and they shall in no wise escape." 1 Thess. 5:3. "For many shall come in my name, saying, I am the Christ; and shall lead many astray. And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars; see that ye be not troubled; for these things must needs come to pass; but the end is not yet." Matt. 24:5-6.

B. WHY, THEN, SHOULD THE MENNONITE YOUTH NOT JOIN THESE PEACE MOVEMENTS

1. Because of their futility. Through Christ only are we assured of success.

2. Because of their disloyalty to the Prince of Peace. We are determined to renew our pledge of loyalty to Him.

3. Because of their dishonesty, whether conscious or unconscious. A promise of peace rests on an absolute guarantee only in Christ. We are deceived and deceivers in any sort of alliance with evil doers, even though that alliance be for the sake of peace. Be honest toward self and sin and Christ, the Lamb of God, and the prospect for peace will get into its rightful place.

4. Because of contamination. How can defilement be avoided when they who are called to be holy ally themselves with organizations that disregard or even deny the new life in Christ? The Christian is called unto sanctification and only so can he maintain a lively hope for peace. "And we have the word of prophecy made more sure; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-star arise in your hearts: knowing this first, that no prophecy of scripture is of private interpretation."

Therefore, when Christ our Lord says: "Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the sons of God," Matt. 5:9, let no one by private interpretation jump to the rash conclusion that all agitation for peace is bound to be blessed of God, when a consistent loyalty to the Scriptures that record this beatitude, points us without any uncertainty to Him who alone is our "peace," Luke 2:10, 11, 14; Eph. 2:15; James 3:13-18; Isaiah 11:1-10; Rev. 20:4-6.

The Principles of Peace

"We the Pacifists"

Harold Gross

One wonders often as to the probable reactions of the YOUTH of America to another call to arms, if war were to break out. One author says that "war combines all the excitements of a bull-fight, a revival, a train wreck and a lynching," and intimates that the psychology of wartime enlists the desires, emotions and inclinations of most individuals—especially red-blooded youth. We cannot as yet be sure as to what attitude the young citizens of America would take in the event of declaration of war, in spite of the pledges of thousands throughout our American colleges and universities, to use methods comparable with the modern sit-down strike in case of being asked to bear arms.

Young America, however, is becoming impatient with the attitude that has prevailed in the past by thinkers in our churches regarding the war problem. We refer to the dogma of the futility of organized efforts toward peace, which in the end is fatalistic and deadening to the Christian Spirit. Truly, we appreciate the fact that a Peace Movement in itself, aside from a dynamic Spiritual Rebirth within individuals, is a child, really, of weakness and insufficiency. But to state that since the ranks of propagandists for peace contain atheists, socialists and communists, and also men who merely use the name of Christ for the sake of being recognized, we should therefore remain aloof from any so-called Peace Movement is to become ascetic and too exclusive, besides its being illogical reasoning. We may still hold our Christ as Prince of Peace and yet join the Peace Crusade. This is not a question of Post- or Pre-millenialism—let those quarrels rest!! Christ needs to be the center of our whole program. He is our Gospel! But we must watch our step carefully, lest we confine the power of the Gospel to merely saving the souls of men, and cramp it. We must consider the soul of society as well; for if the soul of society is warped and unclean (and war makes it so, in reality), then the work of saving individual souls will be so much more difficult, and a general spiritual revival nearly impossible. If a general spiritual awakening is to come soon it will only be after we have recognized that now people must be convicted of social sins as well as individual sins. Our Church seemingly has lost its social perspective and has lapsed into a condition such as existed in the Middle Ages which churchmen had lost themselves in concern over personal sins and Monasticism, and had forgotten that their personal sins were severely tangled with and related to the social sins. In recent years there has come about a growing complexity within society which the Church must notice. We cannot change society unless we change individuals, but we somehow fail to notice that a changed society is going to affect a change in the lives of individuals as well, Any open-minded student of Social Laws knows that one cannot divorce the individual from society, and vice versa. The influence of the Gospel works both ways, whether we want to believe so or not.

Consequently, we dwarf our Gospel and our Christ, unless we see social Peace-implications as well as personal Peace-implications therein. Lest you might feel that this is merely the "voice of inexperience," youth, let us assure you that gray-haired students, true "voices of experience" are beginning to open their mouths in proclamation of this fact. Let us as a Church lay aside all prejudices and unite in the mighty crusade with our Christ as Prince of Peace to wipe out the spirit which breeds war, as far as possible. It CAN BE DONE; if not right now, then ultimately, even at His coming.

COMPREHENSIVE PEACE

"Now the Lord of peace himself give you peace at all times in all ways." — II Thess. 3:16.

There speaks a man who knew the peace of God that passes all understanding! There speaks a man who, in all the tumult of his strenuous life, never lost the inner calm that strengthens and assures!

True peace, the peace of the soul, has no ups and downs, but is peace at all times. It is steady, reliable, innate and perpetual peace.

This peace is given us by the Lord Jesus Christ Himself. We can not get it by thinking or acting, from men of the past or men of the present. But we can get it from the world's Redeemer, the blessed Jesus.

GOD FEEDS A PEOPLE

Exodus 16:1 to 17:7 Printed: 13:11-20; 17:3-6

TOPIC: God's Supply Adequate for a Nation's Need

Introduction

The outstanding act of God wrought in connection with the exodus and wilderness wanderings of the Israelites, was the miraculous supplying of food for the period of their sojourn. It is entirely inexplainable on the basis of natural causes. The manna was literally, "bread from heaven," provided because this unusual food supply was necessary to maintain the lives of the people.

Bread from Heaven vs. 11-20

Israel sang a song of victory and praise after seeing the overthrow of the Egyptian army (Chap 15). This happy spirit lasted but three days (15:22-24), until they came to the bitter waters at Marah. It is easier to sing a hymn of praise than to live a life of praise. Soon new troubles faced them and they murmured again (16:1, 2, 3) and wished themselves back in Egypt. After entering the wilderness of Sin, they faced the privations of desert life. As usual, they blamed Moses for bringing them here where death from hunger threatened them. How good the "flesh pots" of Egypt now appeared.

The situation truly seemed alarming. God heard their murmuring. He hears ours too. He had a way to provide for their needs. The migratory quails were sent into the camp (v 13) in large abundance. The following day, the manna was miraculously provided (v. 14) and on each succeeding day, excepting the Sabbath, God gave them this food during the wilderness journeying. The astonished people asked, "What is it"? Moses told them it was God's provision for them (vs. 15, 16).

Each had to gather for the daily needs for self and family. There was to be no able-bodied leisure class. Each of us must feed upon the bread of life—Christ Jesus—whom God has given. The attempt to hoard up God's supply failed miserably (v. 20). His gifts must not be used selfishly.

Water from the Rock vs. 4-6

A new test of faith awaited Israel at Rephidim. Water—the greatest necessity in the desert—was missing. Instead of trusting God, they again murmured, blamed Moses, were even ready to stone him (vs 3, 4). He, the wise leader, took it to the Lord in prayer. God used Moses to give to the people a marvelous demonstration of His ability to supply their needs (vs. 5, 6). This should have ended all murmuring, all ingratitude, all forgetfulness of God's goodness to them.

Christ is our Rock, smitten on Calvary, from Him flows forth the Water of Life (John 19:34). Christ is the true manna, the true bread of life, come down from the Father (John 6).

Nuggets of Truth

God's gift is spoiled by selfishly, miserly hoarding it.

One of the greatest needs among Christians today is more thankfulness and less grumbling, murmuring—a clearer vision of God's gifts.

Israel could see God in prosperity, but not in adversity. What about us?

Our food is God's divine gift—

"Back of the loaf is the snowy flour,
And back of the flour, the mill;
And back of the mill is wheat, and the shower,
And the sun, and the Father's will."

They that trust in the Lord and do good, shall dwell in the land and shall be fed.

The manna was God's gift which none could buy.

Israel would have perished without manna—without Christ we would perish eternally.

There was abundant manna for all—Christ's free grace is sufficient for all men.

Sermon Sketch

SOME CERTAINTIES OF THE BELIEVER'S POSSESSIONS

I.

In John 14 we have some wonderful truths—the antidote for all kinds of trouble and problems: Faith in God answers all the questions regarding creation and providence.—Faith in Christ Jesus, the Son of the living God, answers all the questions regarding sin and salvation—for faith in God is not enough.—Faith in the Holy Spirit, the indwelling power, answers all the questions regarding our spiritual needs.—Faith in heaven, or rather the Second Coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and all the glorious future, answers all the questions regarding death and the hereafter. Thus, to miss Christ as the way is to be lost forever. To miss Christ as the truth is to be in fatal error and remain in bondage and darkness. To miss Christ as the life is to be dead in tresspass and sin, in all eternity, separated from God—missing it all.

"Believe in God, believe also in me," are the words of our Lord Jesus Christ. And what a wonderful, precious, miraculous work then is done in the believer.

II.

In Col. 1:12-14 we find a group of the finished and complete features of the salvation of the man who has accepted Christ as his personal Saviour. They are privileges and possessions which constitute certain parts of the believers standing in Christ Jesus, of which we have the earnest, the sealing of the Holy Spirit. Note these complete and finished features or possessions of every true believer.

1. The Father who hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints of light.—I Peter 1:3-5.
2. The Father who hath delivered us from the power of darkness.—John 5:24.
3. The Father who hath translated us into the kingdom of His dear Son.—Eph. 2:1-6, especially the 6th verse.
4. In Whom (His dear Son) we have redemption through His blood, even the forgiveness of sins.—Rom. 4:25; Eph. 1:7 and Heb. 10:18.

In every case the verb signifies complete action and actually accomplished; something already done; somethat is absolute, already in possession and in possession now.

The moment one accepts the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour, that moment the miracle is wrought and the believer is then already made meet for the inheritance of the saints of light. Already heirs of God, ye joint heirs with Jessu Christ. All God is, has is mine and now.—Has already been delivered from the power of darkness and can say with Paul as in Gal. 2:20; II Cor. 5:14-15 and I John 1:7.—Has already been translated into the Kingdom of His dear Son. Has already obtained redemption through the Blood of the Lamb of God slain for rus on Calvary.

III.

ALREADY TRANSLATED.—This is our standing now, which took place the moment we believed, John 5:24 and Eph. 2:6. We cannot deny that this is true, for God says so in His infallible Word. Already translated, baptized by the Holy Spirit into Christ; hid with Christ in God; in the Father's and Son's hands, sealed by the Holy Spirit. No wonder Paul has that triumphant tone in Rom. 8:31-39. Our translation in state is still in the future. Jesus says in John 14:3, "I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also." Col. 3:3-4, "For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God (Our translation in standing) and when Christ, who is your life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with Him in Glory." I Thess. 4:17, "Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together to meet the Lord in the air. And so shall we ever be with the Lord." Compare this with John 14:3.

This based purely upon Grace. All believers saved in standing already, translated and sealed with the earnest of his inheritance. Thus already translated into the Kingdom of His dear Son by the new birth, and seated with Christ in heavenly places. And shall be one day caught up—translated—into the glorious presence of Christ, there to abide forever more. All because we have been made meet—have been delivered and have redemption through His Blood. Praise to His Holy Name!

CHRISTIANITY IN ACTION

CHRISTIANITY is not a voice in the wilderness, but a light in the world. It is not an idea in the air, but feet on the ground, going God's way. It is not an exotic to be kept under glass, but a hearty plant to bear twelve manner of fruits in all kinds of weather. Fidelity to duty is its root and branch. Nothing we can say to the Lord, no calling Him by great or dear names, can take the place of the plain doing of His will. We may cry out about the beauty of eating bread with Him in His kingdom, but it is waste of breath and rootless hope, unless we plow and plant in His kingdom here and now. To remember Him at His table and to forget Him at ours, is to have invested in bad securities. There is no substitute for plain everyday goodness.—Maltby Babcock.

The Pastor's Chat

Regarding Pastoral Work

I often wish that as minister of the church I could do more and better work. I would like to preach better sermons, read more books, do more Bible teaching, interest more people in the work of the church, arrange better services of worship, provide a more efficient educational program for the young people, and do more effective pastoral work. Of all the tasks a minister needs to do, I regard none more important than the pastoral work.

I believe in visiting the sick. I believe that most sick people appreciate a short call by their pastor. I, on my part, always profit by such calls and I have a feeling that I frequently get more help and inspiration from the sick than I am able to give to them.

As minister I represent Him who said, "For I was hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was naked and ye clothed me; I was sick and ye visited me; I was in prison and ye came unto me," (Matt. 25:35-36). I have been sick myself and I know the healing power of religious faith. I have known sickness in the family and have had my own home circle broken by death; and so have come to know the consolations of God, not by hearsay, but by experience. I believe that after the doctor and the nurse have done their best, there is still something important left for the minister to do.

But this part of my work is not always easy and for that reason I give this "chat" to discussing it. One difficulty is that I do not always find out promptly when people are sick and desire my help. People will call a doctor, but seldom a minister. He is supposed to know who is sick without anyone telling him. And it seems that some ministers do know. But I don't. And so it happens occasionally that a member of the church is ill a week or two weeks, and expected a call. I fail to come because I was not informed. Once and for all, then, let me say that I will appreciate your calling me when there is illness. I will consider it a privilege to go to any home, whether church members or not, if I can be of any help to sick people.

A second difficulty is that I cannot always be sure that a minister is wanted. Here again the doctor has the advantage. He knows before he starts that his patient wants him and welcomes him. Some patients dread to see a minister and when he comes the expression on their face says: "Am I as sick as all that?" And if a minister offers prayer they wonder if it is "really that bad."

Another problem arises out of the fact that I feel under obligations to cooperate with the physician or nurse in charge of the patient. Some cases of serious illness and immediately after a serious operation, the physician will advise absolute rest and quiet for the patient. Intercessory prayer for those seriously ill is always in order, but it might be doing them more harm than good to enter their room and disturb their rest even for the purpose of scripture reading and prayer. When the patient requests it, however, I am always glad to render what service I can.

In an editorial I say that faith and health are closely related. More and more doctors are coming to accept this and welcome the services of a man of faith if he has learned something of the art of ministering to the sick. A widely-known physician recently wrote: "We are persuaded that the minister has a place in the sick room, a place not that of the doctor, of the psychiatrist, of the social worker or of anybody else. The minister's duty there is to rouse the great energies, certainties, and faiths of the Christian religion. If he has Christian faith, and otherwise he has no business in the ministry, he has a great asset, perhaps the greatest asset that a person could have in dealing with the sick." (R. C. Cabot)

Pastoral work includes much more than visiting the sick. But again, I say, I wish I could do more for the sick. Will you not cooperate with me, and pray for me, to this end? — Lester Hostetler, in The Herald.

MINISTERS OF POWER

One great want of the times is a commanding ministry—a ministry of a piety at once sober and earnest, and of mightiest moral power. Give us these men, "full of faith and of the Holy Ghost," who will proclaim old truths with new energy, not cumbering them with massive drapery nor hiding them beneath piles of rubbish. Give us these men! men of sound speech, who will preach the truth as it is in Jesus, not with faltering tongue and averted eye, as if the mind blushed at its own credulity—not distilling into it an essence so subtle and so speedily decomposed that a chemical analysis alone can detect the faint odor which tells it has been there—but who will preach it apostle-wise, that is, "first of all," at once a principle shrined in the heart and a motive mighty in life—the source of all morals and the inspiration of all charity—the sanctifier of every relationship, and the sweetener of every toil. Give us these men! men of zeal untiring—whose hearts of constancy quail not although dull men sneer, and proud men scorn, and timid men deprecate, and wicked men revile.

The Quiet Hour

Resolution number six as presented by the committee on resolutions, reads as folows, "That we urge every young person in our conference to read at least one chapter of the Bible each day, and observe a quiet hour. For we feel that only as we read God's Word and draw nigh to Him in prayer can we hope to live clean, honest, courageous lives, that will honor God in the hearts and lives of men."

The Quiet Hour does not necessarily mean an hour set apart each day, though it would be well if we could do it; but that time set apart for personal communion with God, when we are alone with God.

Why should we keep it?

As Dr. Clark so beautifully puts it, "Because our souls demand it and the larger our work and the busier our lives the more we need it. Because otherwise God is likely to be crowded out of our busy lives. Because it will give new meaning to prayer, and make of the Bible a different book. Because Christ's example commends it. Because the men and women whom God set forth as His apostles, regarded prayer as the most important business of their lives." Prayer occupied the most important part of our risen Lord. Heb. 7:25. Prayer is God's appointed way for obtaining things. "Ye have not because ye ask not."

When to observe it

The title, Quiet Hour, was deliberately chosen, to give liberty in the time of it's observance, but we very strongly advise the first morning hour, immediately on rising, before you have cast your eyes on others, and while the mind is fresh. Of course if that is impossible, then have your quiet time in the evening. Better yet, spent some time alone with God, both in the morning and in the evening.

Where to observe it

Try to have a definite time, but also a definite place, where you will meet the Heavenly Father daily. We are told that it was not an unusual thing for the children of John G. Patton to say, "Hush, father has gone into the closet room." That was all that was needed to be said to cause these boys and girls to tiptoe and to speak in whispers as they passed the door of the little middle room of the three room Scottish cottage. The children knew that these prayers were the cause of the happy light on their father's face.

The Pledge

Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I will make it the rule of my life to set apart at least fifteen minutes every day, (Can we make it More) if possible in the early morning, for quiet meditation and direct communion with God.—The Vine-Press, Middle District Y. P. Paper.

How Much Moral Fiber Do We Have?

Mark 10:38, 39; Luke 9:57-62

Young People's Topic for August 15, 1937

Meditation:

Monday, Aug. 9

Nehemiah 6:1-14. Where lies the line between proper observance of "safety first," and being unconcernedly in dangerous place?

Tuesday, Aug. 10

Matt. 5:11. Do you see danger in a person's saying to himself "Persecution is a guarantee of Christian right living"?

Wednesday, Aug. 11

Dan. 6:10. Prayer ("opening his windows toward Jerusalem") made Daniel courageous. "He never quailed before men. He had the courage of his convictions. He kept his character in the place of worst temptation in all the world. . .Spiritual life comes like sunshine by keeping our doors open heavenward."

Thursday, Aug. 12

Dan. 3:12-18. Do you suppose that it is always true that, when a person is sure he is right, he does not fear consequences?

Friday, Aug. 13

Acts 6:8-15 and 7:60. Does false report even in our day call out such heroism to meet it adequately? Do we stop to think when we casually say hurtful things about others?

Saturday, Aug. 14

Of Polycarp it is said: The mob prepared the fire and the stake and then gave him one chance to "curse Christ and live." The old bishop answered, "Eighty and six years have I served Him and He has done me nothing but good. How can I curse my Lord and my Saviour?" and the fire was kindled.

Sunday, Aug. 15

TOPIC: How Much Moral Fiber Do We Have?

Discussion Questions:

1. "The red thread of loyalty to Christ is found moving in and out of the pattern of twenty centuries. Nothing else so significant is found in the life of the world for the last two thousand years." What men and women can you think of who did this outstandingly? What living persons? How about Stephen, Paul, Livingston, John G. Patton, any devoted Christian Mother or Daddy, a pastor or teacher?

2. Our moral sense is sometimes called our conscience. We say God speaks to us through our conscience. Why or how is it that the conscience of different people varies greatly inspite of it? Do you think there is anything that is wrong for all people, under all circumstances, at all times? Suggest items and try to consider it broadly from many angles.

3. Father and son had a hot argument. The son, in some statements, touched a sensitive spot in his father's set of opinions. In thinking over the matter later the elder decided he had harshly slung words at his son, though he knew the latter was right. He considered an apology to him, but decided it would be lowering himself in his son's opinion and would make his son arrogant. Would it have? What should he have done? Was this argument an excuse for lack of moral fiber in the father? Backing down on an argument is one of the hardest things for us.

4. "Basic principles of religion, fundamentals of right and wrong, are just the same today as they ever were, no matter what varying standards there should be." Is this true? If so, how can these principles be picked out when they are enmeshed in social and religious traditions and practice?

5. "Sincere Christians can and must grow with the times, but they can and must keep their heads level, their standards high and their course straight, no matter what the rest of the world is saying or thinking or doing." This: "what others say and think" is extremely important to young folks. They are often criticized for not standing up for their convictions from fear. This may often be true. But, had you ever thought that maybe the expected action would not be an expression of their personal view? Are the standards not often superimposed, while the young had not the particular experience to cause belief that thus and so is fundamentally right?

6. Marcella, of average social standing, had the rare privilege of an invitation to a party of the "higher set." During the conversation a girl of fine character but poor finances was made light of. It was one of Marcella's best friends. In her place what attitude would you have assumed? Is it morally wrong to try to make a good impression?

7. "Ted knew that Marge had taken the comprehensive examination questions from the professor's office. He knew that if he told he would be called a 'poor sport', and be despised. A meeting called to clear up the matter forced Ted to a decision in the case. He hated cheating." If he hadn't told would he have cheated? What ways out can you suggest?

8. If in a discussion it is stated that a Christian must have no self-confidence and must not rely on his mind for direction, is it lack of moral fiber if, at the risk of being called self-righteous, those who believe the following do not speak up: the necessity of recognizing the God-given faculties of reason, understanding, intellectual insight, common sense and ultimate worth of (consecrated) personality in all its varied richness?

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

CARING FOR OUR BODIES

Intermediate C. E. Topic, August 15, 1937

Daily Bible Readings

Aug. 9. Be temperate in eating. Phil. 4:4, 5
Aug. 10. Curb desire. I Cor. 9:24-27
Aug. 11. A splendid specimen. I Sam. 16:6-13
Aug. 12. Careful about food. Dan. 1:8-21
Aug. 13. Gluttony. Num. 11:4-9, 18-20
Aug. 14. Living for the spirit. Rom. 8:12-14
Aug. 15. Topic: God's Temple—our bodies. I. Cor. 3:10-17

A Suggested Plan For Your Meeting

1. Worship in Song
   "Jesus Thy Name I Bear", "Transformed", "He Lives Within My Heart"
   Announcement of Society activities
2. Quiet Meditation
   1. Announce the topic—Read I Tim. 4:12
   2. Song, "Give of Your Best"
   3. Scripture: I Cor. 3:10-17
   4. Poem read by one of the members
   5. Prayer time. Close with "Spirit of the Living God"
   6. Offering

"We give thee but thine own, whate'er the gift may be,
All that we have is thine alone, a trust, O
Lord from thee."

3. Topic Discussion
   1. The leaders remarks introducing the topic. Many people lack appreciation of the wonderful mechanism of their body, which is far more delicate and complex than a watch. No one thinks of winding a watch until the spring snaps, yet people do it in so many ways with the body that is entrusted to them. Mention some of the ways in which the body is abused. Speak of the purpose of this meeting to help us appreciate the gift of a healthy body and our responsibility in keeping it so.
   2. Questions and topics discussed
   3. Five minute talk by a consecrated young person on 1 Cor. 6:19-20
4. Closing Moments

(Read from the blackboard by all)

The Christian's Creed Regarding His Body

The body is God's Temple. Therefore:

1. I will make it strong and healthy, so that it may be serviceable to Him.
2. I will keep it clean and wholesome, so that it may be worthy of Him.
3. I will use it with all the skill and power I can command in games and unselfish deeds of service so that it may glorify Him.

Sing: (from blackboard—tune, Doxology)

"O Holy Spirit, keep us pure,
Grant us thy strength when sins allure,
Our bodies are thy temple, Lord,
Be thou in thought and act adored."

Benediction verse:

"Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer."

* * *

Questions for Discussion

1. What should be our motive in seeking to have and to keep a healthy body?

2. How does a strong body help the mind and spirit? Does a healthy body always indicate a healthy mind and spirit? What is necessary for both?

3. How far can we go in thinking health for ourselves? What are its dangers?

4. What are some simple rules for maintaining the health of our bodies?

5. Show how moderation is necessary in almost everything we do?

God's Temple

My body is a temple
That needs the greatest care;
It must be clean and wholesome
For God is living there.
And if I keep the temple,
My body strong and clean,
My mind must be as wholesome,
Altho it can't be seen.

My thoughts must be unselfish
My words must comfort give;
My deeds must all be worthy
Of him with whom I live.
The bracing air I breathe in,
The ocean where I swim,
The sports that build my muscle,
I'll use for love of him.

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

"He that supplieth seed to the sower and bread for food, shall supply and multiply your seed for sowing and increase the fruits of your righteousness."

"God is a bountiful God. He gives so lavishly. As we followed the highway through Missouri, Indiana and Illinois to Michigan, I learned a new meaning of a word. The word was BOUNTY. I saw bounty in the laden fields waiting for the harvest, field after field of wonderful wheat. To me they seemed as vessels of God's love, love poured out bountifully. It was in early June when we drove through. The fresh green was yet untouched by summer's cruel heat. We, that come from Kansas, hold our breath when we see trees, trees that rise mighty and strong whose branches reach across to make an arch above the road; or when we see the dense green along a river bed where the willow drapes beside the cottonwood, watching the saplings grow that fight for room in the dense mass of foliage; or when we see the maple whose silver under-leaf glitters in the sunlight, or pass a forest of oaks. To me it seemed that these, too, were vessels of God's love, love poured out bountifully for mankind. In my heart arose the searching question, "What about the fruitage of my live? Am I a vessel of God's bountiful love?" I took my Bible from the glove-case. My eyes fell on the comforting verse:

"He that supplieth seed to the sower and bread for food, shall supply and multiply your seed for sowing and increase the fruits aof your righteousness.”

What a comfort to every leader! He chooses the vessel; He cleanseth it; He polishes; He supplies the seed; He multiplies it; He takes care of the fruitage of our life! All that is left for us to do is just to let Him do it. What a wonderful God! What a wonderful Christ into whose hands we have been given that our little lives may be formed into vessels through which the love of God can flow forth bountifully unto mankind. That leader’s prayer then is:

“Out of my shameful failure and loss,
Into the glorious gain of Thy cross;
Out of myself to dwell in Thy love,
Jesus, I come to Thee.”

For August 8, 1937

(See last issue)

There is a definite aim for the month of August. It is to memorize forty scripture verses. As was said in the last issue, this seems quite a load to put upon the Juniors but Juniors can do it. Much will depend upon you, as leader, as to whether a program as we have outlined for August, will be growth producing in the hearts of your Juniors. Our task, today, is to bring the Bible back to the child—the Bible through which the Spirit works in the hearts of men. A wonderful verse of scripture has dwelt with me this summer. It is II Peter 1:4: “He hath granted unto us his precious and exceeding great promises; that through these ye may become partakers of the divine nature.” What a challenge to lead youth to the fountains of Living Water; “to dip from the wells of salvation” and to put the cup to the thirsty lips as a mother stills the thirst of a child.

The suggestion for the month of August centered around Bible Baseball. It is so easy for a contest program to “run-off” in team enthusiasm while the heart is left unfed. Because of this I suggest an opening and closing worship service with a heart-talk in the closing session. This talk could center around one of the verses learned. There will be no further suggestion for the August programs. I am leaving the opening and closing sessions of your meetings to you.

TO THE JUNIORS

Last week I told you of the cobbler who cobbled shoes all day long, whose Bible always lay open on the bench and kept saying to him “Go ye! Go ye!” I told you how the cobbler finally answered this “Go ye!” But —— what happened when he reached India?

Of course, Mr. William Carey did not cobble shoes any longer after he was sent to India by the British Mission Society. He had other things to do now. Mr. Carey found India very different—and so wrong. He found many children with nothing on, rolling around in dusty streets; he found the water bad and that the doctors caused many people to die because of the terrible things they did to the sick; he learned that the people who swept the streets belonged to the Sweeper Caste and that those who sold things belonged to the Merchant Caste. He learned that there were more than two thousand various castes and that these castes could not have friendship with each other, nor could they marry, and sometimes the one caste was not even allowed to touch the other nor pass each other on the street. He found that little children were married by parents. He found so much that was wrong! It made him feel that he was really needed. And then there were the many idols that people worshipped. They knew not of the true God, our God. Mr. Carey wanted to tell them about him.

“They need the Bible,” Mr. Carey said. Someone must translate the Bible in their own language. Mr. Carey decided God wanted him to do this. He began to learn the strange languages of the people. He soon learned that India had many languages and that he must learn these if he wanted to help them. In the years that he worked in India, Mr. Carey learned thirty-four of India’s hundred and sixty languages. He began learning Hindu. He listened all day long to people in the streets and then at night he studied with a teacher. Sometimes when he was away from home and had found a new word he scratched it on a palm leaf to take it home. He went to the schools were little boys scratched alphabets and words in the sand. He traced letters in the sand too. Little by little he learned India’s strange language and little by little he translated the Bible for them. What a wonderful gift to give to India’s 300,000,000 people!

Next time I want to tell you what happened when India received this great gift.

True Report of the Auto Crash

That Took the Lives of Two Mennonite Youths

As the first brief report of this accident, given in the Mennonite of June 8, was not satisfactory, we give below a true and more complete report which, it is hoped, may serve as another warning against fast driving, or careless driving, as was the case with the negro. It is the accident that resulted in the deaths of brothers Orrin and Peter Rutschman, and in the serious injury of their companion, Norman Dirks, and their employers, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. LeTourneau of Peoria, Illinois, on Decoration Day, May 31 last. Almost like a miracle, the sixth member of the party and fourth member of the Rutschman-Rutschman-

Dirks-Eitzen Gospel singers, William Eitzen, escaped practically without injury. The report is by Counsel Carlton C. Case, based on the statement of an eyewitness, Dr. J. D. Temple, as follows:

"It was a pleasant day and I was sitting on my front porch in this chair (pointing), facing the road and amusing myself by watching automobiles pass. At my left I saw the car driven by the negro approaching at a rapid rate of speed. He was then just opposite that tall cedar tree (pointing). I observed that he was somewhat on the wrong side of the road and was drifting further that way. He had one hand on the wheel. His head was turned to the rear as if he were talking to the negress who sat in the back seat. The danger of an automobile traveling on the wrong side of the road with the driver's head turned to the rear flashed through my mind, and I quickly glanced to the north, to see if the road was clear."

"I saw the Buick approaching very rapidly and swerving to its right to avoid the collision, which the driver evidently saw coming. Just as the cars were upon each other right there by that post (pointing), the negro was far over on his left side of the road. I saw him vigorously turn his steering wheel in an effort to get back on his right side of the road, but he was unable to accomplish his purpose, and avoid the accident, although the Buick had turned to its right about as far as possible without running off of the road embankment."

"Of course, the negro traveled on his left side of the road only a short distance, and perhaps only a split second, but his act was timed just right to catch the Buick. Both cars were traveling rapidly and at about the same speed, although the Buick seemed to slow a little just before the crash."

The two cars were so badly wrecked that it is difficult to deterrmine just where the blows fell. But appearances indicate that the left front part of the Buick struck the left side of the Chevrolet near the middle. When the negro pulled his car to the right, it probably caused a little skidding of the rear wheels, thus throwing the car somewhat crosswise with the road. It is probable that the driver of the Buick applied brakes hard and fast and checked his speed, because although the Buick is much the larger car and struck the Chevrolet in the middle, the blow did not stop the Chevrolet.

DEATHS

ORRIN RUTSCHMAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Rutschman, was born March 5, 1907, at Elbing, Kansas. He departed this life, May 31, 1937, at the age of 30 years, 2 months, and 26 days. His early boyhood was spent with his parents on the farm. At an early age he was baptized upon the confession of his faith and became a member of the Swiss Mennonite Church. He attended the local grade school in Elbing and high school in Whitewater, where he was graduated with the class of 1925. Following this he attended Bethel College one semester, then Dague Business College, from which he was graduated. He was next employed by two business firms in Wichita. During this time he heard the Kings' Messengers Quartet of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, California, and was immediately selected to sing the part of second tenor in that quartet. His three years of training at the school was enriched by continous service for his Lord in singing with the quartet. He, with other members of the quartet, felt the call to bring the Gospel to others by singing and so made a tour over the United States for this purpose.

During the four months of touring the boys also sang in the Mt. Olive Missionary Church of Peoria, Illinois. In this service they were heard by Mr. R. G. LeTourneau of the R. G. LeTourneau Company, who was deeply touched by their singing. He spoke to the boys and offered them work in his factory. Pete, Orrin, and Bill Eitzen accepted the offer. After working two months in the factory, Norman Dirks was employed and joined the quartet, and the singing was resumed. The quartet sang continuously every Sunday and during the week until the time of Orrin's and Pete's death.

Orrin was maried on June 14, 1936, to Helen Evelyn Peterson, who was also a graduate of the Bible Institute. They were allowed to enjoy less than one year of happy wedded life.

Orrin departed this life as a result of an automobile accident at Murfreesboro, Tennessee, while serving his Lord on a singing tour through the South. He leaves to mourn his departure his young wife, Helen Evelyn; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Rutschman; three brothers, Waldo, Henry, and LaVerne; two sisters, Mrs. Fred Langenegger and Jeanette; his mother-in-law, Mrs. Alma Peterson; five sisters-in-law, three brothers-in-law, four nieces and three nephews, besides a host of other relatives and friends.

PETER RUTSCHMAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Rutschman, was born Dec. 27, 1911, near Elbing, Kansas, where his parents still reside. He departed this life on May 31, 1937, at the age of 25 years, 5 months, and 4 days.

He received his grade school training at Elbing school and then enrolled in the Whitewater high school from which he was graduated with the class of 1929. At an early age he united, upon confession of his faith in Jesus Christ, with the Swiss Mennonite Church near Whitewater. After graduation from high school he helped his parents on the farm for four years.

Pete was a talented young man who felt the need of preparing himself for more useful service. In 1933, he followed his brother Orrin to the Bible Institute of Los Angeles. He was graduated from this school in 1935. In the year of 1934 Pete joined the King's Messengers Quartet as first tenor. In the three years that followed he shared continuously in the experiences and services of the King's Messengers, both in school and after, coming in contact with R. G. LeTourneau and his work in and around Peoria, Illinois.

Pete departed this life while serving his Lord on a singing tour through the southern states. He lived three hours after the accident, but did not regain consciousness. He leaves to mourn his death his financee, Grace Reed, to whom he was to have been married on June 5; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Rutschman, and other relatives, same as his brother above.

A New Book on WAR PEACE AMITY

WAR PEACE AMITY, by REV. H. P. KREHBIEL,
Newton, Kansas, published by the author, 1937.

Of books that treat of the curse of war and the need of its abolition and of the need for peace there is no end. Some of these naturally venture to suggest ways and means by which peace may be brought about and war made impossible. But many of us have been looking for a treatise that would go to the root of this war-peace problem and show us that the peace to be aspired to cannot be a man-made peace, but it must be a peace such as God intended as the only cure for man's ills.

It is a pleasure to announce that such a book has just come from the press in a volume written by Rev. H. P. Krehbiel, Newton, Kansas, and entitled: WAR PEACE AMITY. It is a masterly production that evinces a thorough-going study of the war-peace problem from the ground up, all through its meshes and intricacies, to its final and only possible and true solution.

The book consists of six parts:

In PART I, the author shows that man is by nature selfish, combative, rebellious; that his trail through history has been bloody, and that he has invented many reasons to justify war.

In PART II, he depicts the dawn of peace, the religious peace movement through the early centuries to the time of Jesus, the far-reaching meaning of Christ's teaching of peace, including the love life of the early Christians.

In PART III, he pictures the conflict between light and darkness, how Christianity as the handmaid of the state-church expanded while peace was eclipsed and Christ's cause was shackled.

In PART IV, he recounts the struggle between Church and State, in which the Church, with only partial success, attempted to effect her separation from the State.

In PART V, he shows the progress toward peace and particularly the Christian peace movement in recent times.

In PART VI, the portion on ANITY, he brings out the real purrpose of his book, that man-made peace will not avail, that Christ must come before Caesar, and that it is only as Christians the world over will follow Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace, and go with him all the way, by keeping all his commandments, that peace on earth will be increasingly realized.

The book is well made. It is printed in large, clear type, on good quality white paper, durably bound in brown cloth, and contains 350 pages.

The book is invaluable for:

1. Individual reading and meditation. Every earnest minded Christian and lover of peace should read it.
2. Reading in the family, at the fireside, with the children and young people taking part in it.
3. Study in C. E. and Y. P. societies, teacher training classes, peace groups and organizations.

The price for single copies is $2.00. Ordered in lots of a dozen or more, considerable reduction will be allowed.

The Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana, is the general distributor for our General Conference.

TRUE PHILANTHROPISTS

What a relief, in an age that worships the successful money-getter, to find men with large incomes who are not dominated by selfish ambitions. Not long ago, Dr. William Mayo, of the famous Mayo brothers, surgeons, said, speaking for his brother, Dr. Charles Mayo, and himself:

"From 1894 onward we have never used more than half of our income on ourselves and our families; latterly much less. We have both put ourselves on salaries and live within them. All our possessions go out of our family when we die. They are turned over to the Foundation. I would not want my children to be deprived of the fun and benefit of wanting something and going out to fight for it. Our money is holy and it must go into the service of the humanity which paid it to us. In this way we can help to pass on the torch."—Presbyterian.

—Rev. Benj. Ewert, Winnipeg, Manitoba, traveling minister among our Mennonite brethern in Canada, recently returned from a long preaching tour in the province of Ontario. Starting April 21, he first proceded to the Waterloo-Kitchner district and ministered to the churches there for seven weeks. Then he continued for several weeks through the settlements at or near Hespeler, New Hamburg, Vineland, Virgil, Leamington, Harrow, Windsor, Toronto, and Reesor in North Ontario. Returning home he spent only a day with his family, leaving July 2 for Pigeon Lake, to participate in the three-days Provincial Mennonite Conference there. And on July 8 he started out on another extended tour, which took him first to the General Conference of Mennonites at Rosemary, Alberta.—Der Bote.

—Rev. J. H. Janzen, Vancouver, B. C. writes: My sickness which, the doctor asserts, had brought me to the brink of the grave, is slowly receding, but this time I strictly have to follow his directions which would greatly please a lazy man, and I must work only moderately. Physical labor I am not permitted to do and can scarcely manage to walk short distances on the streets of the city. I may engage in intellectual work only to the extent that I don't get tired, i. e. that my nerves are not taxed too much. It appears that man really has nerves, which demand that they be taken into consideration.

—Miss Viola Moyer and LeRoy Weidner were married in the First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa., Saturday, July 10th, Rev. Howard G. Nyce, officiating, in the presence of a large host of relatives and friends. She was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Tobias Moyer. Miss Moyer was president of the Allentown C. E. and Retreat Booster for a number of years, at present she is Junior C. E. Superintendent, and a teacher of a class of girls. Mr. Weidner is also very active in young peoples work of the Twelfth St. Baptist Church, and the young people of the Mennonite Church at Allentown. Mrs. Weidner is the Correspondent for The Mennonite from the Allentown Church.—The Pastor.

—A joint conference of Mennonites and Friends was held at the Lower Skippack (Independent) Meeting House on Monday July 26. The subject for discussion was THE GOOD LIFE. Among the speakers were Rev. Ernest J. Bohn who spoke on the subject, The Individual, and Rev. J. J. Plenert of the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, who discoursed on The Family.

—Bulletin, Zion Menn. Church, Souderton, Pa.: Harleigh Rosenberger has been licensed as an Evangelist by the Eastern District Conference and has been given charge of the Saucon Mennonite Church during the summer months.—Daily Vacation Bible School began June 21, with the following program: Bible Study, Memory Work, Character Building Stories, Music and Handwork. There is no charge for the work. Capable teachers are willing to give of their time for the work of the church.

—Miss Helen Nickel, missionary on furlough from our field in India and native of Mountain Lake, Minn. is holding a series of meetings in the churches of Mountain Lake and vicinity.

—Miss Mary Schirmer, Missionary to the Hopi Indians at Hotevilla, Ariz., and her adopted son Paul Andrew have recently been visiting with some of our people in Pennsylvania.

—Rev. Howard G. Nyce, Allentown, Pa., wishes to correct an error he made in last week's Sermon Sketch: "There is no promise of mere future life in the Bible; the promise is of life eternal, the life of love for which we do NOT have to wait until we die." He says, he enjoys the sermon sketches of others, and is glad to contribute his share.

—The Vine Press, a small periodical publication, put out by the young people of the Middle District Conference, has just reached us in two copies, those of February and July this year, the latter making number 3. The little sheet with suggestive designs on the front page, has four to six pages, is mimeographed and looks neat. But the best part is in its splendid contents. We doff our hat to the splendid work of Inda Sprunger, its editor, and hope she will not object if one or the other of her offerings happens to appear again in the Mennonite. Of the origin of the name of the publication something later.

—Prof. P. C. Hiebert of the M. B. church, who is on a tour visiting our Russian brethern in South America writes an interesting travelog of his trip in the Zionsbote. The third instalment tells that his ship is about to enter the harbor of Rio de Janeiro. He had previously been telling of the many nationalities represented among the passengers and it interests him to observe how these different people react at the sight of land after the long journey. He believes that this city is the most beautiful one of all the large cities he has seen.

—Lady Astor, born in Virginia, but for years an outstanding member of the British Parliament, who recently visited in this country, expressed her decided disapproval of the anti-German propaganda which she had observed on every hand during her stay here. Among other things she stated that if the Jews are behind this anti-German crusade, they are simply going too far. It will have its reaction upon these people. I have always stood up for the Jews and have always been a Zionist. I have entertained some of their leaders at my home in England. But this anti-German propaganda endangers the peace of the world and threatens danger for the United States. I am for peace, but we will not have peace until Germany, France and England go together. I just cannot understand, why they always talk about terror in Germany and are silent about the terrors in Russia and Spain. This anti-German agitation is not conducive to peace, on the contrary it hinders. What the communists wants, is an European war. I am against communism. It is the most terrible spectre that the world has seen. If there is any power of which the communists are afraid, it is Germany, and anybody that engages in anti-German propaganda supports their cause.

How about some of us white folks who either have autos to ride to church or live only a few blocks away? Do these Indians teach us a lesson?

SOUND EDUCATION.—In no other field of human endeavor has there been more experimentation, more hit-and-miss activity than in education, although God had given our race, in his directions to the Jews for the bringing up of their children, a pretty well balanced educational program. For centuries it was only vaguely realized that man was capable of development along more than one line. Then God had Luke restate His program, in its application to the education of His Son, in one simple sentence, thus, "And Jesus increased (advanced) in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." There the fact is plainly brought out that man has a four-ply nature, intellectual, physical, spiritual, and social. So one would think that Christian school men and educational philosophers, through the centuries, would have insisted upon the education of the child along those four lines. But as long as the church was the school mistress, the religious phase was emphasized, to the neglect of the other three, though Luther added nature study and other practical subjects, and left room for play and physical development. When control of the schools passed to the state, the intellectual came into its own, so also the physical, for the state needs able-bodied soldiers, while the spiritual has gone almost into discard. Even the social phase receives due attention. One need only observe the children passing into the school hopper in the rough, in the first grade, and then coming out of our co-educational high schools, fed up on extra-curricular activities, pretty well accomplished in social etiquette. Strange, is it not, that this country, so favored in many ways by the grace of God, can continue to foster a public school system that is top heavy intellectually, passionately strong physically, fairly efficient socially, at least exteriorly, but practically ignores the spiritual phase? No wonder we have so many educated criminals and drones!

CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY IN A NUTSHELL.—The pivotal truths of the New Testament are God, Christ, and the Heavenly Home. If it is true, as Luther has said, that John 3:16 is the Gospel in Miniature, it may also be asserted that John 14:1 and 2 is Christian theology in a nutshell: "Let not your hearts be troubled: believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you, for I go to prepare a place for you." Who but God knows how thus to pack the truth into the smallest compass? "How his words correspond to his works, where an atom is but a minute mystery and everything the microscope touches becomes a microcosm (little world)."

FOOLING PEOPLE.—"You can fool some of the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all of the time," is one of the treasured sayings left us by Abraham Lincoln. Twenty-one years ago our country entered the World War to make the world safe for democracy and to exterminate militarism. In the light of our experience of that war, were we not fooled? Would Lincoln and his people have allowed themselves to be thus duped? Could we be fooled again under similar conditions? Lincoln had great faith in the common people, so much that he couldn't conceive how they would allow the nation to be dominated by a clique or combination of wrong-principled men. So for his time and the calibre of people he had to deal with, we can readily see that he spoke truly. Would he make the same assertion today? Let us see! In spite of our boasted progress and superior knowledge we think we have, all seriously minded and properly informed Americans will admit that the great body politic of Lincoln's time stood considerably higher in moral standards than the same body today; that the wisdom of the commonality of the people of today is not as sober, not as trustworthy, as it was seventy-five years ago. The advent of the automobile, the airship, the radio, seems to have made the people more "airy," more "flighty," less sure, less dependable. Crass materialism riding on the wave of marvelous inventions and industrial greatness has made us conceited. Hence it stands to reason that people are more easily fooled today.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

EXPERIENCES IN LANGUAGE SCHOOL

By Wilhelmina Kuyf

Peiping, China

Students the world over are an interesting lot, with their energy, their doubts, their struggles, and their evident and potential ability. Chinese students are no exception.

Some of our best contacts with these students have been through the "Double Ten Club." In reality it is twice that number, half foreigners and half Chinese students coming from Yenching University and other Commercial, Law and Normal Colleges of the city, and most, but not all, of the foreigners are missionaries, at the College of Chinese Studies. The primary purpose of the club, organized six years ago, is "to promote friendship between the young people of our two races." We foreigners are supposed to speak Chinese, and the Chinese English. Because most of them have been studying English since middle school days, it is usually better than our Chinese, but they are very polite, and don't laugh at our mistakes too much.

Within this club many friendships have been formed, and speaking from the standpoint of a foreigner, it has given me considerable insight into the thinking of these students, as well as being a help in the language study.

The club meeting may have on its program a few games, a short speech or two, a stunt and, always between, conversation. But this is not where we come to know each other best, but in the friendships formed one by one. Two or three Chinese with a foreign friend, sometimes meet for Bible study, and frequently one from each group will arrange to go to church together.

A recent report of the Student Department of the Y.M.C.A. states:

"Although few students are antagonistic to the Christian message, most of them are religiously illiterate, and view all religion as superstition. Most students are carrying heavy schedules and feel unable to give time to extra-curricular projects. Hence the Christian students face inertia and indifference on the part of their fellowstudents with little energy of their own."

Generalizations are usually dangerous, but this one, as to students regarding all religion as superstition seems to be true. For this reason some of us were more than thrilled when two girls, members of the Double Ten Club, decided that they would accept Christ as their own. It is hard for us, brought up in the accepted faith of our fathers, to realize what a complete break becoming a Christian makes here. To quote again from the Y.M.C.A. report: "This is a courageous step for any young Chinese to take." While these students may not have had much in the way of religious beliefs previously, their families have, and for the young people to follow the Jesus' way means bucking the older generation, no light thing where respect for the aged is deeply ingrained.

These students are so keen, so fine, that we here at Language School, and some of the Chinese Christian students, "covet them for Christ," to use one girl's term.

As you young people at home are meeting in retreats and conference, will you make it one of your concerns to pray about Chinese youth, too?

AN EFFECTIVE SUNDAY SCHOOL

III. The Opportunity of the Sunday School

The scriptural Sunday School offers an opportunity for both service and witnessing. There is, or at least there can be provided, an avenue of service that will utilize the various talents of the different Christians. Of course our Sunday Schools may have gotten into a rut of stereotyped formalities and set programs, until they border on ritualism, but if we have an adaptible program, the Sunday School will offer an opportunity for Christian witnessing and service that will be difficult to excel.

Here is offered the best medium for the new convert to bring his or her friend to hear the gospel, and the Sunday School must not fail there. May I illustrate: A and B worked together in a hosiery mill. A, a young Christian, wanted B to become a Christian, and not being able to lead her to Christ, she invited B to Sunday School. B came, and in the Young People's class met other Christians. The teacher talked of the Lord Jesus in such an intimate way that she, too, wanted to become a Christian. A meeting was arranged with the pastor, she accepted Christ as her Saviour and became a member of the Church. Today B is no longer working in a factory, but going to school to prepare for Christian work, while A continues leading others to Christ, helped by the Sunday School and a sympathetic pastor. What happens if the Sunday School fails here? Before God it MUST NOT fail.

Here, the lay worker can exercise his talent, he can help with the music, and the music of the Sunday School should not be limited to congregational singing. Another person may be good at meeting people, welcoming the strangers and directing them to the class that is suited for their need. The effective school has need of secretarial work. There must be a recording secretary, assistant secretaries in various departments and class secretaries. Many other helpful activities could be suggested and adapted to the needs of the school.

Principally, however, it offers an opportunity for Christian witnessing and for teaching the most wonderful turths in all the world. Men and women who love the Lord and believe His Word find this the best means of presenting the Lord Jesus to hungry hearts.

Still another opportunity presents itself: The Sunday School as a field of practical experience to the ministerial candidate. Let the prospective pastor serve his spiritual interneship in the field of supervising and rehabilitating some Sunday School that is "run down at the heel." Let him demonstrate the power of the gospel in some of those vast unevangelized areas of the United States, where there is neither teaching nor preaching, and that eventually become the crime centers of the United States.

The symptoms of sin are evident everywhere, too much time is spent in studying and cataloging symptoms. The Sunday School has an opportunity to present the remedy even the Lord Jesus Christ by whom God hath "made peace through the blood of His cross by Him to reconcile all things to Himself" by whom He will "present you holy and unblameable and unreproveable in His sight." Col. 1:20 and 22.

This is our golden opportunity and we MUST NOT fail here.

NEW BIBLE COURSES

Beginnig with next fall Bethel College offers a new Bible Course designed particularly to help those who are interested in religious and church work to prepare as S. S. Teachers, C. E. Workers, etc. The course is divided into three cycles:

1. A two years course in which the study of the Bible itself is placed into the foreground: the historical books of the Old Testament and the Gospels and letters of Paul in the New Testament. All instruction is on college level and the students receive full credit for their work. At the completion of the course the students receive a certificate.

2. During the following two years the student can prepare for the bachelor's degree in theology, and

3. If he wants to spend one more year and do seminary work in order to prepare for the ministry, he can do so and receive seminary credit.

All instruction shall be positively Bible centered. The Board of Directors have voted a scholarship grant of $50.00 to each of ten students in order to help those who have difficulty in paying their tuition. If you are interested write soon and ask for bulletins.

Doctrinal --- Devotional

Pacific Conference Sermon, Reedley, Calif.

June 17-20, 1937

by Rev. D. D. Eitzen, Chairman

"I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, to make thee a minister (Diener) and a witness . . . ." Acts 26:16

The inspired writer of these verses, Paul, presents a ministering, serving type of witnessing as the flower of the Christian life. We might spend some time in admiring the beauty of this flower. Jesus one time asked the disciples to "consider the lilies of the field. . . ." However, Jesus did not make a period after the word "field", but continued "consider . . . how they grow." He challenged them to study the processes that changed the elements of mother earth such as iron, phosphorus, magnesium, et cetera into the exquisite beauty of a lily. Similarly we are challenged to consider the flower of the Christian life, a servant-type of witnessing. To do so, however, would not produce that type of witnessing within our own lives and we would become the victims of what has been called "the paralysis of analysis." Or we might study the technique of witnessing—the "how" of witnessing. This, however, would impair a Holy Ghost-inspired spontaneity in witnessing and render it ineffective to that extent. Shall we therefore follow the injunction of Jesus and consider "how they grow." What are the processes that change the qualities (perhaps the weaknesses) of human personality into the exquisite beauty of a "self" crucified Christian?

Thomas Edison made a contribution in the field of illumination. Long before he invented the incandescent lamp he understood some things about light, and long before he understood much about light, he, as a baby, recognized light. Like Edison, the Christian is called to make a personal contribution to the spiritual illumination of others. That is witnessing. Before he can make that contribution he must understand something about spiritual light—about God, and long before he can understand anything about God he must recognize him.

One of the first processes in the growth of this flower—Christian witnessing in serving—is to recognize the Creator, God. Who of us can remember the day when we did not believe that God had created us and the world of which we are a part? Since, however, it is possible for us to have wrong conceptions of God since "no man hath seen God at any time", Jesus admonished His disciples, "Ye believe in God, believe also in me."

The second notable process in the growth of this flower—Christian witnessing—then is to know God through Christ; that is, to become acquainted with the God of John 3:16. Paul believed in God and defended his faith in Him by persecuting the Christians but he did not experience the "peace of God that passeth understanding" until he believed the God revealed by Jesus Christ. The Creator then becomes the Father who is interested in the welfare of His wayfaring child to the extent that He will pay any price to reestablish the original relationship between Him and the child.

A third notable process is to experience the thrill that the infinitely broad word "whosoever" of John 3:16 definitely includes me personally. To embrace that fact is to be saved.

"O happy day, that fixed my choice
On thee my Savior and my God."

Indeed, "By grace are ye saved through faith." "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ (the incarnation of divine willingness to forgive any repentant heart) and thou shalt be saved."

A fourth process of growth is the discovery that the word "whosoever" includes also others—people who are other than I. To be a Christian is to be saved from contemptible selfishness. Of course, it was contemptible for David to desire the woman of another man. We all dislike him for it. It is a matter of disgust to hear that young people from Mennonite homes become transgressors of the law sufficiently so to be found in jail. However, to be a Christian is not only to be saved from contemptible selfishness but also from a socially-approved, baptized selfishness that parades as exclusive spirituality. Jonah was the son of truth not only because he was the son of Amittai whose name means "truth" but also because he was the son of a people, the Israelites, who, as God's chosen people, were the possessors of truth. Jonah, a typical separatist Jew, would never have denied that fact but he did openly oppose God when He delegated him, the son of truth, "Arise, go to Nineveh, that great city, and cry against it." In the second verse of the last chapter he says "Therefore I fled before unto Tarshish: for I knew that thou art a gracious God, and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repentest thee of the evil." The book of Jonah is a Holy Ghost-inspired satire on the separatist Jew. How did Jesus deal with this class of people? One day Simon, a Pharisee, invited Jesus to eat with him. In came a woman, a sinner, and sat at His feet. Jesus perceiving the Pharisee's attitude toward the woman said, "I have somewhat to say unto thee; . . . seest thou this woman?" The implication being that Simon failed to see "the woman" beneath the surface of her sinfulness.

A further process in this development of a witnessing Christian life is the discovery that truth, however mighty, will not prevail unless it is interpreted through personalities. "I have appeared unto thee for this purpose . . . ." Later on Paul speaks of "my Gospel." Each time another personality is opened, God wants to open a fresh revelation through that personality. In an evangelistic conference it was suggested that the quickest way to evangelize the world would be to get the outstanding evangelistic sermon of the best preachers and record them on gramophone records and then send these records throughout the world to broadcast these outstanding messages. Could you have been saved that way? Isn't that perhaps a possible explanation why so much of the preaching of today is ineffective? For, are not many of the preachers of today seminary-recorded gramophones? Of Jesus it is said that "he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes."

The last stage of growth is the discovery that effective witnessing is in terms of "self" crucified service rather than by preachment. This is so contrary to self-centered human nature. The Jew, for instance, always looked askance on labor. Work was to him the badge of inferiority; it was the equivalent of being a slave. He had this notion largely because he considered himself God's elect people. He was therefore a people of destiny. This destiny was to be the ruler in the promised Kingdom of God. To him that stood in direct opposition to serving. He felt that that destiny would be to rule the nations instead of serving them. Much to his consternation, the Jew, whether in Palestine or in Babylon, was a vassal rather than the lord. Hence, we have the lament of Psalm 137, "By the rivers of Babylon there we sat down, yea, we wept when we remembered Zion." Then comes the prophet Isaiah and points out that to serve is not servitude when performed under the leadership of God. In turn, it is a badge of honor. He calls their attention to the fact that God has a program of redemption and to achieve this end, He has chosen Israel as His servants. "Thou Israel art my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham, my friend. Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth and called thee from the chief men thereof, and said unto thee, Thou art my servant; I have chosen thee and not cast thee away. . (Isaiah 41:8, 9). In chapter 43, verse 10, the prophet Isaiah continues, "Ye are my witnesses and my servants whom I have chosen." The disciple, Peter, is quite an example of the general attitude of the Israelites on this matter. To him Jesus said (Luke 22:32) "When thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren." Converted from what? Was not this after Peter had astounded the world with his marvelous confession that Jesus was "the Christ, the son of the living God"? The answer to the question is found in verse 24 where we read that "there was also a strife among them, which of them should be accounted the greatest." Jesus here intimates that the effectiveness of witnessing depends upon our servantship. Man's zeal for God is winning in direct proportion to man's self-denial. The principle of the cross is the heart of the Gospel. He makes this quite clear in Matthew 23:8-11. "Be not ye called rabbi" for, a teacher's attitude is "I know and you do not, therefore listen to me." Further Jesus suggests, "Call no man your father upon the earth"; perhaps because a father's attitude is, "I have been through this and know. Because of my experience I have a right to be reverenced and respected by you." "Neither be ye called masters (leaders)," says Jesus. All three of these characterizations are expressions of self-assertiveness. Instead Jesus suggests, "He that is greatest among you shall be your servant." Of Himself He says, "I am among you as He that serveth."

The wheat kernel is indispensable for the growing of more wheat. However, God's law for making that wheat kernel productive requires that it die. This wheat kernel, the germ of life, might be likened to self-assertiveness in human personality. This "I will" is indispensable in our lives. It is imperative for salvation. Not until the prodigal son said, "I will" did he get back to the father, for it was this "I will" that caused him to leave the father. However, before this "I will"-dominated personality can become spiritually productive, the "I will" must die. Is this perhaps the reason why, when Jesus commissioned Paul, He said that He would first make him a servant and then a witness? Oh, for the time in our lives when, with Paul, we can say, "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." "I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, to make thee a MINISTER (Diener) and a WITNESS both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I will appear unto thee; delivering thee from the people and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I send thee, to open their eyes and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God . . . ."

GOD GIVES LAWS TO A NATION

Exodus 19:1 to 20:21 Printed 20:1-17

Introduction

God gave very definite directions (chap. 19) for the people to prepare themselves for receiving the Ten Commandments. On the third day He appeared on Mt. Sinai in a dark cloud, amid thunderings and lightnings, in a voice like a trumpet's sound. It was an intensely awe-inspiring scene in which these Commandments were given.

These stand apart from the rest of the Mosaic law (Ex. 21-23). These are God's expression of eternal principles, meant for all people of all times and ages. God spoke them Himself and wrote them on two tables of stone (Deut. 9:10).

Our Duty to God vs. 1-11

The first four commandments sum up our obligations to God. These are essential to our religion. God's rights must be regarded before man's can or will be. God is to be worshipped, and no one beside Him. His rights and claims are supreme. He, the Creator, has a special claim on our worship and obedience. Nothing shall take His place in our love.

God is to be worshipped spiritually, without the use of any images to represent Him. An image, however beautiful it may be, can not express His nature, nor show His glory. The use of images inevitably leads one to identify God with the image. God is a Spirit and true worship is of the Spirit (John 4:24).

God is to be worshipped sincerely. His name is holy and to use it irreverently is a great sacrilege (Lev. 19:12). Profanity is extreme irreverence, is an evidence of profane thought, of lack of religion and respect for God.

God's day is to be kept holy, an expression of our loyalty to Him. It is a gift of grace which meets our needs, physical and spiritual. We need a day for special worship. Without it the church could scarcely survive. The Sabbath was made for man's good and disregard of it must inevitably entail suffering.

Our Duties to Others vs. 12-17

First among these is that of honoring our parents. this is second only to honoring God Himself. Honor them because of what they are to us and what they have done for us. Honoring them implies respect for them, obedience to them and support of them. This is the only commandment with a promise.

Human life is sacred since man is made in the image of God with a personality like His. He gave us life and He alone has the right to take it. Married life is sacred, instituted originally by God, Himself. Violation of it in various forms of infidelity destroys the moral sense, wrecks the body, brings misery; is the supreme violation of the law of love.

Property, possessions are a sacred right and no one may unlawfully take anything from another nor defraud in any way. Character, reputation is more sacred even than material property and no one may injure another by any form of untruthfulness. This extends to every relation of life.

The last Commandment pertains to the desires and secret things of the heart. God desires truth, honesty, justice in the inward parts. This commandment touches a law higher than any state could enforce. It forbids illicit longings and desires.

Nuggets of Truth

The Ten Commandments speak with an authoritative voice to the hearts of men.

All these Commandments find their completion and fulfillment in obedience to the Law of Love.

The Law given at Sinai is to be obeyed out of gratitude to God.

The uses to which we put the Lord's Day is a test of what we are.

Coveting indicates that we care more for the things of the world than for God.

The Spirit Without Measure

For he giveth not the spirit by measure. John 3:34

In these words we find a message that should warm every Christian's heart. In them the suggestion is made that the Spirit of God is not mechanically given to people—just so much and no more—but it depends on us as to what degree we possess it. Some men stand head and shoulders above the crowd in the superabundance of spiritual dynamic that they possess and radiate. It is by this that their whole lives are directed and dominated. They influence other lives about them for higher and nobler conduct. Jesus was completely filled with this spirit and used it with wonderful effect. It is difficult to define and analyze this spiritual power, and we are unable to say exactly what it is. But it is as easy to say what it can do as it is of electrical power, which we also cannot define. What the Spirit of God can do in the lives of men has been demonstrated over and over again in individuals or in great movements which have transformed society.

What We Mean By Spiritual People

Although we cannot define the spirit of God, no more than we can define God Himself, we can name the characteristics of lives which are dominated by It. There is something that is common to all Spirit-filled people. Turning to the Bible and observing the people who were said to have had the Spirit of God, we find that Stephen was chosen by the early church as a deacon because he was "filled with the Spirit and spoke with power." Philip went out into the desert filled with the Spirit. Paul speaks of himself having the Spirit of God. The characteristics common to these three men and other Spirit-filled persons are, that they had given their lives in complete consecration to God; they had a great faith in God that He would not fail them; their lives had a tremendous influence for good on other lives. The real proof for a Spirit-filled life has never been, as some mistakenly think, the speaking with tongues, the experiencing of certain bodily sensations, ecstatic emotions, and the like. A far better proof has been found in the courage with which one fights a losing battle; the faithfulness with which one toils at an obscure task; the meekness with which one bears the attacks of malice, envy and ill-will; and the way that such men have known and increasingly did the will of God.

The Necessity of Spirit-filled Men

We very heartily believe in education to enlighten people, but we feel that our greatest need right now is not so much education of the head as education of the heart. We have emphasized education of the head and left out education of the heart. (We use "heart" in the Hebrew sense which includes the will and the intellect.) We have given the impression that head knowledge is the only kind of knowledge that is scientifically correct and accurate. But no matter how many facts we have crammed into our heads, if our heart is not right we make very poor use of our head knowledge. Our scientists tell us that some of their greatest discoveries have come in flashes of great insight. Rufus Jones, the great Quaker scholar and a devout Christian, says, "Heart knowledge is as much a part of reason as proved knowledge." The biggest things in life are seen through the heart. Man's redemption begins in the heart, the heart of the All-Father. Men of knowledge, but Spirit-filled are a tremendous power in helping to transform society.

The Great Need During This Age of Transition

Authorities tell us that our social order here in America has suffered greater changes during the past few years than during the previous one hundred years. Something or someone is shaking the massive structure of the world's governments, its industries, and its economic systems. We are reminded again and again that our material progress has outrun our spiritual progress. Anyone who visited the Century of Progress in Chicago would be convinced of the truth of such an affirmation. We have tried to build a sky-scraper civilization on a three-story spiritual foundation. This cannot be done. Sometime the whole thing will topple over. These are unpleasant facts which we must face, if we would go on building for the future. What we need now more than anything else is a new spiritual experience—a personal experience of God. We will need a religion that is a great spiritual power for good. How can we pass on a vital experience of God if we do not have it ourselves? How are men going to catch something from us if we have nothing for them to catch?

How Are Lives Filled with the Spirit?

We have noted what the characteristics are of Spirit-filled men, and we have observed what the results are of the lives of such men. But how did they come to possess so much of God? It is true that the Spirit of God seems to dwell in some men without measure—no limit to its possibilities for good. Let us observe the men of Christlike lives for our answer. Paul, Augustine, John Wycliff, Martin Luther, Spurgeon, D. L. Moody, David Livingstone, Grenfell, Kagawa, and others which we have known personally. God worked mightily through these men. (1) They were men that were keenly sensitive to sin. (2) They were genuinely repentant of their sins. (3) They humbly sought the guidance of God in directing their lives. We too can have the Spirit in greater measure if we follow the footsteps of those who have abundantly possessed it.

—Another Terrible Auto Accident took the lives of two Mennonites. They are Frank Dyck, retired merchant, and Sam Schowalter, both of Moundridge, Kansas. Their death was the result of a head-on collision with a car coming from the opposite direction, suddenly swerving over to the wrong traffic lane and thus crashing into the Schowalter-Dyck machine. Rescuers found Mr. Dyck still seated on his seat, but dead with a fractured skull. Mr. Schowalter also had a fractured skull, both legs broken, and died soon after in the hospital, so also the driver of the other car. The age of Brother Dyck was 71, that of Brother Schowalter, a single man, 55. Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved.

NOTICE

TO THE CHURCHES OF THE WESTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

At the last session of the Western District Conference, held at Beatrice, Nebraska, the city of McPherson, Kansas, extended the following invitation to the conference:

McPherson, Kansas, Sept. 17, 1936

The Western District Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America:

Greetings:

In behalf of the people of the city of McPherson we extend to your conference an invitation to hold your next meeting in McPherson. Our new modern Municipal Auditorium is yours without charge and we shall do everything to make your conference a success. Please come to McPherson in October, 1937.

Very truly yours,
Ralph F. Johnson

In answer to this invitation the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, that if no invitation comes from any church or group of churches, we accept the invitation of the city of McPherson, to hold our next session in that city. (Resolution 33.)

In compliance with this resolution the conference officers would herewith give opportunity to any church or group of churches to invite the Western District Conference to convene in their midst next fall. Any invitation to this effect should be sent to the secretary of the conference during the month of August, in order that the invitation of the city of McPherson may be properly dealt with in due time.

In the name of the Western District Conference,

P. P. Wedel, President
Abraham Albrecht, Secretary

Death

BARBARA DIRKS NEE SENNER of Monroe, Wash. was born in Russia, Aug. 20, 1858. She came to America in 1874; first settled in Ohio and later near Marion, South Dakota. On December 28, 1882 she was married to the now bereaved Peter Dirks. In 1902 they moved to the Great Bend country in Eastern Washington and again in 1914 to Monroe, where they have lived ever since. The deceased accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as her Savior in the days of her youth and remained true to her faith and active in His service wherever she had an opportunity. She belonged to the little group which helped organize the Monroe church. She has lived to the age of 79 years less one month. She is survived by her aged husband, Peter Dirks, 6 children, 13 grandchildren, one brother and one sister. Her funeral was held July 22 from the Mennonite Church and she was buried in the family lot in the Memorial Park cemetary. The Reverends M. M. Lehman and S. S. Baumgartner spoke words of comfort. Western Church Works Out Splendid Mission Program

Editor's note: A fine letter from P. C. Jantz, Odessa, Washington, recently, reads, in part: "This year the C. E. of the Menno Church, Lind, Washington decided to make a more thorough study of our Mennonite mission field. We decided to have one mission study each quarter of our own mission field. The program committee divided the work as follows:

First quarter: The American Indians
Second quarter: A Study of India
Third quarter: A study of China
Fourth quarter: A Study of the Home Missions

A leader is appointed for each program and handles the program as he or she sees it best. The first two programs have been held, which proved to be an outstanding success. The leaders were appointed a few months ahead of time to give them time to gather material. . . . . I am enclosing a copy of one of the programs. The leader also used a very large map of the United States to show our mission fields. . . . . The information given in old MENNONITES and the Yearbooks was used."

We are showing herewith the copy which Mr. Jantz sent with his letter. It is a good example of what can be done, even in smaller churches, to make the material for the C. E. programs definite, live, and meaningful. We hope it will be a suggestion to leaders elsewhere.

Who's next, with another contribution?

The Mennonite Mission Field of The American Indians

Do You Know That:

Our mission field is just a small part in each of three states, namely: Montana, Oklahoma and Arizona, and among the three tribes, namely: Cheyenne, Arapahoe and Hopi?

Dr. R. Petter, our missionary, has given the Cheyenne Indians a written language?

Missionary Petter has fully translated the New Testament, with a good deal of other valuable material usable on the field in a little more than four decades?

Our former church member Mrs. Walter (Bergman) Albert was born on our first mission station at Darlington, Okla., while her parents were in service there?

The first mission field opened by our General Conference was in Oklahoma, among the American Indians, in 1880, and not across the waters?

That the late Dr. S. S. Haury of California was our first missionary?

A year after our first mission school was opened, at Darlington, it burned, with four children, including the infant son of Dr. and Mrs. Haury?

Dr. Petter's only son Valdo was our missionary at Ashland, Montana, until he passed away May 6, 1935, just the day his father boarded the ship for Europe?

Dr. Petter's only daughter Olga, Mrs. P. F. Schroeder, lives at Waterville, Washington?

Rev. J. J. Kliewer of Newport, Washington was one of our pioneer missionaries in Oklahoma?

A goodly number of our missionaries are buried on the mission fields?

On the Arizona field the first convert out of heathendom was baptized after 17 years of labor?

Several orphan Indian children have been taken into our missionaries' homes and raised there?

Our Conference is responsible for 1400 Indians on the Oklahoma field, and that by 1935, 633 had been baptized and of these 321 were still living when the report was made?

Before Dr. Haury started our first mission work in Oklahoma, he with J. B. Baer made an extensive trip through Alaska, looking for a desirable field?

Our fields have a population of 3500 American Indians?

Our Missionaries among the Indians are: OKLAHOMA: Canton, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Linscheid; Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Kliewer; Clinton, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ediger; MONTANA: Lame Deer, Dr. and Mrs. R. Petter; Busby, Mr. and Mrs. A. Habegger; Ashland, Mrs. Valdo Petter; ARIZONA: Oraibi, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Suderman; Hotevilla, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Schirmer, Miss Mary Schirmer; Tuba, F. A. Johnson.

All Aboard for the Shipshewana Retreat --- August 21

From the Eastern District Conference come splendid reports of their Retreat, and now we go to the Shipshewana All-Mennonite Young People's Retreat, to be held at Shipshewana Lake, Indiana.

The program looks good, both from the standpoint of personnel and topics to be treated. Mennonite Youth has another fine opportunity to live and grow with men like Rev. A. C. Schultz, Chicago; Dr. Henry Fast, Bethel College, Kansas; Rev. Harvey Nunemaker, Tiskilwa, Illinois; Rev. A. E. Kreider, Goshen, Indiana; and Mr. John Thut, Chicago.

At the first opportunity news of this retreat will be published in these columns. May the blessings of this Retreat continue to live and move in our churches the country over!

Honesty That Makes No Exceptions

Acts 5:1-11; Heb. 13:18

Young People's Topic for August 22, 1937

Meditation:

Monday, Aug. 16

Rom. 12:17. Does this mean that you will be able to accomplish the feat of being thought well of by everyone if you are honest with yourself and toward men?

Tuesday, Aug. 17

Deut. 25:13-16. Think of some present-day illustration. Report has been made that so-called Christians had rocks in their load of wheat in weighing it at the mill. How honest were their yearly profits?

Wednesday, Aug. 18

Ps. 10:1-5. Is charging interest dishonest? Or have times changed? What do our bankers answer?

Thursday, Aug. 19

2 Kings 12:9-15. Honest administration of funds in trustworthy hands.

Friday, Aug. 20

Acts 6:1-4. Why wisdom to look after the business? Is not mere consecration to a cause enough? (God gives us many facilities to work with.) What would this ministration especially require as to avoidance of favoritism?

Saturday, Aug. 21

Rom. 13:7-8. If you owe a man money and spend yours on pleasure instead of paying the debt, are you dishonest?

Sunday, Aug. 22

Topic—Honesty That Makes No Exceptions. Acts. 5:1-11; Heb. 13:18

"First to thine own self be true, and it shall follow as night the day: thou canst not then be false to any man."—Shakespeare.

For the Discussion Hour:

1. "Little acts of dishonesty are frequently ignored or condoned with a feeling that such violations do not amount to much. This meeting should sharpen the conscience of such individual concerning the importance of hewing close to the line where upright and unreproachable conduct is concerned."

2. Study the Ten Commandments with the purpose of finding the implications of being honest toward God and our fellow men and toward our ideals.

3. Many folks think telling the truth when asked a question fulfills all duties of honesty. Does it? Suppose you leave your family under the impression you are going to one place and go the another; is it dishonest to make no explanations though no questions are asked? What about loafing on paid time? A student's just "getting by" in school when he could do good work?

4. What do you mean by intellectual honesty? Name some instances in which people readily disregard it.

5. Not thinking of honesty now from accepted standards, what is the real basic reason that demands honesty? How is it that those who disregard it get on so well? Israel's prophets said (Mal. 3:10; Ex. 20:12) 'do right so God can give you blessings of the field and long life.' Judging from your observation, do these things follow honest living?

6. When we are planning a surprise for some one we do our best to lead his thoughts astray from our actual intent. Is it worse to do so by speech than actions? Would you say it is a dishonesty? If not, what makes false statements dishonest? Is it when you leave some one under wrong impressions permanently?

7. What would happen if God were dishonest at some time? Honesty means dealing in realities or actualities. What if for a day gravity should not function? Our bodily processes stop? What if the law of "as ye sow so shall ye reap" were abandoned?

8. "What are the most common forms of dishonesty which tempt young people today? To cheat in school exams? To feign sickness to get a day off in the shop? To keep indefinitely things which are borrowed, or to borrow without first seeking permission? To live so expensively so there is not enough money to pay debts, and some creditor suffers? To use a quotation and let on as though it were original? To pretend one has a larger income than is the case so that one be "keeping up with the Jones'?" To sneak away to certain dance halls, night clubs, and objectionable places and pretend otherwise?

9. A bachelor 'coal king' lives in a 41-room apartment while thousands of his miner employees live in flimsy, ugly, unheated shacks. In cities men will be found eating out of the garbage cans at the back of a hotel while other men are eating $15 dinners at the front of the same building. What in this would you justify and what correct?

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

A NEW INSTALLATION CEREMONY

The next time you elect new officers for your intermediate C. E. Society hold an installation service for them before they begin their term of office. If you have never had an installation service you will be surprised to find that somehow it starts the society off in the right spirit. It brings to mind very forcibly the responsibility the officers are assuming. It makes it easier for the officers to succeed in their job and work harder for the society and their Lord.

A copy of a very impressive Installation Ceremony, with colored candle symbolism, will be sent you upon request by the editor of this department.

GOD WALKS UPON THE PEAKS

The hills, like beck'ning hands,
  Call us to walk with God.
Where He has carved His thoughts
  In rocks and trees and sod.

Peak beyond peak they rise,
  Inviting us to climb,
'Till from their tops we view
  God's marshaled works sublime.

Our help comes from the hills;
  God walks upon the peaks;
And fills and stills our souls,
  We're dumb; 'tis then God speaks.

IT IS WORTH REMEMBERING

That you cannot whitewash yourself by blackening others.

That success comes in cans—failures in can'ts.

That a day of worry is more exhausting than a week of work.

That a sign on the door of opportunity reads PUSH.

That cheerfulness is what greases the axles of the world.

That a dead fish floats downstream; a live one goes up.

That luck needs a P in front of it to make it worthwhile. —Selected

A son once complained to his mother, "No one ever criticizes me as you do." "Of course not," replied the mother, "Nobody but me loves you enough for that."

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

Prayer

"O Thou Giver of Life and Light; to Thee we come seeking the way to the hills from whence cometh strength; lead us to the heights for a clearer view. Give us, we pray Thee, an open mind; an eager spirit; and an understanding heart. O, Thou great teacher of men, we would be Thy disciples, that we may learn to teach in thy spirit, with love and gentleness, with kindliness and helpfulness, with sympathy and sincerity and simplicity. Help us to teach the deep things of life: Duty, Honor, Truth, Courage, Faith, Hope, Obedience and Devotion; Love of Home and of Country; Reverence for God, for each other, and for all his lowly Creatures. Help us to plant the seeds of international justice and good will, and co-operation, and understanding; and may they spring up to become a mighty tree, whose leaves shall be for the healing of the Nations." Amen.

Program Suggestions

"Today's Call for Other Lands"

Hymn: "In Christ There Is No East or West"

Introduction: In order that we may see what is being done for Christ in other lands today, and that we may realize the great needs of other lands, let us imagine that we will all board a large dirigible and go to spend a short time in each country, seeing the work for ourselves.

Japan.—The Love of Beauty in Japan could be emphasized. A wonderful story about a Christian man, Shimpei Homma, a carpenter, reveals the fact that Christ came to save sinners.

China.—Many stories of great blessings may be related which are the result of a great revival in China. A challenging thought to be revealed is the need for Christian doctors.

India.—A land in which great changes have been wrought in the last fifty years. The influence of the Gospel message should be enumerated.

Africa.—A land where many have received the Gospel; but many others are still downtrodden and hopeless. Interesting stories can be told about the missions in the land of Uganda and of Ujiji, and of the early missionaries, Stanley and Livingstone.

"We make Jesus happy,
When we love and care
For his many children
Here and everywhere."

(To have the Juniors appear in costumes of the respective countries, or to display appropriate pictures of other lands would produce much interest and greater vividness.)

Hymn: "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations."

Miss Minnie Schmidt

TO THE JUNIOR

(Did you read the last two issues? This is a continued story)

For seven long years Mr. William Carey, the once-upon-a-time-shoe-cobbler, worked in India before anyone became a Christian! Seven years! That is a long time to wait. But Mr. Carey wasn't discouraged. He went on preaching day after day and went on translating the Bible. He knew God had brought Him to India, this dark India, and he knew that some day God would make it to be light. He knew, too, that India must have the Bible, the Bible would bring light. I told you last time how the Bible finally came to India.

Things began to happen when the Bible came. Something wonderful happened while it was being translated, too. The Bible is a wonderful book. One day while Mr. Carey was translating it after having been in India seven long years, the man who helped with the translation accepted Jesus as his Saviour. The message of the Bible was so wonderful. All this while this man had helped with the translation, Jesus had been knocking at his heart. Finally he accepted Jesus. This man had a funny name. His name was Krishna Pal. So, you see, Krishna Pal became the first Christian of India. He was very happy when he accepted Christ. So happy was he that he wrote this beautiful hymn:

"O thou, my soul, forget no more
The friend who all thy sorrows bore.
Let every idol be forgot;
But, O my soul, forget Him not."

Later, when the Bible was completed and given out in the villages and streets, more and more wonderful things happened. I will tell you just one of these wonderful happenings.

Narayen Sheshadri belonged to the Brahman caste. It should be printed with three inch letters to look proud and mighty, for the people that belonged to this caste thought themselves so high and mighty that the lower castes of the villages knelt down to drink the rain-pools in which a Brahman had wet his feet. Someone gave Narayen Sheshadri a Bible. He read it and was so impressed with all that he found in it, that he, too, asked God for forgiveness. He, too, accepted Jesus as his Saviour. How surprised people were when they saw him put away all of his idols and give up his good position to become a simple Christian preacher. But how happy Narayen Sheshadri was! He built a Christian village with a school and a church. That was not all. He spent the rest of his life passing on Bibles to others because, one day, someone had passed one on to him and, oh, what a wonderful thing the Bible had done for him!

CORRESPONDENCE

Butterfield, Minn., July 28, 1937

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:

When looking back over the summer so far, we again have to confess that the Lord has dealt kindly with us. More so than we deserve, considering the failures on our part, in the performance of our duties.

The weather this summer has been ideal, the crops better than usual. During the month of June, Evangelist Neve of Des Moines, Iowa, conducted revival meetings sponsored by our church. The meetings were well attended and while not many confessed Christ, all were encouraged and inspired by the messages brought us by this faithful servant of God.

Our daily vacation Bible school followed immediately the close of public school. Forty-six were in attendance. The teachers were Stanley Forseman of Saskatchewan, Canada; Lawrence Solomon of Omaha, Nebraska; and Anna Rupp of Butterfield. These Bible schools have always proved to be very worthwhile. Children from the ages of 5 to 14 attending.

Mission Sunday and Children's Day were held on July 11. In the forenoon Mrs. H. M. Fast and Rev. Bartel spoke to us along missionary lines. In the afternoon the Sunday School rendered their program and Miss Helen Nickel of India spoke to us of her work there. In the evening Miss Nickel again talked to us very interestingly of the work in the mission field.

Rev. David Toews of Canada has been a recent visitor in church, as well as Herbert Rupp of Garrison, Minnesota; and Rev. D. J. Sawatzky of Burrton, Kansas. Rev. H. A. Fast of Newton, Kansas has spent several evenings here describing the work and needs in the different mission fields. He also spoke to our mission society one afternoon. Corr.

Dear Editor and Readers:

In behalf of Mrs. Focht and her family of 798 Charlotte Street, Pottstown, Pennslyvania — many, many thanks to you for your kindness and thoughtfulness in responding to my appeal for "Sunshine to a Shut-in". (See Mennonite of June 15th.)

Our Aged friend has asked me to thank you, through the "Mennonite", for the lovely letters and cards which you sent her, and which brought her much comfort and cheer. For quite a while, one letter or card came each day. Each new arrival made her very happy, giving her something to think about, for that day, and for many days after the last one was received, she still treasured these messages, and asked to have them read again and again. (Mrs. Focht reads German and English PRINT, only, so your letters, in handwriting, had to be read to her.)

A few of these letters came from old friends whom she has not seen for many years; others were from young people of C. E. Society; and some came from those of our dear readers, who also are alone and lonely. Many states were represented: California, Georgia, Kansas, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania.

It would do your hearts good to see how she enjoys your letters and cards. Every one is highly appreciated. God bless you, one and all.

Those of our readers who have not yet taken this opportunity of cheering and comforting our dear Sister in her lonely old age, do so now! Your time and effort will be well spent, for your letter will be gladly received and eagerly read. Tell her about yourself and your family, about your Church activities, etc. A picture of yourself, family, church, anything that might be of interest to one who herself was an active member in her better days, would be greatly enjoyed.

NOTE: I did not know, when I wrote in June, that the dear lady read only PRINT. Those of you who have typewriters, or who are used to lettering by hand, can make it possible for her to read your letters, personally, but do not let this keep you from writing, as her kind folks are only too glad to read any letters that she may receive. Thank you, and may God richly bless you.

Yours in His Service,

Sara Kait, R.N., Boyertown Correspondent

NOTE BY THE EDITOR: If any of our readers know of other shut-ins, among our dear old folks or the sick, kindly write the editor, giving their name and address and something about their condition and situation, and we shall be very glad to make an appeal in these columns. We suggest that some of you who know them write words of cheer to: Rev. N. B. Grubb, 2956 N. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa. and Dr. J. W. Kliewer, Bethel Home for the Aged, Newton, Kansas. Also Rev. C. C. Wedel, confined for 14 weeks at Bethesda Hospital, Goessel, Kansas, on account of a broken leg.

Larned, Kansas, July 26, 1937

Dear Editor and Readers:

The Bergthal sewing society of Pawnee Rock has forty-five members. We meet the first Thursday afternoon of every month in the basement of the church. We have a program every four months, which helps a great deal to give us more zeal for the work. February 12 we observed the World Day of Prayer. As it is observed all over the world the same day, it draws us, the followers of Christ, closer together. Our society supports an evangelist and widow in India. One box of clothing was sent to Hotevilla, Arizona; twenty-nine pounds of cookies and a gift were sent to Daniel and Amy Schirmer for their wedding.

The society gathered four boxes of used clothing and gave them to the Red Cross for flood sufferers. We have had Missionary W. F. Unruhs with us a number of times. Sister Unruh has addressed the society on several occasions. It does us good to have missionaries visit us and tell us about their fields and the conditions under which they have to work. It gives us a better understanding and encourages us to work. May this report encourage other societies to write about their activities and in that way help one another in the service of our Lord.—Sister Unruh is the daughter of our pastor J. B. Schmidt.

Mrs. Nellie Smith, Sec.

Death

PHILIP HEER, son of Samuel and Rosa Heer, was born near Mascoutah, Illinois on August 21, 1875. He passed away very suddenly and unexpectedly on Saturday evening, July 24, from an apoplectic stroke. He attained the age of 61 years, 11 months, and 3 days.

On April 16, 1897, he was baptized by Rev. C. H. Van der Smissen and received into the fellowship of the First Mennonite Church of Summerfield of which he remained a faithful member until his death. On February 14, 1904, he was united in marriage with Clara E. Auernheimer. This union was blessed with 8 children of whom seven are living, one daughter having passed away in infancy.

He leaves to mourn his departure his deeply bereft widow, five daughters and two sons. He is also survived by two sisters and two brothers.

The funeral services were held at the Mennonite Church at Summerfield on Tuesday afternoon, July 27. They were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Elmer Basinger who spoke on John 14:1-3. He was assisted by Rev. A. S. Bechtel who was visiting in the community at the time. Burial was made in the Mascoutah cemetery.

Conference of Church, Community and State

Oxford, England, July 12-26

THE BRETHREN IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCHES ASSEMBLED AT OXFORD TO THEIR BRETHREN IN THE EVANGELICAL CHURCH IN GERMANY

The representatives of Christian Churches, assembled at Oxford from all parts of the world, mourn the absence of their brethren in the German Evangelical Church, with whom they have been closely bound both in the preparation for this Conference and in the great tasks which are set before the Universal Church.

I. We welcome the fact that an agreement had been reached that a common delegation of the German Evangelical Church should be sent to Oxford; we therefore miss the more the great help which its members would have given in the treatment of the fundamental questions of our time. But though your delegates are absent, the very circumstances of their absence have created a stronger sense of fellowship than before.

II. We are greatly moved by the afflictions of many pastors and laymen who have stood firm from the first in the Confessional Church for the sovereignty of Christ, and for the freedom of the Church of Christ to preach His Gospel.

III. We note the gravity of the struggle in which not your Church alone but the Roman Catholic Church as well is engaged, against distortion and suppression of Christian witness, and for the training of the young in a living faith in Jesus Christ as Son of God, and King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

IV. We remember the words of the Scriptures 'There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling'; 'If one member suffer all the members suffer with it, or one member is honored all the members rejoice with it': So we, your brethren in other Churches, are one with our suffering brethren in the German Evangelical Church in love and prayer. Your Lord is our Lord, your faith our faith, your baptism our baptism. We are moved to a more living trust ourselves by your steadfast witness to Christ, and we pray that we may be given grace in all our Churches to bear the same clear witness to the Lord.

V. We pray God to bless you, and to guide and comfort you in your afflictions; and we call upon the Churches throughout the world to make intercession for you with our Father in Heaven, and to rejoice that once again it has been proved that a faith born of sacrifice is counted worthy of sacrifice.

The terms of the message—a word, as the Bishop of Chichester put it, from Church to Church—were heard by the great gathering with repeated applause and were warmly endorsed in speeches by M. Marc Boegner, President of the Protestant Federation of France, Archbishop Germanos, speaking for the Orthodox Church delegates, and Dr. Adams Brown, representing the American delegation.

The message will be conveyed personally to the German Evangelical Churches by a delegation from the Conference.

—September 6 has been selected as GIFT DAY by the Directors of the Bethel Home for the Aged and Bethel Hospital at Newton, Kansas. Announcement of this is made thus early to avoid conflicts with other events. As usual two programs will be given, one in the afternoon and one in the evening.—H. J. Andres, Com. Chm.

—Rev. Abraham Albrecht reports that they are moving to Ransom, Kansas, to begin their work in the church there August 1. Rev. Albrecht accepted a call to the Mennonite church at Ransom upon the resignation of the former pastor, A. L. Jantzen, who enters foreign mission work in China.

—Rev. Theodore Epp of Goltry, Okla., while completing his work for the Th. M. degree at a seminary, has written a thesis entitled, "Should a Christian Take Part in War?" In this he tries to prove that the Old Testament no more teaches man to war than does the New Testament. It is an interesting treatise that should be read by many. But it would be appreciated more when published in pamphlet form rather than in peace meal fashion in the Mennonite.

—Mennonite Church, Summerfield, Ill.—On Wednesday evening, August 4, we are planning to have the Bethel College A-Cappella Choir give a sacred concert at our church. For several weeks our people have been very busy thrashing. Wheat is averaging around 30 bushel per acre and the prospect for corn is excellent. There is also an abundance of fruit and vegetables. The summer has been cool and we have had plenty of rain.—Elmer Basinger.

—Division of Palestine.—The British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is determined to end 17 years of bickering and battle between Jews and Arabs in Palestine by carving up the land into separate countries, and the matter has gone before parliament. The plan is to allot to the 400,000 Jews the northern portion of the strip along the Mediterranean once held by the Philistines, plus what was once Samaria and Galilee; to the Arabs the southern part, including what was once Judea; while Great Britain would keep a corridor running inland in a south westerly direction from the port of Java to such Biblical holy places as Jerusalem and Bethlehem. The whole plan is causing a regular furor, both among the Jews and the Arabs. Naturally the Jews of America are vigorously joining their brethren in the Holy Land in their protest, led by such men as the ever alert Rabbi S. S. Wise. The British will also have to get the approval of the members of the League of Nations to their plan. Dr. Wise, with Jewish leaders from 14 different states, have visited Washington to enlist the interposition of our government, both in behalf of the Jews of Palestine as well as their 3,150,000 brethern in Poland, who have recently lost their citizenship, and are afraid of more severe measures against them.

"Great Britain is guilty of the gravest betrayal of a most sacred trust!" cried Rabbi Stephen Samuel Wise, President of the Zionist Organization of America. "We Jews found Palestine an almost abandoned waste. Under the mandate of Britain we transformed that waste into a high civilization! (The Report) attempts to set up another spurious Arab kingdom, strikes at the very heart of Jewish hopes and is an affront to the League of Nations."

—Dr. E. L. Harshbarger of Bethel College is writing home some interesting reports from his tour through Europe. On his trip through France he was especially delighted at the sight of the beautiful farms, so clean and Sunday-like, small fields that looked more like garden patches, the fine groves of trees, the profusion of flowers. At Paris he found the World's Fair grander and better than our Chicago Fair, practically all nations having appropriate buildings, Germany's being the best, Russia's disappointing. He admired the Louvre. In the Chamber of Deputies palace he sat in the president's chair and pushed the buttons which control the length of speeches. The library adjoining holds 450,000 volumes. The palaces of Versailles, with the gardens surrounding them, he thinks, are quite enchanting. Their upkeep proved to be so costly that the government had to let them go for ten years. Then John D. Rockefeller endowed them so well that they now look better than ever. At a Parisian theatre he took in the opera "Lohengrin," at a cost of only 14 francs or 65 cents. At Geneva, where he stayed three days, he found the International Labor building and the League of Nations palace to be architectural wonders. To the latter all nations made their contributions. Thus, for an example, there is a Dutch, a Danish, and an African room. There are mural paintings by a famous Spanish artist, etc. The International Labor building is panelled with wood from India, furnished with chandeliers from Czechoslovakia, and rugs from Greece. The most enjoyable event in Geneva was a day spent on Lake Geneva, with sight seeing along the shore. The weather has been remarkably cool. He noticed the absence of insects, had seen only one fly and no mosquitoes nor moths. His next report will be from Oetz, Austria. He boadcasts for five minutes from Prague, Wednesday, August 4, at 9 p.m., E.S.T.

—On July 23 Bethel College closed its summer session and with it the editor's career as a member of the active teaching staff of the school also terminated. Seventy is the age limit set up by the college and he reached that mark July 22. He has been in regular school work for 40 years and, with summer school and teacher's institutes thrown in, it would be at least 45 years. He taught in a rural school a year, served as principal and superintendent of public schools twelve years, and in college 27 years, 4 in Freeman College, 6 in Bluffton College, and 17 in Bethel College. He has plenty of work ahead, mostly in the literary line, which will enable him to wear out rather than rust out.

The Bethel College A-Cappella Choir which is on a three-weeks tour through Ohio, Indiana, and as far east as Washington, D. C. seems to please with its programs, for the young people are met by large audiences wherever they appear.

Kansas has had unusually pleasant weather during July. It is reported that this has been one of the coolest Julys on record.

SCHOOLS AND EDUCATION NUMBER

THE CHURCH AND EDUCATION

A. S. Rosenberger, President, Bluffton College

The problem of education must be faced by the Christian church. It would be suicidal for any denomination to adopt a "hands-off" policy toward education. In this day and age more and more young people are going to various schools to receive an education. A million young people are attending the colleges of our country; half of these are in the larger universities and the other half are attending the privately-endowed colleges.

Much of the education that is being offered today is secular in nature. Some of it is positively materialistic and atheistic. A good deal of it is indifferent to all religious values. In such a situation how can the church of Jesus Christ be faithful to her young people unless she has schools where a Christian environment can be created and a Christian influence be exerted?

The writer recently heard the statement made by a city school teacher that our public schools are not godless. This man, a Christian, is advisor to boys who need special help in a large city high school. His approach to them is from the religious angle. Here is a Christian school teacher doing his duty as a Christian in a public school system. Undoubtedly, there are others who are doing the same thing. But, in general, the trend in public education is secular. The public schools and universities could not, if they would, teach religion.

The church through her Christian colleges is saying to the world that education and religion can go hand in hand, that they need not be separated. The Christian college is offering a practical demonstration to young people, regardless of what school they attend, that education and religion are not at odds, but that a person can serve God and believe in Jesus Christ and still be thoroughly educated and cultured.

Our Christian colleges, however, are more than demonstrations. They are the means of actually making real the challenge of Christ to young men and women who are receiving their education. Christian colleges alone are not sufficient in a program of Christianization. The sum total of their influence is less than that of the home, the Sunday School, and the church; but in a certain sphere they are indispensable. They touch the lives of young people at a time when ideals are being formed, talents are being developed, and life's course is being set. If this group of young people who are the potential leaders of the future are not persuaded to follow in the footsteps of the Master, they may be lost for the church and Christian service.

However, to some of our people, the question is, perhaps, not as to the need of Christian colleges, but as to the Christianity of our colleges. We believe that the following articles in part will bear witness to the desire of our Mennonite colleges to be definitely Christian and to stand for and preserve the best things in our faith. These articles, among other things, reveal the desire of those connected with our institutions to fill a place in definite Christian service with a positive and vital faith.

To the Christian there can be no doubt but that every phase of life must be completely and entirely Christ-centered. This must be true in the educational realm as well as any other. If the colleges have not been emphasizing this to the fullest degree, then it is time that we begin to do so. Let it be borne in mind, however, that it has ever been the objective of our schools to center their thinking around Jesus Christ. The testimony of what the Christian college has meant to four of our leaders as stated in this issue reveals the fact that to them education centered itself around the fact of Jesus Christ and the challenge of Christian service.

The hope of the world is in Jesus Christ. Human systems have their day, and having had their day they cease to be. Anything substantial and permanent must be built upon the divine foundation that He offers. A program of education upon this foundation will be of lasting value and a permanent contribution to the church and her young people. It points to the true way of life in contrast to false philosophy and ideals.

It is with the conviction that the Mennonite church needs to support her colleges if she is to have her own leaders for the future and if she is to send forth her quota of trained Christian men and women into a needy world that this educational issue of the Mennonite has been prepared.

WHY THE CHURCH NEEDS COLLEGES*

Freeman H. Swartz

Pastor, Eden Mennonite Church, Schwenksville, Pa. and President of the Eastern District Conference

This is an approach that one seldom hears. Its basic character need neither be stressed nor defended. It suggests the kind of thinking that the editor of this series of articles has given to Christian Education. In a straight-forward manner, without apologies for content or form, this paper will set forth four of many reasons "Why The Church Needs Colleges."

I—THE CHURCH HAS ALWAYS BEEN THE LEADER IN LIBERAL EDUCATION—and it should not now surrender her leadership!

One can almost hear the audible gasp created by such a bold statement and sweeping claim. This thought has been challenged in the writer's mind and here are his responses.

Is it not true that what little light remained in the Dark Ages, remained in the church—certainly not outside of it. That feeble flame was kept burning by the clerics of those days. The Venerable Bede and many others, widely scattered in time and place, made small contributions which kept the stream of knowledge trickling even in a time of great mental drought.

The Renaissance and the Reformation, two of the boons to mankind since the first century of this present era, took place within the confines of the church and not apart from it. True, some conceptions were slowly supplanted—but the place, my dear reader, the place was the church.

Education always reached its highest content and meaning under Christian Leadership, from the days of Paul to this hour. Without that leadership it has dropped into decline and decayed into oblivion unless revived by Christian Content!

II—THE CHURCH SHOULD CONTROL THE EDUCATION OF ITS COMING GENERATIONS—Again dissent is heard! How about our Public School System?

The Public School System of America reached its great height of usefulness because it was locally controlled in order, by State Departments, by County Superintendents, by District Directorate. (A Survey of your local School Board will convince you of the truth of this claim!) And God grant that that control will always remain there.

By control we mean particularly the quantity and environment. By quantity, the balance of educational subjects—by environment the surroundings and attitudes in which the facts are presented.

Mental achievements can become worthwhile only if they are spiritually balanced—and spirituality is a virtue of discernment emanating from Christian growth and maturity.

Social practices differ. And they ought. This lack of difference in the general conduct of society today is a mark of the weakness of the church. Even denominations differ in what they allow. This difference is the justification for Denominational Colleges.

The church should not relinquish her hold on this control and for that reason it needs Colleges to train and prepare her youth to perpetuate these values for coming generations!

III—THE CHURCH FACES ITS GREATEST COMPETITION TODAY—The revival of "Neo-paganism" that is sweeping over the world today bids ill for the church. She must rise again and stem the tide as she did in the fourth and in the sixteenth centuries!

To many "Neo-paganism" may be a meaningless term but this "back-to-nature-stuff" is only too evident, even in Mennonite circles! And its end can easily be discerned. It is carnal—a glorification of the material side of life, a devotion to the body and its needs as man's highest aspiration and in reality often descends to the satiating of man's basest appetites. This carnality is an enemy of the church. It is Anti-Christian! It needs to be fought—both within and without. One of the best weapons for combating this movement is a liberal education in a Christian College. Spiritual values studied in the light of historical (and Biblical as well) perspective are a great antidote to this toxic impediment to wholesome thought and conduct!

The greatest safe-guard against the deceptive claims of the Totalitarian state, centralized control of thought and conduct—making the state the highest end, is a knowledge of the aspirations of men in the past and the degrees of attainment or failure through these and kindred means. The Christian College affords the only systematic opportunity for such study.

IV—THE CHURCH NEEDS THE HIGHEST MEANS TO CONVEY HER HIGHEST ENDS—This is perhaps the most difficult, at least the most obscure of the points presented. It is, however, the most important. For to the defendant's mind it is the very crux of the whole question of Christian Education. If Christianity has not the highest content then why defend anything attached to it. If it has, it is worth every sacrifice needed in its preservation and perpetuation.

The church has four means through which it can express its concepts. They are the Pulpit, the Church School, its Literature—books, magazines and papers—and its Educational Institutions. The first three are self-evident and well-established in their right, hence outside the scope of this paper. The fourth, The Institutions, at least one of them, is its subject!

It follows then that the greatest problem in connection with Christian Education is its greatest function—to interpret these highest ends in such terms and examples as shall bring out their rich value without diminishing their content. Such Institutions the church needs. Only as this value is translated into transformed lives through the individual will the Christian College meet its high calling. And thus it will become the sustainer and perpetuator of the expressive powers of the church in these other three means. As these are strong, to that extent can be realized Christianity's highest hope—"Christ in you, the hope of Glory."—"In whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge!"

*NOTE—The use of the terms Christianity, Church, and Christian Education above are Christo-Centric, as opposed to Cosmo- and Ego-Centric.

SOME RECENT TRENDS IN AMERICAN CHURCH COLLEGES

Ed. G. Kaufman, President, Bethel College

We shall only very briefly enumerate the more obvious of the recent trends that affect church colleges:

1. One of the major denominations has established and maintained 777 schools and colleges of various kinds during its history and now operates only fifty-four institutions (three universities, forty-four colleges, and seven academies). This may mean the abandoning of the college by the church, or the forsaking of the church by the college, but most likely it means that the church has made a study of its actual need in the light of its financial resources, resulting in consolidation of its schools, and now has fewer but better institutions. Other denominations tell a similar story. The trend seems to be toward fewer and better church schools.

2. Once the students in our church colleges came largely from homes of the particular denomination supporting that school. Later an increasing number of students of all denominations in a particular neighborhood sent their young people to the local church college. In recent years there has been a renewed emphasis on denominational loyalty, and the trend now seems to be for young people to go to their own church college if at all possible.

3. In earlier days church colleges were inclined to be rather individualistic. Little attention was paid to what other colleges did. Now they are being looked upon more as servants of the church and society at large and increasingly become more standarized in their procedures, course offerings, and many other ways.

4. Formerly less attention was given to academic standards than is the case today. Now the value of state and national accrediting agencies is almost universally recognized. All types of schools—state, church, and independent—have cooperated in developing these minimum academic standards of excellence. Church colleges have no future unless they meet these standards.

5. Formerly courses in the field of religion were often taught by men most of whose preparation was in other fields than that of religion. In recent times the trend has been to have definitely organized departments of religion handled by faculty members as ably prepared in this field as other department heads are in their respective fields. Because of the former situation courses in religion were often looked down upon by students, but the present trend makes it possible for courses in religion to hold the same high level of academic prestige that other courses in these institutions enjoy.

6. Formerly students were considered as pretty much alike. In recent years individual differences have become increasingly apparent. This has brought with it the development of elaborate programs of individual counseling and guidance along all lines of a young person's interests. Each person must be dealt with as a living soul and not merely as a unit in an impersonal mass.

7. In former days the student carried a greater part of the total expense of his college education than he does now. With the rise of tax-supported institutions, the student is paying a diminishing amount of his total expenses in church colleges, while endowments, donations, and other sources must be found to provide an increasing percentage of this load. At present in church colleges the student pays only approximately 50 per cent of the total cost in the form of tuition and fees.

8. In former days the student devoted his whole time to his academic work while in college, but at present many students must earn part of their expenses while going to school. This is a very acute problem and is forcing colleges to develop opportunities for students to work and earn while they learn.

Contributions intended for the Young People's Department should be addressed to the editor of this department.

Just to pay students for make-shift jobs is bad economy for the school and gives the student a wrong attitude toward life. Really worthwhile work must be found for students who need it.

9. In the past it has been the position of church colleges to champion liberal arts education. This demand for work on the part of students, as well as other forces now operating compel schools to give greater consideration to vocational and pre-vocational courses and less to purely cultural courses.

10. Formerly the chief threat to academic freedom in church colleges was considered to be along religious lines, and the pressure for conformity came especially from the ministerial group. More recently the danger to academic freedom is considered to be more particularly in the area of the social sciences, especially in economics, and the pressure is coming more from the business world.

11. Formerly the state considered the church college as supplementary to its own educational system. With the recent development of the totalitarian state, there is danger that the state might come to consider the church college as a chief source of possible opposition to secular totalitarianism. With the deification of nationalism sweeping the world in the form of both the Communistic and Fascistic state, the church and the church college almost alone remain as the champions of our Christian democracy, insisting that God and conscience be put above the State.

12. In former decades forces have been at work tending to loosen the bonds between church colleges and the denominations supporting them. In recent years the tendency is in the direction of strengthening these bonds. A closer relationship between the college and the church is generally recognized today, which is a very wholesome development in the light of the oncoming threat of the totalitarian state and which will tend to make church colleges really different from state schools and more church-conscious and Christ-centered.

Who Should Attend A Christian College?

Willis Rich

Director of Public Relations, Bethel College

It is not difficult to see the necessity of educating our teachers, preachers, and missionaries in Christian colleges if we expect future generations to "seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness."

On the other hand, it takes vision for parents who have never had much formal education to understand the value of sending their children to Christian colleges, if these children are not interested in vocations of leadership which require further professional training. It is a great inspiration to find increasing numbers of such parents and children who appreciate the importance of the Christian college in the training and growth of Christian farmers, merchants, day laborers, nurses, stenographers, and homemakers. Frequently the writer has made the assertion that a Christian college education is an ideal foundation for every vocation. This statement is more than a slogan; it is a deep conviction. As more of our serious-minded, consecrated young people enter our Christian colleges and develop their latent talents, God increases His gift of power to our churches that we may have a greater share in building His kingdom. Read Matthew 25:14-30. It is going to take much study and patience as well as well-founded faith in Christ to educate properly a generation in this age of social, economic, political, and spiritual confusion. Those who are satisfied with letting others do the thinking may fall prey to false prophets and lose faith in Christian democracy. May our young people share the belief that all knowledge is sacred and that thirty years is not too long to prepare for a life of sacrificial service. May we, as did our Master, Teacher, and Savior, "increase in wisdom, in stature, and in favor with God and man."

The following questions and statements indicate problems which many parents face. The answers are not "final," but are written to stimulate further thought. Certainly, each case must be studied in its own setting and with the prayerful consideration of those directly and indirectly concerned.

1. Should every high school graduate attend a Christian college?

No. Not every high school graduate should attend a Christian college. Students who are interested in going to college merely to play football, or to get a "soft" job with "big" pay, or to "sow wild oats" before settling down to serious living should not attend a Christian college. In fact, any knowledge they may get in school may become a liability rather than an asset to themselves and to society. The Christian college is primarily an opportunity for young people with Christian ideals and motives to grow in usefulness. It is not primarily a reformatory, although it does frequently serve this purpose.

2. Our son wants to be a farmer. It is a waste of time and money for him to go to any school beyond high school except an agricultural college, isn't it?

Modern farm problems are challenging the best-trained minds in America. Certainly, your son can make use of a Christian college education! How much more abundant life on the farm can be after a glimpse into zoology (study of animals,) botany (study of plants), sociology (study of men and their relations with each other,) economics (study of the conditions and laws affecting the production, distribution, and consumption of wealth), chemistry (study of the composition of substances and their transformations), music, art, and a hundred other avenues of truth and beauty—all speaking of the glory of God! I wish it were possible for every young Mennonite farmer who wishes to consecrate his life to Christian living in rural America to attend a Christian college and obtain a liberal arts education.

3. Mary doesn't care to teach. She will likely get married next June. Surely a year in college will not be of any practical value to her.

Mary, please go to college for at least one year and preferably for four years. For the sake of your husband you should take college courses in home nursing, home mechanics, cooking, and sewing. For the sake of your children and your children's children you should study genetics and heredity, the family, child psychology, household budgeting, and household decoration. For your own sake and that of your neighbors you should have an interest in social problems and in political science. An abiding faith in God, a view of the history of civilization, a wholesome interest in college friends in other lands—these blessings of Christian college life may steal from you many unnecessary worries which might trouble more trivial minds.

I wish more of the young women in the Mennonite communities would recognize the eternal values of a Christian college education.

4 Margaret attended college. She majored in music and now she is married, lives on a farm, and doesn't even own a piano. Of course, they have a radio, but think of all the money her parents wasted, paying for her college education with a major in music.

Wasted? Do we live half so much in words and deeds as in thoughts? Can the memory of hours spent with Mozart and Beethoven ever die? Is not the ability to appreciate Dvorak's "New World Symphony" sent over the ether waves to Margaret's kitchen in a lonely rural cottage worth every cent that father and mother spent for Margaret's music major? And, thinking of Margaret's children, would they and their children be different if mother's tastes were limited to the jazz of her generation?

5. Our two boys are sorry they cannot profitably attend church-related colleges more than two years. One wants to be a doctor and the other a petroleum engineer. If they were planning on being ministers or teachers they would certainly graduate from a Christian college.

Doctors, petroleum engineers, and other technicians need a four-year course in a Christian college. Not only will the study of natural sciences in a Christian atmosphere be conducive to thorough study, but the social sciences and arts are necessary to the development of the best doctor and the best engineer.

Reports indicate a definite trend in the direction of securing a full liberal arts education before entering schools of medicine, engineering, theology, and law. Reporting upon a "Study of Accomplishments of the 1935 Freshman Class in Seventy-eight Medical Colleges," Dr. Fred C. Zapffe writes:

"The number of students coming with less than three years of college work is steadily growing smaller, and, per contra, the number holding a degree is steadily growing larger. Of the 1935 freshman class (6,352) exactly 13 per cent had less than three years college work... It must be accepted without reservations that the cultural course yields the best results. Not that science is not culture; it is, but there are other, doubtless more essential, courses which must be regarded as being essential in the making of a good physician.*

6. Our son got into bad company since leaving high school. We didn't object so much to his smoking, but now he drinks excessively, refuses to attend church, and dissipates his time and energy. We have talked to him, prayed for him, and scolded him. He is getting older and is getting more careless. He used to think a lot of the preacher, but now even he has no influence upon him. Maybe we should send him to a Christian college.

Please don't send him to a Christian college until he repents and becomes humble (willing to be taught).

He may change after entering college, but he is also likely to influence others in the wrong direction. He is likely to become a nuisance as a student and a trouble-maker as an alumnus.

THE NEED OF ACCREDITATION

J. S. Schultz, Dean, Bluffton College

One of our young men in California or Pennsylvania, Ohio or Kansas has decided to go to college, but to which one shall he go? For a simple, inexpensive yet wholesome campus life he will soon turn to one of our own colleges: Bethel, Freeman, or Bluffton. If he is looking for a college with an atmosphere conducive to spiritual growth together with the intellectual and physical, a college that makes provision for Bible courses and a good church home while at college, again our Mennonite colleges merit full consideration. If distance enters into the question, some young people will choose one of our colleges because of their nearness; others, because it gives them an opportunity to enter into a new environment.

When, in choosing the college they want to attend, our young people study different colleges from the point of view of their recognition by State Departments of Education and Universities, a more difficult and intricate problem confronts them. The majority of students in the three colleges of our conference, as of most small colleges, go into teaching after completing their course, and these have fared unusually well. The State Departments of South Dakota, Kansas, and Ohio have usually given full recognition to our colleges, gladly certificated our graduates, and commended us on our products. Neighboring states have treated us courteously but more frequently raised the question of accreditation by the North Central Association which operates as a standardizing agency for colleges in twenty states over the central area of our country.

For those of our students, who have gone on to universities for graduate study, whether for further academic or professional preparation, again we can say, the university officials have been sympathetic, but, lacking membership in the North Central Association, many special explanations have been necessary and in some cases additional requirements have been imposed by some graduate schools.

Just what is accreditation and how does it function in other fields? A few comparisons will help to make clear. Supposing we want to find out about the rating of a business concern it's frequently Dun and Bradstreet; for physicians it is the American Medical Association; for lawyers the American Bar Association; for manufactured articles perhaps Consumers Research; for higher educational institutions in the entire central part of our country it is the North Central Association.

In the material world we are all familiar with the process of selecting standard articles that are approved or their manufacturers known. The label "Approved by Good Housekeeping", for instance, on a canner, a washing machine or such adds much to the confidence our women have when wanting to purchase such equipment; if we know a machine or other product has been manufactured by the International Harvester Co., General Motors, Ford Motor Co., General Electric, Westinghouse, Singer Sewing Machine Co., Richman Clothes, etc., we feel they are sufficiently identified to have confidence in the things because there is a concern back of them that is reliable. To the contrary, many of us have purchased non-standard articles and regretted it, when trouble arose.

Even in religion we have come to the place where not every stranger who comes, posing as a minister of the Gospel or representative of a philanthropic organization is admitted to our pulpits without identification. Rightly and for a good cause our conference officials serve as a committee to approve or disapprove such self-invited guests.

Similarly there are so-called educational institutions, degree mills, fake colleges, money making enterprises. Ohio had to take some definite legislative steps against them this year. Of course, Freeman, Bethel, and Bluffton colleges are never classified with that group but we have this in common with them that we are not accredited, we are not on the list of recognized institutions. When any individual or another college or university, about to receive a student who comes from one of our colleges, asks the North Central Association about our standing, the best the Association officers can say is that our colleges are doing some very good work but that they are not members of the Association. We are below par, we are not up to standard. An alien may be as good a member of society as a citizen but in crucial instances there is a tremendous difference; a hireling, though ever so good a man, is never recognized as a son; the non-church member may be a good individual but cannot fully enjoy the benefits of fellowship.

That it is important for our colleges to become members of the North Central Association should be sufficiently evident from the above discussion. Our own young people graduating from our colleges apply for the same positions in schools and society at large, they compete for the same scholarships that graduates of state institutions or of other standard colleges seek.

They should have an equal chance with them, but they will always be handicapped more or less, until our colleges are in the same class with the rest.

Sometimes we are told that that isn't the purpose of our church colleges. Our main purpose is to teach religion, to develop Christian character. This latter is our concern and if we don't do that, we are agreed, we have no right to exist, no right to ask for your support. But we cannot do that in a onesided way. It is not one or the other, not religious education instead of the academic, but Christian education permeating the academic, the secular, the cultural. We cannot limit our courses to Bible study alone, we cannot hope to send all our students out as missionaries, ministers, and fulltime church workers. Our sincere desire is that most of them will be merchants, farmers, teachers, etc. As such, they should serve the church and the community in which they live as Christian citizens.

That our colleges need accreditation there is no question. Now, why aren't we accredited, recognized? One or two words answer that question completely: money, financial support. It is an accepted principle beyond question or debate, that a college must have financial security, in other words must have an endowment, the income from which will pay the faculty and workers an adequate salary, provide ample equipment, especially keep the library and laboratories up-to-date, and keep the plant in good order. The amount needed for endowment for a small college is usually thought of as being at least $500,000.

The exact salary a college teacher must have to warrant his getting the necessary schooling, have at least a modest home and library, be able to attend professional meetings, and through travel and the like keep abreast in his work of guiding and inspiring young people—that amount has never been specified anywhere. There are few expectations that small colleges will ever pay university salaries, but there is a minimum which must be met to keep the work from suffering. Some of our faculty have not been able to go on to school for their advanced degrees because of low salaries and that counts against the institution when applying for accreditation; others have gone on and as a result have debts to pay for which present salaries are inadequate: they have to seek additional income from other sources which distracts from their service to the college. Thus, to employ and keep a well educated faculty and have and maintain a good plant and good working conditions, a considerable and relatively stable income is necessary.

Lastly, is it worth it? Do we Mennonites of the General Conference value our colleges enough that, with the generous help of our neighbors and other friends of Christian education, we can and want to further build up and maintain our colleges? Sacrifice? Certainly; it can never be done without it on the part of the faculty as well as the constituency far and near. Money to colleges never brings dividends in terms of dollars. In terms of better, more Christ-like lives it has and we hope it will continue to bear fruit manifold.

Does not Christ need His representatives, his messengers in this country at a time when clouds of destruction hang over our land, just as much as He needs them in China and India and Africa? Is not Christian education, preparing Christian leaders for the United States as well as for the foreign non-civilized countries a call to all churches and all church members as much as the great and noble call of missions? There is no more promising way by which we can hope to really Christianize our beloved country than for Christian colleges to educate Christian leaders for every walk of life. For that great task our colleges must meet the requirements of all institutions of higher education. To make that possible they need generous gifts, ardent prayers, consecrated leaders. There are a large number of young people who want that kind of an education. We as parents can influence others to go. Are we Mennonites willing to help God's Kingdom in this way as we have so nobly done in many other ways? We who feel it our God given responsibility to serve in the colleges, have the confidence that our conference, our churches, the individual members will see this as their task and meet it.

SECOND MENNONITE SONG FESTIVAL

Perkasie, Pa.

The ALL-CONFERENCE CHORUS (250 members) of the Eastern District Conference of Mennonites presented Cauls Oratorio "The Holy City" in Perkasie Park, on August 8th, at 2:30 P.M. and 8:00 P.M. under the direction of Prof. Russel A. Lantz, director of the Department of music, Bluffton College, Ohio.

This was the SECOND annual concert given by the ALL-CONFERENCE CHORUS. The personnel of the CHORUS is mainly from the various Mennonite churches throughout the Eastern District Conference, and from other churches in the district. It is sponsored by the Executive Committee of the Eastern District Conference: Freeman H. Swartz, President; J. J. Plenert, A. J. Neuenschwander and A. C. Alderfer.

Churches and pastors cooperating were: Allentown and Upper Milford, Rev. Howard G. Nyce; Deep Run and Springfield, Rev. A. M. Fretz; East Swamp, Rev. W. S. Gottshall; Germantown, Rev. Howard Landes; Hereford, Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson; Lansdale, Rev. Olin A. Krehbiel; Philadelphia, First Church, Philadelphia; Rev. J. J. Plenert; Second Church, Philadelphia, Dr. Silas M. Grubb; Schwenksville, Rev. Freeman H. Swartz; Souderton, Rev. E. J. Bohn; Quakertown, West Swamp and Flatland, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander.

MAKING OUR MENNONITE COLLEGES UNIQUE

John D. Unruh, President, Freeman Junior College

More than four centuries of Mennonitism have left in their wake a unique people. That this statement is true is amply proved by the numerous books, pamphlets and articles written about the Mennonites. Many a graduate student in quest of a higher degree has singled out the Mennonites of a particular state or locality as a basis of discussion for the dissertation. True, some of these have been under the erroneous impression that in writing about the Hutterian Brethren they were writing about the Mennonites. However, in most instances the Mennonites themselves have proved unique enough to prove interesting subjects for discussion. Wherein lies this uniqueness and in what way can it be (or is it being) reflected in our Mennonite Colleges?

Is it too commonplace to refer again to our heritage of the whole hearted devotion to industriousness, the simple life, the simple faith in God—shunning all pretense of mere outward appearances—and the historic pacifist principles? Certainly these have been the basis for our uniqueness as a people. One need but add that adherence to some of these led to frequent migrations which in turn contributed materially to peculiarities of language and custom. Here and there restless spirits may feel that these cherished ideals, which have for so long made their indelible impressions on our lives, should be relegated to the realm of the past. However, the great majority of our thinking people still believe in these principles and will do all they can to maintain them.

But we need to come more directly to our immediate subject, to wit: How can we make our Mennonite Colleges Unique? The answer, on the basis of what has been referred to in the introduction, is simply to emphasize the principles and traditions that have made our people a unique people.

Let it never be said that our colleges disparage the characteristic Mennonite devotion to industriousness. We need to emphasize that good honest efforts will bring rewards. God forbid that students in our colleges ever become possessed with the erroneous notion that a college education is an avenue of escape from a life of sweat and toil to a life of ease and comfort. The establishment of industries in our college plants requiring hand labor would serve a twofold purpose. On the one hand it would enable many a less fortunate youth to attain a college education while on the other, it would tend to keep alive this traditional industriousness so deeply ingrained in our fathers.

Elsewhere in this issue appears a discussion on Christ Centered Education. Lest there be too much overlapping the references to this phase will be but brief. Repeatedly we admire the simple faith of our fathers. No highly emotionalized shouting from the tree-tops, no intricate system of theology, but simple rugged faith in God that shone forth in the daily walk of life. If our Mennonite colleges would be unique let them cherish this simple faith and do what they can to instill it in the hearts of the men and women who enter their portals. It needs to be emphasized more and more that Christ-centered education really does permit the spirit of Christ to permeate the entire college atmosphere. In this way students might be led to a more firmly grounded faith in God. That our Mennonite colleges are sincerely trying to become more Christ-centered is surely true. That much needs yet to be done is equally true. Attainment of this goal will become much easier if all strive together.

With the simple faith in God goes the simple life. In this respect there is danger that we become bewildered by a very complex society—a bewilderment that seems to carry with it the belief that the essence of anything worthwhile lies in its size and complexity. In this maelstrom follow more stately mansions, more elaborate church buildings, more involved family and social relationships, ever more intricate curriculums, and, may it be mentioned here, tables that are laden with delicacies such as our forefathers little dreamed of. Let it be known that our colleges can do much to revitalize the simple life of our forbears—a life that centered largely in a simple, unpretentious family circle, devoted to God and dedicated to industry. In so doing we will serve our constituencies best.

Lastly, we need to place more emphasis on our historic stand on the bearing of arms. To be sure we have adhered to this in the past but it may have been too largely only during times of crises. When war has broken out we have let it be known that we have conscientious scruples against doing any of the killing ourselves. Should we not go a step beyond this? Cannot something be done to prevent the precipitation of these crises? While we believe that lasting peace can come only when the Prince of Peace takes possession of the hearts of individuals, we certainly ought to do all we can to help further the efforts toward peace undertaken by others who may be just as sincere as we. Said a noted southern churchman recently, "I do not agree in all respects with Rabbi Stephen Wise, but he is for peace and so am I. In this respect I'll go hand in hand with him." Our Mennonite colleges ought to be vital forces in the crusade for peace and good will both as between groups within the nations, and the nations themselves.

To recapitulate very briefly: Making our Mennonite Colleges unique implies the emphasizing of the things that have made our people unique. Instilling in our students a simple trusting faith in God; a deep appreciation for its corollary, the simple life; a wholehearted devotion to habits of industry and thrift; and lastly ,to be in the vanguard in the crusade for Peace on Earth and Good Will Among Men. To this end may our prayers be directed.

The Teacher in a Christian College

P. S. Goertz, Dean, Bethel College

It is common knowledge that Christianity is faced today with powerful enemies. Indifference, confusion, and a militant paganism can be seen on every hand. This paganism is dressed up in new clothes so that the Christian Church itself often fails to recognize it and is in danger of compromising with it. Unless Christianity can shake itself free from this neo-paganism and unless Christians are really awake to their task the world may plunge into chaos and darkness, and the rule of comparative justice may come once more to be the rule of the jungle. As Christians we are consequently charged with tremendous obligations. The situation calls for our united and consecrated efforts. No one institution, activity, profession, people, or race can do it all. The Church must not let up to preach the precious Gospel of salvation through Jesus Christ, churchmen like St. Augustine should continue to dream of the "City of God", it will help if missionary statesmen urge the Evangelization of the world in this generation, and the Sunday Schools would do well to double their efforts and encourage personal evangelism in the family. But even these, important as they are, must be supplemented by other agencies. One of these certainly is the Christian College, and the most potent factor in the college is the teacher. Organization, equipment, and subject matter are all needed, but the teacher himself is more significant than all else.

What can we expect, or shall I say, what should we look for in a teacher in a Christian College? Obviously, there is room here to single out only a few of the qualifications.

First, he must be well informed, and a "workman that needeth not to be ashamed." The Chinese are said to divide men into four classes: Those who do not know that they do not know; those who do not know that they know; those who know that they do not know; and finally those who know that they know. In that kind of a classification a teacher in a Christian College should definitely belong to the last group. Good intentions and fine sentiments never atone for a lack of knowledge. Why should a Christian necessarily take second place to any one else as a real scholar. Knowledge wins respect and is power. How often has the Christian cause suffered handicaps by well-intentioned but half-informed advocates. A teacher should know his field and be able to speak with authority in it. No non-Christian or enemy of the Christian way should find occasion to accuse him of ignorance or detect him in playing loose with facts. I doubt whether genuine scholarship can be overemphasized.

It stands to reason that no man can be a real authority in more fields than one. A Christian scholar will therefore often acknowledge that he does not know, and such a confession is all to the good. Humility requires it. Should his lack of knowledge show up in his professedly chosen field, he will make it his point to find out. Thus he maintains his veracity and the general respect for the Christian cause. If it is outside of his field, he should hardly be held responsible to have penetrated deeply. However, he should also be suffiicently conversant in other fields so that he may know what bearing his work has upon them and that God's truth in his field is not in opposition to real truth in another.

Second, the world has a right to expect a teacher in a Christian College to have experienced Jesus Christ in his life. Experience is here stressed and not expert knowledge of Christian theology. His special interest may be Chemistry or Political Science yet fellowship with the living God through Jesus Christ his Son can be ever present and a cherished reality with him. What is more, his teaching will be enriched thereby and his students feel the irresistible magnetism of one so charged with the love and appeal of Christ.

Third, every member of such a teaching staff must have convictions that square with Christian principles. At this point, it can be shown that many schools bearing the Christian name have been playing traitors to the Christian cause. There is indeed danger of being dogmatic or intolerant toward others. We should be open to truth and willing to follow it, but that does not excuse lukewarmness towards Christian principles of life and action. If a man is minus the conviction that the Christian way is the way of life, or if he has come to feel that Christian principles are out of date, then he has no place whatever as a teacher in a Christian College. Such a person would be a negative influence and the institution would be better off without him. The scientific method, an honest search for truth, a recognition for the need of progress, tolerance and good will toward those who disagree with us, and a respect for the individuality and personality of students who are being taught do not call for any such lukewarmness. A school better give up its Christian name if its teachers no longer heartily and enthusiastically believe in the Christian cause. While scholarship is sessential I am certain that not even the finest learning can make up for a negative or even an apologetic attitude toward Christian principles as far as a Christian College is concerned.

Finally, we add as another essential qualification of a teacher in a Christian College his willingness to pay the price for his convictions. Let him honestly confess his creed, but then also live it. In the last analysis his genuineness of character is perhaps his most effective contribution to the institution and to society. His veracity should be such that his real self can be disclosed to all men. God give us men today without sham or hypocrisy, men who are sun crowned, honest, and men who will not lie. Who will say what they mean and do what they say. In short, the Christian teacher is called upon to demonstrate concretely and practically the Christian way of life, a life of love, purity, veracity, and good will.

In conclusion it may be urged that Christian Colleges be staffed with men and women who take their rank with the best scholars anywhere in the world. Let them be conversant with the methods and findings of science, be at home among the learned, and equipped with the tools that make the whole realm of progressive knowledge always accessible to them. And in order to make such learning have real and eternal value it must come to the student through Christ-like personalities. There can be nothing finer, more attractive, stronger, serviceable, constructive, or hopeful than he who truly "bears branded on his body the marks of Jesus Christ". Only as Christian Colleges honestly strive to attain that ideal in their teaching staff are they true to the name they bear.

The Future of the Christian College

J. H. Langenwalter

Pastor, First Mennonite Church, Reedley, California

When we speak of the future of anything we have in mind that thing as it is to be some day. That may mean a minute description of what it is to be like, or it may mean the kind of thing it ought to be under future conditions. The former of these two approaches seems to be the most alluring one for many people, but it has not proven itself nearly so valuable as the latter, which requires much more care and study. In discussing the future of the Christian College, under the present assignment, we shall concern ourselves with what the Christian College of the future can rightfully be expected to represent in both objective and service.

Christian Colleges were called into existence because of the service they could render. No groups felt more keenly than did Christian Churches that it was necessary to give to youth the advantages of schooling. However, being Christian, these groups believed that these advantages should emphasize the making of a worthy human life as paramount. This attitude did not overlook the importance of the making of a living. It simply emphasized, in a practical way, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

There is much evidence that the need ,which brought the Christian Colleges into being, will continue to exist. In fact, the more complex human relationships become, the more necessary will it be that youth shall have the opportunity of developing an adequate view of life under the most favorable conditions. That means that right relationships must be given a fair chance during the time of training for life. For the moment it does not seem reasonable to expect human relationships to become less complex in the near future. Since this is true, there is no use in facing the future with fear. Human beings are in danger of doing just that when they sense the coming of any change. That has been one of the great difficulties in the development of Christian Colleges. People have too often been afraid of the re-adjustments which became necessary in the colleges and have forgotten that the churches themselves were undergoing changes, as were the conditions and objectives of home life. It is well to keep in mind that the future is not likely to spare those who are afraid any more than the past has. Since this is true it will be best for all of us to try to meet the situations which arise in the Spirit of Christ rather than try to escape them as something to be shunned.

Many Christian Colleges have gone out of existence, and such tragic experiences are to be expected in the future. Some which have gone out of existence as organizations are still living in the spirit which they have fostered, while others seem to have been lost. The mere existence or non-existence of an institution does not necessarily give a correct estimate of its real value. For this reason, we shall not emphasize what needs to be done to keep certain institutions, known as Christian Colleges, but rather what may be expected of them if they are to be worthy of the name which they bear.

I. The future of the Christian College depends upon the kind of service it will be prepared to render at the time when that service is most needed by those whom it can serve best. Such an institution may rightfully be expected to be at its best at the most important points where youth is called upon to face the problems of life.

II. The future of the Christian College will depend upon interested friends. These have always been necessary, and they always will. Their contributions may be spiritual, moral, intellectual, financial, or of any other kind through which useful support can be given toward the education of youth. It will become increasingly important that those who in any way direct the shaping of Christion Colleges shall do so because they are friends of the spirit which called these institutions into being. That does not discount the various types of ability which can be offered, and are needed for the proper development of Christian Colleges. No type of institution needs a greater variety of ability, but, those who offer their abilities to the Christian Colleges of the future will need to be more consecrated than ever.

IV. The future of the Christian College depends upon those who call themselves Christian. They may seem like a hopeless minority much of the time, but upon them depends what will really happen to the youth which comes under the influence of any institution and its supporting, or hindering constituency. Youth sees this with astonishing and sometimes embarassing clarity, even as the common people heard Jesus gladly while the leaders of His day dealt with Him as a law-breaker.

V. The future of the Christian College depends upon its ability to adapt itself to changing circumstances. Just as we must differentiate between THE CHURCH and a church, so we must learn to see the difference between a CHRISTIAN college and just another college, whose charter allows it to use the term Christian. The name will have less and less to do with the reality. There have been so-called secular schools whose influence has been more Christian than that of some denominational schools because of the character of the respective faculties and constituencies. This means that the Christian Colleges of the future will be movements more than organizations, when they are at their best. Unless this is true, like many churches of the present day, they will not be free to do their most important work.

VI. The future of the Christian College depends upon the spirit in which it can help to train leaders beyond the pale of its own organizational background. The future will brook no smug, self-satisfied isolation. That never has been representative of the Spirit of Christ. It will be increasingly apparent that there must be direct and indirect influence, in the Spirit of Christ, upon the leadership of the generation in which the college does its work. This is a part of the missionary spirit of the followers of Christ which denominationalism has too often obscured. The needs of the world are becoming so great that the spirit of partisanship will need to make room for the family spirit more and more.

VII. The Christian College of the future may appear as a very humble servant, but it will be a factor, in the Hand of God, whose influence will be felt for the good of the public in times of crises as well as in so-called normal times. What appears on the surface may not mean much to the casual observer, but those who look for the fruits will see and thank God for the fact that the Christian College has a future.

What Has the Christian College Meant To Me?

I. D. D. Eitzen, Pastor, Immanuel Mennonite Church, Los Angeles, Calif.

In the light of my past privileges in attending school I have come to consider education as a process of getting introduced to the hitherto discovered laws governing self and the world about self, and in the process becoming hungry to discover more of these laws. Because human nature is as it is ("deceitful above all things") many educators have, in their blindness of heart, chosen men (self) as the center of the universe they have discovered.

The Lord be praised! In my youth I gave Him my heart, my future and my hunger pangs for truth. He honored my feeble but sincere promise of consecration and directed me to teachers who, in human weakness but with a Bible perspective, led me to see that the Creator and Sustainer of this integrated program of laws was not human selfishness but a redemptive God, best described in Hosea 11:8,9; John 3:16; Romans 5:6 et cetera.

This deeper discovery—possible only in a Christian school—is of eternal importance, for I believe that God shall remain the source of every additional discovery of truth I shall make as I go on in my studies, even under non-Christian leaders (Romans 8:38,39).

This assurance I owe to my earliest Christian teachers, my parents; the teachers of the Mountain Lake Preparatory School; a few Christian high school teachers; and the founders, contributors, and teachers of Bethel College.

II. A. R. Keiser, Pastor, Salem Mennonite Church, Dalton, Ohio

Christian education should result in a full personality thoroughly permeated and inspired by the Spirit of Jesus Christ. To procure this kind of an education it is practicually essential that we have and support the Christian college.

I wish here to give three reasons why I believe the Christian College serves us better than any other kind of a college or university possibly can. The first is because a college which is preeminently Christian is primarily concerned in the field of Christian idealism. I wish here to give my testimony as to the high Christian ideals which always surrounded me while I was a student at Bluffton College. There is perhaps no greater need today than creating more individuals who have a deep faith in God, in their fellowmen and in themselves. Far too many men and women early in life become disillusioned and cynical.

The second reason for my high estimate of the Christian colleges of our land is to be found in the Christian friendships and associations there made. For many of us these experiences will never fade from memory. Some of them are the Student Volunteer meetings and hikes, the various "Y" activities, the Christian study groups and others. These have no parellels in the large tax supported universities.

The third and last reason I will mention is to be found in the spirit of demoncracy and Christian sympathy which are to be found in these fine Christian colleges scattered over our nation. Here we find the true melting pot of races and classes. Many of us who have attended both the Christion college and the State Institutions will be quick to speak of the friendships there made and will tell of the difficulty of striking friendships in the larger school. The spirit of tolerance and understanding are very evident in the school where Jesus Christ is given His rightful place.

Yes, I believe in the Christian college and I am planning to send my son to one of these rather than to one of the larger tax-supported Universities. I am desirous that my son will have the advantage of those fine Christian ideals, those beautiful Christian associations and that he will be surrounded by a democratic spirit of love and Christian understanding.

III. David Wedel, Pastor, First Mennonite Church, Halstead, Kansas

It is not by chance that man solves his problems. It is always by the use of the best knowledge that is available. In any field of endeavor, the man who has superior knowledge at his disposal has the greater chance to win. An organized educational system carried on by professional teachers is a product of modern civilization designed to make the necessary knowledge available.

Let me begin the statement of what the Christian college has meant to me by enumerating some of the benefits that have been received intellectually. Bethel College has opened up a larger world to me. One's world is only as large as one's acquaintance in the field of knowledge. Here the experience of thinking independently and forming ones own conclusions became a common experience that was comparatively new before. There was also made available something of the technique of problem solving. We were introduced to some of the great achievements, discoveries, and great thoughts of the people of all ages.

I believe this much any college or university could have done for me. Education is certainly a formative, molding, and orienting process. An orienting process to WHAT? Here the Christian college makes its contribution. While it gives information, it also orients the student to a God centered world. Here the student has an opportunity to achieve a Christ centered life as he grows in knowledge. Instead of giving a large amount of unrelated knowledge, which is then left to the student to assimilate as best he can, the Christian college is concerned with the development of a well rounded Christian personality by the use of the knowledge that has now become a part of the student. Here lies the chief contribution of the Christian college for me; it relates the knowledge that is made available to a God centered world.

IV. Delbert E. Welty, Pastor, Emmanuel Mennonite Church, Noble, Iowa

In keeping strictly to facts involved it is necessary to warn the reader not to forget that the writer possessed a very meager and a not too highly complimentary conception of what constituted a Christian college prior to his enrollment. Veracity makes him confess that his knowledge of what constituted a Christian and a Christian life was not clear and definite. Then, too, the Christian college had no special appeal, on the contrary, it only served to heighten the reluctance he felt when circumstances intervened determining enrollment.

Today, as I look back over the years and search my heart and meditate upon what the Christian college has meant to me, many things come to mind. Briefly, a few reactions. The Christian college has given me a growing sense of appreciation of the necessity, the vastness and the intricate ramifications of the problem, of Christian education. This, naturally, has lead me away from a fault-finding to a fact-facing attitude in the interest of the cause. It contributed in fostering growth of the new birth which I acknowledge as the gift of God, as the work of God in the human soul. God can use the Christian college to perform his will. Hence, I believe in and support Christian education and pray and hope that God's will may be done in the field of education as truly as in individual experience. Interested in other things, the Christian college through its influence challenged me to service and to dedicate my life in the cause of God. May God bless the Christian college.

Standing Up for the Rights of Others

Gen. 37:21-22; Gen. 44:18-34

Young People's Topic for August 29, 1937

Meditation:

Monday, Aug. 23

There is a destiny that makes us brothers,
None goes his way alone."

Tuesday, Aug. 24

"Where cross the crowded ways of life,
Where sound the cries of race and clan,
Above the noise of selfish strife,
We hear Thy voice, O Son of Man!"

"In haunts of wretchedness and need,
On shadowed thresholds dark with fears,
From paths were hide the lures of greed,
We catch the vision of thy tears."

Wednesday, Aug. 25

Matt. 7:12. Christ's is not a passive and negative but positive and active attitude. Do something about those brotherly impulses that well up in you.

Thursday, Aug. 26

Mark 12:31. Jesus used a rather clever measuring stick to determine the degree of love for others.

Friday, Aug. 27

Luke 10:29. What do we answer to the query?

Saturday, Aug. 28

Matt. 7:12 and Rom. 13:10; Mark 12:30-31. Would you say, as you scan the laws of Moses, that they all are but an application of the here expressed principle?

Sunday, Aug. 29

Topic: Standing Up for the Rights of Others. Gen. 37:21-22; Gen. 44:18-34.

Discussion Hour:

1. Show how the life of monks is a direct violation of the principle of Christianity. What on the other hand did they contribute to propagation of Jesus' principles?

2. "The very example and spirit of our Lord indicate that Christianity cannot be rightly lived, still less enjoyed, in isolation." Why this? Enlarge on how it works thus. Consider this: "Personality is only possible as a result of relationships."

3. "Why do some people insist the church should 'stick to saving souls' and not 'meddle with economics and business' problems"? Did you know of instances where a slice of bread was a better sermon than a Sunday forenoon's presentation of a text? Can the church keep out of business and be true to itself? Just how alluring will the church be to folks when its ministrations occupy only Sundays? Is it during the week of office hours, of coal digging, steel milling, court sessions, house cleaning and wheat cutting that man needs expression of brotherhood and love of neighbors?

4. We feel we have the following rights. What others can you think of and what suggestions have you to preserve these:

Right to work, Eph. 4:28
Right to rest, Exod. 20:10
Right to speak, Acts 5:29
Right to choose our religion, Josh. 24:15
Right to think, Phil. 4:8
Right to use our gifts, Rom. 12:4-8
Right to safe-guard health and happiness

What obligations or duties are upon us in regard to possessing the above named rights?

5. Make present-day applications of the right to think; the right to speak; the right to choose our religion.

6. "In his farewell speech to the youth of Great Britain, Stanley Baldwin told them always to do their duty and to seek their own rights last. Part of our duty is to help others to have their rights. How so? Give illustrations of how the following people are sometimes denied their rights: our parents, younger brothers and sisters, people at school (or in our social circle) who seem a bit 'queer'."

7. "Only as the Christian joins the thronging crowds along the highway of life, doing what good he can and leading as many as he can toward the way which is eternal, can Christian life be enjoyed with the fullest satisfaction."

ECK FAMILY REUNION will be held on Sunday, Aug. 12, 1937, in the Government Springs Park, Enid, Okla., beginning at 10 a. m. All related to the Eck family are urged to attend.

A Missionary Meeting

This topic suggests a missionary meeting and the missionary committee should be put in charge of planning for it. Notify the committee well in advance of this responsibility. It can be just another missionary meeting with an impersonal discussion of the topic or it can be made a vital living thing that will send your members away with something to think about. There are a number of suggestions, any one of which you can develop for your meeting.

1. Look over the list of program material available from Women's Missionary Association in the June issue of "Missionary News and Notes." The president or secretary of your Missionary society will be able to give you a copy. Send for several of the programs and save the material you do not use for future programs.

2. If you live in a community where different races are represented, ask some of the young people of high school age to come in and make a contribution to your program. This may be by using some talent that they may have, as singing a song, playing some instrument or reciting. Or it may be done by asking them to tell of some of the finest contributions their race has made to human progress. You might have a fellowship hour either before or after the meeting so they have a chance to get acquainted with your members.

3. Almost every community has missionaries who are home on furlough. They may not be of our denomination, but they always have a message that is alive, because it is taken from experience.

4. Plan a specific project for some neglected persons in your community (hospital, children's home, or poor family) in which the society can participate.

Poem

Love thyself last.
Look near, behold thy duty
To those who walk beside thee down life's road;
Make glad their days by little acts of beauty,
And help them bear the burden of earth's load.

Love thyself last.
And thou shalt grow in spirit
To see, to hear, to know and understand.
The message of the stars, lo, thou shalt hear it,
And all God's joys shall be at thy command. . .

Discussing the Topic

1. Why have some people apparently been forgotten or neglected? What causes contribute toward this condition?

2. Are people themselves ever responsible for being neglected or forgotten? In our churches? In our communities? In our cities?

3. Who would you say are the forgotten or most neglected people in our community? Why have they been forgotten?

4. Is anyone ever forgotten in God's sight? Ps. 27:1-10. Why do you think this holds true?

5. Why should we as Christians assume responsibility for those who are in need of help? Give some instances where Jesus went out of his way to help the downtrodden.

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

The Broken Chain

ooooo oooooo ooooo

We have several of them in our home. My watch chain is one. It's links "let go" and so the chain lies in separate parts quite unuseful.

In the past month I have hoped that the leaders of Juniors might become as a strong chain. The separate "links", we know, are strong, faithfully fulfilling their duty in the various churches from coast to coast. What a wonderful chain this will make when we unite as leaders of youth discussing our problems, sharing our blessings, taking hold of larger tasks, building the Kingdom of God more successfully,—one with one another and one in Christ who said, "Ye can do all things through Me."

We are still pioneering in our conference work. We need unity. We need to stand together and work together. Juniors need to be taught that they are a part of a big whole. They need to be brought in contact with the large tasks of our conference. They need to have a part in this task, a real, vital part. They need to learn to know those who carry the load of responsibility in the various phases of our conference work. The task of the Junior leader is a great task. To you is given the responsibility of molding the future constituency of our conference, its loyalty, its devotion, its unity, its spirit of sacrifice.

At the Christian Endeavor Convention of the Western District held July 25th, it was decided to make all Junior Endeavors a part of this convention organization. Is this a step forward to unity? I believe it is. The plan is to convene as a Junior convention at the time of the Senior convention. Perhaps in an afternoon session. May God's blessing rest upon this decision in a special way that out of it may grow fruitage that shall abide.

I hope you have noticed the last issue's contribution by Miss Minnie Schmidt who is Junior sponsor of the Bethel College congregation. Thank you, Miss Schmidt. Our next contributor will be Sister Helen Ruth Epp who is the leader of Juniors in the Emmaus church near Whitewater, Kansas. We hope that other leaders will respond from time to time with some brief note of help. May we, who are a broken chain, all help toward its union.

ooooooooooooooooooo

Something NEW

A few days less than a year from now something exciting is going to happen. I don't know just where this that is going to happen will happen. It will take place somewhere in Kansas or Oklahoma or Nebraska or Texas or Colorado because all these states together we call the Western District and this, which is to happen, is to happen somewhere in the Western District. Perhaps we better begin getting excited now even though it is almost a year before it really takes place. Perhaps we better begin thinking about it much and praying for it.

Now I will tell you what is to happen. The Christian Endeavor convention met here in Newton on July 25th. They decided that the Junior endeavors should belong to them and that they should have a meeting all their own. Won't it be wonderful to meet Juniors from other states too? Won't it be wonderful to sing together and to plan to do big things together? Won't it be wonderful to work together for Jesus?

Will you think about it? Will you pray about it?

UNION does everything when it is perfect; it satisfies desires, it simplifies needs, it foresees the wishes of the imagination; it is an aisle always open, and becomes a constant fortune.

THE PLACE OF RELIGION IN A NATION'S LIFE

Exodus 25:1-40; 29:43-46; 40:1-38

Printed 25:1,2,8,9; 29:43-46; 40:34-38

The Tabernacle Ordered to be Built. vs. 1,2,8,9

Exodus from chapter 25 onward, deals chiefly with the building of the tabernacle, its furnishings and the priestly garments. This much space is given to it and its services, for in it, the religious life is to be centralized. God is speaking to Moses on the Mount. He in turn speaks the mind, will and word of God.

The tabernacle was to be built of the freewill offerings of the people (v2). Verses 3-7 tell what was needed. They were to give such things as they had. An offering given gladly, willingly honors God and the cause to which it is given. The spirit in which we give determines the true offering. Chapter 36:5-7 shows the liberal response of the people.

God stated definitely the purpose of the tabernacle in verse 8. It was to be a sanctuary, a holy place, the recognized dwelling place of Jehovah. This verse expresses the underlying thought of all Israel's worship; is the keynote of their religion. Without this sanctuary it would have been difficult to have kept alive the true religion. The tabernacle was for Israel, a meeting-place with Godfulness, the need of cleansing, the approach to God through the blood sacrifice.

God's Promise to Meet and Dwell among the People vs. 43-46

"There I will meet" (v43), at the altar, dedicated as Jehovah's "place of tryst", with the people (vs38-42). The tabernacle, the altar, those who minister in the priest's office are sanctified, set apart for a holy service. The tabernacle with its services and significance—the evidence of His presence with them—shall convince them that He is their God (v46) and pledged to a continued supervision and care of his people.

God's Approval of the Tabernacle vs 34-38

When all was completed, everything in place, when all was ready for His coming, God manifested His presence visibly to the people (v34). God's glory filled the tabernacle. God showed his approval of their labors and sacrifices, and the worship which was to be there entered into. The cloud was the symbol that God had come to dwell with His people. Should God's presence fill our sanctuaries any less today? The Israelites had every encouragement now to make their religion the supreme factor in their national life. Around the tabernacle, as the center of worship, the while congregation assembled. According to the cloud hovering over it, they ordered their journey from day to day (vs36-38). Throughout the years of their wanderings, it spoke to them of God's presence and faithfulness. Israel's religious life centered in the tabernacle worship, was vital to their national welfare. Today nations must give a vital place to religion centered in Christian activities.

Ordination Announcement

The Lord willing, Sister Etta R. Davis of Lansdale, Pa. will be ordained as missionary to China in her home church at Lansdale on Aug. 15, 1937.

Rev. Howard G. Nyce, member of the Board, who lives at Allentown, Pa., will officiate. This will be especially good news to the China workers, who have been waiting for new recruits, and will receive three of them now on the same ship, Jefferson, leaving Seattle on Sept. 11th, because Brother and Sister Jantzen leave then also, and sister Elizabeth Goertz returns with them.

May the Lord protect all four of them, and may the rumors of war in China soon cease. All mission friends are invited to participate in the ordination by intercessory prayer, and to remember them as they go into that country so full of unrest again.

In behalf of the Board,
P. H. Richert, Secr.

APPEAL FROM OUR RELIEF BOARD

It is our duty as Christians, and high time to do something to help bring Relief to the war stricken children in Spain, for their lot is pitiable, in innumerable instances heart-rending. Their homes destroyed, their fathers, and possibly also their mothers, killed; they are wandering about in rags, hungry, sick, not knowing where to go for help and protection. Send all gifts, with requests where and how to be used to the Treasurer of the Relief Board, Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kansas. He will receive and gladly forward your gift to the orphans in Spain, or to Canada, Russia, Mexico, South America. God loves the cheerful giver. John Lichti, Chairman, Relief Board —After instructing a class of young people, Pastor A. M. Fretz of the Deep Run, Pennsylvania, charge had the pleasure, on July 25, of baptizing and receiving into church fellowship at Perkasie, the following young people: Emma Maria Keeler, Verda Grace Myers, Raymond Merle Myers, Wilmer M. Myers. A child, Nancy Esther Myers, of the Lawrence Myers family was consecrated. Rev. Olin Krehbiel, of Grace Church, Lansdale, assisted in the services. Pastor Fretz, always a great friend of the van der Smissen family since their coming to America to take charge of Wadsworth Seminary, had the pleasure of a fraternal visit from Rev. Carl van der Smissen, now 85 years old, on his tour among the Pennsylvania churches.

—The Friendly Church that Helps is the name given the First Church of Philadelphia by its pastor, Rev. J. J. Plenert. From its Sunday Bulletins we gather the following: The Missionary Society had a linen shower for Miss Etta Davis (missionary Candidate) and Wilhelmina Kuyf.—Greetings were extended to Rev. N. B. Grubb, pastor emeritus of the church on his 87th birthday with Psalm 40:5: Many, O Lord, my God are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to usward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I could declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered.

—From "THE HERALD", Upland Calif. we glean that Rev. Hostetler and family are now on their way eastward, visiting enroute the Indian Missions in Arizona and Oklahoma; the Share-Cropper Section in Arkansas and Mississippi, including the Eddy Cooperative Farm at Hillhouse, Miss.; and the TVA area in Tennessee, with Muscle Shoals and Morris Dan. They expect to return the middle of September via Bethel College, Kans., Taos and Santa Fe, New Mexico.—The same source reports the following additions to the Upland Church, July 25: Mrs. Loraine Bellatti Rupp, from First Christian Church, Newton, Kansas; Austin Frank Schneider and Wilson John Rupp from West Zion Church, Moundridge, Kansas; Mrs. Elizabeth Penner Hiebert, from Bethel College Menn. Church; Mrs. Dorcas Hendrickson Dettweiler and Miss Helen Hendrickson, both from the First Brethren Church, La Verne, California.

—The First Mennonite of Berne, Indiana held a Young People's Conference during the first week of August, with Dr. M. R. DeHaan of Grand Rapids, Michigan, as the speaker. For Sunday, Aug. 1, the subjects were: What Delays Christ's Coming? The Key of Revelation. Camping on the Road to Sodom. Onions, Leaks and Garlic. During the week: Seven Laws of Salvation. Faith and Works. The Road of God. The Sin Unto Death. The Analysis of Love. The Chemistry of Calvary. The Chemistry of Light. The Chemistry of Conscience. The Chemistry of Resurrection.

—Donnellson, Iowa.—Dr. and Mrs. Fast visited the Zion Church at Donnellson, Iowa, July 25-27. The addresses were most helpful, giving a clear picture of the work of our Conference.—Corr.

EDITORIALS

THE WORLD HAS THE "JITTERS"—WHY?—Some one has aptly said, The World has the Jitters. It is true. The world is nervous. It is in danger of a nervous breakdown. The reason? The World War between Christian nations, the ruthless Japanese Conquest of Manchukuo, the murderous Italian conquest of Ethiopia, the communistic campaign of atheism, and the red menace generally, the rise of dictatorships with their repressions, unemployment and its demoralization, the civil war in Spain, the Sino-Japanese conflict, with war clouds threatening elsewhere! And what next? A reversion to paganism, barbarism, or something worse. Isn't it all because God has been left out of the picture? A godless man, a godless nation, a godless world had better be in fear and trembling. For God is still in the heavens, still has something to say about human affairs, and likely he is speaking to the nations in the events mentioned. Restore God in his rightful place among the nations, and there is bound to be a change for the better. Much of the unrest and confusion of today is chargeable to the fiasco made by the so-called Christian nations of Europe and America in their treatment of God. Europe has been worshipping at the shrine of militarism, materialism and rationalism. America has forgotten the motto, In God We Trust, stamped on our coins as a constant reminder, put there by the pious founders of our nation. And wherever God is set aside, there fear will enter and reign. It is God, Christ, in the heart, or fear and, eventually, Satan. It has always been thus and always will be. Look at the Children of Israel. It was faith in God—God in the heart, God in the home, God in the nation—or impending doom, either through internal chaos or external foes. "Provide out of all the people able men such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness, and place such over them (the people) to be the rulers. . . . ," Ex. 18: 21, is one requirement for a happier and more stable world. "O that there were such an heart in them (the people) that they would fear me, and keep all my commandments always, that it might be well with them and with their children forever," Deut. 5:29, is another requirement. "If ye will fear the Lord, and serve him, and obey his voice, and not rebel against the Commandment of the Lord, then shall both ye and also the king that reigneth over you continue following the Lord your God," I Sam. 2:30, is still another requirement with promise.

WHY GO TO CHURCH. First, because God established the Sabbath day as a holy day, on which to lay aside all earthly things and cares, to spend the time in meditation upon things spiritual. And the easiest way to do this should be to go to God's house, where He is ready to wait upon us in an especial manner. Second, people or communities that do not go to church are soon found to be going down grade. Third, it isn't true as some people claim, that they can worship God just as well out-of-doors, in the grove, by the river, at the sea-shore, or in the home. The fact is that, while a person may thus get rest and recreation, the average man doesn't get worship in this way. Fourth, we are in a way our brother's keeper, and our regular participation in church worship may be a boon to him and his spiritual life; our absence a hindrance. Fifth, the sermon may not be much, possibly hardly worthwhile, yet, it is usually the best effort of a godly man who is trying hard to shepherd us, who prays for us, and is seriously trying to make our lives better. We ought to be there to show our appreciation. Sixth, at church we have the opportunity to join with others in the great songs of redemption and of praise to Him who brought it, a foretaste of the share we may have some day in the great heavenly chorus. Seventh, meeting fellow Christians, shaking hands with them, and exchanging a friendly word with them is refreshing, stimulating, and makes us just a bit more charitable towards others and their shortcomings. Eighth, it should prove a great inspiration to realize that millions of others the world over worship with us before the throne of God.

A little thing will keep them from the House of God who have no desire to go to it.—Aughey.

BAPTISMS, CONFERENCE BLESSINGS, AND BIBLE SCHOOL REPORT

A. Habegger, Busby, Montana, July 7, 1937

We attended the Northern District Conference held at Bloomfield, Montana. This was the first time we had been able to attend a session of the Northern District Conference and we enjoyed it very much, and were blessed by the messages, and by the personal contacts that were made with former friends and with new friends. Oliver Eaglefeathers from our church and Milton Whiteman from Lame Deer went along with us. Oliver gave a nice report the first Sunday after our return home. He was deeply moved with emotion and could hardly speak at times, because after seeing the way true Christians, young and old, took part at the Conference, he felt so sorry on account of the backwardness of his own people, that in addressing us he could not speak well because he pitied his people so.

Coming back from the Conference, we brought along two more passengers, two ladies to help in the Daily Vacation Bible Schools here on the Reservation. They were Miss Frieda Johnson and Miss Marie Tieszen, both from the Bloomfield church. We had vacation Bible School for two weeks with good attendance.

Summary of the Vacation Bible School

No. of Children attending 1 day or more	66
No. of Children attending two days or more	44
Highest Daily Attendance	38
Lowest Daily Attendance	24
Average Daily Attendance	32
Perfect Attendance	14

This was the third year we have had Daily Vacation Bible School and our attendance was also the best. We were very fortunate to have two consecrated capable helpers. Mrs. Habegger taught the little folks who had never been to school, Miss Tieszen the Primary group, Miss Johnson the Juniors, and I took the older children. A program was given on Friday evening on the last day of the Bible School, and we felt that the effort was very much worth while. The two ladies then went to Lame Deer to help the Petters in a two weeks Bible School there.

Another year we hope that still more will come and still more regularly. The parents have to be educated to the idea also, before the school can be as successful as in truly Christian communities. One widow, Mrs. Littlebear, sent six children every day, three of her own, two grand-children and one relative of hers. As a token of appreciation for such fine co-operation, and for faithfulness right along in sending them to Sunday School, and she herself coming very well to all services and prayer meetings, Mrs. Habegger gave her a surprise in presenting her with a beautiful quilt that was sent by a Mission Sewing Society to this station sometime ago. This presentation was made on the evening, when the program was given.

On May 9th five young people were baptized upon confession of their faith, two boys and three girls, and our daughter Esther. We commit them to the loving protection of our Heavenly Father that by His grace they may be perfected in love and faith and hope according to the will of God.

Godliness With Contentment Is Great Gain

Helen E. Nickel, India

One evening, when I was thinking about the great prospects of a furlough in the homeland, I set out for a walk away from the bungalow. I thought that perhaps I could walk quietly, relax, meditate and pray. Instead it was so hot that I felt tired. The red dust was hanging in the air and almost choked me. The cattle were coming home in the herds and were stirring up the dust more and more. People, too, met me and wished to speak. I felt irritated with much that is part of INDIA.

Then from behind me one of the Christian farmers caught up with me in the road and we exchanged the customary "salaams." Quietly he said to me: "Just now I have been thinking of the goodness and mercy of God." "While I have been thinking about the heat and the dust," I whispered to myself.

Then Garib went on to say that at the time of his baptism he had wanted the missionaries to change his name. He was a bit proud of his new status and resented to think that he should hand down the name, Garib Das, to his children. "You know what it means, misahibiji," he said. I knew that the name meant "a poor servant." Not changed until this day.

Garib continued on, "But I am quite willing now that my children carry that name. I am poor in this world's goods. Everyday we have to work hard to get a sufficient supply of rice. And yet men may call me Garib Das and still I am happy. I am rich with the blessings of God. I am content to work, but I am contented to know that in God's sight I am blessed. My son, who was so recently restored from such a long and serious illness, is well again and preparing hemself for the service of God; my daughter is teaching and is a help in the mission. My family is well provided with food and shelter and I am satisfied."

I thanked him for directing my thoughts to the goodness and mercy of God, and for diverting them from the insignificant little matters which so often made me irritable or dissatisfied.

HOME MISSIONS

W. S. Gottshall, Sec.

The work of the itinerant minister in Canada is hard and difficult in the winter season, weather and roads are not favorable to travelling, yet the Brethren are faithful in their work. The people often live isolated, far apart and seldom receive a visit from the travelling minister who conducts devotions for them. They therefore appreciate it all the more, when a minister arrives where several families live in a group; they then congregate in a suitable house and remain the whole day and the preacher holds services, and Bible Studies and does personal work and administers the Lord's Supper.

This work keeps the families in touch with the church, but it is very exhausting for the minister for it costs much selfdenial. Brother Franz Enns had a light stroke last February while preaching, which weakened him somewhat, but the Lord helped so that he could continue his work again.

Brother J. P. Klaassen writes: Our work and problems are often the same, but the question that is most frequently asked is: "What must I do to be saved." The answer is not hard to find. We have the most delightful experience at the bedside of the sick and while conducting catechetical instruction. This year I asked the members of the class to write down after each meeting what they remembered and at the next meeting the reports that the catechumens had written were read. This causes them to be attentive and they can later refer to their notes. In Winnipeg we had 25 candidates for baptism, the services were held in a large English church, at which services it was estimated there were about 800 present. The groups of this district lying farthest apart are more than 300 miles removed from each other. We often regret that we can not do more for the cause of missions, but we are burdened on account of the debt on our church. Should more opportunities for earning money offer themselves, and our people get a good harvest, then it will soon be better.

On June 2 Brother Bahnmann returned to his work at Swift Current, but the work is made more burdensome because of weakened physical conditions and extreme weather and strong opposition. He writes: "On June 23 we had our general annual congregational meeting at which five evangelists were chosen. It was my endeavor during the vacation season to arrange for Summer Bible Schools. This work is very necessary and well received. I believe I have secured five teams which will go out, two by two, and open such schools in July for a two weeks term. Building churches is also in operation. In Wymark the plans are about completed, and in Swift Current the basement for the church which is 28x60 is ready and, by the time this reaches you, the church will be in place. It was brought into town, a distance of fifteen miles from the country district. The $2000 appropriated by the Home Mission Board is not sufficient to finish both these churches. Since we have no harvest but a total crop failure, we can not think of finishing the churches and conducting the Bible School for winter, without help from the outside. We hope the Lord will find ways and means and provide so we can continue to build His kingdom. We trust in Him. He is faithful."

GIRLS HOME WINNIPEG.—Sister Epp reports: —On the 27th of April we had our combined festival with the serving Girls of the "Bruedergemeinde". This is the fourth year that we had such a combined festival and had a program together. Nearly all the girls from our Home were there and so we were a large group. We were especially glad that Elder Toews could also be present. At present many girls are at home. Their employers do not like it that they must get along without their help for the summer, but we find it advantageous to have the girls go home for the summer; they do not become quite so independent as those who remain in the city. During the month of June five of our girls were married. On June 26 we had a wedding here in the Home. The bride has no parental home any more, and so her older sister who is also employed here, prepared everything for the wedding. In this way our Home must in many things be a substitute for the parental home. The girls appreciate the Home very much. They like to come here and pay promptly. Lately one of our girls took sick with lung trouble and is at present in King Edwards Hospital. We hope she will get well again with God's help.

BEQUESTS

During the past year the Home Mission Board has received several Bequests which the Friends of Missions have ordered in their Wills. Such remembrance of our work is highly appreciated by the Board and enables the Board to extend the work. We would like to encourage others who have means and a heart for Home Missions, to remember Home Missions when they make their Testament. The Conference Field Secretary, Brother H. J. Fast, has reported about several fields which he found while travelling through the churches, in which such work should be done. But the Board can only take up the work when the means flow into the treasury. For all such support the Board wants to thank the donors very heartily.

Schools and Education

New Bible Courses

New arrangements for practical Bible study have been made in Bethel College. Courses for Christian Workers, Church and S. S. Teachers, Missionaries, and Ministers will be given for High School graduates and others who qualify.

The members of the faculty have a well rounded out training and many years of experience. The distinctly religious instruction will be taken care of by Edmund G. Kaufman, A.M., B.D., Ph.D., President of Bethel College; A. Warkentin, A.M., Ph.D., Graduate of the Baptist Theological Seminary, Hamburg, Germany; Amos E. Kreider, B.D., formerly Professor at the Witmarsum Theological Seminary; P. S. Goertz, M.A., B.D., Ph.D., Dean of the College; Sister Frieda Kaufman, Sister in charge of the Bethel deaconess Hospital, Newton, Kansas.

Courses in Church Music, Psychology, Social Science, Natural Science, and English will be given by the following faculty members: W. H. Hohmann, Mus.M.; P. E. Schellenberg, Ph.D.; E. L. Harshbarger, Ph.D.; A. P. Friesen, Ph.D.; J. E. Linscheid, Ph.D.

With the proposed Bible Courses the college strives to meet a long felt need in our churches, and our sincere prayer is that God may guide and direct the efforts in helping young people who have given their life to the Lord to get a better preparation for serving Him.

The Effective Sunday School

Daniel J. Unruh

IV. INSTRUCTION IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Sunday School is easily divided into two groups, the instructors and the instructed. How effective this instruction is depends upon certain important factors, several of which present themselves to us in the form of a few related questions. The questions are these: Who should teach? What is to be taught? How to teach? Whom to teach?

1. WHO SHOULD TEACH?

A great teacher came to Jesus one night and addressed Him as "a teacher come from God", undoubtedly seeking counsel concerning the all-important subject of religious education. Jesus proceeds to tell him that the prime factor in the process, as far as the Kingdom of God is concerned, is to enter in, or to become a member thereof, and to have a spiritual insight into the things pertaining thereto, this necessitates a new birth. The first and foremost requirement of a Sunday School teacher therefore is, that the teacher be "born again".

Space does not permit more than a brief enumeration of the essential qualifications of a Sunday School teacher. They are:

1. The teacher must have a spiritual endowment consisting of a new life in Christ, and faith in the entire Holy Scripture.

2. The teacher should have a natural endowment, sometimes called a good personality, winsome, sympathetic, agreeable and neat in appearance, with some teaching ability.

3. The teacher should be a person of good intelligence, not necessarily with a higher education, but one who is constantly learning and is progressive in method and thought.

4. He should have a working knowledge of the Bible.

5. He should be thoroughly consecrated to the Lord and to the teaching ministry.

6. He should be a lover of souls, sowing, watering, and cultivating the 'seed of the Word', thus winning the scholar, both old and young, to the Lord Jesus Christ.

II WHAT IS TO BE TAUGHT?

Quickly we reply, the Bible. Yet not all so-called Bible teaching is true to that sacred book. Some Sunday schools use extra-biblical materials and some use unscriptural material for helps. A consecrated teacher may be able to inspire more faith in God with extra-biblical lessons than a worldly teacher with a Bible in the hand, but that does not argue for the advantage of extra-biblical lessons. It does, however, argue well for the advantage of having consecrated Christian teachers.

The instruction should be true to the Word of God. The lesson helps should be true to the authority, authenticity and complete reliability of the Scripture. It is impossible to be true to the teachings of the Bible if we do not believe in the accuracy of the Bible in its entirety. The instruction should emphasize the great cardinal truths of the Christian faith and avoid dogmatic, social and economic teachings "after the rudiments of the world."

III. HOW TO TEACH?

The teaching in the Sunday School should be pedigogically sound. There should be greater effort to do this work right. Teacher Training classes should be encouraged and maintained wherever possible. A few general principles may be stated here. Proceed from the known to the unknown. Use language familiar to the pupil. Adapt the teaching to the need of the pupil. Secure the pupils cooperation. Hold the pupils attention. Repeat and review to retain previous impression.

IV. WHOM TO TEACH?

This is only another way of calling attention to the fact that the teacher must know human nature but, more specifically, he must know his pupils. The teacher should learn to know their problems, their interests, their talents, their hobbies, their environment, their fears, their hopes and their aspirations. Know whom you are to teach and make every effort to understand and to appreciate them.

Summing it all up into one, the answer to the question, What makes a successful Sunday School? is summed up in a word 'THE TEACHER'.

— ECHOES FROM THE EDUCATION NUMBER.—We are sorry that lack of space prevented: 1. Bringing of Dr. C. H. Smith's splendid article on, Christopher Dock—Mennonite School Master. It appears in this number. 2. The use of some "cuts". Those that were available would have taken too much space. If we might make some suggestions for future issues on this phase of conference work, we would hint that the smaller schools, academies, institutes, be also briefly represented; and why not also give some glimpses of other Mennonite colleges, like Goshen, Tabor, Hesston, etc.? Our papers now annually bring two special issues on the work of MISSIONS, one on SCHOOLS and EDUCATION, and if any of the other conference boards should desire to feature their activities and problems in a special issue, or a partial one, I think the Board of Publication would grant them the opportunity as it has done with the boards mentioned.

Doctrinal --- Devotional

PROPHECY

C. H. Suckau

A widespread but unwarranted objection to the study of prophecy seems to be due to the fact that God's program for the culmination of our dispensation, as is foretold in the prophetic scriptures, and as is borne out by history, conflicts with the fond and cherished hopes of those who have set for themselves a program of worldbetterment and universal peace for this age.

The study or neglect of the prophetic scriptures will be largely determined by the view one holds in regard to Christ's second coming, as being premillenial or postmillennial.

Postmillennialists believe that, the church is to establish Christ's millennial Kingdom in the world. Well-meaning motives govern the wishes and efforts of such Christians. It is their desire, alike with premillennialists, that Christ's reign of righteousness be established on earth. The difference between the two groups lies herein that, postmillennialists are certain that Christ is using and will use the church as the direct agency for bringing this about. It is naturally difficult for them to concede, as premillennialists understand and maintain that, Christ's Kingdom will be set up, not by the church, but by the Lord Jesus Christ Himself when He returns, and that, preceding His return, the purifying judgements predicted in Rev. 11 to 18 are to prepare the world for the new order—THE MILLENNIUM.

Ignorance in, or lack of emphasis on any line of biblical truth is and has been the great cause for the presence of all sorts of sects and isms in the church throughout all the ages.

Do we acquit ourselves well if we neglect the study and teaching of prophecy because it conflicts with our world program? Can we say with Paul "I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God?" Dare we ignore and neglect "The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave unto him, to shew unto his servants THINGS WHICH MUST SHORTLY COME TO PASS?"

The Jews made a grievous mistake in ignoring the prophecies regarding the first coming of Christ, because His coming in humility did not fit into their program of that day. May no one neglect the study of the "MORE SURE WORD OF PROPHECY" in which we have God's promise and revelation of Christ's second coming in glory, because this does not fit into man's program for this day!

GOD CONDEMNS INTEMPERANCE

Lev. 10:1,2,4-11; Prov. 31:4,5; Is. 28:1-8; Rom. 14:21.

Topic: Why Beverage Alcohol is a Social Foe

Introduction

Our lesson scripture shows that alcohol is a social foe, making people unfit for giving the best service they are capable of, and inevitably bringing evil results. With the more complex civilization of our present day, alcohol becomes an increasingly greater menace, social enemy.

God's Ban on all Use of Wine and Strong Drink vs. 1,2,8-10

The two elder sons of Aaron had just been installed into the divine office of priesthood. Definite instructions as to the ritual had been given (chaps. 6,8). Seemingly, while at least partially intoxicated, they made the fatal error of offering "strange fire before the Lord." They considered self-will as of equal authority with the command of God. This brought swift and terrible punishment (v2). Departing from the divinely commanded order of worship in this early day in the nation's life under God, was a sin of presumptuous self-will. The people must learn early that "to obey is better than sacrifice."

God very definitely forbids the use of all strong drink (v9) to His people and in particular to leaders in worship. God did not—does not—recognize being intoxicated as a valid excuse for transgression. We must distinguish between holy and unholy (v10). This is good common sense—a lesson we still need to learn. Worship demands the clearest perceptions of the mind. God's ministers must be holy. All Christians are priests (1 Peter 2:5) and should approach God daily. That should definitely settle the question of total abstinence for all Christians. Rulers should be an example to their people, above reproach in conduct, clear-headed in judgment (Prov. 31:4,5).

Drink Destroys Ephraim Is. 28:1-4

Isaiah prophecies against Samaria, the capital city —"crown of pride," of Ephrain. This was soon fulfilled in her overthrow by the Assyrians. Samaria was beautifully situated, but with prosperity and wealth came self-indulgence, luxury, drinking—her outstanding sin being drunkenness—which sin Isaiah especially denounced. "A mighty and strong one," the Assyrians became God's instrument of justice when His long-suffering patience was exhausted. Samaria of "glorious beauty," became a "fading flower" through being "overcome with wine" (v14). Wine, not distilled liquor, caused Ephriam's downfall. Our own Federal government tempts—shall we say, urges —people to drink intoxicating liquor by making it easy to obtain it. In short is doing much to make us a nation of drinkers. We should learn a lesson from Ephraim.

Prophets "out of the way" through drink vs. 5-8

Isaiah here speaks against the drunken leaders of Jerusalem—Judah "residue of his people" (v5). Judah falls into worse excesses than Ephraim, even the religious leaders (v7) "priests and prophets" were "swallowed up of wine." No community can well hope to rise higher than its religious leaders. A very loathesome picture is given in v. 8. Judah went out of her way through drink and followed Ephraim into captivity. Will America heed the warning?

Nuggets of Truth

Christianity and drink simply WILL NOT GO TOGETHER.

Wine crowded out righteousness in Ephraim—its nature has not changed.

Christians must consider the effect of their drinking upon others. There is no escaping this responsibility.

When wine enters the door, discretion flies out of the window.

Liquor plays no favorites, it will enslave all. Total abstinence is the only safe course.

STEPS OF EXPERIENCE IN A BELIEVER'S LIFE

Phil. 3:9-11

A PRELIMINARY STEP: Before building a house, it is necessary to prepare the place where the house is to be built: old rubbish must be removed, old ruins leveled down. So also Paul in the first part of the chapter, shows us things that he had to get out of the way, in order that he might SEE CHRIST, whom to see in faith is life eternal. It was "the righteousness which is the law" that stood in the way, and the Jewish religion, generally, which hindered him from grasping the simple Truth as it is in Christ Jesus. With many of us it is, perhaps, the church ceremonials: joining the church, with all that it involves; living a good moral life, etc.

THE FIRST STEP FORWARD: This is, "to be found in Him" (v.9), or "to know Him" (v.10) as the only Savior of mankind, and to have experienced Him as our personal Savior; this is the redeeming experience. Not know Him only from hearing of Him, as very many knew Christ on earth (the devils even knew Him), or have Him as an example merely, but have a living experience in our hearts!

THE SECOND STEP, or EXPERIENCE: according to this passage, is to know in a living way, "the power of His resurrection." We are "risen with Him" by faith, into a resurrection life, into a newness of life," "dead to sin, dead to self, dead to the world," etc. This is our practical holiness! Holiness means, in the first place, separation, and it also means full consecration to a life of service for Him, and for Him only. It further means a growing in holiness—ever more like Him: until we shall see Him fully as He is, and then be perfectly like Him (1 John 3:2).

Having been fully consecrated to Him, we then are ready—and not before—for the next step.

THE THIRD STEP, or ATTAINMENT: to know something of "the fellowship of His suffering," "suffering of Christ." Read Col. 1:24, which speaks not of the sufferings for the sin of the world (that "cup" he had to drink alone); but it speaks of "suffering for YOU" His body, for whose sins Christ had suffered and died already. Paul here speaks of the suffering in connection with the "perfection of the body of Christ." In Paul's "labors in the Gospel," there he experienced his great suffering, "even unto death." A German translation of Col. 1:24 reads "suffering IN Christ," which is not literally but biblically correct; therefore only such who are already IN HIM can be "partakers of his sufferings." We are called to be fellow-sufferers with Him, I John 3:16.

THE FOURTH AND FINAL STEP: In connection with this (v.11) I shall raise a few questions, in order to cause deeper study on the part of the reader:

1. Is this the so-called "general" resurrection? Or the resurrection spoken of in a general way? It is expected that eventually everybody will be resurrected some day; and there is no choice in the matter?

Note: This passage is more correctly translated by "out- resurrection," i. e. a resurrection "from among" the dead. See Rev. 20:4-6.

2. If this refers to the "first" resurrection, is it altogether unconditional on the part of man? What about the phrase, "if by any means I might attain, etc?" (v. 11). Does not Paul here indicate that he must earnestly strive towards a high goal? See Luke 20:35, which speaks of worthiness also. Note also the words in the following, vv. 12, 13, 14 in our chapter: "following after," "reaching forth," "pressing forward."

3. Does this indicate a "partial rapture", so-called? In Rom. 8:17, is not "entering into Glory" conditioned by "suffering with Him?" This seems to be the same condition that we have in vv. 10 and 11.

These questions are being asked not for the purpose of opening up a controversy, but only to stimulate "searching the Scriptures" and for helping one another towards a better understanding of some deeper things.

That we have a serious matter before us here, of that there is no doubt.

Christopher Dock--Mennonite Educator

C. H. Smith

Professor of History, Bluffton College

The Mennonite schoolmaster, Christopher Dock, who because he was found dead one evening after school hours beside his desk in the attitude of prayer, was called the "Pious Schoolmaster of the Skippack" by one of his admirers, was the most noted of all the early pioneer school teachers of colonial Pennsylvania.

Not much is known of the early life of Dock except that in 1714 at an early age he migrated with his father from somewhere in southern Germany to southeastern Pennslyvania, and soon afterwards alternated the calling of schoolteacher with that of farming among the Mennonite country folk of Montgomery county. The last thirty years of his life were spent entirely as teacher, for the most part in two communities, Salford and Skippack. So successful was he in his chosen work that he was invited by Christopher Sauer, the well known Germantown printer, to commit his methods to print for the benefit of his fellow teachers. Dock wrote the treatise, but modestly requested that its publication be deferred until after his death, lest he might be charged with the desire to win the praises of men. And so it was not until 1770, twenty years after the pamphlet had been written, after both the writer and the pioneer printer had been gathered to their fathers, that it appeared in print on the press of Christopher Sauer Jr., who had inherited the famous Sauer printing establishment and who had at one time been a pupil of Docks, under the title of "SCHULORDNUNG".

The Schulordnung is not an abstract discussion of the fine spun theories of educational philosophy, but rather a practical treatise on how to interest the children, how to inculcate within them a love of God and respect for their fellow men. Dock knew nothing about psychology and pedagogy under those names, but he did know a good deal about practical human nature; he had a deep love for the children under his care, and was endowed with an unusual amount of common sense—qualities perhaps still the most fundamental in the modern successful teacher of today. The pamphlet contains many a suggestion on the practical art of teaching school that could still be used to advantage by many of the graduates of our highly specialized training schools.

The treatise consists largely of answers to questions which the elder Sauer had proposed regarding Dock's methods. To the question, how he receives his children and how he maintains discipline in the school he replies, he meets the children with a friendly handshake, and asks them whether they will be obedient children. Together with much that is today obsolete, of course, Dock introduced much that is recognized as sound in theory and practise. He believed in rewarding diligence and industry, and in securing the cooperation of the parents in encouraging the children to learn, although the type of parental help was not quite like that advocated by modern Parent-Teachers associations. As soon as the child had reached the Ab stage in his career, the father owed it a penny, and the mother had to boil it two eggs. Very little time evidently was given for play during the day. Idleness was still regarded as the Devils most fruitful workshop. There seemingly was no definitely appointed time for opening. As the children straggled in, after the teacher had first satisfied himself that all had been washed and combed, those present would read from the New Testament for the first exercise; and after all had arrived the work of the day was begun with a song and the Lords prayer, all kneeling for the prayer. One hour was given for dinner; but since children were likely to misuse this time, according to Dock, the school master read to them from the Old Testament. Most of the sparetime devoted by the school boys of today to baseball and prisoner's base was spent in reading or in listening to the reading of the Bible by the Mennonite boys of two hundred years ago. There are perhaps few teachers of the present who would recommend this practise in its entirety.

Dock also believed in appealing to the pride of his children as an incentive to good work. The poorest reader in the New Testament class, which was the advanced reading class, had to go the foot of the bench. The last one was always designated as a "lazy" pupil. In the elementary classes the child that learned its lessons well received a cipher on the hand marked with chalk. When one had three mistakes all the rest cried out "faul" (lazy). "This," the schoolmaster says, "does more to make them study than a continual dread of the rod." If the child that had failed did not correct its mistakes before the close of the day, the other children might carry the word "faul" home with them. If on the other hand the child corrected its mistakes the word "fleissig" (industrious) was called out by all.

In his methods of discipline Dock was perhaps typical of all colonial school masters, but yet he understood human nature well enough to know that each case needed separate treatment, and that the rod had decided limitations as a corrective for all the faults of the children under his care. "A slap of the hand" he says, "and the birch rod may keep wickedness from manifesting itself, but it can not change the heart." Speaking of the prevailing bad habits among the children of the day among which he includes swearing and cursing, a vice usually contracted from some older person; lying, "an old time sin since Adam"; stealing, pride and quarreling, and the best method of dealing with them Dock says:

"Concerning the means to prevent these evil growths from getting the upper hand, I see clearly that it is not in the power of man to destroy the root in the ground. God alone through the strength of His Holy Spirit must give His blessing. Still it is the duty of the preacher and elders, and parents, as well as the school masters, first to themselves and neighbors and fellow men, and to the young, to work as much as they are able through God's mercy, not only to make this stained coat hateful, but that it may be taken off."

The last question discussed in the Schulordnung is the important one, how to secure the love and respect of the children for their teacher. Here again Dock shows himself the born teacher. "I have a great love for the children," he says, "a grace from God, otherwise it would be a great burden to be among the pupils."

Among other commendable innovations introduced by this pioneer schoolmaster into his schools were the use of the blackboard, and the practise of letter writing between the children of different schools.

The religious tone of this as of all rural schools of the time in Pennyslvania was high. The Testaments, Old and New, were used as texts, and were made the basis for both the reading and writing classes. Although Dock was a Mennonite, and taught in Mennonite meeting houses, yet he had pupils from other denominations. Even though he may not have stressed catechisms and creeds, yet as seen his teaching was decidedly religious. He read to his pupils from the Bible, sang religious songs, opened each day with prayer, made lists of questions and answers from the Scriptures wherein they were taught the "fear of God"; and each evening, the school roll before him, he prayed that his injustice or neglect of anyone be forgiven; that on the morrow he might do the best for each and all. And so it seems quite fitting that, failing to return home one evening from the school room, his friends should find him on his knees, back of his desk, dead; having given his last thoughts no doubt to his beloved pupils, and praying was his custom that he might be true to his calling and realize more fully his obligations to those placed in his charge.

In addition to his work as a teacher Christopher Dock composed many devotional songs for children some of which are still in use; and he also wrote "One Hundred Rules of Conduct for Children" in which he describes minutely what should be the behavior of children in all hours of the day, under every circumstance—in the morning, at rising, at bedtime, at the table, in church and on the street. These rules are addressed to his pupils, and no doubt furnished the basis for a course in good manners in his schools, a course that might be given with profit in many of our schools of today.

The Schulordnung was put through a second edition the same year as its original publication. A third edition was printed in 1861 by Bishop Jacob Nold of Columbiana, Ohio. It was perhaps only among antiquarians. It is of some historical significence, however, since it is perhaps the oldest treatise of which we have any record on the art of teaching in our country. Today no history of early education in America is complete without some reference at least to the work of Christopher Dock, the "Pious Schoolmaster of the Skippack."

Golden Jubilee Festival

Henderson, Nebraska, a thriving Mennonite village and community, is planning to celebrate Pioneer's Home Coming August 19 and 20. A Historical Marker, erected at the site where the immigrant house once stood will be unvailed. A large historical parade depicting the phenomenal developments of the life of the people that have taken place since the arrival of the first settlers, a pageant entitled THE COMING OF OUR FATHERS, directed by H. R. Epp, musical concerts and addresses by prominent speakers are some of the features of this Golden Jubilee Festival.

What Shall Be The Christian Attitude On Strikes?

Brief analysis of trade-unionism

The trade-union movement began in Great Britain in the 19th century. At first it was legislated against by Parliament because it threatened the profits of the business class. When the steam-driven machine was introduced, and the workers ceased to work with their own tools, the new machine form of industry made the worker a part of the machine. With his own hand tools he could no longer compete with the machine, and he had no alternative but to sell his labor to the owner of the machine. The worker's ownership of his tools had given rise to the guild; the worker's loss of his tools gave rise to the trade-union. The trade-union movement became necessary when labor became a commodity.

Had it not been for trade-unionism the workers today, probably, would be laboring fourteen hours a day, women and children would be found in industry in greater numbers than now, the workers would be receiving wages just sufficient to maintain an animal existence, and the wealth of the owning class would have accumulated to an amount to stagger imagination. On the one hand would exist a great class of workers denied schooling and the common decencies of life; on the other, a great class of owners of property, greater and wealthier than the present owning class, and supporting arrays of police and soldiers "to maintain order." Labor without organization works in peonage. It was out of that condition that unionism lifted the world. There was no other effective force at work to save labor from degradation.

We have to thank trade-unionism for saving humanity from slavery. The world owes a debt of gratitude to those pioneers who advocated organization among workmen. Brave men with vision broke the laws of their country and advocated unionism, and sometimes they were bold enough to go out on strike. They went to prison. They were deported to the penal colonies. They died like dogs in the filthy vessels that bore them overseas. England persecuted and deported an army of the best men in the kingdom. This "criminal class," that was sent to Australia and New Zealand to get them out of the way because they were "dangerous agitators," soon built up a civilization in those distant islands which has astonished the world. Trade-unionism has ever been a powerful and civilizing influence.

Labor needs the right to organize. The "anti-union" campaign which is promoted by the great financial groups is a dangerously reactionary enterprise. Abolition of joint bargaining, carried to its conclusion, would deny labor the right of collective agreement and place the lone working man, woman, and child at the mercy of the aggregations of organized employers owning the means of subsistence.

The cooperative movement is naturally close to the trade-union movement. When the workers by bitter struggle secured the right to organize and then by bitter struggle again won the right to strike, they made a significant discovery. After the state had been compelled to permit these two steps, some workers observed that the problem of labor still was not solved. Although the employer at first resisted paying increase of wages or granting shorter hours or making any concession to the workers, still, when the concession was made, the workers found that the employer did not pay for it. He added the increased cost of producing the commodity to the selling price, and passed it along to be paid by the consumers. And since most of the consumers are working people, it was the workers themselves who paid much of the increase in their wages. In the early part of the nineteenth century, when the working people realized this fact, the modern cooperative movement was born.

We have seen that trade-unionism was incomplete without organization at the point of consumption to supplement organization at the point of production. So while the trade-union movement was established to secure for the worker the best returns for his labor, the cooperative movement was established to secure for the worker the best returns for the fruits of his labor. The first gives the worker more means with which to purchase, and the second gives him more purchasing power with his means. The two movements are complementary. — James P. Warbasse, Cooperative Democracy. Reviewed by M. K. F.

THE DIGNITY OF WORK

C. E. Topic for September 5
(Consecration Meeting)

Reading and Meditation

M., Aug. 30. The law of labor. Exodus 20:9-11
T., Aug. 31. Wealth by labor vs. cunning. Prov. 13:11
W., Sept. 1. Work vs. talk. Prov. 14:23-24
T., Sept. 2. Egypt's labor troubles. Exod. 5:1-9
F., Sept. 3. Roots of labor war. Jas. 5:1-6
S., Sept. 4. Oppression breeds revolt. Exod. 5:10-19

S., Sept. 5. The dignity of honest work. I Cor. 3:13-14; Eph. 4:28; 2 Thess. 3:10-13

Problems and Projects

1. Read the article in this issue, "The Christian's Attitude Toward Strikes," and see what hints it holds as to the basic causes of labor unrest in our country.

2. "We have too many people who live without working, and we have altogether too many who work without living." Can these two classes of people live together side by side in the same community permanently in abiding peace? What are the implications of this statement for a Mennonite people gradually changing from an agricultural to an industrial group, as they are in some areas?

3. If honest work is dignified, what is the meaning of such expressions as "the rights of labor," or "the rights of the laboring classes"?

4. What are the rights and duties of (a) the employer; (b) the employee, in modern economic life?

5. What basic principles of right living with respect to economic relationships did the Mennonites in pre-war Russia fail to observe?

6. In what respects were the Israelites, laboring in the brick kilns of Egypt, like or unlike, modern labor groups seeking to escape the oppression of a conscienceless industry?

7. What are the basic Christian attitudes of a worthy workman, regardless of the type of work in which he is engaged?

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

BROTHERS AT WORK

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Sept. 5, 1937

For Daily Meditation

Aug. 30. Honest labor. 2 Thess. 3:7-12
Aug. 31. The first labor strike. Ex. 5:1-9
Sept. 1. A crafts' union starts a riot. Acts 19:23-29
Sept. 2. Conscientious workers. Col. 3:22-25
Sept. 3. Oppressors of the poor. Jas. 5:1-6
Sept. 4. Faithful workers. Matt. 25:14-30
Sept. 5. Topic—Brothers at work. Gen. 4:9-10; 1 John 4:20-21

Something to add Interest

1. Because we usually know the condition of labor only in the particular place where we live, it will add interest and value of your discussion to make a special study of workers in many different occupations. Assign to different members the task of reporting on the work in the following industries: fishing, mining, lumber mills, factories of different kinds, railroads, cattle ranges, farming, etc. The following outline could be used: Find out as much as you can about the workers in (one of the industries). 1. Conditions of environment. 2. Hours of work. 3. Compensation. 4. Hardships. 5. Opportunities for service to mankind.

2. Interviewing successful workers. It will be enlightening and inspiring to the young people to interview a number of successful workers in different vocations in your community. Let them ask: 1. How many years were spent in preparation for the work. 2. How many hours of actual work are put on the job daily. 3. How much time is spent in advancement in the field of service.

Suggested Songs:

"To the Work", "Ready to Serve", "Here Am I, Send Me"

Your Worship Service

"Jesus Calls Us", sung or played
Scripture reading: Col. 3:22-25
"My Master Was A Worker," sung or read
Prayer by the leader
"O Master Let Me Walk With Thee," Stanzas 1,3,4 Offering: "Freely ye have received, freely give."

The Leaders Part

As you study this topic form a definite purpose in your mind for this meeting which the study of this topic can accomplish for this group. Strive so to plan and direct the meeting that it shall be achieved. Use the scripture passages Gen. 4:9-10 and I John 4:20-21 to bring out the wrong and right attitude toward our fellow workers. Give illustrations of both types.

Questions You Will Want to Answer

1. What are some motives for work? Do you consider them all worthy? Why not?

2. Some people work for money. How does it interfere with the best work in teaching, for example? What should be our motive in wanting to get money?

3. Some people strive to attain perfection? When is this a worthy motive?

4. When is it right to work to attain power? Illustrate with a school election.

5. Someone has said, "Work was never popular until Christ came." He said "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." How did Jesus make work popular?

6. What is the Christian way to divide work in the home? Should it be equal? Give reasons for your answer.

7. When does work become drudgery? How can you keep it from becoming so, dishwashing for example?

8. Is there any work that a Christian cannot do? How can work be made worship?

THANK GOD FOR WORK

Thank God for work
That makes the muscles tire
Is dimmed in sleep—
Till life's devouring fire
Rejuvenating hours
That recreate our powers,
Our visions keep.

Thank God for work!
For will to do our share,
For strength our load to bear
With steady heart,
For sight to sight to see the need
Of swift and helping deed
To do our part.

Thank God for work!
To know there's something done,
To know there's something won
By our own might.
Joy of accomplishment
Man-earned and heaven-sent
Be this our right.

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

For many of you September means a new beginning in your endeavor work. Perhaps, in these closing days of August you are making a rough picture of the new year's work. I wish we might have each leader's picture in the rough. It would be a help to the rest of us. Now is a splendid time to check up and work. What have we done in the past? What are our weak points? Where have we failed completely? What do we want to accomplish? What shall our objectives be?

Each meeting will have its own purpose, but over the whole year's work are there specific aims we wish to reach? The following seem to me of vital importance:

1. That we "let the word of Christ dwell richly." Col. 3:16.

2. That we lead the individual heart to the Way, the Truth, the Life. John 14:6.

3. That we teach the principles of our faith. I Peter 3:15.

4. That we develop attitudes of love, devotion and sacrifice toward all phases of our conference work.

5. That we lead each child to feel his personal responsibility in the work of the Church by making him a contributor in some way or other, to our mission work.

6. That we lead the Junior to become a reader of his portion of our conference publications. (Junior Messenger, Mennonite, News and Notes.)

It is with these objectives in view that the new term's program suggestions will be submitted.

GENERAL OUTLINE FOR SEPTEMBER

September 5: Looking unto Jesus
September 12: Looking unto Jesus the Saviour of the World
September 19: Looking unto Jesus the Lamb of God
September 26: Looking unto Jesus the Coming One

Verse for the month: Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me hath everlasting life. John 6:47.

Song for the month: I Will Sing the Wondrous Story. Verses 1, 2, 5

Program Suggestions for September 5, 1937

(Specially prepared for those who have not had endeavor meetings through the summer)

Registration. This always takes time. The meeting could be announced fifteen minutes earlier to care for this. What will your registration be? There are still a few weeks left to go about quietly, to put your hand on a junior here and a junior there. Invite them to come. Tell them why they should. Perhaps a heart to heart talk with the parents would win another junior for your group.

The Aim for the evening is to unite a group of juniors; to lead them to see the value of endeavor work, the help that it can be in their lives and others; to present to the group definite aims for the year; to discuss with them a specific mission project, and to lead them to understand that "all good and perfect gifts come from above." The blessing of the year will depend upon our coming to Him, our asking of Him, our receiving, and our obedience. This is a difficult aim to carry out in one hour's time. It will take much careful and prayerful preparation

Opening Service in song, scripture and prayer.

1. Song service
2. Scripture: John 15:4,5,7,10,11,12
3. Thoughts on the scripture read by a junior speaking on: "How Jesus shows His love in these verses"
4. Prayer of thanksgiving for such love
5. Sing in unison song of the month:

"I will sing the wondrous story
Of the Christ who died for me"

Before the singing, read verses 1,2,5 with the group. Teach them to love the song

Leaders' minutes
1. Discuss the value of endeavor work
2. Reveal the aims for the year. Have them ready on a blackboard
3. Discuss the mission project
4. Announce business meeting
5. Lead to the speaker's thought, the need of divine guidance and presence

Heart-talks by guest: "Looking unto Jesus." Use Hebrews 12:12: Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and perfecter of our faith.

Verse of the month: read from the blackboard and repeat in unison

Closing song: "I need Thee Every Hour", and prayer

To The Junior

Matthew 6:19-34

Far away on the hillside
Where once the Savior walked,
Where the wavelets murmured softly
As He daily healed and talked.

There half-hid in the grasses,
As though listening to the tide,
In purest raiment glistening,
Grew the lilies side by side.

When Jesus saw the blossoms
He smiled, and pointing, said,
"See, He who clothes the lilies
Counts the hairs upon your head.

"Naught can equal them in beauty
Though they toil not, neither spin.
Yet kings in all their glory
No greater praise could win.

"Let not your heart be troubled;
Your burdens cast on Me;
If in truth you are my servants,
The truth shall make you free."

Be ye white as are the lilies,
Be ye pure as is the snow,
Cleansed in Calvary's fountain
Which for the world doth flow.

A New Book on WAR PEACE AMITY

WAR PEACE AMITY, by REV. H. P. KREHBIEL,

Of books that treat of the curse of war and the need of its abolition and of the need for peace there is no end. Some of these naturally venture to suggest ways and means by which peace may be brought about and war made impossible. But many of us have been looking for a treatise that would go to the root of this war-peace problem and show us that the peace to be aspired to cannot be a man-made peace, but it must be a peace such as God intended as the only cure for man's ills. Such a book has recently come off the press with the title and by the author given above.

The book consists of six parts:

In PART I, the author shows that man is by nature selfish, combative, rebellious; that his trail through history has been bloody, and that he has invented many reasons to justify war.

In PART II, he depicts the dawn of peace, the religious peace movement through the early centuries to the time of Jesus, the far-reaching meaning of Christ's teaching of peace, including the love life of the early Christians.

In PART III, he pictures the conflict between light and darkness, how Christianity as the handmaid of the state-church expanded while peace was eclipsed and Christ's cause was shackled.

In PART IV, he recounts the struggle between Church and State, in which the Church, with only partial success, attempted to effect her separation from the State.

In PART V, he shows the progress toward peace and particularly the Christian peace movement in recent times.

In PART VI, the portion on ANITY, he brings out the real purrpose of his book, that man-made peace will not avail, that Christ must come before Caesar, and that it is only as Christians the world over will follow Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace, and go with him all the way, by keeping all his commandments, that peace on earth will be increasingly realized.

The book is well made. It is printed in large, clear type, on good quality white paper, durably bound in brown cloth, and contains 350 pages.

The book is invaluable for:

1. Individual reading and meditation. Every earnest minded Christian and lover of peace should read it.

2. Reading in the family, at the fireside, with the children and young people taking part in it.

3. Study in C. E. and Y. P. societies, teacher training classes, peace groups and organizations.

The price for single copies is $2.00. Ordered in lots of a dozen or more, considerable reduction will be allowed.

CORRESPONDENCE

SECOND CHURCH, BEATRICE, NEBR.

Dear Mennonite:

It gives great pleasure to write a few lines about our community in Beatrice, Nebr. The Lord has blessed us in different ways, we have heard many messages, also Sunday School lessons from Sunday to Sunday, and we hope that the Holy Spirit has reached many souls, who will keep us from temptations and world living, that we all may follow closer and closer our Lord and Master, who is the best friend we have.

We had the privilege to listen to the Bethel College Choir about two weeks ago, which has touched our hearts very much and we hope that many will be blessed by their wonderful and forceful old-fashioned songs. This year the Lord has blessed us in giving a bountiful harvest, and if we get a few more showers we hope to get some corn, which we have not received for three years. The Lord has been so good to us, that we are not worthy of it.

Our Pastor, M. Horsch, has been called by the Mission Board to the Hopi Indian Station in Arizona, and our prayer is that the Holy Spirit will work in many hearts for their own salvation and for the glory of God. We should all give thanks to the Savior of the world for the suffering on the cross and should always look up to Him who wants to lead us through our life until He calls us home. May the Lord help us to our eternal reward!

In love and friendship, John Wiebe.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, LIMA, OHIO

We have had a very busy spring and summer. We began the season with three nights of pre-Easter services which ended on Friday, March 26, with a baptismal service and the reception of new members. Two couples were received into the church.—Consecration of infants was held on Mother's Day during the morning service. Two infants were consecrated to the Lord.

The Young Ladies Chorus from the First Mennonite Church of Berne, Ind., was with us on the evening of June 6. They rendered a most enjoyable program of hymns.

From June 7 to 11 inclusive our church had charge of the morning devotions over Station WBLY in Lima. Although it was a new experience for us, with the help of the Lord we were able to do it.

Following that we held Daily Vacation Bible School in the mornings for two weeks. Mrs. Ruhl Bixel was the supervisor. The enrollment of 103 was divided into six classes. After the final session, the children went on a picnic. A program was given for the parents and friends at which time the boys and girls gave portions of the stories, chapters, and Bible verses they had learned in the morning sessions.

Mrs. S. K. Mosiman, wife of Dr. S. K. Mosiman of Bluffton, Ohio, was a very interesting speaker at the June meeting of the Ladies' Missionary Society. The meeting was held on Sunday evening, June 13, so that everyone might hear Mrs. Mosiman.—The Ladies' Missionary Society also held a picnic on July 7 for all the members of the church.

On July 18 Miss Irma Schneck, a returned missionary from Ethiopia, was with us in our services both morning and evening. She gave us a splendid message in the morning and showed stereopticon slides in the evening. At the present time we are raising money to plaster the church. About $200 is needed. Along with that the church is carrying on the regular program and radiating a spiritual atmosphere in the community.

DEATHS

KINSINGER—Miss Lisetta H. Kinsinger, born Jan. 15, 1865, died July 28, 1937. A loyal and faithful member of the Mennonite Church of Trenton, Ohio, where she will be greatly missed. A busy and useful life ended very suddenly with a heart attack. Her friends knew that she was not well, however, none expected her death, which came as a shock to the entire community. Miss Kinsinger lived an outstanding Christian life, and the blessed influence of her Christian character is a wonderful heritage to all who were privileged to know her.

Funeral services were held from the Funeral Home at Hamilton, Ohio, on Friday, July 30, 1937. Burial was made in Mennonite Cemetery at Trenton, Ohio.

Rev. J. E. Amstutz officiated, basing his remarks on "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

"Weep not that her toil is over,
Weep not that her race is run,
God grant we may rest as sweetly
When, like hers, our work is done."

BERNARD THEODORE REIMER was born at Marion, Marion County, Kansas, December 4th, 1903; was reared at the same place. Later he moved with his parents to Oklahoma, where he received most of his common school education. His high school, college and university education he received in Los Angeles. He specialized in the study of Law, almost completing his course, earning his way through 8 years of study.

At the age of 19 he was baptized upon confession of his faith in his Savior Jesus Christ and united with the Mennonite Church at Inola, Oklahoma. He has reached the age of 33 years, 7 months and 22 days.

Almighty God hath determined the time before appointed, and the bounds of man's habitation, so we feel comforted, though our dear son and brother BERNARD has found his sudden death by drowning in the Pacific Ocean, when bathing at 4 P. M. on Monday the 26th day of July, 1937, not realizing the danger of the riptide prevalent at that place. Although several of his chums were with him, when he called for help they were not able to give it to him.

Our hearts are deeply saddened by his sudden death, but our hope is to meet with him in Glory. His last words, when he was home about 2 months ago were: "Do not worry about me, for I am ready if the Lord should suddenly call me.

Funeral services were held on August 2nd in the First Mennonite Church, Reedley, Calif., conducted by Rev. H. J. Krehbiel, who spoke on John 13:7, and Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, who spoke on Isaiah 55:1-6.

—The Reimer Family

MRS. ANNA KILE.—Anna Allen was born August 6, 1851, twice married, the first time Mr. Bealer, the second time to Israel H. Kile, was formerly a member of the Lutheran church. Then through her second marriage she became a member of the Deep Run Mennonite Church. She died on June 26, 1937, aged 85 years, 10 months, 20 days. Funeral services were held at the Sellersville Lutheran church on the 30th. Her pastor, A. M. Fretz, was assisted by Rev. Weidlich of the local church.

MRS. ANNA GEBHART.—Anna Alleman was born at Bern, Switzerland, May 15, 1867. She left her native land and came to the United States when she was 16 years of age. Twenty-five years of her stay in this country were spent at Reedley.

Her married life was blest with two children who remain to mourn her sudden passing following a heart attack on July 22, 1937. She also leaves two grandchildren.

Mrs. Gebhart reached the age of 70 years, 2 months and 7 days. The later years of her life were spent at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Grant Gregg.

The deceased also leaves three sisters living in the central States.

Mrs. Gebhart was a member of the First Mennonite Church of Reedley among whose membership she leaves a number of friends.

Funeral services were held on July 24 in the First Mennonite Church, Reedley, Calif., conducted by Dr. J. H. Langenwalter. "I cannot feel that thou art far since near at hand the angels are."

MRS. HENRY KINTZI.—Maria Ewy was born October 21, 1867, in Galicia. She left her native land and came to Minnesota when she was 14 years of age.

On April 2, 1888, she was married to Henry Kintzi. Ten children were born of this union, 6 of whom preceded their mother in death. In 1909 the family moved to California to establish their home. Mr. Kintzi passed away March 19, 1922.

Two sons and two daughters remain. They are Werner and William of Reedley, Mrs. Tillie Huebner of Ten Mile, Oregon, and Mrs. Louise Clithero of Bakersfield. There also remain seven grandchildren.

Mrs. Kintzi passed away July 21, 1937, having reached the ago of 69 years and 9 months. She was called upon to suffer much during her less than three score years and ten. The reason for all this lies beyond our judgment, but the manner in which she bore these trials leaves a deep impression.

The deceased was a member of the First Mennonite Church of Reedley for many years, during which she made a number of friends both within and without the church.

Funeral services were held on July 24 at the First Mennonite Church, Reedley Calif., conducted by Dr. J. H. Langenwalter.

"With silence only as their benediction God's Angels come,
Where, in the shadow of a great affliction, the soul sits dumb!"

Where Will The General Conference Meet?

Brother David Toews, who served as chairman of the Mennonite General Conference of Canada, writes that their Conference voted to invite the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America to meet next year at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. The time for the meeting will be fixed by the officers of both conferences.

C. E. Krehbiel, Secretary, General Conference
Newton, Kansas

— ANNOUNCEMENT.—The Bruderthal congregation near Hillsboro, Kansas, plans to have a farewell service on Sunday, Aug. 29, for sister Elizabeth Goertz, who is again returning to China. All who are interested in the Lord's cause are cordially invited. The service begins at 2:00 o'clock p. m.—A. D. Ewert.

— Rev. P. P. Wedel, ex-president of the General Conference and pastor of the First Church of Christian, Moundridge, Kansas, is scheduled to give a series of Bible lectures at the Ebenezer Mennonite Church near Bluffton, Ohio, Aug. 22-29.

— The Young People's Retreat of the Western District which was held during the week of August 2 to 8 at Camp Wood, near Elmdale, Kansas, had an enrolment of 225, by far the largest on record. But while this is gratifying, it is still more so that everybody reports a very profitable and blessed time spiritually, and a pleasant time socially. Among the instructors were such persons as Rev. P. P. Wedel, Rev. J. N. Smucker, Dr. Abraham Warkentin, Rev. Walter Gering and Sister Lena Mae Smith, which accounts, in a measure, for the success of the Retreat.

— Rev. and Mrs. John Lichti of Medford, Okla. are, at this writing, sojourning at Geneva, Ill. From there Brother Lichti is taking treatments at the College of Drugless Physicians in Chicago, with good results. He is greatly impressed with the beauty of trees, schrubbery, lawns, and cornfields there. Before returning they will visit Mrs. Lichti's relatives and other friends at Berne, Indiana.

— The Bethany, Freeman, D. S., Messenger: We believe and have heard officials of other colleges make similar statements, that Freeman Junior College fills a definite need in our community and should reach into others—and it deserves an expression of the appreciation of the constituency! It is time for us all to Talk Freeman College and arouse interest. The Board of the College inaugurating a WELFARE DRIVE. This Sunday we will meet to decide as to our contribution (Bethany Church) to this drive.

— Brother E. W. Baumgartner of Berne, Ind., treasurer of the Board of Publication, reports that gifts amounting to a little more than $2000.00 have been received from the churches in the United States for the Book Depository in Canada. Will the churches that had intended or promised to add their quota, but haven't done so thus far, kindly send in their gifts soon? Brother Toews hopes to get a few more hundred dollars from the churches in Canada, where they have a harvest. With this financial backing the proposed book store should soon be realized.

— Sister Elizabeth Moser of Bluffton, Ohio, a highly trained nurse with the Rockefeller Foundation in the American Hospital at Peiping, China, is in danger with other Americans there, and needs to be remembered in our prayers. Let us also pray for our missionaries who, after all, may not be so very far from the war zone.

— Dr. J. E. Hartzler, Goshen, Ohio, gave a series of Bible lectures at Hillsboro, Kansas the week of August 2-8.

— On Sunday, August 1, Rev. S. M. Musselman was installed as the new pastor of the Johannestal Church, near Hillsboro, Kansas. The event involved an all-day program and a reception given in honor of the new pastor and his family. During the forenoon the Reverends P. F. Unruh of Goessel, and Walter Dyck of Burrton served as speakers; in the afternoon the Reverends J. H. Epp and Arnold Funk, both of Hillsboro.

— Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Neuenschwander of McPherson, Kansas, so the Berne Witness of Aug. 6 reported, have gone to Berne, Ind. to be at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. C. A. Neuenschwander. While there they stay at the home of L. A. Sprunger.

— The Daily Capital, Topeka, Kansas, in a leading article reports that the Bethel College A Cappella Choir gave a concert at the First Congregational Church, Washington, D. C., on July 30, which was unusually well received. Hon. Arthur Capper, senior U. S. Senator from Kansas, introduced the choir. In so doing he said some very good things about Bethel College and in conclusion also "paid a high tribute to the sturdy qualities of the Kansas Mennonites than whom, he said, there are no better citizens anywhere." Congressman John Houston, from Kansas, says, "One of the proudest moments came at the close of the concert, when I had the opportunity to individually remind those in attendance that the choir was a product of my home town, Newton. The crowd was enthusiastic in its praise of the young people. All Kansans have ample justifications to be happy over this splendid musical organization." The choir, consisting of 41 people traveled in a National Trailways bus. The tour included many Mennonite communities, also cities like Chicago, Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, and New York, a distance fully 3000 miles. Under God's kind protection they all returned safely Friday, Aug. 6.

— The ECK FAMILY REUNION will be held on Sunday, August 22, 1937, at Enid, Okla. in the Government Springs Park. An all day program has been planned by the Committee, the morning starting at 10 o'clock. At 12 o'clock a community dinner will be served, followed by an afternoon of visiting. All those related to the Eck family are urged to be present. The Committee.

— The last couple of years grasshoppers played havoc with the crops in some of the midwestern states. Now it is the pestiferous crickets that are investing the same territory. And they are not content with what they find in gardens and fields. They make their inroads into every nook and corner of buildings, doing damage to clothing, fruits and vegetables found there. They are said to be coming into South Dakota in swarms. Some call them Mormon crickets. The Mormons tell this story concerning these pests: When they reached Utah and had put out a large area in wheat, these hoppers came in swarms and threatened to devour everything, with starvation seemingly staring the settlers in the face. They then went into prayer and, lo and behold! swarms of sea gulls arrived and in a short time cleaned up the insects.

VOL. LII BETHEL COLLEGE, KANSAS, AUGUST 24, 1937 NO. 33

AN EFFECTIVE SERMON.—On entering college we were asked by the fatherly professor in the Greek class, “What are you young men here for?” After a few moments of silence he answered his own question thus, “To get new points of view.” This editorial may not contain new points of view, but it aims to present some points of view or characteristics that one would expect to find in a really effective sermon.—1. The effective sermon comes from the heart and goes to the heart. One of the most telling sermons on record was Peter’s sermon on the day of Pentecost, “for when the people heard this, they were pricked in their heart.”—That was the first effect, but not the only one, for they said to Peter and the Apostles, “What shall we do?” So 2. the effective sermon arouses or leads to action or, if not to tangible action, it should result in determination for better living, in genuine striving for spiritual growth and perfection. —3. A sermon to be effective must be born of the Spirit and must be Gospel truth. “For the Spirit which is of God—is not the words which men’s wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Spirit teacheth, comparing spiritual things with spiritual.” 4. The effective sermon rings with conviction, spiritual discernment and understanding. In this connection Paul says, “In the church I had rather speak five words with understanding—than ten thousand words with a tongue.”—5. The sermon that grips most hearers’ minds moves within a circle of which Jesus Christ is the center, or which bears reference to Him. “And every day, in the temple and at home, they ceased not to teach and to preach Jesus as the Christ,”†—“for in none other is there salvation.”§—6. The language, diction, and plan of the sermon which is to be effective must be so simple that people of all walks of life, the old and young, the learned and unlearned, can grasp its meaning and import, and that the listener can remember and carry the main thought or gist of it away with him, to ponder it and tell it to some absent member of the family, when asked to do so. “And I, brethren, when I came unto you, came not in excellency of speech or of wisdom, but to tell you what I know of Jesus Christ.”‡—7. An effective sermon is not lengthy. The quintessence of hours or even days of study and prayerful meditation upon almost any text fit for a sermon can be given in twenty minutes, and in the end will very probably do more good than if spread over a considerably longer time. The great majority of the discourses of Jesus were short and pointed.

WISE ADJUSTMENT.—One of the chief obstacles in the world’s upward movement lies in the fact that so many well-meaning people are so slow, if not adverse, to adjust themselves to changes and movements that are necessary, yes, often inevitable, if the world is to be made better and human life richer and happier. We need only to recall the jolts that the introduction of the Sunday school experienced in some of our churches, or the slow headway made by four-part singing and better music generally, not even to mention the opposition to the introduction of musical instruments. Today we have fine choirs, we sing our cantatas and oratorios, we have our organs, pianos, pipe organs, we even allow our young people to lend variety to our church music with their orchestras. And haven’t we grown in grace, and favor with God and men? Isn’t our worship enriched? — In the matter of doctrine, church discipline, forms of baptism and dress, our denomination has shown a disinclination or obstinacy toward amicable adjustments that has resulted in splitting our “peace-loving” (?) Mennonite church into seventeen branches. In this connection the Apostle Paul teaches all men everywhere a great lesson. Facing, on the one side, the orthodox Jews who insisted that their pattern of becoming a Christian was the only one, while the gentiles favored a freer, less laborious way, he says, “I am become all things to all men, that I may, by all means, save some —to the Jew I am a Jew—to the weak, I became weak, that I might gain the weak.” What a beautiful Christian trait, such humble, self-forgetting, self-denying, tolerant adjustment to the differing views and inclinations of fellowmen who, above all things, needed to be saved through love and forbearance.

A Review of Recent Spiritual Work

By Wu T'ing Hsin, Evangelist, Tamingfu, China

I. CHINESE NEW YEAR EVANGELISM. It has been the practice for several years that all Chinese Christians go out at this time to witness for the Lord. The Lord moved the hearts of 72 to volunteer thus to glorify God and to preach the Gospel. They realize that this work of saving souls does not only fall to Evangelists and Missionaries, but it is the duty of every church member. These 72 were divided into five groups or teams. Each day these went out in the city or country to witness: Team No. 1 went west of the city to spread the Gospel seed, Team No. 2 went to the south to preach salvation, Team No. 3, walking east of the city to publish 'this way,' (north of the city the Nazarene friends worked for the Lord), two teams witnessed for the Lord in the city. This work was carried on seven days from February 14 to 20, witnessing at 66 places. About 2,558 people listened to these messages. 1940 tracts and leaflets were given out. During this time 41 persons expressed their interest in the Gospel. This year's Week of Evangelism work was not the same as previous years. At every place the people heartily welcomed us. Although a few "being the sons of Satan" and influenced by him tried to hinder, yet did the Lord give victory to His followers. We request you, our brothers and sisters in the Lord, to pray for these 2558 listeners that they may through this witness come to the Lord and receive salvation through Him.

II. TENT WORK IN THE CITY. Our China Mission has done tent Evangelism for many years, continually working in the Taming district, admonishing people to surrender to Christ and be saved. This year on special invitation the tent was brought to Taming city. The tent evangelists came gladly. Feb. 19 to March 29—40 days the tent was here with the best of conditions. At other times the business people are busy, during the New Year they are free, to listen and meditate. On an average there were present each day over 300. The majority often nodded approval and a good many resolved to follow Christ. Also a number wept over, and confessed their sins. Here too, we need the readers' prayers that the Lord prosper the Gospel seeds sown, that they may bring forth 100-fold, 60-fold, 30-fold. This is our prayer.

III. PRISON PREACHING. According to John 3:16 the Gospel is for everybody, "whosoever." We daily admonish people in city and country to repent and be saved. Should we not also find opportunity to go to the jail and admonish those who have sinned against the laws of the country, and against God? A few years ago our church members with one heart asked that we go and preach in the jails also. It is regetable that earlier the jail authorities were adverse to this idea and would not give permission. But last July, just as we were discussing how to consult the magistrate, he sent us a letter and asked, if our church would not consent to come and preach the Gospel, at least once a month or each week, in the jail. This was clear evidence that the Lord had opened the doors for the Gospel to be preached in prison. Each Sunday afternoon men and women, church members, led by evangelists and Biblewomen, rejoice in going to two prisons for men and two for women. There are at present over 400 prisoners. Thus the last eight months this work has been going on. Reception of the Gospel is very good. Most of the prisoners listen with hungry hearts. The wardens and other authorities welcomed us most heartily. During these eight months some of the prisoners, both men and women, have expressed their desire to accept Christ, and some also with weeping confessed their sins.

We heartily appreciate the cooperation of members of the Nazarene Mission in joining with us to do this work. We hope that the readers of this report will join us in prayer for this needy work, that we may receive power to lead this class of sinners, the greatest in man's sight, one by one to the feet of the Lord. That they, too, together with us may reach the shore of salvation—this is our sincere hope.

IV. CIRCUIT PREACHING. The local church has three outstation preaching places. During the past we evangelists and the Biblewomen have gone out to these places at stated times, to lead meetings and visit the Christians. Recently four more preaching places have asked for regular preaching services. The prospects are good. Each time that we have gone to these places the people have rejoiced in receiving us. Aside from going to these seven places evangelists and Bible women are trying to visit the many other villages surrounding us. Looking at the work as a whole the outlook is much better than a few years ago. Then Christianity was looked upon as a foreign religion, misleading the people. Everywhere there were those who opposed the Gospel. Now, at every place they concede that this is the true Gospel of the True God.

When we notice these conditions then certainly we see that the harvest is great but the reapers are few. We pray the Lord of the harvest to send more reapers to gather in the harvest. We plead with the readers to intercede for this holy work, that the Lord's Holy Name may be glorified here at Taming.—Translated by Mrs. C. Voth.

HOME MISSIONS

ORDINATION ANNOUNCEMENT

For some time the Home Mission Board has been looking for a worker who can serve the Portland Mission as superintendent and preacher. The worker there has done very good work but must always provide for the preaching service. Now the Board has secured the service of a young man who is willing with his bride to assume the obligation and take charge of the Portland Mission. Brother Edmund Miller from Freeman, S. Dak., has been studying in the Biblical Seminary in New York for several years, and will be ordained to the Gospel Ministry in his home congregation, the Salem Zion Congregation east of Freeman on Sunday, Sept. 5. The Board covets the prayers of the churches of the Conference and all mission friends for Brother and Sister Miller and all workers for the Lord.

W. S. Gottshal, Sec of the Board.

Schools and Education

THE EFFECTIVE SUNDAY SCHOOL

D. J. Unruh

V. SUPERVISION OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Sunday School without a program is like a boy, with a gun, who shoots without taking aim, and accomplishes just what it sets out to accomplish. They get "what the little boy shot at." Such Sunday Schools are a travesty of Christianity. Is it any wonder that many former Sunday School scholars are trying to rationalize their apathy and indifference to things spiritual. A recent magazine article "Why I don't go to Church" illustrates this, and speaks of an unsatisfied hunger for the living God. How can we remedy such a situation?

1. PLANNING AND PREPARATION.—I do not pretend to be a Sunday School expert, but the observation of a pastor and the organizer of several Sunday Schools, has proven to me that an effective Sunday School must be planned. Plans call for preparation. That includes more than studying the lesson or choosing the hymns before hand; such a program soon develops into the monotony of a 'hurdy-gurdy.' The school should be planned for the quarter year, the year and even for periods of years. Planning will add the zest of youth, the color of freshness of spring, the warmth and glow of life.

Certain qualifications are necessary to do any effective piece of work and that is just as important in the work of the Sunday School as in secular education, the insurance business, or in merchandising. The Sunday School must be prepared to estimate and expand its constituency, to direct the energies and conserve the power of its personnel, and to impart its influence and teach the truths of God's Word to its membership. Teacher-training courses are essential in a progressive world if our S. S. are to function effectively.

2. ORGANIZATION.—There are, it is true, Sunday Schools that are afflicted with organizations until they are like millstones around a drowning man's neck. Yet Sunday Schools cannot work effectively unless they are unified and only that which unifies the school is worthy of the name of an organized Sunday School. Electing officers and creating committees means nothing if these officers or committees do not function. It merely means that they become barriers rather than gates that open to larger avenues of service. Compare that with the picture in I Cor. 12:4-25 and Acts 6:3. In the first instance the organization is implied and in the second place it is explicit. Organization substitutes system for chance and order for chaos.

3. RECORD.—A planned and a unified program will need a check-up system and that requires records. Without records the attendance becomes irregular, the teachers become dilatory and the school apathetic. Every member of the S. S. should be enrolled and a record kept of his attendance. It takes time to do this, but it's time well spent. Some things, such as spiritual values cannot be recorded, but they can be promoted through regularity, accuracy and thoroughness. Adopt a good record system. The six-point record has met with favor in well organized Sunday Schools. The six items are as follows:

1. Regular attendance
2. Punctuality
3. The use of the Bible
4. Offering
5. Lesson study
6. Attendance at preaching service.

By all means have some method of checking up, so that you can tell how the Sunday School functions.

4. SUPERVISION.—To see that the channels of service are adequate (i. e., preparation), that they remain unified and open (i. e., organization), and to check up and record their function (i. e., recordation) is a big task calling for consecration, executive ability and untiring vigilence. That is the Sunday School superintendent's task. The pastor should be an interested and sympathetic counsellor, co-operating with superintendent and teachers and giving the school its spiritual direction.

As a further guide for effective work a Sunday School standard has been accepted by the General Conference and will be gladly sent upon request.

Why Bethel College Appeals to the Churches

J. M. Regier

Bethel College has very definite reasons why she is making her appeals to the churches. Our appeal is not from the angle of secular education. Although we know that we are well equipped to do efficient work in the various fields of the liberal arts college, and that we are able to tax the abilities of a student to the limit for a period of four years, yet we are not making our entreaty from this angle. We make our appeal from three other angles, and I believe that our other Mennonite Colleges, Bluffton, Goshen, Freeman, Tabor and Hesston, will concur in these for their colleges.

Our first appeal is from the angle of the social life for our young people. We believe that the social life of a church college is far more wholesome than that of large state schools. Often times fraternities and sororities divide a student body into cliques. We do not have these organizations. It is our aim not to have the social life of the campus marred by other social customs and usages which have always been detrimental.

This social factor reaches out into the future. Very many friendships have been formed among the young people, of the same sex and of opposite sexes, which have proved to be a blessing to themselves and to the church that we represent. It is the most wholesome experience for the young people of our denomination to learn to know hundreds like themselves from scores of communities.

Our second appeal is from the angle of the religious life. Yes, this is the chief reason for the existence of Bethel College. About fifty hours of Bible and religion is being taught. The school maintains a daily chapel hour. Provisions are also made for a Religious Emphasis Week in fall and a Bible Week in the winter. The college church provides the young people with opportunities for worship on Sundays. It is sometimes said, "Religion is not taught, it is caught." This may only be a half truth, but we know that many have here "caught" the spirit.

Our third appeal is from the angle of the denominational life. If the Mennonite church has anything worth preserving, and it positively does, this can be done effectively only if we have institutions of learning where our own leadership is being trained. I have observed that in congregations where these values are cherished most, the leaders have been prepared in our own colleges. It is remarkable how many leaders, not only ministers but lay-leaders, have been students in our schools. At Aberdeen, Idaho, I asked how many had ever been students at Bethel College, and thirty-five people stood. We teach the value of our own Church without minimizing the virtues of other Churches. We do not want our people to be narrowly sectarian.

Will you not all lend your support to our church colleges for the sake of the social, the religious and the denominational life of our young people and the Mennonite church of tomorrow?

CHURCH TRAMPS. There is no racket as bad as a religious racket. The church tramp is a racketeer. He is usually not in good standing with any denomination and tells you that he is willing to serve all of them equally. He offers to speak, sing, or entertain, without charge, except for a free-will offering. Our Mennonite churches are considered fertile fields by individuals of this type. As a result, many minds of free-lance causes have been presented throughout our churches and a certain amount of loyalty and financial support won from them. All of which has been detrimental to our own institutions and organized work. We are far from suggesting that only Mennonites should speak or sing or lecture in our churches. But we need to guard constantly against those who would exploit our churches for personal gain.—Lester Hostetler, in "The Leader."

Report of the Field Secretary

April 1 to June 22, 1937

Dear Brethren of the Executive Committee:

During the past quarter my work has taken me through the churches and smaller groups of the Pacific District. The smaller groups included Winston, California, and the Newport and the Deer Park, Washington, communities. One group I would like to have included is the new Bellingham, Washington, settlement, but unfortunately I did not learn of this group in time to arrange for a visit.

Besides the more or less regular speaking, conference and visiting program I gave addresses on various special occasions, chief among which were the Oregon S. S. and C. E. convention and the similar Washington Convention. At the former I spoke three times and the latter four times. The attendance at both of these conventions was excellent and the spirit and the participation splendid.

The Pacific District is to date the only conference which I have covered completely. The trip required an absence of two and a half months during which I spoke one or more times every day, except Saturdays. Such a long uninterrupted speaking tour finally becomes a bit strenuous and tiring.

Of course the work has its compensations. The appreciation with which this work is everywhere received certainly is one such compensation. The better insight one gets into the larger field and needs of our Conference work here at home is most surely another. The happy fellowship that one can enjoy with the brethren in the ministry and with the many fine Christian people in our churches, both old and young, is unquestionably another compensation. Others could easily be added. I have a growing conviction that such visits by an official representative of the Conference once a year could be the source of great good to our cooperative endeavors. I believe they would tend to stir up a more active interest in the whole of our Conference program and they would help to tie the churches, especially the more isolated ones, more closely into the larger fellowship and service.

On such trips one, of course, discovers certain needs. I shall not take time either to ennumerate or to discuss these but one, to me very obvious need I cannot forego mentioning. It concerns our smaller struggling churches in this country. It appears to me that they have too often been left to shift for themselves in a discouraging struggle that has maintained nothing more than a mere existence. Many of these groups could, I believe, under wise and adequate leadership and with sufficient assistance from the Conference have grown into self-sustaining churches. Now one often wonders whether they won't soon pass out of existence with the passing of the older residents. The problem, it appears to me, is not merely one for which the Home Mission Board must find a solution. I think it is larger than that. It is a problem which the Conference as a whole should clearly see and for which they should make wise and adequate provision. Are not these some of the STAKES that need to be strengthened?

Society of Friends and Mennonites in Conference

The historic spot where Christopher Dock, pious School-master of the Skippack, labored and now lies burried since 1771, was the scene of an interesting and inspiring joint conference.

The meetings were held in the Lower Skippack, more familiarly known as Johnson Mennonite Meeting house, on Monday, July 26th afternoon and evening.

Representatives of the Schwenkfelder Conference and members of Johnson's Congregation were also present. The Church where the meeting was held is not affiliated with any Conference, but has been friendly to Mennonite Missions and Education for many years. The present pastor is the third generation Johnson who served the church as Elder. Many a church would have deteriorated, but not this one, because the leaders were all men of vision, passion and education. For almost a century they taught the school founded by the pious Christopher Dock.

The theme of the meeting was "The Good Life" and was treated from the viewpoint of the Individual, the Family, The Meeting (Church) and The Community.

The subject: "The Individual" was treated in the form of a Symposium, by Charles W. Palmer, member of the Society of Friends, who has been a teacher for many years in Northeast High School, Philadelphia. A majority of boys in Second and First Mennonite churches attend this High School. The paper was the summing up of 260 essays written by the Senior boys on the subject: "The Good Life" as an English asignment. The paper showed that the majority of the young men had a worthy and encouraging conception of the Christian religion and moral stability.

It was agreed by the meeting that each cooperating group should appoint one individual and that these constitute a Continuation Committee for the planning of future meetings.

My friends, let us try to follow the Saviour's steps; let us remember all day long what it is to be men; that it is to have every one whom we meet for our brother in the sight of God; that it is this, never to meet anyone, however bad he may be, for whom we cannot say: "Christ died for that man, and Christ cares for him still."

GOD REQUIRES SOCIAL JUSTICE

Leviticus 19:9-18, 32-37

Introduction

These laws are a part of the code given to Moses on Sinai. They express a broad spirit of humaneness and justice, a remarkable contrast to the spirit of the times. They express the spirit of true consideration for others and the eternal principles of righteousness which we find later in the Sermon on the Mount.

The religion of the Bible is more than doctrines to be believed; it is a life to be lived. We must live in contact with other people and need to seriously consider our relations with them. Justice toward others is clearly a part of true religion. These laws strike at personal selfishness in all relations with others.

Provision for the Poor vs. 9, 10

The motive here is humanity and personal responsibility to the poor. The best manner of relieving poverty is an age-old problem. With all our present day organizations and government efforts, it is still unsolved. All progress is welcomed. The obligation to help the unfortunate dare not be overlooked. Provision is here made in leaving some grain and fruits for the needy to gather for themselves.

Personal Integrity, vs. 11, 12

Justice to others demands a personal integrity that respects the property and rights of others. Among a Christian people there must not be lying, defrauding nor stealing. Verses 11 and 12 are a blanket command covering the entire field of business ethics. All shall be morally and legally right. The Golden Rule is to be applied in all relations. The one who is not Christian in business is not much of a Christian anywhere.

Probity of Conduct vs. 13, 14

There shall be fair and honest dealing with our neighbor and justice for the wage-earner. One of our sorest social problems is the return due to the worker from the employer. Where the true Christian spirit is given the right of way, there will be a just pay made to the worker.

The deaf and the blind-handicapped by misfortune —shall be kindly, justly treated. To speak ill of those unable to hear and to put an obstruction in the way of the unseeing, is very cowardly. God hears and sees.

Sanctity of the Individual vs. 15, 16

The magistrate shall be just to the individual in rendering judgment. God is no respector of persons. The individual's good name and reputation needs to be protected; all are equal before the law and shall be judged in righteousness and impartiality. A perverted justice is a fruitful cause of social unrest, also a loophole permitting much ethical wrong-doing.

Honor for the Aged v. 32

Age has had experience such as youth can not have had. Age has passed through life's trials and made contributions to society. It is but justice that age be respected deservedly. It is God's command.

Regard for the Stranger, Sojourner. vs. 33, 34

God gave definite command for protecting, giving considerate treatment to foreigners living in the land of the Israelites. He is to be treated as one of their own (v. 34). Israel was a stranger in Egypt. Kind treatment of the foreigners in our midst is a duty so long as they respect our laws and institutions.

Our lesson sets forth a high standard in its requirements of love and good-will. These standards are essential to social justice.

Nuggets of Truth

The Christian religion alone can make love a reality.

Treating others with justice is a part of true religion.

"Christians must put away the small dust of deceit from their hands."

The square deal, is no mere slogan, but the eternal will of God.

As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also so to them.

COMMUNION SERVICE

Northern Dist. Conference, Bloomfield, Mont. 6-6-37

Dr. Rodolph Petter

Text: "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world."—John 1:29b.

We are gathered here this afternoon, not as a Conference, not as visitors, not as individuals, not just to hear a sermon. We are here as the sons and daughters of God, his household, his family in Christ Jesus, gathered around His Table.—It is a blessed, spiritual oneness with Christ whom we behold with the inner sight of faith, whom we hear speak unto us, appropriating, assimilating, absorbing his glorified Person, so that his own, divine, immortal and eternal life become our very substance and existance.

In this spiritual communion let us behold the Lamb of God, from the gray dawn of mankind until the new day-star arises and the Sign of the Son of man appears in heaven.—Here under the elements of the Supper instituted by Christ, let us behold, let us contemplate the sacrificial Lamb of God in the felt need of our first parents, . . . in the first promise of Salvation, in the first sacrificial institution, in its use by Abel, in its distinct proclamation by Abraham, in the Passover, in Isaiah's vision, in John the Baptist's declaration, as confirmed and realized by Christ in person, then as revealed by the Holy Spirit in the New Testament.

Here, before us is the Lord's Table at which we spiritually sit with our crucified, buried and risen Savior and Lord. We behold Him, the Lamb of God who beareth the sin of the world. We behold Him in the tenfold vision given us by the Holy Spirit, in the Scriptures.

1. The felt need of the Lamb. And they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons (Umguertung)," Gen. 3:7. The need of a "covering" was keen in the measure the consciousness of sin was felt. But, alas! Adam and Eve's covering was woefully inefficient and insufficient. Their "fabric" had no value in atoning sin in God's sight. God alone could and would provide the means of expiation for sin. Ever since that day men of every race and nation have sewn all sorts of "aprons" in the form of religious worship, philosophy, policy and other "fig leaves," to provide a deeply felt covering for sin and its results. Man's provisions all proved fig leaves which soon tear apart.

2. God alone could and would provide and the promise of his provision was given that day to our first parents. He would come later on in the posterity of the woman, the Deliverer of whom God says to Satan, "He shall crush thy head, and thou shalt snap at his heel." Gen. 3:15. The deliverance promised includes a suffering.

3. That this suffering would be sacrificial (expiatory) is implied in v. 21 of Gen. 3. There it says, "God made for Adam and his wife coats of skins, and clothed (covered) them." The Hebrew word here translated by "made" is used in the sense of "prepared, arranged, initiated, instituted in the manner used in Exod. 29:36-39, also Lev. 9:7 where the same word is used (in Hebrew) to mean "slay for an offering" . . . thou shalt offer the bullock of sin-offering . . . The one lamb thou shalt offer . . . Offer thy sin-offering." The same Hebrew verb is used here in Gen. 3:21. The making of coats of skins involves here not only the slaying of a lamb or lambs, but its sacrificial symbol of "covering, protecting" for the statement "he clothed them" has the meaning of "he covered them." So this passage reveals something far more important than just a covering of the body. It involves the initiation of the first sacrifice as taught by God himself.

4. In Gen. 4:4, Abel is offering a lamb according to an established custom. Cain brings his own offering, not ordained by God; Abel sacrifices a lamb. That offering is agreeable, acceptable to God, because he had ordained it. Cain's offer is rejected, for it was not a sacrifice, for the main reason that he had rejected God's institution. Abel came to God with the sense of his sinfulness and the need of atonement for it. He brought the offering which God had instituted, a lamb. The lamb was to be the symbol, the representation of the "covering," the full expiation which God had in view in the person of Christ. (Gen. 4:1-5). Thus in those first days of mankind the Lamb of God was beholden, only in an unconscious, indistinct manner, until Abraham came.

5. Who knows not the gripping episode in Abraham's life, when he and his only son were ascending the mountain on which God had asked Abraham to sacrifice his only son? (Gen. 22:1-15). To the inquiry of the young man where the lamb was, Abraham answers, "God will provide himself the lamb for a burnt-offering . . . " When Abraham said that it was not because he half expected to get a ram on top of the mountain. NO! Abraham knew exactly what he said, for at that moment a vision was given him of Jesus Christ's day. Jesus himself, when on earth said to the Jews, "Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day: and he saw it and was glad" (John 8:56). Abraham knew he could furnish the wood, the fire, the knife and the altar but not the genuine Lamb which he knew that God alone would provide some day for the sins of the world. Here in Abraham's days the Lamb of God is beholden more clearly and with deeper spiritual understanding than we know.

6. Later on, in Moses' days, at the Passover the Lamb of God is beholden in the Paschal one, slain, whose flesh was eaten and whose blood was spread on the outside and above the doors of the Israelites' houses, "as the sacrifice of Jehovah's passover," for a sign of protection from death and deliverance from bondage. God had told the Israelites, ". . . Against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am Jehovah . . . and the blood shall be to you for a token . . . when I see the blood I shall pass over you . . . " (Exodus 12:12b, 13, 26, 27). In that memorable night and for centuries afterwards on all the door posts of the Israelities it was proclaimed in blood, that the slain lamb was the means of their salvation. Had it not died, they would have had to die. Now they were protected, covered from punishment and death.

Old Indians told me that in remote times, they had certain religious ceremonies in which the blood or flesh of an animal was offered on a white, low altar built of white sand. After those ancient days the dull red paint had taken place of such sacrifices.—In fact Indians claim that to appear in prayer or worship at their religious doings they must be painted red, the color of the blood. In 1890 when most of the Indian tribes expected a Deliverer to appear, they were told to paint with the dull red color, to be thus ready, "covered" to meet their Messiah and escape destruction. The Cheyenne word "mae" means both blood and red, while the term "emae" implies "under cover, concealed."

7. With Isaiah the beholding of the Lamb of God becomes distinct, He is heralded in ch. 53 as One sent by God, One who is to bear our griefs and carry our sorrows . . . who is to be wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities . . . who takes our chastisement upon himself . . . as a lamb, led to the slaughter . . . his soul made an offering for self, bearing the sins of many and making intercession for the transgressors.—Then (in ch. 9:6) Isaiah tells that this Savior will come born as a child, growing up as a son, become the Wonderful-Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting-Father and the Prince of Peace.

8. Some six or more centuries after that, John the Baptist, seeing Jesus approaching pointed to him and said, "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." Herewith the personal presence of the Lamb of God among men is proclaimed. The felt need of our first parents has reached its climax in the whole world. The promise of a Savior is realized. Instead of the symbolical comes the actual. The lamb of Abel becomes the Lamb of God. What Abraham had rejoiced to see, becomes sight. The atonement needed, desired, taught, promised, symbolized through thousands of years is now to take place, once for ever, doing away with all the substitutes. The Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world has appeared, "Behold Him" (John 1:29).

9. Behold the Lamb of God in the person of Christ the Son of God when He institutes the Lord's Supper instead of the Passover, the night before He became the sacrificial Lamb. Hear Him saying, "With desire I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer." And the next day he bore the sin of the world at the Cross, confirming all the promises and prophecies; purchasing with His own blood what no other sacrificial blood had been able to give mankind, supreme and full atonement, forgiveness and justification, salvation from condemnation, life from death.—Our passover has been sacrificed (I Cor. 5:7).—"Ye were redeemed . . . with precious blood of a lamb without blemish and without spot, even the blood of Christ . . . foreknown indeed before the foundation of the world, but manifested at the end of times for your sakes . . . (I Peter 1:18-20).

10. The last view of this lamb of God is given us by the Holy Spirit in the Book of Revelation where we behold the Lamb of God in the time ahead of us. "And I saw in the midst of the throne . . . a Lamb standing . . . . and they sing a new song to Him, saying, Worthy art thou . . . for thou wast slain and didst purchase unto God with thy blood men of every tribe and tongue and pepole, and nation . . . Myriads of angels shout aloud (in song) Worthy is the Lamb that has been slain . . . Every created thing in heaven, and on earth and under the earth and on the sea (join in the song) say, Unto Him that sitteth on the throne and unto the Lamb be blessing, and honor, and glory and dominion without end," Rev. 5:6-14. Then ch. 7:14b, "These are they that come out of the great tribulation, and they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." And in ch. 19:6-9 we hear the voice of a great multitude, in heaven, as the voice of many waters and mighty thunders saying, "Hallelujah: for the Lord our God, the Almighty reigneth. Let us rejoice and be exceedingly glad, and let us give the glory unto him: for the marriage of the Lamb (his reunion with the redeemed ones) is come, his wife has made herself ready . . . And he saith unto me, Write, Blessed are they that are bidden to the marriage supper of the Lamb."

And now in anticipation of this great and glorious day of our eternal reunion with the Lamb of God, we are here today before His Table, beholding Him, Christ, the Lamb of God, with the eyes of Faith, Hope and Love. We gather with Him in Spirit, we hear what He says concerning His Supper. We simply reach out our hearts to take what He offers us. . . . We eat and drink it, assimilating His life in ours. We partake of this Supper, just as He said we should, which is written in the Gospels.

As our Savior and Lord taught us, let us behold the Lamb of God in the participation of the Supper he instituted for all his followers:

a) With the intense desire of our hearts to commune with Him; "With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you," Luke 2.

b) With heartfelt thanks and blessings.

c) By taking the bread of which Christ says, "This is my body given (broken) for you."—And by taking the cup of which Christ says, "Drink all of ye, for this is my blood poured for many unto remission of sin. To take the bread and take the cup means to appropriate to ourselves all that Christ possesses and offers: Forgiveness, Justification, Salvation, the Spirit of God, Resurrection of the body, Heavenly riches, Immortality, Eternal glory, Eternal substance and Eternal presence in God's Home.

d) By eating and drinking, meaning assimilating, absorbing within us the person and life of Jesus Christ, the Lamb of God.—When Jesus said, "This is my body," pointing to the bread on the table, his own body had not yet been given, it was still whole and living. When he said, "This is my blood shed for you," his own blood was still within him unshed.

Thus when He points at the bread on the Communion Table, his own, very body cannot be meant, for that body of Christ disappeared in the grave for a spiritual, glorified one.—And when Jesus points at the cup on the Communion Table, his very blood cannot be meant, for that was shed upon the ground at the Cross. — The bread here, stands, represents the Whole Person of Christ, as he appeared incarnated and now exists in a glorified body.—And the cup (the liquid fruit of the vine) stands for the blood as the life-soul of Christ poured out for the sin of the world. It also represents his Risen Life, the guarantee of the resurrection of our body.

We know that our physical body, assimilates, absorbs food and drink, but we cannot tell how they become a part of our bodies. Here at the Lord's Table we assimilate the person and life of Jesus Christ, the Lamb of God, as represented by the elments of bread and wine.—Not these elements, but the very person and life of Christ become part of us, we become one with Him and one with each other. We are the spiritual body of Christ in building.

All this we do in remembrance of Him, proclaiming the Lord's atoning death until He come, remembering the vision of the Lamb of God in the past, holding in memory his Words, Works, his Death, his Grave and his Resurrection. But also yearning in anticipation of his Coming, when this Holy Supper will no longer be needed, for we shall fully have what it now represents.

"Blessed are they that are bidden to the marriage supper of the Lamb."

THE GOLDEN THREAD

Prayer is like a golden thread
Placed on the loom of a life;
Weaving in and out it works
To blot out sin and strife.
A portrait there is taking form,
A face with beauty rare
Comes out upon the pattern which
The mysterious threads of prayer
Have fashioned for a darkened soul;
A work of art unpriced.
Transformed, this life is shining through
The image of the Christ.

Mennonite Youth Looks at Journalism

By Roland M. Bixler

Alcoholic snoopers peering through keyholes, bleary-eyed photographers waiting for murders to occur, blatant city editors bellowing in a frenzied madhouse—such are the exaggerated impressions which many persons hold about those engaged in newspaper work, the bulwark of journalism.

More thoughtful critics, realizing that efficiency prevails in the seeming bedlam and that newspapers print what people like to read, level other indictments against the newspaper profession. They point out that news to which the public is entitled sometimes is repressed because it might harm the almighty advertisers or because newspapermen have promised to keep it secret.

They also accuse the newspapers of posing as truth-tellers, then coloring purported facts with opinions, particularly in politics. They charge newsgatherers with playing up crime and sex and sometimes actually aiding criminals, besides indicting newspapers for emphasizing bad living instead of good living.

An element of fact makes each of these accusations a half-truth, although in contrast to European suppression of news by dictatorial governments, the American newspaper becomes a shining beacon of freedom and integrity. The newspaper exists to print news, and news is whatever the masses like to read about that which is extraordinary. Mirroring the spectacular elements of life as it does, the newspaper is not above criticism—far from it—but it remains the greatest, if the least appreciated of all twentieth century wonders.

From every section of the world photographs come by wire and speedy transportation, and news arrives by telegraph, cable, and wireless. All are quickly reproduced, condensed, and welded into an inexpensive means of education on every subject, into a source of facts and opinions upon which we base our lives and our opinions.

As for the persons in the newspaper profession, I personally know a number of them in various parts of the United States and find them a trustworthy, truth-seeking lot "for whom the work holds a strong fascination, and who are willing to make some personal and pecuniary sacrifice in order to stand in the wings of the stage of the world, catch the full force of the dramatic moments, know the real character of the stars and supers behind their masks and make-up, and perhaps do a little prompting now and then." The integrity of a newspaper man is outstanding; editors have gone to prison rather than expose those they feel obligated to protect.

From the standpoint of youth interested in journalism as a vocation there are these disadvantages to consider: hours are long and irregular (although rapid strides are being made toward the 40-hour week, insofar as possible); pay is small with comparatively few high-salaried positions at the top; nervous strain entailed by meeting deadlines, etc., is inevitable; and anonymity must be the rule for ghost writing, re-writing, and preparation of most material for news columns. Most important, the writer must conform to policy at the cost of his personal opinion. No one tells a journalist in America what he shall think, but his employer can, and sometimes does, tell him what he shall write.

Too, the newspaperman's life is essentially a young man's or young woman's. Some of those who remain in the profession gain positions of prominence at 50, but many of them become human derelicts at the time that others of the same age are entering their prime as doctors, lawyers, and educators.

To youth really interested in fellowmen and in the world of ideas, advantages outweigh the foregoing defects. There is the newspaperman's deep-seated fascination of "being in on the know," of meeting the famous and the infamous, of bringing information which mankind wants and needs. There is the opportunity of working with more freedom than the regimentation of the factory and the corporation office can allow. There comes the opportunity to influence the course of human events.

The trite saying that the pen is mightier than the sword still holds. Journalists throw the merciless glare of publicity on the world as it is; they recount the results of good and evil; they crusade for right in places high and low. The influence of writing and printing since the days of the Reformation and the value of the printed word in Mennonite history illustrate the power of journalists.

Too, newspaper work gives thorough training for those entering other types of journalism, for those becoming public relations directors, secretaries to public figures, advertisers, etc.

How Jesus Reveals God

Topic for September 12, 1937

Reading and Meditation

M., Sept. 6. Jesus reveals God by interpreting nature. Matt 6:25-34
T., Sept. 7. God revealed in Jesus' healing ministry. Luke 4:16-21
W., Sept. 8. Jesus revealed God as a Spirit. John 4:19-25.
T., Sept. 9. Jesus revealed God's attitude toward men. Luke 15:1-10
F., Sept. 10. Jesus revealed God as Master Workman. John 5:17
S., Sept. 11. Jesus revealed God in the Old Testament. Matt. 22:23-33
SUN., SEPT. 12. Topic: How Jesus Reveals God. John 1:14-18

Problems and Projects

1. In a sermon some years ago a great Mennonite preacher, loved by youth especially, and by people of our church generally in the present generation, made this remark: "Jesus is the finest expression of what is good, in whatever line one may be thinking. Your scale of values, and your conception of 'goodness' leads nearer and nearer to Jesus, as you begin to analyze what is 'goodness.'" Can you verify this statement through your own analytical thinking or experience? Explain.

2. Discuss the various attitudes with which various people accept or interpret the world of nature. What hint does Matt. 6:25-34 give us as to the unique interpretation which Jesus gave to it? How does THAT interpretation tend to change OUR interpretation of God?

3. There are those who say that Nature is God? In what sense is that a complete—, and in what sense an incomplete conception of God?

4. If, according to Luke 4:16-21, God is a healing God, how can a Christian be so complacent about accepting ill health as something "natural"? Surely, ill health is not 'natural" if God is the essense of wholeness and perfection, besides whom incompleteness and imperfection cannot exist! How do you explain this?

5. A splendid testimony meeting would result, if for a period of say five or ten minutes, members present would commit themselves in single sentence testimonies, "To me, God is . . ." You will be surprised at the varying statements of God which you will hear.

6. Speaking of "The Master Workman," how does a master Christian workman differ in his standards, perhaps, from a master non-Christian workman? Describe your experience in dealing with men of perhaps humble calling, but whose standards of workmanship have been an uplift to your spirit.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

CHRISTIANS AT SCHOOL

Intermediate C. E. Topic, Sept. 12, 1937

Daily Bible Readings

Sept. 6. Marks of a Christian. Eph. 4:20-32
Sept. 7. Christians are honest. Phil. 4:8
Sept. 8. Christians are Christlike. Rom. 12:16-21
Sept. 9. Christians show self-control. 1 Cor. 9:24-27
Sept. 10. Christians go "the second mile." Matt. 5:38-42
Sept. 11. Christians obey Christ's sayings. Matt. 7:24-29
Sept. 12. Topic—Being Christian at School. 2 Tim. 2:15-26

Bible Background for Discussion

1. What marks of a Christian mentioned in this passage will you need to be Christian at school? Eph. 4:20-32.

2. When is a Christian's honesty put to a test at school? Phil. 4:8.

3. What occasions at school call for Christian self-control? 1 Cor. 9:24-27

4. What opportunities for going "the second mile" do we have at school? Matt. 5:38-42.

Discussing the Topic

1. In what ways is being Christian at school different from being Christian anywhere else?

2. What school rules and regulations help us in being Christian in our conduct?

3. Which one of Christ's teachings do you think hardest to put into practice in school? Why?

4. In what ways should Christian young people be different from other young people in school?

5. How can we witness for Christ in school?

Song Service

New Hymns. Do not sing the same songs at every meeting. Learn new ones. Take your hymn book and deliberately select one that fits your topic that you have never used before. Your pianist and song leader should have an opportunity to become familiar with it before the meeting. Other appropriate hymns are: "Jesus Calls Us," "I Would Be True," "More About Jesus," "I Would Be Like Jesus."

Call To Worship

"Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity." Plan your worship service with songs, scripture reading, prayer and offering.

A Special Talk

Have someone who knows the value of the "Quiet Hour" come in and give a ten minute talk on "The Quiet Hour as the Place of Preparation for Being Christian at School," at the close of the discussion period.

Closing Purpose

If this meeting is to be more than just another meeting with just another discussion, everyone who has been in it should have in his heart the desire to express something of a purpose with regard to his school life. The following might be read in unison:

"I am a follower of Christ.
I would seek first the ways of the kingdom of God.
I would follow the example of Jesus Christ, who lived a life of perfection among men.
I would stand fearlessly for the right in word, thought, and action.
I would face temptation, that it may strengthen my character.
I would meet temptation fearlessly and triumphantly.
I would resist temptation with all the power which I may gain through prayer and fellowship with God.
Because I am a follower of Christ."

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

Program Suggestions for September 12, 1937

LOOKING UNTO JESUS THE SAVIOUR OF THE WORLD

(For general outline of the month see last issue)

Preparation for the meeting: The pin-ons could be in little booklet forms tied with a bit of contrasting ribbon. On the outside could be the words: "What I Need." On the second sheet would appear the answer in the words: "Is Jesus." On the third leaflet could be the verse of the month. Your junior pin-on committee would enjoy doing this work for you. These helpers could be appointed at each meeting. Thus, in serving only once, they will be more anxious to serve again later. The poster could have the heading: "What the World Needs Is Jesus." Besides the invitation the poster would bear, the theme could be illustrated with a picture of the world and a picture of Christ leaning over the world or standing near the world.

Call to worship: Prelude of hymns

Opening Worship Service

1. In unison sing: "We praise Thee, O God, for the Son of Thy love"
2. Verses of praise. Distribute verses among the group pervious to meeting. Mark them by number so that the children can respond in turn
3. Response to verses of praise by singing in unison verses 1 and 2 of "O for a Thousand Tongues to Sing"
4. Rise and read in unison (Mennonite Hymnal, No. 60)

> O bless the Lord, my soul!
> His grace to thee proclaim!
> And all that is within me join
> To bless His holy name
> O bless the Lord, my soul!
> His mercies bear in mind!
> Forget not all His benefits!
> The Lord to thee is kind.
> He pardons all thy sins;
> Prolongs thy feeble breath;
> He healeth thine infirmities
> And ransoms thee from death.
> Then bless His holly name,
> Whose grace hath made thee whole;
> Whose loving-kindness crowns thy days!
> O bless the Lord, my soul!

5. Prayer by leader

Mission Minutes

The minutes are of great importance. These will lead the juniors to grow into interested and active members of our conference work or they may be minutes lost. They will need the leader's careful preparation. Perhaps these minutes can also become the link that shall unite the leaders also. Mrs. Cline gives you splendid suggestions for mission projects. She has a special section for you and your juniors in the Mission News and Notes. The Junior Messenger, too, is trying to interest juniors in missions. Keep these various projects before the children by letting them report about them as well as news from the various fields.

Announcements

Study Period

Aim: to lead into the truth: "The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." Your endeavor is a part of your church. The work of the Church of Christ is, first of all, the gathering of souls for the Kingdom, to lead lives to the Saviour of men. It then becomes our responsibility as workers in the church, to let Christ, the Saviour, have first place in all our planning. He must become the center of our work. Our programs must be Christ-centered and our lives also. What we have not experienced, we cannot pass on to others.

"Have Thine own way, Lord!
Have Thine own way!
Thou art the Potter;
I am the clay.
Mould me and make me
After Thy will,
While I am waiting,
Yielded and still.

Have Thine own way, Lord!
Have Thine own way!
Hold o'er my being absolute sway.
Fill with Thy Sipirt
Till all shall see
Christ only, always living in me!"

1. Introductory remarks as to theme of the evening. Let the chairman read "I Gave My Life for Thee"
2. Jesus Saves! Have a beautiful box or a low bowl on the table containing tiny rolls. Each one of these should bear a scripture verse with the thought: Jesus Saves. Let one junior be in charge. Let him step to the front to draw a verse and read it and then let him choose some other junior. This junior, having read his verse, chooses the third junior, etc. You, as leader, could stand near to receive the read verses and, putting a bit of paste on them, stick them on a sheet of poster paper which is headed "Jesus Saves!" If you prepare the verses in a decorative way your poster willl glow in color and could be used on the wall in some part of your Sunday School building.
3. Sing in unison: "We have heard the joyful sound: Jesus saves! Jesus saves!"
4. Jesus, the Saviour of the World, Jessus, My Saviour—Heart-talk by pastor.
5. Sing in unison: Just As I Am
6. Closing prayer and benediction by pastor

How wonderful Jesus is! He always wants us to come to Him. He never shuts the door when He sees us coming. No, He comes to meet us. There is never a time when He does not want one or the other of us. He says:

Come unto Me
All ye that labour
And are heavy laden,
I will give you rest.

DEATHS

MRS. JACOB A. KLAASSEN.—Sarah Unruh was born March 25, 1903, in the home of her parents, Brother and Sister Henry Unruh, seven miles west of Delft, Minnesota. Through instruction by her parents and at school she received the elements of knowledge. Then she spent the year 1927-1928 at the Northwestern Bible School in Minneapolis, Minn.

In her eighteenth year she was converted, took part in the catechetical instruction in the Bergfelder Church, received forgiveness of sin through the atonement of Jesus Christ, professed Him as her personal Savior, was baptized and received into membership of the church of which she remained a true and faithful member until the end. Once a member, she joyfully served the church as a Sunday school teacher the following years.

Dec. 11, 1929, she joined in the holy bonds of matrimony with Jacob A. Klaassen. With much joy, courage, and hope for life, they built their family home, at the same place where Brother Klaassen's parents had previously lived, and where, in 1908, a cyclone had carried away and destroyed all buildings, and also killed the youngest sister of the family. In their new home they were privileged to enjoy much happiness and contentment for a little more than seven and a half years, though they also experienced serious tribulation. But they found much comfort in God's Word, particularly in Psalm 27:14, "Wait on the Lord; be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart."

On Oct. 6, 1936, there appeared a certain ailment. A minor operation revealed the fact that it was cancer trouble. Another operation was performed Oct. 31, but the physicians had little hope for her recovery, nevertheless, she improved for a short time. On June 25 of this year the doctors gave up all hope—a sad moment in the life of the family. But looking to the Lord from whom comes all help, they overcame all fears and gained peace, trusting and waiting upon Him. On Thursday, July 22, she peacefully passed over into the home of the redeemed, free from all earthly disease. Praise and glory be to God!

She leaves her bereaved husband, a daughter, Ethel Edna, 6 years old, and a son, Glendon Jacob, 4 years old, also her aged parents, two brothers and two sisters, a sister-in-law, a father-in-law, and many other relatives and friends to mourn her early death. She attained the age of 34 years and nearly 4 months. She was laid to rest in the Mountain Lake cemetery, Sunday afternoon, July 25, Rev. H. H. Quiring officiating at the home, and the Reverends A. A. Wiebe, D. P. Eitzen, and John Bartel delivering short addresses at the church.

Pacific District Conference

Resolutions Passed at Its Last Session at Reedley, California, June 17-20, 1937

The following resolutions were adopted at the 38th ANNUAL SESSION OF THE PACIFIC DISTRICT CONFERENCE held at the First Mennonite Church at Reedley, California, June 17-20, 1937.

This session of the Conference was preceded by a minister's Retreat of two sessions on the 17th. Every session was opened with devotionals. Rev. D. D. Eitzen, President of the Conference, delivered the conference sermon Thursday evening, the 17th. In the absence of the secretary, Homer Leisy of Salem, Oregon, was appointed secretary pro-tem. Delegate Certificates revealed a 100 per cent representation, i. e., 15 churches with 76 delegates representing a total of 236 votes. Visitors present were: Missionary J. P. Suderman, Arizona, Rev. J. M. Regier, Bethel College, Kansas, and Rev. Jacob H. Janzen, Vancouver, B. C.

1. The Conference endorses Brother J. M. Regier's visit to the churches of the Pacific District Conference.

2. That the office of editor of the Workers' Exchange be separated from the Field Secretary and two offices be created.

3. That we encourage the Board of Education of the General Conference to continue their investigation of the best methods to provide the necessary training for our workers.

4. The newly revised constitution was adopted as amended, and a rising vote of thanks was given Dr. H. J. Krehbiel for his efficient work on the same.

5. That Brother P. R. Aeschliman continue his services at Newport the coming conference year as often as requested and that the allowance per trip be raised to $7.00.

6. Since the group of Mennonites residing at Deer Park have expressed the desire to organize, we recommend the encouragement and help toward such organization.

7. We recommend further that a worker be placed to work at Deer Park and Newport and a partial support be given for such service.

8. That the conference contribute $35.00 per month for pastor at Dallas, Oregon, and requests the congregation to contribute at least $20.00 per month.

9. That the Evangelization Committee represent the Conference in Dallas in the effort of that church to secure a better place of worship.

10. That $25.00 a month be allowed for the rent of living quarters of Miss Niswander in the coming conference year.

11. That the arrangement for supply preaching at Portland is to be continued as it was in the previous years.

12. In regard to Winton, the committee recommends that this field receive further consideration with the attempt to make a more definite investigation.

13. That the invitation from the First Mennonite church at Monroe, Washington, for the next conference session be accepted.

14. That the request of the Shafter, California, group be also referred to the Evangelization Committee.

16. That we grant the request of the Peace Committee for $25.00 for their work.

17. That the Budget submitted for 1937-1938 be adopted.

Dallas	$420.00
Deer Park and Newport	300.00
Portland	560.00
Printing Workers Exchange	60.00
Field Secrretary	100.00
Miscellaneous	35.00
Peace Fund	25.00
Bethel College Representative	50.00
Total	$1550.00

18. That we thank God, the Father, in the Name of Jesus Christ, for the opportunity of holding this conference again, unhindered, and for the many blessings we have received from Him.

19. That we thank the ministers and the members of the First Mennonite Church of Reedley for the Christian love, fellowship and hospitality which they have extended to the delegates and guests of the conference.

20. That we express our grateful appreciation to the Men's Chorus of the Reedley church for the inspiring program which they rendered, and to the Reedley Ladies' Chorus for the helpful numbers with which they served us.

21. That we send a vote of thanks and express our appreciation to Mrs. Newby of the Reedley Flower Shop and Mr. and Mrs. Mortensen of the Colonial Flower Shop for the very beautiful offerings of flowers which they made for our good.

22. That we express our sincere gratitude to Rev. P. R. Aeschliman for all the work that he has done as the FATHER OF THIS CONFERENCE.

23. That we express our appreciation, by rising, to the absentee members of our Conference, Brother Aeschliman, Brother Galle, and Brother Jantz for the helpful work they have done in the Pacific District Conference.

24. That we learn to appreciate Peace more and more, as a fruit of the Spirit (Gal. 5:22), as a way of life.

25. That the Workers' Retreat, held in connection with the annual sessions of the Pacific District Conference, be continued, and that the first session be devoted to the ministers and their problems, and the second session to the ministers and lay workers.

26. That we express our sincere appreciation and our hearty approval to Bethel College for placing further emphasis upon Bible Study by adding to the present course, and by establishing a special Bible Division.

27. That we do all in our power to encourage, instruct and teach the present and prospective workers among the young people of our District Conference.

28. That we impress upon our congregations and their auxiliaries, the need of using the literature and publications of the General Conference.

29. That the churches of the Pacific District Conference be encouraged to hold special services (protracted or revival meetings) with particular emphasis upon Bible Study, to further the religious life of our people.

30. That we enourage those, who read papers before this conference, to have them published in our Church Papers for the good which their messages may do to those who could not be present.

31. That we encourage our churches to make clear, through meaningful explanation and constructive teaching, what the conference understands by the Principles mentioned in Article 4 of our Constitution; and that Dr. Langenwalter be requested to write an explanation of Mennonite Principles in keeping with this resolution, for presentation at the next conference and, if approved, to be published in pamphlet form for use of the pastors and workers who desire to distribute them to interested people.

Officers and committee members elected for the ensuing year: President, Rev. P. A. Wedel; Vice President, Rev. Herbert A. Widmer; Secretary, Rev. M. J. Galle; Treasurer, John C. Lantz.

Evangelization Committee: Rev. W. Harley King, 1940; Rev. J. M. Franz, 1939; Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, 1938; Rev. S. S. Baumgartner as advisory member.

Business and Program Commitee — Rev. Lester Hostetler, 1940; Rev. P. A. Wedel, 1939; Homer Leisy, 1938.

Trustees, H. C. Wiebe and Reinhold Ewy, 1940; Carl Waltner, 1939; Ed Leisy and Elmer Widmer, 1938.

Bethel College Representative: L. J. Horsch and Rev. P. A. Wedel.

Conference adjourned.

Rev. D. D. Eitzen, President,
Homer Leisy, Secretary, Pro-tem.

« « JOTTINGS » »

— SILVER WEDDINGS.—Invitations are out for the silver wedding aniversary celebrations of Dr. Abraham and Mrs. Elizabeth Warkentin on Monday, August the 30th, at the First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, and Rev. and Mrs. Isaac J. Dick on Tuesday, August the thirty-first, at the First Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minn.

— From Rev. Howard G. Nyce, Allentown, Pa., Sunday program: "Speaking of the Mennonite! Perhaps YOU are one of those who is not enjoying the friendly weekly visitor—you should by all means subscribe at once. It costs only $1.50 a year and keeps you well informed about Conference activities. The Pastor will be glad to send in your name. THE MENNONITE should be in every Mennonite home."—On the next Sunday this pastor announced he had already received some subscriptions and was calling for more.

— DEAR PASTORS OF OUR CONFERENCE.—Kindly notice what this pastor is doing. He was present at the conference session in Upland, where he helped vote to place one of our church papers in every home and takes that resolution seriously. WERE YOU AT UPLAND, TOO? Did you vote for the motion? If so, what have you done to make it effective? Maybe you have forgotten. If so, kindly do something now.

— The Bethany Mennonite Church, Freeman, S. D., has isued a call for candidacy to Rev. H. N. Harder, who is serving a Western District Mission church at Enid, Okla., as pastor. The Harders are expected to visit Freeman soon, to become acquainted with the people of the church and become better known to them.

— MENNONITE CHURCH OF CHRISTIAN, Moundridge, Kans.—On Sunday, Aug. 8, Rev. P. P. Wedel, pastor of the church, and his family had a surprise long to be remembered. After the services in a short program they were told that a brand new car, a Chevrolet Master Deluxe Sport Sedan, standing in front of the church, was theirs to keep and use, and Rev. Wedel accepted the gift with deeply felt words of appreciation for this token of love by the congregation.

— The Mennonite Church at Shafter, Calif., is erecting a nice, up-to-date church building that has been greatly needed, for up until now they have held services in the old grammar school building. In an early number we shall bring a picture and brief write-up of the new building.

— Friends of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Wiens who recently took up residence at Newton, Kansas, will be sorry to learn that the couple are planning to move to Washington state for the sake of improving Mrs. Wiens impaired health.

What a wonderful school system we have, in which a child, beginning in the kindergarten, can go on, step by step, up through the grades, high school, college or university, with free tuition all the way through. Yes, its splendid. But one thing is sadly lacking in most of the schools, instruction in the Fear of God.

— Prof. E. J. Hirschler of Bluffton, Ohio, is the newly elected president of the Middle District Conference; E. S. Mullet, Napanee, Ind., vice president; J. Roth, Wayland, Iowa, secretary, and Rev. J. E. Amstutz, Trenton, O., treasurer.

— Wedding at Souderton, Pa.—Miss Ida Erb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Erb, was recently united in marriage to Francis Zellner by the pastor, Rev. Ernest Bohn, at the bride's home.—Church Bulletin.

— THE MENNONITE would like to bring brief reports of the Western District Retreat and also of the one held at Shipshewana. Who will furnish them?

— In some of the churches of the Eastern District it seems to be the custom that the good sisters can a few extra jars of fruit for the benefit of the Home of the Aged at Frederick.—A fine and practical type of service! The Home deposits the empty cans at the respective churches.

— Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Suckau, Berne, Ind., have motored to Portland, Maine, to bring back their daughter Edna, secretary to a pastor there, now employed to teach in the Monroe, Ind., schools. On their way home they will stop at Stony Brook, N. Y., to take along their son Dr. Theo. Suckau, teacher in an exclusive boy's school, for a vacation.—Berne Witness.

— Brother C. B. Friesen, a teacher at Mt. Lake, Minn., who is selling Bibles and other books during vacation, uses the occasion to take subscriptions for our church papers. He has just sent in two subscriptions for the Mennonite.

— The Zion Mennonite Congregation, Moundridge, Kansas, is reconstructing its church building. The project includes: A full basement, 43 by 75 under the raised building, to provide a large assembly room in the center, three class rooms, a kitchen, heating room, and rest rooms; a new heating system will be installed and the front of the building will be remodeled in an attractive design.

— Recently Pastor Martin Niemoeller, a leader in the German confessional synod, revealed that 102 Protestant pastors were placed in prison in June. Some of these were later released, but so many of the clergy have been jailed from time to time that the church work has been crippled.

— While the Board of Publication is looking for a permanent manager of the Mennonite Book Concern, Brother Fred von Gunten who has been with the business a few years, is filling the place quite acceptably. This being the case the Board is in no particular hurry to act on the selection of a permanent manager, for which position four applications have already come in, so others still have a chance to apply. Mr. von Gunten got married the other day. Congratulations!

— THE CENTRAL CONFERENCE is holding its session at Washington, Ill., Aug. 20-22. Among those on the program, whom many of our readers know, are: Rev. A. E. Kreider, who is scheduled to give eight devotional addresses; Rev. A. C. Wieand, Chicago, and Rev . F. J. Enns and Dr. R. T. Unruh, both on furlough from missions in the African Congo.

GIVING OFFENCE TO "LITTLE ONES."—The writer knows a gentleman who is not a Christian but who has many characteristics of one. He is one of the type to whom Jesus said, "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God . . . but one thing thou lackest, come, take up the cross and follow me." When a boy he started to go to Sunday School. One Sunday after the session his coat had disappeared and nobody seemed to show any concern about its recovery. He has not been in Sunday School since. Then, after he was married, he started to go to church with his bride. But he had not been attending long, when some un-Christian member of the church cheated him in a business transaction, and that ended his church-going. Such treatment by Christians is what Jesus vehemently condemns, when he says, "It were better for (them) him that a millstone were hanged about (their) his neck and he cast into the sea, than that he should offend one of these little ones," for wasn't this man one of the type regarded as the little ones in faith. This is one of the uncountable instances where persons are estranged from Sunday school or church, or both, by indifferent or un-Christian treatment on the part of those who profess to be Christians; whereas heart-felt interest in them, coupled with Christian deeds of sympathy and love might have won them for the church and Christ. Jesus not only asks this much of his disciples, but he bids them, "Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled."

Hunting Hidden Prizes.—When God set the world agoing, he hid here, there, everywhere, great prizes to be sought out by his human children, especially those who have eyes to see sharply and patience to search for thing hidden deeply. It is just as when parents hide Easter eggs and children all scramble about for some of them, but with only very few as prize winners. From time to time, through the centuries, the treasures are found in the fastness of the eternal hills, maybe it's a great truth, an outstanding poem, a treasured book, the discovery of a new cure to relieve human suffering; treasures of art—in the form of a powerful oratorio echoing heavenly music, or a temple of worship in the form of a cathedral, or an invaluable painting—,and most of all and above all the multitudes of treasures—precious prizes many of them—between the covers of the Bible. And, thanks to God's eternal love, there have been found those among his children who had the understanding and inspiration to multiply this book—THE BOOK—into many, many tongues, so that his children all over the world —black, white, yellow, red, brown—might all possess it and use it as their light upon the way.

BUDDING INNOCENCE. — One day Heinrich Heine, the German poet, met a charming little girl that reminded him of a flower just blossoming forth into its full beauty. Immediately he penned that poetic jewel, "Du bist wie eine Blume," of which the following is a rather crude translation:

You are just like a flower
So sweet and fair and pure;
I look at you and sadness
Entwines my feeling heart.

Methinks that I should gently lay
My hands upon your head,
Praying that God may keep you,
So pure and fair and sweet.

Where is the father, mother, or other thoughtful person who hasn't experienced feelings just like Heine's at the sight of a sweet, innocent child? O, how we would like to keep them pure, sweet, innocent! At the same time we expect them to grow into young men and women, and we realize that they will soon have to come in contact with and live in a sinful world with its many temptations. Some of our readers will see their innocent little hopefuls enter school this fall, with surroundings and influences not to their liking. They can't be there in person to protect them. But God has his guardian angels, and parents and friends can daily pray that God would send one of these to go with Johnny or Mary, step by step, to shield them and preserve as much of their innocence and purity as possible.

HOME MISSIONS

HOME MISSION NOTES FROM CANADA

David Toews

As is generally known throughout the churches of our General Conference, we have an extensive field of home mission work in Canada, where in late years some 21,000 have come from Russia and are trying to establish homes for themselves and for their families in the different Provinces. Our Conference has seen the need of enabling a number of our immigrant brethren to do itinerary work in the different groups.

When our immigrants came in, it became necessary to find homes for them, establish them on the land as farmers. We had to take the land where we found it and it was not always possible to settle them in larger groups. We have them in about 250 groups. Some of these groups are very small, others are larger; and quite a number of our incoming people have been able to settle among the old settlers.

Our Conference has helped to build a number of churches in our larger or smaller settlements. The following settlements having received help for this purpose: Rabbit Lake, Sask., Hanley, Sask., Dundurn, Sask., Herschel, Sask., Great Deer, Sask., and lately also Swift Current and Wymark, Sask. In all these churches, except the last two named, regular services are being held every Sunday. The latter two are to be dedicated in September. Also in the Province of Alberta, Manitoba and British Columbia help was given as loans and in some cases smaller sums as gifts. In Ontario the church at Vineland was built and paid for with the help of our Conference. In many places primitive churches have been built very cheaply by the immigrants themselves. Some sixty or seventy churches have been built by the immigrants since they came in.

In Ontario, Brother H. P. Lepp is working among the pioneers in the forests of the north. He has been receiving $15.00 a month, now $20.00. If it would not have been for this support, he could not have stayed because it would have been impossible to support his family in that forest region.

Brother P. A. Remple during the summer months is working in Waterloo, Ont., where difficulties have arisen and help was badly needed.

In Manitoba, Brother J. P. Klassen has been doing itinerary work for a number of years. He has been sick with eczema for about five or six years. But in spite of his ailment he is going through the groups, ministering to them.

Brother J. H. Enns is also doing itinerary work in Manitoba, and during the winter he instructs a number of young people, preparing them for work in the congregations. Brother J. P. Bueckert does the same kind of work in that Province, and so does Brother F. F. Enns of Whitewater, Man. These brethren have some eighty groups to visit.

In Saskatchewan we have Brother J. J. Klassen going through the groups and churches, who in his quiet unassuming way has been a real blessing to many. Other ministers are getting a small support of $15.00 to $25.00 and are doing a very faithful work.

Of late our Conference has also started a work in the Swift Current district. Most of the people in that district are not immigrants but belong to the Old Colony class whose ministers have gone to Mexico and Paraguay and have left their flocks shepherdless. We consider this a very needy field and Brother N. W. Bahnmann does a very effective work. He is getting $40.00 a month and I believe the church is taking care of his board.

This year Saskatchewan has a total crop failure and the Swift Current district has had about seven crop failures in succession. Many of them get support from the Government, while many others, in spite of all the crop failures, managed to get along without this support. How they can along without support this year, is hard to see. Many of our people in Saskatchewan are looking for new homes somewhere else, others are going far and wide looking for places where there might be feed for their stock. The total crop failure in Saskatchewan is considered a national calamity. We had hoped that finally we would be able to get along without help from the outside, but we are again disappointed in our hopes this year. We find that in conditions of this kind spiritual care and encouragement is particularly needed. Of late we have had a number of hardships in Russia and through so many disappointments in this country are losing courage.

In Alberta crops are very poor, except in the South where they have irrigation. The brethren C. D. Harder, W. Martens and J. D. Nickel are ministering to the different flocks that are scattered from the American boundary on to the Peace River district. In the north the crops seemed to be fairly good.

In British Columbia, Brother J. H. Janzen is doing faithful work in about ten or more groups. Two or three churches have been built of late, some of them receiving some help from outside. Churches are needed.

We also have the girls homes in Winnipeg and in Saskatoon, where faithful work is being done, and girls are gathering in the homes on Thursday afternoons and on Sundays. These homes prove a protection to the girls in the large citiess. There is also a girls' home in Vancouver which is being conducted by Brother and Sister Janzen.

Trusting that our Brethren in the United States and Canada will not grow weary in well-doing, but will continue to remember these Canadian brethren, members of our own houshold of the faith, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

David Toews.

THE WITNESS IN ORAIBI AND ITS FRUIT

Mrs. J. P. Suderman

Dicie is a Hopi girl about 13 years old. She is in the ninth grade. Her mother, Lillian, has never confessed Christ as her Savior. Her father, Roland, was baptized when in his youth he went to a government school away from Oraibi. Yet, in his own village amongst his own people, he has not professed his faith in Christ. Hence neither of the parents attend church.

Dicie has witnessed her girl friends one by one accept Jesus Christ and be baptized. For over a year she too has at intervals been under strong conviction of her need of Jesus Christ. At times she was visibly miserable. Some of you Junior and Intermediate girls have sent in some stamped goods with floss or money for such work for these Hopi children, to sew on in Bible and sewing classes on Saturday. On one such Saturday afternoon recently it was rainy and I was physically very weary; but I prayed the Lord that He might send whomever He would to the mission, in spite of the rain. Only about 8 girls came. One was Dicie. She was then working on a stamped dresser scarf. In our Bible story hour we had a picture of a mother and her child opening their house door in answer to Jesus' knock, inviting Him to come in. As I was telling how Jesus stands at our hearts' doors and knocks, yet will not enter unless we bid Him do so, Dicie sat there silently weeping. We can only tell these Hopis of God's love for them, even though they are under His wrath because of sin, and under condemnation for eternal death, that Jesus died in their place and by accepting Him they are made free. God has to draw their hearts, work faith in them and cause them to open their hearts to receive Jesus. So Dicie was committed to God in prayer. A little over a week later she yielded and publicly confessed Jesus Christ as her Savior. Now she is free. It is so noticeable in her face and attitude. The misery is gone and she is happy. In her prayers she thanks the Lord for dying in her place, for saving her and prays that God may save her father, mother, brothers and sisters.

Two other girls, Bernice Lomayesva and Pearl Talas, and two boys, Alvin Lomavitu and Fieldnig Q. are joining her for baptism in the near future. Lucinda Jenkins also desires it, but for the second time her father, Sam Jenkins, forbids her baptism. Pray much for these young lives that a true work of God may be completed in their hearts before they are baptized. (Written Apr. 20, 1937).

(Continued on June 11)—A few Sundays before Pentecost (Day of Baptism) our church bell did not ring, so I went to the homes to gather these girls and boys for instruction. We had already heard that Dicie's parents were unwilling to let her be baptized. When I came to get Dicie her mother had set her to baking cookies, just to keep her from coming. But though I noticed the situation, I asked Dicie, "Would you like to come to church with me for a while?" With an eager "Yes" she removed the pan of cookies from the stove, left her work and came with me. When we came to Bernice's home she was nowhere to be seen. Her mother met me with the words, "Fred (the father) says Bernice dare not be baptized." The following Saturday in our girls' sewing and Bible class as I was reading a story of how a little girl loved Jesus and, upon hearing her mother say that Jesus was coming soon, had washed her hands and face, put on a clean dress and then was found looking out of an attic window waiting to welcome Jesus at His coming, Bernice just dropped her work, left her seat, and came and sat near me, longing for love and sympathy.

RELIEF

FLOOD CAUSES SERIOUS DAMAGE AND GREAT SUFFERING IN INDIA

The following Cablegram was received by the Foreign Mission Board:

JANGIR, AUG. 11

"BIRRA STATION SERIOUSLY DAMAGED. UNPRECEDENTED FLOOD. NO LIVES LOST. ALL SMALLER BUILDINGS DAMAGED OR DESTROYED. CHRISTIANS HOMELESS. FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED.—'PENNER.'"

This report speaks for itself. About ten dwellings of native helpers are included. The Foreign Mission Board has requested the Emergency Relief Board to share with them in the relief work in behalf of the poor heathen and our unfortunate Christian converts. Let us manifest our Christian love toward them.

Please forward your donations to our Treas. Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kans. and God will reward you richly.

By request of the Emergency Relief Board,
John C. Mueller, Sec.

RELIEF NOTES

Compiled by O. O. Miller and A. Warkentin
Menn. Central Committee Receipts and Expenditures
July 1, 1936—July 1, 1937

On July 15th, shipment of three bales of clothing, weight 381 lbs., valued at $200.00, was forwarded from Lancaster, Pa., to Paraguay, via S. S. Western World. This clothing came to Mellinger's Church following the April sending, and is now en route to help supply the same need.

Brother P. C. Hiebert, chairman of the M. C. C., writes from Buenos Aires, Argentina, June 6th, that he was somewhat ahead of schedule due to using Condor Air Service from Florianopolis, Brazil, to Buenos Aires. At that time of writing, Brother Hiebert's visit to the five largest groups of Mennonites in Brazil had been completed. He reports these groups cheered at learning through this personal visit to them again of the continual interest in their welfare by the Northern American brotherhood. He expected to meet the leaders of the Paraguay Colony at Asuncion and to spend about a month among the Paraguayan brethren. His return passage, as arranged, brings him to New York, Sept. 1.

Correspondence from Paraguay dated June 19th, again confirmed this as being a good crop year. The cotton crop was even better than had been estimated just a month earlier—and the price received by the farmers considerably higher than in 1936. Colony leader Siemens states that new courage is manifest all around, and that there is again a stronger faith that the new home can be successfully established in the Chaco. He also states that just then the most difficult and discouraging feature of their colony life is the decision of a large group to move to a new Paraguayan location. No suitable place had yet been found; but the Committee representing 154 families in this group were on the third trip in their search.

In the next issue of Relief Notes we hope to have Brother Hiebert's comments on this situation.

Dr. Adolph Keller, Director of the Central Bureau for Relief of the Evangelical Churches of Europe, reports the following happening to the Hutterian settlement near Kassel, Germany:

"On April 14th the German Secret Police raided the "Bruderhof" at Roehn, near Kassel, a settlement of the Hutterian Brethren, an evangelical fellowship whose views on war resemble those of the Moravians and Mennonites. The police, reinforced by fifty or sixty troopers, demanded that all the inmates leave the institution within 24 hours. Several of the Brothers were arrested; 45 were permitted to leave the country, of whom 31 are now in Holland, the rest in Liechtenstein.

This group of devoted Christians, who live strictly according to Biblical law, earned their living by operating a model farm, binding and restoring rare books and manuscripts. They were compelled to leave all personal and communal property behind, each individual being allowed only one suit of clothes. Part of these refugees may find accommodations at a similar settlement in the Cotswolds, England; others will seek to emigrate to Columbia."

Brethren John Horsch, Scottdale, Pa., and Harold Bender, Goshen, Ind., from other sources have had this information confirmed as substantially correct. A Holland Mennonite Committee has befriended and helped this exiled group as best they could and is helping them settle in England.

But more help is needed. The Mennonite Central Committee is in a position to and will gladly forward any gifts designated for Hutterian Relief. During last year several hundred dollars were so forwarded.

In all other human gifts and passions, though they advance nature, yet they are subject to excess; but charity alone admits no excess. For so we see, by aspiring to be like God in power the angels transgressed and fell; by aspiring to be like God in knowledge man transgressed and fell; but by aspiring to be like God in goodness or love, neither man nor angel ever did or shall transgress. For unto that imitation we are called.—Bacon.

Schools and Education

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

J. D. Unruh, Freeman College

I. While this article is being written the Christian Endeavor Society of the Salem Church near Freeman, South Dakota, is investigating the feasibility of helping an Indian girl to a year or more of training in the academy of Freeman Junior College. The girl is from the Cheyenne Reservation in Montana and is at present attending a government school in South Dakota, according to information given by Missionary Habegger and wife. Should the Society find a workable plan to bring this about it would mean much to the girl. She could complete her high school training in an atmosphere that is more conducive to her spiritual well-being. It would more completely equip her to become a real influence for good when she returns to the reservation. To the Society, and the school also, would flow blessings through such an undertaking. There are no doubt many Christian Endeavor Societies and Missionary Sewing Circles in our Conference that are now supporting Bible women and such like in far away China and India. While this work is very commendable, one wonders sometimes how many opportunities we neglect that lie at our very door steps. Certainly there are deserving students here at home, not only on Indian reservations but in our own circles, whose lives could be made to be very useful in God's Kingdom if only means were at hand to help them to a Christian training. Societies unwilling to assume complete responsibility for such an undertaking might well consider the plan of making contributions from time to time to the scholarship fund of the Board of Education of our General Conference.

WHAT WE NEED

"What America needs more than railway extension and western irrigation, and low tarriff and a bigger wheat crop, and a merchant marine and a new navy, is a revival of piety—the kind father and mother used to have—a piety that counted it good business to stop for daily prayer before breakfast—right in the middle of harvest quit work a half hour early Wednesday night so as to get ready for Prayer-meeting." —Wall Street Journal.

CHILDREN IN SPAIN.—Horror piles on horror as the Spanish war drags on. The most horrible of all is that story of the Spanish children. One day a shipload of them were snatched from the jaws of the war and brought for safety to the sweet green fields of England. The day they got there, an English aviator flew over their camp, and the children went screaming mad with fear. They thought he was another bomber, and the cry went up, "They've followed us here!"

This is bad enough, but what worries us is the army of children still in Spain, the children who didn't and who can't get out to England, or anywhere else. There were more than a million refugees in Loyalist territory in February. There were 250,000 children, then, in refugee colonies. Last month we read that there were still 116,000 children under fourteen in Madrid. The Nationalists have 30,000 they can't care for. When Malaga was evacuated, 5,000 children under ten years of age were on the highways, trying to get out, and at least 1,000 of them had no shoes and a single ragged garment to clothe them. Those who couldn't walk were left to starvation, tuberculosis, and sudden death by shell fire, and worse.

But there's a rift in this black cloud. The American Friend's Service Committee is sending Quakers into Spain. The Quaker would go. It's a habit with him; he's always done that. Hating war with all his mighty soul, he is doing what he can for the children, with all his strength and both hands. Soup kitchens are being set up among both Loyalists and Rebels. Clothing gathered in America and England, is being distributed to those who need it, regardless of their politics or which side they're on. It is the old Quaker spirit. It deserves the admiration and the help of every decent Christian, in Christendom. Christian Herald would suggest the Quaker now as candidate for this year's Nobel Prize.

Kipling began a poem with these words:

"If you can keep your head while those about you are losing theirs, and blaming it on you . . . ."

The Friends are doing it. Keeping their heads while the rest of us lose ours, and doing the job that most needs be done right now: the rescuing of Spain's children from the ghastly pains of war.—Christian Herald.

FROM MENNONITE, AUGUST 10, 1937

"It is our duty as Christians, and high time to help bring Relief to these poor children in Spain; for their lot is pitiable, in innumerable instances heart-rending. Their homes destroyed, their fathers and, possibly also their mothers killed, they wander about in rags, hungry, sick, not knowing where to go for protection. —Send all gifts to Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kan.

John Lichti, Chairman Relief Board.

Sermon Sketch

A MORE EXCELLENT WAY

It is sad, but nevertheless true, that so many Christians live on such a low plane of spiritual life. Apparently this has been true throughout the history of the Christian Church, for the epistles of the New Testament contain numerous exhortations to Christians not to forget or overlook the higher and better things of the Christian life. To the Romans the warning was given not to mind the things of the flesh, but rather to devote themselves to the things of the Spirit. The Corinthians were exhorted to follow, "the more excellent way," the way of perfect love. The Galatians were in danger of lapsing into legalism and of assuming, although they had begun in the Spirit, they could be made perfect by work of the law. Others were urged to approve things that were "excellent" lest they should be satisfied with those which were merely good. Similar conditions exist today. What spiritually minded pastor has not been burdened because many of his people are so easily satisfied in spiritual things and are not pressing on to the deeper things of God. To such a pastor, the temptation is always present either to become discouraged, because of the situation, or to resort to some harsh methods inconsistent with the kindliness of a true shepherd of a flock as a means of stirring up his people to higher spiritual attainments. John Wesley gave some very helpful advice along this line. He said:

"From long experience and observation, I am inclined to think that whoever finds redemption in the blood of Jesus, whoever is justified, has then the choice of walking in the higher or the lower path. I believe the Holy Spirit at that time sets before him the 'more excellent way,' and incites him to walk therein, to choose the narrowest path in the narrow way, to aspire after the heights and depths of holiness—after the entire image of God. But if he does not accept this offer, he insensibly decliness into the lower order of Christians. He still goes on in what may be called a good way, serving God in his degree, and finds mercy in the close of life, through the blood of the covenant.

"I would be far from quenching the smoking flax—from discouraging those who serve God in a low degree. But I could not wish them to stop here; I would encourage them to come up higher, without thundering hell and damnation in their ears. Without condemning the way wherein they were, telling them it is the way to destruction, I will endeavor to point out to them what is, in every respect, 'a more excellent way.'

"Let it be well remembered, I do not affirm that all who do not walk in this way are in the high road to hell. But this much I must affirm, they will not have so high a place in heaven as they would have had if they had chosen the better part."—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II, page 267.—Herald of Holiness.

A NATION NEEDS RELIGIOUS HOMES

Deut. 6:4, 5; 11:18-25

Topic: The Influence of Christian Homes in a Nation's Life.

Introduction

As long as a nation needs religion, it will need religious homes, for religion is nurtured chiefly in the home. Irreligious homes mean an irreligious community, state, nation, and increasing lawlessness. Religious homes train and prepare the youth on whom the future welfare of the nation depends. Religious homes must necessarily recognize God as supreme, so He gave to His people of old:

The First and Great Commandment, vs. 4, 5

Man's first duty is to love God supremely. Every faculty of the mind, soul and body is to be consecrated to His service. Israel was surrounded by nations who believed in many gods, so the fundamental truth of One Supreme God, Lord needed to be deeply impressed on their minds and hearts. Him they—we—are to love with all the power of thought, affection, of the whole personality.

Religion for the Parents vs. 18, 20

God saw clearly the fundamental need of a deeply religious home influence. The first essential of a truly Christian home is that its members be Christian in fact, followers of Christ. Parents are responsible for the religious, Christian standards of the home. They must set the example in Bible-study and family worship. The admonition to parents is very direct in verses 18 and 20. "YE shall lay up my words," and "Thou shalt write them." God's Word must be "laid up" on the tablet of our heart to become transmuted into character and holy living. God is saying in these verses that His words shall be constantly kept in mind, shall have a prominent place in all of life, be woven into the very texture of our being.

Religion for the Children, v. 19

God must be brought into the home and the domestic life. Upon parents rests the obligation to teach to children the great moral and spiritual truths about God. "Ye shall teach them your children." God's laws, words are intended to be a common theme of conversation in the home. By conversation, precept and example parents are to teach their children so as to build up in them a strong faith in God. Such a faith, rooted and grounded, fostered in a God-centered home in childhood days, will bear rich fruit in later and mature life. God clearly indicates that religious, Christian instruction of children is to begin early in life in the home. The early childhood years are very important in the formation of character.

God promised notable blessings to His people, conditioned on their obedience (vs. 21-25); long life, prosperity, strength, much territory. God governs the nations on the same principles to day. We too must begin in our national life, with the family, the home. Christian homes are the bulwark of our nation's welfare and life.

Nuggets of Truth

Youths who have no Christian home background are not likely to have it anywhere else.

The Scripture one has "laid up" in his mind and lives it out in life, alone really benefits one.

God should be our first thought in every relation of life.

The Christian home is "the bulwark of the nation."

Religion stabilizes the home.

If youth is to be made God-conscious, adults must make public profession of their faith.

The Taking up of Arms According to God's Word

Martha Woelke

Psalm 119:33: Teach me O Lord the way and I shall keep it. I went to the Lord in prayer and earnestly sought to see his will in the above mentioned subject. And He heard my prayer. Praise His name! I have definitely arrived at the conclusion that God's laws governing and pertaining to: Thou shalt not kill, between brother and brother, home-born and stranger, within their gate, are not to be confused with God's commands and laws in regard to taking up arms and taking human life in time of war.

We read in the Old Testament, Exodus 20:13: "Thou shall not kill," and in the New Testament, Matth. 5:21-22: "Ye have heart that it was said by them of old time, 'Thou shall not kill,' but I, Jesus, say unto you, That whosoever is angry with his brother, without a cause, shall be in danger of judgment." Furthermore we read in the Old Testament, Leviticus 24:19: "If a man cause a blemish in his neighbour, as he has done, so shall it be done to him." Breach for breach, eye for eye, tooth for tooth. In the New Testament we read, Matth. 5:38-48: "Ye have heard that it hath been said: An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, but I, Jesus, say unto you: That ye resist not evil,"—kindly read to the end of the chapter. Verse 48: "Be ye therefore perfect as your Father in heaven..." Matth. 7:12: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that man should do to you, do ye even so to them: this is the law and the prophets."

Concerning the taking up of arms in time of war we read in the Old Testament in Deuteronomy 20:1: "When thou goest out to battle against thine enemies and seest a people more than thou, be not afraid of them; for the Lord thy God is with thee." Verse 3: "Ye approach this day unto battle against your enemies, let not your heart faint, fear not, and do not tremble. Verse 4: "For the Lord your God is he that goeth with you to fight for you. Verse 8: "The officers shall say, What man is there that is fearful and fainthearted? let him go and return unto his house." Please read the complete chapter. Also Numbers 1: 2-4, 47-54: "Take ye the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel after their family—every male—from twenty years old and upward, all that are able to go forth to war. Verse 47: But the Levites were not numbered for the Lord hath spoken—only thou shalt not number the tribe of Levi, but thou shalt appoint the Levites over the tabernacle of testimony and they shall minister unto it and shall encamp round about the tabernacle of testimony." Therefore the Levites don't take the sword to fight as the Lord has commanded, through Moses. As we find no new laws in the New Testament governing this matter, we will have to be guided by the above chapters. In Matth. 24:6, Jesus says: "And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars, see that ye be not troubled, for all these things must come." Verse 7: Nation shall rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom." Verse 14: And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world, for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come."

Now I wish to make a few closing remarks on the taking up of arms in the New Testament. In Matth. 26:36 we read: "Then cometh Jesus with them unto the disciples, Sit ye here, while I, Jesus, go and pray." Verses 39 and 42: "My Father, if it be possible let this cup pass from me...but as thou wilt." Verse 45: "Behold the hour is at hand." Verse 46: "Rise, let us be going—he is at hand." Verse 50: "Then came they and laid hand on Jesus." Verse 51: "Behold one of them which were with Jesus drew his sword and struck a servant. Verse 52: "Then said Jesus unto him, Put up again thy sword unto his place. These words were addressed to Peter and to the disciples. We thereby see that the Apostles were called to preach and set aside from military service. Matth. 28:16-20 we read: "Then the eleven disciples went unto a mountain where Jesus had appointed them and Jesus came saying, Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

These were Jesus' last words. So his disciples, preachers, missionaries, evangelists are free from military service. As the Levites for Israel, so the Disciples for the Christian, are free from taking up arms, after the Lord's command. (Matt. 26:52.)

Praise ye the Lord! Amen.

My reason for writing this is as follows: I have lived in the United States for 55 years, but have not been a citizen, now 75 years old. During my examination I was asked about taking up arms if the United States were in war. This brought me in trouble and I went into prayer. I went to study in my Bible and thanks to God, He helped me. Job. 12:9: "Who knoweth not in all these, that the hand of the Lord hath wrought this?" So I send this to you and other Mennonites to study it with the Holy Spirit. Since June 17 I am a citizen. Thanks to God and the Judge. Psalm 106:3-5.

History of the Flatland Mennonite Church, Quakertown, Pa.

Prepared and read by Dr. S. M. Grubb, June 6th, at the 100th Anniversary Commemoration of the erection of the present Meeting House

It is the destiny of old men to live in the past—to be looking back to a golden age—to dreams—so said the Prophet Joel and so said Peter on that memorable Pentecostal morning. The young see visions—the glories of the coming years are before them. It is their opportunity to make these visions come true. The experiencess of the past have much to teach us and the hopes of the future have much to inspire. We gather here today to meditate upon what the past hundred years have meant to the fathers and mothers who were accustomed to gather here, and to pledge our loyalty and our efforts to the ideals for which they stood.

In the story of every church there comes to light the memory of men and women who bore the burdens and the heat of the day and who often had to endure the opposition and even hatred of unsympathetic ones. Every landmark in the story of a church tells of unselfish and persistant efforts to keep the light burning and prepare the fields for future and better harvests.

Today we stand under the eaves of a shrine that once resounded with the voices of men whom we have come to regard as our fathers in God. Can we forget Father Oberholtzer? That gregarious little man of giant leadership—a man of vision, an able teacher, a master of eloquent address, a leader of thought, an exponent of scripture, an editor of no mean ability, a maker of locks and even a concoctor of artificial honey, as a side line. We think of him as the champion and mouthpiece of a group of earnest people who chafed under the yoke of an ecclesiastical combination and who sought the right to greater expression. It was because of the vision of Father Oberholtzer that our General Conference came into being, which now comprises a fellowship extending from Canada to the Gulf and from ocean to ocean. It was he who stimulated an interest in foreign missions among the American Mennonites. From him higher education received support when to do so, at that time, was regarded as a sort of herecy among Mennonites. His little printing press erected in the corner of his blacksmith shop gave to our brotherhood a medium of expression hitherto unavailable. My recollection of him from childhood days brings to mind a cheerful old man with a merry twinkle in his eyes and a genius for attracting children that made him for the time being one of them. "Der alter John," as he came to be known when the weight of years began to tell upon him, never came to be too old to love and be loved by children .The mysterious disappearance of his only son "Davy" only intensified his love for other people's children. Whatever there happens to be in the lives of men that attracts the hearts of young people is a heaven bestowed gift that makes lovely their memory.

Here too there are many who recall Father A. B. Shelly and his untiring labors for the upbuilding of the kingdom of God. A few minutes over hard roads and the modern auto will carry one from the Shelly home to this place, but those of us who remember will recall that even this short journey as we regard it today, was often a trying if not a dangerous one when weather conditions were unfavorable. Without complaint Father Shelly travelled this road in all kinds of weather, here to minister to his little flock. He, too, was a man of large vision. It was he who had the confidence of the General Conference to the extent of being called to its office of Moderator time and again. What would be the story of our missions had it not been for the conservative but deeply concerned attitude of Father Shelly as a member and secretary of our Foreign Mission Board? As the pastoral mantel of Father Oberholtzer fell upon him so did the editorial tasks that were involved in editing the "Friedens Bote," which for a period of years was the official mouthpiece of our Conference. In his editorial chair his influence extended far beyond the confiness of his parish or even his local conference. When in the early 70's the mass migration of Russian Mennonites into the United States called for assistance and direction of friendly brethren, Brother Shelly gave freely of his ability, time and assistance.

Since the time of Father Oberholtzer and his successor Father Shelly, others have taken up the work here and consecrated their efforts and abilities to it. It would be a delight to numerate our appreciation of these faithful stewards who have continued the work of Oberholtzer and Shelly, but it is not within our province or the limits of time to make this possible. Let it suffice to say that the services at Flatland never lacked a ministry.

A hundred years may not cover more than a line in the history of the world, nevertheless every century is marked with a decided contribution to the progress of the race. There are older churches and there are churchess that may have had a larger field of influence, but this little meeting house stands as a symbol of three generations and more of development both in our own church and in the community. More than any other of our churches, Flatland has been a community center and has had the sympathetic patronage of the community.

The simplicity of a Meeting House in contrast with what we regard as a church is outstanding. Until not so very long ago it was the custom in Pennsylvania German parlence to speak of the "Kirche Lite" in distinction to members of the plain sects. Writers in the early days of Quakerism spoke of churches in accents of contempt as steepled houses. It is doubtful whether Mennonites ever concerned themselves about whether their neighbors had steepled houses in which to worship. It was but a natural trend for them to keep their houses of worship as simple as were their lives. Ornate buildings just didn't suggest themselves to them when it came to erecting the structures in which to gather for their spiritual edification. Most earlier meeting houses were of logs. It was but quite natural for them to use the materials nearest at hand that called for little skilled labor in their use. The next generation, however, used other nearby material, more enduring than logs, in the shape of local stone. The members of the church at this time had come into slightly better financial circumstances and were able to contribute money for carpenters and masons instead of logs and volunteer labor. That it occurred to them to erect something more substantial than ornamental, is evidenced by the numerous small meeting houses that remain today in a shape as good as the day they were erected. Mennonites have never been a show people, but what they did and wanted was something that would wear well. This was manifested in their choice of clothing, the management of their farms and in building homes and meetings houses. We like to think that their religion was of the lasting kind rather than of the impulsive, effervescent kind that lacked stability.

It is a source of satisfaction to note that some of the older buildings remain today and are still used, when the trend of things is to discard things just because they are old. Often in modernized things, however, we destroy the effect of what should be most appreciated, namely, original pattern that illlustrates just how things were when our country was young and every man, woman and child was a pioneer. A meeting house that retains all its ancient atmosphere has more than a sentimental value to endear it to us—it has an educational value as well and calls for a desire to know more intimately just how our fathers lived and worshipped. About it hover the memories of the fathers of the faith who long ago completed their earthly pilgrimage and have gone to their eternal reward.

Many years ago some Mennonites indulged in the luxury of a law suit concerning the use of a meeting house by two opposing factions who claimed a right in the building. It was an unique proceeding and should be regretted. Generally, when a Mennonite appealed to the courtss, he was excommunicated—and deservedly so. In this case the two factions had their day in court. Our side won in the first inning but the other side, instead of turning the other cheek also, appealed to the State Supreme Court and won. Father Oberholtzer in giving testimony before a Master said that the Flatland Meeting House erected in 1837 was the most recent building in his time in the Franconia Conference.

(To be concluded)

A Significant Centenary

On Sunday, July 4, 1937, the four General Conference Mennonite churches in the Bluffton-Pandora, Ohio, community, the First Church of Bluffton, Ebennezer, St. John and Grace, celebrated their one hundredth anniversary of life and service since locating in northwestern Ohio. The sessions were held in the large and convenient Bluffton high school auditorium.

At the worship service in the morning, attended by 1200, Rev. W. S. Gottshall of Quakertown, Pa. spoke from the standpoint of the oldest living minister that is still in active service who served three of the four churches as pastor nearly a generation ago. Elmer Baumgartner of Berne, Indiana, also spoke at the morning session. He took for his subject "One Hundred Years of Adventure for Christ." A women's chorus under the direction of Hilda Amstutz furnished the special music of the morning session.

In the afternoon the special music was given by the Swiss Men's Chorus under the leadership of Alvin Burkholder as director. Professor E. J. Hirschler had been appointed the centenary historian some months ago. In this capacity he was asked to prepare an appropriate history of the Swiss Mennonite Churches of Putnam and Allen counties, Ohio, to be sold at the Centenary celebration at a popular price so that at least one copy would go into every Mennonite home in the community. Nearly six hundred of these booklets were sold on the day of the celebration. Professor Hirschler's address at this session was "Historical Sidelights" in which he pointed out interesting and significant incidents in the history of the Swiss Mennonite churches. Professor J. R. Schutz, a son of the community, gave a thrilling address on "Then and Now."

The climax of the day's program came in the evening session when the large union chorus, under the direction of Professor G. A. Lehman of Rochester, N. Y. sang "The Holy City." Ruth Bixel was the accompanist on the piano and Professor Sidney Hauenstein was the director of the orchestra. The soloists were Lucille Hilty, soprano, Hilda Amstutz, alto, Gordon Hilty, tenor, and Alvin Burkholder, bass. No finer rendition of "The Holy City" has been given in this community than the one that climaxed the Centenary celebration. The audience numbered at least 1500.

What are the substantial and abiding contributions of such a centenary celebration as was held at Bluffton, Ohio, July 4, 1937? It fostered a feeling of kinship and brotherhood among the people and churches who are the descendents of these Swiss Mennonite pioneers. It impressed upon all who were present the fact that the Swiss forefathers were true heroes who did a difficult piece of pioneering with splendid devotion and great success. It revealed that the great motive back of all this effort and sacrifice was the religious faith and hope of these noble fathers. It made clear that a great heritage has come to the children of these godly men and women which should be prized and passed on to future generations without diminution or loss.

Mennonite Youth Looks at Journalism

But what does the newspaper field hold for Mennonite youth? Far be it from me to guess that a Horace Greeley, an Arthur Brisbane, a Walter Lippman, or a Carl Sandburg will not come from this religious denomination. Many of our so-called "greats" came from seemingly incongruous backgrounds. However, it seems unlikely that any great number of Mennonite youth will enter the newpaper profession (small-town and rural newspapers excepted).

Frankly, the rural background of Mennonites, their traditional shunning of worldly sordidness and discontent, their wholesome tradition of non-interference with the affairs of others, their leaning toward serious-ness instead of cleverness, and the type of education they usually maintain mitigate against any general exodus to newspaper work.

That does not imply that newspapers, in their editorial, advertising, or printing departments do not welcome the type of worker which I hope Mennonite youth represents. Industrious, trustworthy, thrifty workers interested in giving an honest day's work for the pay received are demanded in this field, as they are in every business and profession. If Mennonite youth follows the example of its predecessors in the simple life it need never fear the specter of unemployment.

Newspaper work has occupied much of the discussion thus far, because it proportionately occupies much of that entire scope of writing for publication which is called journalism (be it in newspapers, magazines, books, trade papers, technical journals, or religious periodicals).

The quieter eddies of magazine editing, where a select rather than mass group is aimed at, allow more time for reflective and personalized writing, gives a better chance for creative layouts, and permits more thoroughness. It is a steadier type of work often better suited to journalists with experience.

As for the rippling pools of book writing, I confidently predict a carrying forward of the excellent work of the present Mennonite scholars. If the previous assumptions are correct, the books of Mennonite youth will, however, primarily gain value as reference works or interpretations of discoveries in science and scholarship and ethical living limned against a background of Christian education. Most of them will not be the literary efforts of journalists who write for the sheer joy of writing.

There remains another excellent opportunity for Mennonite youth in journalism — small-town and rural newspaper editing and publishing. In 1931, this nation boasted 533 farm journals, 870 religious magazines, and 2,267 daily newspapers (many of them in smaller cities). But at the same time it had 11,435 weeklies plus 7,355 other newspapers. Counties, villages, and urban neighborhoods number these thousands of journals as important factors in their community life.

Too often we hear the lament that young persons of ability usually head for the city, leaving their communities filled with citizens hampered by lack of leadership. The answer, to attempt a simple solution to a complex problem, seems to be improvement of community life and better interpretation of it. To stimulate and inform, to point out insidious influences, to enrich living and thinking and working—in short, to sell community life—seems the principal opportunity for prospective journalists among Mennonite youth.

"Country paper" editing brings greater freedom and more constructive activity than the whirling of metropolitan journalism. Rural journalism leaves much to be desired—in fact, some of it now shadows the grave—but it is a vocation which beckons the graduates of the liberal arts colleges with some practical writing experience.

T., Sept. 16. Teaching on missions. Matt. 28:18-20
F., Sept. 17. Teaching about faith. Mark 11:20-26.
S., Sept. 18. Teaching on judgment. Matt. 25:31-46
Sun., Sept. 19. Topic—Teachings of Jesus for Today's World. Matt. 5:1-12, 38-48; Mark 12:30-34

Problems and Projects

1.Did Jesus teach for his own day, for our day, or for any day? Did the teachings of Jesus concern themselves primarilly with outward action and activity, or with basic principles of living? What examples can you cite to prove your case?

2. Did the world to which Jesus came need "a new teaching" any less or any more than the world in which we live? In what sense did Jesus' conception of God, as expressed in John 3:16, present a new thought to the people who first heard it?

3. As you know the thinking of people in your church generally, do people generally look upon death as an "end" or as a "beginning"? What difference will it make in our conduct as to what conception we hold of death?

4. In Luke 12:35-44, Jesus tells us that our "loins . . . . be girded about and our lights burning," and that we should be "like men that wait for their Lord." What does this mean? Does it refer to pious aloofness and inactivity—a spiritual "waiting"? Or should the Christian be very busy at work, thinking of the things he thinks his Master would have him think of? Should we be as waiters in a depot, waiting for a train—idle, or like a mother, getting ready for a guest, waiting for his arrival, in the meantime getting things right?

5. In the light of Matt. 28:18-20, what type of people should become missionaries? Almost every returning missionary speaks of the wonderful "harvest which is at hand" and the opportunities which the church has for doing a wonderful piece of mission work at this time. Yet the missionaries are cramped in their work, due to lack of funds, and support from the home land. What would Jesus tell us today about missions, if He were here to address us?

6. Someone has said that religion of tomorrow would tend more and more to become a matter of the head. That is, men would have such a wide array of facts about the work of God, His methods, His standards, His processes, that any religion which would secure a very large following would have to justify itself in the light of these scientific facts. What findings of earnest seekers after truth have challenged the faith of Christian thinking? How have the findings of men like Pasteur, for instance, enlarged the faith of Christians? What citations can you give which would encourage us to seek the truth wherever we may find it? Do you believe the truth as discovered in the schoolroom, or the school of experience, will ever be at variance with Jesus' teachings of faith?

7. Matt. 25:31-46, a thought-provoking passage, depicts a "final judgment," by which men will be measured. By what criterion, do you find, will men be judged? How would you answer the very common attitude of people that since they believe "death ends all," thy do not need to "worry about the final judgment"?

8. Would you consider the following to be basic teachings of Jesus? a. The supreme value of human personality; b. The law of love; c. the principle of self-denial; d. humility. Can you list others? How could such principles be applied to current problems of today?

Suggestion! For certain diseases certain remedial exercises are prescribed. A unique feature on a program would be to have two groups arranged on the stage. One group announces a current problem, sin, or evil in life today. Another person, from the other group, answers by giving Jesus' method of solution. After five or six such problems have been announced and answered, someone could give an oral description of how society would be different if such things were actually put into practice.

We believe that the very beginning and end of salvation and the sum of Christianity, consists of faith in Christ, who by his blood alone, and not by any works of ours, has put away sin, and destroyed the power of death.—Martin Luther.

Picture Suggestions

Make your room attractive and the message of your topic more real by the use of one of the famous paintings, "Christ and the rich young ruler," or "Jesus teaching by the Sea" are suggested. Hang it in a prominent place in the front of the room, or place it on a stand. Light it with a candle, or an electric light focused on it, while the other lights are off during the worship service. Have someone give a brief interpretation of it.

If you do not have copies available of the best pictures, why not make it one of the projects of your society for the fall to start a library of them for your society. On certain occasions you will find that they convey a message that words alone fail to bring.

Worship Service Suggestions

Appropriate Songs: Select songs that tell of the life and ministry of Jesus.
Musical prelude: "Jesus Calls Us"
Scripture call: Matt. 11:28-30
Response: "O Master Let Me Walk with Thee"
Scripture reading: Matt. 7:7-12
Sentence prayers, closing with "Open Mine Eyes"

Thoughts for the Leader

We never think of a teacher except in connection with a school. And that to us usually means a building and text book. Jesus had neither of these. He did not even have a place where to "lay his head." He needed no text book because he "taught as one having authority," with God, the Father to confirm what he taught.

With a really great teacher our love and appreciation grows as we learn to know him better. So this meeting should help us to have a new love and appreciation for Jesus as the greatest teacher this world has ever known. It is how and what he taught that have given him this place.

Discussing the Topic

1. How Jesus Taught. (3 short talks) Have each one tell why the method is effective
   a. Jesus taught with object-lessons. Matt. 6:24-33 (Add other illustrations)
   b. Jesus taught with parables. Luke 15 (Give others)
   c. Jesus taught by practice. John 13:1-16 (Find other instances where Jesus practiced what he taught)
2. What Jesus Taught. (Series of talks)

   "What did Jesus teach about prayer? What would we know about it without His teaching?"

   This question can be asked about each of the following topics, and handed out to different members for study: God as Father, the Heavenly Home, the Holy Spirit, fruit-bearing, being born again.

Closing Moments

Special music: (with lights dimmed) "The Stranger of Galilee" or "Sweeter As the Years Go By"
Prayer of dedication (Read in unison or by leader)

"Laid on Thine altar, O my Lord Divine,
Accept this gift today, for Jesus' sake:
I have no jewels to adorn Thy shrine,
No far-famed sacrifice to make;
But here within my trembling hand I bring
This will of mine . . . a thing that seemeth small,
But Thou alone, O Lord, canst understand
How when I yield Thee this, I yield Thee all."

Benediction: "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, Be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer."

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

A leader writes:

Dear Co-workers in the Lord:

Greetings with the words of our Lord: "Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee." Jer. 31:3.

A story is being told of a boy who made a boat. This boat he liked very much, for it was his own designing and making. One day he lost it. After a few weeks he spied it in a store window. The boy entered the store, and with his own money purchased the boat he himself had made. Lovingly he took the boat into his arms saying, "Little boat, you're really twice mine now. You are mine because I made you, and mine because I bought you."

When we meet with the Juniors, we are dealing with boys and girls who are—twice His—They are His first by creation, and then by purchase—purchased by the precious blood of Jesus Christ. How precious they are in His sight! He has "loved them with an everlasting love." What an opportunity! What a responsibility! Are we realizing what part we have to do in the great plan of salvation?

At a few of our meetings with the Juniors, we have studied the Bible to see what Jesus teaches us regarding mission work. Then we looked into the lives of great Bible men, such as Moody, Spurgeon, Scofield, Livingston and others, to see how they understood the call. Now we are in the midst of studying our own mission fields, getting acquainted with the various stations, missionaries and the needs. Realizing now that there is work for all His children in the vineyard, and that no one can keep up his spiritual strength without spiritual exercise, i. e., without working for his Master, we decided that we should get started working now. Therefore we are working on a prayerlist for our next meeting. A missionary will be assigned to each member for whom they shall pray daily. Then they are to watch our church papers for requests. This is one way in which our Juniors may already be the means of bringing souls to Christ.

Program Suggestions for September 19, 1937

LOOKING UNTO JESUS THE LAMB OF GOD

Call to worship by prelude of hymns

Worship service

1. Sing in unison: The Lord is in His Holy Temple
2. Prayer. Let a junior read verse 1 and 2 of "Open my Eyes"
3. Sing in unison: "Into My Heart." Sing it twice
4. Scripture: John 1:29; Rev. 5:11-13 read by a junior giving the setting of each passage in his own words

5. Sing in unison: I Will Sing the Wondrous Story verses 1, 2, 5

Mission Minutes

This time spend the minutes in prayer for missionaries and their needs. Select those you wish to remember and select also the need so that the children will know, specifically for whom and for what to pray. Pictures of our missionaries can be had for a small charge by asking Miss F. Luella Krehbiel, Clarence Center, New York.

Announcements

Study Period. Aim: to teach the meaning of "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world."

1. Special music: Out of the Ivory Palaces
2. Introductory words as to theme for the evening
3. The Story of Exodus 12:1-14, by a junior
4. "Behold the Lamb of God." By leader using the blackboard and drawing the children into the discussion. The verse, John 1:29 should be printed on the board previous to meeting. After the story has been told by the junior, ask the children to turn to the passage. On one side of the board write "The Lamb which Israel was to Offer." With the children's help discuss the following truths

    1. What kind of a lamb?—The best. Without blemish
    2. How offer?—Altogether, entirely
    3. Why offer?—The blood of the lamb was to be the means of saving them from death
    4. How should the people eat it?—Prepared to go anywhere and do anything God would say

    On the other side of the board write: The Lamb which God Offered." The points that we need to teach are the same as those above. Make your discussion very simple. Even Juniors can understand these wonderful truths:

    1. God offered Christ, the Lamb without blemish
    2. Christ gave Himself entirely
    3. The blood of Christ is the saving power from eternal death
    4. When we use the blood of Christ, we must be ready to do or go anywhere He bids us
5. Four Verses. By four juniors who have received these verses after this discussion. They are given time to read these verses silently and then are asked to come and put the scripture reference opposite either of the four points discussed. The group is judge as to whether this junior has placed the reference correctly. After placing the reference he reads it and then waits for approval. The four verses corresponding to the points discussed are:
    1. Lamb without blemish: I Peter 1:19
    2. Christ gave all: Phil. 2:5-8
    3. The blood of Christ saves: I Peter 1:18, 19
    4. We, willing to do His will: Joshua 24:24
6. Sing in unison: Nothing but the Blood of Jesus
7. Repeat in unison the verse of the month. John 6:47
8. Prayer by leader
9. Prayer by group using verses 1, 2, 5 of "Just As I Am," "O Lamb of God, I Come."

Report of Ohio-Indiana Y. P. Conference

CHRISTIAN LIVING was the theme for the Mennonite C. E. Conference of Ohio and Indiana, held July 17 and 18, at the Silver Street Church, near Goshen, Indiana.

Sometimes conferences seem stilted and dull affairs, but this YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE was far removed from such a state. Indeed, it is not often that one finds so wholesome and refreshing a Christian spirit as was so decidedly manifest at the Goshen meeting. It was a joy to hear the glad voices of the young people singing the same song, "LIVING FOR JESUS."

Some of the topics discussed were: "The Christian at Work,"—"A Christian Vacation,"—"The Joyful Christian," and two addresses, "The Vital Christian Life" by A. E. Kreider and "The Requisites of Christian Leadership" by E. W. Baumgartner. All of the talks held a vital challenge for us. This challenge was adequately expressed in the sentence quoted in the program, "I am not ashamed to own my Lord, or to defend His cause."

The social times also were happy times of fellowship and good will. On Saturday afternoon following the close of the afternoon session, the group gathered at a neighboring school, where indoor and outdoor games were played, followed by a wiener bake. The carry-in dinner on Sunday, too, was a happy time of fellowship.

There were a large number of people present, approximately ninety out-of-town people registered; and it is certain that these people were richly repaid for their coming, and returned home with warmed hearts and a new zeal to live for Christ.—Agnes Neuenschwander, in "The Vine-Press."

Iowa Retreat

The IOWA YOUNG PEOPLE'S RETREAT was held in Wayland, Iowa, Saturday and Sunday, July 10 and 11, where representatives of the four Mennonite churches came together for the two days of retreat and fellowship.

The main speaker, Rev. H. A. Fast, General Conference field secretary, gave four inspiring and helpful addresses on the retreat theme, "THE MARCH OF CHRISTIANITY."

SATURDAY FORENOON: Song Service, led by Kenneth Neuenschwander; Welcome and Devotions, Wayland; Address, H. A. Fast; Chapel Period, Noble Society; Class Period: Recreation that develops character," led by Pauline Krehbiel; "Shall I today yield to temptation to do wrong on the plea—

they all do it?" Led by Mrs. Jacob Eicher; "Ideas in character building," led by Oscar Bachman.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON: Song Service and Devotions, Donnellson; Address, H. A. Fast; Mennonite History, D. E. Welty; Class Period: What we can do about the indifference toward religion today." Led by Adolph Friesen; "Recreation that develops character," led by Pauline Krehbiel.

SUNDAY FORENOON: Sunday School and Worship.—Basket dinner.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON: Chapel Period, Pulaski; Address, H. A. Fast; Sunset Service, "Youth's Testimony," led by D. E. Welty. Closing Address, H. A. Fast.—Culled from "The Vine-Press."

Christian Endeavor Convention of the Western District

The forty-fifth annual C. E. Convention was held in the First Mennonite Church of Newton, Kansas, Sunday, July 25, 1937. Twenty-seven societies were represented by officially chosen delegates.

Rev. Walter Dyck, convention chairman, opened the meeting using Matthew 5:38-48 as his scripture text. The main theme of the convention was: "TURNING THE OTHER CHEEK."

The first topic, "What Does it Mean?" was discussed by Dorothea Franzen. The Sermon on the Mount is a moral law, a principle of Christian living and conduct. We can use the words, "Turning the Other Cheek," literally or figuratively, but we are to use judgment in application of the principle. We are to remember that love is stronger than revenge.

"Is it Practical?" was discussed by John D. Wiebe. He brought out four main points: (1) Practicability in the Home. Turning the other cheek is a strong factor in preserving unity in the home. (2) Practicability in School Life. (3) Practicability in Church Life, and (4) Practicability in Business.

The next talk "Does it Pay?" was given by Herbert Miller. We always ask ourselves, "Does it pay?" before undertaking any new venture. Before we turn the other cheek, we raise the question, "Will it pay?" or "Will I gain anything?" Non-resistance was presented as a paying principle.

Hilda Wiebe then talked on "What the Retreat has Meant to Me." Retreat is a special meeting to inspire those who are leading a Christ-like life. She gave the following values of Retreat: 1. Retreat is a real, inspiring vacation. One where we can forget our daily tasks and worries. 2. The second value is the association of fellow retreaters and the leaders. 3. Retreat forms a union among the churches.

The talks were interspersed with music by the Y. P. Choir of Newton, a Ladies' Quartet from Hutchinson, and the Ladies' Chorus from Emmaus.

After general singing, Rev. David Wedel led in closing prayer. At 4:30 the ladies of the church served a luncheon to the delegates. During this time, a Ladies' Trio from the Swiss Church, and a Men's Quartette from the Garden Church furnished music.

The business meeting was held immediately after the luncheon. The Constitution drawn up by the committee, Rev. David Wedel, Hilda Wiebe, J. W. Unruh, and Mabel Goering was read and after some discussion and a few changes, it was adopted. The report of the committee which had studied the relationship of the Junior Societies to this organization was read and accepted; likewise, the report of the resolutions committee. The resolutions are:

1. Whereas the world situation today demands a clearer understanding of international problems and calls for an enlistment of our activities toward our goal of World Peace:

2. And whereas we acknowledge the intrinsic worth of the Mennonite Young Peoples' Retreat for inspiration, information and spiritual vision, and in view of the fact that the location of the Retreat has been farther removed:

3. And whereas we realize that mission work is the "Heart-throb" of the Churches, and because of the vital importance of an expanding missionary program,

4. Whereas the increased turmoil and unrest have especially at this time tended to make an increasing number of young people sympathetic towards the Christian gospel as a solvent of social problems:

WE RESOLVE THAT:—

a. We will support financially and morally the "Kansas Institute of International Relations" by granting Delegate Scholarships ($12.50), provided that new efforts be made to select a faculty more fully in accord with the principless of Christian peace.

b. We will support the Mennonite Young Peoples' Retreat by our prayers, publicity, and financial aid both at this Convention and in our home communities. We pledge ourselves personally toward enabling the attendance of desirous but financially disabled young people:

c. We will undertake the responsibility of sending one of our missionaries to the field, with the suggestion that the General Conference Board inform the secretary of this Convention as to the individual selected:

d. We recommend that there be a renewed emphasis on a program of evangelization within our societies.

The Committee: Sam Richert, Agnes Wiens, Willard Claassen.

The officers elected for the coming year are: President—Rev. Walter Dyck; Vice President—Harold Ratzlaff; Secretary-Treasurer — Hilda Wiebe; Program committee—Rev. David Wedel and Clinton Kaufman; Retreat Committee—Rev. Walter Gering and Ted Claassen.

After receiving the reports of the Mission and Peace Secretaries, the treasurer's report, the business meeting was adjourned.

The Vice President of the Convention, Willard Claassen, was in charge of the evening program, beginning at 8:00. During the evening music was furnished by the Harmony Four Male Quartette, the Hoffnungsau Male Chorus, and by Mrs. David Kasper with a marimba solo. Rev. Walter Gering gave an address on "The Voice of Experience." Several points that he brought out were: No man is free as long as he has not mastered himself. What we need is that type of a life that will turn the other cheek and keep a good clean conscience.

The Resolutions Committee presented the usual resolutions with expressions of gratitude and thanks to the Heavenly Father for blessings bestowed, to the First Mennonite Church of Newton for its hospitality, and those responsible for the luncheon for delegates; to the Executive Committee, officers and committees for valuable work done during the past year; and to those participating in the programs, and the various societies for the manifest interest shown in sending delegates to this Convention.

The afternoon and evening offerings amounted to $44.67. $25.00 of the amount was sent to the Retreat fund.—Amelia Mueller, Sec.

CORRESPONDENCE

HANSTON MENNONITE CHURCH, AUG. 1937

Just a few lines from this, for a long while unheard-of church. The present pastor and his wife began their services here on Sunday, March 22. On Easter Sunday morning the entire service was in keeping with the resurrection theme. The congregation partook of the holy communion on Whitsunday morning.

The second Sunday in June the usual preaching service in the morning was followed by a bountiful basket dinner, well prepared and served in our well-appointed basement. A Children's Day program was given after the dinner. Many visitors were with us on this day.

We have services twice each Sunday. In the evening service the Christian Endeavor takes up the first half hour with song service, followed by a short sermon the second half hour.

We are having special music numbers which add much to the interest and value of the services each Sunday. The music committee of our C. E. has appointed different persons to be responsible for a special number each week. This gives zest to our services and gives valuable training in using the God-given talents, to those rendering these services. Our people do love music—vocal and instrumental—and we plan to make much use of it.

Our congregation is not large in size. It is, however, large in interest in the church and her work. We are much pleased to have frequent visitors in our services.—A. S. B.

SECOND CHURCH, BEATRICE NEBRASKA

The Sundri Bai Society celebrated its TENTH ANNIVERSARY with a dinner on the evening of August 19, at the Y. W. C. A. Decorations were carried out in red, white and blue; the red standing for courage, white for purity, and blue for loyalty. Ships were also used for decoration. These were to compare with our lives as illustrated by the following verse:

> "Our human lives are like ships at sea,
> We can go the way we will;
> If with all our might we will set our sail,
> For the port of good or ill."

Helen Penner, as president and toast mistress, spoke on the subject, "Service," and introduced the speakers.

The second speaker was Elizabeth Wiebe, who spoke on the subject, "Humility."

The principal speaker was Miss Elizabeth Goertz, missionary to China, who is home on furlough. She spoke on India, (her first ambition).

The fourth speaker was Erna Wiebe. Her subject was, "Prayer."

Anna Wiebe played a piano solo and Elizabeth Wiebe and Ella Warkentin sang a duet.—Anna Margaret Reimer, Correspondent.

Note: Sundri Bai is the name of a Bible woman in India whom this society supports.

JOHANNESTAL CHURCH, HILLSBORO, KANS.

Once again the Lord has blessed us with an abundant wheat harvest and a promising forage crop for which we are very thankful. This summer again our church has taken part in the union meetings held in Hillsboro, in which five of the local churches are participating. We have a good attendance at these meetings and feel that we receive a great blessing from them.

Sunday, Aug. 1, the church had a reception in honor of our new minister, Rev. S. M. Musselman and family. Rev. John Plenert led the services, opening with brief introductory remarks, scripture reading and prayer. Rev. P. H. Unruh of Goessel spoke on the subject, "Duties of the church to the minister." Then Rev. A. J. Dyck of Inman spoke on the subject, "Duties of the minister to the church." After the services a bountiful dinner was enjoyed in the church basement. In the afternoon the ministers of the neighboring churches, Rev. J. H. Epp, of Hillsboro and Rev. Arnold Funk of Brudertal, both gave very fitting welcome remarks, after which both Rev. and Mrs. Muselman spoke. Both choirs sang.

On June the 15th, the funeral services of Mrs. Fred Kindly was held. Mrs. Kindly was a daughter of A. J. and Anna Klassen. She died on the 8th of June, 1937 at Phoenix, Arizona, at the age of 46 years, 7 months, and 19 days. She was a faithful member of our church while here, as also of the Methodist church at Phoenix since.

— Rev. M. Horsch who, at the request of his Board, that of Foreign Missions, visited and worked two weeks on our mission field in Hopiland, Ariz., writes, "Surely the Lord is doing great things among the Hopis through our devoted workers. But here, like elsewhere, it is true that where God builds a church, Satan builds a chapel beside it. This, however, we know, our great Lord of the Harvest is all-powerful, and the forces of evil cannot prevail. The souls won to Christ in Hopiland are witnesses to this fact."

Mr. C. F. Claassen who with Mrs. Claassen is in the habit of spending the hot summer months at Manitow, Colo., reports that Mrs. Claassen is so much better this summer. Last summer she was nearly always confined, this summer so far not a single day.

— Salem Menn. Church, near Freeman, S. D., Rev. P. R. Schroeder, minister, News Letter No. 10, reports, among other things: The pastor was at Madrid, Nebr., by request of the Evangelization Committee of the N. D. Conference, the church there being confronted with some problem in the choice of a minister.—On July 21 he spoke at the Gospel Union Meeting at Sioux Falls, S. D.—Dr. Krahn left early in August for Henderson, Nebr., and from there he planned to join a trainload of Old Mennonites who were on their way to their General Conference in Oregon.—The threshing season is over. About a half crop is reported. There was proportionally more straw than grain. The feed question is at least partly solved for the coming winter.

— Rev. Albert Claassen, pastor of the North Church, near Freeman, S. D., who is interested in seeing our church papers read more widely, sends us the addresses of several prospective subscribers. He wonders if it would not be a good and profitable idea if our church papers were sent to newlywed Mennonite couples free of charge for a few months as an inducement and gesture to them to become subscribers. Other pastors have given similar hints. It will be well for the Board of Publication to do something along this line. We thank Brother Claassen for the interest manifested.

— ATTENTION! Sample copies of THE MENNONITE are always available and will be gladly sent to any church free.

— Rev. T. Alvin van der Smissen who had just recently become pastor of the Hebron Men. Church near Buhler, Kansas, is suffering from a serious case of kidney trouble and underwent a rather dangerous operation by specialists in the Bell Memorial Hospital at Kansas City. At this writing hopes for his recovery are entertained. We bespeak the earnest prayers of our readers for this brother in his affliction.

— OUR SAILING DATE HAS BEEN POSTPONED.—Wilma Lichti Jantzen.

— First Menn. Church, Allentown, Pa.—Miss Etta Davis delivered a very interesting and helpful message in our morning service on the last Sunday in July. A group of young people from this place attended the ordination service at Lansdale on Sunday, Aug. 15.

— We are in possession of most of the copy of the thesis, "SHOULD A CHRISTIAN TAKE PART IN WAR," by Rev. Theo. Epp, Goltry, Okla., one which we commented favorably a few weeks ago. The opus truly has merit, which could be enhanced with adequate revision. And the subject is of vital concern to us Mennonites, hence the treatise should be made available for extensive reading and study. But in THE MENNONITE we would have to bring it in installments which is a poor way to get the full import of a treatise that requires meditation to get its full force. We have therefore suggested that it be printed in pamphlet form and are willing to help back up the enterprise. Our papers have not been in the habit of bringing graduate thesis.

— Rev. Horsch also kindly sent us a number of copies of "Zeitspiegel," a religious German weekly which is giving a pretty true picture of the changes that have been taking place in that land. He says, and we concur in this, "if we could only get such papers into the hands of our leading people; they might open their eyes some. They do not realize the desperate condition Germany was in and the remarkable changes for better that have taken place within the last four years.

— "The Shafter Press," Shafter, California.—"Recently the Rev. Gustav Frey of Hillsboro, Kans., arrived to assume the pastorate of the First Mennonite Church here. A college graduate and holder of two degrees, the Rev. Mr. Frey has already proven himself an outstanding pastor. He has acquired a firm grasp on the church problems and aims, even though he has been in the community but a short time. This fact he attributes to the wonderful cooperation of his congregation."

— The Berne Witness," Berne, Ind., lists thirty-one students that are planning to enter college this fall, scattering out among fourteen different institutions in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Kansas. Six go to Manchester College, North Manchester, Indiana, where Professor Samuel Flueckiger, a former Berne boy, is head of the music department; three go to Wheaton College (Illinois), two to Bethel, one to Goshen, and six to Moody Bible Institute. Thirty-one young people going to college from Berne of which eleven are from Mennonite churches. Three of these go to Mennonite Colleges, two to other Colleges, and six to the Moody Bible Institute.

— The Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kans., celebrated the silver wedding anniversary of their minister, Rev. A. J. Dyck and wife, last Monday evening.

DILIGENT SOWING. — Farming is becoming more and more of a problem or rather a long series of problems, not only for the farmers as a class but for the commonwealth and its government. Through experiment and experience it has been demonstrated that diversified farming is the best type, for it tends to be the most profitable and, coupled with intelligent crop rotation, best for the land. Turning to Eccl. 11:6 we find this type of farming advocated, another proof that the Bible has counsel and instruction for everything that comes up in our lives. "In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand: for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good." The farmer's work has its ups and downs. He can never with a certainty count on a full crop. Rains may fail or floods may come. It may be too hot or it may be too cool. Grasshoppers, hessian flies, chinch bugs and the like may destroy the harvest, and othe insects may swart his efforts. So the farmer's only course is to diversify his crops and put an abundance of seed in the ground at different times of sowing. Then one or the other planting will be quite certain to produce results. It is the same with spiritual sowing. Our life situations vary and our dispositions vary. Sometimes a single verse of scripture or a sentence of prayer will bring us greater blessing than whole chapters or longdrawn-out petitions.

SOBRIETY IN PRAYER.—Sober, German nuechtern, originally meant not to get drunk. The word still carries some of that meaning. But when we use the phrase "sober as a judge," we think of a person who has a clear sound mind and is capable of exercising cool, dispassionate reason and judgment. Shouldn't we be in somewhat the same frame of mind when we pray? The Bible tells us we should: *"Be ye therefore sober, and watchful in prayer." Surely, if ever it is needful to be sober and watchful, it is when we are engaged in prayer. An "unsober" person cannot be depended on. He will make promises that he can not carry out. How is it with our prayers? Are the things that we are talking over with God clarified in our mind? Are we serious about them? How often do we pray for God's guidance and then go our own way; invoke His blessings and do things that he cannot bless; pray "Hallowed be thy name, thy kingdom come, thy will be done," and then for hours never even think of His name, kingdom or will, but rather center our attention upon our own name and follow our own inclinations. Sobriety, watchfulness, seriousness must characterize our prayer attitude. Communion with God demands that we be in our best frame of mind and heart; that we guardedly weigh every word and every thought, and then act accordingly, otherwise our prayers may turn out to be a mere farce if not a falsehood. Untrue prayers are sin; they are apt to result in a curse rather than a blessing.—*1 Peter 4:7.

WHEN THE DOCTOR COMES.—We owe much to physicians. Paul, writing by inspiration, called his friend and fellow missionary "Luke, the beloved physician" (Col. 4:14). Many a physician since that day has been like Luke, and the best of these, like Paul's friend, rejoice in serving in the name of the Great Physician and looking to Him to do the healing. At the dedication of a new operating amphitheater, years ago, Professor Schoeborn of the University of Wuertzburg said: "Every patient here should bring us the faith and hope that the God of grace and compassion can and will heal him of his sufferings. Every operator who takes knife in hand should feel a full sense of responsibility. And if he has the joy of receiving the thanks of a recovered patient, he can use the words of the famous Huguenot physician of the sixteenth century, Ambrogio Pate, addressed to the French King: 'I have treated thee. God has cured thee.' "—The Sunday School Times.

ANNOUNCEMENT AND INVITATION

The First Mennonite Church, Halstead, Kansas, extends an invitation to a prayerful attendance at the ordination of Brother Herbert Miller to the office of Minister of the Gospel, on Sunday morning, Sept. 12, 1937, at 10 a. m. Brother Miller will serve the Deer Creek Mennonite Church, Deer Creek, Okla., as its pastor.

ORDINATION AND MISSION FESTIVAL

If it is God's will the nurse, Sister Eva Pauls, will be ordained for missionary service in India at 2 p. m., Sunday, Sept. 12, in her home church, near Inman, Kansas. We are happy to get this new helper for India, where a nurse is sorely needed. All mission friends are cordially invited to remember this event with intercessory prayer. She plans to sail for India from New York on Oct. 6 next, together with the missionaries Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Unruh and Helen E. Nickel.

In India the doors are still wide open. But unfortunately the new workers for China who were to sail Sept. 11, will have to postpone their trip. However, Sister Elizabeth Goertz has not yet given up, for her services are sadly needed over there in this time of war.

Let us remember these outgoing workers in our prayers.—With thanksgiving to God and our mission friends, in the name of our Board, P. H. Richert, Sec.

"THE LORD'S DOING" IN NANLO

Mrs. Ma is a radiant, happy Christian. Poor in earthly circumstances, she was working for the evangelists wife when I first met her, in March, 1936. I was giving an examination on the Epistle to the Romans to Mrs. Meng, a Biblewoman, taking the Home Study Bible Course, and Mrs. Ma was sitting by stab-stitching cloth shoe soles for one of the little boys. The examination was "opening her eyes" (Ps. 119:18). As we waded in the oral examination through chapter after chapter of Paul's wonderful epistle, she said, "There is a lot more to this religion than I thought. This is deep. This is really true. How can man be right before God when he is so full of sin, and who can make it up with God for the sin he has committed?" She now says that that evening's glimpse into God's Holy Word started her wanting to know more.

She came to the Instruction class last fall and this spring. Being very poor she was included last Chinese New Year, when relief was extended to needy ones. She took the 50 cents and went home. That night she became very ill. She said, "Oh, I should work and give to the church and now the church has given to me. The Lord is displeased and is sending me this illness. I must not use this money but take it back to the church. Before long she was better and fell asleep. Next morning very early she took the 50 cents, made her way to the church, and walking in she knelt down at the front and poured out her heart in penitence to God. The Biblewoman hearing her went in and they had a time of prayer together. She obtained peace and is now going from grace to grace in her Christian life. Among the nine baptised she was one.

A leader in a mystic cult was Mrs. Chao, when the Gospel tent came to her village in the spring of '36. She daily burned much incense, was apt in sword and dagger ceremonies and in religious dances. In all this she was a leader as well as in the women's gambling and card playing resorts of the market town. But after hearing the Gospel a few times, she now says, she could not keep away from the tent. She knew it was for her and she could no longer do without it. She was definitely converted, then, and began immediately to learn to read and study the Bible for herself. Already last fall when going to some of these villages with our new missionary, Miss Kuyf, we were impressed with the vitality of this young woman's faith. She is now a leader in the "Jesus religion," bringing others of her own and the surrounding villages on Sunday to the services. Last fall at the special meetings here in Taming, while we were praying with another woman, Mrs. Chao broke down and wept long and bitterly. She had cleared up everything, but it seemed the burden of her past life burst upon her anew as she realized her responsibility to point others to the life in Christ as she had formerly led them in a life of sin.

Then there is Mrs. Shih's sister who came early every morning, during the Layman's Bible School, to sweep the church and to pray, leaving her home village, 3 miles out, while it was yet dark. Mrs. Shih herself, all these years an "up hill and down" Christian, yet instant in season and out of season witnessing to her people, at last was rewarded by seeing her entire family, including her husband's two older wives being brought to Christ.

Please pray for these new ones in the faith. "And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in the day when I make up my jewels."—Matilda K. Voth.

Volume Two of the Mennonite Lexicon

In the year 1929, Prof. H. H. Ewert solicited a number of subscriptions for the "Mennonitische Lexikon," the same to be delivered as bound volumes. Vollume I was delivered several years ago through H. P. Krehbiel as requested. Now volume II has been completed. It contains sections 16-30. For months packages have been arriving, containing one volume each. At last the whole number required has arrived, so the delivery to the purchasers can proceed.

For each purchaser who paid for volume II in advance, his copy of volume II has been placed with the Herald Publishing Company, Newton, Kansas, and may, through their courtesy, be obtained there. Kindly call there for your volume II of the Lexikon at your earliest convenience.

HOME MISSIONS

W. S. Gottshall, Sec.

If it were possible, we would gladly publish the entire report of our workers as they are sent in to the Board, but they are often rather long and enter into the details of their work, and we feel that it is not good to publish everything. This was the wise opinion of our fathers; "Don't say all you know."

Brother Janzen in Vancouver had a light attack last winter which left him somewhat weak, but he soon started to work again. They are in great need of meeting-places and they do not have the means to provide them all. But they have made a good start. In Coghlan the unfinished church was dedicated on June 27, and the people are glad that they have a place to assemble to hear the Word of God. The mild climate there makes it possible to have services almost the whole year, even in an unfinished building. The Lord be praised! The little church at Black Creek is finished and the dedication was announced for July 25. In Abbotsford the work of building had to cease because they had no means to complete the work. Pray that the means for its completion might come for the congregation there needs the meeting place very much. In Pitt Meadows the work was also given up for the present until the question of ownership of the land is settled. In Sardis is the largest and best organized congregation and they are doing their best to foster the temporal and spiritual welfare of the people. Those other groups who are remote and scattered, especially the young men that work in gold mines and logging camps, Brother Janzen has supplied with his "Letters to my people." Armstrong is supplied with preachers, but the meeting house is missing. Renata was visited by Brother Bahnmann and there and at Sardis his work was effective. The visit of Missionaries Brown of China was of special blessing to them. In June, Brother Janzen went to California and delivered addresses in the Immanuel congregation and attended the Conference in Reedley where he represented the work of Home Missions. In Vancouver there is also great need for a Meeting House. There are churches offered for sale for which they ask $3000 which could be bought much cheaper if one could offer them something. The work in the Girls Home is going along in the former fashion, it is growing slowly and the management rejoices to see the Girls make themselves at home and that they know where they can come with all their cares and problems. All that are interested are earnestly coveting our prayers.

From Mechanics Grove it is reported that during the first half of the year they had a number of missionaries speaking to their people, and will soon have a farewell service for one of their number, Miss Anna Swarr, who is going to China as a missionary under the China Inland Mission. As in previous years they had a Union Bible School during July. At the Spring Communion Service three persons united with the congregation. As far as can be seen the activities of the church are working unitedly. The report closes: "We trust the Lord will send us showers of refreshing, and the prayers of God's people are coveted in behalf of their needs."—Sylvan Lehman.

Schools and Education

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

J. D. Unruh, Freeman College

II. When the final enrollment statistics will be tabulated a few weeks hence it is very probable that a million young men and women will have entered institutions of higher learning in the United States. A large percentage of these will have enrolled in the more than 500 denominational colleges maintained by the various religious bodies, our own not excepted. These colleges for the most part were founded to supply trained leaders for their respective denominations. This was the original ideal that brought Harvard, the first of such colleges in America, into being in 1636 and several hundred others since then. While no doubt many have launched out to much broader fields of activity, and rightly so, the fundamental purpose still remains. Someone has well said that "no Church has long prospered in America, or served its people well which has not also fostered some phase of higher education for its leadership." (Religious Digest, September, 1936). So we too, in our Conference must look to OUR OWN schools to be training centers for the leaders of our churches and other phases of religious activity.

Day of Prayer for Schools and Colleges

The annual day of prayer for schools and colleges as designated by the General Conference is to be observed on Sunday, September 19.

Our pastors and congregations are kindly asked to remember before the throne of grace the needs of our institutions on this day.

At this time of the year our schools will have again begun their work and they need our prayers that they may be guided into the fullest and truest service to our young people in the field of Christian education.

May there be a mighty outpouring of prayer throughout the entire year, and particularly on this day, for this cause, that our Heavenly Father may recognize our intercession and guide our schools in the path of truth, and pour out His richest blessings upon faculty and students, and through them to their constituencies.—A. S. Rosenberger, Secretary Board of Education.

History of the Flatland Mennonite Church, Quakerstown, Pa.

By Dr. S. M. Grubb

Anyone who has had anything to do with the Flatland church will not need to be reminded that Daniel M. Landis, one of the deacons since 1899, was active in the leadership. Brother Landis cheerfully gave much of his time and energy not only to the Flatland church but was a regular and active attendant at our local and General Conferences. As a church official, as a teacher and superintendent of the Sunday School and as a general helper on all Conference matters, Daniel Landis was always to be depended upon. The many years of loyal service he gave to the church has earned for him an honored place as one of the outstanding laymen. I am reminded of another deacon, Aaron Landes. He was a believer in having the church make attractive appeals to its young people and one of his comments as I recall it was "Mit dem Spek fangt mer de Mice."

For information I have to give concerning the Flatland church, I am indebted to Daniel Landis and to a contributor to the Quakertown Free Press who signs himself "Annanias." Too bad that one so filled with local lore should so identify himself with such an ill-favored name.

Originally Flatland was intended to be but an outpost for the worshippers who belonged either to Springfield, Deep Run, Saucon or Swamp. A meeting place here gave the worshippers an opportunity for more frequent and more convenient services. The scattered families however soon discovered that there was enough support to maintain a separate congregational organization and a minister and deacon were chosen who functioned under the jurisdiction of the Swamp district. In time the congregation is believed to have had a membership of at least one hundred.

About the year 1838 a minister was selected by the use of ancient rite of the lot. Those entering into the lot were, George Landers, Jacob Smith, John Landes lot were, George Landes, Jacob Smith, John Landes who then served here as minister for nearly 40 years, from 1840 to 1877, preaching every four weeks. With the coming of the split in 1847 both parties arranged to hold service every four weeks. Hitherto before the calling of Landes the officiating minister had been Michle Musselman of the Swamp charge. In the roll of early members we find listed names of Frick, Baringer, Derstein, Diehl, Smith, Fillman, Benner, Landes, etc.

Of the deacons the first to serve was Jacob Benner who also was one of the original building committee and who continued in office until 1870. In the split he identified himself with the Oberholtzer faction. Other deacons were John Fellman, 1870 to 1881, Aaron Landis, 1881 to 1899 and Daniel Landis.

It might at this time, when wages are a great concern to everybody, be interesting to learn how much was paid to those who worked on this building when it was erected. Ordinary wages for manual labor were 37½ cents a day or the price of a bushel of rye. A man with a two horse team could earn about $1.25 a day. Wages for masons and carpenters were 75 cents a day.

After the separation in 1847 the Old Mennonites continued a monthly service of their own for a number of years. George Landes continued as their minister and Jacob Smith as their deacon. As their number decreased and with the membership attending Springfield, Swamp, Saucon of Deep Run, they finally decided to abandon services here. Several of their families including the Shellys and the Smiths then identified themselves with the new faction. Descendants of the Shelly family located here, now make up a large portion of the membership of the church of which I am pastor—the Second Mennonite church of Philadelphia.

A landmark in the history of this congregation and of the Eastern District Conference was the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the conference held here in the fall of 1894. This was one of the first conferences I recall attending. Of those who were present then but a small number remain with us to this day, and of the clergy present, but three are now alive with two of them still active in the ministry.

It is altogether likely that the Sunday School here was one of the first if not really the first in our conference. For a long time there was a prejudice against Sunday Schools in most of the churches. In some of them they had to be conducted outside of the church altogether. We have in mind one instance where an effort was made to start a Sunday School in a church of another denomination, but they were forbidden the use of the building. However, there was enough sentiment in favor of Sunday Schools in the community to permit the erection of a separate building. Being more of a community center than some other of our Meeting Houses, Flatland and the neighbors early appreciated and welcomed a Sunday School. The sessions of the Sunday School here were not continuous, sometimes they were omitted for a long while and then it came to be a regular custom to omit sessions from the first of the year until Easter. Inconvenient roads making travel difficult were largely responsible for this. As far as can be ascertained, Nathan Slifer was superintendent as early as 1853. It is of interest to note that later he served for many years as one of the beloved deacons of the First Mennonite church in Philadelphia. Two of his daughters are still living at this time, both over 90 years of age. They are Mrs. Grossman, a member of the Germantown church and Mrs. Elliot, a member of the Second church of Philadelphia. Since the time of Nathan Slifer the following persons are known to have served as superintendents: Samuel Stahr, Jacob Horn, Reuben Heller, Peter High Stauffer who died in Ohio some years ago as one of the survivors of the church at Ashland over which the late Prof. van der Smissen presided, Samuel Freed, Jacob Gangaware, Uriah Stauffer, Allen Anderson, Daniel M. Landis, Charles Thatcher, Rev. Harvey W. Shelly, Linford Folk, later pastor of the Saucon church, Walter Strang, Flora Felman, Wilson Benner, Raymond Alhum and Clarence Kooker.

Flatland church had a part in the division that led to the establishment of the Mennonite Brethren church, as it is known, but originally these brethren called themselves The Evangelical Mennonite Society of East Pennsylvania. Their leading ministers according to a Discpline published in 1867 were William Shelly, William Gehman, David Henning and Henry Diehl. The division occurred about the time of the end of the civil war. Two of these ministers belonged at Flatland. They were William Shelly and Henry Diehl. It is said that Diehl began to preach on his own accord and not with the authority of the church. He was the music leader here. For an account of this separation and the development of the Mennonite Brethren church, I would refer you to the history prepared by Rev. S. F. Pannabecker the son of one of the ministers of this division and now one of the General Conference missionaries serving in China.

A conference of significance to the Evangelical Mennonite Society was held in this Meeting House on November 7, 1865, when a committee was selected to draw up "Doctrine of Faith and Church Discipline." Those selected for this task were, David Henning, William Gehman, Eusebius Hershey and Joseph Romig. Of these William Gehman of Upper Milford survived until recent times. Eusebius Hershey when an old man felt the call to become a missionary to Africa and going on his own account died of a tropical disease shortly after, in Liberia, if I remember correctly.

An item from the Discipline to which these brethren committed themselves might be of interest to us. Among other things it has this to say about dress, it continues: "All unbecoming ornaments of clothing are not suitable for true Christians and, in order that everyone of our fellow members may know it, be it proclaimed that no one shall be allowed to make use of the following personal ornaments, to wit: Hoops, women's hats, feathers on bonnets, ear and finger rings, powdering of the hair, ribbons, bows and moustaches and everything that is worn for pride and confirmation to the world."

From the foregoing it is evident, that although smaller than some churches, Flatland has had a rich and eventful history. In 1897, the church was renovated and rededicatory service was held, June 6th, exactly forty years ago today. Rev. W. S. Gottshall delivering the sermon for the occasion.

During the recent past the church has enjoyed a slow but steady growth, an active Sunday School and Young People's Society that participate in all the Conference activities.

Loyalty to our Schools

Mrs. S. K. Mosiman

It might please loyal faculties and student bodies of our Mennonite colleges and secondary schools to read a letter, such as the one enclosed (see below), unsolicited, and only one of the many which all of our Institutions receive and could produce. I do not know of churches which have the appreciation of the young people better expressed than that which the colleges can offer.

Why then neglect our own Institutions which are not perfect? Neither are those who only criticize them without helping them and who show marked preference for other denominations which know their own weaknesses as well as others do.

Once, when I was defending my faith before a large assembly, a minister asked me, "Why then is the Mennonite Church the fishing pond for other denominations?" Yes, why? In a recent letter a Bluffton College Graduate of about six years writes as follows:

"I came to Bluffton totally unacquainted with her and the church she was associated with. Since I have left there, the fact that Bluffton is a Christian Institution in truth, daily becomes more impressed upon me. One would have to travel far to find a quiet campus, where God comes so near. Nowhere have I found the teaching of our Christian churches so much a part of daily life. There is very little of the distrust one finds elsewhere—more love of fellow man is in Bluffton. It seems silly to many young people, to speak of a Christian Institution in this day of change, but that is Bluffton, and we can't be too forward about telling it!

There is opportunity for every one at Bluffton. No matter what desire you have for music, art, acting, journalism, or those many things that are outside of regular education, Bluffton offers an opportunity to each and every student to enter into these things. The best part of that is the training it gives for future life in a community. Those things, as much as regular classes, have trained our graduates to be leaders back home.

Bluffton should continue to jealously guard her standing. I left there able to carry on at a par with those from other larger and richer institutions. We must never lose that."

CHOICES AND THEIR CONSEQUENCES IN A NATION'S LIFE

Deuteronomy 11:8-12, 26-32

Introduction

Deuteronomy records, in substance, Moses' farewell address to the Israelites whom he has now led to the borders of the Promised Land. He restates the Law given on Sinai, reviews the chief events of the wilderness wanderings, and the earlier past history of God's dealings with them. He appeals to them for obedience in the future in view of God's faithfulness to them. He warns them of the serious consequences sure to follow disobedience to God's commands.

Obedience, its Reward, vs. 8, 9.

"Therefore," because they saw God's judgment upon Pharaoh and his host, upon Dathan and Abiram, ungodly men (vs. 3-7), beware lest through disobedience judgments should come upon them. Israel, in obedience to God, shall be made strong to overcome the powerful enemies sure to be met in the Promised Land. God honors those who obey Him. If they will be true to Jehovah, their possession of the land will be long continued and He will give them rains and fruitful seasons (v. 9). Unfaithfulness will bring severe drought and destruction upon them (v. 17).

Jehovah delivered them from Egypt, guided them, provided for and protected them in the wilderness journey, made them into a strong nation, ready to enter the Promised Land. All He asks in return is that they love and obey Him, acknowledge Him alone as God.

Canaan, a Fertile Land vs. 10-12

Canaan's fertility depended wholly on rainfall—"water of the rain of heaven"—a land well fitted to foster in the people the sense of dependence upon God. All depended upon God's care of the land (v. 12). Divine blessing kept the land fertile, fruitful.

Blessing, Curse — Choose vs. 16-32.

Israel's future as a people depended WHOLLY upon the choices they would make. Obedience will bring blessing, disobedience penalty (vs. 27, 28). The people are to make a public choice when they have crossed the Jordan (v. 29). Obedience to His law is God's first demand. Individuals, nations must make choices and if these are recognized by God as good, blesings will follow. Hebrew history shows that Israel made some sinful choices and the curse followed soon afterward. Nations must honor God if they wish to enjoy His continued blessings.

Nuggets of Truth

Keep ALL the commandments—A broken link—the chain can not hold.

Life is made or marred by our choices.

We must be at our best to make wise choices.

When Israel turned away from God, He gave them into their enemies' hands.

Nations work out their salvation through their moral choices.

"Choose ye this day whom ye will serve"—Golden Text.

Sermon Sketch

Heaven A City

J. Foster Welwood, Livermore Falls, Maine

He hath prepared for them a city (Hebrews 11:16).

Since the introduction of sin into the world through Adam our first parent, with the condition which passed upon man as a result—depravity of the human heart—man became deprived of what was to be rightfully his by creation, namely, fellowship with his brethren and sisters. Man as he came from the hand of God was holy, and had he continued in this holy estate he should have enjoyed fellowship with others of the race, but sin entered the heart of man and bred those elements which make for division rather than for unity. So that since the beginning of sin the race has been at odds with one another.

When holiness went out of the Garden of Eden fellowship went with it. When depravity came in division came in also. Depravity has a diving element in it. The whole history of man is a commentary upon this fact. Fallen man lacks cohesion. Disintegration is the only word which properly characterizes him in the home, in the comunity, in the state, in the nation, and in the world. Men of the twentieth century are trying to accomplish what has not been accomplished through sixty preceding centuries—the unification of a depraved race. But even the skill and advance of this modern era is not capable of producing the desired effect, for depravity is a permanently divisive element.

Here then in the language of the text is an idea, the practical outworking of which men have laughed at or at least have despaired of ever accomplishing. Speaking of the patriarchs in the eleventh chapter as having died in the faith the writer says that "God hath prepared for them a city." A city? Yes, a city. But one would think (according to the depicting of man) that heaven would be one of fields and bowers where man could roam unmolested, dwell safely in its wilderness and sleep in its woods.

The problems and ills of society have so taxed and wearied the human mind that in the thinking of many with regard to heaven it is the principle of segregation rather than of congregation that is used as a guide. Society is an organism of evil, so that the farther one is from his fellows the greater are his possibilities for perfection. It is a sad but none the less true fact that the depravity of man has conditioned the thinking of man. He reasons from the incompatibilities of men and is led to the conclusion that separation is the solution to all his problems and conflicts. If men cannot live amicably together; if precepts, prohibitions, penalties inflicted and a host of other temporary expedients cannot produce the greatest happiness of mankind, he reasons that the happiest person is one who lives on an island inhabited by no one but himself.

But the idea of the text is one which proceeds from the principle of holiness as opposed to depravity. Depravity leading to division, holiness leads to fellowship. Therefore the scriptural idea of heaven as a city — the New Jerusalem — where men with holy hearts may live together in fellowship.

A few implications are suggested from the word "city." It is more than a collection of buildings. Buildings are only the symbol of organized life within. Hence it is suggestive of completeness in Christ—all that we need is in Him. It suggests further that the individual's happiness should not be the highest aim of man. If this were so heaven would be depicted as a garden as in the beginning. Rather it points to the group. Again it suggests harmony of living. A city is a place of close contact. God's holy people should live harmoniously on earth as in heaven. Herein lies the reason for probation on earth.

"He hath prepared a city." He is trying to prepare a people.—Herald of Holiness.

Echoes from the General Conference of the Mennonites in Canada

The session was held at Rosemary, Alberta, July 12-14, the first one held in that province. It was preceded by a minister's conference, July 10, with 60 brethren participating, and a missionary festival on Sunday, July 11. In the absence of the chairman, Rev. J. H. Janzen, who was sick at the time, Rev. Benjamin Ewert, vice chairman, presided. The attendance was exceptionally large, Ontario alone not being represented, owing to distance and the busy season there.

At the minister's conference the addresses and discussions centered on the following themes: 1. Evangelization according to the Scriptures, John Regier. 2. Advantages and Disadvantages of the One-preacher System, Benj. Ewert. 3. Advantages and Disadvantages of the Many-preacher System, Jacob. Klassen. 4. Is it Time to Think of the Establishment of a School for Ministers? David Toews.

The speakers at the Mission festival were: Missionary August Ewert and the Reverends David Toews, Jacob Gerbrandt, Benjamin Ewert, Daniel Loewen and Leon Rosenberg, a missionary among the Jews from Lodz, Poland. In the evening of the day, the young people gave an interesting and blessed program. On another evening eight students from the Mennonite Academy at Rosthern rendered a splendid program.

At the Conference proper, of the forty congregations that belong to it, 31 were represented by 85 delegates with 302 votes. The general meetings were attended by about 900 people. Three congregations joined the Conference. Rev. David Toews preached the Conference Sermon, based on John 17:20-23. The motto for this years session was, LOYALTY, according to 1 Cor. 4:1-2. The following were the themes of the adddresses on the subject: 1. General Consideration of the Theme, John J. Klassen, Dundrum, Sask. 2. Disloyalty toward God, D. Schultz, Altona, Man. 3. Examples of Loyalty from the Scriptures, Jacob D. Nickel, Lymburn, Alta. 4. Examples of Loyalty from our Denomination, John H. Enns, Winnipeg. Our Loyalty toward the Church, Gerh. G. Epp, Eigenheim, Sask. 6. Our Loyalty in the Social and Civil Life, P. P. Dyck, Rosemary, Alta.

Reports, followed by discussions, were made on the following activities of the Conference: Home Missions, Deaconess Work, Enlightenment (Aufklaerung), Doctrine and Conduct, the Institutions of Learning at Gretna and Rosthern, Bible Schools, Sunday Schools, Young People's Societies, Canadian Mennonite Board of Colonization, Charity Committee on the contemplated Sanatorium for Neurotics, Publication of a Song-book, Publication Work, Designation of place for the coming General Conference Session, Archive, Statistics, and Financial Reports.

The following officers were elected: David Toews, chairman; Benj. Ewert, vice-chairman, John G. Remple, secretary.

The votes on the place for holding the coming General Conference session were, Rosthern 64, Winnipeg 72, Saskatoon 122.

The selection of Saskatoon may be best for Canada. But the place is so far inland and also reported to be rather difficult to reach by auto that brethren on this side of the Divide wish it were Winnipeg instead.—Editor.

Ordination for Mission Service

The Lord of the Harvest has given the Home Mission Board Brother and Sister Emerson Slotterback of the Ebenezer congregation near Bluffton, Ohio, to take charge of the Altoona Mission on September 5th. The Secretary of the Board is scheduled to be at Altoona on September 12th and ordain him to the Gospel ministry and install Him as Superintendent of the Mission. The prayers of all mission friends are solicited for these services and wholehearted intercession requested upon the workers and the work in Altoona, Pa.—In the name of the Home Mission Board.

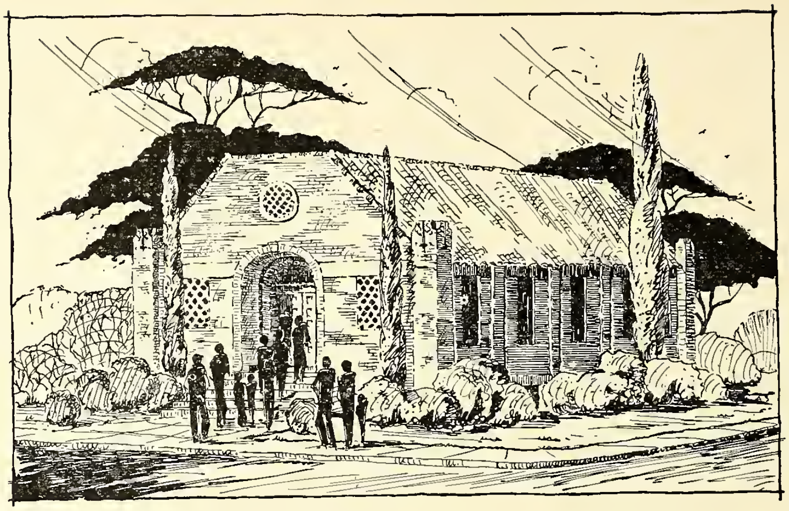
First Mennonite Church, Shafter, California

The accompanying etching represents the First Mennonite Church of Shafter, California, which our brethren there are now erecting. It is 36 by 60 feet in size, of mission type design, is being constructed of reinforced concrete and brick throughout, and will have a red tile roof.



With a splendid auditorium for the major church services and the large basement for use by Sunday School classes and church socials, this church will be adequately equipped to carry on effective work for the Lord and for shepherding his flock and others who may join it.

A group of Mennonite folk residing in or near Shafter worshipped in the old grammar school building of the town for some time. In 1935 they reorganized as THE FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH OF SHAFTER, with 23 charter members. By now the membership has doubled and there are hopeful indications for a steady increase. The Sunday school attendance has continually grown up to 145, the present number. Due to this growth, due also to the fact that the use of the old school will be withdrawn, and with the hope and prospects of future growth and spiritual blessings, the congregation has prayerfully undertaken the erection of this commodious church home. But they are going to run somewhat short on funds and would, therefore, appreciate it very much, if some of the brethren in the General Conference who are blessed with earthly goods, oil wells, good crops, etc., would remember them and cheer them up in their work with donations which, be they large or small, will be gratefully received. Such gifts may be mailed to: Mr. Jake Neufeld, Secretary, Shafter, California. It should be added here that Rev. (Prof.) Gustav Frey, formerly of Hillsboro, Kansas, who has recently accepted the pastorate of this church, feels quite enthusiastic about the future of this group of Mennonite worshippers.

Bethel Home-Hospital Gift Day

Thursday, September 9

The Bethel Deaconess Hospital and Home for the Aged will observe their usual ANNUAL GIFT DAY on Thursday, September 9. Friends and all those interested in the institutions are invited to visit them between 10 a. m. and 9 p. m. Sisters and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary will be ready to show guests through the buildings.

Two programs have been arranged for the day. THE AFTERNOON PROGRAM, beginning at 3 o'clock, will consist of various musical numbers and an adddress by an outstanding speaker. THE EVENING PROGRAM at 8 o'clock will consist of a concert by the Newton Concert Band and an address by a well-known speaker.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will serve light refreshments during the day and lunch at noon. Guests are invited to take lunch at the Home for the Aged even though they cannot remain for the programs. All receipts from sales, including the lunch service, will be used for the benefit of the institutions.

Since it is the policy of the Home and the Hospital to do as much charitable work as possible, there is a considerable drain on the finances, hence voluntary contributions are sorely needed. For this reason it is hoped that friends of the institutions will share the bountiful blessings which have come to them this year by leaving a gift of some kind. Cash gifts are especially solicited, but gifts of food supplies of all kinds are also appreciated.

We should bring as we would receive, cheerfully, quickly and without hesitation; for there is no grace in a benefit that sticks to the fingers.—Seneca.

Just Pleasant Memories

The above is the catchy title of the Retreat Paper, published in manuscript form at the close of the Eastern District Young People's Retreat, held at Green Lane, and a copy of which was sent to the Youth Section for publication. The editor of that fine little paper was Herman Kuhnle, Philadelphia. We quote:

"Retreaters, may we all unite with one accord saying, "Thanks a million" for the opportunity presented to walk in Christian Fellowship, at the Tenth Annual Green Lane Retreat . . . Could there have been a more perfect setting for a week-end retreat than what we had, surrounded by God's marvelous works in the silent wooded hills of our own dear Keystone State? "No! A thousand times No!" After this preamble may we just drift along on the tides of memory and show what some had the misfortune to miss . . . . in the entire camp we had approximately 150 people present. West Swamp had the largest number present from any individual church, totaling twenty-two . . .

Not only attendance, but the attitude of those present made for success, and we all agree that there has never been a finer spirit shown at any time in the past. As Albert Boehrer, manager of the Bluffton College quartet put it, and as others would have liked to express it, those present were as homogeneous and cosmopolitan a group as he had ever had the privilege to meet at any gathering—a priceless compliment, coming from a resident of another state.

All the retreaters seemed to come with open minds, a receptive heart, and a cheerful disposition . . . making the week-end for all like a deep, cool drink of nectar. Just using our own group as an example, you could readily picture harmony and peace on earth if only everyone had Jesus' teachings imbedded deep in their hearts; but as Edith Ross, one of the group discussion leaders said, "It is so much easier in the quiet of Green Lane, among Christian brothers, away from the many temptations of the world, to walk in the footsteps of our Guide."

The special features that we enjoyed this year included talks on China, by our missionary, Miss Elizabeth Goertz, music by the very amiable xylophone player, Adam Lutzweiler, and renditions by the Bluffton College Quartet. Another feature, enthusiastically received was the playlet, "The Challenge of the Cross." As one retreater expressed it, he never realized before seeing the playlet, that you could turn Christ away in so many diffrent ways.

Ebbing along on the tides of remembrance, we find that the quality and quantity of food was enjoyed by everyone, even by those who had the experience of serving at mealtime . . . One of the big thrills of the week-end was the farewell dinner, when even the most bashful and timid souls forgot themselves and burst forth joyously singing the Retreat songs. Everyone was so happy and joyful that they just wanted to tell the world what the retreat meant to them, and they did just that, in song.

. . . . but the greatest surprise of all was the marriage of Miriam Loesch to Ernest Leitzel, just before the fellowship circle. It was a plain and very impressive ceremony, but for the disturbing snap of camera shutters. Reverend Schwartz officiated, and tied the marital knot.

We all know that Green Lane had a red letter day, and this was mainly due to the two courses, "Bible Study," by Rev. Howard Nyce, and "Practical Living," by Rev. John Nussbaum. As it was pointed out at the farewell service, more competent men could not have been found to make it a more instructive, more interesting learning period. The separate discussion groups were very welcome additions to the program, and everyone enjoyed the panel discussion period in which there was an attempt to answer all unsettled questions.

It was a successful retreat because of the splendid leaders, and so we thank Reverend Plenert, and his committee for these "Just Pleasant Memories," to help us in our everyday life.—Herman Kuhnle, Philadelphia.

FOLLOWING THE PRACTICES OF JESUS

Luke 4:16; John 8:1-11

Young People's Topic for September 26

Monday, Sept. 20. Matt. 8:14, 15—Jesus practices friendship. Whom do you consider as your true friend? What do you owe your friends? To how many are you a true friend? Is it better to limit one's friendship than to be a friend to everyone?

Tuesday, Sept. 21. Matt. 11:1-6 — Jesus' daily work. Christ's work was to relieve human suffering not by merely handing out a coin and letting the beggar wander from his door unriched, but by having the sufferer experience the richness of God's love.

Wednesday, Sept. 22. Matt. 13:1-9—Illustrating divine truth. Christ's method of teaching by parables was very effective. It perplexed the disciples. "To those who do not value and seek the light, darkness not only remain but is deepened," while light is given to those who desire to find it.

Thursday, Sept. 23. Matt. 18:1-11—Caring for the children. "We receive children by living with them, symbolizing with them, teaching and guiding and helping them." In which manners are tempting children stumbling blocks?

Friday, Sept. 24. Matt. 20:20-28—Jesus, the peacemaker. Christ said, "And whosoever would be first among you shall be your servant." Is it practical today to forget oneself and minister unto others? Which is the better attitude, Live and let live, or Live and help live?

Saturday, Sept. 25. I Pet. 2:21-25—Jesus, our example. "It is the very spirit of Christianity that the biggest thing is to regulate the smallest duties of life."

Sunday, Sept. 26. Luke 4:16; John 8:1-11. Following the practices of Jesus. Although Jesus was always in perfect communion with His Father and He was the Church, He attended the synagogue. Evidently the synagogue offered something a desert place for prayer could not. And if the synagogue could offer Him nothing, he could add much, "the example of His presence, the uplift of His shining face, and the inspiration of His voice."

Problems

1. Jesus practiced the orderly life. He was busy but we never receive the impression that He was driven by circumstances. What are the small but vital things we are apt to "put off" and finally find them left undone?

2. Overcoming temptations

a. Of the body—The temptations to which our Lord was subjected give us an example of how evil is to be met and conquered. What should serve as a guide to prevent one from indulging. What should we do in company with others when asked to join in various activities for which we really don't care? What will our associates think? Will we be "put out?" Will our business suffer?

b. Of the mind.—"As our Lord won a victory in the lower realm, Satan assailed him in the next higher realm, and then in the very loftiest sphere of his existence. So it is with us."

c. Of the soul.—This was Satan's final assult. Resisting the previous temptations strengthens one. "Your manhood, your personality, your character, your real selfhood, is a thing to be won. You win your manhood as you win a battle." Why should we deny ourselves many pleasures to attain a goal so far in the distance?

3. Being humble. "It is this spirit that gives to Lincoln a place at the head of the list. No man ever lived with a more humble, child-like spirit than the great commoner. It is said that often when wearied with the cares of state he would return to his home in Springfield, and going to a neighbor's across the street would ask the privilege of taking the baby out for a little while. Then for an hour or more he would walk back and forth between the two houses with the baby nestled up to his neck. This act was in keeping with the great spirit that controlled this noble man." Has everyone a duty toward children? How can we become great by being humble?

Report of the Work of the Young People's Committee

The General Conference Young People's Committee has been working slowly and silently throughout these past two years. The President heading up the work and each District Vice President working in their own territory. We have tried to present the program of the Young Peoples' Committee.

We have helped in sending out Rev. Fast, the Field Secretary. This has been made possible by the splendid contributions of our Young People's societies throughout the Conference.

Another splendid response came from our young people's societies in answer to the call for money to return the missionaries to their fields of labor.

We feel that we have made a very fine beginning, and we hope that before the next General Conference, a year from now, we can accomplish much more in unifying the young people of our own denomination.

As treasurer of the Young People's Committee, I want to take this opportunity to thank each individual and each young people's group that has made a contribution to our work. We hope that you were blessed in doing so.—Helen Lichti.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

CAN YOU TAKE IT?

Intermediate C. E. Topic, Sept. 26, 1937

For Daily Study

Sept. 20. How Paul took persecution. Acts 16:19-40
Sept. 21. How Elijah took it. I Kings 19:1-14
Sept. 22. How Stephen faced death. Acts 7:54-60
Sept. 23. How David took Absalom's rebellion. 2 Sam. 18:32, 33
Sept. 24. How Job took his trouble. Job 1:13-22
Sept. 25. How Jesus braved death. John 18:29-40
Sept. 26. Topic—Can you take it? Heb. 11:32-40; 2 Cor. 11:23-27

Purpose

We are entering upon a new school year. It will bring a variety of experiences into the life of each one. Many will face very similar situations yet their reactions will be entirely different. Those who "take it" in the Christian way will grow through their experiences. Present as many different typical situations and try to develop the Christian attitude through the discussion.

Worship Material

Plan a short worship period after an opening praise service of appropriate hymns. Suggested hymns, "Be Not Dismayed," "He Leadeth Me," "My Faith Looks Up To Thee," "What A Friend."

Call to worship: Joshua 1:9. Include Scripture reading, prayer and offering.

Thoughts for the Leader

No ones life is all sunshine. Every one meets discouragements and suffers defeat just as surely as he gains his victories. The important thing is how we meet them and what they do to us. Paul said, "All things work together for good to them that love the Lord." We may gain something worthwhile from every experience, depending on "how we take it."

No one suffered greater disappointments than Jesus did, yet he never grew bitter. He lived a victorious life in spite of them, because he always had the inner conviction that he was doing his Father's will. If we can face our experiences with the question, "What would Jesus do?" and live in that spirit, we will benefit by them, whether they are sweet or bitter. 1 Cor. 13:4-7 expresses Christ's attitude.

What Would You Do?

1. You do not receive the grade in a certain subject in school which you think you deserve to have. You feel the teacher has been partial, and unfair to you. Remember it may only be your opinion. What should be your Christian attitude toward the teacher? Toward the students who were preferred? Toward the subject in the future?

2. You are anticipating a special treat, a concert, a ball game, or a trip to the mountains. Something goes wrong in the home. There is sickness, the money you counted on has to be used for medicine. All your friends get to go. Your are deeply disappointed. What kind of thoughts will help you to be victorious over your disappointment?

3. A friend whom you trusted turns against you. You are not conscious of having wronged the friend, yet because of his influence you are losing other friends. What is the Christian attitude? Should you try to defend your reputation? How can you win your friends back?

4. You are driving a car. You are in the wrong, but nothing serious has happened. Yet the other party curses you and swears at you. How can you show your Christian spirit?

Answer These Questions

1. Why is victory as hard to take in a Christian spirit as defeat? What are the temptations and dangers in victory?

2. What makes it possible to meet defeat or disappointment courageously?

3. How can we cultivate the Christian spirit so that we may be sure to take our experiences in the right way and benefit by them?

4. How does disappointment help us?

An Illustration

A party was traveling in the mountains on horseback. The trail was just wide enough for the horses to walk single file. "Lucky" was not a good leader, but often insisted on being first. He would travel along very ambitiously until he found something on the trail he did not quite trust, whether that was an unusual sound, or something of a formidable appearance. Nothing could move him beyond that point. As quickly as another horse passed him and took the risk of going beyond the point of danger he was ready to follow. It is a picture of human nature. We are splendid leaders until we face discouragement and dangers. Then we are ready to quit and let someone else take the risk or the blame as the case may be. Can you take it?

WELCOME, DISAPPOINTMENT! Thy hand is cold and hard, but it is the hand of a friend. Thy voice is stern and harsh, but it is the voice of a friend. Oh, there is something sublime in calm endurance, something sublime in the resolute, fixed purpose of suffering without complaining, which makes disappointment oftentimes better than success!

Program Suggestions for September 26, 1937

LOOKING UNTO JESUS THE COMING ONE

Opening Service—in song and scripture

1. Five minute song service using hymns with theme of the Christ's coming again. Also use song of the month.

2. Scripture in responsive reading: Mennonite Hymnal selection 56. Matt. 24:1-6, 26, 27, 31, 36, 40-42).

3. Prayer. Sentence prayers by juniors and closing prayer by leader.

Mission Minutess

1. The September issue of Missionary News and Notes is just out. Let one junior report on the escape from drowning.

2. Let another junior tell of the returning missionaries, showing their mission station on the map. If your society is still without maps of our mission stations, these can be ordered from Miss Luella Krehbiel, Clarence Center, N. Y. It would be well to have the pictures of these missionaries at hand. These can be found in past mission numbers of the Bundesbote and The Mennonite or they can be ordered from Miss Krehbiel.

3. A third junior can present the September prayer list and ask three juniors to lead in prayer.

a. Mrs. August Ewert, Sept. 6.
b. Mrs. Paul Wenger, Sept. 25.
c. Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Lehman, Sept. 25.

4. Leaders' minutes for your mission project.

Announcements. This week or the week after would be a good time for a social. Have you thought about it?

Study Period. Aim: to teach the truth of Christ's second coming and to instill a longing for readiness.

1. Special music by voices from the Intermediate C. E. singing "It Is Well with My Soul." Ask them to change the chorus to the thought: "Is it well with thy soul?"

2. Christ Is Coming Again. There are nineteen letters in this truth. Cut these nineteen letters out of orange construction paper. On each letter write a verse of scripture with the thought of the second coming. Hand these letters to nineteen juniors. Drape a dark cloth somewhere across the front. Let these juniors step up to it one by one, read the verse on their letter and then pin it on the cloth so that it forms the phrase "Christ Is Coming Again."

3. When Is Christ Coming? Answered by a junior with giving the thoughts of Matt. 24:32-41 in his own words.

4. Sing in unison verse one of "My Faith Looks Up to Thee."

5. What Am I to Do? Answered by a junior in giving thoughts on

a. Watch therefore, Matt. 24:42-44
b. And pray, Mark 13:33, Luke 21:36

6. Heart-talk: "The Open Door." In connection with the story of the ten virgins, show that to be ready for Christ's coming means to let Him come into our hearts as Savior.

7. Prayer

8. Sing in unison:

"I hear Thy welcome voice,
That calls me, Lord, to Thee
For cleansing in Thy precious blood
That flowed on Calvary."

9. Closing sentence prayer by leader.

TO THE JUNIOR

WHAT AM I?

(How many can you answerr?)

1. I am of hewn stone. What is written upon me, men have not kept as they ought and because of this they have suffered much, for I must be obeyed. God commanded it. Exodus 20.

2. I am a gift of beauty set in jewels. I am a symbol of royalty and am given to him who is faithful even unto death. Rev. 2:10.

3. I am a wonderful exchange for filthy rags. I have been washed in blood and yet I am white. Isa. 64:6 and Rev. 7:14.

4. I was made by those who were cruel. I was wound from a bush that could inflict pain and cause bleeding, but I was worn willingly because of love. John 19:2.

4. I am a light that guides through the darkness of life's pilgrimage on earth. I give wisdom and understanding. I am filled with rich treasures. He that makes use of me becomes rich indeed. All need me but few use me. I take time but I repay a hundred fold and more. Psalm 119.

I am insignificantly small. Some would leave me unnoticed but not they who have few of me. Some seeing me in the possion of another, would look down on me with a haughty look but they that give me unto God because they have naught else to give receive of Him a great reward. Luke 21:213.

How divinely full of glory and pleasure shall that hour be when all the millions of mankind that have been redeemed by the blood of the Lamb of God shall meet together and stand around Him, with every tongue and every heart full of joy and praise! How astonishing will be the glory and the joy of that day when all the saints shall join together in one common song of gratitude and love, and of everlasting thankfulness to this Redeemer! With that unknown delight, and inexpressable satisfaction, shall all that are saved from the ruins of sin address the Lamb that was slain, and rejoice in His presence!—Isaac Watts.

To The Christian Churches

MESSAGE FROM THE OXFORD CONFERENCE

The delegates to the World Conference on Church, Community and State, assembled at Oxford, England, from July 12 to 26, 1937, send at the close of their deliberations the accompanying message to the Churches of Christ throughout the world:

In the name of Christ, greetings. We meet at a time when mankind is oppressed with perplexity and fear. Men are burdened with evils almost insupportable and with problems apparently insoluble. Even in countries which are at peace, unemployment and malnutrition sap men's strength of body, mind and spirit. In other countries war does its "devil's work," and threatens to overwhelm us all in its limitless catastrophe.

Yet we do not take up our task as bewildered citizens of our several nations, asking if anywhere there is a clue to our problems; we take it up as Christians, to whom is committed "the word of reconciliation," that "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself."

The first duty of the Church and its greatest service to the world is that it be in very deed the Church—confessing the true faith, committed to the fulfilment of the will of Christ, its only Lord, and united in Him in a fellowship of love and service.

Our Unity of Spirit in Christ

Despite our unfaithfulness, God has done great things through His Church. One of the greatest is this—that, notwithstanding the tragedy of our divisions and our inability in many important matters to speak with a united voice, there exists an actual world-fellowship. Our unity in Christ is not a theme for aspiration; it is an experienced fact. We can speak of it with boldness because our Conference is an illustration of it. We are drawn from many nations and from many different communions, from churches with centuries of history behind them and from the younger churches whose story covers but a few decades; but we are one in Christ.

The unity of this fellowship is now built up from its constituent parts, like a federation of different states. It consists in the sovereignty and redeeming acts of its one Lord. The source of unity is not the consenting movement of men's wills; it is Jesus Christ whose one life flows through the Body and subdues the many wills to His.

Pride of Race and Nation a Sin

The Christian sees distinctions of race as part of God's purpose to enrich mankind with a diversity of gifts. Against racial pride or race-antagonism the Church must set its face implacably as rebellion against God. Especially in its own life and worship, there can be no place for barriers because of race or color. Similarly the Christian accepts national communities as part of God's purpose to enrich and diversify human life. Every man is called of God to serve his fellows in the community to which he belongs. But national egotism tending to the suppression of other nationalities or of minorities is, no less than individual egotism, a sin against the Creator of all peoples and races. The deification of nation, race or class, or of political and cultural ideals, is idolatry, and can only lead to increasing division and disaster.

On every side we see men seeking for a life of fellowship in which they experience their dependence on one another. But because community is sought on a wrong basis, the intensity of the search for issues in conflict and disintegration. In such a world the Church is called to be in its own life that fellowship which binds men together in their common dependence on God and overleaps all barriers of social status, race or nationality.

The Condemnation of War Stands

In consonance with its nature as a true community, the Church will call the nations to order their lives as members of the one family of God. The Universal Church surveying the nations of the world, in every one of which it is now planted and rooted, must pronounce a condemnation of war unqualified and unrestricted. War can occur only as a fruit and manifestation of sin. This truth is unaffected by any question what may be the duty of a nation which has to choose between entry upon war and a course which it believes to be a betrayal of right, or what may be the duty of a Christian citizen whose country is involved in war. The condemnation of war stands, and also the obligation to seek the way of freeing mankind from its physical, moral and spiritual ravages. If war breaks out, then pre-eminently the Church must manifestly be the Church, still united as the one Body of Christ, though the nations wherein it is planted fight each other, consciously offering the same prayers that God's Name may be hallowed, His kingdom come, and His Will be done in both, or all, the warring nations. This fellowship of prayer must at all costs remain unbroken. The Church must also hold together in one spiritual fellowship those of its members who take the different views concerning their duty as Christians in time of war.

To condemn war is not enough, for many situations conceal the fact of conflict under the guise of outward peace. Christians must do all in their power to promote among the nations justice and peaceful cooperation, and the means of peaceful adjustment to altering conditions. Especially should Christians in more fortunate countries press the demand for justice on behalf of the less fortunate. The insistence upon justice must express itself in a demand for such mitigation of the sovereignty of national states as is involved in the abandonment by each of the claim to be judge in its own cause.

The State not Lord but Servant

We recognize the State as being in its own sphere the highest authority. It has the God-given aim in that sphere to uphold law and order and to minister to the life of its people. But as all authority is from God, the State stands under His judgment. God is Himself the source of justice, of which the State is not lord but servant. The Christian can acknowledge no ultimate authority but God; his loyalty to the State is part of his loyalty to God and must never usurp the place of that primary and only absolute loyalty.

The Church has duties laid upon it by God, which at all cost it must perform, among which the chief is to proclaim the Word of God and to make disciples, and to order its own life in the power of the Spirit dwelling in it. Because this duty is its duty it must do it, whether or not the State consents; and the State on its side should recognize the duty and assure full liberty for its performance. The Church can claim such liberty for itself only as it is also concerned for the rights and liberties of others.

CORRESPONDENCE

Salem Zion Church, Marion, S. Dak.

Dear Readers of the Mennonite: How time does fly! Scarcely, it seems, has the new year begun when already more than half of it has sped by, leaving for the one a record of happy events and for the other sad and lonely ones.

The seriousness of life has been brought to the attention of our church community very forcibly this year. Already we have laid to rest six members, some young and others of a maturer age. The majority of these seemed to be indispensable in the home and the church life; yet God had other plans with them and took them to himself. The uncertainty of life was also shown when some apparently well, lay down to sleep and the angel of death touched them and they were no more, others suffered for only a very short time. Telling us who are left behind of the fleetingness of life, and the need of being ready at all times.

In the church, the different departments such as Sunday School, Young People's Meetings, Ladies' Aid, and Prayer Meetings, have carried on valiantly. All however, seem to call for more loyal support and deeper consecration. Often a personal viewpoint that does not coinside with that of a fellow worker causes a withdrawal from active duty, or a less hearty co-operation, and thus that phase of God's work suffers. I think very often by injecting our own viewpoints too strenuously we make side issues main issues and hinder rather than help the work.

Rev. A Claassen has very faithfully and efficiently broken to us the bread of life Sunday after Sunday, and surely God's blessing has rested and will continue to rest on the messages he brings. At the present time Rev. Claassen is preparing a group of young men for baptism. I wish it were possible to stress the seriousness of our example in helping or hindering the Christian life of these beginners.

Missionary Brown and his wife, who are here on furlough from China, have on several occasions shared their experiences with us and urged us on to more consecrated living. On the third Sunday in August our Sunday school had its annual election of officers. Mrs. Rev. A. Claassen was elected superintendent and Clarence Graber assistant. In a material way we can say that God has not forgotten us either. Some had a good harvest and others not so plentiful, yet we know that it should have been so and thank the Master for his gift.

We are looking forward to the opening of the College Year at Freeman Jr. College and kindly solicit your prayerful support of this work—J. H. Graber, Corr.

Alexanderwohl Church, Goessel, Kansas

We are an average people. Not many of us are recognized in Who's Who in America, neither are many of us wealthy. And our church activities are of a silent, thorough-going character, mostly of local interest.—Recently we had two funerals in our church. Willard Nickel, aged four years, was buried August 19. He died from an attack of cancer which left him completely blind the last weeks of his life. Otto Jacob Schmidt, aged twelve years, was buried August 26. He was drowned due to stomach cramps while bathing.—On August 22 our Sunday school gave a children's day program. Fourteen Junior classes served with songs and recitations of Bible verses. Rev. Walter H. Dick of Burrton spoke to the children and explained to them that, to have light and to give light, we must have Jesus in our heart and cannot have self-esteem and worldly pleasures in our hearts. That same Sunday a triple silver wedding was celebrated in the Goessel Church. Two of the couples, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Schmidt and Rev. and Mrs. John R. Duerksen are members of our church. P. L. Schmidt and Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Quiring had been married on the same day twenty-five years ago.—Sunday morning, Aug. 29, Rev. Henry Wedel from Milwaukee, Wis., preached in our church. He is a brother of Rev. C. H. Wedel, former president of Bethel College. Rev. Wedel spent his boyhood years in Alexanderwohl.—On Sept. 5, two family reunions were held. The Andrew and Eva Schmidt (Gruenfeld) reunion was held in our church, and the Goertz-Hiebert reunion in the Bethel College park. Probably the last Sunday in September the Senior C. E. societies of the Tabor, Goessel and Alexanderwohl churches will give a joint program in our church.—Corresp.

LORD MAKE ME BIG

Kenneth Robinson

"Lovest me more than these, my son?"
And I saw through blinding tears
The world things and the precious friends
I have loved through all the years.

"Lovest me more than these, my son?"
And the storehouse of my mind
Seemed filled with the thoughts of other things
With Christ in a room behind.

"Lovest me more than these, my son?"
And I saw my stubborn will
That had chosen ways that locked the doors
Where his burning love could fill.

"Lovest me more than these, my son?"
"O Lord, forgive!" I cried;
And he cleansed me with the fiery flame
When my love for "these" had died.

And now, though friends are dear to me,
My once-blind spirit sees,
He must come first in everything,
I must love him more than these.

DEATHS

OTTO JACOB SCHMIDT son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob B. Schmidt was born May 14, 1925, at Goessel, Kansas. He was a healthy and strong boy. His open and joyous attitude brought many blessings into our home. He attended public school until he reached the sixth grade. He was studious and eager to get his lessons. It was a pleasure for him to attend Sunday School and also church services. Since he was advanced in physical strength he could help his father on the farm which he proudly did. He found it a special pleasure to run the tractor during the plowing season. On Monday, August 23, at about 4 o'clock, he and his father had lunch in the field to-suspecting that within an hour Otto would be dead. Right after lunch he brought some drinking water to the field and then bicycled to Goessel, where he enjoyed to play with his comrades. He did this often. There he went bathing with two other boys. It was here where the accident happened, and his life came to an end, at the age of 12 years, 3 months, and 9 days. Thus his summer vacation which he richly enjoyed came to an abrupt close. He had also begun to make preparations for the new schoolyear, bought himself a luggage carrier, which he attached to his bicycle and on which he planned to take his younger brother to school. Thus man makes his plans but God rules and directs. His father often prayed to God for wisdom and strength to train his children in the fear of God and now it was not his privilege to be with his son in the hour of death, but he has the faith that the Lord found him prepared for the end. We say with Lamentations 1:21—"The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

He has left to mourn his early departure, his parents, two sisters Hilda 10 years and Ella 4 years; one brother, Marvin 6 years; his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Schmidt and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Goerzen.

At the funeral, Rev. J. J. Banman preached on Amos 3:6, and Rev. P. H. Unruh on John14:1-3.

DANIEL FREDERICK CLAASSEN was born August 27, 1928, in his Beatrice, Nebraska, home. His was a happy, friendly disposition. At the age of six he started to go to the District School and every summer he attended the Vacation Bible School. He always enjoyed to go to this school and stored away in his memory many Bible stories and Bible verses. He loved to have his mother read Bible stories to him. When asked which story she should read, he would often say, "David and Goliath."

Our Lord who dearly loves children called him home August 25, 1937. Just before he became unconscious, his little night prayer was on his lips:

"Watch o'er a little child tonight
And keep me till the morning light
In Thine arms of love."

TRUTH VINDICATED

A genuinely godly minister tells the following story: "At the funeral of a man, very generous and lovely, but ungodly and dissipated, I felt unwilling to make a funeral address that should be untrue to my convictions of the truth of the Word of God. Accordingly I spoke to the business men, present in very large numbers, who had been his companions, about the folly of neglecting the soul even for the sake of worldly profit. They had expected to hear a eulogy of the dead, and get comfort in their own ungodliness, and were much incensed. One of them cursed and swore that he would provide in his will that I should never officiate at his funeral. Shortly after, God smote him with an incurable disease, and for many months he lingered in great agony, and died. He would send for me and cling to me like a child, confess to me his sinful life, and beg me to pray for him and with him. Before his death he wrote me a letter with a trembling hand—a letter that is to me as precious as gold. In it he says, 'Be always honest and true with men; tell them the truth, and even those who at the time may take offence, will afterward stand by you and approve your course.' Time comes when a man wants to know the truth."

—CABLEGRAM FROM CHINA: "POSTPONE GOERTZ SAILING."—VOTH.

—The Emmaus Mennonite Church near Whitewater, Kansas, honored its pastor and elder, Rev. B. W. Harder, with the celebration of the thirty-fifth anniversary of his service as minister of the congregation, on Sunday, August 29. Two splendid sermons were given by the Reverends P. H. Richert and A. Warkentin in the forenoon. The celebration was continued in the afternoon, out in the woods with several ministers speaking. A write-up of this rather new type of anniversary festival was to appear in this issue of THE MENNONITE, but it isn't ready yet.

—Splendid Christian Cooperation. — The management of the Sunday School Times, Philadelphia, Pa., has kindly offered to put THE MENNONITE on its regular mailing list, free of charge, and has notified us that we are welcome to use any of their articles in our paper, provided we send them a marked copy of the issue in which they appear. They report that they are receiving more "exchanges" than they can handle, hence this new arrangement. We feel that our readers will appreciate the fine spirit of comradeship on the part of this outstanding Sunday School Journal.

—A letter from Africa.—Many of our readers know Rev. Frank and Mrs. Augusta Manning(missionaries with the Inland Mission in formerly German East Africa. From a letter recently received we cull the following: They are situated on an island in the southern section of Lake Victoria, where they have opened a new station called Ukerewe, to serve two tribes of people with quite distinct languages which makes language study rather difficult. They are to help evangelize some 80,000 people. And although there has not before been any resident gospel work done, native Christians have established nine centers along which they give the Word of Life as well as they can. The greatest menace and hindrance to their mission work are the witch-doctors who are skilled in extracting large sums of money from the people for their service, as well as in causing their patients to die rather than cure them, and then blaming the evil spirits for the deaths. Here is one illustration of a witch-doctor's work: "A small lad was carried into us with his leg, buttocks and stomach area burnt deeply. What caused it ? ? ? The boy had been suffering with dysentery and, as usual, the witch-doctor was called first, charged a high price, and then he burned the above named parts to drive away the dysentery." Our prayers are asked to help these missionaries combat the hold that Satan has on these benighted African natives.

—Our Field Secretary, Brother H. A. Fast writes from Upland, California, "The Sequoia Retreat was well attended, although not as large as last year. Some 63 were regularly enrolled. A very fine spirit prevailed and I am sure that it has been a real and lasting blessing to many. It would be easy to go into raptures over the beauty of the scenery at these retreat grounds.—Sunday afternoon we attended the farewell services at Los Angeles for the Eitzens. The church was crowded. It did one good to hear the many words of appreciation spoken about the ministry of the Eitzens. They also called on the Field Secretary for a few remarks. The Los Angeles church appears to be a very active, missionary-minded group."

—A New Type of Reunion.—"The pupils of District No. 8 (near Berne, Ind.), taught by Dr. Amos Reusser in 1892 enjoyed their first reunion at the Lehman Park, Sunday, with 300 persons in attendance. An elaborate dinner was enjoyed by the "pupils" and their families and a most interesting program was presented." Of the 84 "pupils" in the school at that time, 60 were present and eleven had since passed away.—Berne Witness. 84 children in one school, with one teacher. Today there are one-room schools with six or even less children. Education is becoming more and more costly.

—The Minnesota Y. P. Retreat, sponsored by the Northern District, and held at the Bergfelder and Bethel churches was well attended. A total of 77 registered. Dr. Arnold Schultz of Chicago, who goes to Bluffton College to teach Bible, and Dr. A Warkentin of Bethel College were the instructors in charge of the lectures, Bible studies and discussions. Gerhard Toews led the general and chorus singing. D. H. Fast, member of the committee on education was chairman of the Retreat.—Mt. Lake Observer.

—THE ANNUAL ANNIVERSARY AND DONATION DAY OF THE HOME FOR THE AGED at Frederick, Pa., will be held on Saturday, Sept. 11. It is hoped that the Home may have a share in the harvest of the year."

—BALLY, PA.—What a lot might be said of Rev. C. H. van der Smissen's visit East.! He was a most interesting and entertaining man. What a blessing our people received! Bro. van der Smissen served our church fifty years ago as pastor and organized our C. E. Society. Now on Sunday night, July 11, he was with us again. In his message, he spoke on the greatest verse in the Bible, John 3:16. A full house was here to welcome him. We pray God to spare our venerable pastor for many more years of service and cheer.

Bethel College will enter the new-school year with a teaching staff of thirty persons, including eight new instructors that have been engaged to take the place of some who have left, or as new additions. 291 new and former students have made application for admission at this writing and the number is rising.

NOTHING LEFT BUT THE COB.—An old colored preacher was asked how his church was getting along. "Mighty poor, mighty poor," was his reply. Quizzed "Why?" he answered, "De 'sieties, de 'sieties. Dey is just drawin' all the fatness and marrow outen the body and the bone of the Lord's body. We can't do nuffin' without de 'siety." Then he named some lodges, and some organizations within the church to which members of his flock belonged and continued, "Why by the time de brudders and sisters pay all dues and 'tend all the meetin' der is nuffin' left for Mount Pisgah Church." This preacher has annalyzed the general situation in many of our American churches. We Mennonites shouldn't have any trouble with the lodges, but there are clubs, organizations, and parties that claim our attention and support. There is even some danger of over-organization within our churches. We are apt to follow the trend of adding new machinery in the work of drawing the net of salvation. And we who have been noted for living "the simple life" are tending to add luxuries to the necessities of life, "to be in style," and to have just what our worldly neighbors have. If we are really in earnest about our Christian discipleship we do well to compare ourselves with the Apostolic Church. They tarried in Jerusalem until they received "power from on high." They made their prayer meetings a mighty power house. The only piece of machinery that that church added was the election of a board of deacons, and in this they had God's approval. But that church turned the world upside down, as far as they could reach it. What the church of today needs most, is not more or new machinery but more spiritual power, more outpouring of the Spirit among its members.

GENUINE FRIENDSHIP.—There is nothing more beautiful in human life than true friendship. Literature gives us several ideal examples. In Schiller's "Die Buergschaft" a young patriot, Moeros, makes an attempt upon the life of Dyonis, the absolute ruler of the land, is apprehended and condemned to death. But the tyrant grants him three days' time to enable him as the oldest son of an orphaned family to marry his sister to her betrothed, on condition that he furnish a substitute who will die in his stead on the cross, if he fails to return. This Moeros does. Everything goes well, only on his return from the wedding, floods, a murderous assault, and killing thirst greatly imperil his timely arrival home. But with superhuman efforts he reaches the place of execution just as his friend is to be nailed to the cross. "Me, hangman," he cried, "execute." "Here I am for whom he's substitute." This demonstration of true friendship so completely softened the stony heart of the tyrant that he begged the two friends to make him their third partner. But by far the most beautiful example of true friendship is that of David and Jonathan, for it was anchored in God, "And Jonathan, Saul's son, arose, and went to David, and strengthened him in God." I Sam. 23:16. This means it was God who linked them together. Friendship is often commonplace and disasterously limited, because divine linkage is lacking. There are only two where there should be three. Jesus is ever ready to be the third co-partner. This applies to marital friendship as well. When the troths that are pledged are in God, the friendship in marriage is bound to be genuine and lasting.

TEACHERS AND DUTIES.—At this time of the year our thoughts are turned to schools, children, and teachers. For we realize that what the school and the teacher will do with and for the child will help determine its future woe or weal. What are some of the duties that parents may rightfully expect of the teacher? 1. That she treat the child with a truly fatherly, motherly attitude, or as pedagogy phrases it, " in loco parentis." 2. That she carefully study the individual traits and characteristics of the child, to enable her to do all that is possible toward its development. 3. That, especially if she is a Christian, she do her work with all her heart and mind and strength. 4. That she should ever be mindful of her wonderful opportunity in influencing and molding impressionable human nature toward the Christian ideal, and in being daily privileged to watch the marvels of growing, developing childhood. 6. That her best reward is not in dollars and cents but in the approval and appreciation of the community and of God, and the conscientiousness of having done good and well. What are some of the considerations that the teacher may rightfully expect of parents? 1. That they treat her and also her work with Christian love and sympathy. 2. That they never criticize her nor even say an unkind word about her in the presence of their children. The tales of a tattling child or the wagging tongue of a critical, jealous mother can make the life of the teacher absolutely miserable and almost ruin her reputation. 3. That she is entitled to the use of modern, attractive facilities and equipment. 4. That she has the right to manage the school and teach according to her own best judgment. 5. That she be aided in her work by the earnest prayers of the Christian parents of her flock.

HOME MISSIONS

W. S. Gottshall, Sec.

THE MISSION IN THE MOUNTAINS OF PENNSYLVANIA. — East Freedom P. O. — Three important events are to be recorded for this place that took place during this quarter; the ordination of Brother Rough as Elder, and the entertainment of the Sunday School Convention of the Eastern District, and the land deal by which a patch of ground was added to the lot of the church and home. The Sunday School averages an attendance of 55 and the offerings $1.98 a Sunday. Almost all stay for the services. The morning service is more for church members while the evening service is especially of an evangelistic nature. The Young People have their programs on Sunday evening before services. There are about 30 on the roll most of whom take an active part. They have a live Society capturing the attendance banner at the District meeting several times. They paid for the paint for the inside of the church.

The best attended service is in the evening when from 70 to 80 people come out and the interest is good. The choir has ten members. The midweek meetings for Bible Study are attended by from 30 to 50 people.

The Brotherhood and Ladies Aid Society were started in February and are growing. They have joint meetings and the dues are about enough to pay for a communion set. This is a good way to fellowship, some become reconciled and others are saved. The spiritual and financial conditions of the congregation are good. The contributions are sufficient to pay for the running expenses and they are now asking for funds to paint the church and home inside and outside with two coats. The people are thankful for the support given by the Board which goes a long ways toward keeping the work moving. They thank God for people who give of their means to support such work as this.

If any one has a Home Study Course in piano playing and would donate it to the mission it would help them to have a regular pianist. There are those who would gladly learn to play.

The patch of ground added to the mission property is fenced and the fence is whitewashed and is a great improvement. Come and visit the mission and see it.

PORTLAND, OREGON.—The report from Portland begins by a greeting with Ps. 91:1, and continues: "We praise God for His leading and for blessings received. We were glad for the three days visit of Rev. Fast, the Field Secretary. On Sunday morning he had a fairly good audience. Tuesday evening he spoke to the Women's Society and had a good attendance. The lectures and pictures of Bethel College shown by Brother J. M. Regier were well attended and enjoyed. Brother Baumgartner was with us on the Sunday after Conference. Dr. Edward Mott preaches regularly at the Mission and is well liked and gives very good messages. We had fifty children with four teachers and four helpers in our vacation Bible school the first two weeks in July. God has been good to us and one of our members donated 50 new song books to our Sunday School and church. Join us in praying for the salvation of souls." Cath. Niswander.

The Board has engaged Brother Edmund Miller of Freeman, S. D. and his wife, who hails from N. Chili, N. Y., to take over the Superintendency of the Portland Mission by about October 1. His ordination took place September 5 in the Salem-Zion Church, East of Freeman, S. D., which is his home church.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. Richert, Sec.

Champa, C. P., India, August 16, 1937

Dear Brethren of the Foreign Mission Board:

The cable of Birra Station flood will have reached you and we hasten to send a detailed account.

On Wednesday, August 4th, water flowed over the mission compound by noon. At four in the afternoon water reached the floor level of Thiessen's bungalow. By 10 p. m. it reached the floor level of Duerksen's Bungalow and in the mean time it was over two feet deep at Thiessens, and it rose to 33 inches by 2:30 a.m. Mr. Thiessen with 101 school boys remained at his house, while the rest of the community, 175 persons, were all gathered at the Duerksen house. When the water got so high Mr. Thiessen sent most of the boys onto the roof, while he and six large boys stood guard below in the water, lest any small boy should fall down. Thus they spent the night. At the other house people were ready to ascend to the roof, but it did not become necessary. It took more than the whole day before the water had completely receded from the compound.

The question arises why they did not escape to higher ground. They themselves have answered thus: "While there was the chance to escape no one believed that the flood would become so serious. Afterwards the way of escape was cut off." The current was very swift when the water was at its highest, and it undermined all that was built of mud or contained mud mortar. Wall after wall fell down during the night. After the waters receded the compound was covered by slimy mud in many places and in others there were sand banks with deep cuts in between.

The morale of the missionaries as well as of the whole Christian community was perfect. During that perilous night they kept up each other's courage by song and prayer. The sound of the singing carried from house to house and thus each group knew the others were still there. Telephone connections to Champa held out until after midnight. Then the line succumbed to the current, and outsiders did not know what was happening until a runner got through on Friday. The two bungalows are unharmed. The church seems to be all right, but at this writing we are not sure. The boarding school plant has suffered, but most buildings are standing. Other small buildings for living quarters are either destroyed or seriously damaged. Fences are largely down. My first rough estimate is a loss of Rs. 15,000 to mission property. (This is about $6000.00.)

But then comes the great question of the advisibility of reconstruction on the old site. More than once before this there has been a debate in the missionary conference as to whether the Birra station should be expanded or not. Until now the majority opinion had been in favor of expansion. The belief was that the location was safe. The last debate was before the construction of the Thiessen bungalow. Now we know that the place is not safe. Such a flood may not reoccur in a life time, and again it may come this year or next. Personally I believe that opinion at the next missionary conference will swing toward an ultimate abandonment of the station. Perhaps the removal of the school plant will be the first aim. Government officials who came to investigate have urged a change of location. All this will involve expense, but not all in one year.

What we praise God for is that there has been no loss of life and that up to date there are no signs of any epidemic coming in the wake of the flood.

Fraternally yours, F. J. Isaac.

ONE'S OWN WAY.—"Every way of man is right in his own eyes; but Jehovah weigheth the hearts."—Prov. 21:2.—How absurdly easy it is for a man to cheat himself! We are seldom critical of ourselves, even when we think we are. The proof of that is the way we resent the criticism of others, however loving and considerate it may be. Our way is right in our own eyes.

"Trust thyself," says Emerson; and adds, "Every heart vibrates to that iron string, and our hearts might far better vibrate to it.

Confidence is a fine quality, but only when it is based on Christian humility and Christian obedience. —Christian Herald.

Schools and Education

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

III. In a previous article it was suggested that our schools must serve our churches by furnishing well trained leaders. But repeatedly in this country, and certainly in other countries, we are made conscious of the woeful lack of thoroughly Christian leaders in matters of state. Well informed Christians are aware of the fact that the trend in our own government is to assume ever more powers and responsibilities. Functions formerly left to individuals or private concerns are now being taken over by the State. Whatever the relative merits of such a trend may be is immaterial for the moment. The point to be made now is that the trend in unmistakable, and must be dealt with from that standpoint. Under such conditions it becomes highly significant who the men of state will be. Here too the Christian College has not only an opportunity but a real responsibility. Says William Allen White, famed Kansas journalist: "If the American churchmen fail to support the kind of colleges that turn out Christian leaders, American life under another leadership soon will close the churches." Not only do we need Christian leaders in our churches but in matters of state as well. To that end may our own colleges also be directed.

To The Christian Churches

MESSAGE FROM THE OXFORD CONFERENCE

(Concluded from last issue)

Economic Life at the Bar of Christ

In the economic sphere the first duty of the Church is to insist that economic activities, like every other department of human life, stand under the judgment of Christ. The existence of economic classes presents a barrier to human fellowship which cannot be tolerated by the Christian conscience. Indefensible inequalities of opportunity in regard to education, leisure, and health continue to prevail. The ordering of economic life has tended to enhance acquisitiveness and to set up a false standard of economic and social success. The only forms of employment open to many men and women, or the fact that none is open, prevent them from finding a sense of Christian vocation in their daily life.

We are witnessing new movements which have arisen in reaction to these evils but which combine with their struggle for social justice the repudiation of all religious faith. Aware of the reality of sin, the Church knows that no change in the outward ordering of life can of itself eradicate social evil. The Church therefore cannot surrender to the utopian expectations of these movements, and their godlessness it must unequivocally reject; but in doing so it must recognize that Christians in their blindness to the challenging evils of the economic order have been partly responsible for the anti-religious character of the movements.

Christians have a double duty—both to bear witnessness to their faith within the existing economic order and also to test all economic institutions in the light of their understanding of God's will. The forces of evil against which Christians have to contend not only are found in the hearts of men as individuals, but have entered into and infected the structure of Society and there also must be combatted. The responsibility of the Church is to insist on the true relationship of spiritual and economic goods. Man cannot live without bread, and man cannot live by bread alone. Our human wealth consists in fellowships with God and in Him with our brethren. To this fellowship the whole economic order must be made subservient.

The questions which have mainly engaged the attention of the Conference are questions that can be effectively dealt with, in practice, only by the laity. Those who are responsible for the daily conduct of industry, administration and public life must discover for themselves what is the right decision in an endless variety of concrete situations. If they are to receive the help they need in making ressponsible Christian decisions new types of ministry will have to be developed by the Church.

The fulfilment of the tasks to which the Church is called today lies largely in the hands of youth. Many loud voices are calling on young people to give themselves to political and social ideals, and it is often hard for them to hear the voice of Jesus Christ who calls them to be servants of the eternal Kingdom. Yet many of the younger generation, often in spite of ridicule and sometimes of persecution, are turning to Him, and individually, as well as in Christian youth movements, devote themselves to the renewal of the life of the churches and to make known the Good News of Christ by word and action.

Youth and Education—A Twofold Task

In the education of youth the Church has a twofold task. First, it must be eager to secure for every citizen the fullest possible opportunity for the development of the gifts that God has bestowed on him. In particular, the Church must condemn inequality of educational opportunity as a main obstacle to fullness of fellowship in the community.

While the Church is thus concerned with all education it has, also, a special responsibility to realize its own understanding of the meaning and end of education in the relation of life to God. In education, as elsewhere, if God is not recognized, He is ignored. The Church must claim the liberty to give a Christian education to its own children. It is in the field of education that the conflict between Christian faith and non-Christian conceptions of the ends of life, between the Church and an all-embracing community life which claims to be the source and goal of every human activity, is in many parts of the world most acute.

As we look to the future it is our hope and prayer that the Spirit of God may cause new life to break spontaneously in a multitude of different centers, and that there may come into being a large number of "cells" of Christian men and women associated in small groups for the discovery of fresh ways in which they may serve God and their fellow-men.

We have deeply felt the absence from our fellowship of the churches that have not been represented at the Conference. Our hearts are filled with anguish as we remember the suffering of the Church of Russia. Our sympathy and gratitude go out to our Christian brethren in Germany; we are moved to a more living trust by their steadfast witness to Christ and we pray that we may be given grace to bear the same clear witness to the Lord.

Toward a New World Unity

We have much to encourage us since the Conference at Stockholm twelve years ago. The sense of the unity of the Church in all the world grows stronger every year. We trust that this cause will be yet more fully served by the World Council of Churches, proposals for which have been considered and commended to the churches.

We have tried during these days at Oxford to look without illusion at the chaos and disintegration of the world, the injustices of the social order and the menace and horror of war. The world is anxious and bewildered and full of pain and fear. We are troubled yet we do not despair. Our hope is anchored in the living God. In Christ, and in the union of man with God and of man with man, which He creates, life even in face of all these evils has a meaning. In His Name we set our hands, as the servants of God and in Him of one another, to the task of proclaiming God's message of redemption, of living as His children and of combatting injustice, cruelty and hate. The Church can be of good cheer; it hears its Lord saying, "I have overcome the world."

Rally and Retreats

S. S. and Y. P. Rally and Retreat Meeting, Richland, Pa. Aug. 28-29

"A very happy time was enjoyed by the twenty two delegates who spent the week-end at the S. S. and Y. P. Rally at Richfield, Pa. These delegates represented ten Christian Endeavor Societies of our conference, including Allentown, Bally, Bowmansville, East Swamp, Flatland, Germantown, Lansdale, Quakertown, West Swamp and Zionsville. The programs were arranged and presided over by Walter Temple, Germantown.

In the Saturday afternoon session we enjoyed a number of musical selections and stirring, concise messages on Rom. 12:1, by Walter Temple.

In the evening session we had a song service, the devotions by Clarence Kooker, and an interesting and helpful message by John Fretz of Lansdale.

The delegates were entertained for the night by the members of the Richfield congregation, and we wish to thank them as a group for their kind hospitality.

Sunday morning the Sunday School session was in charge of Ernest Leitzel, Supt. He requested that if possible the delegates take charge of the classes and teach the lesson. Only the two youngest classes kept their regular teacher. In the absence of the pastor, who remained at his home because of illness, Walter Temple, took charge of the morning service and based his message on John 21:24-25 and John 20:30-31. After a delightful meal at the church, we left for home, very happy because of the new friends we had made and because of the joy of Christian fellowship with God's people."—Viola E. Weidner.

Western District Young People's Retreat

Held at Camp Wood, Elmdale, Kansas, August 3-8

Registration began Tuesday noon. The first meeting was held at 8 o'clock that evening.

Quiet Hour.—Wednesday morning, led by Rev. Walter Gering.—"Prayer is the Fellowship of the Soul and Its Maker."—Missionary Elizabeth Goertz spoke two mornings of her work.

Methods with Young People.—Rev. J. E. Kaufman, Mark 4:38: Jesus the Great Teacher. — Two qualifications of a Christian Worker: 1. Must be fully consecrated. 2. Willing to stand up for Truth.—Two duties: Love to God and Love to Man.—An outstanding trait is hopefulness. — For personal work we must be in good standing with the Master. Intercessory prayer and friendship are also necessary. Above all, let our Religion be a happy one.

Faith of our Fathers.—Rev. P. P. Wedel: Church and State separate, Rom. 13:1-7. The Church is Christ's body.—1. What is an oath? An oath is more than calling upon God as a witness and is very questionable. An oath is the giving of a bond, an assurance, a pledge beyond our ability.—2. Why swear at all? Swearing belongs to a class of idle words. It is a sign of spiritual poverty.

If I swear, I dictate to God to sever all my relations with God. When signing something strike out swear, put in affirm, but also strike out so help me God. —Our fathers stood against war because war violates the teaching of the Bible.

Questions Youth Faces.—During this period there were three different groups—the adult group, the boys' group and the girls' group.—Girls, Sister Lena Smith. Health is that quality of life, to live the most and serve the best.

Bible Study, Rev. A. Warkentin.—Paul's letter to the Philippians was written from Rome in 64 A. D. The purpose: Love, discernment, and to avoid offence.

Afternoon: Recreation and Meditation.

Vesper Hour, Rev. Walter Gering.—For this we gathered on the slope of a hill, facing a beautiful Kansas sunset. It reminded me of a friend's autograph verse: "May your life have just enough clouds to make a beautiful sunset." Stories of real life were told of the saving power of God.

Meeting the Master, Rev. J. N. Smucker.

Tuesday Evening: Peter Meeting the Master, John 1:42—Jesus saw not what Peter was but what he might become. Are we sure we know the Master? Are we too confident in ourselves? By the three confessions he erased the three denials. Simon, plus Jesus, makes Peter.

Sunday Morning. Saul Meeting the Master on the Damascus Road, Acts 9:6 and Acts 26:19.—If it is hard to live a true Christian life, it will be far harder in the end to have lived a Christless life—"It is the set of the sail and not the gale that determines the way we go." Will we say with Paul: "I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision."

Communion Service, Rev. P. P. Wedel.—On Sunday morning at seven we gathered on the north shore of the lake. During the quiet of the morning we partook of Holy Communion. During the services a cornet was played on the south shore. It was a very beautiful service.—Esther Hiebert, Wichita.

PUBLICATION

Recently a letter was addressed to our churches, through their pastors, setting forth the need of greater activity in the effort of placing one of our church papers in every Mennonite home, as was resolved by the Conference at its last session. This letter was to be read to the churches for their information and cooperation, with a few that steps might be taken by each church to carry out this resolution. Will not the pastors who may have passed this matter by, bring the message yet before their churches for some action? Samples of THE MENNONITE are available. A card addressed to THE MENNONITE, Bethel College, Kansas, with name and address of the church and the number of papers needed, will bring them to any church. A card addressed to the BUNDESBOTE, Newton, Kansas, will do the same for the BUNDESBOTE. Only one call for samples has thus far come to the office of THE MENNONITE. The subscription to new subscribers is one dollar a year.

May God help us all to take this matter seriously, for our families need our church papers to help them along in their spiritual life, in keeping them posted on what the Lord is doing through our churches.

Sunday School Lesson

A. S. Bechtel

September 26, 1937

GOD IN THE MAKING OF A NATION

Deuteronomy 8:11-20

Introduction

The title of this lesson is really the subject of the lessons of the past quarter. God in a remarkable way, made a well-organized nation out of the Israelites and led them to the entrance into the Promised Land. In an unmistakable manner did He intervene time and again to bring the nation into existence.

Forget not God in Prosperity vs. 11-14

In this lesson, taken from Moses' farewell address, emphasis is laid on the necessity of a nation keeping God's law. "Beware that they forget not etc." (v11). In the wilderness privations it was easy for Israel to see Jehovah supplying their needs. In the settled agricultural life of Canaan, a great change was before them. They were now to enjoy that which they had not produced (chap. 6:10-11), in an abundant supply for their material needs. Very easily could they forget their dependance upon Jehovah. Prosperity should bring a larger sense of obligation—it however so readily produces forgetfulness of God's blessings. In the enjoyment of the gifts, the Giver is easily forgotten (Matt. 19:23).

Prosperity has a very real element of danger. A people rich in goods easily loses the spirit of humility. The religious use of memory helps to make godly people.

God led in Adversity vs. 15. 16

Dangers were many but God led in safety and provided all material needs. His purpose had been to root out the spirit of self-sufficiency and self-will; to create a steadfast faith in His providential love and have them recognize His power and might in all things. God's people must learn to see God's hand and spiritual force as supreme in the world we live in. God is testing us to see if we are worthy of being His people.

Power is from God vs. 17, 18

The words of v17 are the words of falsehood and pride—short-sighted, thoughtless and boastful. Moses warns against pride in self which will see in the conquest of Canaan only evidence of their wisdom, skill and valor. All power comes from God. All success they owed to His help. All ability and wisdom are His gifts to us (v18). All prosperity they would enjoy, they owed wholly to God's faithfulness to the covenant He had made with their fathers. We too are in danger of sinning against God in being proud of our successes, our ability, accomplishments.

Penalty of Disobedience vs. 9, 20

Moses again tells them plainly that they as a nation must obey God, remember Him, or else they shall surely perish as a nation. God will punish them for their sinfulness as He punished other nations for similar reasons. He will give them over to the fruit of their ingratitude and faithlessness. When the spiritual life of a people, a nation, yields to the influence of luxury, vice and materialism, God leaves them to decay and death.

Sermon Sketch

P. H. Richert

This is a sketch of a sermon preached at the 35th Anniversary Jubilee at the Emmaus Church, Whitewater, Kansas, Sunday, Aug. 29, 1937.

"Not one thing failed of all the good things which the Lord spake concerning you." Joshua 23:13.

This text may well lead us in this Jubilee service, because when Joshua spoke these words, he had called Israel together for a similar purpose, after having served them for some 20 years or so, and after the promised land had been conquered and divided among the twelve tribes, as God had promised. Now Joshua emphasizes the fact that God had kept his promises fully. Why does Joshua do this? Evidently to the glory of God's faithfulness.

Let us follow this example in our jubilee service today.

First of all Joshua wishes that this truth should sink deep into their heart. Why? in order to make them genuinely grateful. And more than that, to make them very humble, because he cannot say the same thing of the people. Their faithfulness has not been so perfect. Joshua does not say a word about the people's faithfulness, although he could have done so in a large measure.

In this spirit of humility let us also mention a few promises which God likewise has so visibly fulfilled in your Emmaus church, promises to both the pastor and the congregation.

1. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and all these things will be added unto you." What a wonderful promise. And how faithfully has the Lord kept it!

2. "Whosoever will serve me, him will my Father honor." This is an honor day for your pastor, because he has served the Lord all these 35 years by serving the church.

3. "He who has, to him shall be given." This is another promise which the Lord has visibly fulfilled for both pastor and church. At first, Bro. Harder served as assistant to his uncle, Bro. Gustav Harder, and then God saw fit to give him more responsibility as elder of the church. The church also has grown inwardly and outwardly by using what the Lord gave.

4. Blessed are they that hear the word of God and keep it." This promise also the Lord has kept visibly.

5. "The husbandman that laboreth must be first partaker of the fruit." This is a special promise to the pastor, and he no doubt can testify, that the Lord kept it fully.

6. "He that followeth me, shall not walk in darkness." No doubt, many who would have been in darkness through sufferings, etc., can testify that by following Christ, they had always sufficient light on their way.

7. "Cast thy bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days." Perhaps no church has sent so much bread across the water as this church, and perhaps nowhere the prospects for plenty of bread after many days are better than right here.

"Not one thing failed of all that the Lord spake to you," nor will it fail in the future. Praise the Lord!

Anniversary and Thanksgiving Jubilee

On Sunday, Aug. 29, the Emmaus Church near Whitewater, Kansas, honored its Elder, Rev. B. W. Harder, by celebrating the 35th anniversary of his service for the church, and to give thanks to God for His blessings upon the work. The deacons of the congregation, with helpers, had quietly arranged and prepared for the event, in the nature of a surprise.

The celebration began in the forenoon and continued in the afternoon at a Sunday school picnic in the woods. In the morning Rev. P. H. Richert and Dr. A. Warkentin gave two splendid sermons. Rev. Henry Thiessen, co-pastor of the church was in charge of the program. An outline of Rev. Richert's sermon is given on another page under "Sermon Sketch."

Dr. Warkentin spoke on the subject, The Biblical Church and its Minister. According to the Scriptures the church and its ministers are an organism and not merely an organization. An organism is born, it is not made. God is the only lifegiver to this organism. The head of the organism is Christ; the members of the body are the members of the church (Col. 1:18). In a healthy body each member serves to sustain the life of the whole body.

The minister has the important office to serve as the mouth of this divine body. He speaks to the church of God, and he pleads for the church before God. The church on the other hand has to supply the needs of the minister (1 Thess. 5:12, 13; Gal. 6:6; 1 Tim. 5:18; 1 Cor. 9:9, 14).

Both, church and minister, have one great calling: to be the light and the salt of the earth, to represent the cause of the Kingdom of God in the world. Both have also one aim: the glorification of the Father in Heaven.

Before the close of the forenoon service, Rev. Harder was given an opportunity to address the congregation. In substance this was as follows: In a review of the past thirty-five years one of the chief problems has been, and still is, to do justice to everybody. Thus it would be unjust to say, that I am celebrating my thirty-fifth jubilee; for I would never have attained this height without your cooperation. I have had the loyal help of my wife, the good example of my father, the sympathy of my co-workers in the pulpit, and the support of the deacons, men who stood for love and justice. Then, too, I have been loyally assisted by the members of the church. Although as the first baby in the church, I have grown up with many of you, you have nobly set aside the old acknowledged fact, "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country and house."

The command, "Go out and teach" presupposes that there are those who are ready to be taught and to be served. But it is often more difficult to be served than to serve. Think of Peter, "(Lord) Thou shalt never wash my feet." One of the main reasons why the Jews hated Jesus was that they didn't want to be served by Him. But you, dear members, have lovingly and patiently permitted me to serve you. Therefore I maintain, it is proper to say, we together celebrate the thirty-fifth anniversary of united service.

And above all we owe much to Him who brought new hope, new faith, and His unspeakable love, into this love-lorn world is due all worship and praise, to you the acknowledgement of faithful cooperation. The poet expresses our feeling in, "Ich bete an die Macht der Liebe, die sich in Jesu offenbart."

In a word to the Sunday school in the afternoon, Rev. Harder continued thus: The Sunday school has been my faithful co-worker, because our young folks believe religion is not something to be endured but to be enjoyed. Because you enjoy religion, you do not leave the church after Sunday school is dismissed. Not long ago I read about a man who in looking back upon his life said: "I have spent my days stringing and unstringing my instrument, while the song I came to sing remains unsung." Although I am not guilty of the mistake of this man, for I have been singing my little song for thirty-five years, I have made the mistake of not spending enough time in stringing my instrument. My advice to the younger generation, after thirty-five years in the ministry is, to get a college and seminary education, and a post graduate course if possible. This of course does not imply that every minister so prepared will be an ideally successful minister. No, education alone will not do it. It takes more than soap and water to make a clean heart. No, knowledge alone will not do it. But is not God's work and the Church of God worthy of the very best preparation that there is to be had?—Our answer is yes, a thousand times yes!

I would like to close with the words: At evening time it shall be light, referring not to the evening of my life but to the evening of my ministry. Once more we thank you, and may God bless you!

In the afternoon Rev. Henry Thiessen, co-pastor of the church spoke briefly of the joys and some of the griefs of the ministry, and emphasized especially the high calling of the office, the highest to which any man can aspire, because it's God's work particularly.

He was followed by Rev. J. H. Epp of Hillsboro, who based his talk on Ps. 78:4: We will not hide them (that is, the words of God) from the children, shewing the generation to come the praises of the Lord, and his strength, and his wondrous works." The speaker held that a lot of things must be handed down to coming generations, but that one is indispensible, the knowledge of God. We hold the word of God as a sacred trust. 1. With other good things it has come down to us from our fathers, and we owe it to God to pass it on. We can not add to it, excepting to show that it has been our strength, our hope, our life, our light. 2. It is up to us to do our best to help make coming generations righteous, by getting them to keep its injunctions, because they are holy, just, and good; to make them conscious of their heavenly calling, of the Divine presence in life, in the universe, in history, in the church, in the footsteps of our fathers, that they may act as their worthy children. God made us for greatness, and it is the blessed privilege of us ministers to point the way to this.

Rev. J. E. Entz of Newton said, "A jubilee commemorating service in the ministry is one of the most beautiful, for it refers back to work in the service of the Master. It is a great privilege to be an ambassador in Christ's stead. There is no more precious calling than that of the minister. The task is tremendous and the responsibility great, but the Lord is at our side and helps us carry on. The text, Eph. 3, points to the use of the "inner chamber" in Paul's life. The chain is clanking on his hand, but he is inwardly happy. He labors incessantly, preaches, writes, intercedes in prayer. He dips into the great storehouse of the treasures of God and hands them out here and there. A church cannot thank its minister better than through intercesary prayer, and ministers can serve their flock best in the "inner chamber." They are the channels through which flows the power of God. Resting in Him and letting Him work through us, that is a task that brings endless joy.

Rev. H. J. Dyck of Elbing brought in his message the following thoughts: 1 Tim. 1:12, I think this verse expresses the feeling of Brother Harder on this occasion. Paul looked back over a number of years of his ministry and found it a solemn obligation as well as a privilege. He was grateful to Him, who called him. All Glory to Him. For: 1. "Christ enabled me," gave the qualifications as well as the revelation. By the grace of God I am, what I am. 2. "He counted me faithful" put confidence in me. He could later say: "I have kept the faith." 3. "Putting me into the ministry"—Ministry is not Lordship; but service, giving to the flock its meat in due season.

Rev. R. L. Hendrickson of Whitewater in his remarks spoke of the brotherly relations between himself and Rev. Harder and the esteem in which he is held in the local Ministerial Association.

In conclusion, Carl Claassen, S. S. superintendent, gave some interesting S. S. statistics which showed the steady development of that unit of the work of the Emmaus Church.—T.

Shipshewana Retreat

With an enrollment of 71 from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and two from Kitchner, Ontario, the retreat at Lake Shipshewana, Indiana, Aug. 2-8, will long be remembered by those who attended, their parents and friends as a week of vital religious inspiration and Christian education.

It served well to impress on the hearts and minds of our Mennonite young people the necessity and value of practical Christianity in every day living.

This year the following courses were pursued, listing the names of the instructors with them:

"Studies from The Book of Ephesians,"—Rev. Nunemaker, Tiskilwa, Ill.

"Growth In The Christian Life"—Rev. Arnold C. Schultz, Chicago, Ill.

"Youth Problems"—Rev. Henry Fast, Newton, Kansas.

""Great Men of the Bible"—Rev. A. E. Kreider, Newton, Kansas.

"Music and Choral Singing"—Mr. John Thut, Chicago, Ill.

The quiet worship of the Morning Devotional hours, led by Rev. Hartzler, Carlock, Ill., and the spiritually refreshing Sunset services, led by Rev. Kreider, during the calm, colorful and picturesque sunset on the lake's edge, were heart touching moments that will ever linger in the memories of those in attendance.

Eugene Raber, Sugar Creek, Ohio, was in charge of a well balanced recreational program of swimming, boating, kitten ball and volley ball. Daily chapels and nightly programs gave opportunity to many retreaters to exercise their talent in music, speech or dramatics.

Saturday evening the entire camp hiked to the hilltop just outside the retreat grounds for the annual frankfurter roast, followed by a very touching and climaxing consecration service during which the entire group, circling around the camp fire, pledged themselves, individually to a more consecrated life of Christian service. "Go Forward—Be Strong and Very Courageous," was the theme of the final sermon of the retreat, Sunday morning, Aug. 8, delivered by Rev. Souder of Grabill, Indiana.

Much credit is due Rev. Harry Yoder, Goshen, Indiana, chairman of the retreat, for the splendid work and untiring effort to make this retreat a joyous success.

Truly, we feel as did Rev. Fast in his opening sentences in an editorial in the "Retreater"—"Shipshewana will always remain an unforgetable experience to me. The fellowship with Christian young people—genuine, sincere, eager, intelligent—tones one up marvelously. It renews ones confidence in the future of the Christian cause." Ivan L. Badertscher

Christian Psychology

By a Christian Mother

Have you ever had the experience in your home that your child had developed a very undesirable habit before you became aware of it? And did you then experience that your college training, your knowledge of child psychology, your books which so often had suggested solutions to your problems with the child, did not seem to get you anywhere? And then have you experienced, how in your helplessness you have turned to God for wisdom and before you knew it you were dealing with the child in a most effective manner? Do we not have the promise that if we shall ask of Him wisdom He will give it? Why then not accept that promise, why not take Him at His word, why not avail ourselves of that wisdom in the daily contacts with our children, not only in the extreme cases where all other methods fail? Truly it is marvelous how easily often the problems with children are solved if we allow ourselves to be guided by Him who always guides aright.

How To Kill Your Church

Don't come.

If you do, come late.

When you come, come with a grouch.

At every service ask yourself, "What do I get out of this?"

Never accept an office. It is better to stay outside and criticise.

Visit other churches about half of the time to show your pastor that you are not tied down to him. There is nothing like independence.

Let the pastor earn his money.

Sit pretty well back and never sing; if you have to sing, sing out of tune and behind everybody else.

Never pay in advance, especially for religion. Wait until you get your money's worth, and then wait a bit longer.

If your church unfortunately happens to be harmonious, call it apathy. or indifference or lack of zeal, or anything under the sun except what it is.—"Farm and Home"

S. Oct. 2. Following leaders, Heb. 13:7, 8

Suggested hymns

"Lead On, O King Eternal"
"More Love To Thee"

Problems

1. "That greatest men and women of the world have opened their souls most widely to intimations of the will of God; indeed, that is what has made them great." Visions appeared to Ananias (Acts 9:10), Cornelius (Acts 10:3), Peter (Acts 10:17), Paul (Acts 18:9), John (Rev. 1:12ff). The unknown man of Macedonia would seem to represent the non-Christian peoples of Europe to whome Paul was sent. God's call is more important than we often realize. A summon from a king is a high honor, but how much more is the call from the King of kings! "Is there anything we need more than this sense of the presence of God and the guidance of God in our lives today?" What appeals for help come to the church today, and how should we heed them? An interruption of our plans often upsets us, but the "long view" shows that it is Christ's way. Paul felt his plans interrupted, but as a result of his missionary journey, Europe has the great Christian cathedrals in Cologne and Milan, St. Peters and Notre Dame, Durham, York, and Canterbury; the great paintings: The Madonnas and Transfigurations, the Crucifixions, and Ascension; the Oratorios, Elijah and St. Paul; the Stabat Mater and the Messiah were composed in Europe; the authors Dante and Milton lived there.

2. Peter often doubted and acted impetuously. He, however, proved himself a man by making an honest attempt to improve his actions. When Christ appeared to his disciples, they were glad. "It is the presence of the Lord that makes his people glad, as it is the absence from Him that makes them sad. When Thomas doubted, our Master set a good example. He was patient and loving until Thomas became thoroughly convinced. What change came over the disciples after Christ's resurrection? How may we become 'equipped'?

3. What would you consider essential in undertaking a big task?

4. " 'The most sensitive part of civilized man is his pocket,' and we can see how bitter was the hostility here and at Ephesus, when the new faith threatened existing pecuniary profits." "There is no more determined and bitter enemy to the gospel than disappointed avarice. Wherever the truth of Christ has interfered with unlawful gains, it has awakened malignant opposition. Men growing rich on the degradation, vice, and misery of their fellow creatures, are exceedingly indignant at being thwarted by the influence of religion." What can we do to overcome enemies of the church—at home—on our mission field?

"Wherever Paul went surprising things occurred, and this was true even though he went to prison. The Christian can go nowhere without the following of Christ's comforting love and majestic power." How can we learn to 'sing songs in the night'? How can "The darkest hour is just before day" be an inspiration to us?

5. What do you consider essential characteristics of leaders. Contrast the leadership of Moses with that of some of the present day dictators. Which of these leaders has or will exert the most lasting influence?

6. Who have been missionaries, fearless of new adventures? "We admire this spirit in the veteran missionary when we see a man like David Livingstone at the age when most men prize dearest the comforts of home, setting forth once more to explore the dark continent beyond the reach of all his previous journeys in the unflinching pursuits of his life-long hope to redeem Africa from slavery."

"Back flies the foam; the hoisted flag streams back;
The long smoke wavers on the homeward track;
Back fly with winds things which the winds obey:—
The strong ship follows its appointed way!"

How may we fight discouragement and "press on toward the goal"? —D. H. Franzen.

Consecration Meeting

Almost from the beginning of Christian Endeavor the first meeting of the month has been set aside as Consecration meeting. What does it mean in your society? Going through a dull routine of calling the roll of your members with little or no response? Or have you given it up as something out of date? It can become very precious time to your members, if you will come back to its original purpose. It should be a time when the embers of our spiritual life are made to glow again, and our hearts are warmed with a new love and consecration to our Saviour. Your consecration meeting can mean that to your members with enough prayer and preparation back of it.

Pledge Emphasis

Our topic is loyalty. Young people are often thoughtless in their disloyalty to the C. E. Society because its aims and purposes are not kept before them. The C. E. pledge and loyalty to its spirit might be made the center of this meeting, making it a part of the worship services and later using it in the consecration meeting at the close. Hang the pledge in a different place than usual, so it will catch the attention of the endeavorers as they enter the room. Use flowers or potted plants to make the room attractive.

If your society does not have a pledge, the following one is recommended: "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I promise Him that I will strive to do whatever He would have me do. I will make it the rule of my life to pray and read the Bible, to support the work and worship of my church, and to take part in the meetings and other activities of this society. I will seek to bring others to Christ, to give as I can for the spread of the Kingdom, to advance my country's welfare, and promote the Christian brotherhood of man. These things I will do unless hindered by conscientious reasons, and in them all I will seek the Saviour's guidance."

Suggested Worship Service

Select hymns that suggest loyalty and faithfulness. Have your announcements made early in the meeting.

Hymn: "Loyalty to Christ," stanzas 1 and 4

Scripture reading: 2 Tim. 2:1-7; 1 Thess. 5:12, 13 (Before the scripture is read the leader should announce the topic. Ask two members to come to the front of the room in prompt fashion and read the passages given above. They should be told in advance.

Reading of the C. E. Pledge in unison. Before it is read the leader might say, "Believing that our Christian Endeavor pledge expresses our loyalty to Christ and His will for us, let us repeat it together."

Hymn: "Take My Life and Let It Be." (Remain standing for sentence prayers)

Discussion of Topic

1. Examples of loyalty and disloyalty from the Bible
2. Short talks on the phrases of the pledge, or
3. Questions for discussion

For the Leader

Loyalty is faithfulness plus something that is near devotion. I am faithful not only because it is my duty but because I want to be.

Disloyalty is a disgrace to any cause and it is a disgrace for us to be disloyal, except where our duty to man conflicts with our duty to God.

Jane was sitting with her friend in the opponents rooting section at the ball game. She was wearing the cap of her own school, but when she saw her side was losing, she slipped her cap in her pocket. She didn't want anyone to know she belonged to the losing side.

Do we slip our marks as a Christian in our pocket when we are with a crowd that doesn't care? Do we hide that we are on our way to Sunday school, or that we must leave the crowd because it is time for C. E. and make other excuses to our friends who do not go to church? What does it mean to be loyal to our home? our church? to Christ?

Consecration Closing

Give each member a slip of paper and pencil. Ask them to silently read the pledge once more, picking out the part of the pledge where they feel they should be more loyal and writing it down on the slip given them. Ask them to fold their papers and then join in silent prayer, asking God to give them courage and strength to be more loyal. While the heads are still bowed repeat the first sentance of the pledge together. Close with the first verse of "More Love to Thee" and the benediction.

Program Suggestions for October, 1937

"Thy Word Have I Hid in My Heart

October 3: The book of Ruth
October 10: The book of Daniel
October 17: The book of Esther
October 24: The book of Ezra
October 31: "Sing them over again to me, Wonderful words of Life." (Review)

Verse for the month: Blessed are they that hear the word of God and keep it. Luke 11:28.

Song for the month: Book of Grace. If you should not have access to this song, you might use it as a poem spoken in unison at each meeting and choose some other hymn for your memory work this month.

"Book of grace and book of glory,
Gift of God to age and youth,
Wondrous is thy sacred story,
Bright, bright with truth.

Book of love, in accents tender
Speaking unto such as we;
May it lead us, Lord, to render
All, all to Thee. Amen.

Aim for the month: to teach the truths contained in these pages and to endear to the child the Word of God.

SUGGESTIONS FOR OCTOBER 3, 1937

The Book of Ruth

Call to Worship:

Assemble your juniors in the back of the church except a group of four or six. Place these near the piano in front and let them sing the first verse of "Come, Ye That Love the Lord." Let those in the rear answer with verse two as they begin walking to their seats. Let both groups sing verse three and four.

Worship period: (remain standing)

1. Let one voice speak the words of Psalm 51:10
2. Another voice, Psalm 19:14
3. Third voice, Psalm 139:23, 24
4. In unison sing The Lord is in His holy temple. Follow this by the three-fold Holy from the "Holy City." You will find this short refrain in the cover page of the Service Hymnal. (Be seated)

Mission Minutes

Sometimes little things are of great value. The thought has come to me, could these minutes be the means of uniting the efforts of the Junior leaders? There is Mrs. Rupp trying to work mission projects through the Junior Messenger, there is Mrs. Cline doing the same through the Mission News and Notes. It seems to me that the Junior Leaders must be the connecting link. Mrs. Rupp is sponsoring a Treasure Chest for missions. Let us get acquainted with it; let us follow her suggestions as well as Mrs. Cline's, let us be the means of leading the eyes to see, the heart to will and the hand to do. Notice the little verse in the August 2nd issue of the Messenger:

"Our Treasure Chest is waiting
For some small gifts to Him,
Who died to save all children,
Will no one bring them in?"

Perhaps our offerings should be an answer to the need presented by these editors from time to time. We are so prone to work, each one, independent of the other. Why not "build" together. Perhaps we can build better.

Announcements

Study Period

1. Sing in unison: Wonderful Words of Life
2. A Story Told in Four Chapters. Let four juniors tell the story of the book of Ruth, each telling content of one chapter.
3. The Verse I Found. At a previous meeting the announcement should be made asking each one to read the story of Ruth and select one verse to bring to the next meeting. At this time let the children take their turn in stepping to the board and writing their verse reference after which they recite the verse brought. Should the group be large the leader could do the board work. If the same reference is chosen a mark is made behind the reference. It may be that the entire group will return with 1:16, 17. (This would be a splendid time to begin the year's Pointer System)
4. Special music supplementing thought of evening
5. Heart-talk: "Choosing the Right." (Based on the book of Ruth)
6. Repeat verse of the month
7. Sing in unison: Book of Grace
8. Closing prayer

TO THE JUNIOR

More What Am I's

How many can you answer?

1. I am such a little bit to give that people forget to make use of me. They forget that, though small the service they render through me, it is yet pleasing unto God and shall be rewarded by Him. When I am used, even for strangers, there must be love in the heart. Matt. 10:42.

2. I am likened unto a tabernacle in which God's glory dwelt. I am not my own for I was bought by a price, therefore I am to be given back to God for His use. 1 Cor. 6:19, 20; Romans 12:1.

3. I am not wide like the structure that resembles me and is used by more people than I am used by but I am the better choice because I lead to life. Matt. 7:13.

4. I am free, free of care and worry. I am cared for by your Father in Heaven. How much more will He care for you? Matt. 6:26.

5. I am beautiful in the soft glow of many colors. I am a constant reminder of a great promise of love. I came with the birth of clouds. Gen. 9:13.

6. I am something to be written in. I will bring fear and joy, reward and judgment. Jesus said, "Rejoice not in that which you were allowed to do, but rejoice in me." Rev. 21:27. Luke 10:20.

Doctrinal --- Devotional

P. A. Kliewer

THE CROSS IN CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

The Cross is the door into Christian education. The first thing a child needs is not what often is called, "Christian Education," but evangelism. To be evangelized is to be instructed in the Gospel, converted to Christianity.—This is what the dictionary calls Evangelism. My definition of it is, to bring the child to realize the need of a Savior. To make them WISE unto salvation, salvation by Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

We are born into the family of God by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as our personal Savior. We do not grow INTO grace, but will grow IN grace. Thus we cannot be educated INTO the family of God, but we can be educated IN the family of God. Christian Education is educating the children of the family of God. We are Born from Above INTO the Family of God. Born of God.

The first aim then must be, to teach the Word of God and thus make them WISE unto Salvation, salvation, through faith which is in Christ Jesus. That he may be born again, born from above into the family of God. If we read Matt. 28:19-20, we shall find this outline of God's plan for the church's program: "Go ye into all the world, teach all nations." This is making them wise unto salvation. Then follows baptizing them." This we believe is upon Faith in Christ Jesus as their personal Savior. Third we note that it again states, "teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." This third, to my conviction, would be Christian Education, teaching the Christian the things the Father wants him to observe. How to live as His child.

The first aim in the teaching of God's Word is: "To make them wise unto salvation"—Second is: "To teach those born again, that they may Grow in the Grace and Knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ, become Christ-like, in their walk, talk and every action of life. Though every believer has the Holy Spirit, yet the Holy Spirit must have the Word of God in order for Him to do His work of building Christ-like Character.

A new birth, a new life, a new nature, a new creature in a new family Born of God from above, having heard the Word of God; come to realize that they are lost, bound for hell; believing that Christ came to seek and to save that which is lost—accepting Him as their personal Savior; feeding upon God's Word; communing with Him in prayer; telling others of Him and being busy in the church of Jesus Christ. Then their will be GROWTH, transforming into His Likeness. Then there WILL be willingness to take up His Cross and follow Him.

I believe if the home and the church will co-operate in thus making the child Wise Unto Salvation, the child will accept the Lord Jesus Christ as its personal Savior. Then again co-operating in the teaching of His Word, building up that Babe in Christ it will be hard for the Devil to sidetrack such a young person. But failing in the first part, and trying to educate it into the family of God, we are only harming the child. What are we doing in our Homes, Sunday schools, Catechetical instruction, Summer Bible schools and church services? Merely trying to educate them into the Family of God, or are we first of all making them wise Unto Salvation, that they by Faith in the Shed Blood of Jesus Christ be born into the family of God?

CORRESPONDENCE

HEREFORD MENNONITE CHURCH

Bally, Penna., August 30, 1937

Greetings to the Editor and Readers of "The Mennonite."

Another period of time has slipped by, but what a blessed one for our Congregation. We opened this period of activity by our annual Spring Communion Service on Sunday morning, May 9th. On Sunday evening, May 16th, the Perkiomen Valley Intermediate C. E. Union, of which our young people are a part, held their Rally at Schwenksville. Our pastor, Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson was the speaker, basing his thoughts on Worship. Miss Helen Nickel was with us on Sunday morning, May 23rd. Her winsome personality made many friends in her few short hours stay.

With the beginning of June, our pastor made no more announcements but had a program printed of each morning worship service, listing the hymns, sermon text, theme, and all announcements. In this way we are trying to have a more worshipful spirit in our morning service.

Our Senior C. E. Society helped to sponsor a service of studies on the Pauline Epistles during the month of June, engaging different pastors in our locality to explain an Epistle.

Miss Elizabeth Goertz was with us on Thursday evening, June 17th. Oh! to have a spirit like she. We thank our conference for permitting us to have different missionaries visit us. Our church was represented at the Eastern District Retreat by John W. Moser and Margaret Shelly. The annual Children's Day service was held on Sunday evening, June 20th, when the pageant, "The Pathway to Service" was rendered under the supervision of Mrs. Russell Bechtel. The offering at this service was given to the Eastern District Young People's Union for their mission project.

At the close of the morning worship service on June 20th, our pastor organized a catechetical class —13 young people have come out to take their stand for Christ.

Sunday, July 11, we had the joy of a visit by Rev. C. H. van der Smissen, who served this Church as pastor 50 years ago, and organized our Y. P. Society. He spoke on John 3:16.

Prof. Russel A. Lantz was with us on Sunday morning, July 25th, singing two selections and speaking on the place of congregational singing in the worshipful service. On Sunday afternoon and evening, August 8th, 36 of our members and friends helped sing "The Holy City" by Gaul at Perkasie Park under the leadership of Prof. Lantz.

Our pastor preached a forceful sermon on "The Responsibilities of a Minister" on Sunday morning, August 29th. This marked the 35th anniversary of his ordination as a "Full Minister" of the Gospel, August 31, 1902. Paul R. Shelly, one of our own boys, greatly assisted our pastor during the summer months, by attending to the printing of all church bulletins, assisting in the morning services and preaching a few sermons.

During this time we have also had some deaths and sick folks to comfort and cheer. Mr. Franklin Bauman, for many years an active member and trustee of our church was buried on Wednesday, May 5th. Our church and community was greatly saddened by the accidental death of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Y. Moyer on Monday evening, June 28th, while they were traveling along in their automobile. Mrs. Moyer had been a faithful member of our church. May God cheer and comfort these bereaved families and friends is our prayer.

Thus we come to a close of an active and most interesting season. We hope that with the inspiration received during this time we may continue to be of greater service to our fellowman and stranger whom we may pass on our journey through life.

A lazy, indolent church tends toward unbelief; an earnest, busy church, in hand-to-hand conflict with sin and misery, grows stronger in faith.—John Hall.

— DR. AND MRS. WARKENTIN'S SILVER WEDDING.—Aug. 30, 1912, in far-away South Russia, a promising young couple, A. Warkentin and Elizabeth Unger, plighted each other the troth of holy wedlock before their minister, J. W. Reimer, and a large audience. The couple then went to Germany for the purpose of further study. Meanwhile the World War broke out and they were prevented from returning to Russia. With four children in the family, they came to Newton, Kansas, in 1923, where Brother Warkentin's splendid ability and worth, immediately asserted itself. In a comparatively short time he acquired the use of the English language, was drafted into the faculty of Bethel College as instructor of German and Bible and made the co-pastor by the First Mennonite Church of Newton, Kansas. In between he managed to get away a couple of years to complete his education, so that he is now our Doctor Warkentin, serving Bethel College as professor of German and Bible and the churches of the General Conference in a larger way.—On Monday, August 30 last, their church honored the worthy couple with the celebration of their silver wedding. There was a service in the church, with Rev. C. E. Krehbiel and Rev. J. E. Entz as speakers. The senior and junior choirs of the church rendered some splendid music. Following this was a reception in the church basement, with the whole congregation as guests. Their promising son, John, who is a graduate student at the University of Rochester, N. Y., was in charge of the program, which consisted of musical numbers and an address by Rev. B. W. Harder. The couple received many presents, among them a fine upholstered chair as a present by the church.

— Bethel Church, Langdon, N. D., will have a Mission and Harvest Festival on Sunday, Sept. 19. Missionary Browns are expected to be present. All are invited to come, to partake of the blessings that the Lord has in store for us, and give thanks for all He has done and is still doing for those who love Him. A lunch will be served at noon.—Mrs. I. Veer, Corr.

— Bally Church, Penna.—"We are fortunate in having our house of worship located by the side of lovely trees, where fertile fields roll away to the south. To this place we invite the worshipper in the hope that he will bring and receive blessings in this fellowship." What a splendid combination! The groves were God's first temples and there, in beautiful Pennsylvania, they have fine churches within beautiful groves; while out here in the middle west we lament the loss of our trees through drouths.

— Wedding in the Halstead, Kans. Church.—On Friday evening, Sept. 10, occurred, in this church, the wedding of Herbert Miller and Martha Albrecht, daughter of Rev. Abr. Albrecht, Ransom, Kansas. The marriage vows were received by the father of the bride, and the pastor of the church preached a short sermon, based on, "Thou wilt show me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand are pleasures forevermore." Ps. 16:11. At the reception following, the program was in charge of Prof. Marvin Dirks, son of Rev. A. J. Dirks, and son-in-law of Rev. Abr. Albrecht. Musical numbers and addresses by Rev. Franz Albrecht and Erland Waltner were the features.

— Rev. A. T. van der Smissen who underwent a very serious operation at a Kansas City hospital some weeks ago, has been brought to his home in Buhler, Kansas, greatly improved and well on the road to recovery.

— Prof. P. C. Hiebert, Starling, Kansas, of the Mennonite Brethren church who, under the auspices of the Mennonite Central Relief Board recently visited our brethren in Paraguay and Brazil, S. A., has safely returned from his long trip.

— Bethel College has 140 freshmen and the general enrollment is nearly 300.—Freeman College is reported to have an enrollment in excess of 150. We have not heard from Bluffton thus far.

— Bethel Hospital Day was celebrated at Mountain Lake, Minn., last Sunday, at the High School auditorium. The afternoon program was in charge of Rev. I. J. Dick of the First Mennonite Church, with Rev. Missionary A. J. Brown and Rev. John Bartel of the Bethel Church as speakers. In the evening, Rev. Brown spoke again and a large mass chorus, under the direction of Arden A. Hesla sang several selections. The offerings taken to help the hospital were good.

— Dr. A. E. Hertzler, famous physician and surgeon, with a large hospital at Halstead, Kansas, has donated his valuable medical library of 5,000 volumes and 10,000 pamphlets to the medical college of the University of Chicago.

— Rev. J. H. Janzen, 2080 W. 42nd Ave., Vancouver, B. C., is writing a series of articles, entitled "Briefe an mein Volk" (Letters to my People) which have so much merit that they should be read by all of our readers that can read German. Write for a sample.

A Repeated Plea for Help

It really is very hard for me to call for help again. As the fields in Saskatchewan looked very promising until the beginning of June, I really hoped that it would not be necessary for me to ask for help again.

But the crops in Saskatchewan and in parts of Alberta have again proven a total failure, and it will again be necessary to look around for help in the way of clothing and, where this is possible, for money. The Canadian winter is cold, and after so many crop failures many people are poverty-stricken and have no means to buy clothing. Even those who were able to help themselves up to now, do not know how to provide for their families this year. There is no feed for the stock and there would be no food for the people, if the Government would not help along in this.

We would herewith extend our sincerest thanks to all the kind people who have helped us until now, and I hope you will kindly pardon me, if I again send out this plea for help.

As help is particularly needed in Saskatchewan and Alberta, I would ask that whatever is sent be sent direct to us.

Hoping that this plea may be heard and favorably considered, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

Rosthern, Sask. David Toews.

A Letter

Basna, Via Raipur, C. P., India
August 14, 1937

Dear Brother Richert:

Yesterday was our first day in the new bungalow. It has taken much work to build, and to finish sufficiently to occupy, but the joy of possession is correspondingly great.

Will you kindly convey our thanks and deep gratitude to the many friends and the churches who have made the bungalow possible. Our prayer is that we may the better serve our Lord and Master, and do the work He has given us to do.

With sincere greetings,

Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Dester

Editorials

FAITHFUL IN LITTLE THINGS — One of the finest attributes in a person is, when it can be said of him that he is dependable to the smallest details. Persons with the careless, slipshod habit may be tolerated in some places but they cannot be used in a great many callings. Such people can be easily detected in more than one way, as by being careless or slipshod in dress, in the use of language, in manners, in meeting their obligations, and even in acts of actual unfaithfulness. Such persons may, through deceit, contrive to get into positions of considerable importance but are not apt to last long. On the other hand, as Jesus puts it, "He that is faithful in a very little (German "im Geringsten) is faithful also in much." To be faithful in the smallest details is an art. The person who practices it possesses the secret of true joy in service. Every act, every gesture of unfaithfulness, whether it be in the use of one's time, one's talents or opportunities is bound to have its due reward in the loss of inward peace or joy. The value of life is not measured by the things one possesses but by the degree to which faithfulness has been practiced. In Jesus' eyes faithfulness in the smallest tasks in our earthly life is a preliminary condition to faithfulness on a larger scale, especially in the spiritual realm. Our temporal calling with its small and large tasks is the worknig ground for the development of the true inner life and our heavenly calling. — The story is told of a large family where the mother each morning, without exception, puts the question to each member of the circle, "Well, what do you propose to do today?" And from the youngest to the oldest comes a definite report as to how each is going to fill out the working hours of the day. And it is known that in that home more work is accomplished per capita, and with more than ordinary joy, than in any other home in the neighborhood.

FOOD AND RELIGION.—It is said that the easiest way to reach a man's heart (mind) and possibly also his pocket-book is through the stomach. There is considerable truth in this which it is well to ponder in connection with so-called church dinners or suppers to raise money for church maintenance. Some hold that they are "all right," for the end justifies the means. Others maintain that they are bad, for it tends to substitute the dollar for the cross. It is difficult to surmise what Jesus would say on the subject. Under modern conditions the church needs money for the pastor's salary, for the erection and upkeep of its house of worship, and for a good many other things to carry on the work of church and S. S. effectively. And there are churches that find it practically impossible to finance their work by ordinary means. In such cases it stands to reason that Jesus would take a liberal attitude, much the same that he took in the story where a man's ox had fallen into a pit on Sabbath day, maintaining it was better to rescue the animal than to let it perish, or when the disciples went through a wheat field and helped themselves to the grain to satisfy their hunger. There are church members from whom it is hard to extract money for church support, but they will attend a chicken pie dinner or chilli supper. A good repast can be made an effective means of getting some folks to church work. If for no other reason, men will go just out of a spirit of chivalry for the good ladies who prepared the meals.

"WHAT THOU DOEST, DO QUICKLY."—While war is actually in progress in Spain and China, agitation for peace is also going on. There is one institution that could stop war, at least as far as America is concerned, if the matter were seriously taken hold of and pushed, no matter what might be the consequences. Christ declared himself unmistakably against war. And it seems strange that his followers cannot make common front to eliminate this monster, that so terribly preys upon the life and happiness of the human race. Someone has aptly said, "In the last World War there were only two people who were consistent, Christ and the Quakers." Too bad that the Mennonites, divided as they were on the problem—those of Europe doing military service, those in America generally declining—cannot be named as the third people. Why can not the whole Christian church take the Quaker attitude, if we really mean what we say about war. Statistics list forty-five millions Christians for the United States. Whenever these, individually and as denominations, in "dead earnest" throw themselves across the path of the government to the next war that war will not take place. A plan has been suggested how that task can be accomplished, "Let those with a firm conviction that they will never sanction or engage in another war, declare themselves on a day set apart for that purpose in carefully prepared services, and we will accomplish more than all other plans put together." To be effective this movement should be started at once, while we are at comparative peace. For once war breaks out again, and the publicists and munition mongers incite the people to war insanity, it will be too late. Hence: Church of Christ in America, "What thou doest, do quickly!"

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. Richert, Sec.

In March Missionary S. F. Pannebecker wrote our Book Concern for some badly needed books on Mennonite history for his school, sending in a list of desirable books and adding, "Instead of purchasing these at considerable expense the thought has come to me that there are probably many who would like to contribute used books for this purpose.

In July the Book Concern received a letter from Missionary John Thiessen, India, as follows, "A few weeks ago Rev. Pannebecker's list of books appeared in the Mennonite, books which he desired for their school in China. I thought right then and there that in case you receive more books than he needs, it would be a fine thing to send some Mennonite books to our DUNLAP LIBRARY in India. Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap from Kent, England, were at Korba for quite a long time, testing the prospective coal fields there. After they left they wanted to do something for the General Conference Mennonite area. So every year they send us a number of books for missionaries and English speaking India brethern. This library is kept in Sister Lehman's bungalow, and from there we borrow the books to read. It is a fine library, but it contains no Mennonite books. It would be very good for our churches in India, if it did contain some books on our Mennonite heritage."

For the benefit of our readers, we relist the books here and would urge those who can help supply one or the other of them, to send it to the Mennoite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana, for this is a very worthy cause. In instances where the books cannot be supplied by sympathetic readers, the Board of Foreign Missions should help replenish the supply. Here is the list:

CAN WE DO IT?

Can we as a nation, using more automobiles than any other people or, for that matter, the rest of the world, stop the terrible slaughter of human lives through auto accidents? Our scientists and doctors found ways to eradicate yellow fever in the south, they have practically overcome the ravages of typhoid fever, and they are making headway in combatting cancer. Physicians, hospitals, and child welfare societies have reduced infant mortality to a minimum. Through various carefully devised precautions the railroads have almost obliterated the once heavy tolls on life, caused by accidents that formerly seemed almost unavoidable. By means of health instruction and the exercise of practical sanitation the span of human life has been lengthened fifteen or more years. These examples, with others that could be cited, show that, once the American people are sufficiently aroused to the necessity of eliminating dangers, they have found ways to do so. And it is high time to unite in an effort to reduce traffic accidents caused by careless or reckless handling of high powered motor cars, which resulted in the loss of about 35,000 lives last year, with many more maimed for life.

Some helpful remedies have already been applied, and others can and will be found. The National Safety Council has shown that we could readily reduce traffic mishaps by half if we were to use the knowledge we already have. One of the methods already tried is (1) through Education. The safety campaign among school children has already perceptibly reduced child deaths caused by automobiles, while those of adults increased about 150 per cent. (2) Effective driver's license laws have been found to reduce accidents at least 20 per cent, in states where they are in force, while in states without such laws they have been increased 40 per cent. (3) More and better street and highway illumination is a sure check on traffic accidents, as has been proved by the experience of certain cities and other centers of population. Dangerous intersections can be made safe (3) by tunneling one of the cross-roads underneath the other or by channelizing them. (5) Four lane highways greatly enhance safety, so will (6) rigid traffic officer inspection of brakes. And last but not least there is a growing conviction that (7) manufacturers must stop increasing the speed power of the cars, in fact laws should be passed to prohibit the manufacture of cars with a speed capacity of more than forty-five miles an hour.—And would it not be a splendid idea if the people of the land who are really Christians would set an example to all the rest of the people by limiting our speed out on the highway to 40-45 miles an hour. We Mennonites, especially, who are slow in a good many things, why couldn't we make that our practice?—One more thing we can all do: Ask God fervently for his protection before starting on a trip and when danger lurks.—T.

Announcements..Notices

To the churches of the Western District Conference:

Since no invitations for the session of the Western District Conference for this fall have been extended to the Conference officers, except the one of the city of McPherson through its representative Mr. Ralph F. Johnson, therefore, in accordance with resolution 33 of last year's session, the Conference will convene, the Lord willing, in the city auditorium at McPherson, Kansas, October 20-22.

The congregations are urged to send as many delegates as possible in order to have their voice in the procedings and so that many may enjoy the blessings of the Conference.

May we all remember the various Conference activities in our prayers.

For the Conference, P. P. Wedel, President,
Abraham Albrecht, Secretary.

NOTICE

In order to encourage the production of suitable printed material and the training of capable leadership in the propagation of the doctrine of Christian Peace, the Western District Conference Peace Committee recently passed, and herewith presents the following two resolutions:

1. Resolved that we encourage articles and sermons, at least in outline, on the implications of our Peace Principles in everyday practical life during peace time.

2. Resolved that we encourage the training of capable Christian leadership to supervise group meditation hours and study of the Christian solution to our social problems with special reference to problems at hand. Walter H. Dyck, Sec.

Note by the editor: The new book on "War, Peace, Amity" by Rev. H. P. Krehbiel furnishes excellent material for the study of the war-peace problem by groups, such as teacher training classes, senior Christian endeavorers, S. S. teachers, churches, and others. —Order from—MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, BERNE, INDIANA.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE CHURCH, RANSOM, KANSAS

Dear Editor and Readers of the Mennonite:

Temporally we have shared with so many other localities the hardships of years of depression. Last year was also a year of very "short crops" with us, but we are glad to note that conditions have changed for the better in many localities which fills us with hopes too. This year most of the farmers in our community received their seed back and some quite a little more. We are thankful for what we received and trust the Lord for the future. We have had scattered showers recently, and we trust that the Lord will give all of us the needed rains to do our fall seeding.

Spiritually the Lord has richly blessed us during the past. We have always had the opportunity to meet regularly for Sunday School, C. E. and prayer meetings, as well as for regular preaching services. The interest in all these activities has been encouraging. During the last three years, Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Jantzen have served our church faithfully. We were surprised and also saddened to learn of their intention to accept a call to the foreign field. But since they felt the call coming from God we wished them God's speed in their new undertaking. On the last Sunday in May the church was numerically strengthened, when four souls were added by baptism upon confession of faith and four others by the hand of fellowship. May God bless them!

Since Rev. Jantzens left us on June first, we were without a pastor for a little while, until Rev. Abraham Albrecht accepted a call from our church. The Albrecht family have been with us since August first and the work in the church is again progressing nicely. We ask God's richest blessing upon their labors among us. August 23, the church had a reception for our new pastor and his family, a large audience enjoyed an evening of Christian fellowship.

For the first time in the history of Ransom the Methodist, the Christian and the Mennonite churches held union evening services during July and August. All of these meetings were well attended.—Mrs. F. O. Oppliger.

BETHANY MENN. CHURCH, FREEMAN, S. D.

Rev. Henry Harder of Enid, Oklahoma, a Christian worker in the Home Mission there, has been in our midst from Sunday to Friday, Sept. 5-10, conducting religious services in our church at Freeman, S. D. Rev. Harder served also as guest speaker at the Freeman Jr. College chapel services on Thursday.

Freeman Jr. College had its annual Corporation meeting last Friday, Sept. 10. The reports given by the instructors of the different departments showed that much progress had been made over previous years.

Three teaching vacancies have been filled for the ensuing school year. Mr. Gerhard Toews, of Mt. Lake, Minn., formerly high school teacher in Henderson, Nebr., has assumed the position as music instructor this year. Mr. Edwin P. Graber of Freeman who has been engaged in teaching for some years, will serve as the college athletic director. Mr. Harold Gross of Freeman has also accepted a position as instructor in the college. Mr. Gross is a last year's graduate of Bethel College. He holds a scholarship to Hartford Seminary, but has been granted a leave of absence from the Seminary for one year, to enable him to teach here. The college enrollment this year has increased considerably over that of the previous year. The curriculum schedule has been altered some from that of the last year.

The Freeman Jr. College Sunday afternoon broadcasts over station WNAX, Yankton, S. Dak., are being continued this year. The music department will be wholly in charge of the programs. It is hoped that these broadcasts will be beneficial both to the listener and to the school. If any one listening to these broadcasts has special requests, send your number by letter or card to Freeman Jr. College.—Jerome Kleinsasser, Corr.

MENNONITE CHURCH, HALSTEAD, KAN.

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:

Rev. D. Wedel and four young members of the church attended the retreat at Camp Woods. They report an enjoyable as well as profitable time, spent in quiet meditation upon spiritual things which are so essential in life. Communion was observed Sunday, Sept. 5, prior to the departure of students to the various colleges, Bethel claiming six students from this church.

Our minister enjoyed a short vacation as one of the leaders of the retreat and later with his family another during a visit with relatives and friends. Sunday, Aug. 29, he exchanged pulpits with Rev. A. J. Dirks, pastor of the neighboring Garden church. The union meetings held by the local Protestant churches came to a close, Aug. 29.

Mrs. P. J. Wiens returned missionary from India gave an interesting account of their work at a large gathering of our Dorcas mission society. Ralph Ewy, who was severely burned by a gasoline explosion, was able to leave the hospital recently. It will be some time, however, before his wounds will be thoroughly healed.

Brother Herbert Miller received a call from the Deer Creek, Okla., church which he accepted. Mr. Miller and Miss Martha Albrecht were married here Sept. 10. Rev. D. Wedel gave a short talk, and Rev. Abr. Albrecht, father of the bride, performed the ceremony. The church, lit by candles in the twilight and decorated with ferns and flowers, was beautiful. Splendid quartet singing by the Mueller sisters and solos by Marvin Dirks further added to the enjoyment.

On Sunday, September 12, the ordination of Mr. Miller to the ministry took place. The church was well filled with relatives and friends. Rev. D. Wedel read the scripture lesson and led in prayer. Rev. A. E. Kreider of Bethel College based his sermon on Isaiah 6:1-8. Rev. Abr. Albrecht presided at the ordination. A double quartette sang several numbers and C. E. Krehbiel led in the closing prayer. At the conclusion of the services relatives and friends wished them God speed. They left for their charge the week following. We will miss them but what is our loss is another community's gain. Bro. Miller is a graduate of Bethel College, with a year of graduate seminary work.

We are enjoying cool fall weather and have plenty of moisture and farmers will soon be busy sowing wheat.—Katie B. Schmidt, Corr.

—THRIFT AND KIND-HEARTEDNESS REWARDED.—About 20 years ago a Swiss, Peter B. Lehman, who with his family had come to Berne, Ind., started dairying with two cows. Through hard work, foresight and economy he managed to add more cows to his herd, until today he milks 35 cows, all of them pure-bred and high producers, 500-700 pounds of butter fat a year per head being rather common. Recently he sold a four-year old Guernsey cow for $1100.00. When the family could no longer handle the work, Mr. Lehman hired a good hand, built a home for him and his family, with modern conveniences and did the same thing for a second hired hand. Each of these families has a truck patch, where they raise all the vegetables they need. They also get all the milk and other dairy products they want, likewise light, power, heat and water free with the house. As Mr. Lehman's income increases, so do their salaries. They with their employer and his daughter do all the milking by hand. They are interested in the business just as much as he is. They cooperate with perfect harmony. He has no hired help problem. They farm 200 acres of land which is made very productive through the application of barn-yard fertilizer. Lehman's five children are all enrolled in farm club work. Sanitation is the motto on this dairy farm. The cooled milk is bottled and sold in the city at top prices.—Berne Witness.—"The hand of the diligent maketh rich... he that gathereth by labor shall increase."—Proverbs.

The great high-road of human welfare lies along the old high-way of steadfast well-doing; and they who are the most persistent, and work in the true spirit, well invariably be the most successful. Success treads on the heels of every right method. Smiles

CHRISTIAN SONSHIP

1 John 3:1-6, 18-24

The aim of the lessons of this quarter—"Studies in the Christian Life," is "To create and deepen individual fellowship with Christ and to quicken the conscience of Christians that they may carry the spirit of Christ into all their activities." One of the great, fundamental facts comforting to every Christian, is that God has adopted us into His family. John assures us of this (v1). Great then is our responsibility to live as befits children of God. We should cultivate a close fellowship with Him and at all times reflect His spirit (Matt. 5:16).

Reality of Sonship vs. 1,2

God has bestowed His love upon us—a free gift—and accepts us as children. This privilege, all who will, may enjoy, all who meet the condition—faith in Jesus Christ (John 1:12). When we accept Christ as our divine Redeemer and Lord, God will receive us as His children in and through Christ. Sonship is a present fact; its future glory is yet to be revealed (v2). When He shall appear the second time, then the glory of our sonship shall be fully revealed.

Sonship and Obedience vs. 3-6

John lays much emphasis upon obedience. This is a true test of our love for God. Willful disobedience reveals a lack of love. If we hope to be like Christ when we "see Him as He is" then we will wish to be like Him here and now. Sonship demands a willful separation from all that is sinful. Purity and righteousness characterize the life of the child of God (vs3,4). Christ came to earth to save us from our sins (v5). The true child of God, abiding in Christ, will hate sin, can not live on in a sinful life (v6), but will "keep His commandments" (v22). Our manner of life is the test of our being a child of God. The nearer we keep to Christ, the more will our life be like that of a true child of God.

Sonship and Love vs. 18-24

Self-denying love reveals the spirit of the child of God. Whoever loves God will love his fellow-man also. Through faith in Christ, love is implanted in our hearts. We can know definitely whether we are His child (v19). Our heart tells us whether we love others or not and God knows much better even than our own hearts (v20). When conscious of a sincere heart, we can come to God in confidence, knowing He delights to hear and answer the prayer of His sincere child (vs 21,22). Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and love fellow-man, this is the requirement of God's child (v23). What God requires, He will give us grace to perform. The Holy Spirit also assures us of being a child of God. The Spirit banishes fear and gives a deep sense of trust. "Now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be."

Nuggets of Truth

Sonship is not a matter of feeling, but a fact.

A man can not be a child of God and act like a child of the devil.

Believe—love—Christianity is built on this foundation.

When love fills the heart, obedience is not an irksome duty.

A life which does not measure up to one's profession is a reproach.

America and the War in the East

In 1917 we went to war against Germany because the Congress and the President held that she had stepped on our toes by interfering with our shipping and thus had "violated our neutral rights." To avoid a re-occurance of a similar experience our neutrality law has been passed with the underlying idea that "if our nationals wanted to make money out of other people's wars, they would do so henceforth at their own risk."

The law reads, "Whenever the President shall find that there exists a state of war between . . . two or more foreign States, the President shall proclaim such a fact." And, that fact proclaimed, an embargo on munitions, loans and credits is to be automatically imposed, although the President is given some discretionary power in its application which may readily prove fatal. Today Japan and China are actually at war, although it is said to be of the "undeclared type." The President has been urged by many to apply the law in its full force. For today American ships are on the high seas, carrying munitions and airplanes to blockaded China. It is quite certain that Japan, bullheaded and arrogant as she is, will not allow them to pass. What will Uncle Sam do then? Either fight over there or back down, and this the national pride forbids. So there are grave dangers ahead. Instead of applying the Law fully, the President is using the "day-to-day" or "twenty-four hour" policy, i. e. he halts the movement of munition carrying ships for a day at a time, while watching further developments.

Some of the arguments in favor of the President's holding off policy are:

1. Japan's attack is not a war against the Chinese government, only against some troublesome anti-Japanese elements in China.

2. Application of neutrality would mean a blockade of Chinese ports by Japan, and China which has our sympathy would be weakened. (The blockade is partly on already)

3. "American lives in China would be endangered." (In fact Americans are dying there today.)

4. The U. S. is committed to earlier policies, such as the "Open Door", which is not compatible with neutrality.

5. Application of neutrality would turn the trade of China and Japan away from us.

6. Japan's present blockade is not legal, since there is no declaration of war.

Opposed to these flimsy arguments against the real application of the neutrality law, there are many very weighty reasons why it should be immediately and energetically enforced. Some of them are:

1. It is a law, and was enacted to keep us out of future wars. The President has sworn to enforce the laws of the land.

2. "There are only two possible choices: Application of the law or acceptance of the possibility of ultimate war." Our present waiting and watching policy may be destined to lead to the latter.

3. The primary object of the law was to protect the country against the incidents that lead to the World War.

4. The law was applied to the Italo-Ethiopian and the Spanish conflicts, so why not to the far eastern war.

5. Invariable application of the law would convince the world in arms that the U. S. cannot be looked to for any support, and this might prove to be a deterrent to war.

In view of these facts it becomes the bounden duty of all honest citizens, especially the Christians, to use what influence they can to coerce the government to apply the law fully and effectively. This we can help to do as follows:

1. Write the President, politely asking him to perform this duty.

2. Write your congressman and U. S. senators from your state to use their influence with the President and department of State to issue the neutrality proclamation.

3. Get your church to take action along the same line.

4. Get your local paper to agitate the matter.

Doesn't it seem as though we as Mennonites should do all we can to make this neutrality law effective?

* * *

The gospel has but a forced alliance with war. Its doctrine of human brotherhood would ring strangely between the opposed ranks. The bellowing speech of cannon and the baptism of blood mock its liturgies and sacraments. Its gentle beatitudes would hardly serve as mottos for defiant banners, nor its list of graces as names for ships-of-the-line.—Chapin.

A GOOD COLLECTION STORY

A story is told of a man who came up to a minister one day, after the service in a frontier town, saying: "Parson, that there service and sermon was grand. I wouldn't have missed 'em for $5.00."

When the minister suggested, jokingly that he hand him the difference between the amount he had put in the plate and the figure he mentioned for missionary work, he stopped suddenly, looked at the preacher with his mouth wide open and then slowly pulled from his pocket $4.90, which he handed him without a word.

We hope this will serve the purpose of a collection story. How about the amount we were wanting to raise toward the return of missionaries on furlough and the sending of new missionaries. We suggested four hundred dollars—how much of it did, or will you give?—Selected.

The Mennonite "Einwanderung" to Nebraska

Address by Dr. A. E. Sheldon at the Dedication of the Historic Marker at Henderson, Nebr., Aug. 19

The Poet John G. Whittier was the first of all American writers to give the Mennonite immigration to America a place in literature. One of his little-read poems, "The Pennsylvania Pilgrim," contains a true picture of the character and the life of the first of the Mennonite immigrants from Europe to the New World.

Whittier wrote:

> "Daniel Pastorius slowly came and stood
> Reading the books of Daniel and of John,. .
> Whereby he read what man ne'er read before,
> And saw the visions man shall see no more,'
> Or meek-eyed Mennonist with bearded chin
> Leaned o'er the gate; or Ranter, pure within,
> Aired his perfection in a world of sin."

Pastorius was a scholar and the leader of the first German settlements in America—a simple, industrious religionist who gave the New World a new language, the Pennslyvania Dutch; and whose descendants are scattered over the entire breadth of the American continent today.

Menno Simons, founder of that group of believers and colonists who made the settlement in the valley of the West Blue in Nebraska, is one of the leaders of religion who has attained, in all liklihood, a perpetual fame and honor without seeking it. He was just a plain Dutchman of the Rhine valley, born in Friesland in 1496 and died in northern Germany at Wuestenfelde in 1561. He was a simple parish priest of the Roman Catholic Church until he was forty years old, when he renounced the Mother Church and devoted his study to the Scriptures and his life to service among the lowly. Made an outlaw by the Emporer Charles V, and pursued and persecuted from one province to another, he yet managed to preach the Gospel as he understood it and to practice the art of religious living, so that he gained a group of followers who have been glad to be called by his name and pursue his general ideals for over three hundred years. In fact, it may be said that the life and teachings of Menno Simons are more studied today by scholars as well as plain working people than ever before.

Grasshoppers and Mennonites

The year 1874 is a memorable year in my childhood. We were farming on our homestead in the West Blue valley about six miles east of the York county line. We had been five years upon the homestead. The great sea of unbroken grass which stretched away from our farm in every direction, with a lonesome log cabin or dugout at long intervals, had gradually "settled up." The valley was all taken by settlers except the odd-numbered sections which belonged to the Burlington Railroad company, and the two school-land sections in every township. Some of this land was under cultivation, but the average land under plow on the average homestead was not more than thirty or forty acres. The rest was grass. The land was raw and new. The houses were small and raw,—the most of them two rooms. The settlers in Seward County and York County were very largely of the original American stock—descendants of those who had settled in the Atlantic seaboard states. There was an occasional German and an occasional Swede. The Irish brogue might be heard in any group of a dozen settlers; but for the most part we were original American descendants.

The first great event of the year 1874, forever memorable in the annals of the Nebraska frontier, was the Grasshopper Invasion. On the 26th of July they came down the valley. First we noticed a haziness in the sky, then an obscuration of the sun, and then gradually from the unmeasured heights of the brilliant July day above us began to settle the grasshoppers. They kept coming down. There seemed to be no limit to the unseen spaces from which they continually drifted down, filling the lower landscapes until one could hardly drive a team across a field because the cloud of grasshoppers rose in so dense a body that the horses stopped and began to fight them. We saw thirty acres of corn which I was cultivating, fresh in vigor in the morning light, at five o'clock a stretch of little sticks. All the tops, all the leaves, all the ears had vanished, and to the skeleton sticks clung the grasshoppers so thickly that what one saw was scattered grasshoppered spikes standing in the field where luxuriant corn had waved.

So for the rest of the year the principal topic of neighborhood discussion was the Grasshopper; and since these migrants had the mating instinct well developed when they alighted, in a very few days the soil was honey-combed with burrows of eggs, all covered over by Mother Grasshopper.

It was later that fall—perhaps about the time of the first winter snowfall—that we heard of the Mennonites. They had landed from the Burlington railway station at Sutton and located their first settlement about twenty-five miles above us on the West Blue River. Father had occasion to drive to Sutton, and brought back word of these queer people from Russia who had bought land from the railroad and begun to fill in the vacant quarter-sections which still lingered in the valley of the West Blue.

Later still (I think it was the next year) I had my own first glimpse of these Menonites. They had a long sod house. It seemed to be twice as long as a city block. Its walls were built of sod, according to the prevailing custom in our Nebraska to that time. Inside the house the chief piece of furniture was a giant oven which filled about half of the room. The oven also was built of sod and clay. At one side was a large door big enough to take in a yearling calf, and into this door from time to time went pitchforks of hay and straw. The oven was both a cook-stove and heater for the family. To a boy it seemed a great achievement that these people could cross the ocean from Russia, settle down here in Nebraska, and show us how to heat a house and cook a meal without either wood or buffalo chips.

The inside of this first sod house, as I remember, was cut up into a number of small apartments, with a family in each. The cattle and chickens seemed to have quarters also adjacent to or a part of the long building. There was a manure pile of good dimensions in the yard next to the living apartments. We children thought it was a queer place to keep the manure. Since then I have stayed in the cottages of France and Germany with the manure pile under my nose day and night, and found much to commend in the conservation-economy of the splendid people who enrich the land while they live upon it.

Some Queer Things

Of course these people from Russia were queer in our eyes. They all wore the same kind of clothes, of the same color, with the same baggy places all over their anatomy, and the same funny little cloth caps and big sheepskin coats in the winter. The girls and women went about in short skirts—not quite so short as some you can now see in fashionable society, but short enough to command attention in the eyes of the American homesteader. Over their heads was tied the everlasting handkerchief of various colors. The whole cast of clothing seemed designed to turn the attention away from fashion or folly of any kind, and to concentrate the life into one long avenue of abnegation and other worldliness.

The Hard-times years

The Mennonite colonies in Nebraska settled in Jefferson, Gage and York counties. Later a kindred group, the Amish, gradually settled in Seward County, where they occupy some of the best land in that region.

The story of each of these colonies is filled with human interest. These people from far-off Russia came too late to have a part in the original pioneering of Nebraska. They came early enough to take part in the foundations of farming, to prove that they were equal to their task, and to bring (in spite of their queerness) valuable contributions to Nebraska agriculture. Among the things of permanent importance introduced by these people were hard winter wheat, the Russian mulberry, and the Russian apricot; also a certain type of underground cellar. In their train came also the silkworm. It was one of the pet projects of Governor Robert W. Furnas that the silkworm industry could be developed in Nebraska. For a number of years he promoted the cultivation of the mulberry tree brought from Russia as silkworm pasture. But the silkworm industry proved too expensive in human labor, and about its only monument today is seen in the cocoons and in the silk thread made by Mrs. Furnace in cooperation with emigrants from Russia, now in the State Historical Museum at Lincoln.

This Mennonite colony here at Henderson engages our especial interest today. It came at the beginning of the hard-times years which filled the Nebraska annals from 1874-1879. They were years of general industrial distress throughout the nation. Even with rainfall to produce crops, the Nebraska farmer of these years could hardly get enough for his grain and livestock to pay wages for taking them to market.

Our Mennonite brethren did not mind hard times. They were quite content to stick to the land so long as they could raise enough on it to feed the children.. And there were always plenty of children around a Mennonite home. I note with interest that the original colony of two hundred people settling in the Henderson region in 1874 number today over a thousand people; and they have sent quite a numerous company to California and other places to found similar colonies.

Looking back through the years, I discover among the many reasons why these Mennonite colonists have succeeded here in Nebraska is the fact that they avoided debt. I do not have the data to show how much these people may have borrowed through the decades but most of the borrowing has been from their own group, as I understand it. I do know that the Mennonites practiced a severe economy which, with incessant labor, was certain to yield substantial rewards. In the eighties I sold nursery stock for the Crete Nurseries—E. F. Stephens, manager. I undertook to make sales among the Mennonites, but found that they had a thrifty plan of their own. This was to buy one apple tree, one cherry tree, one raspberry bush and so on, and then by means of home grafting to devolop an orchard of their own at insignificant cost. Of course, there was nothing for the nursery agent in such a community however much he might admire their thrifty qualities.

The World Message of the Mennonite People

The question has many times been asked whether the Christian religion could actually be practiced in modern society. The keen answer has been that it has never been tried.

The minor religious groups seem to be making the most considerable effort to give the Christian religion a trial. Among these the Mennonites are counted. Whether they will win in their effort calls for some review on such a day as this.

There are about 500,000 Mennonites in the world today. About one-third of these are in Europe; the remaining two-thirds in North and South America. In the United States they number about 200,000; about 80,000 in Canada; 5,000 in Mexico; and 6,000 or 7,000 in South America. In Europe about 50,000 are yet in Russia; the remainder are distributed among Holland, Germany, Switzerland, and France. These people are separated into about seventeen different groups in their religious organization, with no particular reason for the separation that an outsider can determine. The same outsider has the same difficulty in finding a reason for the various Protestant denominations now in existence.

The dominant religious tenets of the Mennonite people from the time they began, in the Reformation period four hundred years ago, seem to me to be comprehended in the following statement, viz:

1. The Bible, with every man his own interpreter.
2. The Church and State completely separated.
3. As little of the State as possible.
4. Non-resistance and non-compulsion in society.
5. Baptism of adults only, and that from choice of each individual.

Since for most people outward sins are more than inward thought, these early religious reformers who refused to accept the Pope, Martin Luther, John Calvin, or any other of the more prominent leaders of their time, achieved a general name of "anabaptists." This meant that they forbade the baptism of children. Baptism of the child was practiced by other Protestant religions, as well as the Catholic. It seemed to signify the secular power to the mind of these primitive people. There were all kinds of anabaptists, just as there are all kinds of socialists or communists. The Mennonite group were the quiet kind of anabaptists who simply required to stay at home, read the Bible and dig in the garden.

The most significant aspect of the Mennonite people today in the mind is the fact that four-fifths of them (perhaps more) are farmers. In Holland and other places many of them are business people. As a matter of fact, farming is much more easily yoked up with the Christian religion than is business or learning. Business requires a boss—either one boss or a community of bosses.

But in the blessed and honorable occupation of farming, each soul can go steadily about his work, producing the necessities of life, finding a market for them where he may, and practicing toward his fellow farmers, without serious difficulty, a large part of the precept of the New Testament. So the Mennonites have been aided in preserving the purity of their belief by staying on the farms and letting the world find its own plan of secular government without their aid.

The Mennonite people apparently will never control the modern world. While they multiply rapidly, they do not proselyte. Most of the Mennonites today are the physical and spiritual product of former Mennonites; and since marriage with outsiders is generally prohibited, the Mennonite people bid fair to remain separate social units in the midst of controversial worlds.

What, then, is the mission of the Mennonite people? Perhaps to exemplify some of the early Christian doctrines and practices which seem largely to have disappeared from the mechanistic mode of the present day. The socialists and the communists of all the various shades and tints demand that society be made over after their plan. Most of them insist that their plan is the real plan of Jesus Christ, the Savior of the world. But they demand that all people shall be brought into their organization and practice their ethics and their politics. The Mennonite desired to practice the Christian religion without interference either from others or by himself. If a brother offends, he is simply avoided by those whom he offends. Their church government to me seems like the kindergarten government. When a kindergarten child does not play harmoniously with the group the group simply withdraws from him and declines to let him play until he is willing to be a good child. So, to me, seems the Mennonite.

Greeting and Fellowship

The Nebraska State Historical Society has a privilege and honor in joining with you in the dedication of this marker. David Henderson, first settler in this township, had five fair daughters, I remember two of them, Agnes and Nellie very well, Agnes was the first teacher of Mrs. Sheldon at Thompson Ranch on the Stream Wagon Road near the present village of Beaver Crossing. Agnes lived at the ranch and taught the Thompson children when there were no schoolhouses in the West Blues valley. Agnes passed over the mountain range some years ago. Nellie still lives at York, and I understand another daughter, Elizabeth, also lives at York. I hope both are present here today.

The first grist mill on the West Blue River was owned and operated for many years by W. J. Thompson, Mrs. Sheldon's father. We all knew each other by our first names, the whole length of the West Blue, in the early days of my childhood. The Mennonite Einwanderung seemed to me as neighborly additions to the whole West Blue community.

For me, the entire valley forever responds to the sentiment of the German poet Baumbach:

> "Mein Thueringen aus dem ich schied,
> Dir klingt mein Sang,
> Dich gruesst mein Lied."

There have been many men who left behind them that which hundreds of years have not worn out. The earth has Socrates and Plato to this day. The world is richer yet by Moses and the old prophets than by the wisest statemen. We are indebted to the past. We stand in the greatness of ages that are gone rather than in that of our own. But of how many of us shall it be said that, being dead, we yet speak?

Young People Report on Camp Wood Retreat

FAITH OF OUR FATHERS

by P. P. Wedel

The discussion on "Faith of our Fathers," by Rev. P. P. Wedel proved to be very instructive to the young people attending the Retreat. Different points were made clear to us why our forefathers believed as they did on various matters and what some of the outstanding characteristics of the Mennonite Doctrine are.

The first point being discussed was that of Taking an Oath. The discussion was based on Matt. 5:3-36 and James 5:12. What really is an oath? An oath is more than a mere affirmation, assurance, or strengthening of a statement. It is more than merely calling upon God as witness of an oath. The Oath is the giving of a bond, a guarantee or pledge, an assurance in which we are giving a promise which we are bound to do.

Why not swear? Four answers were given to this question. 1. It belongs to a class of idle words. 2. It is a taking of the name of God in vain. 3. It is a sign of spiritual poverty. 4. An oath proceeds from the assumption that all men are liars. To this definite prohibition Jesus says, "Let your speech be yea," which really means "yea," and "nay," which means "nay"; that is, speak and live in such a manner that your "yea" or "nay" is perfectly trustworthy and therefore inspires confidence. Whatsoever exceeds that yea and nay is evil.

Therefore, a Christian should abstain from any and all forms of oath, because it establishes a low standard of truthfulness and is an insult to a Christian who is supposed to speak the truth always and who is forbidden to take the name of God in vain. Besides, the law does not require the oath of us.

Another subject touched upon was the question, Why War is Wrong. War is wrong because it violates the word of God; it violates the holiness of human life; it is an attack on the authority of God; it violates the principle of love; it violates the Kingdom of God, and, lastly, it violates everything that makes perfection.

Taking Law-suits to Court was an interesting discussion. A Christian should not take a law-suit to court, because it violates the dignity of the church of Christ; it violates the high calling of the Christian; it violates the authority of the officers of the church and it violates the spirit of Christianity.

The last subject discussed was that of Secret Society, based on 2 Cor. 6:14-18. We Mennonites do not approve of secret societies because of the very fact that they are secret. They demand unconditional obedience. They are wrong, because of their oaths. Lastly, because secret societies pass as religious organizations. They are permitted to use the name of God in their prayers and talks, but do not mention the name of Jesus Christ, beause of the different sects belonging to secret societies.

THE QUIET HOUR

On our first morning of Retreat, during the period for Quiet Hour, we met on the grass around the flagpole. Rev. Walter Gering was in charge of the service. We sang the hymn "Take Time to be Holy," after which Reverend Gering read the scripture and led in prayer. Then he talked to us about the significance of the quiet hours of the early morning.

"It was in the early morning when scarcely any human sound could be heard that Jesus walked through the streets of the village. He was going alone to pray to His Father. Many battles are fought and decisive victories are won by God's children during this time of prayer.

"It was in the early morning that Moses went up to Mount Sinai, and there received from God the Ten Commandments.

"Sunrise marks the dawning of a new day, and with it come new life, new hope, and new opportunities." This service impressed me more than any of the other regular services of the Quiet Hour, because it touched upon a common need of God's people. I hope that next year we can have more services like this at our Young People's Retreat.

The Sunday morning communion service was impressive and inspirational. It was reverently conducted and partaken of and will remain long in the memories of the retreaters.—Lela Matthies, Hutchinson, Kansas.

Suggested Hymns

I Will Tell The Wondrous Story
Abide With Me

Problems:

1. "During Paul's first Roman imprisonment he wrote his incomparable letter to the Christians at Ephesus, where he had labored longer than in any other city. In the course of this letter (Eph. 3:8-9) the apostle emphasizes his high commission 'this grace given' ' "to preach unto the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ" ', and ' "to make all men see" ' the mystery of divine redemption from sin through the Redeemer of mankind." Contrast this with the opinion some people hold that the heathen religion makes its people happy so why disturb them. What do missions try to give the people to make the change of religion worthwhile?

2. Has the doctrine of Christian brotherhood any limits, and how is it to be practically applied? Peter, a rough and untaught fisherman, had the innate power, eloquence and skill of speaking but this was brought out by the indwelling Holy Spirit. God is no respector of persons; 'men look on the outward appearance, but God looks on the heart.' "Between the 38th and the 43rd verses of this tenth chapter of Acts, it seems to me that we have a compendious summary of the essence of each of the four gospels. 'God annointed him with the Holy Spirit and with power; he healed all that were oppressed of the devil'. Is not that a summary of St. Luke? 'He went about doing good'. Is not that the vivid practical touch of St. Mark's Gospel? 'God was with him'. Is not that a compression of St. John's highest thought? 'To him bear all the prophets witness'. Is not that an abridgment of the substance of St. Matthew?" Bishop William Alexander. What effect will the practice of sharing have on race prejudice?

3. "Christianity, because of its Book, is always counted as one of the world's 'learned' religions." Is there a constant danger of becoming over-intellectual?

4. Why do we believe in heaven, and what should be the effect of that belief on our daily life? "Let not your heart be troubled 'is a command of our Lord.' A weary old mother, at the end of a hard day's toil, said to her son, 'Well, I am one day nearer my grave'. 'No, mother', the son quickly answered, 'You are just one day nearer home; we are Christians.' " "Heaven is a prepared place for prepared people." Rev. William A. Waldo, Ph. D. Is Christ not too often today 'the unrecognized Christ'?

5. Is "Sharing Christ with others" limited to a few who have chosen that as their life's work? What are effective means of 'sharing Christ'? "Philip is mentioned as going down to Samaria to preach; but Philip was originally set apart to attend to the distribution of the alms of the church. No one of us can be exempted from the work of spreading the gospel because we are engaged in some other work. Though that work may be intimately connected with the kingdom of Christ, yet it does not exonerate us from the work of endeavoring to bring sinners to Christ in some way or other."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

TRAIN IN "FELLOWSHIP"

Intermediate C. E. Topic, October 10, 1937

Study the Topic

Oct. 4. Following the example of leaders. Heb. 13:7, 8
Oct. 5. A leader speaks to leaders. I Peter 5:1-9
Oct. 6. A leadership conference. Acts 20:17-38
Oct. 7. Thoughts for followers. Eph. 5:1-11
Oct. 8. The ideal to follow. Phil. 2:1-11
Oct. 9. Following afar off. Matt. 26:57-75
Oct. 10 Topic.—Follow the Leader! Mark 8:31-37

Pre-Prayer Circle

Invite those who come early to join the officers and leader in the pre-prayer circle. Be sure to start early enough (15 minutes) so that you do not interfere with starting the meeting on time. Read John 21:20-22.

To Impress the Topic

Use one of the beautiful pictures of Christ to make a poster. Underneath the picture print, "FOLLOW ME." This can be used to advantage in the assembly room, with a special light focused upon it.

Praise in Song

1. "He Leadeth Me" 2. "Anywhere with Jesus"
3. "Down in the Valley"
Society announcements

Quiet Worship (Lights dimmed. Numbers given without announcement)

Duet, "I Hear the Blessed Saviour Say, Follow Me"
Scripture reading: Mark 8:31-37
Response:
1st Int.
"Lord, I would follow, but—
First, I would see what means that wondrous call. . . .

2nd Int.
"Lord I would follow, but—
First, I would leave things straight before I go. . . . .

3rd Int.
"Lord I would follow, but—
First I would see the end of this high road
That stretches straight before us, far and broad."

Leader:
"Who answers Christ's insistent call
Must give himself, his life, his all,
Christ claims him wholly for his own;
He must be Christ's and Christ's alone."

Group:
"Still as of old he calleth, Follow Me,
Let us arise, all meaner service scorning,
Lord, we are thine, we give ourselves to thee."
—Adapted from Adult Quarterly

Silent prayer, directed and closed by the superintendent

Topic Study and Discussion

1. Discuss the topic of "Followship," by means of questions.
2. What the Bible has to say about followers
3. What it means to follow Jesus

Closing Moments

Sing a "Follow" song
"Following Jesus, ever day by day,
Nothing can harm me, when He leads the way,
Sunshine or shadow, whate'er befall,
Jesus my Saviour is my all in all."

Closing prayer:
"May I live this whole week through,
Asking what would Jesus do."

Questions on the Topic

1. What are some qualifications of a good follower?
2. Does following someone else excuse us when we go wrong? Why not? Give an illustration.
3. How can we know when a leader is safe to follow?
4. Is it necessary to be a good follower if you want to be a leader? Give your reasons.

What the Bible Teaches on Following

1. What are the dangers of following at a distance? Use Peter's example. What happened to him? Matt. 26:57-75. Show how the same thing can happen to us.
2. In what should we follow the example of our leaders? Heb. 13:7, 8.
3. How does a good follower live? Mention some of the things you find in Eph. 5:1-11.

Following Jesus

1. What does Jesus expect of His followers? Discuss Mark 8:31-37.
2. Was it hard for people to follow Jesus when he lived on earth? Give examples.
3. Is it hard today to follow Jesus as leader? Give your reasons. Describe someone that you think is a good follower of Jesus.

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

"Dare to be a Daniel
Dare to stand alone;
Dare to have a purpose firm,
And dare to make it known."

Program Suggestions for October 10, 1937

The Book of Daniel

(For month's outline see last issue)

Call to quietness by prelude of a hymn played softly followed by "Tread Softly, Tread Softly" sung by two juniors

Opening Service:

1. In unison repeat: The Lord is in His Holy Temple
2. In unison sing: Book of Grace
3. Scripture: "What Others Said." In giving these quotations let each one say first whose words they are
   a. Voice one: Paul said: Romans 1:16, 17
   b. Voice two: The Psalmist: Ps. 119:46, 47, 48
   c. Voice three: David: Psalm 22:22
   d. Voice four: Solomon: Prov. 3:1, 2
   e. Voice five: Moses: Deut. 8:3
   f. Voice six: Jesus: Matt. 24:35
   g. Voice seven: Peter: I Peter 1:24, 25
4. Sing in unison two verses of "Wonderful Words of Life"
5. Prayer in unison speaking "Break Thou the Bread of Life"

Mission Minutes

Announcement

Study period. Aim: to acquaint the child with some of the stories in the book of Daniel and to teach the rich lesson of fearless obedience and devotion to God

1. Sing in unison: "Dare to Be a Daniel"
"Dare to be a Daniel
Dare to stand alone;
Dare to have a purpose firm,
And dare to make it known."

If you should not find this song, these four lines could be repeated in unison until they are known.

2. A Bit of History. In a few words by the leader or a few written statements given to the chairman to read, state the necessary historical setting of this book.

3. Daniel Comes to a King's Court: a junior relating the content of Daniel 1:1-20. Call to his special attention verses 9 and 17

4. Three servants of the Most High God: a second junior relating content of chapter 3.

5. Special music: "He Is Able to Deliver Thee"

6. Found Wanting: a third junior relating content of Daniel 5:1-30

7. He Is the Living God: a fourth junior relating content of chapter 6:1-27

8. Sing in unison: "Under His Wings"

9. Heart-talk: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy might." Give answers to the question: Does it pay to serve God? Show how Daniel was repaid, his friends; show what an influence their loyalty to God had upon the nations (3:29; 6:25-27)

10. Repeat the verse of the month and the four lines: "Dare to be a Daniel"

11. Closing prayer by leader

12. Closing prayer by group singing in unison verse one and two of "Close to Thee"

TO THE JUNIOR

I found something very good the other day. Did you find it too? It was

The Story of Mrs. Ma,
The Story of Mrs. Chao, and
The Story of Mrs. Shih's sister

Perhaps you can still find last week's issue. On page two you will find these stories. The last paragraph looked to me like this: PLEASE PRAY. It wasn't printed like that but the longer I looked at it the bigger the letters became. When you kneel down to pray do you sometimes wonder what you shall say? Do you know that God works through our prayers? Sometimes He wants to do something but He waits until someone kneels down and asks Him to do it before He really does it. You see, He wants us to know that He hears every word we say; He wants us to know that He answers our petitions; He wants us to know that the work that needs to be done on this earth, He wants to do through us. So, you see, He needs you too. Just think of all the wonderful things we can help God do! It's adventurous! We can make things happen in far away India and China, all over America; we can even change the heart of Africa. Oh the wonderful things we can do by kneeling down at our bedside and talking to God. God wants to do much but He waits until we ask.

Call upon me
And I will answer thee,
And will show thee great and mighty things
Which thou knowest not. God.

When Tragedy Strikes Home

He was a lad of only six summers, but glad and blithesome as only a little boy can be, and the pride of his father and the joy of his mother's heart. All through the winter he had shoveled snow and run errands to save money for a bicycle, and at the end of each week he had rejoiced to see his little savings grow.

At last he possessed the needed amount. It was a day of crowning achievement when the shining new bicycle arrived. Evening came altogether too soon to interrupt his boyish pleasure. Besides, there were lots of little friends and brothers ands sisters who wanted "a ride," and with whom he must needs share his dearly prized possession. All that night he dreamed about the new bicycle, and almost with the break of dawn he was up again to resume his play.

Into the alley he rode, his eyes shining as brightly as his new plaything. He did not see the truck that was approaching. THERE WAS A SUDDEN CRASH, A PIERCING CRY, AND A LITTLE BODY LAY BRUISED AND BROKEN UNDER THE HEAVY WHEELS.

We saw him two weeks later as he lay panting for breath on a white hospital cot. The heat was almost stifling. A nurse was fanning his feverish brow. For two weeks his father and mother had been anxiously watching at his bedside. For two weeks the surgeons had been trying to strengthen him sufficiently to withstand the shock of removing a mangled leg. He had received eight blood transfusions. It was the only hope of saving his life. In broken accents we offered up a prayer to the Great Physician that He might lay His gracious hand in healing upon that bruised little body.

We came away from the hospital with many sober reflections. Never had the dark tragedy of America's streets and highways been so forcibly brought home to us. Thirty-six thousand killed and nearly a million injured—such was the terrible toll last year, and the record will probably be repeated again this year. And who will ever be able to measure the grief and the heartache? To read in the morning newspaper statistics on the traffic accidents of the previous day is one thing, but to look upon the bruised and broken body of a little boy who will never ride his beloved bicycle again is quite a different experience.

We are not speaking now of drunken drivers, because the element of intoxication was not involved in the tragic incident we have recounted. We are thinking rather of the average sober driver who may become the principal of a similar unfortunate accident at any time.

America's legion of automobile drivers must be impressed with the potential danger of human life involved in the operation of a car. Even with the greatest of care, there will be altogether too many tragedies. But carelessness will demand an increasingly appalling toll of victims. Right now is a good time for all of us to ask: "What kind of a driver am I?" "The Mennonite Messenger," Sugar Creek, Ohio.

ALL MENNONITE HISTORICAL LIBRARY IN BETHEL COLLEGE, KANSAS

The Mennonite Historical Library has received a considerable number of valuable contributions during the summer months. Among these are the donations of A. J. Friesen, Mt. Lake, Minn., and Dr. J. W. Kliewer, Newton, Kansas. We are very grateful to receive some old song books which were used in our churches several generations back, a well preserved copy of "Die wandelnde Seele", several histories of the Mennonites, the works of Menno Simons, and many others.

The Library now contains about 1500 books and pamphlets, a large number of pictures and cuts, as well as a number of very valuable manuscripts, among which one of the most valuable ones is The History of the International Red Cross, written by Mrs. Lucy Knittel, Newton, Kansas, a manuscript of about 700 pages with excellent information. There are plans under way to enlarge the library considerably during the coming winter months. Professor A. Warkentin, Dr. C. Krahn, and two students will devote part of their time to this task.

Mrs. P. S. Goertz, the former librarian of Bethel College, is preparing a very detailed catalog of all the material available.

—MISSIONARIES IN CHINA FEELING THE EFFECTS OF THE WAR.—From The Berne Witness, through a letter written to her mother by Mrs. Floyd Pannabecker, we glean the following: On the advice of the American Consul at Hankow our missionaries and their families have moved quite a distance farther inland, to KIKUNGSHAN, for greater safety, with orders that under no circumstances should women and children returns to the stations now. He does not like to see the men return, either, but felt that he could not forbid them as long as there is no immediate danger. They are already beginning to feel the pinch of scarcety, sugar being almost impossible to obtain. Mail service is very poor and irregular. Daily they can see air planes, possibly war craft, circling around the mountains in the distance. It is rumored that they are Japanese naval cadets practicing or trying to spot a Chinese naval academy located in that region. "We do not feel afraid here," Mrs. Pannabecker says, "but my concern is that we may not be doing God's will by staying here. . . . I had a good cry again this afternoon, because it is so hard to submit to staying here. I turned to my Bible and begged the Lord for a word of comfort. I turned to Isaiah 24 which is an awful picture of what the world can come to. . . When I finished, I said, 'But Lord, that is just the way things are here in China, now.' Then a voice seemed to say, 'Read the next chapter.' I did and He surely spoke through this chapter in a way that strengthened me."

Our ardent prayers should continually rise to God, imploring Him to keep our dear workers safe.

—CORRECTION: In last week's issue of this paper, in speaking of the silver wedding celebration of Dr. and Mrs. A. Warkentin, we said, the whole congregation was their guest, where we meant to say, their host. For the church honored the couple by arranging for this festival.

—Rev. D. D. Eitzen and family of Los Angeles, Calif. on their way east stopped at Newton for a brief visit and were also seen on the Bethel campus. They were on the way to Andover, Mass. where Rev. Eitzen plans to take up special studies in pastoral work. Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Jantzen who were scheduled to sail for the mission field in China, but were halted due to the war there, have temporarily assumed the work left by the Eitzens at the Los Angeles Church.

—Rev. H. P. Krehbiel and wife have gone to New Jersey where he plans to attend a session of the "Fellowship of Reconciliation." Purpose of this organization: A new international fraternal organization the members of which take no part in war and disagree with many of the motives and methods of existing peace organizations that apparently lose sight of the higher and nobler values.—Bundesbote.

—CHRISTIAN INFLUENCE IN CHINA.—The "Reformierte Kirchenzeitung" reports: If we compare the missionary outlook in China now and ten years ago, we are positively astonished at the strides that have taken place. Ten years ago a bitter fight against every thing pertaining to religion, especially against Christianity as a foreign religion, was going on. At that time the wavering and indifferent Christians "dropped off in masses just like withering leaves." How totally different today! Daily papers with more than 100,000 circulation bring Christian articles, a Hong Kong paper, a greatly enlarged Christmas number. Over the radio Christian devotions are permitted, in Shanghai there is a Christian announcer. Whereas, generally speaking, foreigners were then the chief representatives of Christianity, today the leading positions in churches and congregations are held by Chinese. Imperceptibly, but nevertheless definitely, the change from the patriarchial to a fraternal cooperative system has taken place."

—Rev. Lester Hostetler and family passed through Kansas on their way home to Upland, Calif. They stopped for a day on the Bethel campus, where among other things he discussed with Prof. W. H. Hohmann and the editor the revision of the Mennonite Hymn Book. Rev. Hostetler is a member of the Revision Committee of which Prof. Hohmann is the chairman. Prof. Lantz of Bluffton College and Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, are the other members, with the chairman of the Board of Publication occupying an advisory relation to it.

Because of Thy Great Bounty

Because I have been given much,
I, too, must give:
Because of Thy great bounty, Lord,
Each day I live
I shall divide my gifts from Thee
With every brother that I see
Who has the need of help from me.

Because I have been sheltered, fed,
By Thy good care,
I cannot see another's lack
And I not share
My glowing fire, my loaf of bread,
My roof's safe shelter overhead,
That he, too, may be comforted.

Because love has been lavished so
Upon me, Lord,
A wealth I know that was not meant
For me to hoard,
I shall give love to those in need,
Shall show that love by word and deed,
Thus shall my thanks be thanks indeed.

—Grace Nolle Crowell.

There's No Pocket in a Shroud

Use your money while you're living,
Do not hoard it to be proud:
You can never take it with you—
There's no pocket in the shroud.

Gold can help you on no farther
Than the grave-yard where you lie,
And though you were rich while living,
You're a pauper when you die.

Use it then some lives to brighten,
As through life they weary plod,
Place your bank account in heaven
And grow richer toward your God.

Use it wisely, use it freely,
Do not hoard it to be proud;
You can never take it with you—
There's no pocket in the shroud.

PROBLEMS.—Everybody has his problems. Every individual, every community, every nation, every race has them, and that without number, and even God is not exempt from them. He had His problem with the rebellious angels; with Adam and Eve, when they chose to taste the forbidden fruit; with our race at Noah's time; with the children of Israel, until they grew to such proportions that He proposed to Moses: "Behold it is a stiffnecked people. Now, therefore, let me alone, that my wrath may wax hot against them, and that I may consume them: and I will make of THEE a great nation." Ex. 32:9-10.—But Moses declined. -- Yes, God has innummerable problems with each of us individually and collectively, and we in turn have them without number. Even the animals have them, if they could only speak to tell us about them, "for the earnest expectation of the creatures waiteth for the revealing of the sons of God." Rom. 8:19.—Do problems serve us any good, or would it be better if we were rid of them? Positively not! Mephistophiles in Goethe's Faust, on being asked by God-father how things were in the world, has to reply, man wouldn't amount to anything, if it were not for the everlasting pricks of problems, especially those that he (M.) injects into man's life. There is much truth in this. What a drab, dreary, monotonous affair our life would be, if it were not for the ever recurring problems that keep us busy, one way or another. Problem solving means life. They goad us on to ever new attacks, ever new efforts to master them. Along their route are many defeats, but also victories, and how we relish these, how they buoy us up! But, while problems are a necessary part of our lives, we should be careful not to multiply them needlessly. And in their solution we should constantly remember that God is ever ready to help us solve them, and to shield us from the wily problems that the Tempter constantly tries to put in our way, to lead us astray. Thank God for all problems that he lets come our way!

— PREACHING—Whatever is preached to us, and whatever we learn, we should still remember that it is man that gives, and man that receives; it is a mortal hand that presents it to us, it is a mortal hand that accepts it.—Montaign.

SPANKING CHILDREN?—In few matters has there been a greater and really, wholesome change as in the treatment of children, who, upon occasions, are inclined to be naughty. For, after all, the old Adam nature is apt to crop out, at one time or another, even in the best-natured, best-behaved child. However, modern pedogogy holds that corporal punishment is antiquated. "Moral suasion," gentle treatment, handling the youngsters as ladies and gentlemen; the use of the "dark room," "closet," or "think room" into which the erring child is placed to ponder his "evil ways" until he has decided to reform, are looked upon as better and more human methods of disciplining the child. It is feared that "spanking" of any sort might leave behind in the child a disagreeable complex that someday might break out in a "volcanic eruption." This sort of treatment of the child that is in need of correction has been carried so far that a prominent educator philosopher finds it necessary to say, "Leniency has become weak sentimentalism. Mastery has given place too often to favoring; "obedience has been sought by petting and cajolery; sympathy has degenerated into mawkish coquetry for the goodwill of the child — Soft-heartedness, which is a prime virtue, has been combined with soft-headedness,—and when this happens, disaster is inevitable."—As one sees our houses of correction fill up with young blood, one wonders if the occassional use of the switch upon the haunches of these budding criminals might not have saved them from going the way they have. That "save the rod and spoil the child," probably had its fulfillment in at least some of these astrays.—There are, principally, three ways to discipline a youngster. The first is, an appeal to the feelings. Younger children, especially, are amenable to this kind of treatment. Love, sympathy, coupled with firmness that craves the best for the child, will go far in disciplining them.—The second is, an appeal to reason. Older children and young people can, ordinarily, be reasoned into improved conduct. Reason will convince them of their errors and the need of better ways. But, supposing that neither of these methods avails, then what? Let the child have its way, to its own harm? No, as a very last resort, an appeal to the skin may be positively wholesome. And the writer has found, time and again, that in the homes from which the best-behaved, yes, one may even say, the happiest children come, there the switch has not been altogether spared.—So, after all, as in most other things, the Bible expresses a great truth in statements like these, "He that spareth his rod, hateth his son; but he that loveth him, chasteneth him betimes." Prov. 13:24. "The rod and reproof give wisdom: but a child left to himself (left to do as he pleases) bringeth his mother to shame." Prov. 29:15.

Excessive love in loathing ever ends.—Ovid.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION*

4. Do not remove a fly from your friends forehead with a hatchet—so runs an old Chinese proverb. Perhaps those of us connected with our own institutions of learning are sometimes tempted to do this very thing. And yet, it does seem that some degree of common sense and reason ought to be applied by those who are prone to stand askance while the struggle for existence goes on in our three colleges. There are those who say that our colleges are not thoroughly Christ-centered and for that reason they withhold their moral and spiritual support. There are few individuals, if any, intimately connected with our colleges who would not be willing to concede that the ultimate state of perfection in this respect has not yet been reached. There presents itself therefore the strange anomaly of two groups, both of which are not fully satisfied with the spiritual status of our colleges. The one works feverishly with all the available means at hand and under most trying circumstances to bring about a deeper spiritual atmosphere on the various campuses. The other group stands on the side lines viewing the procedure with skeptical eyes as if to say: when the task is completed we too will come in to help! Would it not be very reasonable to say that since we are all interested in making our colleges thoroughly Christian that the proximity of that goal could be more easily attained if we all put "shoulder to the wheel?"

5. One sometimes wonders to what extent the members of other denominations contribute for missions and educational purposes. The following information has been obtained from the President of the North Dakota Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists:

"During the past biennial period (ending in June of this year) there was paid into their conference treasury $90,456.92. Of this amount $53,427.25 were tithe receipts and $37,029.67 was the amount of the mission offerings. For the school year 1936-37 the conference spent $33,846 for educational purposes. The North Dakota Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists has a membership of 2,500."

The amount spent for educational purposes is very striking. Roughly, it amounts to $13.50 per church member. Giving free play to one's imagination this is what our various conferences would contribute toward education if each church member made a similar contribution yearly:

Eastern District Conference, 3371 mem.	$45,508.50
Middle District Conference, 5323 mem.	71,860.50
Northern District Conference, 4261 mem.	57,523.50
Pacific District Conference, 2267 mem.	30,604.50
Western District Conference, 10480 mem.	141,480.00
Total	$346,977.00

That amount staggers the imagination. And yet, if a small group of people, living primarily in an agricultural state such as North Dakota, could contribute $33,846 for educational purposes last year (not a good crop year), why could not the Mennonite do as well?

Jesus' Message and Inspiration

by Albert Gaeddert

This paper was read at the Kansas S. S. Convention in June and its publication requested.

HIS MESSAGE

He spake as never man spake. He lived as never man lived. That is what made His message so full of value, so fathomless, so deep that twenty centuries of thinking have not enabled us to touch bottom in many of His sayings. How His sentences go straight to the mark, swift and true as the flight of so many arrows! "No man can serve two masters"; "Where your treasure is there will your heart be"; "Seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness"; "What ye would that men should do to you, do to them"; "God is spirit; worship Him in spirit and in truth"; "Ask and ye shall receive; seek and ye shall find"; "In my Father's house are many mansions"; "Because I live, ye shall."

No high sounding phrases, words of one syllable mostly, yet they are so deep in their simplicity. How could He speak thus? Had He spent His years of preparation learning the high art of speech, of clear, concise articulate speech, He could never have done it. But He had been waiting upon the Spirit of Truth, who leads the minds of men into all truth. He had been putting His deepest insight, His ripest judgment, His profoundest feeling into such forms that His words would live. His words are spirit and they are life. He went forth to build by His words a Kingdom of thought, of aspiration, and of high resolve, against which the gates of hell should not prevail!

But His message was not only one spoken with the mouth. No, He had truly learned to live. He could think straight because He had lived straight. His word was with power, because His life was strong and true. His life conditioned and supported His thought. His life found immediate expression in His speech. His words came not from the lips alone, but from those deeper levels of being where He had resisted temptation, faced doubts, borne His burdens, and met His obligations without flinching. What He was, spoke. That was the secret of His power. The only message which really helps is the message which manifests the man.

Jesus had learned to live a life so divine that men everywhere would call Him the "Son of God." He was learning to live a life so human in all its manifestations that men everywhere would call Him the "Son of Man," the heir and the embodiment of all that is truly human, the perfect, the typal, the representative man. He wore no halo, the artists have painted Him so, but the writers of the New Testament never speak of a halo because they were honest men, and there was no halo. He affected no holy tone; the common people heard Him gladly, because He was real. He never separated Himself from the daily round; He "came eating and drinking," oftentimes with publicans and sinners, because they needed Him most, even as the sick need a physician more than do the healthy people. He lived and spoke in terms of everyday language.

Furthermore, His life, thought, and action had been such that He could speak of Himself using His life as the message. And because of His close coordination of life, thought, and speech He could so truly say: "I am the way, the truth, and the life." That is a message in itself. Think of the life it must require to come to the place where one can say to all mankind: "This is the way to live, here is the whole truth, here is life in its fullness." How many here would be willing to make an assertion proclaiming to be the way of life, to know the truth, to be living life to its fullness?

"I am the good shepherd," He who leads His sheep ever onward, always to the place of new pasture, where spiritual food is plentiful for true growth. The shepherd who is always there looking after His own; He sets no fences: those who are His and listen to His voice have a freedom that is world-wide, they go where life is abundant. He knows His sheep by name, knows their wants, their needs, their desires, and even their possibilities.

"I am the Light of the World." Neither was that meant for His day only. He who understood life fully —who had learned the art of living with people, who knew their deepest needs, who could see immediately their desires, who knew what it meant to give until it hurt, who could meet the shrewdest and cause them to think again, who could enjoy enjoyment, who could weep with the weeping—He is also the solution to our present day difficulties.

"I have come to give you life and life abundantly." Todays principles are still those that He lived 2000 years ago. You may have read the book: THE RETURN TO RELIGION, by Henry C. Link, in which he relates his own experiences as a psychologist and a psychiatrist who found himself quoting repeatedly the principles of Christ even the very words of Christ, when he was working in his cases of mental and moral disorders. He found that the selfish person had great difficulty in finding the abundant life and in finding happiness; and that the man who was considerate of others, who willingly and gladly shared with others —he was the one who lived abundantly. The introvert, who turns everything unto himself is not the man of action. The extrovert is the one who is considerate of the needs and desires of others, and he is also the one who comes closer to the abundant life. Jesus knew what it meant to live richly, and He knew that only through service could one live abundantly.

HIS INSPIRATION

His message is a challenge. The more you come in contact with it the more you live it, the more you live it the more it means to you, and the more it means to you the more efficient in His service you become. It challenges me to the very best that is within me. It creates a longing and a desire for more. The yearnings and the desires of the individual soul for peace and power demand the competent guidance of men who have thorough, accurate, and first-hand knowledge of spiritual reality. It is not an inspiration which flares up for an instant and cools as rapidly—rather it is an urge that grows. It is like unto love, it grows. The more one lives His message, the greater the inspiration. It creates an urge, a driving power, a passion, and when one keeps constantly before one's self His message, then one feels that one ought to be ashamed to be a weakling—if by any measure of sterner effort and larger reliance upon the grace of God one could be strong. It makes one feel ashamed to be an inefficient follower of His, if by study and determination one can become as a sword of the spirit in the hand of God. It makes one feel ashamed to hold back the Kingdom of God by one's effective method, if by wisdom and training one might see His Kingdom come into one's community with power.

In short: His message and inspiration challenges us all to "study to show ourselves approved unto God, workmen that need not be ashamed."

The Passing of Oliver Eaglefeathers

OLIVER EAGLEFEATHERS was born when the grass began to grow and the leaves came forth on the ash and boxelders along the creeks, in the year of our Lord, 1892. He was the son of Nizevoto (Eaglefeathers) and Vonha (Priestess) of the Northern Cheyennes. His mother died when Voahess was three years old.

As a young boy he attended the Government Boarding School at Busby, Montana, and also came under the influence of the Gospel, in Sunday school for Indian children taught by Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Linscheid and special chapel services at the Boarding School, twice a week. Oliver also attended church services as a young man. He received a very limited schooling due to a crippled foot which he had broken while skating as a boy.

In 1921 he married Julia Seminole, the widow of John Littlehead, and became the stepfather of her daughter Rena. To Oliver and Julia three sons and three daughters were born, all of whom are still living. The oldest being 15, and the youngest 1 year old.

On Jan. 18, 1925 Oliver was baptized at Busby, Mont., and became a member of our church. He learned to read the difficult Cheyenne language quite well and was a big help in the work of the church, substituting in the pulpit when we would be gone on short vacations. He was kind-hearted and well liked by the Christians and hosts of others. He seldom was absent from services and, unless sickness or other hinderances prevented, he brought his whole family to church. Now and then he was bothered with rheumatism, but as a whole he was enjoying good health.

Two years ago, his step-daughter married Clyde Redneck, against the protest of her mother and stepfather. There was trouble from the beginning, for Clyde was a selfish, a willful, head-strong, undisciplined young Indian. Rena had to endure much. A year ago, Clyde served three months at hard labor for having struck Rena's mother, when she claimed her own tent that he had taken away from Oliver's place. Clyde often beat Rena and even threatened to kill her, but still he was determined to have his way and have her as his wife.

In July of this year in Sheridan, Wyo., Rena left Clyde, and went to her mother's tent, during the Sheridan Rodeo doings. Clyde came after her time and again, but she was afraid to go back to him. When the Rodeo was over and the Indians were back on the Reservation, Rena went to stay at her mother's place. Clyde came repeatedly, wanting her to live with him, but she declined to go back. Oliver spoke to Clyde, telling him to be patient and to treat Rena with consideration and she would, no doubt, go back again before long. Clyde charged Oliver that they were keeping Rena from him.

This trouble finally ended Aug. 9, when Clyde, not succeeding to get his wife's consent to stay with him, fired two shots at her in his car. One shot touched her back, going thru about two inches of skin, so she was barely touched, and is well today. Oliver was at the door of the house and, no doubt, stepped forward when he heard the shooting. Then Clyde fired two shots into Oliver's chest, one just about hitting the heart, the other going thru his upper right chest.

Oliver, holding his chest with his hands and groaning painfully, walked towards his wife, who was in a small summer shack. Mrs. Eaglefeather ran to his support, but he sank to the ground, asked where his father was, as he had shortly been near by, then he started to lose consciousness, and died in a short time. Some neighbors had heard the shots, and ran in to help, while Clyde staring at them staggered into his car, and drove away.

Clyde drove to the place where his half-sister with her husband was staying, turned his car keys over to her, said good-by, told them that he had shot his wife and Oliver, and that he was going to end his own life. His brother-in-law and half brothers were near and tried to prevent the suicide, but he wrenched loose and went into the yard, fired a shot through his forehead and dropped dead.

Mrs. Habegger and I were called to Oliver's place by an Indian boy, Peter Littlebear, who was sent to our place at the request of Mrs. Eaglefeathers. When we arrived, Oliver was lifeless, Rena was lying on some blankets on the floor, weeping and crying. Many friends and neighbors were there, and sore distress was on every face. We proceeded to wash the blood from the face and body of our dear departed brother in Christ. After the body was dressed, it was brought to the church by the government farm agent, and the family was also brought to the log house on the mission station. Rena was taken to the hospital but was able to return the next day for the funeral.

Brother and Sister R. Petter from Lame Deer came to assist with the funeral services, the following forenoon. There was a large gathering of friends and relatives who mourned this tragic death. Mrs. Petter played a fitting prelude on the organ, Bro. Petter brought a message of comfort and assurance to the bereaved ones in the Cheyenne language. Milton Whiteman sang: "Good-night Here, and Good-morning There," while the writer spoke in English on "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord," and also gave the obituary in English and Cheyenne. The home made casket was draped with unbleached muslin, and some native flowers with such as were plucked from gardens constituted the floral offering. A duet, "Fade, Fade Each Earthly Joy," was sung by Mr. and Mrs. A. Habbegger. At the grave, in the cemetery, less than half a mile from the church, the writer spoke a few words, calling attention to Christ's words assuring us of the Resurrection to life everlasting to those who believe in Him, after which Milton Whiteman gave a fitting prayer in closing.

May God grant that this sudden passing of this devout Christian will draw many Indians to the Lord. In June Oliver had gone with us and Milton Whiteman to the N. District Conference and received a great blessing from the same. When he reported about it at Busby, on the following Sunday, he could hardly speak, saying: "I pity my people so."—Alfred Habegger, Missionary.

THE CHRISTIAN IN GOD'S KEEPING

Psalm 121; Jude's Epistle Printed: Jude 1-4, 17-25

Topic:—Safe in God's Keeping

Introduction

The time when one finds the Lord is not the end of all struggles in the Christian's life. Satan does not meekly admit defeat and withdraw. Trials and temptations must be expected to meet the Christian. These must be successfully met. Temptation to wrong thinking and departing from the path of right, may be very enticing. The danger of Christians fainting by the way, is very real. It needs to be zealously guarded against. Paul wrote his letter to the Galatians after the new converts had so quickly fallen.

Warnings against Apostasy vs. 1-4, 17-19

Jude gives his salutation to the Christians, "called beloved in God the Father and kept for Jesus Christ" (vs1,2). A condition had arisen which led Jude to write this short epistle, a very pointed warning against ungodly teachers and false doctrines. "Contend earnestly for the faith once delivered." This was the true faith delivered, revealed to them in such clearness, definiteness, that the revelation once made, was for all time. The teachings of Jesus are final, not subject to improvement and amendment.

Verse 4 paints a dark picture of the danger threatening the Church he was addressing. Ungodly, influential men crept in unawares, men who taught serious errors of doctrine and practiced vicious immorality in living—denied even the Lord Jesus Christ. Jude felt the Christians were in grave danger of being deeply influenced by these heresies and sinful practices. Satan has always used influential ones in the Church to help mislead the unsuspecting members of the flock. The warning is needed today. The mockers whom Peter had predicted (2 Peter 3:3) have already come (vs17-19). These are the sensual, ungodly men who have "crept in unawares" (v4), who are creeping into the Church today.

Our Part in Keeping Ourselves vs. 20-23

Jude exhorts his readers to build up themselves on the faith (v20), strengthen its foundation, hold fast to God's Word, pray in the Holy Spirit. They are to keep themselves in the love of God. We must do our part, so helping God answer our prayers. Prayer is a vital part of a Christian's life and the study of the Word must be coupled with it. With this weapon of defense, there should be no danger of being led astray by such heresies as imperiled the early Church, or that may threaten Christianity today.

All effort should be made to win back such as have been led astray (v22). Sin is contagious, often fatally attractive. We must be on our guard, lest in trying to help another, we become infected (v23).

God's Part in Keeping Us. vs. 24, 25

Of ourselves we can not keep from falling. God is above all. He will supply all needed grace for all temptations (v24). Kept by the power of His might, we can live a consistent, victorious Christian life. This assurance should fill our hearts with joy and praise (v25), should lead us to a whole-hearted dedication to God.

Gems of Truth

God will keep those who keep themselves fully committed to Him.

Our living in material bodies exposes us to a wide range of temptations from without.

God and man are essential partners.

Sermon at Ordination of His Children

by Rev. John Lichti, Medford, Okla., July 18, 1937

Dear Friends: As pastor of the local Mennonite Church and as one of the fathers of our candidates, Albert L. Jantzen and Wilma Lichti Jantzen, who are soon to sail for China, I wish to leave a few words with them and all of you, using as my text the words of Luke according to Acts 16:9, 10.

"And a vision appeared to Paul in the night: There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, "Come over into Macedonia, and help us."

And after he had seen the vision, immediately we endeavored to go into Macedonia, assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us for to preach the gospel unto them."

VERSE 9: THE VISION AND CALL

The circulation of the scriptures in all heathen countries would be trebled, if all mission boards were in a financial position to fill all calls, for they come from all over the world. They come from China, India, Africa, the islands of the sea. Thousands, yes millions are calling. "Yes, come over and help us."

The call is to work in the Kingdom of God, to save souls from eternal death and to bring sinners from darkness into light, bringing them unto Jesus Christ. This is the biggest business in the world. No layman knows what the Mesengers of God have to sacrifice. I could tell a little of that but shall not complain, for the joy and happiness in the work for the Master far outweigh the difficulties that confront the ministers in their work. We ministers praise God for His wonderful grace.

VERSE 10: THE RESPONSE

The call came to you, children, from God, in answer to your prayers, you heard the Savior calling to go to China, as His messengers and, in answer, you have said, "Where He leads us, we will follow, and we will go with Him all the way." There is much joy and happiness in the work for the Master, who died on Calvary and gave His life as a ransom for all sinners. This Lord and Savior died for the Chinese as well as for the Hindus. Yes, He died for all the world. Jesus said, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen." Matt. 28:18-20.

Children, take Jesus at His promise! He will abide with you alway. Difficulties you would have at home in the Master's work, and you will have them in China. I am sure that at times your hands will get heavy, as Moses' hand did. When Moses' hands became heavy Aaron and Hur went up to the hill and they stayed his hands. The one on the one side and the other on the other side, and his hands were steady.

I assure you, you will have your parents from both sides, your relatives, some warm friends, here in Medford, the Mission Board; yes, you will have our conference, The General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America, in prayer to the Almighty God and His Son, to stay your hands, to bless your work, to save souls unto Christ. Above all, you have Christ to stay your hands. Difficulties are overcome by faith, cooperation and perseverance.

It is a wonderful work you have chosen. It means much sacrifice for you, but you do it for the Master, you do it for the sake of winning souls, and the sacrifice you make shall be all to the glory of God. Children, you have access to the throne of God Dwell much with God in prayer. No one need fear any foe or shrink from any work, if God is with Him. Rom. 8:31, "If God be for us, who can be against us?" Psalm 18:2, "The Lord is my rock, and my fortress and my deliverer; my God, my strength in whom I will trust." I am sure you trust in God.

Our Mission Board, conscious of the great opportunity and the need in our foreign fields, responded to the call from China for more workers, and they gladly send you, Albert and Wilma, with your little daughter. Friends, I mean all of you here, let us remember them in our prayers, that God may use them to save some Chinese souls! Remembering them in prayer and in gifts that we may help them to glorify God, the Creator of Heaven and Earth, through Jesus Christ who died on the Cross for the remission of our sins, and that the penitent soul might have eternal life, through the Blood of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. May God bless you, keep you, till we meet again. Amen.

How happy it is to believe, with a steadfast assurance, that our petitions are heard even while we are making them; and how delightful to meet with a proof of it in the effectual and actual grant of them.

An Expression of Appreciation and Thanks

OUR MENNONITE CONGREGATION OF SASKATOON considers it their pleasant duty to offer thanks for the help we have received in the building of a place of worship in this city.

In the first place we must thank our heavenly Father for his gracious help in this important work, and we would express our thanks in the words of the Psalmist: "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name."

Secondly, we would thank all our churches, mission societies, young people's organizations and all the individuals who have so kindly helped to make it possible for us to have our own church in this city.

We would also express our deeply felt gratitude toward the Home Mission Board of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America who took the initiative in this important work and sent the necessary funds for the building of the Church.

We feel certain that all the kind people who have so generously contributed will find greatest compensation in the knowledge that the work of the Lord is being carried on here in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in his spirit of love.

Due to successive crop failures in Saskatchewan, many girls are flocking to the city in order to earn money to assist their families. These girls form a large part of the congregation each Sunday. In addition to these girls and the families living in the city, we have a large number of University and Normal School students in attendance.

The church is now paid for, thanks to the willingness of our dear brethern who have contributed towards the building of the church. We trust that this place of worship will be a spiritual home for many who live here, permanently and temporarily. We have a congregation of between 150 and 200 persons and a Sunday School enrollment of 90 children.

Again, thanking all who have so generously contributed,

Yours very gratefully,

What Kind of a Parent are You?

A school composition by a little girl said this: "When I grow up (it seems very, very far away), I intend to be just such a mother as my mother is. I do not know of any other mother whom I could love so much, for she seems to be the only mother that there is nothing the matter with. She never scholds, and she never is tired, and she never forgets stories about when she was a little girl. She always knows what to do when you cut your finger or spill ink on your dress or get molasses candy in your hair. She is a perfect cook and a beautiful lady, and that is the kind of mother I'm going to be."

Happy is the mother whose children rise up and call her blessed, and whose daughters are inspired by their association with her to prepare for the same kind of life when they grow up. Happy is the father whose children take him for their ideal of fatherhood, and whose sons resolve in their inmost souls to be every one such a man as he is. Was ever prouder father than he who, returning with his young son from a playtime with the boys of the neighborhood, felt two hands squeeze his arm and a hearty boyish voice exclaim: "You're the champion dad of the world"?

A happy childhood home, with parents intelligent and devoted, is the best school for the making of future fathers and mothers. Out of such homes will come young men and young women who know almost by instinct how to be good fathers and mothers. But it is not every one who has the advantage of a superior home. The most of us, when we get beyond childhood, become conscious that our fathers and mothers, however much we may honor and revere them, were deficient in knowledge and faulty in management. They are even more conscious of this than we, and the less likely to set themselves up as models of parenthood. It is the right of parents to expect more of their children than they have given; for the law of life is to increase rather than to diminish, and whatsoever of worth in parenthood one generation has given, it is the duty of the next generation to work with for greater gains in ideal parenthood.

No greater obligation rests upon the youth than the obligation of studying how to prepare themselves to be the best fathers and mothers they are capable of being. We are none of us our own. We have been given life by the great Father of all that we might add to the sum of the virtue and happiness of the race. In whatever field of service our endeavors may lie, we are under obligations to secure the best possible training and to exercise our powers for the uplifting of humanity. In such a purpose the field of the home, the role of the parent, stand pre-eminent. Parenthood is cooperation with God in His great purpose of making humanity godlike. Think what an opportunity that man and woman have who start upon the fashioning of a soul in the image of God, not after that soul has become warped and bruised and twisted by years of sin, but when it is new, innocent, and impressionable. They have not to soften and subdue and rejuvenate a character already bound by habit; they have in the babe plastic soul material waiting to be molded as they will. There is no opportunity like that of parents to do Christian service. First of all the equipment needed by the prospective father and mother is the moral power they shall be able to transmit to their children.

You may appeal to men to build character for their own sakes, that they may receive the respect and the honor of the world; and that appeal has more or less of an effect. In every soul is the desire, feeble or strong, to stand well in the sight of men. Yet that appeal is to self-love, and there is a stronger motive than that. A man may affect to scorn the public's opinion of himselt, and elect to follow desire rather than repute. But no man who retains a vestige of manhood can willingly bring dishonor upon his child. And while that instinct is strongest after parenthood is realized, yet even in anticipation it is strong. It can appeal even to the youthful man and woman.

Each will ask himself the questions: Am I making myself such a man or such a woman as I shall want my children to be? Am I true to duty in the time when it wrestles with desire? Am I honest in my dealings with men, and truthful whatsoever the cost may be? Am I self-controlled and patient? Can I maintain composure in the face of criticism and injury? Am I considerate of others' opinions and feelings, courteous to opponents, and compassionate toward the erring? Do I resist temptations to youthful excesses and harmful habits? Have I a mind of purity and a high standard of virtue? Do I respect authority, and uphold the standards of righteous law and the efforts of its guardians? Have I courage to stand by my convictions of right and to face scorn and contempt in the service of truth? These are the qualities of character I desire my children to have. These, then, must I, by the grace of God, establish in myself, that I may give them as a gift to those who shall be blood of my blood and mind of my mind.

What kind of a parent are you?—The Mennonite Messenger.

GOD SEEN IN HIS WORKS

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth His handiwork.—Psa. 19:1. An Arab, a wild son of the desert, one more accustomed to fight than to reason, to plunder a caravan than to argue a cause, was asked by a traveller how he knew that there was a Deity? He fixed his dark eyes with a stare of savage wonder on the man who seemed to doubt the being of God; and then (as he was wont, when he encountered a foe, to answer spear by spear), he met the question by another: "How do I know whether it was a man or a camel which passed my tent last night?" Well spoken, child of the desert! for not more plainly do the footprints in the sand reveal to thy eye whether it was a man or a camel that passed thy tent in the darkness of the night, than God's works reveal His power and being.

Christian Psychology in the Home

By a mother who found it

In my experience with a very selfish little daughter of four years old and a very stubborn little brother of hers at the age of five I have nothing as effective in helping them over their faults, as telling them stories. They both loved my "make-up" stories and it gave me a wonderful opportunity to make up such stories as would show up in other children in the story such undesirable characteristics as my own children displayed, or desirable ones they did not show. I did this without refering to my own childrens' faults and was surprised how effective it was. I take no credit for making up just the right kind of story, for it was stories that came to me as a result of prayer. I remember at the time when little daughter had been talked to, had been scolded, had been punished in various ways for her selfishness, without any fruits, I told her a made up story about a very kind, unselfish girl which had such an effect upon her that she asked me for that story again and again. It having been a "made up" story though I had not remembered the details of it as well as she had and each time I told it she corrected me and told me how it was. She had not only remembered the story but she tried to live the life of that unselfish little girl and was remarkably successful.

Young People Find Camp Wood Lectures Practical and Inspiring

In the evening messages Rev. J. N. Smucker, led our thinking on the vital theme of "Meeting the Master." Through the study of the four characters, Peter, the Samaritan woman, Nicodemus and the rich young ruler, the listeners were brought face to face with the longings felt, the hopes cherished, the difficulties and hindrances encountered, as well as either the joyous realizations or the pathetic failures that come to everyone in his desire to meet Jesus. There are three ways of looking at ourselves (1) what other people think of us (2) what we know ourselves to be (3) What Jesus sees that we might be.

In Peter Jesus saw the rock that he would be. Does Jesus not see great possibilities in our lives? A great crisis comes also in our life when our heart and soul cries out, "Lord, Thou art the Christ the Son of the Living God."

The Samaritan woman was a person of two compartments. In one compartment were her religious ideas and disputations. In another compartment was her moral life which was far from religious. Not until her sins were pointed out to her and not until she realized the power of the living water could she proclaim, "I have found the Christ."

Nicodemus was a timid follower of Jesus. He belonged to that class of people who pretend to be less religious than they really are. If we would often give expression to our real inner desires the cause of Christ would receive a new impetus.

The rich young ruler who came running and who threw himself down before Jesus to ask the question, "What good thing must I do that I may have eternal life?" was courageous, in earnest, humble, religious and lovable, but he lacked the true concept of goodness. His riches seemed more important to him than the matter of following. He missed his chance to make a right decision.

We should make our decisions during the high points in our life. The inner decisions made by the young people at this Retreat in one instance found outward expression when in singing the song "O Master, let me walk with Thee" many who desired to do so, sang "O Master, I will walk with Thee." May the impressions and the inspirations received at the Retreat remain with us always.—S. R.

Problems:

1. What organization, if not the church, should be the center of spreading the gospel? " 'Church' is the 'ekklesis' in Greek, whence our 'ecclesiastic.' It means 'called out,' 'separated,' a congregation bound together by one purpose."

2. "Pentecost" is derived from the Greek meaning "fiftieth"; it came on the fiftieth day after the Passover Sabbath. This was the second of the three great Jewish feasts, the Passover was the first and the feast of the Tabernacles the third. It was during the feast that the disciples met together. Are revivals of a benefit to the church? Of what nature should they be? Do you agree with the statement "A revival is the panacea for all our spiritual ills"?

How is spiritual power obtained? "Spiritual power does not come from belief. 'The devils also believe, and tremble.' It does not come from knowledge; Nicodemus was a far more learned man than Peter. 'Even after the resurrection these men were timid. They hid themselves away in a room, locked the doors and bolted them. But on the Day of Pentecost something happens. Somebody comes. The Holy Spirit baptizes them with a new power. Instantly the doors are thrown open, and Simon Peter stands up in the presence of a great crowd defending himself and the men who stand behind him, and explaining the cause of their tumultuous joy. What has wrought this wondrous change? This man who has been weak as water is now at last, even as the Master promised—rock. Peter's explanation is that the Holy Spirit has come. Christ's promise has been kept."

3. What is the best way to win converts to Christianity? "The Love on the Cross was not merely a historic fact but a spiritual fact, and the living Love on the Cross was not merely a historic fact but a spiritual fact, and the living presence which we find in nature and in the human heart has a definite character which is the character of Jesus Christ. Consequently to turn to God through Christ in worship and in prayer, to give our soul's response to the moral beauty and grandeur of Christ's life, is perforce to establish contact with the living power of God himself. It is this divine power which is the characteristic gift of Christianity." Rev. Leyton Richards. Any one to be successful cannot rely on his own powers; he must have the aid of the Holy Spirit.

Has any Christian a right to live a life to which he cannot safely and confidently point as an example for others? "Paul challenged his friends in Thessalonica, in Corinth and elsewhere, to take his life as a pattern. He was an example to them as they were to be an example to others."

4. How do men find God, and what is the result? Is there a certain group to whom we should bring the Word first, before going farther away? Paul began his work in new places with Jews.

5. "Around every true teaching swarms a multitude of false teachers, striving to lift themselves into prominence by their assaults on the truth. Christ foresaw that as Christianity grew its enemies would multiply. This is happening today, and 'it is the manifest duty of all Christians to be on their guard, and of all Christ's ministers to be faithful in exposing those who thus subtly and treacherously oppose the truth. This is not intolerance, else Christ and his apostles would not have led the way.' " Who are the enemies of Christianity today? Is there danger of us listening to them today, not realizing that we do so?

Oct. 16. Growing heavenward. Col. 3:1-11
Oct. 17. Topic—Growing up and growing upward. Luke 2:52

Pre-prayer Circle

Read Col. 1:10 and discuss it briefly. Let each one present take part in prayer. Pray for the meeting, that it may be a blessing to each one who comes. Pray for those who take part that they may have courage to speak and truly mean what they say.

For Your Worship Service

Instrumental prelude: "Follow the Gleam"
Scripture reading: Luke 2:52, and leader's introductory remarks.
Four 2 minute talks:
  Growing mentally
  Growing physically
  Growing spiritually
  Growing socially
Special music: "My Task"

Sentence prayers. Write suggestions for prayers on slips of paper and give to the more timid members before the meeting. Close by singing "Into My Heart" Offering. Dedication prayer by the leader.

The Topic Developed

The Measure of a Man

How high are you? Where is your thinking done?
Close to the earth, or upward near the sun?
Do petty things absorb your every thought—
The game, the latest crime, what's sold or bought?
Do noble deeds and lives inspire your zeal?
Or are you more concerned about a meal?
How high, or low, is your most cherished plan?
The answer marks your stature as a man.

How broad are you? Where does your good will end?
Does race or creed determine who's your friend?
To your snap judgment do you cling with pride,
Or do you listen to the other side?
Quick to condemn are you, prompt with the rod,
Or do you leave the chastening to God?
How loyal is your heart to all mankind?
The answer marks the broadness of your mind?

How deep are you? Where does your honor start?
Is it embedded in your inmost heart?
Do you count virtue a convenient thing
To practice, or, sore tried, aside to fling?
Have you the courage by your code to bide,
And fight for right, though on the losing side?
'Tis thus God reckons, through life's little span
The veritable measure of a man.

—Wallace Dunbar Vincent

An Object Talk

Have a growing potted plant in a prominent place in the room throughout the meeting. Let some one give an object talk on it during the meeting. The following points might be brought out: (1) The seed. Must be of the best. The new life in Christ must be the seed of our character. (2) The soil is our environment. Good soil necessary for growth. Our homes, schools and churches; our companions and books hinder or help our growth. (3) Water and sunlight. Bible study and prayer are essential in proyer development. Exposure to Christ and His spirit draws us upward. (4) Cultivation. Stirring of the soil, changes in temperature, winds tend to strengthen the plan. We need to be tested to grow strong. We need to be put to work to learn. We must put into practice what we profess before it becomes a part of us. (5) Growth is natural. Someone said, "Sin is not growing." It is up to us to meet the conditions, then growth will follow. There must be no hindrances, no sin, in our lives if we would grow upward.

Closing Moments

Hymn: "Close to Thee"
Poem:

I will look for the flowers by the side of the road;
"I will follow the upward road today;
I will keep my face to the light;
I will think high thoughts as I go my way;
I will do what I know is right.
I will look for the flowers by the side of the road;
I will laugh and love and be strong;
I will try to lighten another's load,
This day as I fare along."

Leader: "But grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." II Peter 3:18

Benediction.

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

O God,
Could I but bring to Thee
Souls of eternity
Wandering and lost.

Many of you will be working with a new group, or partly so, now that the fall term has begun. The getting acquainted is over with in part. But hearts are very shy. Sometimes the shiest heart builds a bold front so untrue to itself. What an interesting adventure, what a "Royal Road" to "New Worlds to Conquer" is the road that leads into the inner chambers of a Junior heart. What an experience of joy and satisfaction to have gained entrance, to walk in and out leaving treasures there, as the weeks and the months pass by. How wonderful to watch the dawning of light where darkness was and the entrance of Life.

O God,
Give me the Spirit's power
That in an holy hour
Some heart might turn to Thee.
Might turn in tender youth
To find the Way, the Life, the Truth
That leads to Thee.
O God
Let me not count the cost
When Thou wouldst seek the lost
To come to Thee.

PROGRAM SUGGESTIONS FOR OCTOBER 17, 1937

The Book of Esther

The portions of scripture for this month's study have been chosen because of the interest they hold for Junior age. It is for this reason that they afford such a splendid opportunity to plant a deep love for the Scriptures in the childs' heart. This should be the first aim of these lessons. The second aim is to teach the content of the books selected.

Opening service with the thought of loyalty to Christ

1. Short song service in charge of a junior
2. Special msuic: That Beautiful Name
3. Scripture read in unison: Psalm 116
4. Poem:

The King of love my Shepherd is.
Whose goodnes faileth never;
I nothing lack if I am His,
And He is mine forever.

Where streams of living water flow
My ransomed soul He leadeth,

And, where the verdant pastures grow,
With food celestial feedeth.

And so through all the length of days,
Thy goodness faileth never;
Good Shepherd, I would sing Thy praise
Within my heart forever."

Mission Minutes

Remember the mission work in China and those who volunteered as new workers but could not go and the old workers that were held back. Scan the Junior Messenger and News and Notes for items of importance that should be brought to attention.

Announcements

Study period in charge of a guest.

Ask this one to give the entire story of the book of Esther with its historical setting; to drill the names of the chief characters and places, and to teach the "lessons for the heart." Write these lessons on the blackboard that they might be reviewed and better remembered.

1. Prayer by guest speaker
2. Prayer by group:

"Take my life and let it be Consecrated, Lord to Thee."

(Sing the entire hymn)

3. Rise to speak in unison, Psalm 51:10 adding the "amen."

What Value has Personal Testimony

It was less than three months of my graduation from college. Our Y. M. C. A. officials had found only fifteen men who were not professed followers of Christ. These were assigned to as many men to put on their prayer lists and personally work for.

I was going into chapel one morning when I met my man starting down town contrary to the college rules. I remember saying something to him, but it has passed out of my mind, as the college year closed and my friend had not confessed Christ.

Four years after, I was passing through Chicago and in calling at the Illinois State Sunday-school office I was surprised to see my college friend a part of the force. And even more surprised when he reminded me of the day on the college steps that I said to him, "Art, we are soon going away, and you fellows will have to take our places, and every day I am praying for you by name, that you may decide for Christ, so that you can come back next fall and fill the vacancy which my going will make." He said, "I turned this remark off with a laugh, but I could not get away from that thought, and a few weeks after Commencement I gave my heart to Christ and dedicated my life to his service."

Today that same man is one of America's Sunday-school leaders in charge of the work in one of the largest states in the Union, whose life and work verify the promise, "Cast thy bread upon the waters, and thou shalt find it after many days."—By the Editor of Ways of Working.—Sunday School Times.

PENALTY OF READING THE BIBLE

Though He slay me, yet will I trust in Him. — Job 13:15. In his "History of the Dutch Republic," Mr. Motley tells us of one Titelmann, a blood-red persecutor of the Netherlands. Upon any pretext would he put to death man, woman, or child.

There was a poor schoolmaster, Geleyn de Muler, of Oudenarde. He had been suspected of Bible reading. Titelmann found him and his wife and four children, and told him that death by fire was his fate if he did not recant.

"Will you give me a trial?" said Muler.

"You are my prisoner, and are to answer me and none other," was the reply. Some questions were asked by Titelmann, and then Muler was demanded to recant. He was for some moments speechless.

"Do you not love your wife and children?"

"God knows," said the schoolmaster, "that were the heaven a pearl, and the earth a globe of gold, and were I the owner of all, most cheerfully would I give them all to live with my family, even though our fare be only bread and water."

It was enough. Muler was strangled, and his body burned. Such faith in God, how much is it needed in this world!'

150th Anniversary of The Constitution

1787 ◆ 1937

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A Proclamation

WHEREAS the Constitution of the United States was signed on September 17, 1787, and had by June 21, 1788, been ratified by the necessary number of States and,

WHEREAS George Washington was inaugurated as the first President of the United States on April 30, 1789,

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, hereby designate the period from September 17, 1937, to April 30, 1939, as one of commemoration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the signing and the ratification of the Constitution and of the inauguration of the first President under that Constitution.

In commemorating this period we shall affirm our debt to those who ordained and established the Constitution "in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity."

We shall recognize that the Constitution is an enduring instrument fit for the governing of a far-flung population of more than one hundred and thirty million, engaged in diverse and varied pursuits, even as it was fit for the governing of a small agrarian Nation of less than four million.

It is therefore appropriate that in the period herein set apart we shall think afresh of the founding of our Government under the Constitution, how it has served us in the past and how in the days to come its principles will guide the Nation ever forward.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Washington this fourth day of July, in the year of Our Lord nineteen hundred and thirty-seven, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and sixty-second.

By the President: FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

NOTE: We are glad to bring the above Proclamation before our readers. All governments are from God, as the Bible tells us, and we Mennonites have ever tried to be loyal, faithful citizens, excepting in the matter of bearing arms to kill. We are glad to see the President say, "We shall recognize that the CONSTITUTION IS AN ENDURING INSTRUMENT fit for the governing of a far-flung population of more than one hundred thirty million." The great majority of us have always felt that, even when he was endeavoring to have it changed.—The Editor.

CORRESPONDENCE

Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho

Dear Editor and Readers:

Again a busy season is drawing to its close. We have had very favorable growing weather, with plenty of irrigation water. We have much to be thankful for not only materially but also spiritually, through the various missionaries and ministers of the Gospel who have been in our midst since I last reported.

In March, Rev. David Toews of Canada was with us. He gave several interesting messages. Later Miss Fannie Baumgartner, missionary from China, who was visiting with her brother's family spoke to us on different occasions and showed stereopticon slides. Miss Ruth Hege, missionary from Africa, gave us some very interesting and inspiring messages of her experiences among the dark natives. Missionary Hiebert, of the Mennonite Brethren Church from India, also told of his work and showed slides. Dr. H. A. Fast, field secretary of the General Conference, presented the needs of our conference in a very clear and helpful way. Rev. J. M. Regier, field secretary for Bethel College, was in our midst several days .

On Penticost Sunday we had baptismal services. Twenty-five young people were baptized and three taken in by letter. May the Lord bless them and keep them true to their vows.

Some of the musical talent of our church, consisting of a male quartette, a male chorus and a mixed chorus, gave a number of broadcasts over KSEI at Pocatello this spring and summer. The programs were much appreciated. A very pretty church wedding took place July 16, when Verna Friesen and August Huse were united in holy wedlock. The pastor, Rev. P. A. Wedel, officiated. A reception was given at the bride's home to about one hundred and fifty guests.

Mrs. H. H. Banman, one of our faithful church members passed on to her reward on August 4. She reached the age of seventy years and seven months. Left to mourn her death are her bereaved husband, one daughter and three sons, who were all present at their mother's bedside, during her brief illness and death. Funeral services were held August 6, at the First Mennonite Church. Rev. P. A. Wedel conducted the services. This summer our S. S. Superintendent, H. C. Wiebe and his wife, both underwent major operations at Mayo Brothers. We rejoice greatly that they are both back with us again and enjoying better health.

Our community again sponsored a Daily Vacation Bible School this summer. We are thankful that parents consider it worthwhile to send their children and are willing to make the sacrifice. They will be amply rewarded.

August 29, a farewell program was given in honor of about twenty young people, some of whom were leaving for higher institutions of learning, others to follow their profession as teachers. After the progarm a social was held on the church lawn. The following Sunday evening these same young people had charge of the services, with appropriate closing remarks by our pastor. He again has charge of the Christian Ethics in our high school this year. Over a hundred students are availing themselves of this privilege. May much good come from this course.

Plans are being formulated to enlarge our church to relieve the crowded condition. We hope to begin before winter sets in. We praise God for the many spiritual blessings we have received thru our pastor, P. A. Wedel and others who have served us at various times.—Correspondent.

First Mennonite Church, Berne, Indiana.

On September 3rd, about 37 of the young people of our church, including our pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Suckau, left for the Labor Day Week-end Youth Rally, which was held at the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago. The trip was made in a chartered bus and three cars furnished by the Christian Endeavor societies. We arrived in Chicago a little to late for supper so after securing our rooms we had no trouble in finding a resturant, thus satisfying our appetites. The three days spent at Moody's proved to be a great blessing to all.

The Rally began with the opening session on Friday evening. The other gatherings were held Saturday morning and evening, Sunday afternoon and evening, Monday morning, and the closing rally on Monday evening. Special music was provided by a male trio called the Moody Musical Messengers. We were privileged to hear many inspirational and stirring messages. Two very helpful talks on soul-winning were given by Rev. Ralph Stewart of Chicago. Other wonderful messages were given by Rev. G. Allen Fleece of Tenn. Dr. Harry Rimmer of Minn., and Rev. Vance Havner of South Carolina. The general theme was yielding ourselves wholly unto the Lord for His service for not until we are willing to give Him our all can He use us for the work He has planned for us.

Sunday evening we had the privilege of meeting some of our Mennonite friends from Wayland, Iowa, and Bluffton, Pandora and Dalton, Ohio. We were very glad to learn to know them. Saturday and Monday afternoons were left free for recreation and sightseeing. We saw many interesting places, including China Town, Lincoln Park, and we also enjoyed ourselves going up and down, in and around some of the large department stores. Last but not least I must mention the Lake. We had a rather cold and very windy walk to the lake on Saturday evening, after the service. I think the next time we try it we will all tie strings to our hats before we start.

All too soon Monday evening arrived and, although we were sorry to leave, we were all glad and thankful when we arrived safely at our quiet and peaceful little town of Berne. I am sure that each one of us that attended the rally has returned with a greater zeal to work for our Lord and Master Jesus Christ and our prayer is found in this song which we learned to love very much.

Lead me to some soul today,
O teach me, Lord, just what to say;
Friends of mine are lost in sin,
And cannot find their way.
Few there are who seem to care,
And few there are who pray;
Melt my heart and fill my life,
Give me one soul today.

The Peace Committee Appeals

For several years now the Peace Committee of the General Conference has been under special commission by the Conference to provide suitable materials on the subject of Christian peace. Four specific subjects have received Conference approval:

1. The Foundation Laid in the Old Testament.
2. New Testament Peace Teachings in the Gospels.
3. New Testament Peace Teachings outside the Gospels.
4. Peace Teachings and Practices as Held by Mennonites for Four Centuries.

Three of these are now in completed form. We hope to have them ready for distribution at the next General Conference, but alas, we have no funds to publish them. We therefore appeal to the churches to give liberally and immediately to this cause, in order that our Conference resolution may be carried into effect, and that the cause of Christian peace may be spread abroad in these times of fear and war.

Send contributions to President A. S. Rosenberger, Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio, who is Treasurer of the Committee.—E. L. Harshbarger, Chairman.

Liking and Loving

We Americans are a great people to love. Women, especially are given to loving. They love dresses, styles, colors, faces, curled hair, painted finger nails, rouged cheeks, books, furniture, houses, and what not. Men are not quite so exuberant in that respect, but they, too, love games, sports, cars, good roads, good meals, and a few more things. But do people really love these things? Let us see. Webster says, "Love is a feeling of strong personal attachment, induced by that which delights or commands admiration, by sympathetic understanding, or by ties of kinship." This definition is rather bookish. We would say, "Love is heart power which goes out in sympathy toward another being or creature, with an irresistible urge to care for it, shield it, nurture it, help it, lift it up, make it truly happy, in fact do everything possible for its well being, even to the extent of sacrificing one's life for it." Or as the Apostle Paul put it, "Love seeketh not its own, (it) beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things." Viewed in this light, the word LOVE is positively misused in the instances cited above and numberless others like them. The word that is applicable there is LIKE. With love taken in its true sense, one can come to love human beings of any species, or even a faithful dog, a trusted horse, a valuable cow, but not dresses, houses, cars. Love drove Christ to this earth, to save sinful, fallen man, through self-sacrifice. Accustomed as He was to divine company, its happiness, its sweetness, its purity, its beauty, its intelligence, one wonders how He could endure the motley group of his disciples, the impetuous Peter, the wavering Thomas, the tricky Judas, and all the rest with their unattractive traits and appearance. It is hard to conceive how he could like them, any more than some of us have liked some of the respulsively mannered Jews with whom we have come in contact. It is quite inconceivable, how Jesus could like his disciples, but he loved them. It is so with us today. He does not like our bad habits, our ugly dispositions, our pride, our hatred, our selfishness, but he loves us as sinners who need his help, his comfort, his saving grace, the new life that he gives. And our human nature is such, that we cannot force ourselves to like disagreeable, unattractive people. But through the love that Christ sheds and keeps burning in our Christian hearts, aided by the beneficent power of the Holy Spirit, we can come to love the black man, the red man, the yellow man, the most unlovable of individuals, even our enemies. It is for the Christian to love, as Christ loved us. It is not for any one else.—T.

DIVIDING JUSTLY.—Among God's chosen people giving and sacrificing was rather carefully ordered. We Mennonites are so democratic in our giving, as to how, when, and how much to give, that everybody, individual and church, gives just as he pleases, as his heart or mind inclines, but probably not always as the Spirit directs. The Conference has tried to help systematize and proportion our giving, but we are so prone to forget such things. And then, too, there is need of an occasional revision. However, it would help our conference boards and activities tremendously, if we could agree on some equitable basis by which to guage our contributions to each one. Our heavenly Father is a God of order and system, and as his faithful children it behoves us to budget and also accurately account our giving, so that all worthwhile activities that are intended to help build up His kingdom may have the funds with which to do their tasks effectively. Below is an illustration showing how disproportionately our churches order their giving. The data are per capita contributions of the members of some rural churches in different parts of our Conference, and as far as we know these churches are counted among the fairly well to do. The figures are obtained from the 1937 Mennonite Year Book. As some districts do not report separately what their churches give for education and publication, but include these items under "all other purposes," we are unable to list these parts separately. The items quoted are (Local) Church expenses, Foreign Missions, Home Missions, Relief, All other Purposes, Total.

	Congr.	F. M.	H. M.	Rel.	O. Exp.	Total
1.	$2.58	$1.75	$ .21	$ .24	$2.04	$6.82
2.	4.25	10.80	1.90	5.40	4.50	26.85
3.	10.64	20.80	13.25	2.29	3.44	50.42
4.	5.61	1.33	1.23	.00	2.91	11.08
5.	6.40	3.26	.66	.32	3.13	13.77
6.	2.93	1.21	1.03	.16	.67	6.00
7.	7.60	6.44	1.68	1.94	6.06	23.70
Ave.	5.56	6.51	2.85	1.48	3.25	19.81

Observations:

No. 1 is rather low, all through.

No. 2 is high on foreign missions and relief, too low on home missions.

No. 3 is the champion of the seven and likely of the Conference.

No. 4 is very low on missions, gave nothing for relief.

No. 5 is low on home missions.

No. 6 is again low, all through.

No. 7 is pretty fair, all through.

Now what would be a just division of a tithe dollar, so that the activities which the Conference fosters might get their proportionate share. Foreign Missions has a budget of roundly $75,000, Home Missions of $25,000, Education $2,000, Publication (temporarily) $5,000; Relief should have $10,000, and the Y. P. about $2,000. Accepting these sums as given, but allowing $2,500 for publication, under ordinary conditions, and $2,500 for education:

Foreign Missions would claim	$ .64
Home Missions	.21
Relief	.08
Publication	.02½
Education	.02½
Y. P. Work	.02
Total	$1.00

It would seem that both mission boards could be satisfied with this division. If either of them needed more, or if some of the other activities required some increases, it might be that relief could spare some of its quota.

It seems as though the members of our churches should be willing to agree to an apportionment of this sort, so that all needed work might be done somewhat effectively and with less worry to the boards.—T.

We Reap What We Sow

Editorial on the Chinese-Japanese War

by E. L. Harshbarger

In the spring of 1854 an American naval commander aimed the guns of his vessels at the Shogun's palace and demanded a trade treaty with the Japanese. He got it, and thus began a movement by all Western powers for trade concessions. Complete European dominance threatened. The Samurai class reasoned that only by imitating Western civilization could the Japanese remain independent.

Then followed one of the greatest transformations in modern history. In two generations the Japanese have risen from a feudalistic, agricultural people to a highly industrialized modern state. Before the close of the nineteenth century Japan had begun to build a colonial empire in imitation of the West. Successful wars with China, Russia, and Germany made her the outstanding military power of the East. Since the World War she has strengthened her control in the Pacific islands, set up a puppet state in Manchukuo, and is now waging an undeclared war to gain economic control over China.

Western nations say such action is contrary to the Kellogg Pact, to the Stimson Doctrine, and to the treaties relative to China and the Pacific which were signed by Japan at Washington in 1922. Furthermore, the use of gas and airplanes against helpless women and children has been declared contrary to international law and laws of humanity.

The Japanese insist that Asiatic expansion is necessary to national self-preservation. They point out that Japan produces less oil in a year than we do in a day; that they are without suitable reserves of coal and iron; and that they suffer from overpopulation. Using western reasoning that self-preservation is the first law governing national conduct, they insist upon the right of economic expansion to maintain the industrial state which the western world forced upon them. If America has a Monroe Doctrine in Latin America, why cannot Japan have one in the Far East?

And so, the world today, having sown dragon's teeth in Asia, lives in fear of a harvest of destruction and death, the reaping having already started in China. Today the affairs in China constitute the gravest danger to world peace.

And today, in deadly parallel with the events of 1914, American lives and property are endangered, and business men see visions of huge wartime profits. Watch your newspapers and magazines. Steadily anti-Japanese feeling is mounting. Japan is pictured as destroyer of civilians, violator of treaty rights, and a menace to the whole world. By inference it is suggested that America's right to trade in China must not be interrupted, our investments and lives must be protected during hostilities, and trade must continue. And the President, taking advantage of the technicality that war has not been declared, has refused to invoke the Neutrality Act.

As yet, the great majority of Americans do not wish to become involved in the war, but if the war continues and the above propaganda increases a different story may be told. Our stake in the Far East is a mere pittance in comparison with the tremendous economic, moral, religious, and human cost of a war. Patriotic Americans will ask the President to invoke the Neutrality Act designed to meet such emergencies, and will pray that saner counsels will yet prevail before the conflagration spreads. Let us sow for peace.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

Birra, Via Baraduar, C. P., India
August 24, 1937

Dear Friends:

Some of you may know a little about the place where we are situated while others may not. If you have a map you will find us near a city called Bilaspur and you will also find a river called the "Mahanadi" flowing from the west to the east. If your map is fairly large you will find a river flowing in to this from the north—appearing a little east of the place mentioned above. Right in that corner where the Hasdeo River joins the Mahanadi is where the Mauhaudei village is and where the so-called Birra Mission Station is. These rivers have often been high during the rainy season, but the water never came very high into the compound.

Our rainy season lasts for about three months and during that time we get from 40 to 60 inches of rain. This year we had already received in the neighborhood of 40 inches although the season was only about half over. We were going on with our work as usually—the farmers busy with their rice and peanut fields and all the Christians attending the special Bible classes that were being held for a period of six weeks.

On Wednesday, the 5th of August, we noticed that the river was exceptionally high. And it seemed to be steadily rising. Everyone was more or less excited as the water crept into the garden near the river bank and as it filled in field after field to the east of Missionary Thiessen's bungalow. School was dismissed and the boys, more than a hundred in number, were busy catching the rats that fled from the banks of the rice fields as the water continued to rise. It was profitable business since the Sahib pays a cent for each tail.

Steadily the water crept into the school yard, into the Boarding where the boys live and began to encircle the Thiessen bungalow. Mrs. Thiessen was sick with fever and as the water continued to rise it was decided to bring her and the baby to our bungalow since that seemed to be decidedly higher. Of course, we did not expect the water to come much higher. There had never been a real flood in Mauhaudei as long as anyone could remember, but it was well to take even unnecessary precautions.

At about two o'clock in the afternoon the water had gotten into our yard. Some of the Christian women said, "Mensahiba, if the water should rise so that there is a stream between us and the bungalow, may we come to the veranda?" "Yes," was the laughing reply. Soon they were beginning to wade through more than knee deep to get to the bungalow and in a little while a flat boat was being used to carry boxes, beds and other necessities across the strip of water. By four o'clock we were clearing out rooms so that there would be shelter for the women and children, for the veranda was not big enough to hold all who came. Church benches were brought for people to sit on. The water was than already so deep around the church that the benches could be floated for some distance. As the water continued to rise, inch by inch, one began to wonder what might not happen. Little ones were fed and put to bed on the floors and older ones settled themselves for the vigil.

There is a private telephone line connecting four of our mission stations. The line is very often out of order, but that night we had the comfort of being able to report to Champa and to hear the reports from Korba until after midnight. Surely it was a special divine provision that night. The reports that followed would have read something like this:

6 P. M. The water is in the Thiessen's bungalow already; the Boarding boys (101 in number) are with him there. Almost all the Christians are here at our bungalow.

7 P. M. Water rose about four inches in this last hour. (From Korba, 50 miles upstream, came the news that the Hasdeo was still rising there, hence no relief from that end for hours to come.)

8 P. M. Altogether the water rose at least five inches in the last hour. Everyone is keeping calm. Babies have been put to sleep on the floors and some on cots that parents had brought before the water was too deep. Folks in the other bungalow are almost knee deep in water.

9 P. M. No let up. Steady drizzle of rain adds to the dreariness of the outlook. Have praise and prayer meetings with different groups. At a time like this the Christian faith shows itself. No signs of panic.

10 P. M. Water already threatens to come into the house. Many people sitting on benches and cots on the veranda. Water rushes through beneath them. Remember especially one family, father blind and five children, seated on two native cots. As they look at the swirling waters the mother says, "No hope but in Jesus." The missionaries from other stations assure us that much prayer is going up in our behalf. Leper Asylum church is also in prayer.

11 P. M. Water has come into the bungalow. Ankle deep in the front room. Report from Korba is that the water is just about to go over the bank of the Hasdeo river there but seems to be almost stationary. Gives us some comfort. Little children have had to be moved from the floor to tables and chairs. One long kitchen table bears a precious load of seven little brown kiddies, all fast asleep. A cry of "The water is falling" turns out to be a false alarm. Must have been a slight lowering when the brick walls surrounding the garden and yard are pushed over by the force of the water. Intermittent rain. The boys at the bungalow have crawled up on the roof. Water in the Thiessen bungalow is about 31 inches deep.

"Can it be possible that we will all be swept away?" No, that cannot be. It would be contrary to God's nature, for if all the Christians were to be swept away in a flood it would give the non-Christians the chance to say, "Where is the Christian's God. They trusted in Him but He could not save them." No, God would keep watch over us—not for our sakes but for the honor of His Name.

Midnight. Water still rising but slower than before. I wade into Mrs. Thiessen's room and find her, the baby and the ayah fast asleep. In the middle of the room a shoe is slowly sailing along.

1. A. M. Last time we can speak to Champa. Hear that the Hasdeo at Korba has definitely begun to fall. That means that in a few hours the pressure from the north will let up. Water is now four inches in our bungalow.

2 A. M. All quiet. Some one says, "If we must all go it is good that we are together." Water rises very little now.

3 A. M. Telephone rings faintly. Mr. Thiessen on the line. He says the water is definitely going down. His boys were too cold on the roof. They prefer standing almost waist deep in water. The water was five inches deep in our front room and thirty three inches deep in the other bungalow. What must that mean to Thiessen's furniture and stuff.

5 A. M. Water has been scooped out of our bungalow. A count shows that 175 people, men, women and children spent the night in our home.

6 A. M. What shall be done for food for all these people! The cook and I decide to mix baking powder biscuit but to bake it in a sheet instead of like biscuits. Make enough so that at least all the children can have a "chunk". Water still swirls around the bungalow but no one is ready to venture out very far. The buffalo cows come searching for their calves. At places they still have to swim and at other places where the water is more shallow we see that there must be washouts for they suddenly sink down into the water. People can see from our veranda that many of the houses are down. Someone complains about their loss to which the grandfather, who with his wife spent the night in the arm chair, replies, "Children, do not complain. This is a time for praise. Praise that we have all been saved. Thank God! Thank God! What are things in comparison to our lives." And that seems to be the general thought.

Groups go together, share what food they had been able to bring to the bungalow and soon great kettles of rice are ready. The school boys have had nothing to eat since noon of the previous day. So as soon as they can get over they are fed. Then began the work of salvaging and reclamation. Mud walls have simply washed away. Often the roofs have "sat down" as the walls grew soft. So boxes, rice, and utensils have been buried in the debris. Some can be salvaged. Some have to be replaced or done without.

How food was sent, how the missionaries P. A.

Penner and F. J. Isaac came down the river by boat and how we held a praise meeting on Sunday, how the Christians of the other stations lent a hand must be told another time. We would not choose to go through another time like this, but we are glad for the added proof of God's faithfulness and His keeping power.

REPORT OF WORK IN SASKATOON, SASK.

To the Home Mission Board

Dear Brethren:

My report is introduced with the words of Paul when he writes: "Blessed by the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ." Eph. 1:3.

Truly our feelings and thoughts cannot be better expressed than was done by Paul. God was near in our meetings in the church, in the Girls' Home, in the Mission hall on Pleasant Hill, at the sick bed, in the house of mourning, in our intercourse with young and old. The worship services could be held morning and evening. Though the summer attracts many a churchgoer out into the open, there are still a goodly number that remain at home. The town people, as a rule have little opportunity to spend any time in the open air, and we can not blame those who on a Sunday go into the country to spend a quiet day with friends. Now, the summer is gone and the beautiful Canadian fall has come. The dustclouds are laid, and the hot winds which burnt up the harvest of a whole Province are stilled. The air is cooler, and the schools have begun their work, the vacationists have returned, our group is growing and the work is getting to be normal again. The plans for the work laid in the summer and the programs made are rendered in the Sunday and Saturday evening schools and in the Young People's Society. In the midst of all stands the Crucified Love with which we were loved.

In the Sunday School there are 90 scholars that are instructed by 7 teachers. There are about 150 that attend worship, and the Young People's Society is attended by as many as 200 persons. The servant girls compose a large portion of our church attendance. They are nearly all members of a church in the country and our services are a substitute for that which they leave behind. Because of the crop failure, there are more girls that are seeking work in the city. In August the places where they wanted girls were rare, and the home was too small for all who were waiting for work, so that the mother in the home felt the load heavy, because some had to wait in the home as much as 6 days. But we think God for Grace also in this. This waiting for a place has something in its favor, they learn to know the home and understand its purposes. It is a good opportunity to become acquainted and cultivate friendship. Such girls soon become faithful members of the Home family. We try to impress those who come that we are not only a medium for securing working places but what the name indicates, a Home for those who are working away from their own home. That they shall feel at home here and seek shelter and council for all their cares and problems. The Home does not only give but it also expects reciprocating service. It expects cooperation and fellowship in service. It must be the duty of every member of the Home family to endeavor to preserve the good reputation of the Home. A Home is always what its members make of it, and a Girls' Home is also. The reputation of our Home is good and, for the most part, we get the best places for our girls, with Officers, Professors, Doctors, Lawyers, etc. The President of the University had for years one of our girls in his service. This Summer when the new President moved in, the two servant girls had to be "Mennonite Girls". The placing of one of our girls into a home is regarded as a guarantee for a good moral and well behaved life. We pray daily for all that the protecting Grace of God may keep them. Most of the girls visit the Home on Thursday evening. There are always a few that play truant, but patiently following them up and inviting them back, has restored many a one. We succeeded during the Summer to increase our Home library with about 20 more books. Good reading attracts many. I often read on Thursday evening out of our periodicals and good books. My wife is preparing material for a Mission sale. This is good employment and a blessed training. We abstain from scolding and warnings, but endeavor to offer much, remembering that it says: "Overcome evil with good."

In the family we are fairly well, thank God. Wife and three children had opportunity this summer to drive along to Leamington, Ont. Her mother and sisters reside there. This alternative was beneficial to all. I had my vacation in August. Brother Benno Toews substituted for me three weeks. During this time I felt relieved of all cares and prepared for winter work. I must always look ahead. Every week's program includes four addresses, two in the church, one in the Girls' Home and one on Pleasant Hill. When funerals and weddings occur, then it becomes considerably more arduous. It is also my lot to lead the Sunday School and Young People's Society work. The work of finding places for the Girls also requires much time. It is not unusual to be called to the telephone as high as twenty times a day. It is not always those that want girls that are on the telephone but somebody wants to find an address, another reports a person that is sick, perhaps there are guests that have arrived, the hospital calls us to a dying person, etc. Just now there was a woman here and asked for help. Four of the children are to go to school and they are in need of pencils and books, etc. Another one is here and asks help for sick children. To refuse help to poor people of the Mission is not an easy matter. We must have advice or council for them, and often a good advice is expensive. Who would not believe that the means often fail in our big house. And yet we experience it again and again: "As the burden so is the strength, or as thy days so shall thy strength be." There is a saying that "Love can do all things." Jesus says: "All things are possible to him that believes." We pray for this faith and such love.

Your grateful servants in the Lord,

J. J. and Catharine Thiessen.

A WORD TO STUDENTS

Here is a word to the young people attending college, or planning to attend, as given by Professor Emil Riesen, dean of the University of Arizona college of liberal arts, in the ARIZONA DAILY STAR. "Would I succeed in college?" Many ask it outright when they first call on the college dean to plan their course. A few helpful and general answers can be given to this question. In the first place, if a student succeeded in high school he is likely to succeed in college. On the contrary, those who graduated from high school with low records very seldom succeed. It has been found by some universities that only about one in eight of those coming from the lower half of their high school classes have met the standards required for graduation in college.

A second important indication of success in college is the industry and effort of the individual. Has he played at his studies in high school and yet graduated with a fair record, then by extraordinary work and determination he may do rather well in college. If, however, he has worked to the limit of his ability in high school and yet has barely passed his courses then the pace in college is likely to prove too much for him. Only a small number of students change successfully from a school life of play and indifference to college life of concentration and effort. Often it is too late for this, at eighteen, when students come to college. Parents and teachers should cultivate this serious attitude earlier.

A third indication of success in college is the degree of intensity and definiteness of the candidate's purpose. It helps a great deal if a student has a clear idea of the profession or vocation for which he wishes to prepare. William James, the great American psychologist, has said that when you are in a great dark forest almost any definite direction will bring you out into the open. Similarly almost any clear educational purpose worthy of the name will lead to self-development and to intellectual, emotional and social adjustment.

Finally, another set of indications for success in college is the composite personal estimate by parents, teachers, and professional men who know the applicant well. Is his health reasonably good? What are his interests? Does he possess energy, industry and determination? Are there no serious financial handicaps?

Granted good health and reasonable ability, the above indications of success in college will be found helpful to prospective college students, when they undertake to estimate their chances in the standard American college.

PITY THE PREACHER

The preacher has a great time. If his hair is gray he is too old. If he is a young man he has not had experience enough. If he has ten children he has too many; if he has none he is setting a bad example.

If his wife sings in the choir, he is presuming; if she does not, she isn't interested in her husband's work. If the preacher reads from notes he's a bore; if he speaks extemporaneously he isn't deep enough.

If he stays at home in his study, he doesn't mix enough with people; if he is seen around the streets he ought to be at home getting up a good sermon. If he calls on the poor he is playing to the grandstand; if he calls at the homes of the wealthy he is an aristocrat.

Whatever he does, someone could have told him how to do better—Bronson, Mo., Pilot.

Announcements and Invitation

The Lord willing, Rev. E. E. Frank will be ordained as missionary to India, on Sunday, October 10, at 2:00 P. M. All mission friends are cordially invited to participate by prayer and personal presence. The ordination will very likely take place in the Goessel high school auditorium, so that all visitors may find room. If not, it will be announced in next week's papers.

Sister Frank (Johanna Schmidt) has been in India before, and had her ordination then.

While we rejoice over the open door in India, for new workers and the return of those on furlough, let us not forget to pray for war-torn China, that peace may return and, with it, widely open doors, which are now partly closed. May the Lord protect the six of our missionaries who are still there.

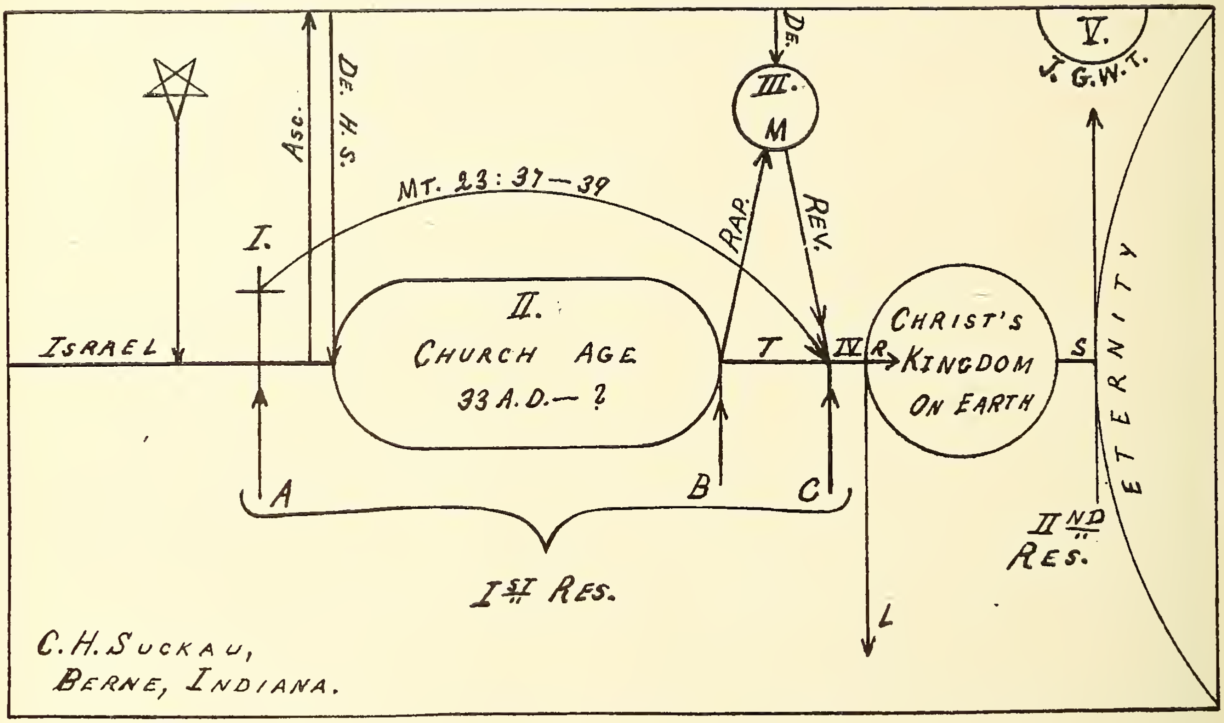
"The Ends of the Ages"

(I COR. 10:11 R. V.)

A BRIEF BIBLE STUDY WITH ACCOMPANYING DIAGRAM SHOWING THE SUBJECTS TREATED IN RELATION TO ONE ANOTHER

C. H. SUCKAU, BERNE, INDIANA



The First Coming of Christ

(Abbreviations and Figures in this Study Refer to the Diagram)

★ The First Coming of Christ. Christ was born "King of the Jews" (Mt. 2:2).

✚ The Crucifixion of Christ, "THE KING OF THE JEWS" (John 19:18-19).

ISRAEL—Sixty-nine of the seventy weeks of Daniel's prophecy (Dan. 9:24-27) came to an end with the rejection and crucifixion of Jesus Christ, "THE KING OF THE JEWS" (Mt. 27:37).

MT. 23:37-39—Israel will not see Christ again until "all the tribes of the earth . . . shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory" Mt. 24:30; 25:31).

ASC.—The Ascension of Christ (Acts 1:9)

DE. H. S.—The Descent of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost (Acts 2:1-4).

CHURCH AGE—This began with Pentecost (Acts 2:1-4, 47) in the year 33 A. D. It has continued up to the present time, but will end when the Lord Jesus Christ comes again and takes the Church, His bride, unto Himself (I Thess. 4:16-17). The only reason for the delay of the second coming of Christ is, that the fullness of the Gentiles must first come in to form His bride (Acts 15:14-18; Rom. 11:25). Therefore the preaching of the gospel is the God-given mission of the Church in this age (Mt. 28:18-20; Acts 1:8).

The Second Coming of Christ

DE.—The Descent of the Lord. This represents the initial stake of Christ's Second Coming. "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven" (I Thess. 4:16; Acts 1:9-11).

RAP.—The Rapture. The dead in Christ will be raised first. (See 1st Res. B). Then "we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds" (John 14:1-3; I Cor. 15:51-52; I Thess. 4:17).

M.—The Meeting of Christ and the Church. We shall be caught up "to meet the Lord in the air" (I Thess. 4:17). We shall then "all appear before the judgment seat of Christ" (II Cor. 5:10). See also the Third Judgment.

T.—The Tribulation. Daniel's seventieth week of seven years which still remains unfulfilled (Dan. 9:27). After the Church will have been caught up, God will again deal with Israel (Acts 15:13-18; Rom. 11:25-26). The "gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations" (Mt. 24:14). During the last half of this seven-year period the great Tribulation will take place. "Then shall be great tribulation" (Dan. 12:1; Mt. 24:21). The events of this period are described in Rev. 4-18. Chapters 11-18 have particular reference to The Great Tribulation. Antichrist will be revealed during this brief space of time (II Thess. 2:8). Note: THE CHURCH WILL NOT BE ON EARTH DURING THIS PERIOD.

REV.—The Revelation. This represents the second state of Christ's coming again, i. e. the appearance of Christ with His saints upon the earth (Col. 13:4; I Thess. 3:13; II Thess. 1:7-10).

Note the distinction between the initial stage of Christ's coming FOR His saints in the air at the time of the RAPTURE, and later His coming WITH His saints to set up His earthly Kingdom, at the close of the great TRIBULATION (Jude 14; Rev. 19. 19:11-16).

CHRIST'S KINGDOM ON EARTH—This age is often called the Millennium because of its duration for a thousand years. It will be Christ's personal reign of peace and righteousness over the whole earth. The Church will be associated with Him in this reign. "They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years" (II Tim. 2:11-12; Rev. 20:4-6). The nations shall then learn war no more (Isa. 2:2-5; 4; 11:1-9; 65:17-25; Mic. 4:1-4; Zeph. 3:14-20; Zech. 8:3-8; 8:20-23; 14:16-21).

S.—Satan loosed a little season and then cast into the lake of fire (Rev. 20:3, 7-10).

The Two Resurrections

1ST RES. A.—The "Firstfruits" of the First Resurrection. Christ and many saints who "came forth out of the graves after his resurrection" (Mt. 27:52-53; I Cor. 15:23).

1ST RES. B.—The great Harvest of the First Resurrection. "The dead in Christ shall rise first" (I Thess. 4:16; I Cor. 15:23).

1ST RES. C—The Gleaning of the First Resurrection. The resurrection of the tribulation saints (Rev. 6:9-11; 7:14; 20:4).

Note: This completes the resurrection of the just (Lk. 14:14). "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the FIRST RESURRECTION" (Rev. 20:6).

2ND RES.—The Resurrection of "the rest of the dead" unto damnation (John 5:29; Rev. 20:12-15; Dan. 12:2).

Note: The Second Resurrection will take place one thousand years after the First Resurrection. No saved persons will be among those resurrected at that time, for they will all have been partakers of the First Resurrection.

The Five Major Judgements

(Designated by Roman Numerals on the Diagram)

I.—The First Judgment. The Believer was judged as to the guilt and penalty of his sins in his Substitute, Jesus Christ, upon the cross (I Pet. 2:24; 3:18; Gal. 3:13; II Cor. 5:21).

II.—The Second Judgment. The BELIEVER in the Church Age is to exercise self-judgment in order to maintain his fellowship with Christ and to escape the chastening for his sins by the Lord (I Cor. 11:28-32; I John 1:6-9).

III.—The Third Judgment. The BELIEVER will be judged as to his rewards when he meets the Lord before the judgment seat of Christ (II Cor. 5:9-10; I Cor. 3:11-15). The five crowns will constitute rewards for works that will abide (I Cor. 9:25; Js. 1:12; II Tim. 4:8; I Thess. 2:19-20; I Pet. 5:4).

Note that only BELIEVERS are judged in the first three Judgments.

IV.—The Fourth Judgment. The Judgment of the Nations (Mt. 25:31-46).

Note that no resurrection will take place at that time. The BELIEVERS of the Church Age will not be judged at this Judgment which will be for living nations only.

R—The Nations on the right hand shall enter into and inherit the millenial Kingdom. (Mt. 25:34).

L—The Nations on the left hand shall go away into everlasting punishment (Mt. 25:46).

V.—J. G. W. T.—The Fifth Judgment. The Judgment of the Great White Throne. This will take place immediately after the Second Resurrection. There "the rest of the dead shall be judged" (Rev. 20:11-15).

Note that no Believers will come into this judgment (John 5:24).

ETERNITY—The Ages to Come (Eph. 2:7).

NOTE: This study is being used in our senior year of the catechism class in connection with the book of most helpful Bible studies; "Rightly Dividing the Word of Truth" by C. I. Scofield. CHRISTIAN SPEECH AND CONDUCT

October 17, 1937

James, chapter 3

Topic: Christian Words and Works

Introduction

James, the brother of our Lord, is especially concerned in this third chapter, with sins of the tongue. The Epistle consists almost entirely of advice concerning practical Christian living. It resembles closely Christ's ethical teaching. In today's lesson, by several illustrations, he shows the power of the tongue and the need of governing it aright.

Power of the Tongue vs. 1-6

James warns (v1) against the over-readiness of those who would be teachers (masters) of others and thus seek notoriety and prominence, while in reality not qualified for this highly responsible work. Rather should they be slow to speak and swift to hear (1:19). The teacher's responsibility is particularly great. All make mistakes, errors. Mistakes of the tongue are hardest to avoid (v2). Few are they who have the strength of character to control the tongue fully. The tongue is controlled by our mind, thoughts, feelings, and will power.

James shows the power of the tongue with three illustrations (vs. 3-6). It is like the small bit by which we control the horse; is like the small helm which controls the large ship, even in a severe storm; is like a small spark which can easily start a great fire. The tongue, a small member, by its boasting can produce much mischief and harm. The tongue is the hardest part of the body to control. A person's words show what he is in his inner soul. The tongue is a mighty instrument for good or evil. Satan's tongue in Eden, Peter's on the day of Pentecost.

Control of the Tongue vs. 7-14

James in strong language, depicts the power for evil in an uncontrolled tongue. It is indeed a fire. It incites jealousy, inflames lust, withers the purity of young womanhood, kindles unbelief, spreads heresies. The very fires of hell are kindled by setting people to think wrongly of God and Christ. Man can control all kinds of beast but can not tame himself (vs 7, 8). Only the grace of God, can tame the tongue. The uncontrolled tongue will bless God one day and may curse others the next. In nature we do not find the bitter and the sweet coming from the same source (vs 11, 12). James sums up the central point of his discussion in verse 10, "My brethren, THESE THINGS OUGHT NOT SO TO BE."

James portrays the tongue of the unregenerate man. The tongue may be set on fire of heaven by a live coal from God's altar.

False and True Wisdom vs 15-18

James contrasts the earthly, devilish wisdom (vs 15, 16) with that which is from above (vs 17). Both the source and the effective outworking are directly opposite. The manner of life reveals the source of our wisdom. Real wisdom, truth is reasonable, peaceable, not contentious. Speech and conduct must correspond and they can do that only when we place Christ at the center of life. The inner man must be like Christ.

Gems of Truth

Speech is a power for good or evil and should be carefully controlled.

The character of a man's wisdom is revealed by his conduct.

Words are signs, but very significant ones.

Control the mouth and you largely control the action.

Men are careful about handling a fire, but most of us are careless about using our tongues.

Sermon Sketch

TEARS OF JESUS

Christianity is God manifest in the flesh. Christianity is contained in the life of Jesus Christ. To adore Christ, love Christ, trust Christ, this is the Gospel. The spirit of the life with which Christ lived—His character. We learn of His character by degrees, till we find it boundless, thought and depth in every sentence. Few men know much of Christ—none the whole. Christianity dwells entire only in one bosom.

Some comprehend His reformation of abuses, others His abhorrence of pretense in religion, others His assertion of man's equality, others His purity, His truth; others the merely human aspect of His character. But His character is a whole. Bear this in mind. We contemplate now one feeling only: "JESUS WEPT."

Our subject divides itself into two branches:

I. CAUSES OF CHRIST'S SORROW

1. The possession of a soul. When we speak of Deity joined to humanity, we mean Deity joined to manhood—body and soul. With a body only Jesus might have wept for hunger, but not wept for sorrow. That is neither the property of Deity nor of body, but of soul. Humanity in Christ was perfect. The possession of a body enabled Him to weary; the possession of a soul capacitated Him to weep.

2. The spectacle of human sorrow, and two fold: death of a friend: "When Jesus therefore saw her weeping. . . . Jesus wept." The death of His friend was a cause of the sorrow of Jesus. Mysterious!

Jesus knew that He could raise him, all-knowing wisdom; all powerful strength. Yet, "Jesus wept."

This is partly intelligible. Conceptions strongly presented produce effects like reality. We wake dreaming, our eyes suffused with tears—know it is a dream, yet tears flow on.

Conception of a parent's death. To say Jesus wept is to say that His humanity was perfect; that His mind moved by the same laws as ours. Moreover, it was only delay. One day Lazarus would die and the mourning would be real.

II. CHARACTER OF CHRIST'S SORROW

Now observe the sadness of Jesus for His friend is what is repeated with us all. The news comes—"Lazarus is dead." Startling! Somehow we turn our hearts round men we love as if forever. These attachments, loves, etc., they do not hold; there is no firmness in them. We are, and then suddenly are not. Life and death, what are they? Next the sorrow of His two friends caused the tears of Jesus. Look at this family. Three persons: a brother lost, two surviving sisters. The sisters' characters were diverse. Martha found her life in the outer world of fact; Mary in the inner world of feeling. They are types of the practical and the contemplative. Their way of manifesting feeling is different. Martha expressed herself outwardly in word, in action, in small acts of attention. She loved to discuss earnestly with them how things might have been otherwise. Mary did not express, felt herself inexpressible; reached truth by the heart, not by the mind—lived in contemplation. In manhood one would have found life in the storm of the world, the other in retirement. As students, one would have studied the outward life of man in history; the other philosophy, the causes of things, the world visible, and the stranger world within.

Two links bound these diverse characters together: love to Lazarus, attachment to the Redeemer. And this true union—similars in dissimilarity, worlds differing, spheres differing, yet not clashing—bound them together by one common pursuit.

Adapted from Robertson's sermons.

Constructive Peace Action

Planned by the Peace Committee of the Western District

The following article is addresed particularly to the ministers and churches of the Western District of the General Conference.

It is evident that since, and because of, the World War the cause of Christian Peace has entered upon a new phase in its relation to the Government and to the public. For multitudes of others, besides non-resistant Christians, have ceased to support war and now declare war to be sin and participation in war by Christians to be disloyalty to Christ.

By this great change in attitude toward war the whole situation for non-resistant Christians has been fundamentally altered in our own country, as well as in some other countries. Formerly Christians who refused to do military service often were executed or outlawed and persecuted. Naturally any effort on their part to promote Christian Peace reacted against them. They were shut off, in various ways, from utilizing opportunities for promoting the cause of Christian peace beyond their own immediate borders. Their Christian peace-life was confined to, and was possibly only in their own family circle. But all that is now radically changed in our own and in some other countries.

Our own government granted exemption from military service in the World War to religious conscientious objectors. In view of this noble concession it is felt that those groups to whom this privilege was granted should, through their churches, make continuous sacrificial contributions toward the general well being of the nation, whether it be in the way of voluntary uplift economically, socially or ethically. Such service should be rendered not only in war time but with undiminished ardor during peace times, however long these may be protracted.

The objective aimed at is conceived as threefold:—

1. Relieve the State of the care and expense of providing for the following members of our non-resistant groups:

   a) All physically or mentally defective dependents within the respective group of non-resistants.

   b) The poor among their number.

   c) The helpless aged.

2. Assist in a suitable, practical way, members of their respective group who are in need, to regain a footing for selfsupport.

3. By organized activity render service which will contribute toward allaying social and economic unrest.

The Western District Conference Peace Committee has delegated to H. P. Krehbiel, Committee member, in cooperation with the secretary of the Committee, the task of obtaining by means of a Questionnaire, through the leaders of the Western District Conference churches, detailed information along the lines above enumerated.

Letters together with the Questionaire blanks are being sent to all the ministers of the Western District Conference churches.

It is hoped that by this procedure the way will be reopened to render voluntary peace-time Christian service in the promotion of Christian peace at home and abroad.

Going--But Where?

(On the Streets of Chicago)

I don't know why I went downtown that day. I had nothing in particular to buy. Perhaps it was to get away from my thoughts. No doubt I hoped to lose them in the jostling loop crowds.

State Street always made me forget myself. I was only part of the stream that hurried along, going somewhere without seeming ever to arrive.

Suddenly something clicked in my mind. I stopped abruptly, but only for a moment, as a bump from behind reminded me to keep on going. Someone growled, "What's the matter? Why don't you keep on moving?" I kept on moving, but gradually made my way to the edge of the crowd next to a department store where I could think.

"That is just it," my thoughts almost shouted at me as I watched the endless stream of people surge by; "You're always going, going, but not getting anywhere." As I looked ahead there seemed no probability of ever arriving some place—just a continual striving after I knew not what.

What was I aiming for anyway? Had I a goal for my life at all? Or was I just putting one foot ahead of the other, blindly hoping I was nearer there than when I started? I was conscious that I was trying to get as much fun as I went along as possible. Was that all there was to it? Of course, I expected some day to die and go to heaven, but that seemed very remote. And in the meantime?

Then the picture of all my indifference to things that really counted flooded my mind. There was God; He made me and cared for me. My parents, to whom I owed my existence, whom I respected, and loved. But God was before my parents; further back they owed their existence to Him. And yet were my feelings to Him as fervent as those to my parents? I could not keep back the tears as the tragic truth dawned on me.

Then there was Jesus, the Son of God. He did a great deal for me, more than I was able to grasp in my thinking. Certainly He did more for me than any of my friends. For one thing, He took away all fear of death. But did I give Him even as prominent a place in my life as I did to my friends? How many in this living stream on State Street ever thought about it at all?

These interrogations brought the sore point of my thoughts to a clear-defined head. Of course I must eat and have clothes and a place to rest. I must work at times and relax at times. I needed friends and home. But far above these and more acutely, I needed God.

Relief was in sight. I saw something for which to aim at—something worth while. It reached high up, actually far above the clouds. I wanted to follow Him who was above all things and before all things, God. There was nothing easy about such an aim, but the good Book would help me out. I decided to start right away since it was the really worthwhile thing to do.

As I relaxed in the southbound streetcar a few minutes later, I planned ways of following my Leader.—Helene Wiens, Chicago, Illinois.

The Book of the Century

Beside me, on the table, in its trim blue and gold lies a book—BY a Mennonite, FOR the Mennonites, and OF the Mennonites. It was written by one who, through long years of study of, and living with us Mennonites has learned to love us and to apppreciate some of the great personalities which Mennonitism has produced.

As I finger through its crisp pages, name after name jumps up at me, and I say, "Well, I know THAT man." And then I read! Here's an old friend; there's an acquaintance; and yet another old schoolmate I recall. I read how those men and women, old and young, have taken their places of leadership in God's world. I read about the tasks they have undertaken, the burdens borne, the joys experienced, the successes won.

Preachers, doctors, nurses, educators, lawyers, editors, missionaries, salesmen, bankers, businessmen, artists, musicians,—on and on I go, and see how out of the heart of Mennonitism God has chosen men after his own heart to do His bidding at tasks which HE has chosen for them.

As I turn to Part 11, I find a classified directory—just like in the familiar telephone directory—of the type of businesses and institutions which have sprung out of the Mennonite culture. As I see the lists of hospitals, homes for the aged, the girls' homes, the orphanages—when I see the lists of periodicals published by the Mennonites, the schools which they support, and the business institutions which they command, my self-respect rises several notches, and I feel the Spirit of God quickening within me.

Perhaps Mennonite Youth, too, looking forward, can see God using US in our day, as he used these men whose lives and achievements are set forth so wonderfully in Doctor Warkentin's book, WHO'S WHO AMONG THE MENNONITES. But NOW—well, now that book should be at the command of every C. E. organization in the land. Every church, every student and scholar should have that book right there along with his dictionary, and his other reference books.

Mennonitism will mean something to you if you do! WHO'S WHO AMONG THE MENNONITES —The book of the century!

Murder at the Steering Wheel

Young People's Topic for Oct. 24

2 Kings 9:20; Exodus 20:13

Meditation:

M., Oct. 18—Death by Accident. Luke 13:4, 5
T., Oct. 19—Avoid Murder. 1 Pet. 4:15
W., Oct. 20—The Mark of Cain—on the Car. Gen. 4:3-15
T., Oct. 19—Avoid Murder. 1 Pet. 4:15
T., Oct. 21—Death on Horseback. 2 Sam. 18:9
F., Oct. 22—Slaughter of the Innocents. Matt. 2:16-18
S., Oct. 23—Charging Chariots. Nahum 2:4

Suggested hymns

"Our God, Our Help in Ages Past"
"Have Thine Own Way Lord"

Problems:

I. Is it out of place to discuss at a religious meeting a topic that deals with automobile driving when it is a major problem we face every day? Auto accidents have increased alarmingly by leaps and bounds. "Murder behind the steering wheel is taking such a toll of life that our statistics for automobile fatalities exceed each year the lives of American soldiers killed in the World War."

II. "One of the great contributions of the Bible is its teaching about the worth of human life, of personality, and of the immortal spirit! But there are many areas where this teaching is not yet applied. The needless, senseless use of men as cannon fodder, the terrible total of lives maimed or lost because of reckless drivers, the selfish failures in many cases to protect workers from hazards—all these are sad and tragic evidences that we still hold life too cheap." What does God mean when he says "Thou shalt not kill"?

III. Is the driver responsible for the people's lives in his car? Who is responsible for an 'unavoidable accident' that happened while driving carelessly? What are some of the causes of 'unavoidable accidents'? What can Christians do to promote law-enforcement? What is meant by 'personal liberty'? "The false notion of liberty is the enemy of true liberty. If we repudiate law we turn Christ's gift of freedom against himself."

IV. Would a closer observance of the Sabbath Laws prevent accidents? Jesus was reproved for healing on the Sabbath. What about Christians being the cause of death on the Sabbath?

V. "The Massacre of the Innocents is the most detestable crime, save one, in all history. The number slain was probably not more than ten, or twenty at most, but the inherent cruelty of the deed, the helpless babies, and yet more the intended regicide of th Lord of Glory, have excited intense horror in all Christian times and realms." How is reckless driving 'a slaughter of the innocents'?

"A voice was heard in Ramah
Weeping and great mourning
Rachel weeping for her children
And she would not be comforted,
Because they are not."

VI. "Statistics prove that young people act more quickly than older people, that they can control cars more easily. But they also show poorer judgment in driving cars, take bigger chances than older people. Therefore, the number of accidents among young people is much larger than it should be."

VII. "A boy, in a train, was boasting of the fact that he once went as fast as ninety miles an hour. He was playing with the lives of other people, he was in a real sense a menace to the public,—to those in the car and to others on the road. Just what should other young people do who are in a car when a driver goes that fast?"

Suggestion:

Let some person previously selected make a brief talk on the importance of the Christian virtues of (1) self-control, (2) consideration of others, and (3) respect for human life and welfare. Christians by emphasizing these three major points can do much to make America a much safer place to worship, work, and play.

— PRAYER—When a pump is frequently used, the water pours out at the first stroke because it is high; but, if the pump has not been used for a long time, the water comes only after great efforts. It is so with prayer. If we are instant in prayer, every little circumstance awakens the disposition to pray, and desire and words are always ready; but, if we neglect prayer, it is difficult for us to pray, for the water in the well gets low.—Felix Neff.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

OUR FOE—DISEASE

Intermediate C. E. Topic, Oct. 24, 1937

For Daily Study

Oct. 18. Master of life. Matt. 9:18, 24-26
Oct. 19. Master of disease. Matt. 8:28-34
Oct. 20. The dreaded plague abolished. Num. 16:44-50
Oct. 21. Jesus fought disease. Luke 13:10-17
Oct. 22. The power of faith. Mark 11:20-23
Oct. 23. Healing power. Mark 16:17-20
Oct. 24. Topic — Our common enemies: Disease. Mark 1:29-35

I. Prayer Circle

Read James 5:16. Whether we are afflicted with spiritual or physical sickness, we are to pray for each other. Remember especially in your prayers those who are sick.

II. Praise in Song

1. "All Hail the Power" (standing) 2. Take the Name of Jesus" 3. "Jesus I Come" (Select the stanzas you wish to use before the meeting).

Announcements. Ask the president to come forward and take charge.

III. Quiet Worship.

Announce the topic of the meeting

Piano: (softly) "The Great Physician Now Is Near"

Leader: "Bless the Lord, O my soul,
And forget not all his benefits:
Who forgiveth all thine iniquities;
Who healeth all thy diseases;
Who redeemeth thy life from destruction;
Who crowneth thee with loving kindness and tender mercies"

Special song: (unannounced) "The Great Physician"

Scripture Reading: Mark 1:29-35

Sentence prayers closed with a prayer song.

Offering: "All good and perfect gifts come from thee, O Lord, And of thine own have we given to Thee."

IV. The Topic Presented

1. The leader introduces the topic.
2. Questions and discussion by members.
3. Talk by a Christian physician or nurse. Suggested subject: "Health rules for Christian young people"

V. Closing moments

Leader: "The body, Lord is ours to keep
In glowing health and strength for thee,
That through its life thy life may live,
Thy will move strong and swift and free.
My body, Lord, is thine to keep,
Strong and swift and free."

Song: "Give of your Best." Stanza one.

Benediction Ps. 19:14 in unison.

Thoughts for the Leader

The Bible speaks of two kinds of disease, that of the soul and that of the body. The physical diseases are caused by very tiny invisible germs. A disease is hard to detect in its beginning for that reason, but its effects upon the body are unmistakable. Sin, the sickness of the spirit is like that. That is why we need to learn to be on our guard against disease: Jesus was an enemy of it. All but six of his miracles were performed to heal disease or overcome the effects of it. As his followers, we too are enemies of disease. We should know all we can of the cause, the prevention and the cure.

To Discuss the Topic

1. What are some common causes of disease?

2. What was Jesus' attitude toward disease? Is disease always the result of sin?

3. Why is disease costly? Luke 8:43, 44. Illustrate.

4. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is an old adage. How does this prove true in life?

5. A remarkable story is told of Dr. Baedeker, who at the age of forty was a confirmed invalid. He was a skeptic, but suddenly was converted, and the new zeal for his Savior lifted him from his sickbed and sent him out in the world with the message of the cross. For forty years more he preached in European prisons, filling the desolate lives of the inmates with gladness. How can faith help the sick?

6. In 1900 Walter Reed sacrificed his life to prove that a species of mosquito was the carrier of yellow fever in the tropics. Through his discovery this disease has practically been eliminated in these regions. Others have made similar sacrifices for our health. What should be our attitude toward health ordinances, quarantines and other regulations?

Something to do

Let the society plan to hold a meeting in the home of an invalid, or sing for the sick. It will help your members to appreciate their health. An interesting bouquet can be made by printing some cheery verses on slips of green paper and wrapping them around the cups of the flowers. Fasten with a small rubber band. The flowers will have a very definite meaning for the one who is sick.

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

Program Suggestions for October 24, 1937

THE BOOK OF EZRA

Aim: to lead the child to love the Scriptures; to teach the content of the book of Ezra with God's Presence as the central theme.

Service of praise in scripture, song and prayer

1. Call to service by prelude of hymns
2. Sing in unison verse one of "Come, Thou Almighty King."
3. Poem spoken as a prayer:

"Ancient of Days, who sittest throned in glory,
To Thee all knees are bent, all voices pray;
Thy love has blest the wide world's wondrous story
With light and life since Eden's dawning day.
O Holy Father, who hast led Thy children,
In all the ages with the fire and cloud,
Through seas dry-shod, through weary wastes bewildering,
To Thee, in reverent love, our hearts are bowed.
O holy Father, with heart and voice adoring
Praise we the goodness that doth crown our days;
Pray we that Thou wilt hear us, still imploring
Thy love that guides and keeps always."

4. Sing in unison: "O worship the King"
5. Praising Him. Let those rise in their seat here and there to whom verses have been given. The chairman announces the theme of each praise:
   a. Praising God for loving-kindness and faithfulness: Ps. 89:1
   b. Praising God who guides us: Ps. 32:8; 48:14
   c. Praising God who feeds us: Ps. 103:1, 2, 5
   d. Praising God who feeds our soul: Ps. 107:8, 9
   e. Praising God who redeems us: Ps. 111: 1, 9
   f. Praising God who hears our prayers: Ps. 116:1, 2
   g. Praising God who forgives our sins: Ps. 86:5; 103:3a
   h. Praising God who loves us: Jer. 31:3
6. Response to God's love by group in unison repeating Ps. 104:33, which was put on blackboard previous to meeting.
7. Sing in unison: "Holy, Holy, Holy." Verses 3, 4.
8. Prayer by leader

Mission Minutes: Offering for your mission project.

Announcements

Study Period

1. Speak in unison verse of the month. Luke 11:28
2. Prayer by chairman that God may write His words within our hearts
3. God works for those who love Him. Let the children bring their Bibles in the study of the book of Ezra.

These talks are to be given by juniors.
   a. God moves a king to make a proclamation. Ezra 1:1-4
   b. God leads His people home to build a temple. 1:5-11; 2:64
   c. God moves hearts to give for the building. 2:68, 69
   d. Praising God for the finished foundation. 3:10-13
   e. God wipes away hindrances. 4:1-6; 13
   f. Praising God for the finished building. 6:14-22

4. Sing in unison: Great Is Thy Faithfulness
5. Heart-talk by leader on "God Provides." Use chapters 7-10 to show how God provides this remnant by sending them a good leader. Tell who he is, how he was sent, laden with gifts, his humbleness on the journey, God's protection, the call to the people to leave sin and return unto God.
6. Special music: God Will Take Care of You. Verses 1, 2, 3
7. Speak in unison words of "Book of Grace"
8. Closing prayer by leader

TO THE JUNIOR

Said the Robin to the Sparrow:
"I should really like to know
Why these anxious human beings
Rush about and worry so?"

Said the Sparrow to the Robin:
"Friend, I think that it must be
That they have no Heavenly Father
Such as cares for you and me."

CORRESPONDENCE

EBENEZER CHURCH, NEAR BLUFFTON, OHIO

On June 27 our Pastor, Rev. P. A. Kliewer, exchanged pulpits with Rev. Paul Whitmer of the Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio. Brother Whitmer's sermon was based on the text, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us," which was very appropriate, as we were looking forward to our Centennial festival, July 4.—Our Summer Bible School held their closing program July 1, with 125 pupils enrolled and nine teachers. Among the visitors was Rev. W. S. Gottshall, Quakertown, Pa. who kindly expressed his praise due the children and teachers for the evidence of their loyalty. Pro. 22:6, "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

Among our shut-ins is Brother P. B. Amstutz who has reached the ripe age of 91 years. He heavily contributed toward our Centenial held July 4th at Bluffton H. S. Auditorium.—Sister Fannie Amstutz, afflicted for the past year and being cared for in the Community Hospital, Bluffton, is an inspiration to her many friends.—Brother Waldo Hostettler, our S. S. Superintendent, who underwent a serious operation is slowly recuperating. His place is being filled by the assistant, Phares Bixel.

Rev. P. P. Wedel of the First Church of Christian, Moundridge, Kansas, fed us richly on the "Bread of Life" from Sunday August 22 to 29. We might well say with the disciples who had the joy of witnessing the transfiguration, "It was well for us to be there."—Wednesday, Sept. 1, Rev. and Mrs. Emerson Slotterback left for the Altoona, Pa. Mission, where their ordaination took place Sept. 12, by Rev. W. S. Gottshall of Quakertown, Pa. We rejoice with these dear young people as they "present themselves a living sacrifice unto God."

Words cannot express our gratitude over the safe arrival of our beloved mission workers Brother Ezra Steiner and wife to Tibet, India, while their dear children, son and daughter, remain among us.

On Sept. 12, Rev. Dr. Schultz from the Bible department of Bluffton College, delivered a powerful message to us while our pastor and wife took leave to visit the mission station in charge of Rev. Rudolph Larson, wife, and daughter, who had experienced a serious auto accident.—On the following Sunday John M. Tosh of Bluffton delivered an inspiring sermon.

Miss Elizabeth Wirkler of Los Angeles, Calif., Mission, is admired for her pluck in motoring with her mother the great distance enroute to Oberlin, Ohio, where John Wirkler, their brother and son, is located. Their presence was enjoyed in this locality, as was also that of Rev. Hostetler and family of the Mennonite church at Upland, California.

We are touched with sympathy toward our bereaved family of John Bixler whose son, Albert, died at the Bueyrus hospital as a result of an auto crash. His wife, two sons, and a daughter survive. Nahum 2:4 we read this prophecy, "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways: they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings."—Our janitor, Daniel Bucher, wife, and three friends, enroute to Versailles, Mo., to visit a brother who was ill, met with a collision. The auto was demolished but none of them were injured, excepting a few bruises. They praise God for His miraculous protection.—Cor.

GRACE MENN. CHURCH, PANDORA, OHIO

Our summer activities have been many and varied. At the close of school the church participated in the Daily Vacation Bible School sponsored by the churches of the village. Through the summer, also, union services were held on the High School lawn, in which the church participated.

Several interesting musical programs were held in the early summer. Roy Hilty brought his High School A Capella Choir from Bowling Green, Ohio, for a special concert, and Miss Hilda Amstutz presented her High School A Capella Choir from Vaughnsville, Ohio. The Senior C. E. society presented a benefit musicale for Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Steiner, who left shortly thereafter for India.

During Rev. P. E. Whitmer's absence in August, Rev. Walter Schutz, returned missionary from Africa, assumed charge of the church services. Visiting pastors and speakers during the summer were Albert Schumacher of Berea, Ky., a former pastor of the church; Rev. U. K. Weber of Kitchener, Ont., Rev. W. L. Horst of Continental, Ohio; Miss Fanny Baumgartner of China, who addressed the Women's Missionary society in June; Miss Elizabeth Goertz, missionary in China, who addressed a joint meeting with the St. John's Mennonite Church; Miss Helen Nickel, returned missionary to India, and Mr. Glenn Hilty, superintendent of the local schools.

Fourteen young people attended the Retreat at Lake Shipshewana, Indiana, and later gave a report of the meetings at an evening service. Two young people, Ruth and Evelyn Hilty, attended the International C. E. Convention at Grand Rapids, Mich. Ruth gave a report of this convention.

One death occurred, that of Mrs. Ben Neiswander, in June.

Three weddings took place—Pearl Zuercher and Howard Arnett, June 30th; Thelma Basinger and Robert Baxter, June 13th; Rosemary Gerber and Karl Spitnale, July 27th.

In honor of the many students and teachers who annually leave in September, a social was held by the Senior C. E. Twenty-seven members of the church are in the teaching profession this year, eleven members have left for colleges and universities, and two others have taken up nurses training.

At a recent Sunday School election, Winford Suter became our new superintendent.—Mrs. S. W. Steiner.

FAMILY CHRONICLE

MARRIAGES

WIEBE-REMPEL.—On August 27 at the Henderson Mennonite Church, Louie C. Wiebe of Beatrice, Nebr. and Elizabeth Rempel of Henderson, Nebr. The young couple is at home on a farm near Beatrice.

WALTNER-KAUFMAN.—On Sept. 2, by the bride's pastor, Rev. Albert Claassen, Harold Waltner of the Salem church and Gladys Kaufman of the Salem Zion Church, at the North Church.

PREHEIM-GRABER.—On Sept. 14, by the bride's pastor, Rev. Albert Claassen, Harvey Preheim of the Salem Church and Margaret Graber of the Salem Zion Church, at the church of the bride.

PREHEIM-ORTMAN.—On Sept. 16, by the bride's pastor, Rev. Albert Claassen, Edward J. Preheim of the Salem Church and Alma Ortman of the Salem Zion Church, at the bride's church.

DEATHS

BEATRICE, NEBR., SEPT. 20, 1937

WILLIAM G. PENNER passed away after a lingering illness. He was born in the year of 1866, at Warnau near Marienburg, West Prussia, Germany. He reached the age of 70 years, 10 months and 19 days.

EMILIE PENNER NEE HAMM, the widow of our late minister, Johannes Penner, entered to her eternal reward on June the 28th. She was born on February 6th, 1861 in Jonasdorf, West Prussia, Germany. Her husband had passed away a little over five years ago. She reached the age of 76 years, 4 months and 22 days. She leaves to mourn her departure five children, five children-in-law, grand children and great grand children.

ANNA EPP NEE REIMER passed away on the 6th of August. She was born in Russia and immigrated to America with her parents, Abraham and Margaret Reimer nee Thiessen. She leaves to mourn her death her dear husband, Johannes Epp, five sons, four daughters and other close relatives.

JOHN G. SCHMIDT was born in Michalin, near Machnovka, Russia, Feb. 22, 1864. His parents were Gerhard Schmidt and Agnetha, nee Foth. In the late fall of 1874 they came to this country and stayed through the winter in Newton, Kansas. In the following spring the family moved on a farm northwest of Newton and later to one just north of Whitewater. John was baptized the 19th of April, 1881, by Elder John Schroeder, becoming a member of the Gnadenberg church. Feb. 5th, 1888 he was joined in marriage with Anna Nickel who preceded him in death almost six years ago. Six children were born to this union, all of whom survive. The departed had very little schooling but in the course of years he was fairly well read. He was mechanically inclined and became quite proficient in that line. Besides being a farmer, he was a carpenter, blacksmith, machinist and an all around handy man, and always willing to help the man that was in trouble. For some years he felt some weakness in his stomach. About a year ago he took sick and the fore part of this month he was taken to the Bethel hospital. Here he departed Sept. 16th, early in the morning, his age being 73 years, 6 months and 25 days. He leaves a blessed memory.

Funeral services were held from the Gnadenberg church Sept. 18th and burial was made in the church cemetery. Rev. G. N. Harms and Rev. J. J. Voth officiated.

SISTER MARIE GRABER, daughter of Christ and Anna Graber, was born in Russia, Dec. 31, 1872. In 1874 she came, with her parents, to this country. Sept. 1, 1889, she was baptized on the confession of her faith, and became a member of the Mennonite church. It fell to her lot to go through life alone. In addition to this, she had to suffer much in her life's evening, yet the Lord gave her the grace that she was clear in her mind to the end. Her cry for mercy did not remain unanswered. The Lord delivered her Sept. 2, 1937. She attained the age of 64 years, 8 months and 1 day. She leaves two sisters and three brothers, Katie, Adina, Peter, Jacob, and John. All are glad that she is now redeemed even though it hurts to separate. Three sisters preceded her in death. Rev. P. P. Tschetter spoke words of solace. The remains were laid to rest until the Lord returns, at the Mennonite Cemetery, at Pretty Prairie, Kansas.

—Rev. P. A. Wedel, Aberdeen, Idaho, in a private letter says, "We have a lot of visitors from Kansas this summer. One of the finest things about this place is that it proves to be a very fine summer resort for a lot of folks. Our church is always blessed with many visitors. The weather still is very fine. Two students, Arthur Wenger and Ronald Funk, have gone to Bethel from here."

—Rev. Ed. D. Schmidt who served a church in Geneva, Illinois, for a year and a half, and previously for several years had charge of a church in Chicago and at one time of the First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, has accepted a call to the Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church, Wichita, Kansas.

—Apropos the lectures which Rev. H. A. Fast, gave before the Bethel College Church recently, the editor feels constrained to say that the best thing our Conference has done for some time, has been to put a man like Dr. Fast to work on this great task of informing our churches of the many and varied phases of work we are trying to do in our effort to build up God's kingdom here on earth. At first it was proposed to put a man in the field to foster interest in mission work. The writer was one of those who insisted that this worker should represent all the branches of our conference work, missions, publication, education, relief, Y. P. work, etc., and by this time all who have heard Brother Fast will undoubtedly agree that this is the plan. We listened to four splendid lectures: The theme of his first address was, "Our Share in the Work of the Kingdom." In this he gave us a general survey of the activities of our Conference. The second was on, "Our Church and its Youth." This was, perhaps, Rev. Fast's finest effort. Then followed, "Our Church and the World-wide Task," a comprehensive discussion of our foreign mission work. In the last lecture, "Our Church and the Task at Home," he explained the work and the needs of Home Mission, Relief and Publication. Education and Women's work had been dealt with somewhat in the first lecture.

—Rev. David Toews, Rosthern, Saskatchewan, who devotes his life and energy to the care and welfare of the 20,000 Mennonites recently come to Canada from Russia, has had his heart made heavy by a total crop failure in Saskatchewan, where a large number of his proteges have settled. But he reports that the government is making definite and rather extensive preparation to aid these unfortunates during the coming winter. The sad part is that many of them have had repeated failures. Since the government is setting the good example to relieve these distressed people why should not those of us who have enough and to spare share with these brethren in the faith?

—Rev. John Plenert, for a long time beloved elder of the Johannestal Mennonite Church near Hillsboro, Kansas, passed away Sunday morning, Sept. 26. He had been ailing with heart trouble for some time. Rev. S. M. Musselman has recently been instilled as Brother Plenert's successor.

Rev. Ralph E. Underwood, a converted atheist of Portland, Oregon, has been conducting evangelistic meetings at Mennonite churches in South Dakota and Minnesota. He writes, "Incidentally, as an added attraction to both saved and unsaved, I am now equipped with a filmslide projector and am showing pictures at every service. I have pictures on Communism, Atheism, Russia, etc. and the present war between the Fascist and Communist elements in Spain. To my konwledge these pictures are exclusive with me, since I compiled them myself, and I know of no other evangelist showing them." Here is an opportunity for our churches to get matter-of-fact information on things that we read a lot about and yet know little of.

Mrs. P. R. Schroeder who has been visiting here left for her home in South Dakota, to visiton the way there her daughter Vernelle, who is a senior at Wheaton College, and her oldest daughter, Celeste, who is teaching at Lodi, Wisconsin.—Berne Witness.

—Rev. Wilmer S. Shelly, Mennonite Church, Wadsworth, Ohio, in his bulletin says, among other things, "This Sunday's offering goes to the building of the Lima, Ohio, Mission Church. Our apportionment is $100.00. We have contributed $42.00 so far."—"Next Sunday the benevolent offering will go to our Publication Board. Any denomination or other organization needs an official organ to circulate among its membership to bring information and publicity concerning its work. . . . The Board publishes the official paper of the church, THE MENNONITE. How about subscribing for this weekly church paper for $1.50?" (New subscribers may have the paper for $1.00 the first year.)—"The Willing Workers S. S. class has been requested to make a survey for the purpose of removing the debt on the parsonage, which is $1100.00. Before any canvassing has been done, $175.00 has already been promised."

—One way in which the churches in Russia are making inroads into atheist circles is by telling the workers that Jesus was a carpenter and hence a "proletarian." Recent statistics show that last year there was a gain of 837,404 church members in Soviet Russia. There are now 30,000 registered religious organizations, over 600,000 religious leaders and millions of believers, with hundreds of thousands of reactionary individuals hovering around. One interesting statistic released by the Union of Militant Atheists themselves, shows that among the gains of church members mentioned above, sixty-four per cent were men.—Herald of Holiness.

—Mennonite Colleges.—Both Tabor and Hesston colleges are reporting increased enrollments. Bethel's total enrollment is 333, with 36 seniors, 44 juniors, 94 sophomores, 155 freshmen, and four special students. Bluffton, when last heard from had 200. Goshen reports a total of 284, with 5 post-graduates, 35 seniors, 24 juniors, 85 sophomores, 115 freshmen, and 20 part-time students.

My Garden

I am planting a little garden in a sheltered, secluded space,
To put a breath of fragrance, and verdure about the place.

Then, when I set the tiny plants in pots of soil or sand,
I think my heavenly Father has, just so, for me his plans.

Is not the earth God's garden and we his children there—
Does he not hover o'er his own, guarding each, with tender care?

Just as my flowers bloom and glow in the corner I put them in,
So in my place in God's great garden, I try to glorify him.

At the Crossroads

"Let peace prevail!", again the cry of ages
Is heard as it re-echoes far and wide;
The Book of Doom, throughout its countless pages
Points warning fingers: what will man decide?

Will he embark upon a course of dangers . . . .
Of suicidal conflict stark and grim. . .
Intrusive meddling into ways of strangers . . . .
The maddened frenzy and the battle-hymn?

Or will he—happy thought—regain his senses
Before the dark envelops all?—Too late! Too late!
The last lone lad left dangling on barbed fences.
Man's self-erected monument upon the Fields of Hate!

CHURCH SINGING.—There is a good deal of controversy going on nowadays as to what constitutes the right kind of songs for worship. The first real church music was embodied in the Psalter, comprising 150 songs and prayers, principally songs of praise, more or less objective in their nature, and leaning rather more toward the intellectual than the emotional. This is entirely in keeping with the Jewish temperament which is strongly intellectual. With the advent of the gospel, however, worship became more emotional, more subjective. And the Apostle Paul advises the Christians of his day to use a mixture of songs, when he says, "Speak (Speaking) to one another in psalms and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing and making melody with your heart to the Lord." Eph. 5:19. There we have the two types of church songs around which the present-day controversy hinges, which in substance is this: Has the gospel song or gospel hymn a place in congregational singing or should the field be left solely to the choral, the historical type of church song or, to put it more succinctly: Should music, harmony, tonal excellence be the sole objective in church singing, or should the emotional, the spiritual, the spontaneous expression of the heart be given due consideration? Paul mentions psalms, songs of praise and adoration addressed to God, on the one hand, and on the other, spiritual songs, gospel songs, expressions of the regenerated heart, through which it finds an outlet for the joy and happiness and comfort and peace being felt in the soul, the emotional experiences of a life that is rooted in Christ, the Savior. While the tendency today seems to be away from gospel songs, it must be confessed that great spiritual awakenings have ever been accompanied by waves of spiritual song. The pietistic movement in England and Germany is tied up with singing of this kind. The hymns written and composed by Luther are largely of the psalm or choral type, in which the sentiment centers in the objective, in praises of God and the triumph of the church. "A mighty fortress is our God, a bulwark never failing; our helper he amid the flood, of mortal ills prevailing, etc." And these mighty words are coupled with equally pompous; dignified music. More than hundred years later, during the tribulations of the Thirty Year's War, Paul Gerhardt sings, "A pilgrim and a stranger, I journey here below; far distant is the country, the home to which I go. . . . There I shall dwell forever, no more a stranger guest, with all thy blood-bought children, in everlasting rest." Deeply emotional words set to music expressing the same sentiment! Really, religion without spiritual songs of evangelical fervor is unthinkable. So while we need chorals such as "Holy, Holy, Holy," "Come, Thou, Almighty King," "A Mighty Fortress is Our God," we need just as badly, if not more so, such hymns as "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "My Faith Looks up to Thee," "My Hope Is Built on Nothing Less than Jesus' Blood and Righteousness." Doing away with such as these would choke the heart expressions of unnumbered souls, and one of evangelism's mightiest allies would be suppressed. It is as a distinguished Christian musician has recently so aptly expressed it, "A heart of glowing love for God does not always find its outlet in intellectual expression. Great hymns and songs are not often thought through in an intellectual way; rather are they the spontaneous expression of Spirit-filled men and women; and dare we condemn or disregard that which the Holy Spirit has mightily used in the salvation of souls? The purpose of singing in Church is to release emotions of faith, contrition, confession, gratitude, love and devotion." So Paul was right when he told his congregations to sing both psalms and spiritual songs, making melody with their hearts to the Lord.

PAGANISM AT OUR DOORS.—We are deploring Germany's leaning toward paganism, and do not seem to realize that there are things right in our own country that are cancerous. Of late some of our physicians have sounded the alarm against certain diseases, and have started a movement to cure them or stamp them out. Ever since the War we have been yielding to all sorts of sensual influences and morbid pleasures. Our movies have fascinated us with pictures that presented vice in highly attractive rather than abhorrent forms. Many of our book writers have polluted the minds of their readers with unrestrained, strongly realistic descriptions of licentiousness and vulgarities to which humanity so readily yields. Our psychologists have preached the doctrine that human nature is "all right", and if checked or in any way thwarted evil results may follow. Our divorce business has reached such proportions that the world rightly points the finger of shame at us. Our newspapers vie with each other in depicting crimes in their rawest form. The "Repeal" has resulted in letting loose floods of liquor, with such attendent evils as the drink parlor for the enticement of young lives. Isn't this paganism in its worst form that we have drifted into? And now we are becoming horrified at the discovery that "sin still finds us out", that it is still destroying the bodies and lives of men. It will be a terrible struggle to disseminate the knowledge that "our body is the temple of the Holy Spirit" with any real effect upon our youth. But something definitely constructive must be done, if the nation is to be preserved.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. Richert, Sec.

Kikungshan, Honan, China, 9-12-37

Members of the Foreign Mission Board,
Dear Brethren:

Three weeks ago an air mail letter was sent to you by Mr. S. F. Pannabecker giving briefly the present situation. At that time the men in our mission had expected to reach their respective stations within three or four days. They left here August 19 and arrived at Taming on August 31. We have still had no word of their safe arrival at Kai Chow but suppose they arrived there about September 6 or 7.

Heavy rains all summer had resulted in floods over a large area, especially in our district, making travel into the interior most difficult and almost hazardous in places. The men first went to Taokow, where they found such floods that it seemed impossible to travel to Kai Chow. Neither carters nor rickshaw men were willing to make the trip. They heard that boats were operating from Hantan to Taming so they took the train to Hantan. Upon arrival they found that boats were not operating, so they had to wait five days before they were able to get transportation to Taming, where they arrived after four more days. There were no mishaps in spite of horses' occasional stumbling, except once when a horse stumbled into a hole in crossing a water puddle and Mr. Lien, the language teacher who was with them, went over the horse's head into the water.

At Taming they found high water everywhere, the compound being covered with water with basements all full. The road to Kai Chow was said to be all under water, so a boat was hired to take the Pannabecker brothers as far as Tsing Feng, two thirds of the way. Concerning the rest of the way no news has come, because mail between here and there is very slow.

Reports have also reached us from other sources that the Yellow River is again flooding the country, so we fear that the southern part of our field is also flooded. As a result of all these floods the suffering this coming fall will be intense, with fall crops all drowned out. Spring crops were very poor in the whole field, due to drought the year before when the wheat should have been planted.

Dr. Pannabecker in writing of their trip north says this: "Coming up the Peking-Hankow RR we saw fields flooded all along the way. Kaffir corn was being by men standing in water. Much of it was still standing in water uncut. The people seemed quite depressed owing to the fact that they had no spring crops, due to drought; they had fine prospects of fall crops only to have them flooded, so the best they can get is wet millet and kaffir corn which will be sure to mold before it can dry in this weather."

Here on the mountain we have been much disturbed lately owing to the many letters from the American Embassy, urging Americans to withdraw from China as soon as possible. On August 24th a telegram was received which said: "Please circulate all Americans Kidungshan that Embassy advises, in view possibility general eventual withdrawal from China, they should not return to interior stations." The next day a letter came giving reasons for evacuation: "(1) that hostilities in China may be prolonged, (2) that such hostilities may spread to areas not now affected, (3) that transportation facilities which now exist may become interrupted or suspended. Therefore consular officers are instructed, in view of the above to inform Americans in their districts of these possibilities and to advise them to withdraw from China."

On Sept. 1 and 7, letters again came urging all Americans to withdraw as soon as possible. Two days ago a telegram came urging everyone to make reservations on a special train going to Hongkong Sept. 20th making connections with several President boats. II Timothy 1:7 as well as many other verses are of great comfort these days. We are conscious of a great volume of prayer going up for us by all you dear people in the home land.

At the present we, mothers and children, are continuing to live in Kikungshan, because the consul very emphatically says, we should not return into the interior. We are especially affected because our field is in the danger zone. Miss Fast returned to Taming a few days ago with the hope that she can remain there for work. Miss Kuyf is remaining at Peitaiho because of consular advice.

You might be interested to know what other missions are doing. Many have cabled their Boards for advice. Some missions have decided to send their people whose furlough are due next spring home at this time. One mission decided that those whose furloughs are due within two years should go home. Some missionaries have evacuated to Hongkong, others to Manila. However, many folks are beginning to feel that China is probably as safe as any place in the Far East. Many feel that if everyone were to go home now, it would be most difficult to open up work again in the future. Most of the men have returned to their fields in order to stay by their work.

Since the men will probably be very busy at their stations, we three women left on the mountain felt it wise to write you something about the present conditions. Since we receive no foreign mail, we are sending this by airmail. If you should write us, address us House 16 Kikungshan, because folks here get foreign mail. Ours all goes via Tientsin and for some unkonwn reason is held up there. We receive neither letters nor magazines.

Sincerely yours,

EXTRACT FROM REPORT OF JOHANN G. REMPEL, ROSTHERN, SASK.

Since the close of the Bible School in which I worked during the winter months, I was engaged in a twofold purpose: Supplying congregations or groups who are without a worker; and in itinerant work.

ZOAR CONGREGATION AT LANGHAM. — The congregation has about 140 members. I made 78 visits, gave catechetical instructions in which from 20-25 young people took part. 15 of these were baptized by Elder David Toews, 115 participated at the Communion Service.

In OSLER I remained one week working together with Brother Johann Janzen. This place has a number of young people who are developing an active efficiency in the work of the Sunday School and Young People's Society.

WESTERN SASKATCHEWAN.—Those who are in comfortable circumstances, are weak in their desire for fellowship; but where the situation is more oppressive, there is a seeking after God and fellowship with His people. In my trip through Alberta I met many who are seeking for new homes and better conditions. And the larger groups are giving them splendid help, which is greatly to their credit.

In ALBERTA.—Here I hit upon a place where the people lost their last year's crop by hail and this year it was burnt up. In 7 years they had no harvest, which has made them practically helpless. In East Coulee we gathered the Mennonite miners to a service. They are very grateful for a visit. Two young men and two young students of a Mennonite Bible School were preparing to open a Bible School for the children of the mine workers, as they had done the previous year. The parents are Hungarians and Galicians, and they have an interesting attitude toward this mission. They say: "We care not for religion, but you are welcome to our children." The Conference in Rosemary, Ala., left a very good impression on the people, as we heard after the Conference from many individuals.

In TOFIELD, I attended the church dedication. They have a beautiful and spacious church. It was said at the meeting that this was the sixtieth church that had been erected by the immigrants in Canada.

After a short visit in Irma I turned homeward. God bless our congregations, and give them comfort and strength in their struggle for earthly existence and for Heavenly possessions.

Brother F. F. Enns, has a large field and much work, and travels a great deal. His reports are interesting, but, like former reports, have much sameness about them. According to his report we learn that he covers his field regularly, and that he does systematic work, especially in personal work which is very effective.

A New Couple in Altoona Mission

It was reported last Fall that on account of ill health, Brother Glass was compelled to resign. He recommended that Grover Klink, member of the congregation, be appointed his assistant, which was acceptable to the Board. Mrs. Stiffler who had married Brother Glass vacated the home and Brother Klink took possession of it. This was granted with understanding that he would be married shortly. This, however, did not happen. During the winter there was a revival and he called for an Elder to baptize the converts. It was also decided that he should be ordained to the ministry. The brethren Amstutz and Neuenschwander, members of the Board, made a trip to Smith Corner to ordain as Elder Brother John S. Raugh who proved a competent and faithful worker, and also to baptize the converts at Altoona. Brother N. officiated at the baptismal services but, on account of some ruffles in the church, the ordination was postponed until a later period. Complications made it advisable to propose a change in workers, as Brother Klink's time expired with June.

George S. Stoneback, a member of Bethany church, Quakertown, Pa., had completed his course and was ordained to the Gospel ministry by Brother Neuenschwander, assisted by Brother Swartz and the secretary, and he and his wife had charge of the work at Altoona during July and August. During this time the Lord taught us that He provides workers, and not the Board alone. For everyone of the available men declined the call. We did what Christ said we should do: "pray the Lord of the Harvest for laborers." It was also possible that the candidates were not always praying: "Thy Will be Done." We were at our wits end with only three weeks until the field would be without a worker. We prayed more earnestly than ever, and unexpectedly one Sunday afternoon a young couple called for a visit at the home of the Secretary. The man was strange, but the woman was one of our Ohio girls, now married to Emerson Slotterback of Pennsylvania. They had both attended Moody Institute and were married last fall. He was supplying a small Presbyterian church in Kaleida, Ohio, but they were praying for a place to do full time work and devote all their time to the work of the Lord.

He was approached on the subject of taking over the work at Altoona. After praying about it a few weeks, they accepted the call. In the mean time he had united with the church in which his wife was a member, at Ebenezer, near Bluffton, Ohio. He was formerly a member of the Evangelical Asso. We had received very favorable recommendations from the pastor of Ebenezer church, Brother P. A. Kliewer, and the Superintendent of the S. S. in the Kaleida church. They took charge of the mission on Sept. 5, and he was ordained to the Gospel ministry by the Secretary of the Board on Sept. 12. The whole transaction was so clearly the leading of the Lord that it brought forth a volume of praise to the Lord of the Harvest for his strange and definite leading. The spirits in the Mission are not all under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, and we covet for them and the work the earnest and united prayers of the church.

W. S. Gottshall, Sec. of the Board.

PUBLICATION

We copy the following splendid little article from "The Grace Mennonite Church Messenger," Lansdale, Pa., Rev. Olin Krehbiel, Pastor:

"The Mennonite"

Are YOU receiving our General Conference Weekly Church Paper, "THE MENNONITE"? Reading The Mennonite is the best way of keeping informed about the various activities of our Conference. Each week you will also find in it articles that will inspire you to better Christian living and that will help you to serve your Lord and your Church more fully. The Pastor or any of the church officials will be glad to have your name entered as a subscriber if you will let them have the small sum of $1.00 to pay a year's subscription for new subscribers. The regular price is $1.50. Subscribe now!

By the way, perhaps some of the present subscribers have failed to pay up their subscription price for some time. The operating account of "The Mennonite" showed a deficit of $637.60 for the fiscal year ending July 1st. It also showed subscriptions in arrears amounting to about $1,232.75. If you happen to be in arrears, don't you feel like helping to wipe out the deficit? Would you want to run your own business at a loss?—Allen R. Fretz, President Church Council.

—PRAYER—True prayer is only another name for the love of God. Its excellence does not consist in the multitude of our words; for our Father knoweth what things we have need of before we ask Him. The true prayer is that of the heart, and the heart prays only for what it desires. To pray, then, is to desire—but to desire what God would have us desire.—Fenelon.

Schools and Education

LETTER FROM BOARD OF EDUCATION

The Board of Education of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America plans to hold its annual session during the last week in October, beginning with the twenty-sixth, at Freeman, South Dakota. The Board is conscious of the many great and serious problems that face our church in the area entrusted to its care, such as the Sunday School, young people's work, colleges, Christian literature, etc., and desires to have the work remembered in prayer by the members of our churches throughout our land, especially during that week. Suggestions for the Board's work are also welcome and should be sent to our secretary, President A. S. Rosenberger, Bluffton, Ohio.

We are very thankful for the cordial way in which the new Sunday School Quarterly has been received by individuals and congregations. The editorial staff has served very faithfully and produced a very high-grade quarterly.

Committing our work to the continued prayers and support of our churches, we beg to remain,

Respectfully yours, The Board of Education,

Are the Liberal Arts Colleges Dying

According to the Liberal Arts College Bulletin "many people have been led to believe that the liberal arts colleges are dead, dying, or ought to die. For generations, colleges have been subjected to this type of attack; they thrive on it.

"Some technical educationists predict that in the next ten years more than half of the liberal arts colleges in the country will go to the wall. They are careful, however, not to state which colleges will expire. Such a position is based on the assumption of the failure of the liberal arts colleges. That, however, is far from being a fact.

"More resources are invested in liberal arts colleges than at any time in the past. Whole college plants have been rebuilt in the last decade. A large amount of new construction is under way. Many adjustments to social conditions have been and are being made in various ways. Educational procedures are being revamped according to the needs of the times. While the most distinctive thing about a church-related college is its religion, there are many distinctive procedures that indicate a remarkable capacity for adjustment, for diversity of type, and an alertness to meet the needs of the hour.

"Colleges today are more alive to the problems which they face and better equipped to meet the demands made upon them than at any time in the last two hundred years."

CHRISTIAN RENEWAL

Titus 3:1-11

TOPIC: Renewed Life through Christ.

Introduction

Paul wrote his Epistle to Titus, the first bishop of the Churches in Crete, from Rome, after his release from his first imprisonment. The Cretans were a lawless people, very troublesome to the Roman rule and much given to sensual vices. Many troublesome Jews were living in the island and causing much dissension in the Church (ch. 1:10, 11, 14). The Christians here needed to be set right in some things.

The Christian in Civic and Social Life vs. 1-3.

Paul gives very practical directions. The Cretan Christians needed to know that they as Christian citizens, must obey the proper government authorities (v1), be ready for every good work. The Christian religion represents God's principles of law and order. Respect for law was greatly needed, even among the Christians of Crete. There could be no peace and safety without it. Our generation needs to learn respect for law.

It was equally necessary that they act as Christians in their social life with non-christian neighbors. They must restrain their hot tempers, be careful how they speak of others, act peaceably (2). Conversion to Christ had made a vast difference in their lives (v3) and to abuse others for their faults is quite unchristian. The injunction of v2 is greatly needed today.

Lives Changed, Renewed by the Spirit vs. 4-7

Paul uses four words to express God's attitude toward sinful man—kindness, love, mercy, grace (vs. 5, 7). Man's sin grieved God. He provided a way of redemption at infinite cost to Himself. Marvelous changes are produced by the power of God. Changes in the outer life indicate a new nature received by the washing of regeneration and renewal of the Holy Spirit (v5). Paul here indicates the special function of each Person in the Trinity, in our renewal. The Holy Spirit is God's agent, cleansing and renewing the heart of man by bringing in new spiritual life. This work He does through Christ our Savior (v. 6).

Our salvation is purely a work of God's grace (v. 7). There is nothing we can do of ourselves to justify us in His sight. Nothing in us merits our being made heirs of eternal life.

The Works of a Christian vs. 8-11

The Christian may fully believe in his salvation through God's mercy and he will bear witness to his faith by his works. Paul emphasizes (v8) that in the life of the believer, good works must follow. "By their fruits ye shall know them." People in general are but little impressed by the christianity of a person which does not show itself in daily living. The Christian has more worthy things to think about and do than idle speculations, controversies and quibbling over law and ritual. These are profitless and unpractical (v. 9). We can well take a valuable lesson for our day from this. The great saving truths of the Gospel—God's love, mercy, kindness, grace, renewed life in Christ—these can not be too often affirmed.

The heretic, who sets his judgment against the teachings of Christ, who threatens the very well-being of the Church, is to be reasoned with (v. 10). If he persists in his evil way the Christian can no longer fellowship with him. He condemns himself.

Gems of Truth

The best missionary work is done by a love-filled life.

Abundant life is God's gift to us through Christ.

Faith and good works will be found together in genuine Christians.

Sermon Sketch

Some Essentials to Christian Service

(Isa. 6:1-11)

Open your Bible at the book of Isaiah and read carefully the first eleven verses.

In these verses we have a revelation of God to Isaiah, and also a revelation of Isaiah to himself.

I. He had a vision of God.

Isaiah had a three-fold vision of God. (a) Power—God's Power—"I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne." We must see and know God as the one who has all power. He is the Almighty—all powerful. (b) Holiness—"And one cried Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts." It is our duty to be clean, if we bear the vessels of the Lord. (c) Glory—"The whole earth is full of his glory." We must know that our God will finally triumph over the powers of darkness.

II. He had a vision of self.

Before the vision the cry of Isaiah the prophet was, "Woe to you Israel." After he saw himself he cried, "Woe is me." God's holiness will reveal unto man his unholiness. "I have heard of thee by the heaving of the ear; but now mine eyes seeth thee.

"I abhor myself, and repent in sackcloth and ashes." (Job 42:5-6).

"I was left alone, and saw the great vision, and there remained no strength in me." (Dan. 10:8).

"Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord." (Luke 5:8).

He cried and said, "Lord what wilt thou have me to do?" (Acts 9:6).

"And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead." (Rev. 1:17).

III. Cleansing by God (v. 6-7)

Here was a clear message. "Thine iniquity is taken away and thy sin forgiven." This was a real work. "Taken away," not a process of being taken, but "is taken." Provision is made by the blood of Jesus Christ for the cleansing from all unrighteousness. "If we confess our SINS he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins; and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (I John 1:9).

IV. Waiting-Listening.

"I heard a voice." "Let him that heareth say come."

"They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength . . . then let them speak." (Isa. 40:31 and 41:1).

V. Willingness to Serve.

"Here am I," ready for any service, anywhere and under any condition—a life wholly dedicated to God and his service.

VI. Commissioned by right authority.

"Go and tell." Great power comes into a life from a sense of being divinely called or commissioned. In our day we are not only commissioned to go and tell but we have the promise of "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end."

VII. Knowledge (v. 11).

"How long." It is up to the servant of God to know the plan and purpose of God concerning the age, we must have his aim, if we wish to work with him hopefully, intelligently and successfully.—Gospel Banner.

Work To Win

Often the question arises in the minds of God's children, "How can I help carry on the forces that will mean the most for the good of our country and for the cause of Christ? How best can I help to weaken and defeat the forces that are trying to undermine and overthrow our religious and governmental institutions which were founded in the life blood of our forefathers?" Communism with its insidious propaganda is constantly at work in every section of our great country. God's people should awaken to a real understanding of our home situation. Through these many years THE NORTHERN BIBLE SOCIETY has been quietly and persistently at work distributing God's Word among the poor and religiously neglected, giving them the joy and hope that comes through the reading of the Holy Scriptures, comforting them at times when they are discouraged and in the proper frame of mind to give credence to the teachings of Communism. This work of Bible distribution which we are carrying on is accomplishing wonderful results: whole communities have been won from the Communists, revival has swept little out-of-the-way settlements and Sunday Schools have been started, all as the result of one Bible placed in a needy home by the Northern Bible Society.

Here are some of the hundreds of letters we get:

Dear Friend: I am an old lady and go from place to place among friends and relatives and not always near my church or where I can't get to church, and I am poor and would like to know if I by any chance could get a Bible. I make my home with my daughter, but they have not much either.

Yours truly, Mrs. Mary L. Kiske

Dear Sirs: I would like to get a free Bible. We have been married 22 years and never seemed able to buy a Bible. We have nine children. The baby is three years old. Neither of the parents are very strong and, besides, we live in a part of the country where we very seldom get a good grain crop.

Truly yours, Mrs. Theo Reindal

Dear Bible Society: I have wished for a Bible for many years and have never been able to get one. I have been married 32 years next June, have 10 children, five boys and five girls, and have been having a hard time of it. Was operated on last fall and had to go the second time.

* * *

Dear Sirs: I am an old man 78 years. I have no money and my old Bible is worn out. Will you please send me another one?

* * *

Dear Friends: We hear that the Bible Society is giving Bibles to needy families. There are 16 children in the family and I am very poor. We have heard about God by going to church. We would like to know more about God, but I can't raise enough money to buy a Bible. I would be very much obliged to you if you would send me one.

Yours truly, Rudolph Aldinger.

Dear Sirs: I would like to have a Bible sent me, as we have none in the home. There is only the three of us in the family, husband and I, and the baby 16 months old. I was trying to sell some salve and stuff, but the neighbors seem to go against me, so I cannot get a Bible that way. We don't have many services down here, only about one every two months. That way the church does not help us very much around here.

Northern Bible Society,

NOTE: What a worthwhile and effective way to help spread the saving gospel by investing a dollar or several dollars in supporting this Bible Society! Let's remember it, those of us whom God has again showered with His blessings.—Editor.

After A Completed Journey

A few weeks ago my trip through the United States ended, at least temporarily. However, I am able to continue the work for which I came to America, namely to become better acquainted with the history of the Mennonites in America, during my stay at Bethel College. I can do that while I am here, trying to be of service in teaching some German and making use of the opportunity to learn English.

I am prompted to write these lines by a feeling of gratitude for the friendly reception and splendid hospitality that I met everywhere on my trip through the different states, both in the churches of our Mennonite people and in their homes, whether it was by a mere grasp of the hand, at a meal in a hospitable home, or during a longer stay. Once more, in my imagination, I clasp your hands warmly and assure you that you have made my long and tiresome journey pleasant and comfortable. My heartfelt thanks to all of you, and may God bless you!

I owe an especial measure of gratitude to my study and traveling companion, Dr. Harold Bender, Goshen, Indiana. It was due to his efforts that my pass was issued quickly and without difficulty. No less are thanks due the President of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of N. A., Dr. P. R. Schroeder, who assisted and promoted my travels and my introduction to the different conference churches.

Far reaching assistance and friendly receptions were accorded me in the Mennonite colleges, Goshen, Bluffton, Bethel, and Tabor, which for the most part are in possession of good-sized collections on Mennonite history.—I also especially remember my visit to the mission stations in Oklahoma.

And how much warmth, understanding and readiness to help did I find among the ministers and church members! Never will I forget the hours, when the older ones of them related to me treasure after treasure out of their rich experience. My special greetings to these old friends!

I imagine that the readers of these lines will probably ask, what impressions I have received from the churches in America. This question I can touch upon only briefly here. The thing that strikes the European first and most, is the missionary spirit prevalent everywhere. It is so strongly present in all branches of the American Mennonite churches as nowhere in Europe, and probably in no other country. Next it is the large and regular attendance at Sunday school and at preaching services; so also the good knowledge of the Bible in Sunday school, that attracts one's attention. The sentiment against tobacco and alcohol is not as general among the brethren in Europe as it is here. I found much interest for our own Mennonite history, especially among the so-called Old Mennonites and the Hutterish brethren, whose forebears came from Switzerland. Least developed is the interest in our history among the Mennonites from Russia and Prussia. But there are good signs that it is growing.

Of course, these are not all the impressions that I received on my trip of over 10,000 miles. Perhaps more of this some other time. This much I feel I owe to my new American friends and acquaintances, as a greeting and an expression of heartfelt gratitude.

Cornelius Krahn.

Why He Did Not Kill His Man

Two college students sought a visitor who is noted for his success in dealing with young men, and told him of their attempts to help one of their classmates, and asked him if he could suggest anything.

"Bring him to me," the visitor said.

So, in a few minutes, three men entered the visitor's room. The two who had spoken to him before were bright and earnest looking, but the man who followed them entered with hanging head and shuffling step. In response to the visitor's greeting he raised his eyes just long enough to allow the keen judge of men to see the story of hatred written there.

"There's something on your mind," the visitor said, when the sullen man was seated near him. The words were spoken in a soft yet strong tone that was a factor in his successful approach to those with whom he worked. "Tell me about it."

"There's nothing on my mind," was the surly reply, "who told you there was?"

"No one told me. But I'd be glad to have you tell me all about it."

"There's nothing wrong with me. There's something wrong with the fellows that brought me here. Better talk to them."

"Yes, there is something wrong with you," came the firm, even compelling reply.

"How do you know?" The student looked up in surprise at the insistence of the stranger.

"Because your eyes tell me so."

"Maybe you will let me know what they tell you, seeing you know so much."

"Very well. They tell me plainly that you want to send some one straight to hell, and that you are ready to go there after him."

The change in the student was startling. He gripped the arms of his chair. He leaned forward in great excitement. "Some sneak has been telling you about me." He looked accusingly at the men who had brought him into the room.

"No one has told me but yourself. Don't you think you had better tell me all about it?"

There was a moment's hesitation, followed by a look of determination.

"Might as well," he said. Then, turning to his companions: "Fellows, you disappear."

When he was alone with the visiting friend of young men, he told his story. "I live in the mountains. A year ago I was stabbed near the heart by a man I thought my friend. They thought I couldn't live. I had two months of awful suffering before I began to get well. During those two months I forgot the pain while I thought of what I would do to the coward that put me on my back.

"When I got up I was weak. I knew I could not hope to kill him as I must do. It would have been easy to shoot him behind his back, but I wanted something better than that. He must taste the knife he made me taste. Only there won't be any failure when I put the knife in him. It will go in right to the hilt, and there won't be enough left of him to put to bed.

"But a fellow has to be strong to do a thing like that. I thought how I could get ready. The best chance seemed to come here. I haven't come to study—I'm here to get all I can from the gymnasium and the athletic team. In a few months I'm going back to the mountains. Then he can look out!"

As he finished, his eyes were glittering with hate.

The man to whom he told the story looked at him a moment without a word. Then he said: "So you are planning to send a man to hell. Well, all I have to say is that you must love him a lot."

"Love him? I hate him!"

"Then why do you plan to spend such a long time in his company?"

"What do you mean?"

"Well if you send him to hell, you will go there after him. And you'll stay there with him for a long eternity. Yes, you must love him a lot, or you would not be so eager to be with him."

"I hadn't thought of that!" the student said, in surprise.

"Well, I have this much to say," the man went on, "there is a far better way to get your man than you have outlined."

"What is it?"

The visitor took his Testament from his pocket, and turned to Matthew 5:43. Pointing to the place, he said:

"Read this."

Curious, the student looked and read: "Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, Love your enemies; bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you."

Amazed, the reader looked up. "That's no way for a man to do," he said with a sneer.

"Read on," the main said, his finger indicating verse 45.

Obediently the student read: "That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh the sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust."

At last the student showed interest. "What does that mean?" he asked, wonderingly.

"It means that God loves you who hate him just as much as he loves the president of this college. He wants to let his sun shine on you just as much as on the president, but you won't let him. You persist in staying down in your miserable, dark cellar, among the slimy creatures you choose for company, when you might come out into God's sunshine and be glad."

The student looked at him in wonder. "I never thought of it in that way," he said.

"Don't you think we'd better kneel here and ask God to show you how to get the better of your enemy in His way?"

All the fight had gone out of the student. He knelt at once with the man whose words he had resented only a few moments before.

The visitor pleaded for the opening of the student's eyes. He asked that God would teach him how to live in the sunlight, in company with the man he had sought to injure. He prayed for several minutes, and was about to ask the student if he would not pray, when there was an interruption.

"O Lord, I'll let him live!" were the unexpected words that closed the prayer.

As he spoke, the student rose to his feet. His companion rose with him. The student looked startled. There was a wondering look in his eyes.

"Something has happened!" he said.

"Of course it has. Tell me about it."

"For the first time I can't hate him. I find myself making excuses for him. He was drunk when he did it. I don't feel toward him as I did. What is the meaning of this?"

"It means that God has kept his promise, as he always does. He has taken away your stony heart and has given you a heart of flesh. The change was made when you said, 'I'll let him live.'"

"Then I'm a Christian?"

"Of course you are."

"What shall I do?"

"I'll leave the answer to that question to you."

The student's answer was plain before the day was done. He went among his companions and told them of the change in his life. He pleaded with others to come into God's sunshine. During the remainder of the stay in that college of the friend of young men whose searching words had been used to bring him to a true view of life, no one did as much as he to persuade his fellows to begin the Christian life or to go for conference to the room where he had seen his real self in the looking-glass of the Word and had gone out a transformed man.. —Sunday School Times.

The Bible, then, has a mission, grander than any mere creation of God; for in this volume are infinite wisdom, and infinite love. Between its covers are the mind and heart of God; and they are for man's good, for his salvation, guidance and spiritual nourishment.

A Teacher's Responsibility

Ella Wiebe, R. N.

I heard the statement made this summer by a college president that only five per cent of the college graduates justified the expense and effort made. The rest go back, benefitted, but to live lives not essentially different from those who have not been to college. The book Was College Worth While, published recently, listing the achievements of the Harvard class of 1911, twenty-five years after graduation, is a sad commentary upon education. In order to realize their individual aims, colleges must give opportunity for such experiences which help to build individuality. The building of the "self" is the genetic stage, preparatory to loyalty, respect and regard for others. The duty of our college faculties is to appreciate, understand, and to control experience and so to improve college life and learning.

Today one out of every twelve children in the large cities, by the law of averages, will be in an institution for the mentally ill, at some time of his life. We need to help our young people see through themselves, and see themselves through. One likes the little sayings, "Head, you may think, heart, you may feel; hands, you shall work today." To achieve a balanced life, we must have a balance in education. The most creative as well as the most healing principle of development is absorption in a task worthy of one's mettle. It tends towards integration and wholeness of the self. Only so are we able to develop powers and to awaken social interests. To become, as L. P. Jacks expresses it, "human beings who act faithfully as trustees to their fellows." Such people find life so satisfying that they are rarely ill. Students who have received such guidance from their professors will scarcely ask, "Was college worth while?"

One becomes mentally an individaul only as he has his own purpose and problem and does his own thinking (other than which there is no thinking done). Students need to be equipped with the ability to think, and they may share with us our thinking, but they must learn from teachers how to work, how to play, and how to live. It is not in intellectual areas where students fail, but in their social adjustments.

These aims, as well as our entire curriculum, are as the base of a many-sided pyramid, which fuses into one point at the center; that is, the development of human personality to the extent of the individual's capacity. Teachers are kept so busy at the base of this pyramid, that it is well to have a time of quiet meditation in which they may remind themselves of the need that they too must scale the heights of living if they would direct the lives of their students. All teaching is a means toward this end. Personality development is not taught from books, but is learned from life in contact with such masterpieces of human personalities which tend, by their impetus toward high living, to kindle the fire in another life which never dies down.

As I look back, the power which tempted me to become a Christian was not catechism, Bible study, Sunday School and church services, although these all surely have contributed their share. What they did above all, however, was to bring me in contact with two individuals, primarily, who had the power to live life fearlessly, carrying heavy burdens with patience, cheerfulness, and serenity. The impetus which we give to students will not be the skill we possess in our specialized field of teaching, absolute prerequisite of leadership that it is; but we will develop these individual aims in our students in so far as they have been perfected in our own lives.

There are two kinds of literacy: those who CAN read and those who DO read. So, too, there are two kinds of people: those who were born and have not yet died, and those who have the courage to live fearlessly, who are as a finely strung harp, willing to be hung out in God's wind, that Life may play through it its cosmic melodies. Who are so consecrated to God that they dare to think alone, to go out, as did Abraham into a land which he knew not, going out in great ships upon the high seas of life, weathering the storms, facing the great calm with only heaven above, and our own great humanity beneath, returning home to view with some pity, though with understanding, those weaker spirits who have held to the shore line, sailing their boats in shallow waters.

The challenge which comes to us today is that we ourselves may be individuals who are worthy to serve as guides to youth, because we have tested life and found it worth its cost; we have met its threats and dangers, have explored its secrets, and have appropriated its strength. This, as much as scholastic standing, is a prerequisite for leadership. Students are critical. They evaluate us unceasingly, and sometimes make quick, harsh judgments. They may feel that we have compromised, that we have accepted second-bests. They may not realize that that was the only course open to us; they have not yet acquired this understanding of life, to know how great an art fine living is; how easy it is to sin, how difficult to live nobly. Yet this critical faculty of youth is the hope of the world, and it is the duty of teachers so to fire their imagination that it may survive the first three decades of their lives; that they may continue to work to improve the church, the home, and the social order. If each student can find among his teachers one such incarnation of what he thinks life can and should be, teachers will have gone a long way toward fulfilling their tasks.

Suggested Hymns

"Let the Lower Lights be Burning"
"Only Trust Him."

Problems:

1. "The crusade against drink is not the novel thing that many imagine among ourselves. In ancient times there was scarcely a state in which prohibitive legislation of the most stringent kind was not attempted, and generally carried out with a thoroughness more possible under despots than where, as with us, the slow consent of the public opinion is necessary. A horror of strong drink has in every age possessed those who, from their position as magistrates or prophets, have been able to follow for any distance the drift of social life. Isaiah exposes as powerfully as any of them did in what the peculiar fatality of drinking lies." Early rising for the purpose of carrying on the work of the day is commended in the Bible, but the Hebrews and also Romans condemned drinking in the morning. Why was drinking in the morning especially condemned? Does drinking at any time interfere with his work?

2. Illusion of drink: "As opium is to the Chinese, so is alcohol a source of many popular delusions among the western nations, impression inherited from the unthinking past, and unquestioningly accepted today by many who have grown up under their social influence. Many of these impressions are most deceptive; alcohol promises rest and actually makes the body less fit for exertion; it promises comfort, and then increases to total misery, sickness and poverty; it promises warmth and makes man freeze more quickly; it gives monentary relief from care and the next day after the night before brings a crushing burden, mental, emotional, physical, and social, earlier fatigue, susceptiblity to accident and disease, and greater mental depression. Its predominating quality is its capacity to create delusions." Is this merely prohibitionists' talk or do we have sufficient evidence that these are the effects? If the effects of the use of alchoholic drinks are evident, why do so many continue to indulge in its usage?

3. If a deed which hinders a person in doing his best is sin, is drinking wrong? Can an individual be a moderate drinker and still put forth his best? Is it the drinking or what follows and goes with it that is wrong?

4. Americans are liberty loving people. What is meant by liberty? Does doing away with prohibition give the desired liberty? "The Jews did not cultivate trees for shade or beauty, but only for their fruit. Cut down the evil tree of the drink traffic! Through all the ages it has cumbered the soul, doing not good but only deadly harm. Our nation has tried every method with it,—local option, county option, high license, low license regulation, moral suasion, State prohibition, and every method has failed. The saloon men have persistently defied all laws. Only one method remained, that of national prohibition; and at its worst, in the face of the most violent and determined efforts to overthrow it, it has worked far better than any other plan ever tried." In your estimation, was national prohibition a failure? Should another prohibition amendment be added to the constitution?

5. Does the Christian have a responsibility to his neighbor? Should a Christian be careful not to be a stumbling block? "Christians would prefer that Christianity should not be judged by their conduct. But there is no escape. The Christian must be better than other men. If he is not better, Christianity breaks down." S. D. McConnell.

Your Worship Service

Use the worship service suggested for the young people's society on the same topic in the C. E. World. Or plan your own, using suitable hymns, scripture and prayer.

Suggested Thoughts for the Leader

An enemy is defined as one who seeks our overthrow or failure. There are those who do not regard liquor as an enemy. Its sale may bring them prosperity or its use temporary physical pleasure. Yet there is hardly a person who can escape its harmful effects. If we do not have anyone in our immediate family who is suffering destructive effects, there is a friend or neighbor who is. On the highways none of us are safe from its menace.

When its benefits are set over against its harmful effects, it must be classed as our common enemy. It makes attacks upon every phase of life: physical, social, economic and spiritual.

Presenting the Topic (Ask each one to add his own observations)

1. Liquor Attacks Our Physical Life.

It affects our nervous system. Careful experiments show that even a small amount of alcohol slows up our reaction time. A person who has had a highball would perhaps be slowed up a half of a second. That is not very important in answering a telephone call but in driving a car at thirty miles an hour it will move twenty-two feet in that time. Many accidents are avoided on a smaller margin than that. The efficiency is impaired in every activity in a similar way.

Life insurance companies reject applicants who use alcohol in any quantity, because they are distinctly shorter lived. Total abstainers who have always been so are, on the whole, longer livers than non-abstainers. Liquor shortens life.

Dr. Howard Kelly of John Hopkins University says, "There is no disease for which alcohol is a cure . . . It does undeniably cause thousands of cases of disease."

Liquor fastens itself on the human system because it is habit forming. The difficulty with this type of habit is that it is formed without the knowledge of the victim, and requires an ever increasing amount for its satisfaction.

2. Liquor Attacks Our Social Life

It makes fools of people. A man who had felt he was very brilliant and witty at a dinner after taking a drink, was given a copy of the things he had said. They had been taken down by a friend at the dinner. He was shocked at their stupidity. Liquor deceives people.

Every community has record of numberless cases of accidents due to drunken driving. People are killed or what may be worse, maimed for life.

Social workers say that there are more broken homes as a result of liquor than any other cause. It means cruelty, if not crime, poverty and desertion.

3. Liquor Attacks Our Economic Life.

In 1915 forty-nine American railroads and manufacturing firms had passed rules forbidding their employees to drink while on duty. It often means the loss of a job or impaired industrial service.

It is estimated that billions of dollars have been diverted from the purchase of the necessities of life to liquor. This in a time of economic depression when twenty million people are on relief. It robs homes of the things needed most.

4. Liquor Attacks Our Spiritual Life.

A man who had shot his wife and attempted to take his own life under the influence of liquor, said, "If I had only kept on going to church this never would have happened." God's spirit cannot dwell in a body defiled by liquor. Gal. 5:16-23.

How Defeat the Enemy

1. By abstaining. Why do people abstain from the use of liquor? Give as many reasons as you can. Is there one that does not apply to all of us?

2. By controlling liquor. How would taking the profit out of liquor effect its consumption? Its advertising? Suggest other ways of controlling it.

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

Program Suggestions for October 31, 1937

"Sing them over again to me, Wonderful words of Life."

Review Sunday

This review program is based on the series of books studied in October's program suggestions.

Opening service

1. Song service using the songs memorized this year. When these songs have been sung, give opportunity for points.. (See former suggestions of Point System for memory work done and Bible reading. Also for presence, on time, new members brought, offering). If you have not as yet begun a point sytem, this would be a splendid time to do so. The contest continues until the close of the spring term. At that time small rewards are given to the three highest scorers.
2. Scripture: Quote verses learned during the year. Repeat several times having the scripture reference on the board. Check for points.
3. Prayer by leader. A prayer of Thanksgiving for the opportunity we have of storing treasures in our hearts and a prayer that the treasures stored may bring much blessing to those who made them their own.

Mission Minutes: Gleanings from Mission News and Notes and Mennonite

Announcements

Review period on books studied

1. Sing in unison: "One Day", Verses 1, 2, 5
2. Questions and answers. Divide your group making two equal sides. This can be done before the meeting by using two different colors in the "Pin-ons." These Pin-ons could be in the form of an open Bible with the verse "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth." Ecc. 12:1. Make out a list of questions covering the four books studied. It is better to have a shorter list of questions embodying the facts and truths which the Junior should remember out of each book than to have a long list which cannot be thoroughly drilled in this short period. A list of twenty questions could be repeated three times. Tell the groups this before the contest begins. This will assure a learning process on the part of each one, lest they miss the correct answer to any question when the questions are repeated. The side that wins twice is, of course, the winner.

Quiet moment

Assemble in seats. Let the piano play: Nearer Still Nearer through once after which let the group sing the first verse. Close with prayer by group using Ps. 19:14 and prayer by leader.

TO THE JUNIOR

Osaki Meesima lived in the quaint lovely land, Japan, where the little thatched-roofed houses are surrounded by lovely gardens, tiny lakes, cherry trees that grow old and gnarled and lean over far across the water edge. Osaki Neesima lived in a little home like this. It was all so beautiful except one corner in the inside of his home where, on a shelf, stood a row of hideous idols. This shelf and these idols were in every Japanese home. They troubled Neesima. They had troubled him for some time. He had seen one or the other tumble down now and then because of some accidental knock they received. Always when they tumbled they remained there until the maid-servant in a blue kimona would pick it up and put it back, It troubled Meesima. Why couldn't they pick themselves up? He had been taught that they must be worshipped and feared, that they were the great Gods. Their names were so wonderful! There was the God of Long Life, the God of Wealth, the Goddess of Mercy who had a thousand hands. Then there were many other idols whom you gave a little bowl of rice each morning so that they would protect you from all harm. But sometimes terrible things happened anyway and they didn't come to protect. It troubled Meesima. He decided to do something and yet be pushed it off for down in his heart he was afraid. But one day Neesima really did it. He tiptoed to the shelf where the hideous idols stood, snatched one of them, ran out into a hidden spot of the garden and buried the little brass idol deep down in the earth. "Now," he said to the idol, "if you can come out by yourself then I will serve you, but if you cannot help yourself, then how can you help me?"

Next week we shall see what happened.

(Retold from "Lamp-Lighters Across the Sea" by Margaret L. Applegarth)

Faithful Unto Death

A gentleman, seeking for objects of charity, got into a tenement house. It was vacant. He saw a ladder pushed through the ceiling. Thinking that perhaps some creature had crept up there, he climbed the ladder, drew himself through the hole, and found himself under the rafters. There was no light but that which was coming through a bull's eye in the place of a tile. Soon he saw heaps of chips and shavings, and on them a boy about ten years old.

"Boy, what are you doing here?"

"Hush! Don't tell anyone. Please, sir, I'm hiding."

"What are you hiding from?"

"Don't tell anybody, if you please, sir."

"Where is your mother?"

"Mother is dead."

"Where is your father?"

"Hush! don't tell him, but look here!" He turned himself on his face, and through the rags of his jacket and shirt, the man saw the boy's flesh was bruised and the skin broken.

"Why, my boy, who beat you like that?"

"Father did, sir!"

"What did your father beat you like that for?"

"Father got drunk, sir, and beat me 'cos I wouldn't steal."

"Did you ever steal?"

"Yes, sir, I was a thief once."

"And why don't you steal any more?"

"Please, sir, I went to the mission school, and they told me there of God, and of Heaven, and of Jesus, and they taught me, 'Thou shalt not steal,' and I'll never steal again if father kills me for it! But please, sir, do not tell him."

"My boy, you must not stay here; you will die. Now you wait here patiently a little time. I am going away to see a lady, and will get a better place for you than this."

"Thank you, sir. But please, would like to hear me sing a little hymn?"

"Yes, I will hear you sing your little hymn."

He raised himself upon his elbow then sang:

"Gentle Jesus, meek and mild,
Look upon a little child.

Pity my simplicity,
Fain would I to Thee be brought,
Gracious Lord, forbid it not.
In the kingdom of Thy grace
Give a little child a place."

"That's the little hymn, sir. Good-bye."

The gentleman went, and came back in less than two hours, and climbed the ladder. There were the chips and there was the little boy, with one hand by his side, and the other tucked in his bosom underneath the ragged little shirt—dead. He had found his place "In the kingdom of His grace."—Selected.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENN. CHURCH, GEARY, OKLA., 10-1-37

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:

Church work under the leadership of Rev. Frantz and wife has been progressing very encouragingly and great interest is again felt in all branches of work, which had noticably lagged during the time we were compelled to do without a shepherd. But again members are taking a revived interest. This past year has wrought many changes. Our new church, for which we had worked so hard, has been fully paid for, for quite some time. It had taken much hard work and real sacrifice to accomplish. Now, through the Ladies' Aid and different other wide awake classes in the Sunday School, we are beautifying it still more. Painting jobs have been the order of the day. On Old Settler's Reunion the Booster Class opened up a stand and realized the money for varnish and paint for the walls. The class with the help of a few others rubbed benches of evenings and varnished them. Now they stand in resplendent beauty, a tribute to hard and persistent labor by the class, in trying to do their share. And, through the untiring efforts of Rev. Frantz, the walls received their new coats of paint. Our church kitchen, also through his ceaseless efforts, proudly boasts of the large and beautiful cabinet extending all along one wall for our stack of dishes. Besides, a number of large and useful work tables, too, have been added and so the good work goes on. Each Sunday morning we have regular church services, with a general good Sunday School attendance before services. Many new faces have come into our Sunday School and church services to worship with us. Once a month we have evening services and once a month a general program for all, put on by the young folks. Class parties have become a regular feature and much interest seems to be aroused in this manner. Our Ladies' Aid meets every other Thursday, all day, to quilt for other people. These meetings are held in our spacious church basement. During July and August we took part in union open air services for Sunday evenings, conducted by four different churches, each church in turn taking full charge of their evening for services. These open air services seemed to arouse much interest amongst the non-church-going people. We hope much good has been accomplished in this way. At present we have a well organized church choir of some fifteen or more voices. Oklahoma has at last been blessed with a good deal of moisture, and farmers are again busy getting their land in readiness for next year's crop. Also the weather has turned cool and pleasant since then, and we are enjoying it very much, to think that the heat is really over.—E. Ringelman, Asst. Corr.

LORRAINE AVE. MENN. CHURCH
WICHITA, KANSAS

"For this God is our God for ever and ever: He shall be our guide."

Since Rev. S. M. Musselman accepted the call to the Johannestal Mennonite Church near Hillsboro, Kansas, Willard Claassen, Newton, Kansas served us during the month of August and the first Sunday in September. Rev. D. C. Ewert, Inman, Kansas on September 12. Mr. Harold Ratzlaff, Bethel College on September 19. Rev. Ed. D. Schmidt, Geneva, Ill. served September 26 both morning and evening.

On August 26 the S. S. had a social on the church lawn at which time we also had a very interesting talk by Mr. Carl J. Tanis who spent 8 years among the cannibals and head-hunters in Africa.

September 9, the Ladies Friendship Circle had their first fall meeting in the afternoon. At this time we were privileged to hear Mrs. Carl J. Tanis of the Sudan Interior Mission of Africa. Twenty-two ladies were present.

A Junior choir has been organized by Mrs. W. H. Mierau. They meet in the church basement on Thursday evening. The same evening the Senior Choir meets in the church under the direction of Miss Esther Hiebert.

We wish the readers of this paper would send the names of the families that move to Wichita to Mr. Curt D. Boese, 217 Laura Ave., Wichita, Kansas, because so very often, when we meet new families, they say something like this, "We thought we were the only Mennonites in Wichita" or "We did not know there was a Mennonite church in Wichita." And before we know of these people they attend some other church. And again others say, "We can not find the church." The Lorraine Ave. Mennonite Church is located on the corner of Gilbert and Lorraine Ave. or a better way to find it is 655 South Lorraine Ave. It is a buff brick building, facing the south.

We are slowly growing and trusting in the Lord that we soon will have a permanent minister. The attendance for S. S. last Sunday was 74.

Mrs. R. G. Warkentin, Corr.

Note:—In last week's Mennonite we reported authoritively that Rev. Ed. D. Schmidt of Geneva, Ill. had accepted a call as pastor of this church.—Ed.

FAMILY CHRONICLE

DEATHS

MRS. PETER J. FRIESEN, our mother, was born on May 15, 1857, in the village of Landskrohn, South Russia. In 1874 she came to America, with her mother, and settled in the vicinity of Henderson, Nebraska. On May 16, 1875, she was baptized upon confession of her faith, by Elder Isaac Peters, and accepted into the Bethesda Church. On March 4, 1877, she was united in marriage with our father, Peter J. Friesen, who preceded her in death 28 years ago. This union was blessed with 13 children, two of whom preceded them in death.

In 1920 mother moved to Henderson, where she has made her home up to the end of her earthly life. Physically she was always able to do her part in the family, except twice, when she was sick with rheumatism. As the helpmate of a minister, she had many experiences not known to an ordinary person. She was a great lover of reading. She knew very many of the ministers and other influential people of the General Conference, numbers of them personally and others through reading the church papers.

The last two years it was noticeable that her health was failing. Since last April, when she had a light stroke, her health was impaired. The last few weeks dropsy set in. She bore her sickness as a true Christian would, committing all her cares to Him who understands and cares for His own.

Many times she was worried that she caused us so much trouble. Her wish had always been that she might not be a burden to any one and, to this end, she prayed God to take her home. She repeated many scripture and song verses which gave her strength and comfort in the hours of trial. She was very thankful, whenever someone visited her, and the letters from friends far and near were a great help to her. Our oldest sister Tena, who is deaf and dumb, did her part in ministering to mother besides taking care of the household. William, the youngest brother, about whom father was much concerned before he died, because he was then only five years old, has been loyal to mother for the last number of years, in looking after her affairs. She was glad to pass from this life, to be with her Savior. She breathed her last on September 27, at 9:30 p.m. It hardly seemed like death, it was as falling asleep.

She leaves to mourn her departure: Katharine, John D., Peter D., Henry P., Mrs. G. K. Friesen, Mrs. G. J. Kroeker, Rev. Abraham W., Jacob H., Mrs. P. J. Ratzlaff, David P., and William P., also seven daughters-in-law, three sons-in-law, two brothers, two sisters, forty-nine grandchildren and nineteen great-grandchildren. She attained the age of 80 years, 4 months and 12 days.—The Family.

WILLIAM RAYMOND NICKEL was born April 15, 1933. He was good natured and brought much happiness into our home. During his short life he has filled a place for a divine purpose. When he was about two years old, he looked cross-eyed on his left eye. The doctor whom we consulted told us not to worry. A year later we noticed a white spot in the eye. We then consulted a specialist in Wichita. He said it was a cataract and did all he could to save the eye. But in spite of all his care, the eye turned blind and had to be removed. The doctor then pronounced it a case of glucona, a kind of cancer, hence the child was not out of danger. After about seven months the disease made its appearance again, this time in the right temple. It made a rapid growth until his right eye was closed and he could not see. Then he began to suffer, longed to be in a dark room, and spent the last few weeks in bed, but did not complain. He died August 17, at the age of 4 years, 4 months and 2 days. He leaves to mourn his early and pathetic death, his parents, one brother, four sisters, a grandmother, and many relatives and friends.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Nickel

—Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa.,—The Junior and Senior C. E. societies had a joint rally, at which time the new officers of each society were installed. Twenty-one juniors and twenty-nine seniors were present and enjoyed a story and song of India Mission work by Miss Nickel. Sunday night was India Mission night in church. Miss Helen Nickel spoke on "Why I want to return to India," and Miss Eva Pauls on "Why I want to go to India." Their messages were very interesting.—The Correspondent.

—Helene Wiens, Mennonite Bible Mission, Chicago, Ill., is the name and place of work of the young sister who wrote that splendid first article, "Going—But Where?" in our YOUTH SECTION, in the Oct. 5 issue of THE MENNONITE. We hope to hear from her again.

—Pres. A. S. Rosenberger, Bluffton College.—A total registration of 203 students has so far been recorded for the 1937-38 school year at Bluffton College. Of these 187 are full college students. The registration figures thus are slightly higher than last year. An interesting feature of the enrollment is the fact that there is a definite increase in the number of out of town students. Accommodations at Ropp Hall, the girls' dormitory, are insufficient, and six girls are rooming in a nearby home. Lincoln Hall is almost filled."

Notice

To the Wives of Ministers of the Western District

The minister's wives are planning to have a meeting on the day of the Minister's Conference, Oct. 19, at Hillsboro, Kansas. The meeting will probably be held during the noon hour. It is hoped that many of the sisters will be there for this meeting.

— Mennonite Poets.—On the first page of this paper we quote two poems written by young Mennonites. They are: Miss Monica Horsh, daughter of Rev. M. Horsh, of Upland, Calif., who unfortunately is a shut-in. But the readers will notice how beautifully she views life and her part in it. We thank you heartily, Monica, for this beautiful little sermon!—The other poem is by Edwin C. Graber of Freeman, S. D., taken from a collection of splendid verse by Brother Graber, entitled "Harvest of Youth." This collection is so good that many, especially South Dakotans, would want to procure a copy if they could scan the contents. Order, with 25 cents per copy enclosed, should be addressed directly to the author.

— The Pacific Conference seems to be developing into the "liveliest" district in the General Conference At Shafter, California, the congregation is building a splendid, up-to-date church building.—At Deer Park, Washington, the church has been newly organized and has been welcomed into the fellowship of the Pacific District.—At the Portland, Ore., Mission, a new shepherd and his young wife, Rev. and Mrs. Edmund Miller, have been installed for service. Brother Miller found his helpmate in the former Christine Oaks of North Chili, N. — RELIGIOUS EMPHASIS WEEK at Bethel College.—Last week, Oct. 4 to 8, Dr. W. A. Elliot, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Ottawa, Kansas, and also the college pastor there, conducted what may be called evangelistic services at Bethel, the purpose of which was, to deepen and enrich the Christian life of students and faculty. In announcing these services THE COLLEGIAN, student paper, said in part, "Vast reservoirs of power remain undiscovered and unutilized by most of us. We are inclined to loiter in the shallows rather than launch into the deep. This coming week the campus will 'take time out,' to get a fresh vision of life at its best—life as it is found in Christ. Jesus said, 'I am come that ye may have life and that ye may have it more abundantly.' " Services were held in the forenoon and evening, with a forum on vital heartquestions as part of the latter, and private interviews with the speaker during the day. We are prone to confess that the service which this man of God rendered the school, is about the best of its kind that we have observed. How this man enters into the very heart of Christian life and experience, and how attractive, meaningful, and compelling he pictures it all! The services were not open to the public at large, in order that the students may be freer with their questions and in their contact with the speaker. The attendance was large and the interest most gratifying. God be praised for men like Dr. Elliott!

SUMMER TIME—CANNING TIME—And this not only for our good women, but also for Christian workers. In summer we gather things in the field and the garden and "preserve" much of it, for the time when nature stops producing in this section of our land. For these summer months the saying is true:

"Get all you can; and Can all you get."

except what is immediately needed.

This is also true intellectually and spiritually. Many teachers and others are free to attend summer schools and institutes, to "can" for the busy fall, winter and spring, getting their notebooks replenished, their minds and hearts re-filled with new material, spiced with new enthusiasm; for from now on, when one duty crowds another, there is often little opportunity for preparing; and the instructor, or preacher, is supposed to be prepared at all times to give his best.

Sometimes we are surprised at our good housewife, how quickly she prepares a fine meal, when unexpected company arrives. She quickly opens a few cans of the food which she cooked and prepared during the summer, quickly heats it on the ever-ready oil or gas stove; and in a remarkably short time she is ready to serve a good meal.

Daniel Webster once was asked, how it was possible for him to prepare such a marvelous speech as he delivered one morning in Congress, upon an issue which had come up only on the day before. He answered: "I have been preparing my material for the last 40 years."

And what an opportunity for Christian workers to "can" during the summer: Conventions, Bible Conferences, Summer Bible Courses, Retreats, etc. everywhere along the highways, within reach with the car. And what about the leisure time at home—alone with God and His Book!—rather than reading many books, at the expense of neglecting "The Living Word." How much new material, fresh from the "Tree of Life", did we find during the by-gone summer "canning" days? Or how much are we finding right along, in the early "morning watches", or in "the cool of the evening", when God walks through the garden, to bless His children with His personal presence! How many ready-made sermons, at least in outline, have we found in The Book, and have "preserved" them for future use?

And now, when called upon, during these busier months, are we ready to give our best, on short notice? Can we now quickly prepare for service?—with prayer for guidance of the Holy Spirit, and for a re-filling with the Spirit?

If so, then we can do our best at all times. We believe in "preparedness". J. B. Epp

OUR WONDROUS BIBLE.—The Bible, meaning THE BOOK, is indeed the Book of Books. If the gist of all good books in the world could be assembled in one volume, this book would not even begin to compare with the Bible in the multitude, variety, and value of its contents. No matter what our situation or condition in life may be, the Bible has something exactly in tune with it, be it sorrow or joy, distress or happiness, poverty or riches, failures or success, defeat or victory, tears or smiles, the Bible contains something that is in harmony with it. Its truths are as deep as the ocean, as exalted as the stars, as far-reaching as eternity. Its springs of wisdom are inexhaustible; they transcend all man-spun philosophy. It has comfort and cheer to soothe all cares and dry all tears. In its recesses it holds cures for all human ills and diseases. On its pages are revealed the heart-throbs of God that teem with love and sympathy, sufficient to make the world of men eternally happy. In the matter of clearness it has no equal, for it explains itself, is its own interpretor. In its multiplicity of pictures and illustrations it has no peer in literature. Thus, this WORD OF GOD, which is another name for it, is the good seed, it is "God" himself speaking to us; it is the truth, the way of life; it is our conciliation, the promise of things to come; it is our power against the enemy; it is our life, the sword of the Spirit, a lamp unto our feet and a light unto our path; it is sharper than a two-edged sword, sweeter than honey; it is a hammer that can crush rocks; it is everlasting; it is food for the soul; it contains the only sure plan of salvation from sin and condemnation. "You need a book which contains not man's thoughts, but God's—not a book that may amuse you—not even a book that can instruct you, but a book on which you can venture an eternity—not only a book which can give relief to your spirit, but redemption to your soul—a book which contains salvation, and conveys it to you, one which shall at once be the Savior's book and the sinner's.—Jon Selden.

CHRISTIAN HEROISM

Christian heroism is one of the requisites of a successful worker. The words that were given to Joshua, "Only be thou strong and very courageous" are real words of encouragement for us all. The finest heorism on earth is revealed in him who steadily works unpraised and unnoticed, doing faithfully that which is entrusted to him by the Master. This requires a courage not often seen, and far nobler than that exhibited on the battlefield. Christian courage is sustained only by the sense of God's presence. No one ever carried Christ's cross without coming nearer to Christ himself, and where Christ is, the light is sure to break. To that end may the Lord bless you all.—Rev. Phil. A. Wedel in "The Worker's Exchange."

THE LORD REIGNETH

"The Lord reigneth; let the earth rejoice" (Psalm 97:1).

People the world over have something in common today, and that is a perilous surrounding. On earth's great stage the scenes shift rapidly, yet each as it passes adds its grim bit to make the setting of universal distress and perplexity more realistic. A tenseness grips the spectator—who is himself on the stage, and although the atmospphere of fear and disillusionment becomes more and more intensified, the average onlooker does not grasp the full meaning of it all. He cannot see in perspective, for he is too closely bound up in the affairs that take place on the stage. Hence he is frantic and fearful "for looking after those things which are coming on the earth."

But the Christian is to look in perspective—with the eye of faith. He sees more than stern dictators and iron rulers and universal catastrophe. He knows that the Lord still reigns and that he will reign long after all other kingdoms have fallen. Then why not rejoice? Let us not lose sight of this vein of joy that is the Christian secret of happiness in these troublous times.—Edna R. Brown, Spokane, Wash.

— PREACHING — To know whether a minister, young or still in flower, is in safe or dangerous paths, there are two psychometers, as infallible a return as the dry and wet bulks of the ingenious "Hygrodeik." The first is the black broad cloth forming the knees of his pantaloons; the second the patch of carpet before his mirror. If the first is unworn and the second is frayed and threadbare, pray for him; if the first keeps its pattern and texture, get him to pray for you.—O. W. Holmes.

After Thirty-five Years, Two Months and Four Days

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:

That's a long time to wait. But everything comes to those that wait. No one can, with any amount of reason, accuse me of impatience, at least not in regard to this matter. What matter? Listen!

After a wait of thirty-five years, two months and four days, we had the joy and the privilege to consecrate three leper women and one leper girl; mind you, lepers, to active service as nurses. They received their training in a neighboring Leper Home, and are now serving the seriously sick women in our B. L. Home. Who are these four leper nurses? Really one ought to ask who WERE they? They were dirty, ignorant, homeless, friendless lepers, whom no one wanted and for whom no one cared. Love, kindness, medicine, good food and pleasant surroundings, and, above all, the gospel that brings hope and cheer to a leper wrought wonders. Changed bodies, lives and ambitions were the result of the spirit of the Leper Home. One of these four, the girl, studied and passed the fourth class in the school for leper girls.

The day of their ordination, August 17, was pleasant. Sometimes August brings much rain. Previous announcement of this service brought into the Leper Home church all lepers that were not confined to their beds and also a goodly number of healthy folks, so that the church was well filled. In the forepart of the church, the hospital medical staff and the Leper Home medical staff were seated, facing the audience. All of the Champa missionaries were present, as also Rev. Charles Ellis, Secretary, Mission to Lepers for Ireland. The four nurses in their special garb were seated in front of the pulpit, on a matting. After Dr. Bauman had given an appropriate address, Mrs. Penner handed to the leper nurses their diplomas. The ceremony closed with a few remarks by Mr. Ellis.

Now, perhaps some of my readers will say, that Penner knows how to make an elephant out of a fly. What does the ordination of four nurses amount to anyhow, that's an every day occurence! Why go to all this trouble to write up a ceremony of this sort? Why waste time, ink and postage? Why not simply report: "Ordained four leper nurses in the B. L. Home, Champa, on August 17, 1937. Yours sincerely?" Well, for a number of reasons: 1. What seems insignificant at home may be significant here. 2. How often have you read in the papers about the ordination of leper nurses? 3. Imagine yourself to be a leper. (The very thought is horrible). Imagine yourself to be a leper partially dressed in not altogether too clean clothing, lying on a bed that frequently has livestock in its cracks and joints, in a room occupied by three or four other healthy chattering leper women (or men), in which the air at meal time is thick with smoke, coming from three or four fireplaces. Imagine your hands and feet covered with festering wounds that need frequent redressing. Imagine that these dressers are ignorant, dirty women (or men) who know nothing about cleanliness, except what the doctor has been able to get into their heads about sanitation and cleanliness, imagine all this and much more and you will no longer wonder that we are not merely making a short announcement of a simple service. You will rejoice with us that better care will be given to all of our patients. And what is more, our nurses will not have to dress the patients in small "smoke conditioned" rooms, but in a fine hospital ward, as good as any Leper Home in the C. P. Do you wonder that we spread this out a bit? Yes, we know that these nurses are not what they ought to be and not nearly what the nurses in our home hospitals are, but we have gone a big step forward in this line of work. 4. These four leper nurses again demonstrate the fact that out of rough material God can make "vessels meet for the Master's use."

The Lord willing, we will send forth other people for training. If we had a full time doctor and a nurse, we would train our own workers here. I do hope that it will not take another thirty-five years, two months and four days until this will be a reality.

Sept. 9, 1937 P. A. Penner, Champa, C. P., India.

HOME MISSIONS

THANKSOFFERING

The Mennonite Congregation at Swift Current would herewith extend to the churches of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America its sincerest thanks that our brethren in the United States have made it possible to purchase a house of worship for our use.

For a number of years Mennonites in and around Swift Current had to move from one place to another for their gatherings. It was stated that they had had their meetings in about nine different localities during the last ten or twelve years, private buildings, school houses, lodge halls had to be used. Each time when a minister came around a different locality had to be found. We trust that this house will be a place where our people will gather for their spiritual needs, and where young and old will find the green pastures conducive to their spiritual growth.

The dimensions of the church building are 56 ft. x 30 ft. with full basement, the cost amounting to something like $2000.00. On the day of the dedication there were some 400 people present. Again thanking all those who have helped us in acquiring this building, we are, W. W. Rempel, Church leader

Schools and Education

D. H. Richert

Do the churches of America appreciate the privilege they have in setting up their own system of education as carried on by the church-related colleges? If we who live in a country known as a democracy would examine the system of education that prevails in certain other countries, the writer believes that we would appreciate more fully what we possess in these colleges.

The Wichita Eagle reports a commencement address delivered by Mark Sullivan at a certain college. In this address Sullivan points out the doctrine of Mussolini: "For the fascist, everything is within the state; and nothing human or spiritual exists, and much less has worth, outside the state." In such states they proceed to stamp out the existing conception of God; they stamp out the churches which reflect the conception of God. They hope that the people, denied the opportunity to give worship and moral authority to God, will give it to the state.

"If we in America," he says, "were not warned away from such a conception, its relation to religion should alone be enough to shock us. To you young gentlemen, about to enter the world, I say worship any form of God that has come to you by inheritance or early training, but do not worship the state. Retain any church affiliation you may have, or unite with any new one. But do not succumb to the cult which tries to say that the state has moral authority. That would be spiritual retrogression. Worship your God and pray with your own churches, and be tolerant of the churches of others, but be suspicious of those who propose to make a God of the state."

Dividing Justly

In this issue of THE MENNONITE we intended to bring editorial "Dividing Justly, Part II" as a sequence to the one that appeared in the issue of Oct. 5 of this paper. As we were pondering this article, in which we intended to show the need of another division of our tithe-dollar, so that, with one or two other changes, our institutions of learning might obtain more adequate financial support from many of our churches, we received the following letter from Bro. L. J. Horsch, Upland, Calif. And since it is in line with the thought we wished to convey, we take the liberty to substitute it, hoping that the writer will not object. Bro. Horsch, the son of Rev. M. Horsch, is a typical young Mennonite, very active in the work of the church and its auxilliaries, and a coming leader in our Conference. He is now, and has been for a good many years, instructor in Social Science in the Chaffey Junior College, Ontario, Calif. Here is his letter:

Dear Brother Thierstein:

"I have just finished reading the MENNONITE for October fifth. I was particularly impressed with the first editorial, entitled "Dividing Justly". The table which indicates the per capita contributions of eight rural churches is indeed arresting. The most significant omission and the one to which you direct attention in your "just" budget, is the failure to make any contribution to the cause of Christian education. But it seems to me that even your budget fails to meet the real need. The sum of $2000.00, I judge, is sufficinet to meet the needs of the General Conference Education Board and, as you suggest, can be met by allowing 2½ cents of each congregation's budget dollar for this purpose. But, may I ask, how does your budget meet the financial needs of Bethel College, or of Bluffton or of Freeman? After all, essential as the work of the Board of Education is, does that work really meet the educational needs of our denomination? I am convinced that our people must be educated to give for Bethel (if they live west of the Mississippi) and for Bluffton (east of the Mississippi) or for Freeman, just as they have been educated to give for the cause of foreign missions. I am convinced that every church budget should provide for a substantial contribution to one of our church colleges annually. It is my conviction that it is the duty of every pastor to educate the members of his congregation in this direction, as it is his duty to educate them to give for missions. Not that I minimize our mission work, not all, on the contrary I realize that the General Conference was knit into a homogeneous organization by virtue of the cause of foreign missions. But I cannot forget that the founders of our denomination were also deeply concerned with the cause of Christian education, that the spiritual wellbeing of every church depends upon trained leadership, that mission work itself, vital as it is, will suffer without trained workers. So I repeat, our people must be educated to give for our colleges just as they have been educated to give for missions.

"In rereading what has just been written, I find that you might come to the conclusion that what I have said was a personal criticism of yourself. Far from it, my remarks are directed to a situation prevailing in the entire denomination. The above paragraph might also be interpreted as a reflection upon those pastors who are striving to educate their people in the direction indicated, or upon the many sincere and earnest contributors to the treasuries of our schools, without whose generosity these institutions would long since have financially starved to death. Not at all, thank God for them. Aber jetzt ist es genug."

With kindest personal regards,

Sincerely yours, L. J. Horsch.

Cast thy bread upon the waters; for thou shalt find it after many days.—Bible.

Evangelization Work

by Dr. J. H. Langenwalter

Editor's Note: This article by Brother Langenwalter which appears in the October number of "The Workers Exchange," organ of the Pacific District, is so good and timely that we take the liberty to reprint it here.

At the last session of the Pacific District Conference at Reedley, the Evangelization Committee was asked to state in a brief way the attitude of the Conference on the matter of the ordination of members of some other denomination and also the position we take regarding support in the building of churches.

ORDINATIONS:

Regarding ordinations the following three points were made:

1. We do not favor ordaining the member of another denomination, because we consider that a discourtesy to a sister institution.

2. We favor the Mennonite practice of ordaining a man only upon the recommendation of a Mennonite Church, or some other responsible group within the denomination.

3. We favor the ordination of a man only after he had rendered service within the denomination for a sufficient length of time to prove himself worthy of the high calling with which he is to be entrusted.

BUILDING CHURCHES:

Regarding the building of churches the following statement was submitted:

1. That we ask a church desiring help toward the building of a house of worship to present its plan to the Evangelization Committee.

2. Thereupon the Committee will investigate the request and the conditions to be met, and advise with the church in regard to the matter, and make recommendations to the Churches of the Conference.

3. All solicitation in the Churches of the Pacific District Conference is to be done with the understanding that the money is to go to the Conference treasury and is to be disbursed from there.

PROGRESS OF WORK:

These have been months of rather remarkable developments in our work. We have had the aid of Dr. Fast, Rev. J. M. Regier and Rev. M. J. Galle. All of these men have interested themselves in the problems confronting a number of our smaller groups very sincerely and very wisely. The Committee appreciates this very much.

WHAT WE MAY EXPECT:

It has been an inspiring experience to find so many groups within the area of the Pacific District Conference who are interested in building up their church life. These groups are both an inspiration and a challenge to the entire Conference. Let us pray for their progress and aid them in facing their problems.

Wiser Wisdom

Edna R. Brown

The bulk of the world's woes today, as always, comes from an excess of gray matter. We have gotten so wise that we are positively stupid.

Daringly we flaunt our wisdom in God's face, defying Him in everything. When He pleads with us to reason with Him, we derisively turn away. When He cautions us to have a care, we dash recklessly on. When He invites us to take Him into consultation in the solution of some major problem, we disdainfully disparage His advice. When He offers to help us in the little matters of life, we assume a "well-able-to-take-care-of-ourselves" attitude. When He lifts a warning finger, we refuse to recognize it.

Why is the world attempting to pigeonhole God? Why is it trying so desperately hard to discard His admonitions? Why is it assigning Him no place on its complex program? Because it is still experimenting with its own brains!

We re not yet willing to acknowledge the inadequacy of our own thinking apparatus; therefore we have delved into a series of bad messes with an ever-widening circumference and an ever-increasing depth.

With the utmost intensity we have bent our minds and wills to explore the vast barren fields of materialism. Our overruling passion obviously is "to possess things. We want to be rich—at least a little richer than we are. We want better homes, better jobs, finer clothes, bigger cars, and all the rest of it. Yes, and for the most part, I believe we are willing to use all our wisdom to gain them.

But with all our brains (even the most brilliant ones), and all our "gains" (even the greatest ones), we have been a hopeless failure.

And there is only one corrective measure, which is to throw up our hands, acknowledge our defeat, and shut down our self-operated brain factories.

It is time to play quits with our own wisdom. It is time to surrender our finite wisdom to the Infinite. It is time to become charged with a wisdom from on high.

After all, what is wisdom? "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: and the knowledge of the holy is understanding" (Prov. 9:10). "There is no wisdom nor understanding nor counsel against the Lord" (Prov. 21:30). What then has all this self-wisdom of ours been? Surely, utter folly.

If we would all obey the command, "Cease from thine own wisdom" (Prov. 23:4), and appropriate that which is inifinitely greater, our thoughts would be centered upon matters of the soul—matters of lasting importance, rather than upon earthly things.

Surely we will be exercising the rudiment of wisdom that God intends us to (the rudiment of all wisdom) when we take seriously the counsel, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding" (Prov. 3:5.)

Why is it that we are so calloused to the call: "Cease from thine own wisdom" when it would open to us an infinite supply of real wisdom; when it would solve our problems, and make us rich forevermore?

When we trust in the Lord and give Him the key to our souls, He will use His wisdom on our behalf and we, in all humility, will become equipped with wisdom wiser than our own as long as we keep in constant communion with Him.

Thine own or His wisdom—which do you possess?

Edna Reeck Brown,

To Our Sunday Schools and Churches

At this time of the year when we all have a little more leisure in the long fall and winter evenings, it is most appropriate to think of more intensive Bible Study in Sunday School and Church. Some churches have already made plans for a Sunday School Training Course, but the Education Committee feels that every one of our congregations should make sincere efforts to get better prepared teachers and church workers. Your committee is willing to cooperate in every possible way. Please write us and ask for outlines or other assistance.

Besides the training courses every congregation should make plans for an intensive Bible study and evangelistic meetings of three days or more. In our opinion it is best to have two or more congregations united in such a program and arrange a regular "Bibelbesprechung". It is very good to listen to God inspired sermons, but it is equally good or better to exchange thoughts, experiences, and testimonies.

We therefore urge our congregations to do whatever possible to increase Bible interest and knowledge.

THE MORAL ISSUE IN THE DRINK PROBLEM

Rom. 13:12-14; I Cor. 6:9-11; Gal. 5:16-24

Introduction

The drink problem is still treated by many as an economic and social one only. We need to emphasize that it is above all, a distinctly moral problem. In the thinking of most CHRISTIANS the moral evil of drink is the fundamental reason for opposing it. The moral degradation of the drink evil reaches out even into the world to come.

The Challenge, Rom. 13:12-14

Paul brings out the contrast between light and darkness, classifying "the lusts of the flesh," as works of darkness. Such can not bear the light of day. Among these are such works as come with the use of strong drink. Paul gives a ringing challenge to form such habits that will bear being seen and known by others—"walk honestly, as with the day" (v 13). Cast off deeds which one is ashamed to have known, and chief among these we may rightly place the use of liquor and its accompanying evils. This has no place in God's kingdom and can have no honest place in a Christian life. The Christian is to clothe his soul in the disposition, spirit and habits of Christ (v 14), he will then have no desire for strong drink and other lusts of the flesh.

A Solemn Warning vs. 9-11

In these verses drunkards are classified with the unrighteous who shall not inherit the kingdom of God (v 9). There were those then, like there are today, who declared it was natural and right to indulge the appetites of the body. Paul flatly repudiates this idea. "Be not deceived," and enumerates a black list of transgressors, including drinkers, who shall not inherit the kingdom of God, if they persist in these (vs. 9, 10). Some still think they may indulge in sin, even such as mentioned here, and yet be acceptable to God. Religious profession will avail nothing for such. The one who starts to drink runs a serious risk of not being able to control the appetite thus formed. The home which permits the use of wine imposes a fearful handicap on the growing children in that home. The power of the Holy Spirit can save those who have fallen victims to such sinfulness (v 11). Of all these sins, the use of alcoholic drinks is the most vicious and degrading in its possible effects.

Works of the Flesh vs. 16-21

This passage lists the works of the flesh (vs 19-21), a very black lot and drunkenness is one of the blackest on the list. It breeds so many other very ugly things. Paul states in verse 16 the only safe, sure and simple secret of keeping from surrendering to "the lust of the flesh." The person who permits the Spirit to fill his life, yielding the whole of life fully to Him, will receive the power to refrain from sinful acts (v 16). There is a real struggle between the flesh and the Spirit which renders the natural man helpless (v 17). The Spirit alone can make us victorious (v 18). The Spirit-led will do that which is right. Such can enter the kingdom.

Fruits of the Spirit vs. 22-24

Paul gives a glorious catalogue (vs 22, 23). The Spirit pervades the whole of life and develops splendid fruit. The contrast between these Christian graces and the loathesome fleshly works is great. We need to renounce evil things and also "put on the Lord Jesus Christ." Then the appetite for strong drink can not control us.

Gems of Truth

Drinking can be legalized but it can never be made respectable.

Strong drink is the greatest destroyer of bodies, minds and souls that the devil has ever found.

Extracts from Field Secretary's Report

During the third quarter Rev. Fast visited the churches in Iowa, some in Minnesota, and two in Kansas; participated as one of the leaders of the retreats held at Wayland, Iowa; Shipshewana, Indiana, and Sequoia, Calif. While on his vacation with his family, he substituted for Rev. L. Hostetler at Upland, Calif.

He says, "July and August are not the most suitable time for deputation work. The farmers everywhere are busy in their fields and with their crops. The attendance on week-days, therefore, was comparatively small, but never discouragingly so. In fact one really had to marvel that people came out as well as they did.

"If anyone is inclined to be pessimistic about our young people and the future of our church, he would have found a real tonic in the young people's retreats which it has been my opportunity to see in action. I think such a person would have learned to share the feeling of confidence and courage it has given me. To see groups of young people like those at our retreats,—sincere, eager, and earnest—that is tremendously heartening. Such retreats, I feel, should be encouraged and continued."

CHRISTIANIZING AMERICA

Daniel J. Unruh

Christianizing America. What does it mean? Who is supposed to do it? Are its objectives spiritual? Is it scriptural?

Christianizing America, apparently, is the slogan that is to rally the moral forces of America into a great crusade, destined to usher in the kingdom of God. Whether this is to be achieved by some coup d'etat, as the seizure of Italy by Mussolini, or by some gradual process of infiltration of a great moral principle, as the case of the 18th Ammendment, forgive the tragic memory, is not entirely clear. However, this much seems clear from their teaching, Christ had a very high regard for human personality. He was always interested in the oppressed and the downtrodden. He loved the common people and He saw the injustices of his day and consequently He uttered certain, in his day, very revolutionary principles. These principles, if incorproated into the civic, social, industrial and economic structures, will prove the solution for the ills of the world. It is explained that in Jesus' day the Jewish people were not prepared to accept these principles and so Jesus died a martyr to a great cause, largely because He was about 1900 years ahead of the times. Gradually the truths of his teaching are finding acceptance by those whose intellectual freedom has not been cramped by timeworn dogmas and creeds.

Consequently the preaching of the Gospel is supplemented, if not entirely replaced by heavily subsidized peace programs, industrial and social legislation, studies of co-operatives, etc. While all of these objectives, worthy though they be, receive the attention in a Christianizing program, the message of salvation is either set aside, as outmoded, or simply goes by default. Generally the latter is the method used, for it saves making a lot of explanations to old-fashioned and "non-progressive" folk who still believe that a man must be 'born again' to enter into the kingdom of God. Such a program is to transform this cigarette-smoking, booze-guzzling, lip-sticking, movie-crazed generation into a Christianized America.

Who is to do it? The present generation of fathers and mothers? Hardly, for they are the ones, it is said, who brought on the present world crisis. Since they failed, youth will have to carry the torch. That this torch is but the theoristic idealism of an older generation and not the spontaneity of youth is of no particular consequence. In fact, if this were as much as whispered, it might be that youth would revolt rather than crusade. They must be led to believe that this is a new idealism, the acme of perfection peculiar to the perfected civilization of the 20th century, spontaneously conceived by youth, sans textbook, sans classroom, and sans proctor. Youth marches on!

But to do this they must have preparation, specialized preparation, Christianized preparation. They will not need to preach or teach the Gospel, since that is a method and a message ill-adapted to this enlightened day. No, this Christianizing spirit must permeate the legislative halls, research commissions, and administrative bureaus of a future democracy. Or will it be bureaucracy? That accounts for the popularity of the social sciences. Fine spun theories, conceived in illegitimate concourse with socialistic propaganda, masquerading in the garments of Christianity are emphasized, if not substituted, instead of the simple Gospel, "that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners," even as the gamblers at the cross wore the seamless robe of Christ, without his spirit within them. So, instead of preparing men who will preach the Word and tell sinners how God in Christ reconciled the world unto Himself' and therefore 'beseeching men in Christ's stead to be reconciled to God,' young people are preparing to enter specialized fields of economics, sociology, psychology, internationalism and, even those who plan to enter the ministry, specialize in the social sciences. Instead of using the Bible as the inspired, infallible and authoritative Word of God, they use adaptable portions of Scripture, particularly the Sermon on the Mount, as the social springboard that lands them in the fluctuating theories of an unstable and untried experimentation, only to be wrested by an unregenerate citizenry, to its own destruction. Can we not see that the aim is futile, and the dream illusive? Youth must be fired with a more abiding challenge.

Such a program is sometimes spoken of as the spiritual kingdom in contrast with the personal reign of Christ here on this earth. Are the objectives of such a program spiritual? Is that spiritual which is material and temporal? Did not our Lord answer that when He said, "What is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Are the objectives of Christianity to be expressed in a temporal happiness and an economic security? Truly these are valuable and complementary adjuncts to peace of mind. But the objectives of Christianity?—never! Some one may ask: "Isn't it our duty to make this world a better place in which to live?" What saith the Scripture:—"For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come." Improved conditions are indeed the by-product of a spiritual constituency, but in themselves the former will never produce the latter. Any program, that has as its main objective the temporal rather than the eternal happiness of men, can not be spoken of as spiritual and requires a redefining of spirituality.

But some may say, the Scriptures speak of a time when the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. And we answer by asking, 'Are you speaking of the Church or the kingdom?' Remember that the church is composed of the "called out ones", while if speaking of the kingdom "Now therefore why speak ye not a word of bringing the king back." II Sam. 19:10. According to His words He went into a far country to receive for Himself a kingdom and will come again and reckon with his servants. It is therefore not the task of the church to bing in the kingdom or to Christianize America. If by singing > "And the darkness shall turn to dawning,

> And the dawning to noon day bright,
> And Christ's great kingdom shall come on earth,
> The kingdom of Love and Light"

we mean that the kingdom will gradually unfold itself until we come to the zenith of its glory, we are both scripturally and practically in error. Practically we must say that instead of dawning approaching unto a noonday we are in a greak murky darkness and fog better described in II Tim. 3:1-7, and 4:3-4.

Great and pressing as the problems of this old world may be, for us as Christians, there is but one great commission variously stated in II Tim. 4:1-2, II Cor. 5:17-21, Mark 16:15, I Cor. 1:23-24, and summed up it resolves itself into these two suggestive phrases, 'we preach Christ crucified' and 'preach the Word'. To christianize America is neither practical, spiritual nor scriptural and can therefore only, like a mirage, lead into the desert of uncertainty, or the swamps of despair.

"Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us, we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God. For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him. We then as workers together with him, beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain." "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers." II Cor. 5:20-6:1; 6:14.

CORRESPONDENCE

GRACE MENN. CHURCH, ALBANY ORE.

Dear Editor and Readers: We were privileged to have several missionaries and ministers in our midst, during the summer months. Among them were Rev. and Mrs. Irving Lindquist, a young couple from the Denver Bible Institute, who are planning to sail in December, to take up missionary work in the dark continent of Africa. We were also glad to have with us Rev. H. A. Fast, General Conference Field Secretary, Rev. David Toews from Saskatchewan, Canada, Rev. Danks from the Biblical Research Society, and others.

Church and Sunday School attendance has been somewhat slack during the summer. Vacation is over and we are looking forward to an increase both in attendance and interest. Several of our young people have left, some to school, others to seek employment.

Our Thursday evening prayer and Bible study hour has been very interesting as well as helpful. At present we are studying the Doctrine of the Holy Spirit. We praise God for the many spiritual blessings we have received through our pastor, Rev. W. R. Augsburger, and others. Last Sunday a father, mother and their daughter were added to our number by the rites of baptism. May the Lord bless them and keep them true to their vows. We are looking forward to our semi-annual Communion services next Sunday.

Harvest is over with for another season. Crops in general were very good this year, with the exception of the prunes. All through the valley that crop was far below the average. Nevertheless we have many material, as well as spiritual, blessings to be thankful for.

Best Wishes to all readers, Correspondent

MENNONITE CHURCH, SHAFTER, CALIF.

The Lord has prospered us, and has kept his protecting hand over us during the days when we organized as the "First Mennonite Church of Shafter, Calif. "We have now so far completed our church home that we are in a position, herewith to extend our invitation to all the churches of the General Conference to remember us in prayer for our dedication services, which are to be held October 24, 1937, the Lord willing.

This is to be an all-day service and Rev. H. J. Krehbiel of Reedley and Rev. C. Hege of Paso Robles, and others of our neighboring churches are to take part in our program.

In the name of the First Mennonite Church of Shafter, Calif.—Jake Neufeld, Secr.

Seiji Hirakawa, of Tokyo, speaking before the Friends' World Conference at Philadelphia, said, "Ninety percent of the people of Japan are against the present undeclared war between Japan and China."

Turning the Other Cheek

Does it pay? This is a question we ask ourselves every day in relation to the things we do. The farmer plowing a deeper furrow, asks himself, "Does it pay?" Before the foundation of the tallest man-made structure, the Empire State Building in New York City, was laid, the builders certainly thought, "Does it pay to construct it?" The greater the undertaking, the greater the emphasis this question receives.

We may now consider this question in relation to the greatest of all occupations—living with our fellowmen.

Does it pay "to turn the other cheek"? It does not seem such an obvious question when we think of our neighbor. Of course, it is good for him to turn the other cheek, to forgive and forget, to return good for evil. But Jesus' message is not meant only for our neighbor. His finger is pointed at us, individually.

We give greatest awe and reverence to the fact that Christ lived on earth; that He was and is the Son of God. Are we willing to believe with that same fidelity the words he spoke, that it is greater to return good for evil. Only when we put Christ's principles into practice may we expect the blessing which they prescribe. Again we say, Does it pay? and in order that we get a satisfactory answer, let us be sure we are not seeking in our own selfish mind for an answer.

Abraham and Lot both had great flocks and herds, and the land was not able to bear them that they might dwell together. To remain together, peaceably seemed impossible. Before them lay the rich Jordan valley to one side, and the hilly country of Canaan on the other side. Abraham solved the problem before any serious trouble arose. "Brother Lot, if you prefer the Jordan valley, I'll go to Canaan." Lot won a material victory, but Abraham a moral victory. He was a godly man. Did it pay Abraham to let Lot choose the more fertile land? Genesis 13:14, 15, we read: "And Jehovah said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him, lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art, northward and southward and eastward and westward: for all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed forever." A blessing for all time was given to Abraham and his descendents. Did it pay Abraham to hold good will and peace above selfish personal interest? Lot chose the temporal, Abraham received the eternal. It meant taking the lesser, but receiving the greater. Turning the other cheek, being willing to sacrifice in order to keep peace, balanced the godly character of Abraham.

Comes, now, the dreamer, a young lad who certainly meant well. His brothers just couldn't tolerate his good-natured disposition. Though Joseph's brothers mistreated him, we read nothing of him seeking revenge. It would seem he was a modern conscientious objector. Rather than to create greater hostilities, Joseph suffered to be sold into a state of slavery.

Years later when his brothers came to him for grain, we do not find him asking himself, "Does it pay to turn 'the other cheek'? Should not these, my brothers, taste a bit of their own medicine?" We find nothing like this recorded. We read that he loved them. When they came for grain, he had them dine at the king's table, and even went a step farther—he gave them homes in Egypt. Today he is the best known of the twelve brothers.

As the stone pellets, from the hands of the accusers, were crushing the life of Stephen, he cried out, "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And the apostle Paul suffered stripes and imprisonment, but knew the dividends in Christ were eternal.

The testimonies of Christian martyrs in the early centuries is a constant inspiration to us. Whereas harm and destruction was meted out by accusers, godly men endured persecution and prayed for those who persecuted them. Down the centuries Christian leaders, missionaries, and laymen could sign their name to this great principle of life.

To the Christian, the answer to the question, Does it pay? is most fully understood. It is not as walking alone, trying to live a good moral life, but the presence, the nearness, the assurance of fellowship with Christ is with us. Turning the other cheek, returning good for evil, is planting roses where thistles grew. It beautifies life, it is stepping heavenward when our life is hid in Christ. —Herbert E. Miller.

The fairest action of our human life
  Is scorning to revenge an injury;
For who forgives without a further strife,
  His adversary's heart to him doth tie:
And 'tis a firmer conquest, truly said,
To win the heart than overthrow the head.

Problems:

1. Does unity make for peace? "By bringing to an end the religious supremecy of the Jew, Christ brought to an end the estrangement, the 'enmity,' between Jew and Gentile. He created in himself 'of the twain one new man, so making peace.' But this was only part of his work. He came that he might reconcile them both in one body unto God through the cross; and by that reconciliation he made 'peace,' not only between Jew and Gentile, but between heaven and earth. The image presented to the apostles' mind is that of an imperial power sending messengers to provinces with which it had been at war, messengers whose first business was to make known that the war was over."

2. Is Internationalism a step towards world-peace, "The nineteenth century made the world a neighborhood. The great task of the twentieth century is to make that neighborhood a brotherhood. Would we have international peace and good will, 'Internationalism,' says Dr. W. P. Merrill, 'has no sound and firm basis save in Christian principles and ideals.' "National selfishness does not serve even the selfish nation as honest internationalism does. But co-operative dealing must bring gains, and sooner or later the nation must find that out or perish." Harry P. Gibson.

3. What are the underlying causes of war, What should be the next steps toward the abolition of war, How may peace be effectively promoted?—There is really no more reason why native-born citizens of Poland and Lithuania should hate each other than that Italian-born citizens of New York should hate Russian-born citizens of Pennslyvania. No section of Europe has a more diverse racial population than has New York, Pennsylvania, or Illinois. Experience has demonstrated that persons of different races can go along without fighting if they are not spurred on by artificially created national antagonisms."- Kirby Page.

Secretary Cordell Hull says in regard to the relationship of the two Americas—"My country's people strongly feel that this so called right of conquest must forever be banished from this hemisphere, and they shun and reject the so-called right for themselves." "The definite policy of the United States, from now on, is one opposed to armed intervention." Would it be possible to attain this feeling among the various nations?

4. Should we continue to strive for peace even though continued efforts seem futile, Paul says to press on toward the goal. "Perfection is the goal, and while it may be unattainable here, we may approximate to it." Paul tells us to look forward and not to become discouraged by the failures of the past.

5. Jesus rebuked Peter when he retaliated and struck the soldier. Christ said, "All they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." Does this also refer to fighting for defense? Are Christians more responsible for peace than non-christians? Do Christian young people today cast their influence towards world peace?

Discussion of Topic

1. Leader's Remarks. The picture of war as our enemy cannot be painted too black. There is not one good thing to be said about it. There is hardly an evil known to man that is not fostered by it. Tell of some facts you have read in recent weeks.

There is always the danger that young people who have never lived through a war will be deceived by false propaganda or lured by the adventure of it. It is unchristian. It is uncivilized. We need to show it up in all its ghastliness and horror to help us realize the truth about it.

2. Short Talks

War breeds enmity.

War encourages greed and selfishness.

War destroys the best in man: physically, morally, spiritually.

Christ's Teachings and war.

What Great Men Have Said (Add others)

"War is but an organized barbarism, and an inheritance of the savage state, however disguised or ornamented." Louis Bonaparte.

"War, what is it after all, the people get?
Why, widows, taxes, wooden legs and debt."

"It requires the labors of many years for a nation to regain the losses sustained by one year's war; especially in the morals of the people."—George Dillwyn

Only Three Words

The representatives from two great nations had been in conference for almost a week. They were trying to work out some basis on which permanent peace could be established. The many points of view that had been presented made the task seem almost impossible.

They had set down their findings in a paper that was comprised of more than fifteen thousand words. The Secretary who read this report was tired before he had finished with half of it. The representatives too were tired. They listened half-heartedly as they nodded their heads, and looked across the table sceptically at each other.

Finally the time came to return to their respective homes. They filed out of the great committee room sorrowful, because they realized that peace was not yet entirely possible. As they reached the steps of the building, one delegate turned to his neighbor and said:

"What a shame to have wasted fifteen thousand words, when only three short ones would have done it all so much better. Had we only agreed to accept the words of Jesus, 'Love thy neighbor,' we could have gone to our homes with the assurance of peace and real peace."—Pilgrim Quarterly.

JUNIOR CORNER

They Shall Not Want Any Good Things

Program Suggestions for November, 1937

November 7: God's Gift of Life
November 14: God's Gift of Talent
November 21: God's Gift of Money
November 28: Thanking for God's Gifts and God's Greatest Gift

Verse of the month: They that seek the Lord shall not want any good thing. Psalm 34:10b. (James 1:17a if you have not used former program suggestions).

Song of the month: "Give of Your Best to the Master."

Shall We Build a "Pyramid"?

Again Thanksgiving is near. There are always needy ones and the children enjoy filling a basket for them. Perhaps you would enjoy doing it in this manner. On November 7, acquaint the children with the plan. Tell them of two or three needy homes. Let them choose which one they wish to remember. Ask them to save two nickels for the ten cent can of food item of their choice. On November 14, remind them of this again by dealing to each junior a sheet of tissue paper and sufficient ribbon to tie the gift. A "pyramid" in black and white would be beautiful. On November 21, set apart time for this offering. Make it a part of the service, allowing each one to bring his offering of food to the front where it is set up in pyramid fashion. Use "Give of Your Best to the Master" as an offertory.

"THEY SHALL NOT WANT ANY GOOD THING"

Program Suggestions for November 7, 1937

God's Gift of Life

Opening Service:

1. Call to worship by prelude of hymn
2. Remain seated, bow heads and sing softly "Into My Heart" (twice).
3. Rise to sing: Praise Him! Praise Him!
4. Opening prayer: leader. (be seated)
5. Scripture: Psalm 122. Read verse one in unison; then chairman read verses 2-9; repeat verse one in unison
6. Sing in unison: Breathe on Me, Breath of God

Mission Minutes:

See past issue of Mennonite under Foreign Missions, Home Missions, Schools and Education. Note here the meeting of the Board of Education. Explain to the children the work of this Board and allow them to share in the responsibility by offering a prayer in their behalf. We regret not to have mentioned the Western District Conference session for the October Mission Minutes but trust that the leaders have allowed the Juniors a share in it.

Announcements

Study Period. Aim: To lead to gratefulness for the gift of life and to create the longing to give this life in service to the King.

1. God's Great Promise: Have the verse of the month on the blackboard in some beautiful setting. Lead the group in reading the verse and then repeating it from memory.

2. God's Gift of Life. Let the chairman introduce the subject closing with the following:

I gave thee life,
I fashioned thee;
I made thee wonderful, you see,
That, someday, thou wouldst come to me
And love Me through eternity.

a. How I was made: Verses read by juniors, the chairman announcing the first reference; the first reference having been read, the same junior announces reference number two and so on in relay fashion. Choose verses such as: Gen. 1:27; Gen. 2:7; Psalm 100:3; Prov. 22:2; Ecc. 12:1; Jer. 27:5; Psalm 139:14, etc.

c. Why I was made Talks by juniors

1. to become God's child: Let this junior tell how we become children of God. John 3:3; 1:12, Gal. 4:5. Let this be followed by special music using "The Child of a King." Verses 1 and 3.

2. To become God's Temple: Let this junior tell when we are a temple of God and what such a temple should be like. I Cor. 3:16; I Cor. 6:19; II Cor. 6:16. Follow this by special music: Spirit of God Descend upon My Heart. Verses 1, 2, 4.

3. to become God's helper: Mark 16:15, Acts 1:8. Let this junior tell how the disciples, after believing in Jesus, became His helpers and how Paul after his conversion, became a great helper. Let him close with Romans 12:1.

4. Heart-talk: "I gave my life for thee, what wilt thou give for me?" Picture to the group "I am fearfully and wonderfully made." Then, in simple language, make them to understand the loss of our life unless it fulfill the purpose of God. Lastly, the challenge to the heart in the call of the Christ: "What wilt thou give for me?"

5. Sing in unison: Give of Your Best to the Master.

6. Closing prayer.

TO THE JUNIOR

What would happen? He waited and waited. One day, when he walked back again to the spot—what did he see? A tiny blade of fresh green. Neesima was curious. Could it be that the idol was shooting forth and would grow into a strong, beautiful something? Neesima was curious, so curious that he began to investigate. He knelt down near the blade and began freeing it of dirt. Very carefully he worked, deeper and deeper. He came near the bronze idol and worked carefully around the same freeing it of all earth, looking close to see if there were any signs of life. There were none. But, still, the little blade which he had found, perhaps it would be the test. There it was with its roots still covered with dirt, resting right in the palm of the idols hand. Should it be that this idol wanted to hand Neesima this blade of green in his palm, to tell him that he was alive indeed, that he had power to let a blade of green shoot forth out of his hand as a sign of life? Neesima decided to investigate. When he came to the very bottom of the palm, Neesima held his breath. There, in the idols bronze palm lay a few kernels of rice. One of these had grown into the little blade of green which he had seen. Neesima was more troubled than ever. The idol was so helpless, there it lay, cold and still. How could such a thing help anyone? And then, there was the little rice blade. How did it grow? Who made it to grow? O, if someone would only help him! Where was the true God? O if he could only find Him!

Next week I will tell you the adventures of Neesima, Until then think about this:

"Ye shall seek me and find me when Ye shall search for me with all your heart." Jer. 29:13.

A DUKE'S EXAMPLE

Many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the Lord.—Ps. 40:3. In a town in Bavaria, there is a little tumble-down church where the duke as often as he came that way used to go in and pray. If on coming out of the church he happened to meet any of the peasants, he loved to converse with them pleasantly. One day he met an old man, and after some talk, asked him whether he could do anything for him.

The peasant replied, "Noble sir, you cannot do anything better for me than you have already done."

"How so? I do not know that I have done anlything for you."

"But I know it," said the man; "for how can I forget that you saved my son! He travelled so long in sinful ways, that for long he would have nothing to do with church or prayer. Some time ago he was here, and saw you, noble sir, enter this church. 'I should like to see what he does there,' said the young man scornfully to himself, and he glided in after you. But when he saw you pray so devoutly, he was so deepply impressed that he also began to pray, and from that moment became a new man. I thank you for it. This is why I said, you can do me no greater favor than you have already done."

DEATHS

JACOB J. HARDER was born in Russia (The Ukraine) October 30, 1860. He passed away in a hospital at Fresno, California, on October 6, 1937, having attained the age of 77 years, less 24 days. He was baptized upon the confession of his faith in the Bergthal Mennnoite Church in Butterfield, Minnesota. He was married to Susannah Dick, May 22, 1887, at Butterfield, Minnesota. His wife preceded him in death September 14, 1930.

The deceased was Superintendent of the Sunday School at the Zion Mennonite Church in Langham, Saskatchewan, Canada for many years.

He leaves to mourn him seven sons and four daughters, also twenty grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Two brothers and one sister also survive him. His son Jacob died April 19, 1929 and his grandson Jacob died April 19, 1933. All the children, except two daughters, who live in Canada, were present at the funeral. They do not mourn as those who have no hope. The father had frequently expressed himself as ready to lay down the responsibility of a long and busy life.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. H. Langenwalter on October 9th in the First Mennonite Church at Reedley, Calif.

SUSIE FRANZ, daughter of Leonard and Eva Franz, was born near Parker, S. Dak., March 8, 1877. Not being a strong child she never was able in later life to do heavy work. Yet, in spite of this condition she had a very cheerful disposition and was willing to do her part wherever help was needed. On Sept. 13, 1896 she was baptized, upon her confession of faith, by Elder Joseph Kaufman and received as a member of the then Salem Mennonite Church, near Freeman, S. Dak. The family came to the state of Washington, in 1902, and upon the organization of the Salem Mennonite church at Ruff, in 1910, she became one of its charter members. In 1937 her letter was transferred to the Menno church. Upon the death of her mother she took care of her father and kept house for him until his passing in 1931. In Feb. 1932, due to failing health and the need of constant attention, she was taken to the Deaconness Hospital at Salem Oregon. Here, following a stroke of paralysis, she passed away Oct. 4, at an age of 60 years, 6 months, and 26 days. She leaves to mourn her passing five brothers and one sister, with a host of relatives and friends. Throughout life she remained firm in her faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Funeral services were conducted from the Menno Mennonite Church, Thursday, Oct. 7. Interment in the cemetery near the church, her pastor Rev. M. J. Galle officiating.

REV. JOHN PLENERT, was born Nov 17, 1864, at Neuhoff, Deutsch Kassen, Poland. At the age of 14, he was baptized on his confession of faith by Elder Henry Bartel and received into the church there. When 15 years of age, he came with his parents, Cornelius and Anna Bartel Plenert, brothers and sisters to America, and settled northeast of Hillsboro, Kansas. He had very little opportunity to get an education himself, but he did all he could to make it possible for his children to do so.

On Nov. 7, 1886, he was united in marriage with the now deeply bereaved, Emelia Ratslaff, and for about 51 years, the couple shared joys and sorrows together. Their union was blessed with 14 children, four of whom, three daughters and one son, preceded the father into the great beyond.

He was anxiously concerned to lead his children to Christ, at an early age. In this he succeeded, for they accepted Christ, were baptized and received into the church by their father.

From youth up he was a willing worker in the Sunday School and other church activities. Accordingly, when he was 29 years old, on the first of May 1892, he was elected deacon in the 2nd Johannestal Church, and on December 3, 1893, its minister.

When Elder John Bartel moved to South Dakota, leaving the church without an Elder, Bro. Plenert was chosen for this office. He found it difficult to make up his mind to accept this added responsibility. But after two years of study in the Word of God and much prayer, he was finally led to accept the charge and on March 18, 1899, was ordained to the office of Elder by the brethren, J. S. Hirschler and J. E. Baer. In 1905, when the first and second Johannestal churches united, he became Elder of this newly formed church and for about 38 years served this congregation in this capacity.

He loved to work with young people, always endeavoring to see their point of view and to understand their problems. He loved to teach the Catechetical classes, finding here special opportunity to speak to the hearts of the young people. Many times he made the remark that these were some of his most blessed moments, although he realized that they were also fraught with grave responsibility. He had the privilege of instructing, baptizing, and receiving into the church more than 200 souls. This last May 30, 1937, he received 8 souls into the church through baptism.

He enjoyed good health until about three years ago, when he was suddenly seized with a heart affection, from which, however, he recovered again sufficiently so that he could be up and around. However, it was necessary for him gradually to give up his work, though still ready to assist in any way his strength permitted. When the Lord called him, He called him from his work.

It had been his and Sister Plenert's cherished hope that they might live to celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary together, and the Lord granted them their wish and the celebration took place Nov. 7, 1936. Then, too, it had been his hope and prayer to be permitted to live until the church would again have a leader. This, also, was granted him, when Bro. S. M. Musselman accepted the call from the church and was installed as Pastor and Elder, on August 1, 1937.

At the funeral services of John Harms, Sept. 25, he had been asked to take part in the service and give a short sermon. This he endeavored to do, with the help of God. He had spoken about ten minutes from the text, "What is man that thou art mindful of him," when he suffered a stroke of apoplexy. His last words were, "But I have to quit." Shortly afterwards, he fell into a deep sleep, out of which he never awoke again on this earth. His release came quietly at 1:45 Sunday morning, Sept. 26. He brought his age to 72 years, 10 months and 9 days.

He leaves to treasure his memory, his deeply bereaved wife, 7 sons and 3 daughters, 7 daughters-in-law, 2 sons-in-law, 24 grandchildren, 2 sisters and many friends and relatives. Funeral services were held Friday Oct. 1, 1937, at the Jahannestal Church. A tent was erected to accommodate the large number of people attending. The ministers of the neighboring churches, Rev. John Epp and Rev. Arnold Funk, spoke very fitting words in the German language, and Rev. Valentine Nickel of Yates Center, Kansas, gave a very comforting message in the English language. Preceding this, a private service was held in the church for the family, relatives, and members of the Johannestal church, at which the pastor, S. M. Musselman, spoke comforting words, based on 2 Kings 2:9-14 and Phil. 1:12. Interment was made at Johannestal cemetery.

ANDREWS. On August 24, 1937, there passed away, at Perkasie, Pa., Milton K. Andrews, aged 76 years, 3 months, and 15 days. Funeral services were conducted on the 28th, by the family's pastor, A. M. Fretz. Interment made at Deep Run. Text: 1. Pet. 1:7-9. There remain to mourn their loss, one son, two daughters, nine grandchildren and one brother.

—Rev. H. J. Krehbiel, Reedley, Calif. reports: "The brethren at Shafter, Calif. who are about to dedicate their new church requested our church to make a contribution to their building, and our collection was $95.00.—We are having nice drying weather for which we are indeed thankful, as 75 per cent of our raisin crop is still on the drying trays in the vineyards. We had prospects for a price of $75.00 per ton, but now, since the Prorate Program has been abandoned the price has dropped to $60.00 per ton, which means that the farmer will get less and the packer more."

—Rev. David Toews, Rosthern, Sask. writes: "I was at Swift Current, Sask. where a new house of worship was dedicated to the Lord. On Nov. 11 the church at Wymark is to be dedicated. This church was obtained from the Old Colony brethren, was then moved to Wymark, where it is now being put in shape for use there. Brother Toews is to officiate at this dedication, too.

—Other New Conference Churches in Canada, built this year, as reported by Rev. Toews are: Menn. Church at Coghlan, B. C.; Menn. Church at Glenbush, Sask; Menn. Church at Black Creek, Vancouver Island, B. C., Menn. Church at Tofield, Alberta.

—New Mennonite Churches in the U. S., built and dedicated in 1937, as already reported in this paper are: Church at Wolf Point, Mont; at Kingman, Kans.; at Lima, Ohio, and the church at Shafter, Calif. mentioned above.

—The Board of Publication had hoped and expected to see Bro. J. M. Suderman in the field by Nov. 1, to do some soliciting of funds for the establishment or part-purchase of a Conference printing plant. But he now reports that his congregation (the South Church at Buhler, Kans.) declines to spare him, and his work in the church which has a membership of over 300 keeps him quite busy anyway.

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel, Editor of the Mennonite Year Book, is busy getting the material for the 1938 issue of this publication assembled and in shape for the printers, at the Bethel printshop. His work is made more onerous by the fact that some of those who have reports or tables to furnish, or articles to submit, are so slow getting these in. Few realize the seriousness of such drawbacks that editors encounter. He says, "It has actually started to rain here. We do so much hope to get a soaking rain. This prolonged dryness is alarming indeed."

—Bethel College has added a book bindery to its industrial plant and is now also plannig to install an engraving department.

—Rev. J. H. Janzen, Vancouver, B. C. reports that they have been asked to return to Ontario by Nov. 1, to serve and shepherd the Waterloo-Kitchener churches. But he makes no mention of a plan as to who is to be in charge of the itinerant work and the girls' home at Vancouver.

—Zion Mennonite Church, Donnelson, Iowa.—Examination of the candidates for baptism was held Sunday, Sept. 12, followed by baptismal services Sept. 19, at which time seven young people united with the church. On the Sunday next following Holy Communion was observed. The services were all well attended.—The Annual Mission Festival took place Sunday, October 17. Both morning and afternoon meetings were held, with a cooperative dinner in the church basement at noon.—The choir has started to practice a Cantata, "The Song and the Star," which will be given during the Christmas season.

—Orphanage Society Convention of the Eastern District.—On Oct. 9, at the West Swamp Church near Quakertown, this society held its 33d Convention, with session both morning and afternoon. The speakers were Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Mrs. P. J. Boehr, and Adj. Louis Bolnick, Supt. of the Children's Home, Quakertown. Other features were: Music by the P. J. Boehr family, a solo by Miss Etta Davis, and a sacred play by the West Swamp Church.

—First Menn. Church, Allentown, Pa., H. G. Nyce, Pastor.—From Sunday bulletins of this church we glean the following: In the group of young people who left for college, Anna and Richard Backensto, Dorothy Stauffer, Josephin Mohr, and Florence Geisinger went to Bluffton College.—"We were saddened to learn of the accidental death of Rev. S. D. Yoder, pastor of the Roaring Spring Menn. Church." Reverends Neuenschwander, Swartz, and Nyce, all participated in the funeral services.—On Sunday, Oct. 3, an Indian Mission service was held, with Helen Nickel and Eva Pauls giving farewell messages.—Twelve Eastern District people and Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Suderman witnessed the sailing of our missionaries to India, on the Queen Mary from New York. They were the two sisters mentioned above, Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Unruh, and their two sons.

—The Mennonite Churches of Minnesota Act Nobly in Charity Work.—Recently the members of the Mennonite Churches of Mountain Lake, Butterfield, and Bingham Lake, Minn., collected, packed, shipped, and paid the freight on 44 bales of clothing, weighing 1900 pounds to Rev. David Toews, Rosthern, Sask. for the needy brethern in that province who have had repeated crop failures. The value of the goods was conservatively estimated at $201.8.00. The relief committee there, organized 20 years ago, has made many such shipments in the years gone by. And speaking of the present shipment the Mountain Lake Observer says, "It seemed as though many must have robbed themselves to make the cruel winter weather in Canada more bearable to the settlers there, almost destitute now, after several years of crop failures." Would that many other Mennonite communities might follow this noble example!

—For every dollar we pay for college education—and attending college is costly in this country—we pay $32.00 for crime.

EDITORIALS

PRESENT-DAY RELIGION.—When we observe anniversaries in memory of our fathers, the wish is commonly heard that we might continue in their faith and in the practice of their sterling Christian qualities, and in their close-to-God walk. When we do this, we admit that their Christian life or their religion was better than it is today. And it is doubtful whether we, as Mennonites of the General Conference, can lay any serious claim to superiority in our religion to that of the members of other evangelical churches. Just what are some of the earmarks of the religion of the day? In the first place it is an easy-going religion. It is sadly lacking in seriousness, in real sacrifice, and in struggle with the wiles and darts of the evil one. The conversation of Christians is often upon trivial if not frivolous things, accompanied by considerable meaningless laughter, rather than upon thoughts that have spiritual value.—It is a losing religion. It is lacking in close discipleship with Christ, in the habitual use of the Word of God as a guide for the daily life, as food for the soul, as a remedy for the many human ills.—It is a varnished, veneered religion, with a fair, rather attractive exterior, but an aching heart—a heart unsatisfied and quite devoid of genuine happiness; it is a religion characterized by activity and outward ado, beneath which is hidden a heart not at peace with God and unable to arouse itself to do the things that Christ has a right to expect of his true followers.—It is a feeble religion, "lacking the sinew and bones of hardier times, very different from the indomitable, much enduring, storm-braving religion of earlier Christians, not merely of apostolic days but even of the Reformation."—It is an uncertain, wavering religion, lacking in definiteness of purpose, in real, effective motive power, the outflowing of a soul assured of pardon and rejoicing in the filial relationship between itself and God. Hence there is no real liberty of service, such as our Master would have us render. There is speaking for God, but with a slow, faltering tongue; there is working for God, but with unsteady or fettered hands; there is following Christ, but with uncertain, halting steps. What a pity in the face of the fact that our Savior came into this world that his followers "might have life, and might have it abundantly."

A SENSIBLE RELIGION.—RELIGION ought to make sense. The right kind does. Christianity, not the religion of Christendom but the religion of Jesus Christ, is that kind.

This religion gives a rational acount of things. Back of everything it puts God, a Spirit of infinite energy, wisdom and love. This agrees with all that we know, as learned by experience and research. No theory can take mystery from the universe and no sane person asks this. But mind force is the only kind we know that contains within itself the cause of its own activity. That's why we look for this, demand it in fact, at the bottom of every process, every expression of power. No matter what kind of an engine it is, we can not rest until we find the engineer.

This simple dictate of common sense and common experience is universal. Even philosophers, who do their utmost to explain the cause idea away, fall back on it and use it freely in ordinary life, just like the rest of us. They can not do business without it. They can not handle the practical problems of daily living. And so, except when they are formulating a new theory of the universe, they exhibit the usual symptoms of normal intelligence. And so also, when they define God as a process, a principle, the stream of events, anything to get rid of the First Cause idea, they are talking nonsense. No apology for this word is needed. No kinder one will fit the case.

Christianity, remembering again that we speak not of the practice of Christendom but of the teaching of Christ, offers a rational program for all human relationships. It proposes that men be brothers and act that way. It would have no one seek his own advantage at the expense of another. It would give everyone equal opportunity to make the most of his possibilities for time and for eternity. It would provide abundant life for all. Seems sensible, doesn't it?

This religion is reasonable in the final destiny it holds out for men. It fills life with meaning. It provides worthy incentives. It sets up a goal. This is nothing less than the perfecting of human personalities to the point where they can throw off all physical encumbrances, see and love the true, beautiful and the good, and so enjoy each other and their common Father to the full.

It looks to me like a sensible religion. That's one big reason I like it so well.—The Gospel Messenger.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. Richert, Sec.

Some Encouraging Experiences at Clinton, Okla.

By J. B. Ediger

It would be easy to relate discouraging things under present conditions and circumstances and it would help the churches "at home" to pray more intelligently for their work here. But so many people are easily discouraged and think it is useless to pray and give. We relate two incidences that have encouraged us very much lately and proved to us again that the work here is not in vain.

A new ruling, several years old, of the government Indian Department is, that the children in the government boarding schools must not be sent to the church services Sunday evening. The employees are to tell the children, who is going to preach and then leave it to them to come or stay away. All the children know this ruling, because it has been in effect for several years. One Sunday evening last month the agency superintendent, an ordained ex-minister of the Gospel, came to the services and in a speech impressed upon the children very clearly that it was not compulsory for them to come to the Sunday evening services but purely voluntary on their part. The next Sunday evening I was there for the services with the children and seventy-five per cent or three fourths of the boys and girls were present and very attentive. The sixty-seven miles going home after the services seemed shorter on account of this encouragement, after a man who claims to be a Christian had discouraged the school children to come to hear the Gospel.

Many of our Indians come to church very seldom and some do not come at all. Some of these hear the Gospel message in the Christmas camp or some other special gathering, and then, of course, when we visit them. Much of the power of the old heathen religious leaders is broken, but there is still plenty left. We have Indians who still stand high in the old religious order. One of these was Low Standing. She was a widow close to ninety years old. She was friendly when we visited her, but was not backward about letting us know that she was "somebody" in the tribe. One day last spring while she was in the hospital, recuperating remarkably from a stroke of paralysis, she stopped me, took my hand and said she wanted to become a Christian. When told next day, becoming a Christian meant first giving up all other religions and then accepting Jesus as her only Savior, she said: "I knew you would say that. I have given up all I had. It is gone. I liked to be honored, but it did not make me happy. I want what the Christians have. Give me Jesus." She accepted Jesus, as her personal Savior and faithfully witnessed for Him. When her friends came to visit her and started to honor her as they used to, she said: "That is gone. I am a Christian now." She died happy in the Lord. We have said many times that our Indians know and Low Standing has made us more sure of it than ever. Our Indians, old and young, know "that in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth—and in none other is there salvation, for neither is there any other name under heaven, that is given among men, wherein we must be saved. Acts 4:10, 12.

The Firmament Showeth His Handiwork

By C. J. Boppell

Only a layer of ozone, one-eighth of an inch thick, thirty miles above the earth, intervenes to save all life from destruction by ultra-violet rays, which are death dealing in uncontrolled quantities. On the other hand, since those rays in some regulated quantity are necessary to life, if that layer of ozone were much heavier, death would also result. More remarkable still, these deadly rays themselves, acting upon the oxygen of the upper atmosphere, create this thin shield which guards life from destruction. Such are the discoveries and declarations of scientists since 1920.

A book entitled "Exploring the Upper Atmosphere" (Oxford University Press, 1934) gives us these facts: "The ozone layer, far removed from us though it is, has an influence so considerable that, if it did not encircle the earth and act as a gigantic filter for the radiation hurled at us by the sun, life would be extinguished by the excessive quantity of ultra-violet rays that we should receive. The effect of unlimited solar radiation would be fatal, and this layer of ozone, no thicker than a wafer biscuit, is all that stands between us and a speedy death."

"On the other hand, it is a well known fact that a certain amount of ultra-violet radiation is beneficial, and even necessary to life, and if the ozone layer were to become so thick that this little necessary quantity could not penetrate it we should all suffer from rickets, and probably in that way come to an untimely end."

How little stands between life and its destruction! What a perfect balance between the limited amount of radiation that is beneficial and the amount that is fatal! What a marvelous provision that makes the deadly ray itself create the shield that protects us! Surely, "The firmament sheweth his handiwork!" (Psa. 19:1).

The teachers of the theory of evolution have had much to say of the adaptation of life to environment; but here we have the adaptation of environment to life. By no stretch of the imagination can we think of life as having operated on the upper atmosphere, thirty miles away, so as to make life possible. No, "The firmament sheweth His handiwork."

Dr. C. A. Chant, Professor of Astrophysics in Toronto University, said recently: I have no hesitation in saying that at least ninety per cent of astronomers have reached the conclusion that the universe is not the result of blind law, but is regulated by a great Intelligence. Slowly but surely the mind of the great is returning to the Creator and God of Providence." The remarkable thing about that statement is that there should be even ten per cent who do not see that "the firmament sheweth his handiwork." But the believing Christian knows that "in him were all things created, in the heavens and upon the earth, things visible and things invisible . . . . all things have been created through him, and unto him; and he is before all things, and in him all things consist" (Col. 1:16, 17).—"The Sunday School Times."

Schools and Education

Fundamental Facts Concerning Church-related Colleges

President J. H. Reynolds, in a recent issue of Christian Education, calls attention to four fundamental facts with reference to these colleges that the American people should bear in mind.

In the first place, these were America's first higher institutions. They developed a capable independent leadership unsurpassed in human history. They shaped and typed our institutions in harmony with American ideals more completely and perfectly than was ever done in the history of any other country.

In the second place, a thorough review of their history shows that these church-related colleges have been tested by fire in a period of over 300 years. They were 200 years old when state higher education was born in this country. They have stood for scholarship, freedom, independence, private initiative, self reliance, and sound religion. Without levying any burden whatever upon the taxpayer or upon the government, they have furnished society with capable leadership, independent of politics, who have preserved American society from excesses of democracy and the evils of Communism, Fascism, and other forms of tyranny. To the American college, society owes a debt which she can never repay, but that fact is the glory of the college.

In the third place, in the face of the menace to American ideals everywhere apparent, may it not be a providential fact that history through ages of testing and experimentation has developed the American college to steer us through the present crisis back to the fundamental principles of Americanism enlightened by a deep knowledge of social welfare. The typical American college, devoutly Christian in religion, faces a task worthy of its glorious history.

In the fourth place, state universities and other tax-supported institutions are deeply interested in this educational program, because one of the first institutions to be seized and used by a personal and paternalistic government for propaganda purposes when it triumphs anywhere would be the tax-supported institutions. The two classes of institutions—the tax-supported schools and the church-related colleges—are mutually helpful, and one of the distinctive services of the American college is its champion of freedom and independence alike for all higher institutions of learning.

A Young Mennonite Suffers for the Cause of Christ

Following is a letter from a young Mennonite who has won quite a bit of distinction with his poetry in some of which he champions peace and strongly opposes war. The letter has so much in it to commend it, that we want our readers to share it.

Freeman, S. D., Oct. 15, 1937

Dr. J. R. Thierstein,
Bethel College, Kansas.
Dear friend:

Ever since 1924 when I participated in a state original oratorical contest and was eliminated by a judge who (by the way, was a clergyman) had the 'gumption' to tell my coach, after the event was over, that he would never have voted for my oration, no matter how good, simply because it glorified Peace and derided War, I have dedicated whatever talents in versification technique may be mine to the splendid cause of Peace. Needless to say, I have since received many rejection slips; time and again, editors have told me that, while the verse was good, they did not dare to publish poetry so outspoken against War and War-lords for fear of offending their readers. Is it any wonder that I rejoice whenever any of my Peace pleas are published,especially so, in a Mennonite magazine. I believe that if the Mennonites have any message which it is their mission to bring to the world, it is that of imploring men to heed the beatific, and as yet altogether to faint, appeal for Universal Peace. Historically it has been their philosophy for four hundred years; why should they be silent now, when at least some of the world's intellectual leaders are beginning to realize that unless somehow War can be wiped out, civilization is not only gravely endangered, but practically doomed. It may interest you to learn that recently a New York City publisher requested my permission to reprint my poem, "When Will They Learn?", in his book collection of what he considers to be the best poems published in America this year. I rejoice very much more in this recognition that may come to me as the author of a genuinely sincere plea. I am more than pleased to grant THE MENNONITE reprint rights on any poetry contained in "HARVEST OF YOUTH." I am also planning to write a Christmas poem especially for THE MENNONITE.

By a stroke of coincidence it so happens that both of your Mennonite poets (appearing on the front page of your last issue) are shut-ins. I recently had the misfortune to break my leg. It is a bad break, and my doctor tells me I will be confined to the house for three or four months.—Edwin C. Graber.

Following is the poem which the New York publisher included in his collection of best poems published in America this year:

WHEN WILL THEY LEARN?

When will they learn to curb their love of Mars
That deems each war a glory and a glamor,
That thinks of it despite its jolts and jars
In termed defence of sophistry and grammar
Intended to be double-hearted, vague,
When will they learn to think of war's achievements
As bought with blood, a veritable plague
Of pain and death, and empty ranks, bereavements,
When will they learn—when will they learn?

When will men learn to quell their hates and wrath
Nor dash headlong into a combat bloody
But think, in time, about the aftermath:
The slain young men, the healthy-cheeked and ruddy,
The blinded, maimed, the crippled and the torn,
The gazing ruin and the gawking desolation,
The lover-maiden hopelessly forlorn,
A harried people and a nerve-racked nation—
When will they learn—when will they learn?

When will the common people learn to view
This ruler's plaything as a gouge of terror,
Harrangues of propaganda, never new,
A veneration of an age-old error,
Our undue pride of race, our greed of gain,
A scattered few ignobly seeking riches,
And riding roughshod over all, the curse of Cain,
The warm, young lifeblood gurgling in the ditches—
When will they learn—when will they learn?

When will they learn to think of peace,
The only guarantee against restruction
Of all that we hold dear, tranquility, increase,
Of knowledge and enlightenment, production,
Of means of comfort, the wingspread of the arts,
Music, literature, science, culture
With all the glow and meaning it imparts,
In place of war, Insatiable Vulture—
When will they learn—when will they learn?

—Edward F. McGrady, United States Assistant Secretary of Labor, speaking at the recent International Labor Conference at Geneva declared, "The very existence of our civilization is threatened by the huge scale on which armaments are now being built up. Even if these terrible weapons of destruction are never used, their cost is increasing at a rate which is making their burden intolerable. It is estimated that in 1934 the world spent $4,900,000,000 on armaments. In 1935 the world spent $5,400,000,000 and in the year 1936 well over $6.000,000,000, while today we know that the pace has been greatly accelerated—and all this for instruments of destruction and death. It requires little imagination to conceive the many useful and constructive purposes for which these huge sums could be spent."

New Testament Teaching of Financing the Work of the Lord

I am holding a dollar in my hand. What is it? It is money. We call it a "measure of value." Some call it "concentrated value," others a "medium of exchange"; we may also call it an "agent," a "representative" or a "servant" of whoever has it in possession.

Who owns this dollar? According to God's word and natural law, God is the owner, and I am the possessor, as He has entrusted it to me as His "Steward."

"The Earth is the Lords and the fullness thereof . . . the cattle upon a thousand hills." "Gold and silver are mine," saith the Lord." Stewardship is God's universal law and teaching in both Testaments.

If I exchange this dollar for something else, it becomes the possession of another, but God is still the owner. The dollar has been my agent or my servant to obtain something else. I may pay tuition in a school with it and receive education in exchange; or pay it to the Church treasury and receive spiritual services in exchange for it.

Through many of Christ's parables, as recorded in the four Gospels, He taught stewardship. As for an example in the parable of the Talents (Matt. 25) or the Pounds (Luke 19), which were entrusted to the Lords' servants to accumulate more, and carry on His work during the Church Dispensation, until His coming to establish His kingdom. There is not a dollar in possession of a Member of the Church of Christ which has not been entrusted to him with a purpose of the Owner—God.

During the Old Testament dispensation the work of the Lord was financed in two ways, and both of these were older than the laws given by Moses. One way was "by tithing," or giving one tenth of the annual harvests or income from field, vineyard and orchard. These products or values were given to the Priests and Levites for their services in the Tabernacle or temple. The second way was by "free-will offerings" in money and sacrifices of clean animals and fowls. Parts of these were burnt upon the altar, and the other parts were also given to the servants of the Temple of God or to the poor and needy and friends who were invited to partake of it. This was an expression of gratitute towards the Lord for his manifold blessings.

By giving one tenth God's people expressed the fact that they were conscious of being indebted to God for all the material comforts and blessings of life. They felt that verbal expression of gratitude was not enough, but that they owed something definite, something tangible, something that can be measured, weighed or counted. In Malachi 3:10 we read as a Word of God: "Prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. "So in the eyes of God "tithing is a Financial or Property Law, and it pays financially to obey it."

Has New Testament teaching changed the ways and means by which the work of the Lord should be carried on or financed? Not in the least! The Lord Jesus Christ and His apostles always upheld the old orders and especially put much emphasis on free-will offerings and the blessedness of giving freely not only to the poor and needy, but above all for the support and carrying on the work of spreading the Gospel to the ends of the earth. II Cor. 8 and 9; I Cor. 16:2, and even all the epistles of St. Paul have much to say about financing God's work, and the Divine Order is "Tithes and Offerings," the first being the expression of our debt, the second an expression of our gratitude.

Let me for a closing statement make this assertion: I believe, if all the church members were faithful stewards of God's Tenth, the Church and Missions and all kindred agencies engaged in the Master's Work throughout the World would have all the money every year that they could wisely use. Their best prepared men and women could be employed in administering Gods' share of the income of professedly Christian people, instead of begging for it as we are compelled to do now." Millennial conditions would be ushered in."

CLEANLINESS AND GODLINESS.—Hardly a truer saying has ever been uttered by any man than this one by John Wesley, "Cleanliness is next to godliness." And since, according to Paul's teaching, "Godliness is profitable unto all things," cleanliness, too, must be profitable to just about every thing, and must naturally constitute an integral part of godliness. God wants man to live a clean life, both in and out. To help his chosen people live godly lives, He gave them numerous laws, codes of instruction and regulations pertaining to purification, ablutions, sanitation, and healthful living generally. And the observance of these directions has rendered the Jews the longest living and the healthiest race down to this day. And, truly, an unclean Christian, whether he be so in dress, in the manner of living, in conduct or in habits, is therefore almost an impossibility. Happily America has been doing a great deal to make human life and the conditions pertaining thereto healthier and more sanitary. Through laws, health teaching and health observance, in and through our schools, through hospitals and sanitariums, and through the invention and use of innumerable sanitary appliances of all kinds, the American people have been lead and educated to live more healthily, physically, and as a result the span of the average human life has been lengthened from about thirty-five to fifty years. That should help us to live purer, better lives spiritually, but does it? Will it do it?—T.

Sermon Sketch

All-inclusive Promise

Romans 8:28

"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

Perhaps no promise in the Word of God is more frequently quoted or misquoted than this verse. We are apt to cut off one of the conditions at the close of the verse and thus cut off the confident assurance of the "We know" with which the verse opens. Many will simply say, "All things work together for good." Now may I say, "No one really believes this, neither is it true. Satan does many things for the destruction of man and their eternal loss. God does not intend that all things in existence, and all the activities of the universe should be embraced in such a promise.

To those included in the scope of this promise God undertakes to "work all things together for their good." Here is omnipotent power to be used to move everything into line for the accomplishment of man's highest good. We are assured that heaven and earth and all therein shall be operated to bless us and do us good. What more do we need? But all this is conditioned on "Love." "To them that love God." This promise is not in reach of those who are at enmity with God, and open rebellion. It would never do for such to be included. It is for those who have the love of God shed abroad in their hearts by the Holy Ghost. Only children of the family could be trusted to use such promises.

They must be in harmony with his purpose. "To them who are called according to His purpose." There are many Christions whose lives run contrary to the purposes and plans of God.

The cry "Repent," is heard to-day as it is preached to the church, for many do not enjoy the riches of his grace and can not appropriate this promise. There must be vital contact with high heaven to be included.

There is no question but God is more interested and plans more carefully for the future of His children than the earthly parent for his offspring.

Keep in mind this, dear one, God has in mind a loving plan for your life—the very best that could be devised for you. It will be higher than your fondest choice and exceeds your greatest desire.

Israel marred God's plan for her and missed God's best. The potter and the clay is an interesting lesson on this. Saul by his disobedience marred God's plan for his life. He plans only good for all His children, but how many frustrate God's plan and purposes.

We must seek the mind of God in order to know and do His will. Then when His will is revealed we must surrender to His purposes, that we may prove what is that perfect will of God. Then we need to trust Him.

CHRISTIAN CHARACTER AND PEACE

Colossians 3:1-17

Theme:—The Christian Cure for Strife

Introduction

Paul had never visited the Church of Colosse. He had recently received a report about some heretical teaching which had appeared there. His primary purpose in the letter was to combat this false doctrine. In it he included some rich, practical instructions—our today's lesson.

The True Dynamic of the Christian Life vs 1-4

The Christian life can not be reduced to a set of rules for conduct, dictating what one must do in all cases. The Jewish law was full of such restrictions. Paul shows how a truly Christian life is achieved in verses 1 to 4. The Christian when he accepts Christ, rises with Him, a spiritual resurrection into the newness of life. When risen spiritually with Christ, he ought to seek those things in keeping with the spiritual and heavenly (vs1,2). While we have daily duties to perform, these must not be our goal and master. This new life belongs to the invisible, spiritual kingdom of God, in intimate fellowship with Christ (v3). The Christian's supreme responsibility is to God. His supreme interest should be in the things of God and he should live in the power that comes therefrom.

A Christian's Deeds vs 5-11

Paul here gives some common-sense advice as to the deeds of the Christian and the spirit prompting them. The sinful deeds growing out of bodily lusts are to be "put off" together with the carnal disposition which prompted them (v5). God is eternally opposed to all sin and will punish the sinner (v6). Sin growing out of a vain, egotistic spirit (v8) must also be "put off" now that they have "put on" Christ. These have no place in Christian character. Lying also must go (v9). Christ is the Truth and Christianity can not compromise with untruth. All such vices and practices, the Christian must abandon when he accepts Christ and by the power of the Holy Spirit receives a new nature (vs 9,10). In this new life in Christ, all natural distinctions disappear (v11). All are one in Christ. Paul lays down a great fundamental principle for all our conduct in verse 17. This we should observe carefully.

Picture of a Christian Character vs 12-17

High spiritual privilege and high calling involves obligation. As children of God, risen with Christ into newness of life, elect of God, we have to "put on beautiful garments" (Is. 52:1) befitting out new nature. Paul enumerates these (vs 12,13). Chiefest of these is charity (love), the bond which holds all together and keeps each in its place. The Christian must needs make room in his heart for the peace of Christ which He alone can give (v15). The thankful spirit promotes trust in God and trust brings peace. The word of Christ needs to dwell in the Christian's heart, an integral part of his thought and life (v16). A thankful, happy, trustful heart will express its joyous feelings in songs of rejoicing and thanksgiving. The fullness of the heart will overflow. Hymns and spiritual songs help to give us courage.

Gems of Truth

Children of God should bear some resemblance to their Father.

Many Christians fail to let peace rule in their hearts as they might.

The Gospel brings to us something worth expressing in song.

New Light on the Way of Fellowship

Carl J. Landes

Friends, Brethren and Mennonites probably have more in common in religious faith and practice than any other three church groups. In their opposition to war, the three bodies have been united throughout their history. In building a constructive peace, the Friends have been in the vanguard, with the other two taking some small part in the severe crises—like post-war rehabilitation in Europe, and now in Spain. But, NEW LIGHT is breaking on the WAY OF FELLOWSHIP.

Some twenty-five representatives of these three peace churches, with one Duchobor, one Baptist, one Presbyterian, spent six weeks in a human laboratory near Quakerbridge, N. Y. On the campus of a Quaker Indian Mission School, these young people mixed their pan-a-cea for the world's ills in test tubes of human relationships, and I can say unreservedly that every representative in that venture experienced "NEW LIGHT ON THE WAY OF FELLOWSHIP."

Naming the Venture

The "camp" was set up under the auspices of "The Friends Service Committee," with "the Peace Commission of The Church of the Brethren" and "The Mennonite Peace Society" cooperating. It was set up and publicized as a "Volunteer Work Camp." It would probably be better to call it a hybrid between a Work Camp and a six weeks' Peace Conference. In the Work Camp, usually 7 or 8 hours are spent in manual labor daily, with lectures three or four evenings per week. At Tunnesassa Indian School we spent from 4 to 4½ hours in manual labor, and spent half the day, and three or four evenings a week in study and discussion groups. It was not a Work Camp; nor a Peace Conference. It was a combination of both.

Purpose of the Hybrid

1. An experiment in Fellowship among the youth of the Peace Churches. Those who initiated the movement felt that new light was needed on inter-group fellowship. "What are our fundamental similarities and differences?" "Are our differences so great that our young people cannot profitably work to-gether?" "Can we afford to give our peace testimony separately in the serious world crises today?" Those and other questions were in the background, as we planned for, and gathered at the Indian School.

The first purpose of the camp was to bring representative young people to one place for six weeks, to study, work, play and live together. In a word, it was an experiment in Fellowship of members of the Peace Churches, so that youth might face the problems of war and peace as a unit.

2. It was an experiment in Friendship and Fellowship with the American Indian. The Indian has known little except mistreatment at the hands of whites. The purpose of this camp was to take one little sector of Indians, and find New Light On The Way Of Fellowship," through worship, work and play.

3. The third purpose was a "study group": To study (a) Origin of our common peace testimony and heritage, (b) how that testimony and heritage ought to meet the problems of the Church, society, economics, politics, and of the world, (c) in what direction should we move.

An outline guided our thinking in these areas.

Program To Meet This Three-fold Purpose

I think I should give first-place to our morning worship services in the program of the camp. In discussion and study there was often a clash; we were not always a "unit". But as we sat in worship—often in silence, often in song, in prayer, in meditation—we seemed to experience to some degree the fellowship of the Upper Room, where men and women sat "with one accord in one place."

These worship periods molded Friend, Dunker, Mennonite, Baptist, Duchobor, and Presbyterian into one Fellowship. We couldn't "argue" ourselves into a Brotherhood. But we found New Light on the Way by discovering that we could "worship" our way to a Brotherhood and Fellowship. In the purifying presence of God, differences became dim, or disappeared completely; peace, calm, fellowship replaced argument, stormy discussion, strained relations.

We experienced this same Light on the Way in our relationships with the Indians. Some Sundays we invited them to worship with us at the school; on other Sundays we worshipped with them in their own churches. Slowly the barriers between the real American and us foreigners disappeared. We found ourselves becoming brothers, friends of people whose skin was not like our own; but whose hearts responded to the touch of Love. We found New Light On The Way of Fellowship.

Work and play were definite links in the program to meet the purpose of the camp. At the Indian School we re-roofed two buildings, laid two cement floors, painted a large barn, painted the Indian Court House, canned over 200 quarts of beans, over 100 quarts of huckleberries, apple sauce, etc., to be used by the Indian children in school this winter.

When we "talked" to each other, we often misunderstood one another. We couldn't speak the same language, even when both spoke English. We were not always able to grasp one anothers ideaology. But when we laid cement floors, painted buildings, canned fruits and vegetables—all to be used by and for the Indians—then we were speaking a language which the youngest Indian child and the oldest chief could understand.

In addition to our worship, our work and our play with the Indian, was our study and our discussion. Among the world leaders who led our thinking, were Frederick Sollman, secretary of the interior under Stressman, Bertram Pickard, Pierre Ceresole, of Switzerland, and members of The Friends Service Committee. When no such leaders were present at our camp, we studied our outline, mentioned above.

New Light on Old Paths

The writer grew up in Oklahoma—"Indian Territory." He has been quite "close" to Indians. But he has never experienced real Fellowship with them until this summer. The Spirit of the Volunteer Work Camp is throwing New Light on Old Pathways.

If we had gone to Tunnesassa Indian School ten years ago, we would have "talked" with the Indian about peace and brotherhood. We would have given him literature to "read." We would have taught him how to "argue" with people who accept war and race hatred as inevitable. We would have "told" him how much we love and respect the Indian. Then we would have gone home, leaving the Indian to wonder if we really meant it. But this summer we didn't do it that way. Instead we worshipped with him as a brother, not for ourselves, but for the Indian. We didn't ask him for wages, we paid our own expenses, or they were paid by a church or organization interested.

As evidence that the Indians understood such language, fifty or sixty gathered at the School two evenings before we left, and gave us a sincere Farewell. Preschool children and aged chiefs sang and played for us. The leader spoke simple words of appreciation, which welded into one unity all of us present.

He closed with words which shall remain with us: "We thank you for what you have done for our school and us. We have enjoyed working with you, playing with you, worshipping with you. We offer this evening as a small token of that joy and appreciation. Now shall we bow in prayer, while that lady there, who led in prayer two Sundays ago, dismisses us."

We who were at Tunnesassa have seen New Light On The Way Of Fellowship.

Press Comments on the Chinese-Japanese War

The Philadelphia Record demands a clear-cut policy. It says succinctly:

"Let's fish or cut bait. . . .

"Let's make up our minds what we want to do in the Far East, and then do it. . . .

"If we want to keep out of trouble, then we ought to speed the evacuation of Americans from the Shanghai area and remove our armed forces. . . .

"If we want to save China, for itself or for ourselves . . . . then let's join in a firm declaration with Great Britain and warn Tokio to keep hands off. . . .

"But this business of hesitating on the burning deck between the life boat of neutrality and fighting the fire gets us nowhere."

The national weekly, Labor, answering the pleas of certain editors that we "stop Japan," says:

"The mere fact that 'stopping Japan' might cost tens of thousands of American lives and billions of American money doesn't disturb these gentlemen. . . . The other day. . . one of our destroyers was compelled to give up the job of guarding the Texas Oil Company's plant. . . Why should our navy be used to guard oil tanks in a foreign country?. . . Let's keep our army and navy at home."

The News, of Washington, commenting on the British Cabinet's announced "satisfaction" over close collaboration with this country says:

"If the British are going to continue to 'observe with satisfaction' the efforts of the United States and others to pull the world's chestnuts out of the fires of Asia, they may be in for a disappointment."

"It is high time that Britain, herself, should act. And we do not mean by war. On the contrary, Britain more than any other power is in a position to influence Japan. She, more than any other, might induce that country to come back within the Nine Power Treaty. But Britain will have to get over the negative habit of merely expecting every American to do his duty."

The Pattern

In a California artist's studio, several years ago a strange thing happened. One day as the artist was bending over an etching on which he was working very painstakingly, there suddenly appeared between him and his easel a picture of Jesus. The vision remained stationary, with eyes almost lifelike, looking at the artist, as though to say, "Paint ME."

The artist tried to ignore it, to brush it away, but the vision remained. Only when he got up and went about other tasks did the vision disappear. That night, at a given hour, the vision reappeared to him, just as it had appeared at the studio. The following day again, as before, when he began to work, the vision of Jesus came between him and his etching.

For three days, despite all efforts to dismiss it, the artist met up with that vision. Finally he yielded to the obvious request, "Paint ME," and as he painted it, the vision remained, like a pattern, to guide the strokes of the artist, to determine the shades of his colors, the lights and shadows of the picture. It was only when the picture—a masterpiece of art—was finished, that the vision disappeared, and the artist knew that he had painted, truly, by inspiration.

The painting is today recognized all over the world as one of the most beautiful paintings of Jesus ever made, with an expression so lovely, a character so divine, a light so uplifting, that all who see it are consciously better men and women.

We, too, are artists, painting with permanent colors, on large canvasses, that stretch out on the years of the easel which God has given us. We too, are busy etching what we think is going to be our masterpiece. How carefully, how earnestly we work. How oblivious we become to all around us. How we give ourselves to our self-appointed tasks!

And what a shock it is to us when, between us and our work, appears the picture of Jesus, saying, "Paint ME." Like the artist, we put it off; we shake ourselves and say, "Surely, it is not REAL. I have an etching to get out." It is easy to believe that what we are doing is important. Everyone believes that what he is doing is highly commendable. Too often we find, when our etching is done, that there is no buyer. We find the world is not nearly so much enraptured with the passionate labors of our days as we are ourselves.

Something has to come between us and our work before it will become a masterpiece. That something is a PATTERN, and until there is a master pattern no great work of art, no great life, no great work is ever completed. Until there stands a PATTERN between the eye of the craftsman and his skillful hands, until there stands a PATTERN between the eye of the worker and the hand of the worker no great structure, no great work of art, no worthwhile product can result. The carpenter has his drawing, the mason his blueprint, the electrician his sketch—all are the ideals of the thing they are trying to make.

And YOU and I are artists. Artists painting pictures with which we perforce must live. And others come to see the picture we paint—friends to admire, enemies to criticize—but see it they will, and note it they will. Will it be a MASTERPIECE? Has there come between you and your work a vision of the Master, saying, "Paint ME," and are you painting HIM? When that vision comes between your feverish planning and the feverish activities of your daily tasks, the MASTERPIECE of your life will have begun. Friends will admire it, and so will your enemies—the world will recognize it as genuine, because it will have been drawn to the PATTERN.—B. B.

Prejudices Are Unchristian

John 8:14-17 Deut. 1:16, 17

Young Peoples' topic for Nov. 14

Meditation:

M., Nov. 8 Don't argue with a prejudiced person. Matt. 7:6
T., Nov. 9 Prejudiced against Jesus. Mark 6:1-76
W., Nov. 10 Prejudiced against Nazareth. John 1:45-51
T., Nov. 11 Race Prejudice. Acts 15:1-11
F., Nov. 12 Narrow prejudice. Neh. 13:23-31
S., Nov. 13 Prejudice and contempt. Luke 19:1-7

Suggested hymns:

1. More Like the Master
2. "Open My Eyes That I May See"

Problems:

1. "A prejudice is a hastily formed opinion, a making up of one's mind before all of the facts are known. Prejudices are stupid because the possibility of error is very high. Prejudices are immoral because they involve the abuse and often the distortion of truth. Prejudices are uncertain because they frequently lead to blind action and wrong behavior. Prejudices are of the same order of evil as dishonesty."

2. Our Master faced the day's prejudice of "Can any good come out of Nazareth?" Still He did not argue with any one. The inhabitants of Galilee were shunned because of their want of culture, their rude dialect, and contact with the Gentiles. Philip, through a short period of contact with Christ, learned not to argue against prejudice. When Nathanael said, "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" Philip said, "Come and see." "There is not a place, wherever it be, that has not amazing possibilites of influencing human life. A man may dwell in the remotest wilderness, but if he is a great thinker, there will be a beaten pathway to his door."

Why is it better to have someone see for himself than to attempt to argue him into changing his idea?

3. Is race prejudice an important problem today? Should other races be treated as being inferior? Does overcoming race prejudice mean an intermingling of races? Christ talked to the Samaritan woman. Before the conversation had been carried on very long, she respected Him.

4. "How may we overcome church prejudices?" "There are about two hundred different Protestant denominations in the United States, and those closest in creed and practice are often most bitterly divided. The differences among Christians are not lessened by ignoring them, or by scouting all that do not agree with us as schismatics, or by failing to recognize the sincerity of both sides and their conscientious devotion to what each regards as the truth. These divisions are to be lessened by working together as far as conscience will allow, and by full and frank discussions in the spirit not of suspicion and hatred but of brotherly love." Prejudice was discussed at the Jerusalem conference. Fortunately for Christianity the problem of Freedom from the Law for Gentiles was settled.

5. Do differences of occupations cause prejudices against individuals or certain of our fellow-men? Does being kind to an unpopular person take courage? Are we the losers or the winners? Although Zacchaeus was a rich man, he was despised. Christ, instead of shunning him, said, "Make haste and come down for today I must abide at thy house." "This was certainly an unbelievable honor. That the great rabbi should condescend to speak to him was marvel enough, but that he should actually seek the hospitality of a despised tax-gatherer,—that must have amazed Zacchaeus and the crowd beyond measure." "It often calls for courage to be kind. Did you ever think how brave it was of Jesus to speak in this frank and friendly way to Zacchaeus? Had Jesus been so intent on being popular, he would never have cast his eyes upon the sycamore. Zacchaeus forgot himself, says Matthew Henry. But that was nothing to the self-forgetfulness of Jesus." "It cost Christ something that day to enroll himself as a friend of Zacchaeus. The people thought that there must be a screw loose somewhere —a man is known by the company he keeps. They felt that if he were a prophet he would not have come to Jericho, passing by the leading members of the church in order to be the guest of a tax-collector."

Help Somebody

The missionary committee should be prepared to suggest one or more service projects to the society at this meeting. If there is one outstanding case of poverty in the community, let the members take turns in taking some article of food to the family once a week. The missionary chairman might accompany the donor on each visit. Or a number of smaller gifts of food might be made up, and the society divided into teams, who would call on the homes to be remembered on a certain day. The gratitude of those really in need will be an effective preparation for a true Thanksgiving.

Thoughts for the Leader

Speak of Jesus' attitude toward poverty and riches. His lowly birth. His homelessness, Luke 9:57, 58. He never laid claim to any material possessions.

Again and again he warned his followers of the dangers of riches. The rich man and Lazarus. The rich young ruler, who could not give up his riches. The man who tore down his barns and built larger so that he might hoard more wealth. Then death came and he had to leave it all. "What doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his soul?" To the rich young ruler he said, "Go, sell that which thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven."

It is a disgrace to be lazy and thriftless, but not a disgrace to be poor. But whatever the cause of poverty, those who have must share with those who have not.

Discussing the topic

I. Causes of poverty.

1. What is poverty? What are some things a really poor person lacks?

2. What are some causes of poverty? Is the poor person always responsible for his poverty? Why not?
3. Does poverty always mean a lack of material things? How can a man of wealth still be poor?

II. Cures for poverty.

1. Is it more important to give poor people food or a job? Why?
2. Why is the dole harmful to many people?
3. Why is education and training in a useful occupation the best way to overcome poverty?
4. How can we help the poor in our community? When is charity necessary?
5. Can a needy person depend on God to supply his needs? What would God expect of him?

The Poor Need Champions

It took ten years for Jacob Riis to arouse the people of New York to do something about the terrible conditions in certain tenement districts, such as Mulberry Bend. But he did not give up, and today there is Mulberry Park, with grass and trees, and children playing in the sunshine, instead of four old shacks—all because one man loyally and courageously fought for better social conditions.

For Your Closing

Song: "Help Somebody Today"

Leader: Jesus said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Group response: "Help me in all the work I do
To ever be sincere and true,
And know that all I'd do for You
Must needs be done for others."

Benediction.

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

A LEADER'S PRAYER

Let me come closer to Thee, Jesus,
Oh! closer day by day,
Let me lean harder on Thee, Jesus,
Yes, harder all the way.

Let me show forth Thy beauty, Jesus,
Like sunshine on the hills,
Oh, let my lips pour forth Thy sweetness
In joyous, sparkling rills.

Yes, like a fountain, precious Jesus,
Make me and let me be;
Keep me and use me daily, Jesus,
For Thee, for only Thee.

A leaders' opportunity: The water that I shall give him shall become in him a well of water springing up into eternal life.—Jesus

PROGRAM SUGGESTIONS FOR NOV. 14, 1937

"They Shall Not Want Any Good Thing"

God's Gift of Talent

Opening service:

1. Call to quietness by prelude
2. Rise and sing in unison: "The Lord is in His Holy Temple"
3. Repeat in unison: Psalm 23
4. Leader's opening prayer. (Be seated)
5. Song service in charge of a junior, asking for songs of choice, singing only two verses of each

Mission minutes: Sketches from our conference papers

Announcements: Remember the Thanksgiving project. (See last issue)

Study period. Aim: to teach that the talents which we have are given to us by God for development and for use in the building of His Kingdom

1. Sing in unison the song for this month: "Give of your best to the Master"
2. Discussion: (a) Begin with a diagram on the board showing how from one point which is God, come various gifts to men. Make a dozen or more dots representing people on earth; draw lines from point to point. Then again from points to another point representing the Church of God, show how these talents come to us to be deevloped and used for the one purpose of building the Church of God. Use I Cor. 12:4-11 and Eph. 4:11,12,13

   (b) Let the children name the various talents which they have noticed. Put these on the board as they name them

   (c) Ask the question: What is a Junior's responsibility? This subject should be dealt to a member in time so that he now takes the floor to give thoughts based on Matt. 20:6: "Why Stand Ye Here Idle?"

   (d) Ask question: What happens to the lazy ones who do not develop their talents?" Let a junior answer with story of Luke 19:12-26

   (e) Ask question: What happens to those who develop their talents in using them for the Lord?" Answered by a junior with story of Matt. 25:14-30
3. Special music: "Take my life and let it be"
4. Heart-talk by guest speaker: "The Lord Hath Need of Thee". Create in the young heart a longing to give their all by showing what a blessing was wrought by Bible characters because they served with the talent they possessed
5. Prayer by guest
6. Prayer in song by group: "I need Thee Every Hour"
7. Benediction

TO THE JUNIOR

Ye shall seek me and find me
When ye shall search for me with all your heart.—Jer. 29:13

Neesima never forgot his experience with the idol. The years passed but still his heart wanted to know, wanted to know many things. Neesima was sent to school. When he was eighteen something wonderful happened to him! He was looking through a stack of books. Among these was a primer geography. This he opened and began reading the first lines. They were these: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." A sudden joy, as though the answer to his searching heart was contained in these words, filled his being. He read the words over and over again. He had felt that there must be a wonderful God who had made all things and now this book affirmed it. He had heard that there were shrines in the mountains of Japan and that they were inhabited by spirits but no one, no one had ever spoken of the God who made heaven and earth. But where was this God? How could he find the great Creator. Neesima decided to search for Him. He found that the author of this book was an American missionary and decided that he must seek this author, he would know more of this great God. Something in Neesima's heart (we know it was the voice of the God Neesima sought but he did not know it) told him that this missionary could be found in his homeland, far away America. Neesima began inquiring where America was and how one could get there. You see, way back in the year 1864 when all this happened, Japan allowed no citizens to leave the homeland and no foreigners to enter. So Neesima was told "no," he could not go to America. But Neesima was seeking the God who made heaven and earth, and he was seeking Him with all his heart. One day he wrote down the prayer of his heart. It was this: "O Thou unknown God, if Thou hast eyes, look upon me; if Thou hast ears, hear me, and lead me to Thyself." And our wonderful God who hears every prayer, heard the prayer of Neesima and began answering it. God made a sea captain willing to help Neesima to escape from the homeland. So it came that one day Neesima landed in Boston but for several weeks Neesima had a difficult time to find food and shelter. One day, the owner of the vessel which had brought Neesima to America, heard about the seeking Japanese boy, the Neesima who was now seeking food and shelter and God. This owner of the ship, Mr. Alpheus Hardy was a Christian himself. He found Neesima and adopted him as his own son. How wonderful God had answered the prayer of Neesima. Now he was here in a Christian home where he could learn of the great God. Before long Neesima was sent to Amhurst College and later to Andover Theological Seminary. So it happened that Neesima did not only learn of the true God but our God prepared him for a missionary to his own people. Neesima, who now loved God with all his heart could hardly wait until he could return to dear Japan to tell his people that the idols were in vain, that there was only one God and this God also sent His Son to be the Saviour of the world. O, Neesima could hardly wait until he was finished with his school work, until he could return to tell his people the wonderful story of God and his Saviour.

Next week I will tell you the last chapter in the story of Neesima.

The Love of Jesus

One cold morning, in a street in London, a boy might have been seen ragged and miserable-looking. A gentlemen passing was struck with his hungry appearance and abject looks; and after a few questions had been asked and answered, the promise of food and shelter for the day induced the boy to consent to attend a ragged school not far off, though the condition that he should also learn was not so attractive to him. Poor fellow! He had never known a mother's love, and his father was a drunkard, and paid little heed to him. The story of Jesus and His love came to him as a new and wonderful thing,—he had never heard of it before. Gradually the light shone into his soul, and it was evident to all around that Willie was indeed one of Jesus' little ones. He carried such a well-spring of happiness about with him, that even his miserable home seemed brighter. One evening he sat singing to himself:

"I am so glad that Jesus loves me!"

"Stop that," roared his father, and Willie was silent; but soon, with the forgetfulness of children, began again, "I am so glad." This time he was ordered to bed; and though he went quietly enough, the words kept ringing in his head, "Jesus loves me," and he felt he could not be unhappy now that was true. In the middle of the night he was wakened by hearing his name called, "Willie, Willie, sing that again." Could it be a dream? No; there sat his father beside his bed. So Willie sat up and sang the hymn. "Is it all true, Willie?" "Quite true, father; Jesus died for you and me, so He must love us." "O, Willie, could you pray for me?" "I don't know quite what to say, father." "Say I'm the biggest sinner on earth but I want Jesus to love me and make me good." With his arms clasped round his father's neck, Willie prayed, "Lord Jesus, this is my father, and he says he has been very wicked. O Lord Jesus, make him fit to live with Thee in heaven, and teach him to love Thee." Little Willie's prayer was answered. His father got the forgiveness and peace and joy he so earnestly sought.

The Life, the Truth, the way;
The path of prayer thyself hast trod;
Lord teach us how to pray.

CORRESPONDENCE

SWISS MENN CHURCH, ALSEN, N. D.

Dear Editor: Considerable time has again elapsed and so it become my duty to report some of the things that have happened here. The Lord has blessed us, this year, in material things as well as in a spiritual way. He has directed several minister brethren and sisters to come this way, to serve us and feed our souls. First it was Brother and Sister Sawatzky that visited us, and we thank them for their help. Then, August 22, the dear Brethren Warkentin and Schultz spoke in our church and served us with the Word of God. We do thank them once more. Later Brother and Sister Schmidt and daughter from Minneapolis were here, and brought us the bread of life, through word and song. May God bless them! On Sept. 26 we had a mission and thanksgiving festival, when our missionaries from China, Brother and Sister H. J. Brown, were with us and told us many things of interest and encouragement about their work in that land. We were happy and grateful to hear them. May God bless them and reward them, as well as all the others that served us.—Mrs. Jacob Kunkel.

PORTLAND, OREGON.

Dear Brother Thierstein:

I feel guilty that I have not writen you long ago. We are here now in our home at 3425 S. E. Grant St., Portland, Ore. We live next to our children the Penner's. We are like the returned birds feathering our nest again. Some interesting things have happened since we are here. We came here just two days before the Millers so a welcome reception was to be arranged by a potluck luncheon and program followed by a get acquainted hour. About 100 persons were present. This also was to be farewell for Miss C. Niswander who stood at the head of the Portland Mission for nine years. The church showed her good will toward her and the appreciation toward the faithful work she has done by the Grace of God, by giving her a purse as a token of friendship.

The Rev. Edmund Miller's are now established in their home at 1113 N. E. Webster Ave., Portland, and have taken over the work as Superintendent and Pastor of the church. They are making a favorable impression and are well liked. The little Alberta Community church has not an easy row to hoe as you may think for yourself. But the faithful group working hand-in-hand are endeavoring to make it a place where the Lord likes to dwell and all visitors are welcome.

Brother Ferd Wiens who used to be the manager of the Mennonite Book Concern is going into partnership with a book establishment here in Portland where they will make their home in the future.

Your old schoolmate, S. S. Baumgartner.

DEATHS

REV. STEPHEN D. YODER.—Ministers and friends in the Eastern District Conference were shocked by the sudden home-call of Rev. Stephen D. Yoder, Pastor of the Roaring Spring Congregation, Saturday evening, September 18th.

For many years Stephen D. Yoder was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad as a bridge builder. He labored at this task until he was pensioned. It would indeed be a difficult matter to estimate how many people traveled safely over the bridges he helped to construct.

Not only in the physical realm did he build bridges, but in the spiritual as well. In 1913 he joined the Eastern District Conference and maintained a live relationship with that Conference to his end. At first Mr. Yoder lived at Davidsville, Pa. Later he moved to Roaring Spring and for many years was associated with the late Rev. Jacob Snyder. Six years ago at the death of Rev. Snyder, Rev. Yoder was chosen as Elder of the Roaring Spring Church.

His ability and grasp of the Mission field in the Western part of the State was recognized by the Eastern District Conference. For many years he was the Elder of the Smith Corner Mennonite Church, East Freeman, Pa. Lately he was appointed as Elder of Memorial Mennonite Church, Altoona, and at the last Eastern District Conference, he was elected to the Home Mission and Church Extension Committee. This Committee in turn appointed him as Elder of the Napier Mission Church. Constantly with the flow of years, his sphere of service was enlarged. In many ways his life was unique. It was dominated by a quiet sturdy strength that could only manifest itself over a period of years of time. Always, he was a builder. In the pulpit he constantly pointed to the Christ as the Corner Stone and only safe foundation on which to build for time and eternity.

In the height of his spiritual building work, he was suddenly taken out of this life. On Saturday evening, Sept. 18th, after he had directed a series of Evangelitic Meetings at Napier Church, as he was leaving to go to his lodging place for the night, he was struck by a truck and death was instant. It was an accident. The young driver had attended the meeting and after taking his sister home, was returning to take his parents home. Rev. Menno Myers, Camden, N. J. was the speaker for the meetings. He had concluded his message, but Brother Yoder did not close the meeting immediately, but gave his own testimony of what Jesus meant to him. So the last official deed of our builder friend was to testify for his Master.

A number of ministers and friends from the Eastern part of the State went to attend and take part in the funeral on Tuesday, September 21st, at Roaring Spring, Pennsylvania. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary of Conference had charge of the service.

Rev. Menno Myers, read the Scripture lesson and Rev. John S. Raugh offered the prayer. Rev. Howard G. Nyce, spoke on behalf of the Home Mission and Church Extension Committee, while Rev. C. E. Nagel, pastor of the Lutheran Church of Roaring Spring, spoke for the local Ministerial Association. The Sermon was delivered by Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, Conference President, using 2 Corinthians 5:1 as text.

Born August 3rd, 1868, Brother Yoder brought his age to 69 years, 1 month and 17 days. He is survived by his wife, five daughters and one step-daughter and two brothers.

A builder is gone, but the building goes on. The Lord needs someone else. Who is willing to build? —A. J. Neuenschwander, Secy.

CHRIS. W. KLOPFENSTEIN was born near Leimen, France on Oct. 24, 1862 and passed away in Los Angeles, California on Sept. 14, 1937 at the age of 74 years, 10 months and 20 days. At the age of three wears he came with his parents to Missouri, where he lived until 1919 when he came to California.

In 1883 he was baptized and united with the Mennonite Church. For the past thirteen years he had been a faithful member of the Immanuel Mennonite Church of Los Angeles.

On March 2, 1893 he was married to Emma Roeschly, who with two children, Olga and Fred, are left to mourn his passing. Two sons, Rolla and Elmer, preceded him in death. He is also survived by one brother, J. B. Klopfenstein, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Gilliom, both living in Garden City, Mo.; also by nieces and nephews in Missouri, Ohio and Indiana. Two sisters and one brother preceded him in death.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Eugene Eymann and Rev. H. B. Dirks on Friday, Sept. 17, 1937. Interment was made in the Rose Hills Memorial Park near Whittier, California.

MRS. JACOB KREHBIEL.—Annie Mathilda Artz was born at Versailles, Mo., December 17, 1873, and departed this life September 29, 1937, in Halstead, at the age of 63 years, 9 months and 11 days. The deceased lived in Missouri until February 12, 1908, then moved with her parents to Halstead, Kansas. There she was married to U. B. Remer, in January 1910. He departed this life on September 24, 1921.

She was then married to Jacob Krehbiel of Moundridge, December 18, 1923, who still survives her. She was converted at the age of 19 and joined the Mennonite church at Versailles. On moving to Halstead she had her membership transferred to this church, to which she was a devoted member.

She was preceded in death by her mother and father and a brother, John. She leaves to mourn her departure, her husband; four brothers, Dan J. Artz of Whittier, Calif.; Dave A. Artz of Dalhart, Texas; Oren Artz of Dodge City; Aubrey Artz of Colorado Springs, Colo.; and four sisters, Mrs. John Basinger, Utica, Kansas; Mrs. Loma Geist, Harrison, Ark.; Mrs. Cecil Anderson, Gardena, Calif.; and Mrs. Albert Carlson, of Halstead.

Funeral services were held at the Halstead Mennonite Church, Oct. 7, 1937, the Rev. David Wedel officiating.

JOHN A. SCHUTZ, the son of Jacob and Anna Schutz, was born in Canton Bern, Switzerland on Nov. 20, 1861 and died at Mt. Lake, Minn. on Oct. 12, 1937, having attained the age of 75 years, 10 months and 22 days. Mr. Schutz suffered increasing physical disabilities in recent months. It was natural that he should seek the advice and help of his son, Dr. Elmer Schutz of Mt. Lake, Minn. in this crisis in his life, consequently he went to Mt. Lake, Minn. on Aug. 16 for treatment and later an operation. He was well on the way to recovery when he was swept away in death by a heart attack. Mr. Schutz came to this country in early manhood and made his home at Pandora, Ohio where he lived for many years. He was married to Mary Bixel, May 24, 1887. To this union there were born six children of whom four survive. He was a faithful member of the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio. Funeral services were held on the afternoon of Oct. 15, 1937, conducted by his pastor, Rev. Paul E. Whitmer in the presence of a large congregation.

NEW CHURCH ORGANIZED

A new church has been organized called, "The First Mennonite Church near Deer Park, Washington." Rev. M. J. Galle went up from Odessa to help these brethren organize. Rev. J. M. Regier, who was there at the time assisted. He brought the message of the evening, a very happy incident, since he is the chairman of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference. The church membership was signed by 15 charter members. Sunday, Sept. 12, Rev. and Mrs. Galle were over again and at that time baptized six young people, five of these became members of the First Mennonite Church near Deer Park, and one joined th Mennonite Church near Newport. Communion services were held the same evening. Peter J. Schroeder and John Peters are the deacons elected. The church was organized July 22. Since then Rev. Galle, accompanied by Mrs. Galle, has been going up for an evening service every two weeks. It is hoped that a permanent worker may locate in this community soon.

—The per capita giving of the Presbyterian Church in the United States for their last fiscal year was $20.20, with a total increase of more than $2,000,000 for the entire denomination. How do we Mennonites compare with this?

— The Central Menonite (Relief) Committee, which represents the different Mennonite bodies in relief work, had a session at Newton, Kansas, October 9. This committee had charge of our relief work in Russia some years ago and has had a great deal to do with helping the brethren who were fortunate enough to get out of that country to establish themselves in homes in the Americas, especially in South America. Rev. P. C. Hiebert, a member of the committee, who visited the new Mennonite settlements in South America last summer, gave an interesting report on his trip and the condition of the brethren there. He helped a contingent of 200 families of the settlers in Paraguay acquire possession of a large tract of land. The money for this was loaned by friends of the immigrants, on a long-term note, with 5% interest.

— From the P. P. S. and S. S. U. Notes of the Eastern Conference, we glean the following (this time): THE FALL RALLY OF THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION will be held Sunday afternoon, Nov. 7, at THE FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, PHILADELPHIA. We are happy to announce that Dr. H. A. Fast, traveling Secretary of the Gen. Conf. Y. P. Committee will be the main speaker at the Rally. Let us come in large numbers.—The project of the Union for 1937-38 is to raise $400.00 to be used to pay the expenses of sending Miss Etta Davis of Lansdale to China as missionary. In this way we are helping to carry on the "Great Commission." Matt. 29:19-20. — Over 2000 people enjoyed the song festival given by a chorus of 225 voices of Eastern Conference folks, when they sang the Oratorio, The Holy City, under the direction of Prof. R. A. Lantz a few weeks ago.

— Rev. A. M. Fretz, our kind and ever-active friend from Pennsylvania, writes: I was much pleased to read the poems from the pens and minds of our young people in a recent issue of THE MENNONITE. It was well done. I hope there are more to follow. Every issue of the Mennonite ought to have such gems." We say, AMEN, Brother Fretz. And if those who don't possess the poetic vein will write interesting articles in prose, we will appreciate them, too. Won't we?

— At the recent Diamond Jubilee Convention of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association, Rev. Freeman Swartz gave an illustrated lecture on the subject, Facing the Facts," in the School Admin. Division. And before the S. S. Officers conference he spoke on the subject, Church Increase—One New Member for the Church for Every Two Officers and Teachers." Again in the Adult Division, on the theme, "Who are the Unreached in Pennsylvania?"

— In the October 12 number of THE MENNONITE in the article on "A Teacher's Responsibility" the editor of the "Youth Pages" erroneously stated, "One out of 12 children in the large cities will need to spend some time of their lives in a hospital for the mentally ill," when he should have said 20 (twenty) children.

— The Executive Committee of the General Conference, composed of the conference officers and the chairmen of the different boards, nine members in all, held several meetings between and after the sessions of the W. D. Conference, with President P. R. Schroeder in charge. All members were present, including Reverends C. C. Wedel, vice-chairman, and John Lichti, chairman of the Relief Committee, both of whom had been laid up quite a while. Some important business was transacted.

— The Western District Conference held its annual session in the city auditorium at McPherson, Kansas, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week. With fine fall weather all the way through, the meetings were largely attended, the average attendance averaging about 900-1000, or more on one or two of the meetings. Under the efficient leadership of Rev. P. P. Wedel, as chairman, and under the guidance of the Holy Spirit everything progressed satisfactorily and everybody felt blessed. The interest was good, the reports encouraging, and the special addresses were splendid. We shall try to bring some of the "morsels" in the coming issues of this paper.—A new church joined, making the total number of churches in the district 58. The statistical report showed a total membership of 10,173, a gain of 215 for the year. There are 3,390 seniors in the C. E. societies and 1342 juniors; 101 active and retired ministers. Rev. Wedel was reelected chairman and Rev. Abraham Albrecht, secretary.

— Rev. D. J. Unruh, pastor of the St. John church, Pandora, Ohio, has been holding meetings at the Salem Zion Church, near Freeman, South Dakota.

FAITH CONQUERS FEAR.—"Why are ye fearful? How is it that ye have no faith?"—Mark 4:40. The disciples should have had faith by that time. Christ's many and wonderful miracles had given them abundant ground for faith, if they had chosen to use it. Even the terrible and sudden storm on the Sea of Galilee should not have been too much for the faith they might have cultivated by that time.

We are as foolish as they, most of us. We have had rich opportunities for the growth of a faith strong enough to move mountains and quell storms. Our lives have been crowded with evidences of God's power and His all-comprehensive goodness. What more can Christ do for us than He has done? What more mercies, what great deliverances have we a right to expect? Why are we still fearful? Why do we not rest our trust calmly and fully on our Savior?

WHEN TEMPTATION STRIKES.—Temptation strikes like lightning from the blue. It may come without sign or warning. Is there any hope of victory before such a lightning thrust? God in his Word tells us there is. He authorizes us to say, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" (Phil. 4:13). And "all things" includes sudden temptation. He also declares that sin shall not have dominion over us (Rom. 6:14),—even when the lightning strikes. Temptation may take us by surprise, but it never takes the Lord by surprise. He is our life, our protection, our victory. We are in him, and he is in us. At such a time the secret of instantaneous victory is, not to pray for victory,—there is not time for that,—but to praise God that he is giving us the victory. For he is—he pledges us his word for this. "Thanks be unto God who is giving us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (I Cor. 15:57). There are many times when praising is better than praying. Of course, praise is prayer; but there is a difference between asking and taking; and praise takes, while prayer asks. We have no need to ask God to give what he is giving. —Sunday School Times.

When a man resists sin on human motives only, he will not hold out long.—Bishop Wilson.

RICHES. — Generally speaking, Christians will agree that God is the source of all earthly goods and of our possessions, whether they be large or small. "The Lord maketh poor and maketh rich; he bringeth low and lifteth up.—1 Sam. 2:7.—At the same time it cannot be denied that thrift and diligence have a great deal to do with the amassing of wealth. "He becometh poor that dealeth with a slack hand; but the hand of the diligent maketh rich."—Prov. 10:4. Again observation and experience teaches us that a person, a family, can be happier with small means than others who have much. "A little that a righteous man hath is better than the riches of the wicked." —Psalm 37:16.—"There is that maketh himself rich; yet hath nothing; there is that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches."—Prov. 13:7.—Really great men have usually spurned money and affluence. Aggassiz, the great scientist stated that he was too busy to give lectures for $500.00. Spurgeon turned down an offer of $50,000 to come to America to give fifty lectures, saying he could do better in London by rescuing fifty souls. And we know what attitude Moses, the apostle Paul, and, chief among them, our Saviour, took toward earthly possessions. God's Word does not condemn riches, but it warns against the amassing of wealth for selfish reasons or against their wrong use. Jesus' dearest friends, Lazarus and his two sisters, were very-well-to-do, and their home was the Master's dearest stopping place. Dives was not doomed to perdition because he was rich, but because he didn't make the right use of his wealth. Jesus regarded the rich young Ruler with kindly feelings, but counseled him to sell all he had to give it to the poor, for he saw that his heart was tied to his possessions. Jesus plainly taught that it wasn't wrong to have riches in the hands, to pass them on, but he scorned riches wrapped up in the heart. There is no particular virtue in being poor. Jesus was poor for our sake, that he might be a Savior for all. Wealth has its proper use which is best illustrated by a flowing stream of water, used for irrigation. As the rivulets flow on over the lands, they unselfishly carry opportunity, well being, prosperity all along the way. Hoarded wealth or wealth used for selfish purposes is much cause for evil. Wealth kept on moving and used to do good brings blessings.

Flood Relief Needed For China

Poor China is at present not only torn-tortured by war, but is experiencing another major flood, which also includes again our field, as can be seen from the following report by Brother S. F. Pannabecker. He says that people admit that it is worse than the flood in 1933. He does not directly appeal for relief funds, but the Board has already sent $1000.00 now, and we herewith wish to appeal for gifts for this purpose:

Kai Chow, Hopei,
September 10, 1937

Dear Brother Richert:

You will have received a couple letters from me already regarding the situation in China and our plans. I mentioned from Kikungshan our contemplated return to the interior. Mr. Voth, my brother and I, returned as written but found the trip very slow on account of the bad floods that have occurred this summer. The trip to here usually takes three days and has been made in as little as 24 hours, using auto for overland travel. This time it took us just 20 days until we arrived at Kai Chow. We were balked at every turn and arrived only after travelling by horse cart, mule back, boat and some walking. Enroute it also rained a great deal which further delayed us.

Even the oldest inhabitants do not remember such rain as we have had this summer. In a country which floods very easily this has been disastrous. We traveled from Taming to Kai Chow entirely by boat and found large areas under water, some as deep as fifteen feet. Estimate that one half of our field between here and Taming has been under water. Crops are ruined, though in high places where the water did not reach there are some good crops. The heavy rains have caused many of the mud houses to fall down. In the continual heavy rains the dirt walls and foundation collapse. Where they have stood in water, of course, the foundation just melts. Roofs are covered with mud and straw. The dirt washes out and soon opens holes to the sky and the roof caves in. Everywhere there are just innumerable fallen houses, with timbers, mud, straw, rafters, furniture, all in a dirty jumble.

Between Tsingfeng and Taming the situation was complicated by the flooding of rivers. Three rivers converge west of Nanlo and Taming, all were swollen and all broke thru their dikes, this accounts for the terrible conditions up there. Lung Wang Miao has well over half of its buildings washed down by a flood that engulfed the city. Kept out by the city walls until it got to be ten feet high, it finally broke through and made havoc. However, the best buildings in the city, including the section where our mission buildings are, were not destroyed.

As to our own place here I might add a few words. Water reached right up to the compound and when we arrived on the boat we stepped off right in front of the church. During the worst rains our compound had been practically all standing in water. At the Bible School the whole yard was under water and still has water standing in it. The dormitory buildings had water a few inches deep on the floor. The big class building has water four or five feet deep now in the cellar. Outside in the yard all the small kitchens and toilets built of mudbricks, seven of the eight, collapsed. Walls of mudbricks all are down, though the brick walls and buildings stood up well. Because of this situation and the necessity of repairs and arrangements being made, school opening has been postponed for three weeks. In Hua Mei School and in the city mudbrick walls and buildings have fallen similarly. I estimate there are 300 feet of walls down.

Chang Yuan has sent word of fallen buildings and walls there, too, but I have not been down to see yet. Tung Ming the same story, complicated by severe earthquake shocks, worse than this northern part of the field.

We are doing such repair as is most essential and trying to get things started. Travel to outstations is still very difficult and still mostly by boat. Students from Chang Yuan and Tung Ming made most of the trip by boat. People admit that this is worse than the Yellow River flood in 1933. Relief funds will be welcome in almost any amount, though we have as yet made no plans for definite work in this line.

As to the military situation, I can only say here, that the consul continues by telegram and letter to urge our early withdrawal from here. I shall send a copy of his letter by ordinary post, which expresses the idea of the American government that all Americans withdraw, not only from the interior, but eventually even from China, to such places as Hongkong or Manila. We do not feel like taking such a step without knowing your opinion of the subject. For the present this place seems all right, but eventually one cannot say what may happen. Hence, we desire to stay as long as possible. Under the situation we felt the only reply to your cable about Miss Goertz was to have her sailing postponed. She should not come, unless she wishes to come into the interior and stay here regardless of the government's instructions and unless you also approve the step.

We are planning to get the work under Chinese supervision so that it can continue as usual even if we should leave. In another couple weeks we plan to return to Kikungshan, with winter equipment for the families, and to get them setlted. Then, if feasible, return here for another period of work. Third Quarter-remittances received here O. K. Thanks.

Schools and Education

D. H. Richert

EDUCATIVE INFLUENCES

Truslow Adams, in the Atlantic Monthly, November, 1929, discusses five great educative influences for the life of the spirit: one's daily toil; social intercourse; travel; educational institutions; religion.

One's daily toil has for its object the earning of a living but it should have in addition an interest in itself. It is a mistake to think that such an interest can be aroused only by intellectual and not by manual work, but, in order that it should be, the worker must feel that he is creating something which he can see grow up and develop as a result of his toil. In this respect there was never before, perhaps, a period in which work had less spiritual value for most people than it has today. The worker himself has been lost in the complicated machinery of production, and in our worship of efficiency the machinery has come to be considered somehow such a desirable good in itself as to warrant any sacrifice in its name.

Social intercourse in the same way has succumbed to the machinery ostensibly provided for it. Clubs and organizations of all sorts for bringing people together are legion, but conversation has almost as completely disappeared as has letter writing between friends. We are too busy rushing from one meeting to another that our minds themselves have almost entirely ceased to meet.

Travel, again, has largely ceased to have the educational value it once had. Because one can make 300 or 400 miles a day, people make it. A certain guide book explains how one can see London in one day. This is no joke. It is intended as a serious guide for travelers in search, presumably, of education and culture.

Is the situation different in our educational systems? As one enters the campus of college or university, one is shown the 'John Smith Law Building,' or the 'New Stadium.' The 'plant' is superb, but one too often looks in vain for the spirit of either Christ or culture. So far Adams.—

If Adams is right, then let his observations be a warning to the church-related college to remain true to its original purpose: To be a spiritual force in the community; to be a center of Christian education, with the emphasis upon Christian; to be a recruiting station for Christian leadership.

Religion in our Colleges

Religion expects a "reasonable break" from a college but a good college will rebuke the American Protestant churches for lack among them of proper religious education, Dr. Frederick H. Knubel, President of the United Lutheran Church in America, told the assemblage, "We are condemning the Nazis for interference with the Church's youth, but there is more religious education under the Nazi regime than is fostered by American Protestantism."

Religion, said the distinguished churchman, expects a good college to be humble. Padded catalogues, the arrogance of great endowments, or even athletic arrogance all make loud sounds, he said, while the quiet college gives humble but true learning. Religion expects the good college to be thoroughly scientific in that it welcomes the facts. Religion is wondering as to the proper term to apply to professors who cannot admit all the facts, who have little more than a sneer for conscience and faith and the Bible of Jesus Christ. He urged that the colleges recongnize not only the limited and handicapped character of human learning, but its fallible character. They must teach that religion connotes revelation and that without revelation there is no religion.

PUBLICATION

Order Your Christmas Needs from The Mennonite Book Concern

THIS IS THE TIME WHEN SUNDAY SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES ARE PLANNING FOR THE OBSERVANCE OF CHRISTMAS. MATERIALS FOR PROGRAMS, BIBLES, GIFT BOOKS, GREETING CARDS, AND OTHER MATTER IN THE LITERARY LINE WILL BE NEEDED.

WILL COMMITTEES, SUNDAY SCHOOL OFFICERS, MINISTERS, PARENTS—ALL—KINDLY REMEMBER THAT THE MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, BERNE, INDIANA, OUR OWN BOOK-STORE AND PUBLICATION OFFICE HAS EVERYTHING IN THAT LINE IN STOCK AND IS ANXIOUS TO SERVE OUR PEOPLE. A CATALOG WILL GLADLY BE SENT TO COMMITTEES AND INDIVIDUALS THAT ARE INTERESTED. WRITE FOR ONE IN TIME.

A Fine Chirstmas Present

SOMEONE HAS RECENTLY SUGGESTED THAT THE MENNONITE WOULD MAKE A GOOD CHRISTMAS PRESENT OR, WHERE THE GERMAN LANGUAGE STILL PREVAILS, THE BUNDESBOTE. WHY NOT SUBSCRIBE FOR ONE OF THE PAPERS FOR YOUR FRIENDS, ESPECIALLY YOUNGER FAMILIES, TO HAVE THE PAPER VISIT THEM EVERY WEEK THROUGH THE YEAR TO GET THEM ACQUAINTED WITH OUR CONFERENCE ACTIVITIES.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS MAY HAVE THE MENNONITE FOR ONE DOLLAR FOR A YEAR.

MINISTER'S SHORT COURSE

Bethel College is again offering a short course for ministers and their wives, similar to the one of a year ago. Three courses will be offered by members of the college faculty. Each course will meet for one class period each week. Monday afternoon has been chosen as the time of meeting for all classes. The work will continue for twelve weeks, meeting one half day each week.

Those who enroll may take three courses. The first meeting of the classes will be held Monday afternoon, November 1.

List of Courses

1. The Use of the Bible in Preaching.

This course will be devoted to a study of the Bible as used in various types of preaching. The course will be planned as a seminar under the direction of Rev. J. N. Smucker.

2. Pastoral Psychology.

This will be a study of psychology in its relation to religious work and the duties of the pastoral office. Dr. P. S. Schellenberg will direct the work of this course.

3. The High Lights of Modern Science.

Dr. Friesen, Professor Richert, Dr. Doell, and Dr. Kreider plan to present in this course a few of the important discoveries from their respective fields of science. Especially such matters as are of interest to ministers will be considered.

The Plan of the Course

Length of the Course: Twelve Weeks.
Beginning: Monday, November 1.
Time of Meeting: Monday afternoon of each week.
Enrollment Fee: One Dollar.
Schedule of Classes:

1:00-1:50	The Use of the Bible in Preaching—Room 11
1:55-2:45	Pastoral Psychology—Room 12
2:50-3:40	The High Lights of Modern Science—Room 305

"BURGLARY AND THE BIBLE"

The Dearborn Independent, under the curious heading which appears above, published the following suggestive little item:

"Anyone would be foolish to contend that the mere reading of the Bible in our public schools would revolutionize the morals of a nation over night. It seems equally unwise to assert it would make no improvement on a generation. The burglary insurance rate is $12.00 per thousand in Boston, $22.00 in New York, and $27.50 in Chicago. Is there any connection between these figures and the fact that the Bible has been read daily in the public schools of Boston for sixty-five years? for twenty-two years in New York, and excluded for thirty years from the schools in Chicago.?"

The Critical Economic Condition of Mennonite Youth

Henry Peters, Bethel College, Kansas

The discussion of the topic on Home Mission at the Western District Conference last week revealed the fact that our practice in regard to conserving young Mennonite people for the church is somewhat like this: We wait till a group drifts to some larger town and then we try to rescue them, instead of inspiring and interesting the jobless people of the overcrowded communities to get together and settle down in a new place for the purpose of establishing a new Mennonite community. Will this method solve the problem of congested Mennonite communities?

This overcrowdedness in old Mennonite communities is driving young Mennonite people off the farm and out of Mennonite communities. There are no longer any frontiers in this country, and we did not have a general outlet for young Mennonite people for the last 25 or 30 years. Some faint attempts to find an outlet have been made in the past, but they have ended in utter failure. Now there seems to be the general belief among some parents that if they want to save their children for the Mennonite church, they must keep them in the home community by all means. Hence they strain all their energy to secure a little piece of land for their children to start with. This attitude to keep the children near home has greatly speeded up the crowding of old Mennonite communities and of crowding off the farms scores of young Mennonite men. Another result is, that many more Mennonites have gone into business and professional life than otherwise would have, which will greatly change Mennonite characteristics.

It is a well admitted fact that successful farming here in the west can be done only by a complete set of modern implements which takes about $2500 to $3000. Now where can you find a young beginner who has or can afford to spend $2500 for implements, just in order to rent a farm. A beginner with just a three horse sulky-plow or even a gang plow with horses has no business on the farm. On the other hand, a farmer who owns a half section of land and a modern set of implements can much easier rent another quarter of land 5 or 6 miles away from home than a beginner on the place with a sulky plow and horses. What shall these young men do with themselves? Many are just drifting.

Some four years ago I was informed from good sources, that there were forty Mennonite girls working in Hutchinson, Kansas, mostly from around Buhler and Inman. I told this to a lady in Newton and she said, that she believed there were just as many working in Newton. May we not conclude from this that there are many more working in Wichita? There is no doubt that many are working in McPherson.

The result of this crowded condition is this: On the one hand the cooperative spirit and sympathy of pioneer days is giving way to competition and jealousy. As a friend puts it, there is competition for a dollar-a-day job. On the other hand, there is cold indifference towards the needs of the poor and the down-and-out. Then those who have been struggling against competition for years for a living will not likely settle down in a new place, because they do not want this competition over again.

This condition has just a good start. Our churches are full of young people in the teen-age. What will we do in 10 or 15 years from now when these youngsters take up life on their own responsibilities. They are supposed to be the Mennonite church of tomorrow. How much support can you expect of them when they will be scattered all over the state of Kansas and the United States?

No doubt we should grow in our Christian activities such as: education, missions, hospitals, etc.; but the church can grow in these activities only if it is on a sound growing basis itself. As the conditions are today, many of the present younger generation will not be property owners.

Note: The writer of this essay has a remedy for this situation.

Reading the Bible

The Scriptures were written to reveal the mind of God to man: let us read the Bible to learn the Divine will. It is often pointed out that the Bible is literature, the greatest in the English language, and there is no finer education than to study it as a great work of literature, a collection of books that bear the mark of literary genius on every page. This is perfectly true. No one can claim to be truly educated if he be not familiar with the Bible which is the treasurey of much that is noblest and best in our literature annuals. But the Bible is much more than literature. It is a revelation of God's will. The Psalmist did not sing his songs because they were beautiful. The prophets did not proclaim their message because they were masters of the highest eloquence. Psalmist and prophet spoke because they had seen the vision of God and could not rest until they had declared it. The recorders of the Gospel story and the writers of the Epistles were intent not upon the form which their writings took, but upon what they had to tell. They proclaim the Gospel of Christ.

The Scriptures were written to confirm us in our faith: let us read the Bible that our faith may be established. It is one thing to discover in the Bible the will and purpose of God; it is another and still better thing to have our faith in God's revelation strengthened and enriched. We are frail and wavering beings. The faith that was a shining light yesterday may be burning dim to day. Convictions that once stood steady as a rock may be shaken and overturned by adverse circumstances or the upheaval of the world around us. The hopes that formerly led us on may be broken and shattered now, and our great need is to have our faith renewed and strengthened and established forever.

The Scriptures were written to show the continual presence of God through history; let us read the Bible that we may realize that presence in every page and clime.

The Scriptures were written to put heart and hope into a man; let us read the Bible to find the encouragement we need. It is a universal Book, and touches life at every point. Triumph and defeat, laughter and tears, storm and calm, sin and holiness—these facts and experiences are in the pages of the Holy Writ; and the accent of hope is never absent. It is the Book of Good Cheer; the most exhilerating volume in all literature and no one can read it with understanding and remain cynical or hopeless.

The Bible is the Book for today. It is the only Book that can lead us to an adequate solution of the problems of the modern world. Other books make their contribution of light and truth and we welcome light and truth from whatever source they come—but in the Bible we find "a master of light of all our seeing." At the time when hearts fail us for fear and when the outlook is dark and menacing let us go back to the Book of books, and hear its great summons, "Hope thou in God."

So much of our time in this world we seem to be carrying on our struggle in twilight or fog; nothing but light from the Bible can lighten the twilight or dispel the fog.—Selected.

THE PARISHES SURPASS THEMSELVES

IN GERMANY.—The day for home missions, which was kept in nearly all the provincial churches on September 19, gave overwhelming proof of the parishes' recognition of the churches' work of charity. Attendance at the services was in many parishes equal to that on the great festivals. And one gained the impression that a parish is there as a community existing for the charitable work of the church and that it regards the affairs of the home missions not as a matter of official duty, but rather as its own personal concern. Very gratifying church collections were taken, showing that the parishes, on extraordinary occasions, are ready to make sacrifices. The results known so far vary in the different places. A great many parishes produced ten times and in some instances fifty times the amount usually collected. In a large town of the west, a total was reached which was not far off the total usually collected in the largest of the German provincial churches. And the general experience has been, as on a similar occasion some weeks ago in Wuertemberg and East Prussia, that a collection in the German churches has never met with such fine results.—I.C.P.I.S. Geneva.

ON PREPARATORY OCCASION

I Sam. 7:3

In our Bible lessons ending with September, we were deeply interested in the travels and history of the Hebrew people. We stopped with them on the east side of the Jordan, with Moses giving them farewell. They soon took possession of Canaan, under the leadership of Joshua. At the time of our text, they had enjoyed their God-given possessions for 330 years, in varied experiences. Judges 21:25. The saddest of these experiences was on the occasion when their greatest enemy, the Philistines, took from them, in battle, the Ark of the Lord, leaving them separated from God and His worship.

1. Loss of an inestimable value.
2. A long time—twenty years.

The ark was recovered. Now their great leader and judge set about the task of getting the people back to God and true worship, so he addresses them in the language of this, our text verse.

There must be 1. A returning 2. A separation from all things false 3. A heart preparation for service. True Christianity, true service to God, a real blessing at the Lord's table are heart matters and demand heart preparation. A few days ago, a high official expressed, in a public speech, a few sentiments which are worthy of appreciation, and which by paraphrasing with the sentiments of the greater leader Samuel, and the still greater, our Lord Jesus will aid in our preparation of heart for the Communion table. I quote sentiments 1 and 2. "The development of civilization and of human welfare is based on the acceptance by individuals of certain fundamental decencies in their relation with each other." "The development of peace in the world is dependent similarly on the acceptance by nations of certain fundamental decencies in their relation with each other." I paraphrase—The development of the Christian life and welfare is based on the acceptance by the individual of certain fundamental decencies (principles) in their relation with each other. This applies to nations as well. These fundamental decencies (if the term is proper here) are 1. A changed heart 2. The mind of Christ within (Phil. 2:5) 3. A brotherly feeling (Heb. 12:1) Abhorrence of all evil (Rom. 13:9) 4. Joy in God's service (Phil. 4:4) 5. Growth in grace and in our Lord and Savior (1 Peter 3:18, Jude 20.) I quote third sentiment "Ultimately I hope each nation will accept the fact that violations of these rules of conduct are an injury to the well-being of all nations." In application of the above—Ultimately I hope each member will accept the fact that violations of these Christian principles are an injury to the well-being of the Church.

THE CHRISTIAN MINISTER

1 Timothy 4:6-16; 2 Timothy 2:1-4

Theme: The Christian Minister in the Modern World

Introduction

The work of the Christian minister is extremely important in extending the Gospel and in helping the saved develop into well-rounded Christians. His duties are manifold. He needs to be able to preach in and interesting and profitable manner; have wisdom to give proper counsel in varied situations; have good administrative ability. His task is a difficult one demanding especial ability.

Preaching and Doctrine vs 6, 7, 9-11

Timothy, for some years companion and helper of Paul, was now in charge of the large church in wealthy and worldly Ephesus. Some pagan preaching had crept among the Christian converts. Timothy is urged (v6) to combat these false teachings, denounced by Paul (vs 1-5). This he is to do in the only right way—by preaching the truth. Timothy's early training (6b) fitted him well for this. Idle speculations and myths shall not have any place in his ministry (v7). There needs to be consecration unto godliness for the subduing of the passions.

Paul reminds Timothy (9, 10) that his task will not be easy; however, having an abiding trust in God and Christ, the Savior, he will not falter nor waver. In Christ, provision is made for the salvation of all, but only believers will accept this proffered salvation. The love of God, justice and mercy of God, salvation in Christ, is to be the burden of his teaching. (v11).

Profitable Exercise v. 8

Bodily exercise is of some profit. We are to make our bodies good instruments for God's service. There are no limits to the benefits of exercise in godliness, neither in this life nor in that to come. Some think that godliness, holiness, is chiefly a good thing to die by. Our religious faith, if genuine, serves to give us strength, courage and spirit in this life and prepares us for that to come.

Parish Duties vs. 12, 13

Timothy, probably about thirty, was required to exercise disciplinary control over some much older. Some might resent this. His manner of daily living—a model of what the faithful are—should give him and his message power, even though young in years (v12). This verse applies with equal force to the laymembers of the Church. Both minister and people must practice what they preach and profess. Above all, the Word is to be read publicly and privately, is to be studied and expounded (v13). This is the minister's primary task.

Call to Consecration vs. 14-16

The divine gift, God's direct endowment, is not to be neglected (v14) by lack of use, misuse, and lack of meditation (v15). The source of the spiritual life must be nourished, refreshed through meditation and prayer.

Call to Fidelity and Courage. 2 Tim. 2:1-4

Paul sounded a bugle call to courage and steadfastness. The Church had come upon dark days. Persecution was rampant. Timothy was to be fearless in preserving the truth (v12) and in teaching it to others. This would require all his heart's allegiance (v4) and would bring hardship upon him. His first thought is to be to please God who called him.

Gems of Truth

Example is the most persuasive teacher.

Youth can be as true as age.

Every Christian life should be above reproach.

The preacher must be especially careful that his teaching is the truth of God.

ANNUAL ARMISTICE MESSAGE TO THE CHURCHES

WHAT SHOULD THE CHURCHES DO?

Armistice Sunday, November 7, 1937

Following we give the most important portions of a letter issued by the Department of International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America:

A TIME FOR GRAVE WORDS

Armistice Day 1918: The World was jubilant. The Great War was ended and a new world was to be built with a better way of dealing with difficulties between nations. There had been enough of the mad way.

Frequently, the anniversary of that Day was celebrated in optimism and enthusiasm. The better way was in prospect.

Armistice Day 1937: Today the world is in tragic gloom. Wars and rumors of wars oppress with death and fear. In Spain and China men are following the old mad way. Many other nations are frantically preparing. Millions are in despair. Other millions cling to declining hope of peace.

Pessimism is more prevalent this Armistice season. The better way seems to many to have been the vision of utopian idealists. Therefore light and easy words should not be spoken today. Facile optimism is of no avail. Grave words are demanded.

The Oxford Message on War: The recent World Conference at Oxford was grave. Participating in its councils were men whose families and churches were at that time in cities molested by bomb and shell. The statements emanating from that Conference constitute the most significant pronouncements on the problem of war issued by any church assembly of our time.

This Conference message is being used today in thousands of churches around the world. As we read the following statements let us enter in spirit into fellowship with our Christian brothers of many nations, languages and creeds who shared in formulating them or who are hearing them and pondering their solemn meaning today.

THE JUDGMENT UPON WAR

The Conference pronounced a "condemnation of war unqualified and unrestricted," as it was described in the summary Message to the Churches:

"Wars, the occasions of wars, and all situations which conceal the fact of conflict under the guise of outward peace, are incident in a world to which the Church is charged to proclaim the Gospel of redemption. War involves compulsory enmity, diabolical outrage against human personality, and a wanton distortion of the truth. War is a particular demonstration of the power of sin in this world, and a defiance of the righteousness of God as revealed in Jesus Christ and Him crucified. No justification of war must be allowed to conceal or minimize this fact."

THE CHURCH DURING WAR

"All Christians acknowledge one Lord, whose claim upon them is such as to transcend all other loyalties. Here is the first obligation of the Church, to be in living fact the Church, a society with a unity so deep as to be indestructible by earthly divisions of race or nation or class."

"The Church should remind its members that the principle of the unconditional supremacy of the State or nation, advanced either in time of peace or of war, is incompatible with the Church's faith in Jesus Christ as its only Lord, and is therefore unacceptable as the final form of judgement or action. It is the Church's duty to serve the nation in which it is placed, but the greatest service which it can render is to remain steadfast and loyal to its Lord, and to test rigorously all claims of national interest by His Gospel."

"The Church, confessing its faith in redemption through Jesus Christ, sees in every man a 'brother for whom Christ died'. In time of war, as in time of peace, it should pray not only for the nation in which God has placed it, but also for the enemies of that nation. If Christians in warring nations pray according to the pattern of prayer given by their Lord, they will not be 'praying against' one another. The Church should witness in word, in sacramental life and in action, to the reality of the Kingdom of God which transcends the world of nations. It should proclaim and obey the commandment of the Lord, 'Love your enemies'."

STEPS TOWARD A JUST AND PEACEFUL SOCIETY OF NATIONS

"To condemn war is not enough. Christians must do all in their power to promote among the nations justice and peaceful cooperation, and the means of peaceful adjustment to altering conditions":

(1) "Especially should Christians in more fortunate countries press the demand for justice on behalf of the less fortunate." "The unequal distribution of natural bounties is one of the main causes of war, if control is used to create a monopoly of national advantages. Christian people should move their governments to abstain from such policies and to provide a reasonable equality of economic opportunity."

(2) "So far as the present evil is political, the heart of it is to be found in the claim of each national State to be judged in its own cause. The abandonment of that claim, and the abrogation of absolute national sovereignty, at least to that extent, is a duty that the Church should urge upon the nations."

(3) "The churches should constantly warn their members of the grave danger involved in the feverish and uncontrolled race for rearmament, as both a symptom and a source of irresponsible power politics, and should insist upon the need and practical possibility of limitation and ultimate reduction of armaments by conference and multilateral agreement."

(4) "While giving discriminating support to work for peace through the League of Nations and kindred organizations, the Church cannot leave the duty of peace-making to political agencies. The Church is itself called to a ministry of reconciliation in a world riven by fears, suspicions and grievances. The Church should be able by the leading of the Spirit to discover characteristically Christian ways of intervening as a healing and reconciling influence in a world of conflict."

A STATEMENT ON THE FAR EASTERN CONFLICT

We strongly support the government of the United States in its protest over the bombing of non-combatant civilians in China and in its collaboration with the Advisory Committee of the League of Nations on the Far Eastern Situation. We urge that every step be taken to protect missionary lives short of that military action which would defeat the purpose of the missionary enterprise as a brave and unselfish adventure of love.

We urge all Christian people by prayers and speech and action to support that loyalty to a world of universal justice and goodwill to which Christians are committed by their loyalty to Christ. There can be no lasting solution of the problems of China and Japan apart from mutual respect, conciliation and friendliness. Consequently, although Japan's aggression against China must be condemned and her deliberate bombing of civilian populations viewed with horror, we must not permit that judgment to induce enmity or violence against the Japanese people. We earnestly hope that our missionaries may be strengthened in their difficult task of helping their Christian brethren in both nations to refrain from bitterness and recrimination.

Note:—Program suggestions for churches, services of worship, informational literature and lists of publications on peace may be secured from the Department of International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, 105 East 22nd Street, New York, N. Y. Those who send $1.00 or more for the purpose will be put on our mailing list for bulletins of the Department and carefully selected pamphlets.

Napoleon's Tribute

"Can you tell me who Jesus Christ was?" Napoleon once asked Count Montholon, at St. Helena. When the count declined the question, Napoleon gave the following description and tribute:

"Well, then, I will tell you. Alexander, Caesar, Charlemagne, and I have founded great empires, but upon what did these creations of our genius depend? Upon force! Jesus alone founded His empire upon love, and to this very day millions would die for Him. . . . I think I understand something of human nature, and I tell you all these were men and I am a man. None else is like Him. Jesus Christ was more than a man. . . . I have inspired multitudes with such a devotion that they would have died for me . . . but to do this it was necessary that I should be visibly present, with the electric influence of my looks, of my words, of my voice. When I saw men and spoke to them I lighted up the flames of self-devotion in their hearts. . . . Christ alone has succeeded in so raising the mind of man towards the unseen that it becomes insensible to the barriers of time and space. Across a chasm of eighteen hundred years Jesus Christ makes a demand which is, above all others, difficult to satisfy. He asks for that which a philosopher may often seek in vain at the hands of his friends, or a father of his children, or a bride of her spouse, or a man of his brother. He asks for the human heart. He will have it entirely to Himself. He demands it unconditionally, and forthwith His demand is granted. Wonderful! In defiance of time and space, the soul of man with all its powers becomes an annexation to the empire of Christ. All who sincerely believe in Him experience that remarkable supernatural love towards Him. This phenomenon is unaccountable; it is altogether beyond the scope of man's creative powers. Time, the great destroyer, is powerless to extinguish the sacred flame; time can neither exhaust its strength nor put a limit to its range. This it is which proves to me quite conclusively the divinity of Jesus Christ."

The Spread of Gambling

"Recent months have seen a marked increase in gambling in the United States," says an editorial note in the American Magazine, New York, for October. The magazine sent Thomas Surgrue, a young reporter, throughout the country to investigate. His findings are published under the title of "Betting 10 Billion Dollars," the figure indicating the estimate of the gross value of the betting of people of the nation for the year 1937. In 1936 the journal American Business, Chicago, estimated that the total amount of money wagered in the country at $6,600,000,000 for the year 1935. (See Information Service for October 24, 1936). Mr. Sugrue says that the total amount has been increasing at "an alarming rate."

The article contains mainly illustrations of the types of gambling prevalent today. People are gambling "in the casinos, on the gambling ships, at the race tracks, on the golf course, in the bleachers, at the cigar store, in their homes." "There is nothing which does not hold the possibility of a bet, and there is no one in these wonderful days, it seems, who won't bet."

"In large industrial plants where pay checks are used there are pools for the check which bears, in its serial number, the highest poker hand." Gambling at dog races is described as a "vicious and degrading form . . . which takes from those who can least afford it—the poor."

With our frontiers closed and the depression still "tugging" at our heels, the American people are declared to be more interested in gambling than in previous times. Number games, lotteries and slot machines are estimated to receive $1,000,000,000 a year from the poor, the unfortunate, the unemployed. The "middle classes" are said to put $4,000,000,000 into sweepstake tickets, race track gambling, the sports' pools, dog races, bingo games, games of chance, etc.

Then there are the election bets and other forms of gambling. Mr. Sugrue thinks that more people bet on elections than do not, thus making a majority of votes illegal. The average American thinks gambling is legal, and enforcement of law is difficult.

All of which—no matter how far from accurate the estimates may be—indicates that gambling presents much more than a problem of legal restraints. It confronts educators with a stupendous task. Also it suggests that gambling offers a recurring hope of escape from that insecurity which is the lot of the majority of our people.

If You Have The Will as You Have The Power

by Mrs. Helen Mueller

(Editorial note: The following C. E. topic called forth numerous favorable comments from the audience where it was given. We are happy to have received it and to share it with our readers. We invite others to send the "best" of their respective programs to your editor, to share your good things with the larger audience of Mennonites everywhere.)

"Knowledge we ask not,
knowledge Thou has lent;
But Lord, the Will—there lies our bitter need."

These words are a part of one of my favorite hymns and they fittingly touch off the subject about which we want to think for a short while: "O Christian if you have the will as you have the power, you can win the world for Christ." This statement implies that we are interested primarily in missions, but we may well apply the significance of these words to our own lives: "—If you have the will as you have the power—."

God has given the power. These verses from our Bible bear out that evidence:

"He giveth power to the faint and to them that are without might he increaseth strength."—Isa. 40:29.

"But truly I am full of power by the spirit of the Lord."—Micah 3:8.

"Ye shall be endowed with power from on high."—Luke 24:49.

"And Stephen, full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people and they were not able to resist the spirit by which he spake."—Acts 6:8 and 10.

"And they were amazed at the mighty power of God."—Luke 9:43.

So we see that great power is ours merely for the taking—or rather for the receiving. And believe that when God gives us a gift, he would like to see us use it—especially when it is so useful a gift. It is up to each one of us to want to use this wonderful gift of power. We must have the will.

I hardly think Jesus referred to a lack of power when he said of his disciples: “The spirit indeed is willing but the flesh is weak.” There are physical limitations for each one of us, but let us not hide behind physical weakness when spiritual strength is required.

Strength of will is what we need when we must forgive someone a wrong, when we ourselves must ask for forgiveness of a wrong.

Will is what we need in our renunciation of war and other social evils of our day.

In connection with the renunciation of war, the following part of a poem speaks aptly of man’s and God’s relationship regarding power and will:

“. . . . .
“What is Thy will for the people, God?
Thy will for the people, tell it me!
For War is swallowing up the sod
And still no help from Thee.
Thou who art mighty hast forgot;
And art Thou God or art thou not?
When wilt Thou come to save the earth
Where death has conquered birth?”

And the Lord God whispered and said to me,
“These things shall be, these things shall be,
Nor help shall come from the scarlet skies
Till the people rise!
Till the people rise, my arm is weak;
I cannot speak till the people speak;
When men are dumb, my voice is dumb—
I cannot come till my people come.”
. . . . .
“Help them to stand, O Christ!” I prayed.
“Thy people are feeble and sore afraid.”

“My people are strong.” God whispered me,
“Broad as the land, great as the sea;
They will tower tall as the tallest skies,
Up to the level of my eyes
When they dare to rise.
. . . . .
If the people rise, if the people rise
I will answer from the swarming skies
Where Herculean hosts of might Shall spring to splendor over night.
. . . . .
They are my mouth, my breath, my soul!
I wait their summons to make me whole.”

Let us not limit God by our own sluggishness of spirit. The power is ours! Have we the will to use it?

S., Nov. 20. Jesus gives thanks, Matt. 11:25-30

Suggested hymns:

“May Jesus Christ be Praised”
“We Plough the Fields and Scatter”

Problems:

1. The one out of the nine who returned to show his gratitude of being cured from leprosy was a Samaritan; the others were probably Jews. “The nine men could not have been entirely without gratitude—that would make them monsters of wickedness. But they did not give thanks openly and audibly. They were like so many worshippers in the modern church, ‘silent partners’ in the work of praise.” Perhaps the nine had some reason for not returning, but whatever it was they showed a lack of grateful love for their Benefactor. Do we fail to see what privileges we enjoy and expect to be given more when we should stop and appreciate what we have? Should we be thankful only for gifts or should the unfortunate things which we are escaping also enter in our gratitude? How may we show our gratitude? “To what is our civilization due? To Christ. Why do we differ from the heathen world? Christ is preached. What is the secret of all the moral and intellectual growth we see around us, of which we boast so much? Christianity. What is the secret of our material wealth and prosperity? The peace and security the gospel brings. And now how many of all these teeming millions return and thank God for it all?”

2. Jacob showed his gratitude for God’s promise in two ways. “He rose early. . . . Taking the stone which he had used as a pillow, he set it up as a memorial pillar, consecrating it by pouring on top of it some of the oil which every Eastern traveller carried. In the second place, Jacob made a grateful vow to God, promising that if God would be with him, provide for him, and restore him to Isaac's home again, Jehovah should be his God, that pillar should be God's sanctuary, and of all that God should give, he would surely give back a tenth to God." Is tithing an effective way today of showing or expressing one's gratitude? Is it a practical method? Can thankfulness be effective without any cost, material or otherwise, to us?

ANNOUNCEMENT! CHRISTMAS PAGEANT! ORDER EARLY!

3. The prayers of Jesus were of praise and gratitude, mainly and not of only petitions. His words, "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth", show humility even when he is to express His unique relationship to the Father. Is there danger of failing to express gratitude in our prayers? After our petitions have been answered, do we forget the Benefactor? Why should we be grateful to take Christ's yoke upon us?

4. Sometimes we do not see many things for which we feel grateful. But we have only to stop and think of the harmony of the universe to see much. If there is disharmony who else but man is there to be blamed? Are we enduring the most and worst? Did Christ ever deny Himself some conforts for the sake of humanity —or better, when did Christ not forget Himself for us? It is far better to be thankful and continue working for the better than it would be to lay down on the job and be ungrateful.

A Living Picture

Reproduce a living picture of "The Angelus" during the worship service. Have persons dressed like those in the picture pose a tableaux. If possible secure or make a large frame behind which the figures may stand. Be sure to practice the tableaux, since the effectiveness of the picture depends on the ability of the actors to hold the pose perfectly. Plan your lighting carefully so that the picture shows up to the best advantage.

1. Pre-Prayer Circle
Phil. 4:6 "In everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." Pray for the leader and those who attend the meeting

2. Thanksgiving in Song (Make the announcements following the first song)
1. "This is My Father's World" 2. "Praise Him! Praise Him" 3. "Now Thank We All Our God" 4. "Count Your Blessings"

3. Quiet Worship (Have the tableaux during this time)
1. Instruments: "Come, Ye Thankful People"
2. Reader: Ps. 150
3. Instruments: "O Worship the King"
4. Reader:

"Praise to God and thanks we bring,
Hearts, bow down, and voices, sing
Praises to the Glorious One,
All His year of wonder done!
Praise Him for His budding green,
April's resurrection scene;
Praise Him for His shining hours,
Starring all the land with flowers!

Praise Him for His summer rain,
Feeding day and night the grain;
Praise Him for His tiny seed,
Holding all His world shall need;
For His year of wonder done,
Praise to the All-glorious One!
Hearts, bow down, and voices, sing
Praise, and love, and thanksgiving!"

5. Prayers of thanksgiving (End tableaux. Make this a time of thanksgiving to God. Ask several to be prepared to lead)

4. Leader's Introductory Talk (Speak of the many very simple blessings for which we should be grateful. Many of these we are not conscious of until we are denied the privilege of them. Illustrate.)

5. Talks on Questions and Topics. Use material in the C. E. World Quarterly. The story of the first Thanksgiving and Thanksgiving poems might be included in this part.

6. Closing
Why We Are Thankful. Encourage each one to express a few of the many reasons for gratitude. Ask the Superintendent to have charge of this part of the meeting. Benediction: Ps. 19:14

Topics For Talks

1. Religious liberty a cause for gratitude
2. Gratitude for our schools and churches
3. Harvest makes us thankful
4. The blessings of a free country
5. Thankfulness a habit

An Illustration

A little girl was walking by the side of her father, her hand clasped securely in his, on a dark night when the stars shone unusually bright. "O father, look at the stars! Aren't they beautiful? And so many!" "Yes dear," said her father, "They are God's gifts of light to us for the night." "O, I want to count them," she broke in eagerly and began. Ten, twenty, fifty, one hundred, two hundred, and then as if overwhelmed by their number, she said, "But, father, there are so many I can't count them all." When we begin to count all of God's blessings to us, we too can never finish.

They Shall Want No Good Thing

The Gift of Money

Opening Service:

1. Call to quietness by prelude followed by a quartet singing "Tread Soft, Tread Softly"
2. Prayer by leader
3. Responsive reading: Psalm 34:1-10, 17-19, 22. (Selection 510 in Service Hymnal)
4. Sing in unison: "Holy, Holy, Holy" using first verse 4, then verse 3, then verse 2
5. Sing in unison: "Lord, I Hear of Showers of Blessing" verses 1, 2, 3

Mission minutes: Sketches from our conference papers

Announcements

Study period. Aim: to teach stewardship of money; to give thoughts that shall help the Junior to grow into a tither; to give opportunity to express the desire to share through a Thanksgiving offering.

1. Introduction of topic by chairman by these lines:

> "Over against the treasury
> He sits who gave Himself for me
> He sees the coppers that I give
> Who gave His life that I might live;
> He sees the silver I withhold,
> Who left for me His throne of gold,
> Who found a manger for His bed,
> Who had no where to lay His head:
> He sees the gold I clasp so tight—
> Am I a debtor in His sight?"

2. What God says about money: Let a junior answer by using Eccl. 5:10; Hag. 2:8; Matt. 16:26
3. What is tithing? Answered by a junior
4. What does the Bible say about tithing? In charge of a junior who calls for minute talks on the following:
   a. Leviticus 27:30. The children of Israel should tithe
   b. Genesis 28:10-22. Jacob promises to tithe
   c. Deut. 14:22, 23. "Thou shalt truly tithe."
   d. Luke 11:42. Jesus says, "not to leave it undone."
5. What does God promise to the tither? A junior answering with Prov. 3:9, 10; Mal. 3:10
6. Special music: Something for Thee
7. The Giver's Heart. A brief heart-talk by leader using thoughts of I Cor. 16:2a and II Cor. 9:6. Prepare the hearts for the offering.
8. Offertory played by a junior while gifts are brought. See issue, October 19
9. Prayer asking a blessing upon gifts
10. Sing in unison verses 1 and 2 of "My Jesus I Love Thee"
11. Benediction

TO THE JUNIOR

If you have not read the first three chapters of this story then see if somewhere in the newspaper rack you can still find the last three Mennonites. Read the three chapters first and then come back to this:

To Neesima it seemed such a long time. Other days had passed so quickly, but now these last few days seemed so long in passing by. You see, Neesima longed with all his heart to return to Japan, to return to tell his people of the true God, the God whom he had sought and who allowed Neesima to find him. Finally the day drew near. Many friends had gathered in a large hall the night before Neesima sailed. They wanted to bid farewell to the boy who had come to America to find God, to the boy who had now grown into a man and into a missionary. Neesima did a strange thing that evening. When his turn came to bring his friends a farewell message, he stood before them on the platform and said: "Here I will stand until I receive enough money to erect a college in Japan, in which I may teach my fellow-men of the true God,—the Living God, the God of Love, the God for whom they are waiting."

Now this was a very bold thing for Neesima to do and bold ways are not always the best ways, but this time it worked. The big room was very, very quiet. Neesima stood still and waited. Would God answer this prayer of his heart? He waited. Suddenly from one side of the room came a voice saying: "I will give $1,000. One thousand dollars! Think of it. And that was not all, from all sides the friends began giving until there was sufficient for the building of a college in Japan. Neesima was very happy as he sailed for Japan. Japan was no longer a closed nation. People were allowed to come and go as they wished. And so it was that Neesima came home to his country with the true God in his heart. With the money he had received, Neesima started the Christian University at Kyoto, called the "Doshisha"; and with the love of God which filled Neesima's heart, he helped many, many others to find the One True God.

Perhaps you, too, are seeking God. Try this:

Do Jeremiah 29:12
Plus Jeremiah 29:13
Plus John 14:6
Plus John 1:12

And when you have found God and are His child, then, you too, may help others to find Him as Neesima did.

CORRESPONDENCE

BETHEL COLLEGE MENNONITE CHURCH

Last Sunday was a festival day for our church. In the morning there was the regular worship service and Sunday school. For the rest of the day the program was as follows: At 3:45 all members, with families, gathered at the College Gymnasium and from there were led in a procession to the newly erected Parsonage by the Sunday school children. Upon arrival a short program was given, dedicating this house and place to its intended use, a home for the pastor and his family, whereupon everyone was given the liberty to go in and see it.

At 5:30 the people proceeded to the College chapel to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the Church. The program was as follows: A Candle Light Service in memory of those who have passed on.—The early history and organization of the Church, discussed by Brother R. A. Goerz, a charter member.—The history of the Church down to the present time, given by Rev. C. E. Krehbiel.—Address by Rev. A. E. Kreider on, "The College Church and the Future." Good special music was rendered in between by the different choirs of the church. At the close an offering was taken towards the payment of the debt on the Parsonage.

Under the efficient spiritual leadership of our pastor, Rev. J. N. Smucker, our church is experiencing new life and growth. Our membership has passed the three hundred mark. We can truly say that our leader is a God-send to this Church. To serve a congregation composed of townfolk and rural folk, families of business men, of farmers, of bankers, of doctors, of industrial workers, of college professors and a large number of college students, is a serious and difficult task. But our dear pastor is succeeding remarkably well. He preaches sermons that have meat for all, for he preaches God's word, illustrated and supported by God's word in an attractive, practical way, and sermons of this kind appeal to the learned and less learned, to old and young, school children included. His discourses are short and pointed, not exceeding 17, 18 minutes in length, with good food for the hungry soul. So it is no wonder that the enlarged College chapel fills up for worship on Sundays. To show this good man and his estimable wife and family their appreciation, the congregation recently had a parsonage erected for them, on the College campus. To finance the project, five well-to-do brethren advanced the funds, at a low rate of interest, on a long term plan, thus making payment easy. We praise God for his leading and the blessings he has so freely bestowed upon us.—J.R.T.

Our greatest glory is not in never falling, but in rising every time we fall.

MARRIAGES

SCHRAG-AESCHLIMAN.—In the home of Mrs. S. R. Aeschliman, mother of the bride, near Colfax, Wash., Mr. Alvie Schrag and Miss Blanche Aeschliman were married by their uncle, Rev. P. R. Aeschliman, on Oct. 2, 1937.

DEATHS

EMILIE EHRESMAN, born February 4, 1863, near Trenton, Ohio, died September 30, 1937. She was a loyal and faithful member of the Mennonite Church, taking part in all its organizations until ill, impaired health prevented. There remain to mourn her loss three sisters, Miss Bertha Ehresman, Mrs. Bina Jotter of Trenton, Ohio, and Mrs. Marie Habel of Chicago, Ill., and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. E. Amstutz, who spoke words of comfort to the bereaved.

Satan Takes Care of Bible Study and Prayer Meeting

Short story from the German by John Kay

There is a Bible-study and prayer meeting tonight, and, ridiculous though it seems to be, Satan is busier than ever tonight also. He and his always alert pal, our own ego, are busily plotting, and now Satan sets out on his mission. He is making his calls just when it is about time to get ready for the prayer meeting.

"You are so very tired, you better stay home tonight," he is compassionately greeting one of our crowd. "There won't be anything of interest this evening. Next week's hour will be much better." And turning to the husband who is brushing off the dust from his hat, he continues: "You better look over your paper tonight. You must keep yourself informed, and that stack there in the corner is several days old as it is."

With a broad smile the arch fiend departs, for he has to see the next door neighbor. The latter is always somewhat undecided.

"You better put away that coat of yours," he halts him on the porch, "and sit down at home. I know that you must devote some time to your soul, but you surely can do that best if you sit in silence and meditate. That's as important as Bible study and prayer meeting. And besides," he remarks casually while leaving the porch, "you haven't been at home several evenings, now. Can't you see that this is not the right thing to do?"

Happily the subtle lord of Hell wanders down the street. It has commenced to rain, and this is delight to him.

"Are you really thinking that you are serving the Lord if you go out in weather like this and expose your health to all the dangers of a cold and pneumonia," he challenges a woman looking out of her door to see whether she'll need a warm coat?

"And you," he reproaches another one across the street, "do you think that you are pleasing God if the work you started is left unfinished because you wish to attend the prayer meeting? Doesn't the Lord Himself bid you to work and to pray? Don't you understand that this means that you can pray while you are working?"

Busily he is speeding away for there is a mother living around the corner. She is all ready to leave the house. Her husband will accompany her.

"Don't you realize," the tempter speaks to the pair, "that your big children need your presence and authority at home during the evenings?"

"Yes," the mother answers, "but. . ."

"How can there be a but," her objection is being cut short, "when you know very well that parents have no greater and no holier duty than to watch over the welfare of their children."

"But the neighbor promised to come over and to keep an eye on the children," the mother resists.

"What is a neighbor," Satan sneers at her. "Can you think of a neighbor capable of substituting for a mother? And do you think that one or two persons more at the prayer meeting are of any significance?"

Resignedly the pair thus challenged falls back into their chairs in front of the cozy fire place.

"Yes," the mother regrets, "I would go alone, but it is dark and unsafe on the streets. How long back is it since one of our ladies was frightened walking to church?"

"All right, mother," her mate consoles, "let's rest and read a little. It will do us good, and we can go next week if we want to."

Satan, in the meantime, has just come in time to find an elderly man who is picking up his Bible. It's an old one, this book, and quite large.

"What," the visitor exclaims, "you are going to the prayer meeting again? Have you forgotten how gloomy and dissatisfied you were when you went last week? Why don't you admit to yourself that you, today again, are going only reluctantly? Why don't you retire into your room and pray there, all alone and undisturbed?"

Seeing the Bible slide back into its resting place the busy conjuror departs into the next block.

"Good evening," he hails a young man, "don't tell me that you are going to the Bible study and prayer meeting tonight. Have you forgotten that your doctor does not want you to get excited, and that you always do get excited when you feel that you should pray in public, or participate in the discussion? Don't you realize that these hours are risky for you and for your weak heart? Yes, you better stay home, and, by the way, if you ever do go to church, leave your Bible at home. What sort of a picture do you make, dragging a Bible through the streets on week days? You can benefit just as much if you just listen to others."

But now it is high time for Satan to go to church and to attend the opening of the Bible-study and prayer meeting. Hurrying there he just manages to send some guests into a house, where he knows that he couldn't do much with persuasions. But guests will keep the couple chained to the house. Grinning maliciously, he feels his pockets filled with his so effective "dust of spiritual depression" and enters the church basement.

And there they are, the few he couldn't hold back from coming. Carefully he is spreading some of his dust into the atmosphere.

"Why," one of those present begins to think, "are there so very few who attend these meetings?"

The thought, sponsored and enlivened by Satan's dust, spreads.

"Yes," a second one thinks, "there is no use. Everything is remaining as it always has been."

"Isn't it expecting a little bit to much of us," a third one muses, "if we are to spend this mid-week hour here also? Haven't we enough meetings as it is?"

"And isn't it heartless," another one falls in line with his thoughts, "to have a hard working man or a tired mother sit here for an hour and more, after they have had their fill of toil and trouble during the day?"

"Or can you blame a white collar worker, if he prefers to relax at home and doesn't feel like devoting his tired thoughts to the Bible on a busy week day?" Still another mind is backing up his neighbor's thoughts.

The silent protests against the meeting grow while Satan is spreading his dust of spiritual depression thicker and thicker.

"What a pity to be a farmer living several miles away from church," a new thought is born. "These meetings may be alright in winter, but they are certainly out of place in the busy spring and summer seasons."

"Are they any more in place in winter," some one reflects? "Isn't it hard enough to get one's chores done in the cold? Is such a meeting worthy of getting your car all dirty, and of spending hours of time to get it clean again for Sunday?"

"You are right," beckons the one in the corner. "It's an unjustified and unproductive expense, this extra driving to town at night. The meeting could be very well incorporated into our regular Sunday morning service, and some of the money we are now wasting on gasoline could be added to the collections. That would help some, and we wouldn't waste light and fuel here in the middle of the week, and just for a few of us. We better. . . ."

But here the organ is being opened, and a song is started. For a moment Satan is listening. The singing is poor; no heartiness can be heard. Most of those present keep their lips tightly closed.

"That's fine," Satan thinks. "I can go now! My job at this Bible-study and prayer meeting is done."

—"NEW TESTAMENT TEACHING OF FINANCING THE WORK OF THE LORD," that splendid article under this title, from the pen of our veteran writer, Rev. J. J. Balzer, Mountain Lake, Minn. appeared without the Author's name in the last issue of THE MENNONITE, for which we are exceedingly sorry, and humbly beg Brother Balzer's pardon. He has not and would not ask us to make this statement, but it is our duty to do so.

—Dr. A. Warkentin and the editor, secretary and chairman, respectively, of the Western District Conference Committee on Education, made a flying auto trip to Freeman, S. D., Monday, Oct. 25, to lay an important matter pertaining to Sunday school needs before the General Conference Board of Education, which was then in session there. The mission to be presented was this: The W. D. Sunday School Convention, as well as other groups and individual churches here and there, had been urging their education committee to press upon the Education Board the great need of unified Sunday school material for the lower grades of the Sunday school, as a sequence to the Quarterly now in use by Adults and Senior classes. And the Western District Conference at its recent session also gave expression to this need . To give their mission a rather definite form, the W. D. Committee had prepared samples of three types of lessons: A junior-intermediate lesson on the uniform lesson basis, a junior-intermediate lesson on the Bible story plan, with a work-book plan for the pupils, and a beginner-primary lesson, also on the Bible story plan, the latter especially in response to the plea that more Bible is needed in our Sabbath schools than is offered in the graded lesson series. For, if there is anything that our growing generations need more than anything else, it is a more thorough knowledge of the Bible, and that knowledge can best be secured through the Bible story plan. No doubt the Board of Publication will bring before the next Conference session a definite plan for a complete curriculum of Bible training through our Sunday schools.

—Die Mennonitischen Blaetter" from Germany report that Dr. Christian Neff who, with C. Hege edits that valuable historical work "Mennonitisches Lexikon," has been in the ministry fifty years, that he was called to be the pastor of the Mennonite Church at Weierhof, near Marnheim, Rhenish Palatinate, Oct. 30, 1887, and that he is still serving that congregation with remarkable vigor at his ripe age. His church is planning to celebrate this event, together with its own centennary festival, on Nov. 7 next. —But notices of the sudden death of Mrs. (Lydia) Neff, his wife, have just been received which may change the program. Brother Neff has our heartfelt sympathy in his bereavement.

ARMISTICE DAY PEACE CONFERENCE

The Counsellors of The Mennonite Peace Society in Pennsylvania would like to announce an Armistice Day Peace Conference in the Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa., Thursday, November 11. There will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

Clarence Pickett of The Friends Service Committee has been asked to be one of the leaders. We think he can be there.

The theme of the conference has not been chosen, but discussions will center about relief work in Canada and Spain, and also the general world situation, and our responsibility.

Sincerely, Carl Landes, Bluffton, Ohio

Y.P.S. AND S.S.U. NOTES, EASTERN DISTRICT

—"The summer of 1938 offers to our Mennonite young people an unusual opportunity for a wonderful vacation. The sessions of the General Conference are to be held at Saskatoon, Canada, probably during the early part of August. A glance at the map of the U. S. A. will show that a trip there would touch a great many points of interest enroute—Besides the usual pretty scenery, interesting cities, natural wonders there is opportunity to visit the numerous Mennonite settlements both here and in Canada.—Attending and taking part in the work of our Church meetings is not only a privilege, but the duty of every young church member, and the growth of the Mennonite Church in the next decade will depend upon our young folks, here and now."—John E. Fretz.

—First Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska.—We have had a blessed rain. It was not so much in inches, but what there was came down so slowly that we did not lose any of it. The weather has been warm, so that reseeded crops can start to grow.—Mrs. Paul Penner is in Omaha, where she was operated on. She is slowly recovering and, God willing, expects to come home soon.—Following the Western District Conference, we are intending to start a Bible class which is to meet Thursday evenings of the week. Rev. J. B. Epp and our academy teacher, Brother Miller, will be in charge of it.—W. R. Penner, Corr.

—Mennonite Church, Dallas, Oregon.—In September Rev. S. S. Baumgartner was in Dallas and brought us a very interesting message at the morning worship, in the Grace Mennonite Church. We were all glad to have Brother and Sister Baumgartner visit us. Here is hoping that they will come again soon.—Corr.

— Refinancing Plan of Bluffton College Approved.— Under the direction of D. W. Bixler, financial agent, the refinancing plan of the College is now in operation. Various creditors have consented to the plan in writing, as follows: Bondholders 92 per cent, annuitants 89 percent, unsecured creditors 91 per cent. Under the plan, the bondholders agree to extend the bonds ten years, at a reduced rate of interest. Annuitants will be paid in the future at a lower interest rate. Unsecured creditors will share in the proceeds of certain assets to be collected. Bank loans are to be repaid by the collection of certain collateral.—The Witmarsum. Good for Bluffton College!

A Prayer of Thanks

We thank thee Lord, for everything,
The flowers that bloom, the birds that sing,
For children's voices, while at play,
For the restful night, the bright sweet day.
For thy loving grace, thy tender heart,
Thy holy church and our humble part.
For the trials and cares that draw us nigh
To thy blessed feet, where thou dost supply.
For thy loving care, thru the year just past
And the hope of seeing thy face, at last.
Amen.

"I wrote this little prayer of thanks one day, when my heart was overflowing. I have so much to be thankful for."—Mrs. Van Nattan.

Thank God for Home

I cannot thank Thee, God, enough
For this small plot of ground, this roof,
These lifted walls, that close me in
And hold me tenderly; this proof
Of Thy kind care for my great need
Of shelter and of daily bread;
But Oh, there are no written words,
There are no words that have been said
That could express my gratitude
For the companionship of Love
That shares my simple fare—dear God,
A gift I would be worthy of!
And I would thank Thee for the tasks;
A fire to tend, a loaf to bake,
A floor to sweep, a seam to sew,
A clean, white-sheeted bed to make,
A lamp to light at evening time—
I thank Thee, God, for all of these:
For home, my home—for every home—
I thank Thee, God, upon my knees.

THANKSGIVING DAY.—November the 25th is Thanksgiving Day this year. In a little book on "Holidays," published in California, it is stated that the first Thankgiving Day in North America was held in Newfoundland, and that the first day of this sort to be observed in the United States was in August 1607, on the coast of Maine. However, our annual celebration gets its inspiration in that special day of prayer and rejoicing proclaimed by Governor Bradford of the Plymouth Colony, on December 13, 1621. Then for a week, their Indian neighbors were guests of the Pilgrims. They feasted on wild turkeys and other foods. Since then the turkey has been the symbol, if not too frequently the cause of Thanksgiving. Beginning with 1684, it became the annual formal festival in Massachusetts and was copied by the other New England colonies. For more than two generations it has been observed as a national holiday. The reaons for Thanksgiving are not the same every year. Often, as for instance in times of war, it has fallen amid circumstances which would never in themselves have suggested such a day. This year our national prosperity is ample reason for thanksgiving on material grounds. But our spiritual blessings, the fact that we have the Bible so abundantly and can freely worship God in the home, in the church, and even in the schools, and that we are at peace with all nations, far outweigh our material blessings. On looking for material to give expressions of our gratitude, we find ample stores of it in the Bible, especially in the Psalms.

THANKSGIVING.—"Give thanks unto the Father who has made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light." Col. 1:12. Thanksgiving Day is approaching. This verse bids us give thanks to God to whom we owe our lives and our all. In this world thankfulness is a rare flower. And how rare also are the truly grateful children of God. We take our gifts, especially the spiritual blessings, as a matter of course, with little or any thought of the Giver. If we would truly give thanks for all that we receive, for protection from the powers of darkness, for rescue from sin and temptation, for the greatest of all gifts that of salvation through Christ Jesus, for God's care and leading in all relations of life, for unnumbered other blessings already received and still to be bestowed on us in the life to come, there would be no room for discordant notes of grumbling or complaint on the strings of our hearts. Thankfulnes is the answer of our heart to the goodness and blessings of God. Gratitude to God is also the key to new blessings, for if we are genuinely grateful, "the Lord will show us his salvation." But true thankfulness does not consist of mere lip service. It finds full expression only in deeds of charity and kindness, and there are innumerable opportunities for the practical expression of our gratitude in giving to missions, home and foreign, to our schools, to our publication work—if in no other way than at least by paying up our subscription—to our relief work, our hospitals and the poor and needy at our door. Thanksgiving time is a good time to remember, in a tangible way, what our Master impressed so strongly upon his followers: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these my brethren—in that you gave them to eat and to drink, you clothed them, visited them when sick or in prison,—ye did it unto me."

Practical Thanksgiving

Sermon by Rev. J. J. Balzer

Text: Psalm 103:2 and Isaiah 42:10-12

These words of Prophet and Psalmist are filled with wonderful promises and many reasons for thanksgiving on the part of the ancient Jews and, surely, our reasons for thanksgiving, both personal as well as national, are as many. Let us in the spirit of these verses think of some of our reasons for joyful gratitude.

I. I thank God for my life

When Dr. Chapman was preaching in one of our large city churches one evening, a paralitic was wheeled down the aisle and placed just before the pulpit. Mr. Alexander was conducting the singing and, after a few songs had been sung, he caught sight of the man just before him and said, "What is your favorite hymn?" And the man promptly answered: "Count your blessings!" There was no wail, no complaint from the poor cripple, but just a vivid sense of the goodness of God, even in his pitiful condition.

Looking back these 365 days of the past year of your life and mine, we have thousands of reasons to be thankful for our physical and spiritual welfare. Our health may not be perfect, we may have sustained losses, God may have sent us some deep sorrows and led us down deep valleys and over rocky roads, but, nevertheless, we have many reasons for gratitude. God has sustained our lives with so many good things in field and garden, while many parts of our country suffered crop failures by drought or grasshoppers, hail storms, and cyclones. Thousands of lives were lost, cities and towns destroyed by quakes, cloudbursts and floods, yea, even by starvation. Though we have several millions of families in our country who have no bread and are broken down by lack of work, still we have more food stuffs and meats than we can use. China's millions are suffering, Russia's millions are starving. I thank God for my life and the manifold blessings He has showered upon me.

A little boy was very efficient in arithmetic. So one day he thought he would try to reckon up how much God did for him in one year. He took a sheet of paper and a pencil and began, "Let me see," said he, "365 days; that means 365 mercies. But every hour has been a mercy; that is 8760 mercies. But the minutes too—that is 525,600 more. Then he added: There are my dear parents, who have been spared me—two more marks; health perserved—another; food—another; teachers, books, cheerful friends—more still; the Bible—here he made a big mark; Sundays 52." "O dear!" he said, "I cannot finish it." And then he added, "No wonder King David said in Psalm 139: 'If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand upon the seashore.' Oh, how much we should thank God for our lives!"

II. What a wonderful life it is we are permitted to live!

It is not the life of an animal! A MAN ALIVE! Can you find in all the works of God a being which surpasses him? He stands upon the earth, the king of this creation. "Let us make man in our likeness," said God, and when it was finished, God said to him: "Thou shalt have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth." He was made king over the earth. But Adam sinned against his Maker and this creation has become his enemy; but has God ever recalled this government? No, He promised it to the second Adam, our Lord Jesus Christ, who taught us to pray, "Thy Kingdom come! Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven!"

And now we are waiting for this glorious King, to return and establish this Kingdom, the so-called Millennium. And how marvelous and wonderful do the prophets of old describe the conditions of this golden age of a 1000 years, when our domestic animals shall pasture with the bear, and the lion, and leopard, in the same pasture, and a little child shall play with the otter, and put his hand into the hole of the asp; for there shall be no destruction in all the earth. And more yet! We shall see our King face to face as He is, and shall be made like Him, and rule with Him a thousand years. Shall we not joyfully give thanks unto the Lord for the wonderful position He gave to man, to become "Sons of God," without blemish, spot or wrinkle?!

III. I am very thankful for the AGE in which we live

The mists of superstition have almost disappeared. The darkness of ignorance no longer envelops the human race, as it did for thousands of years. We surely live in a century of progress. The seals of Daniels' prophecies are broken, and the light of God's revelations is illuminating our knowledge of God's great purposes. Scriptures and parts of it are read in 991 languages and dialects, and knowledge is increasing everywhere.

The church of Jesus Christ has never done better and greater work than she is doing now. Fifty years ago we had to pay advertising rates to get religious matter into a secular newspaper. Today our dailies print column after column of sermons and International S. S. lessons and reports from missionaries and the mission fields, and about the life and works of God's people. The Gospel of Christ has control of the mind and heart of the world, though many millions are apostates and agnostics. Surely we have reason to be thankful for these great facts.

IV. My God-given Possessions

But let us come to a close by asking the question: What use shall I make of my God-given possessions?

1. What shall I do with my life? I surely should bring an offering of gratitude to God. Some few years ago I walked about 20 blocks on Lincoln Ave., in Chicago, on the 3rd of September. On this way I met two cripples, one without any legs, the other with but one; a woman, blind, led by a little girl, and a man using a cane for a guide; and an old man with a cemetery-cough passed by and two funeral processions soon followed. The thought then came to me, that I should be very thankful for not being as badly off as many of my fellow men. We are but stewards of all we are, have and possess, and our lives and faculties should be in service for God and fellow-men.

2. What shall we do with the many opportunities of the age in which we live? We have passed the night of Egyptian bondage and have come into the clear, crisp morning of liberty. There is liberty of conscience, liberty of worship, liberty of education, and thousands of opportunities unknown 50 to 75 years ago. Let us not fail to look up and recognize God as the giver of all blessings.

Immense sums of money are given for good purposes today. I do not believe the world has ever seen anything like it before. Just think of the Red Cross organization! Still greater sums are needed. There is scarcely a church, a college, a charitable institution of any kind whose usefulness is not more or less hindered by lack of funds. Have you paid your dues to your church? Do you realize that most missionaries and preachers are not getting more than 45 per cent of what they need to carry on the work of Christ? I know a young man in our church, a wage earner, who pays a dollar to the S. S. every Sunday of the year. That means 52 dollars annually, and on Thanksgiving Day and at the mission festival there is a $10.00 check from him. Seventy-two dollars a year, plus the membership dues, $3.00 per annum. How much do you give? Depression would surely never be known, if all should express their gratitude according to needs and ability. Every day should be a Thanksgiving day for the many just common things we enjoy. We are apt to forget to cultivate the spirit of gratitude. Dear Reader, don't forget our publication work, our missions, our colleges and the emergency relief work among the needy. May the Lord help us!

Schools and Education

Announcement

The work of the Board of Education of the General Conference is rapidly expanding, especially in the direction of getting out Sunday school literature. This means added expense. There are many churches that have not conrtibuted toward the work of this Board, hence we urge upon them to make a start now and send in their contributions as soon as possible. Some churches and Sunday schools make monthly contributions, others quarterly. If every church and Sunday school of the General Conference would contribute regularly, the Board of Education would be put in a position to do its work efficiently.

Educators in Inaugural Addresses

President Charles Seymour of Yale University: "Never, in the history of the world has the menace of materialism been more appalling nor the disastrous consequences of its triumph so obvious. In the political, economic and social fields of endeavor it has produced and it will perpetuate suicidal strife. Whether nation, class or individual be considered, it is literally the Suave qui peut (save who may) of civilization: every one for himself and the devil takes the hindmost; a terrifying apotheosis of the philosophy of egotism."

"Such a philosophy the university must utterly abhor and actively combat. If our historical studies have taught us anything it is that selfish materialism leads straight to the city of destruction. To fight it we have need of clear intelligence. We have no less need of unswerving loyalty to the golden rule."

"Yale was dedicated to the upraising of spiritual leaders. We betray our trust if we fail to explore the various ways in which the youth who come to us may learn to appreciate spiritual values, whether by the example of our own lives or through the cogency of our philosophical arguments. The simple and direct way is through the maintenance and upbuilding of the Christian religion as a vital part of university life. I call on all members of the faculty, as members of a thinking body, freely to recognize the tremendous validity and power of the teaching of Christ in our life-and-death struggle against the forces of selfish materialism. If we lose in that struggle, judging by present events abroad, scholarship as well as religion will disappear."

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University: "The world is facing the gravest crisis which has confronted it in more than a thousand years. The most solemn pledges and the most definite undertakings are treated as if absolutely nonexistent, when they are found to stand in the way of newly-devised policy of aggrandizement or search for power. A government proclaims to the world that it is sovereign which it interprets to mean that it does not and will not keep its plighted faith unless it believes it to be advantageous so to do. Whatever the gain-seeking or the power-seeking impulse invites and requires will be done, utterly regardless of the most solemn obligations to other nations and to the whole world."

He admits that Communism is bad, it is a serious menace to the world. But he is sure that it will collapse of its own weight. He continues, "It is customary for many citizens of the democratic countries to look upon the people and the government of Russia as their chief enemy. They are wrong. There are other forms of despotism that are even more menacing than Communism. The Fascist form of despotism has a seductive power which the despotism of Communism does not share. The chief enemy of the democratic institutions which these peoples have built through the centuries and upon which their prosperity and happiness rest, are the three military dictatorships of Japan, of Germany, and of Italy."

THINGS ETERNAL

Address at John B. Wedel's Funeral

We are living in a passive world of material things that perish. We are often so occupied in the present materialistic age that it is all too easy to neglect things that are eternal and invisible which lie in store for us in the celestial and spiritual world.

ETERNAL THINGS OF BLISS

1. Eternal Life. John 3:16. Nothing on this side of Glory that can be compared with here. The beginning of eternal life is here with Christ as Savior through faith. The condition of obtaining it is "believe." (Def) "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." John 17:3.

2. Eternal Salvation. Heb. 5:9—"being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." Here the condition is "obey" Him. "Whatsoever he saith unto you do it." John 2:5.

3. Eternal Spirit. Heb. 9:14. "How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God." The eternal works in and through the conscience, we must regret, repent, and believe, then in the return the blood, the cleansing, can be applied and it works every time where the conditions are met. Many will be interested to know about John Wedel's spiritual welfare. Last December, when he noticed illness, he consulted physicians and they all agreed to find a weak heart which would result in a stroke which really happened Sept. 26.

During the time from December to September his brother, B. B. Wedel asked him, "What did you do or how did your prepare yourself?" He answered, "I have prayed much, for I knew I was lost." After the stroke his left side was paralized but left him in his clear mind which he fully realized as dying grace. B. B. Wedel asked me to go with him to Hollandale and help his Brother John find Christ, and forgiveness of sin and his reckless life. We pointed out to him that as sure as he was lost Christ who died for us was the only one that could help and save him, also if he did not allow Christ to judge him here he would be judged and condemned. After hours of pleading his eyes were opened and he yielded to Christ's condition and was willing to testify to his family and confess that he had not lived as he should and pointed them to Christ for the eternal reunion.

1. Everlasting Fire. Matt. 18:8 "if thy hand or thy foot offend thee, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast into everlasting fire."

2. Everlasting punishment. Matt. 25:46. "and these shall go away into everlasting punishment!"

3. Eternal Judgment. Heb. 6:2 "of the Doctrine of baptisms, or resurrection of the dead, and of eternal "judgment." He judges righteously for he knows, God keeps records. Heb. 9:27, also.

4. Everlasting Destruction. II Thess. 1:9 "who shall be punished with everlasting Destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power."

My, how different things seem when one faces death and eternity than when we are healthy and enjoy the things of the flesh. In the book of Revelation the term "Forever and ever" is used 8 times, with eternal condemnation as well as with eternal bliss.

Don't wait until a stroke strikes you to settle your salvation question, you may not be conscious or not find dying grace.

We are glad to report that in the last half hour of John's life he was very happy, clear in mind, gave full assurance of salvation and passed away very beautiful with a smile in his face as he left. His soul is saved, what about his life that he has lived? Death-bed repentances are not frequent, and on my part it is cowardly. "Today if you hear his voice, harden not your heart." "How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation."—Rev. John Bartel, Bethel Church.

Rom. 6:23, "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." —Rev. I. J. Dick.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS MAY HAVE THE MENNONITE FOR ONE DOLLAR FOR A YEAR.

Church To Help in Census of Unemployed

Ministers, please call attention to this!

The cooperation of local churches of all denominations throughout the country is being sought in connection with the Unemployment Census which is to begin on November 16. The Federal Administrator of this Census, Mr. John D. Biggers, has expressed his hope for much assistance from the churches.

The Census of the Unemployed and Partially Employed has been decreed by Congress in order "to aid in the formulation of a program for re-employment, social security, and unemployment relief for the people of the United States." Since this census is an entirely voluntary one, hearty cooperation by citizens in all communities is necessary in order to make it successful. Ministers of local churches are being asked to call the attention of their people to the Census on Sunday, November 14.

Report cards containing fourteen questions to be answered will be left at every home of the nation by mail-carriers on Tuesday, Nov. 16. Every unemployed or partially employed person is asked to answer these questions and return the card before midnight on Saturday, November 20. The information thus obtained is to afford the basis by which definite plans may be formulated for solving the problem of unemployment.—Mediation of the Federal Council of Churches.

Stewardship

The fields are now bare of the crops they bore during the summer. The apples are in the bin, the potatoes are in the barrel, the corn is in the crib and the wheat is in the granary. How bountiful the Heavenly Father has been! He again has poured His gifts upon the earth and crowned it with goodness.

He who is the Giver of every good and perfect gift said in His Word to us, (2 Cor. 9:6) "He which soweth SPARINGLY shall reap also SPARINGLY, and he which soweth BOUNTIFULLY shall reap also BOUNTIFULLY." Some folks spend wearisome moments figuring how little they can give to missions, how little time they can give Him in reading His Word, in prayer and in His service. Their talents must be used for more popular and lucrative purposes. How little they realize that "he who soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly."

Surrendering to our Lord wholeheartedly and joyously our entire being, body, soul and spirit in faithful stewardship will yield a bountiful happiness and joy that cannot be substituted by anything this world can offer.

How precious our time should be to us! "The seconds are rubies, the minutes are pearls, the hours are emeralds, the days are sapphires and the years are diamonds." How we need to pray to God "to teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." May we at this glorious harvest time give Him our ALL.

Somebody prayed, and someone was saved;
Somebody said "I'm glad to give":
Somebody gave that someone might live.
Was that somebody you?

Sermon Sketch

The Demands of Discipleship

Preached at Upland, Oct. 10, 1937

by Lester Hostetler

Text, "No man having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God." Luke 9:62.

Introduction

My sermon this morning is for those who believe that religion is a vital power in life, something that lifts and helps; at the same time something that demands sacrifice, a deep loyalty to Christ, and a willingness to surrender much that was in the old life. Those who think of religion in terms of ceremonies properly performed, or creeds meticulously stated and gallantly defended, will not be interested; neither such as have no desire to discipline their spirits and grow in the Christian graces.

II. The Demands of Discipleship

It is clear that Jesus makes demands upon us. Instead of looking back upon the old satisfactions we are called upon to walk circumspectly, to discipline our spirits, and to keep our eyes straight ahead upon distant goals. Let us consider a few of these demands.

1. True discipleship demands a humble spirit, the mind of a child, the putting away of our intellectual conceits and pride of opinion. No man is a mature Christian who is satisfied with his attainments and thanks God that he is better than others. If you are inclined to boast of what you are, look to Jesus, the perfect one, and it will promptly humiliate you. If you are impressed by your superiority over the poor ignorant beggar that meets you on the street, remember that you are what you are by the grace of God, and by what other people have done for you. A true Christian has no time for harsh judgment of others. He is aware that a beam may be in his own eye. And so he moves through the world humble, teachable, open-minded and speaks with a minimum number of capital "I"s.

2. Jesus demands also that the physical appetite be controlled by spiritual purposes. The man who likes alcohol but does not control his appetite, drinks to excess, robs himself of his brains and his manners, and his family of bread and clothing is not a Christian. The drunkard cannot inherit the Kingdom of Heaven. Neither can the adulterer. God created the sexual nature and it is therefore sacred. It is the instinct which, properly directed, builds happy homes, one of our greatest blessings in life. Improperly directed and uncontrolled, the sex instinct causes the breakup of homes, terrible diseases of body, remorse of conscience. Our age is exploiting the sex instinct. The magazines, movies, advertisements, and a flood of cheap books are doing their worst to pervert sex to degrade marriage and the home. Discipleship calls upon us to resist this tide.

3. Many people, I am convinced, do not realize that worry is unchristian. I mean worry about material needs. Jesus taught us to think of God as Father, who cares for us and values us higher than the birds of the air or the lilies of the field. To be sure we must do our part. It is wrong to expect God to do for us what we can do for ourselves. But after we have done what we can, plowed and planted and cultivated, then we can trust to God for results. Worry makes us sick. It kills more people than disease. It usually concerns dangers and difficulties which never overtake us. Its opposite is not laziness, a sin still worse than worry. Its opposite and Christian counterpoint is faith and trust in the living God. Worry, essentially, is a denial of the goodness of God. Jesus never worried. It is difficult for many of us to learn the lesson. But discipleship demands that we try.

5. Discipleship demands that a man values the Kingdom of God above money. Money is what most people want and they want a lot of it, with the least effort and in the shortest time possible. Money is necessary and we cannot get along without it. But it constitutes a great danger. The one who trusts in riches, Jesus reminds us, cannot enter the kingdom. At the end of a life of accumulating money and more money, a man of necessity, leaves his wealth to another, and he dies. In the hour of his greatest need he discovers that money cannot help him; only God can. The one whose heart is set on material things and forgets that he has a soul is a fool. One can test his advancement in Christian discipleship by searching deep in his heart for the thing he treasures most. Is it God or mammon?

5. Discipleship demands a spirit that is tenderhearted, kind, forgiving. The person who is touchy, resentful and envious needs to continue in the school of Christ. There are people whose lives are in perpetual misery because of jealousy. They are afraid someone else is getting ahead of them. They crave the highest seats and are displeased, if they do not get them. This spirit has done untold damage in the church. Jealousy sometimes gets into the choir, it creeps occasionally into other organizations in the church, and, I regret to say, that there have been evidences of its existence among the ministers of the gospel. But it must be cast out. It is an evil spirit which cannot grow in the heart side by side with the spirit of Christ.

6. I name one more. Christ demands that we do not discriminate against anyone because of race, or nationality, economic status, or sex. All are one in Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, bond nor free, male nor female. For ye are all one in Christ Jesus. A man is a man. We like to believe that a white man is superior to those of another color; or that the Aryan race is better than all the other races. But scientists declare there is no such thing as a superiority of race. And certainly in the eyes of God we are all alike. One who is serious about his religion, will try to develop an attitude of respect towards other peoples, and of love. God has showed us, as he did Peter, that we should not call any man common or unclean.

III. Conclusion

The demands of Christ are not easy. He never said they were. He invites us not to "self-expression" but to self-denial; not to a picnic, but to the cross. But the one who will patiently learn, day by day, will find joy unspeakable in this world and a peace which passeth understanding; and in the world to come, fellowship with God and the life everlasting.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS

I Cor. 3:9-15; Gal. 6:6-10

Introduction

Evidently serious divisions over religious leaders, had arisen in the Church of Corinth (1:12; 3:3, 4). These parties differed and also were contentious about their differences. How similar the present day conditions in some of our Mennonite Churches. Paul reminds them that Christ, their Savior, stood on a much higher plane than these leaders and teachers. He and these ministers are all fellow-laborers for God (v9), one planting, another watering, God giving the increase.

Laying the Foundation vs 9-11

Paul tells how he laid the foundation of the Corinth Church (v. 10). Not in his own strength, but "according to the grace of God, given to him." Paul was a pioneer missionary going into new fields, preaching Christ, beginning the work, establishing the Church. This was laying the foundation. He was a "wise masterbuilder" who did his work well. Then he went on to new fields, while others built on the foundation he had laid. We too continue the work begun by others, and we must needs be careful how we build (10b), for our responsibility is great.

Laying a good foundation is very necessary for the individual and for the Church. It must needs include repentance and faith in Christ and spiritual transformation. There is but one building—God's, and one foundation—Jesus Christ (v11); but there are many builders and the materials are varied. The person of Christ is the foundation of all Christian teaching and character.

Undergoing a Test vs. 12-15

Paul describes various kinds of structures men seek to build on the good foundation (v12); symbols of durable, valuable materials—wholesome teachings—and symbols of perishing materials—false teaching of various kinds. Some build so carelessly, hastily, thoughtlessly, putting poor material into their life and character structure. An inevitable test is coming (v13), an all-inclusive and searching test, revealing the true nature of our structure. In the day of judgment, the true nature of our religious work will be revealed. Results may not be apparent at once. Then it will be seen whether we have been building of the material that will stand the test, even of fire. What am I building upon Christ?

The revelation of the character and deeds of men lies in the future. It behooves us to be faithful in our dealings with others. A definite reward is promised to those whose work has permanent and continuing results for good (v14). That work "abides" which stands the judgment day fire test.

Sowing and Reaping vs 6-10

Each is to bear his own burden, however, the Church is to contribute to the support of the needs of the teacher (v6). His work requires time and effort. Paul warns (v7) those unwilling to give such support, not to deceive themselves. If they sow selfishness, they will reap the same. God's established laws can not be broken. The application is much wider (v8). In all actions, we reap what we sow. Each act is a sowing—be it honorable, truthful, deceitful, loving—reaping of its kind is certain. Sowing good seeds of the Spirit quickens spritual growth, and we reap a harvest of eternal life.

Good people grow tired. We need to guard against losing courage in our good work when the reaping may be delayed (v9). As we have opportunity (v10), let us sow good seed in doing good, showing good-will. Always we shall reap more than we sow, and reaping lasts far longer than sowing.

Gem of Truth

If Christian character is to endure, it must be built of the best materials.

Echoes From The Eastern District S. S. Convention

Through the kindness of Brother Walter M. Naze we are in receipt of a "Synopsis" of this "Sixty-third S. S. Convention," held at the East Swamp Church, Sept. 25. Interesting as it is all the way through, we are sorry that we must be content to give only parts.

The theme of the Convention was "The Ideal Sunday School."

The afternoon devotional period, based on I Cor. 3:1-15, was in charge of Rev. W. S. Gottshall, the singing led by Athrur Mohr; The evening period, in charge of Brother John S. Swan, was based on I Cor. 13, the singing directed by Rev. H. G. Nyce.

The discussion groups were:

1. The Ideal Teacher—Leader, Wm. H. Mohr
2. Improving our Devotional Programs—Leader, Miss Hulda Myers
3. Improving our Evangelistic Programs—Leader, Rev. F. H. Swartz

In the evening, Missionary J. P. Suderman presented his work among the Hopi Indians in Arizona, and Rev. J. J. Plenert brought the convention sermon, "The Consecrated Life," which was followed by a candle light service "Youth's New Day Dawns."

Rev. Freeman Swartz installed the new officers, who are: President—Walter N. Naze, Philadelphia; Vice Pres.—Allen R. Fretz, Lansdale; Secr.—Miss Nora Moyer, Deep Run; Treas.—H. Raymond Allen, Flatland; Mission Secr.—Mrs. Mary Berky, Hereford; Field Secr.—Walter H. Temple, Germantown.

Business: The Mission secretary reported a total of $875.15 raised on a pledge of $750. The division made was: $585.43 to Foreign Missions, $292.72 for building churches in Canada.

The Missionary project for this year is: Native evangelistic work in China, $250.00; American Indians: Montana, $250.00; Oklahoma, $50.00; Arizona, $75.00. Aid for a new church at Dallas, Oregon, $250; total, $750.00.

October 31—International Temperance Sunday is to be appropriately observed by all Sunday schools.

Recommended, that each Sunday school emphasize the importance of having at least one religious paper in the home of each officer and teacher, THE MENNONITE to be one of these.

Recommended and adopted, to increase our S. S. membership and attendance at least by one-third, this to be achieved through the efforts of active membership committees.

Of the resolutions passed, the following are of special interest:

Res. 3: That—we encourage each Sunday school to give earnest consideration to the establishment of a Teacher Training Class.

Res. 4: That we consecrate ourselves anew to be more zealous in our Bible memory work... To facilitate this work we urge the executive committee to submit a memory course for our schools.

Res. 5: That in view of the immediate and serious danger threatened by the rapidly growing liquor industry, we teach with conviction that alcoholic beverages are a menace to the highest and holiest in our manhood and womanhood; that alcohol is a habit-forming drug and as such is a depressant and never a helpful stimulant. We must fight the liquor interests' millions with prayer and consecration. We suggest that a temperance superintendent be appointed in each school to bring this matter before our pupils.

Res. 6: That we as Mennonite Sunday Schools stand by the peace testimony of our forefathers of four hundred years ago; that the life and teaching of Christ are absolutely contrary to war. Hence, as followers of Christ, we must be non-resistant and work for peace.

Res. 7: That we make use of every opportunity for missionary education in our Sunday Schools through the missionary project and other avenues of service.

VANCOUVER, B. C. OCT. 27, 1937

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:

Rather unexpectedly by ourselves a call of the Waterloo-Kitchener United Mennonite Church was extended to us to return to our former field of labour, and some of the leading Brethren in our Conference advised us strongly to heed that call. So we could not but believe that the good Lord himself wants us to go back to Ontario, and we dare not disobey. The Lord willing we will be on our way to Ontario by November 8th, next, and if somebody wishes to write us after that date, please, address your letters to us in care of Miss Alex. Janzen, 172 King Street South, Waterloo, Ont., or Waterloo, Ontario, General Delivery will also reach us.

Every farewell has its bitterness in it and so has our departure from British Columbia. We have made many friends, the work is just starting to show some fruits, everything is in progress but very far from being completed, and much is still to be done here. The work is also a promising one. The attendance of our Sunday Services is steadily growing, and from time to time souls can be wrestled from the Streets of this big city and brought into the fold of the Good Shepherd. We are thankful for what the Lord has done here during the time of our sojourn in Vancouver.

Do not forget the work in Vancouver and in the Province of British Columbia. Pray for the young Director of the Vancouver Mennonite Mission and the Matron of the Girls Home, who happen to be our son-in-law and our daughter, Rev. and Mrs. Jacob B. Wiens, formerly of Waterloo, Ontario. They will reside for the time being in the house that we are occupying at present. Pray also for us, my wife and myself, that we might do our work not in the way of eyeservice, as men-pleasers but as servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart.

We wish to thank you for the lovingkindness that you have extended to us and beg of you not to forget us in the future, as we still will remain in the need of your prayers and your kind support.

Yours in the Lord,

Eliese and Jacob H. Janzen.

QUESTIONAIRE

The results of this questionnaire were used as the basis for a talk by Karl Baehr, delivered at the Western District Conference Young People's Meeting, held at McPherson, October 20. Part one of the talk follows below:

Please answer questions honestly. If you don't know the answer, say so! Don't guess or ask your neighbor. No names are to be signed. Please give your honest conviction.

1. What is the official organ for Mennonite youth?
3. How often does it appear?
2. How many pages does it contain?
4. Who is the president of the General Conference?
5. What are the fundamental principles of the Mennonite church?
6. Do you think these principles should be upheld?
7. Should the Mennonites remain as a church? If so, why? If not, why not?
8. What distinctive contributions can the Mennonite church make to the world?
9. Is the General Conference actively engaged in some program for its youth? If so, what?
10. Do you plan to remain a members of a Mennonite church? If so and if not, why?

What More Can the Mennonite Church Do for its Youth?

Karl Baehr

Four hundred years ago a group of highly educated men broke from the corruption and vicious belief of the Catholic church. In the face of bitter persecution and death they spread their convictions of a new life in Christ, as expressed in the Scriptures, throughout Central Europe. Denounced as angels of the devil and hounded as criminals, they nevertheless continued their efforts to preach the Gospel. When betrayed into the hands of Rome, they died a terrible, ignominious death at the stake.

Their efforts, however, did not prove fruitless, for as a result of the work of these educated men of God the Mennonite church was born. Today, after four hundred years of its existence, we are meeting together to discuss the problems of that selfsame denomination.

Before discussing the question "What more can the Mennonite church do for its youth?" it might be well to stop and ask a more fundamental question—a question upon which the entire issue tonight rests: "Should we as a Mennonite church continue to exist?" That may seem a very pointed and serious question, but I think it is basic to the discussion at hand. Does the Mennonite church have a mission for the modern world? Is there any distinctive contribution that we can make to the world?

Obviously, if the Mennonite church has nothing to offer, then our problem is solved. We would have no logical right or reason to keep our young people; we would expect them to find a place where a true contribution to the kingdom of God could be made! If, on the other hand, the Mennonites do have some reason for existence; if we do have a mission to perform in the world; if God has placed us here to make some contribution to the building of His kingdom, then the Mennonite church most certainly will want to keep and provide a real program for its youth.

In order to clarify this issue, let us take stock of ourselves and see just what the principles are that might possibly justify our existence. What were the principles laid down by our church fathers? What are those principles that they lived and died for? And are they applicable to modern society?

The first principle is the belief in the Scripture as the Word of God. Before the Reformation the people were not allowed to read the Scriptures on pain of death. The priests taught their own beliefs or the philosophy of the Pope in order to keep the people in ignorance and prevent the rise of heresy. Today we have the privilege and opportunity to read the Scriptures, but we fail to do so for "pain" of taking the time. No, we can't lose that foundation of our faith, the Scriptures.

Another principle is that of conversion—the belief that we must be re-born and clean within, accepting Jesus Christ as our Savior. This is of fundamental importance, for unless we have the love of God within our souls we cannot contribute anything of value to the world.

The third is the principle of peace—the belief that Christ was and is the fullest expression of peace. Menno Simons and his followers firmly believed in peace. Within their own group they believed in what I feel is a slogan of momentous importance: "In fundamentals, unity; in non-essentials, liberty; and in all things, love." They believed in maintaining peace within their fold—not giving vent to petty outbursts and squabbles over minor differences. Their idea of peace went much farther, however; they believed in loving even their enemies. Even though they were hounded as criminals, shot, and burned at the stake, yet they refused to take up arms against their oppressors. Oh, how we need that ideal in the world today!

The fourth principle is the simple life as expressed in the Sermon on the Mount. This principle was diametrically opposed to the wealth, luxury, and lavish living of the Catholic church. Our forefathers clearly saw, how the Word of God was sacrificed on that vicious altar of gold. We definitely need a revival of this simple life today.

Other vital principles could be mentioned—baptism upon confession of faith, truthfulness or not taking the oath, etc.—but time will not permit.

Having reviewed the principles upon which Mennonitism stands, it is evident that the Mennonite church has not only a mission for the modern world but also a duty and an obligation to live and proclaim those to all. God has not protected and guided us these four hundred years without a purpose in mind.

There is still another question I should like to clarify before answering the question "What more can our church do for its youth?" and that is, "What is the nature of youth? What differentiates youth from old age?" The answer is, I think, idealism and activity. Those are the characteristics of youth. Youth is full of energy, and, therefore, what appeals to young people is action—to do something. What a wonderful possibility for Christian service lies within that tremendous store of potential energy of youth!

Here the church has fallen down. It has not made use of the great store of energy. The church has, seemingly, been very reluctant to give its youth some real, challenging responsibilities. Somehow it feels that the young people are just a group of youngsters that must be relegated to silence. This is evident when considering the status of the Young People's Committee. Rev. D. D. Eitzen states that the Young People's Committee "can merely agitate and suggest and make general reports." Certainly this committee should be given a place of real responsibility within conference activities. I feel that the church has been a little too proficient in practicing soil conservation—leaving idle the fertile soil of youth. Youth wants and should have some real, definite responsibilities within the church.

We have now answered two questions: First, that there is a reason for the existence of the Mennonite church; and second, that youth is so constructed that it wants action and responsibility.

Next, I should like to reveal how the Mennonite young people feel toward the church, as disclosed by a questionnaire submitted to the Mennonite young people at Bethel College. Two facts stand out very clearly: The first is that the Mennonite church has the undivided loyalty of its youth! Everyone that answered the questainnaire expressed his admiration for and his loyalty to the church. The young people declared that they would not leave the church, except in the eventuality that their work would take them into a community, where no Mennonite church existed. What a wonderful compliment to the Mennonite church! Youth is for the church, and youth believes in her principles. Although many did not know what those principles were, still they declared their belief in them and the feeling that they should be upheld.

The second point revealed is that the church does not satisfy its youth as far as a vital program is concerned. Answers to the question "Is the General Conference actively engaged in some program for its youth?" very frequently were: "If so, I don't know what" or "I don't know" or "More should be done." Youth is not conscious of a live, vital, unifying youth program.

Problems:

1. Paul, in his letter to the Ephesians, emphasizes Christian unity. Only when Faith and Love predominate can Christians solve their problems. It is through the Church that Faith and Love can be acquired. Can World Peace be attained without Christ and the Church? When we look back we see, "By bringing to an end the religious supremacy of the Jew, Christ brought to an end the estrangement, the 'enemity', between Jew and Gentile."

2. Is a Christian expected by the non-Christians to live a different life? Do the lives of Christians at home have any influence on the foreign mission fields? What share should every Christian have in the spread of Christianity over the earth?

"The Epistle (to the Ephesians) is both sublimely and practically Christian. It is the work of a writer whose intellect and affections were of the highest order. His words have proved an inexhaustible mine of spiritual truth and light for eighteen centuries in every branch of the Christian church." "In contrast with the spiritual darkness and the moral impurity of the world about him, the Christian should be experiencing a continual renewal of mind and heart, and should be after the image and the will of God." What did Paul mean with: "And put on the new man"?

3. Do you agree that a program of missionary activity should begin with attending church-services? Again our Master sets the example. He, himself, did not need the church; He realized He could give the church something it needed. Then, too, a church offers "that something" which is not found elsewhere.

4. What responsibility does a church have towards sending out missionaries and supporting missions? "If we would have the church effective for her simplest work, she must be true to her foremost work. What is called the missionary enterprise must be frankly and enthusiastically avowed to be her primary concern."

5. Is it worthwhile to offer the heathen peoples Christianity? The English-Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal said at the close of the nineteenth century: "In my judgment Christian missionaries have done more lasting good to the people of India than all other agencies combined." Missionaries not only bring the Gospel, but also relieve human suffering with medical aids, reduce illiteracy, and teach better methods of farming, and engage in other occupations.

6. Is the work of missions worthwhile? Let us ask ourselves the following questions:

Suppose there had been no missionaries!

By Harry Thomas Stock, D.D.

1. Would your own church exist? Who organized it? Did it come into existence with the help of a missionary? Were not all of the first ministers to America missionaries? Is not every minister a missionary?

2. Who would provide the leadership for religious and social work in the slums of the cities? Who would help the people who live in neglected and poverty-stricken rural sections to maintain their churches?

3. How would the work of the Kingdom of God be spread into parts of the world where it is not known?

4. Who would maintain hospitals and schools and social centers for the people of China and Japan and Africa and India?

5. Who would represent the spirit of goodwill and peace and unselfishness in China and Japan and Africa? Should all missionaries withdraw and so allow the money-making representatives of "big business" to be the only representatives of America in these countries?

Nov. 28: Topic—Christ makes people over. Acts 9:1-6

Purpose

Every meeting should have a very definite purpose. This must be clearly in the minds of those in charge of the meeting. For this meeting the purpose might be to so present the topic that those who listen will realize that Christ in a life does make a difference.

Pre-Prayer

Gal. 2:20. Pray that those who do not know Christ may long to have Him transform their lives. Pray for the leader and each one who has a part in presenting the topic

I. Praise in Song

1. "Since the Fullness of His Love Came In"
2. "When Love Shines In"
3. Society Announcements. (Ask the president to come to the front of the room and take charge)

II. Quiet Worship

1. Announce the topic
   Leader: "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold all things are become new."
2. Piano (solftly) "More Like the Master"
3. Scripture reading, Acts 9:1-6
4. Prayer by Prayer Meeting Chairman, followed by "Let the Beauty of Jesus" (heads still bowed)

III. Presentation of Topic

1. Leader's remarks. Refer back to the scripture lesson and tell in as interesting a way as you can how Paul was changed. Tell of his life before and after Christ came into it
2. Bible Illustrations of lives made over

  - a. Zaccheus, Luke 19:1-10
  - b. Peter: the denial, and later preaching and going to prison for Christ
3. Historical Characters made over by Christ
   - a. Augustine (consult library or your pastor for biographies)
   - b. St. Francis
4. Modern Lives made over by Christ
   - a. E. Stanley Jones
   - b. Kagawa
5. "What Christ means to Me," by two consecrated Intermediates

IV. Closing Moments

Poem, "When I Met the Master"
Sentence prayers (Ask several beforehand to be prepared to lead)
Benediction

Changed Lives

Dr. E. Stanley Jones tells of his experience in trying to preach his first sermon in his home church. He had prepared what he thought was a very intellectual sermon, but utterly failed in giving it. He was about to leave the pulpit in confusion, when he heard a Voice: "Haven't I done anything for you?" "Yes," he answered, "you have done everything for me." "Well," said the Voice, "couldn't you tell them that?" So very simply he told them of the wild reckless life he had lived among them and how Christ had come and made life new for him. At the close of the meeting a friend came up and said, "Stanley, I wish I could find what you have found."

Kagawa was a member of a noble Japanese family. As a child he lived with his step-mother by whom he was much abused. He was very unhappy. His father hoped to make a political leader of him and he was trained accordingly. He used the English Bible as a text-book to learn the English language. While studying it he became interested in Jesus. A new light began to dawn in his life. He began to love and serve Christ. His family disowned him, and he gave up his wealth and nobility. But in the new life he found peace and happiness.

WHEN I MET THE MASTER

I had walked life's way with an easy tread,
Had followed where comforts and pleasures led,
Until one day, in a quiet place,
I met the Master, face to face.

With station and rank and wealth for my goal,
Much thought for my body, but none for my soul,
I had entered to win in life's big race,
When I met the Master, face to face.

I met Him and knew Him, and blushed to see,
That His eyes full of sorrow were fixed on me,
And I faltered and fell at His feet that day,
While my castles melted and vanished away.

Melted and vanished, and in their place,
Naught else did I see but the Master's face,
And I cried aloud: Oh, make me meet
To follow the steps of Thy wounded feet.

My thought is now for the souls of men,
I have lost my life to find it again,
Ever since that day in a quiet place,
When I met the Master, face to face.

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

Program Suggestions for November 28, 1937

"They Shall Not Want Any Good Thing"

Thanking for God's Gifts

(Service of Worship)

Guest Night

1. Prelude: hymns played softly by a junior
2. Processional. Let the children sing "Come Ye That Love the Lord." Remain standing in seats until all verses have been sung
3. Scripture reading: Psalm 147:1-12
4. Adoration: Rise to sing "Holy, Holy, Holy". Let the group sing verse 1, then a solo verse 3 and the group again in unison, verse 4
5. Prayer by a junior:

"Our God we love Thee,
Not because we hope for heav'n thereby;
Nor yet because if we love not,
We must forever die
But we do love Thee, and will love,
And will Thy praises sing;
Because Thou art our mighty God,
And our eternal King." Amen. (Be seated)

6. Praise: "Praise Ye the Lord, the Almighty" (Translation of Lobe den Herren. See Service Hymnal.) Let this be in form of special music by male voices from an older C. E. group.
7. Meditation: "God's Gifts." Let the juniors who have these verses, rise in their seats and face the audience to speak their verse. Let each one say "God's gift of . . . ." (stating the gift) before quoting the verse and its reference
   - a. Voice one: "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights"
   - b. Voice two: "God's gift of harvest, of summer and winter, of day and night, Gen. 8:22:" (Quote)
   - c. Voice three: "God's gift of rain, Lev. 26:4:" (Quote)
   - d. God's gift of food: Psalm 34:9 and 10. Also Ps. 145:15-16

TO THE JUNIOR

"Give Me thy heart," says the Father above,
No gift so precious to Him as our love;
Softly He whispers, wherever thou art,
"Gratefully trust Me, and give Me thy heart."

"Give Me thy heart," says the Savior of men,
Calling in mercy again and again;
"Turn now from sin, and from evil depart,
Have I not died for thee? Give Me thy heart."

"Give Me thy heart, give Me thy heart,"
Hear the soft whisper wherever thou art;
From this dark world He would draw thee apart,
Speaking so tenderly, "Give Me thy heart."

CORRESPONDENCE

SALEM CHURCH, FREEMAN, S. D.

Greetings! We are enjoying pleasant autumn weather. The temperature, thus far, has seldom reached below freezing. Killing frosts were exceptionally late this fall. Our top soil is saturated with moisture of last week, putting winter grain in excellent shape. The subsoil is none to wet however. Crops were better than last year. Wheat ranged from 5 to 10 bushels to the acre. Corn has been reported as high as 25 bushels to the acre. Farmers have a good supply of feed for their stock.—The health of our congregation was very good. Only a few cases of sickness on record.

We had the usual church services, except during the winter months, due to blocked roads, this year. Many from our congregation took part in The Young People's Retreat this summer.

During the month of September we heard a series of lectures delivered by Brother R. E. Underwood, a converted infidel. Mr. Underwood's messages were timely and inspirational. The pictures were mostly trends of communism in foreign lands and our own country. The church was filled to full capacity.

At a special meeting of the congregation, our pastor, Rev. P. R. Schroeder, was asked to serve an additional three years, after his time expires May 1, 1938. Rev. Schroeder has kindly consented to serve.—The correspondent.

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, HUTCHINSON, KAN.

Dear Editor and Readers: We are having beautiful fall weather. The country is pretty with its green wheat fields and the trees with their foliage arrayed in many colors.

Several incidents have taken place since my last report. A young lady was baptized and received into our church. Three couples have been married.—During part of June and July our pastor and family had their vacation. They went to see his mother who lives in Washington. During their absence Rev. J. M. Suderman of Buhler, Rev. P. K. Regier of Moundridge, Dr. E. G. Kaufman of Bethel College, and Rev. A. J. Dyck of Inman substituted in the pulpit.—We again had union summer evening services with two neighboring churches. The meetings were well attended and the services certainly were a blessing to all who attended.—On Aug. 29, we had the privilege to have Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Plenert and son, from Philadelphia with us. Brother Plenert preached the sermon that Sunday. The Plenerts have served this church for so many years and we were happy to have them with us once more.—On Oct. 24, we were privileged to have the Wiens missionary family with us. In the morning Rev. Wiens preached to us, and in the evening he and Sister Wiens told us of their work in India, while the girls gave some musical numbers. We are always happy to have missionaries with us. It brings us closer together and we need to get better acquainted with the work they are doing. Mrs. Wiens again reminded us that they needed our prayers more than anything else. We cannot all go, but we can pray and give. So let us pray more earnestly for our missionaries and their work, and at the same time remember that they also have to have our financial support to carry on.—On Tuesday, Oct. 26, Rev. and Mrs. Becker of the Defenseless Mennonite Church near Sterling, who are themselves returned missionaries, brought over two couples of missionaries from the African field. They told us of their work among the dark people and also showed some pictures. The work really is great. Are we doing our part?—Mrs. J. K. Froese, Corr.

EBENEZER CHURCH, NEAR BLUFFTON, O.

On Sunday, Oct. 3, Rev. P. A. Kliewer preached on James 3, by request. He invites other members to present their texts. In the evening, at a joint meeting of the C. E. societies, Miss Irma Schneck, returned missionary from Ethiopia, gave a very interesting and impressive lecture.—On Monday evening, Oct. 11, Rev. George Blomgreen spoke in our church. He has returned from the mission field in China. His subject was "War Clouds."—During the third week in October our pastor attended a Bible Conference at Columbus, Ohio, and brought back a wonderful report as to the exalting of Jesus at that place.—On Oct. 24, the morning offering was graciously collected for the care of a loved member at the Bluffton Community Hospital.—In the evening, the Ebenezer congregation joined the union service held in the First Mennonite Church at Bluffton, where Rev. A. C. Schultz gave an interesting lecture on Palestine and Egypt.—Our sisters are happy to be able to contribute of their bounteous crop of vegetables and fruit toward the Mennonite Mission Church at Chicago, Ill., where a feast is to be spread and where Rev. A. H. Leaman is in charge.—On Oct. 17, took place the rendition of the Oratorio "Elijah" which was far above our expectation. It was greatly and modestly presented until the exciting expression of Baal worship, which was most forcibly brought forth. But may we say, our sisters did not appear with painted faces, as we might suppose the followers of the wicked Jesebel probably did according to II Kings 9:30, "And when (king) Jehu was come to Jezrerl, Jezebel heard of it; and she painted her eyes, and attired her head, and looked out at the window." To get King Jehu's opinion and action read the chapter to the end.—Brother Edwin Wedel, formerly of Gotebo, Oklahoma, nephew of Miss Elizabeth Foth, missionary at Gospel Hall, Brooklyn, N. Y., who will soon leave for Africa as a medical missionary, preached a powerful sermon for us on Oct. 24.—Corresp.

PERKASIE, PENNSYLVANIA.

The Orphanage Society of the Eastern District Conference Mennonites held their annual Convention on Saturday, Oct. 9th, in the West Swamp church near Quakertown. During the morning session the business of the Society was conducted.

The afternoon session opening with a spirited song service, consisted of addresses by Mrs. P. J. Boehr, missionary from China, Mrs. J. P. Suderman missionary from Oraibi, Arizona, and Adjutant Louis Bolnick, Supt. of Children's Rescue Home of Quakertown. These addresses were very informative and helpful and were interspersed with musical numbers by members from the different churches and a sacred play, splendidly rendered by a group of young people of the West Swamp church.

The Orphanage Society organized 33 years ago was for the purpose of caring for needy orphans and widows. It now numbers about 70 persons from the various Mennonite churches of the Eastern District. The only rules for membership are that prospective members signify their willingness to support the cause by freewill offerings and otherwise.

The Society has contributed $50.00 per year for orphans in India, for some years. It has been acting as a relief agent in caring for Mennonite families in need. In the year 1936, more than $300 were spent in ministering to the needs of others. The previous year nearly $200 were spent in a like manner.

Are there not others who would like to work with us in this Christ like work of helping those who cannot help themselves? We would especially urge Sunday Schools and Ladies' Aid Societies to pray for and remember this cause. There should be a responsibility felt by all to care for the unfortunate.

We urge your continued interest and support. It is only by united effort and interest that we can continue this work, so well begun. We would suggest that all Ladies' organizations make at least one donation per year. Also it would be a very suitable project for Sunday Schools to give their Children's Day offerings to this cause.

Our next convention will be held in the Bethel Mennonite Church, Perkasie, on the second Saturday of October, 1938.

Ada M. Landis, Sec.,
407 Race St., Perkasie, Pa.

DEATHS

JOHN ZIMMERLY — resident of the Bluffton, Ohio, neighbrohood, passed away late in September, at the age of 64. The funeral was held Sept. 30 at the Ebenezer Mennonite Church, from which he had been compelled to be absent many weeks, due to extended illness. Interment at the Ebenezer cemetery. He leaves to mourn his departure, his wife, two sons and four daughters. The funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. P. A. Kliewer.

ANDREW EBERHART—well known peddler, who made his home with the Amos Graber family, in the Bluffton neighborhood, was struck by an auto while walking on the Dixie Highway, and later died in the hospital, at the age of 79. Rev. P. A. Kliewer was in charge of the funeral.

PETER MOSER—died at his home in Bluffton, Ohio, October 22. He had been known for his skill in "barn raising" and, along that line, he leaves behind him many monuments to stand long to his memory. Surviving him are his widow, one daughter, two sons, twenty grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Brother Moser was past 80 years old. Funeral by his pastor and burial in the Ebenezer cemetery.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—Eighth Street Menn. Church, Goshen, Ind.—The Friends, Brethren, and Mennonites are organized to help the refugees in Spain. It is very fitting that we, who will not take part in war should be kind to the victims of this mass destruction. The present need is for clothes, especially for children. The Mennonite Peace Society is sponsoring a collection of new or used articles. At the end of the campaign the five Mennonite churches of this region plan to have a peace rally, perhaps in our church. The campaign will end on Armistice Day. In the hall is posted a list of the articles needed and the number that should be the goal of our church. Will you please look at the list and then let us know what you will give? Some churches are sewing and knitting, making clothing out of new or old material, repairing used articles, or buying new ones. We ask cooperation in helping these unfortunate victims of international unrest. Editor's note: Cannot our General Conference Relief Committee act to give similar aid to those war-stricken children?

—"The Minister's Short Course" at Bethel College, consisting of the following units, "The Use of the Bible in Preaching", "Pastoral Psychology", and "The High Lights in Modern Science", has attracted a goodly number of ministers and the wives of some to the school, about thirty persons have already enrolled. The classes meet Monday afternoons of each week, for twelve weeks, from 1:00 to 3:40 o'clock. This is indeed a gratifying showing, and it will be a splendid opportunity for the leaders of our churches to thus get more intimately acquainted with the College and its work.

—Geary, Oklahoma.—The Interdenominational Council of Indian Missionary Workers of Oklahoma held their 23rd Conference in the Mennonite church at Geary, Okla., Oct. 26-27. At noon of the second day the ladies of the church served a dinner to the conference, at which time our missionaries, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Linscheid, who are retiring before long, were presented with a gift, accompanied by words of appreciation for their faithful attendance and support of the Conference, by the other members in attendance.

—Sunday Bulletin, Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa.—Rev. G. T. Soldner, Bluffton College Field Secretary visited members of the church in the interest of the college.—A surprise birthday dinner for Mrs. Nyce (the pastor's wife) was sponsored jointly by the Ladies' Aid Society and the Loyal Mothers class on Thursday. They presented the honored guest with a beautiful plant and a Silex Coffee Maker.—Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Frank, will sail for our mission field in India, on the steamer "Hamburg" of the Hamburg American Line, on November 11. Mrs. Frank, formerly Miss Johanna Schmidt of Goessel, Kansas, served a term prior to her marriage.

—The Amish Mennonites of Lancaster County, Pa. who for nearly a year have been contending for their right to continue educating their children in their own "little red schoolhouses", have finally won out. Settling in that and neighboring counties in 1712, which they have made into one of the garden spots in the United States, they have changed their religious customs and practices very little, if any. About a year ago the community of Smoketown, in Lancaster county, started to erect a modern P.W.A. union school building, to which the Amish seriously objected. When nothing else availed, they had their lawyer bring the case directly before the governor of the State. They asked that their children be allowed to return to their ten little schoolhouses. "For," pleaded their attorney John Landberg, "they believe that there are too many worldly temptations in this new school. They were satisfied with the old ones. They don't want their children to grow away from the farm and from the religion." When Governor George Earle had heard their plea, he ordered their schools to be reopened at the state's expense, about $6000.00 annually, saying, "This is a mere pittance, and for that amount I would not interfere with religion. I know that there are no more law-abiding people in the State of Pennsylvania than these Amish Mennonites."

—Bluffton College, which has for a good many years been using the "honor system" of student government, where an "honor court" composed of students handles cases of discipline, has just checked the practicability of continuing the system up to the student body, and their almost unanimous verdict seems to be, that the system does not function. As one student puts it, "The honor system is a means for developing self-respect, but the results are exactly the opposite, if all do not cooperate."

—Ten Young Couples, from among the latest alumni of Bluffton College were recently married. Of five of the couples both of the parties are Blufftonites; of the other five, one of the the pair. It is an established fact that marriages between college graduates are among the happiest to be found and that there are fewer divorces among them than among other classes of society. So these couples are to be congratulated.

—Rev. C. H. Dirks, pastor of the First Mennonite Church of Hutchinson, Kansas, is going to hold revival meetings at the Friedenstal Mennonite Church near Tampa, Kansas, beginning Nov. the 8th.

—Rev. J. J. Balzer, Mt. Lake, Minn., Oct. 16: We received 6 inches of snow over night and it is still snowing. We are glad for this moisture. And the Mt. Lake Observer reports that most of that state has a 90-100% normal corn crop this year. That this year's crop is estimated at 169,974,000 bushels, that it is double that of last year, and averages 35.5 bushel to the acre. How unevenly the crop blessings are distributed!

—Freeman (South Dakota) Courier.—Forty-eight years ago this fall a branch of the Chicago, Milwaukee and Saint Paul Ry. system was built from Marion, through Freeman, Menno, Scotland, etc. to Running Water. And the people of this community were so glad that they felt like celebrating two Thanksgiving days. Many times the railroad company had to run extra freight trains, besides two passenger trains every day. Today most of the branch track is not used any more, in fact it has been taken up beyond Menno (a town only a few miles from Freeman). One train, three times each week, will run from Marion to Menno and, returning, will back up to Marion. Its remarkable how conditions change!

—Rev. John Lichti, Medford, Okla. writes: The other day we attended the S. S. Convention at Washita, Okla. Addresses on the following themes were given, all very good: "What can we as Christians do in this Community?" "Plans for reaching the Unreached;" "Our Response to the Challenge of Youth and educating for Peace." This last was by many Mennonites said to be a Mennonite sermon. I said, "a Biblical sermon, on Peace, according to Christ's teachings." The speaker was a Methodist, a man of peace at heart. Would that all Christians might join the peace movement, through the Cross on Calvary.

—Rev. Albert Claassen, Freeman, S. D. sends a new subscriber to THE MENNONITE, calls for samples of the paper to get it into more homes of his church, feeling that it is really a blessing to readers.

—The Central Conference and Defenceless branches of Mennonites who are doing efficient missionary work in the African Congo, known as the "Congo Inland Mission", recently held a Jubilee Missionary Convention at Washington, Ill. The key-note of the addresses was: The Lord has done much through our missionary efforts, all praise is due Him. Africa is rapidly emerging from its dormant state, the opportunities for spreading the Gospel are great and with them come great responsibilities.

—Berne, Indiana.—Three venerable old people celebrate important mile-stones in their lives: On October 16 Brother and Sister Levi A. Sprunger celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. In the afternoon and later evening they held open house, and with their large family and friends they had dinner at the Swiss Cafe banquet rooms. Mr. Sprunger is president of the State Bank of Berne. He is 74 and Mrs. Sprunger 70 years old. Both are still active in the community.—On Sunday, October 31, the children and grandchildren of Peter C. Lehman met at the Lehman home to celebrate father Lehman's ninetieth birthday. Brother Lehman, too, is still in good health. He frequently walks to town with his market basket.

FOREIGN MISSION

The First Mission Number Written By Native Helpers

In order to acquaint the dear mission friends better with our native helpers on the five mission fields, it was decided to make this number a helpers' number, and have it all written by them. They have written more than the request had called for, although only a few of the 263 helpers have written. But they do not often get a chance, so we will be patient with them, and read through this large number anyway. Usually only the 55 white missionaries write, and not even all of them.

These helpers mean very much for our work. We could not get along without them. Brother S. F. Pannabecker writes that in case the foreigners should have to leave our stations in China on account of the war, the native helpers have been organized to carry on the work without the foreigners, if need be, thank the Lord. Let this be a special cause of gratitude at the coming Thanksgiving-Mission-Program. We hasten to send this number out, so that mission friends can read it before Thanksgiving Day, and find it so much easier to celebrate it.

We have much cause for such mission thanksgiving days, because the Lord has blessed the work richly, both on the field and here at home for the treasury. The prospects are good for making all payments this year, without a deficit, if the churches continue with their support as they have done, for which we are very thankful.

With our thanks let us also send to the Lord of Lords our petitions for peace, and for protection of our missionaries, especially in China.—P. H. Richert, Sec.

AMERICA

Lame Deer, Mont., Aug. 25, 1937.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Jesus:

I attended school at the Catholic mission in Ashland, and became a Catholic. Later I joined here. In time I helped with the work of translating the Word, by suggesting words for difficult portions, to get the best possible rendering, and then I helped with the printing. I did all the mechanical work on the Multigraph. Mr. Petter, Vxzeta and I worked together in the print shop.

Sometimes I got very tired, for it was steady, hard work, but each morning I had new courage, new zeal. I printed all the Old Testament translations. Then I printed the four gospels. Leona Thierstein came from Kansas and helped Mr. Petter print the rest of the New Testament, for by that time I had a steady job at the government hospital.

Yes, it was indeed hard work to translate and print the translations, and it grieves me that the bulk of my people appreciate this great work so little. I do not know just how long ago it is since I joined here, but I am glad I have learned to read the Cheyenne Bible and that there are a few others who can read. I believe the time will come, when more will want to learn. The leaders of the old religious worship of my people are dying off, and that will bring a change.

But, alas, other influences have come in, and the younger generation seems to have lost all regard for religion, whether the old or the new. They care for drinking and evils of all kinds, and oppose the Christians. One was shot recently. Perhaps you heard about it. All this worries me. Evils of all kinds seem to be growing. Many of these evils have been brought to my people by the white man. Then the rulers at present, I mean the Indian office in Washington, has a new policy, and it permits the old Indian worhsip, and even encourages it.

It makes me sad to note all this, when I realize how much hard work it has cost to bring the gospel to my people. As a tribe, my people does not appreciate fully what the missionaries have brought to them, especially those who have translated the Word and published it. This is indeed a great work, and a great benefit to my people.

In speaking of my past, I lost my first wife and some children, then married again. We both joined here. We have five children, alas, one died. My children are doing well. The oldest one has joined the church, and I think two more will have reached the age when they can join before next Christmas. I am so glad for the blessings of the Word of God. How could I ever forsake this good teaching? I hope to hold out to the end. I pray God to give me this grace. I wish there would be many in all heathen lands, who would feel called to preach the gospel to their people.

Although I hold a government position, as head janitor at the government hospital here, the head nurse and the doctor have arranged my duties so I am free every Sunday to help preach the gospel.—Formerly we called Indian doctors when our children were born, but when our second oldest by my present wife came, we refused Indian doctoring, and called a government field nurse. We were both cursed for this, but we stood our ground, and the baby born then celebrated her sixteenth birthday this week. She has never been sick, and this in spite of the curses pronounced upon us by my people. I am glad we learned better ways. I also think often of Vxzeta (Anna Wolfname) who was such a fine leader among our Christian women, until God called her. There are three of us here at Lame Deer, who preach regularly every Sunday. Frank Littlewolf goes to Birney, and Milton Whiteman and I help here. We also have younger ones who are stepping in to read the Word publicly and to preach. That is all I have to say. I am,

Ernest King (Eseheves).

Dictated in Cheyenne to Mrs. Petter

Lame Deer, Mont., August 8, 1937.

To my Brothers and Sisters in Jesus:

I have been asked to write a few of my thoughts. I live on the Tongue River Reservation here in Montana, together with my tribe, the Northern Cheyenne Indians. I work for the United States Government as chief of police, since 1931. This reservation is quite isolated, being 30 and 60 miles from the railroad. The reservation is enclosed by a fence. White settlers are outside of our reservation as homesteaders. Because the reservation is so isolated, heathendom reigns. The Christian religion has very little place among my people. We have had the Catholic Mission for over fifty years, but it has had very little to show for its work of teaching the gospel of Jesus Christ to Indians or Whites, because they cannot read or understand Latin.

Thus I grew to manhood, wrapped in sin. I mingled with all kinds of earthly doings. I indulged in strong drink and smoked all brands of tobacco. But I was awakened to accept Jesus as my personal Savior on April 29, 1926, and from that time I have endeavored to do His will, in preaching the gospel to my Indian race. For this I have been despised and shunned by former friends; but, armed with faith and winged by prayer, God's hand will guide me to His heavenly home, through Jesus, our Savior. Yes, thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

We are grateful to the Mennonite church for giving us the Word of God in our own Indian language. Through the wonderful grace of God our missionary, the Rev. Rodolphe Petter, translated the Bible, so that we can read it ourselves. Here at Lame Deer and Birney there are three of us Indians who help the missionaries, by reading and preaching the Word of God. We are Frank Littlewolf, Ernest King and myself. There are other members of the church who can read the Cheyenne translations, even though they may not appear regularly in the pulpit.

The teaching of God's Word has been greatly hindered by the present regime, headed by John Collier, our Commissioner of Indian Affairs in Washington. He has opened wide the door to do as you please, worship as you will, and by so doing has revived the old heathen worship of the Indians, which has not served towards progress. In fact the old heathen worship had largely been forgotten and neglected until he revived it.

Since I became a Christian I have found joy in giving Jesus my all, in helping bring His kingdom in. I delight in helping my Indian people to see the light, and to be saved through Jesus Christ our Lord. The task is not a very easy one, when the ruling hand in Washington upholds heathen practises. But I thank God for saving me by His mighty hand, for I had been a great sinner. We pray God to bless our missionaries for their faithful work, especially Dr. and Mrs. Petter, Rev. and Mrs. Habegger, in bringing the gospel of salvation through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Praise the Lord for His good works.

Faithfully, Milton Whiteman (Mesko).

To Readers of the Mennonite and All Mission Friends:

For about 25 years I have been listening to God's Word. My wife and six children also attend services with me. Since I have come to know that God is the One by whom we all live, I, therefore, have Him as my trust. I know that here and elsewhere some people worship other things instead of God, and I have observed that they do not get any help from their wrong worship, and, therefore, I trust in God alone, who alone saves.

I want to tell you that I am still going alone the Christian way, that you, my friends, are following. I do not give up although discouragements may come.

I encourage my family, and such who come to services to live Christian lives. Also outside of church, when I have an opportunity to speak to the Indians, I testify to the truth of God's Word.

I wish to relate on experience we had. My wife became very ill and her mother and her step-father called Medicine-men to treat her, and although I did not favor this, I let them have their way for a while. Then, when I realized that my wife was getting worse and would die, if not help came to her; I prayed to God to help, and asked others to pray for her. Then we were led to have her go to the Agency Hospital where the physician gave her treatment, and in two days she got better. In acknowledgment to God, I notified two leaders of the church at Lame Deer, as I was staying there at that time, that they should give thanks to God in public for this manifestation of His help in time of great need. Then to give further thanks to God, we arranged for a feast for the Busby Christians at our home, and invited the Missionaries at Busby, and they all came to our home. How happy we were together, for I had feared we would never be able to have our mother in our home again. At that time I called on a number of Christians to give thanks and to ask God for further blessings. Among them was our dear Brother in Christ, who recently was shot and killed, Oliver Eaglefeathers.

Before the Missionaries came, the Cheyennes lived without a true knowledge of God. But now they all know there is a living God, although many still cling to the old worship in spite of better knowledge.

I thank you for this opportunity of addressing you, and I send greetings to you all, I am,

Robert Littlewolf.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

Formerly in my youth, I knew nothing whatever of God's law, as given in the Scriptures. I was about nine years old when I went away to school. I did not ask my folks, because I knew they would oppose my going. A representative of the Ft. Shaw school, in Northern Montana, came to our reservation to gather up Indian children and I went with them, really running away from home.

When I was there at Ft. Shaw, a white man used to come and speak to us, but it was about a year or so before I realized that he was a preacher and was talking about God. After that I kept what little I understood of his preaching.

When I came back my mother's mother had died, but her father was still living, though about 80 years old. It made me very sad to lose my grandmother, but somehow I began to think about God and what I had slightly understood about Him. But my folks strongly opposed my new religious convictions, saying, "We are Indians. We have our own religious worship. It is superior, don't listen to the white man."

With the years I married. We had children. One of our children took sick. My people began to suggest a heathen ceremonial for me, saying that then my three year old sick child would get well. They mentioned all the different ceremonials, of which there are many, including the buffalo dance (masshaom), the arrow ceremony (hootonestoz) and the sun dance (hoxeeom) as the principal ones, together with a host of other ceremonies of our phallic worship.

Alas, they prevailed upon me and my wife. We agreed to go through the buffalo dance ceremonial. George Bird Grenell of New York City, who has written extensively about us Cheyennes, came out especially to witness this ceremonial. (I noticed that Frank in dictating here, avoided referring to the obscene features of this ceremonial, which has become loathesome to them since they are Christians. Exonona, the wife, has made a statement of what occurred, and all was forwarded to Washington, in the hopes that authorities would do their part in stopping such ceremonies—Mrs. Petter). After we had gone through this, one of the greatest of Cheyenne ceremonials, we were both highly honored throughout the tribe. No one dared say ought against us. On all occasions we were favored, and esteemed.

However, I served as policeman at the Agency for 16 years, and while still thus employed, we both became Christians the first year that Zessensze and Meneha came to Lame Deer. I began to forget the old religion, so did my wife. Up to the present time I have kept on with my Christian life. After Rev. Pankratz left Birney, I was asked to go regularly to conduct the services there. I have served in this way for a number of years, now, and although my people tell me to quit that kind of work, I do not listen to them. I keep right on preaching, Birney is about 22 miles from here. I go regularly every week, in all kinds of weather, in summer and in winter. I have no automobile, so I go horseback. Even though sometimes this means a hard trip, I try to be brave, remembering that God's Word must be preached to my people. I have never gotten tired of doing this, even though sometimes I had very hard experiences.

I have three daughters. They are all Christians. They too, together with my wife, try to live Christian lives. I feel that we are happy in our Christian lives. We are so glad for the two you have sent here to Lame Deer, to teach us and direct us. We rejoice for the light they have brought to us in our darkness. We are so glad to have the translated Scriptures, which we can read our selves. These two, I mean, are Zessensze and Meneha (Mr. and Mrs. Petter). Even though our people make it bitter for us at time for having left the worship of our fathers, we have strongly purposed in our hearts to serve the true and living God revealed to us in the Word. I am,

Frank Littlewolf (Hokomoxaxcetta).

Dictated in Cheyenne to Mrs. Petter.

Excerpts from Talks Given by Native Indian Helpers

(Freely translated by the undersigned)

ALL WE LIKE SHEEP HAVE GONE ASTRAY

There is much difference of opinion, and each one thinks his own way is the best way. The white man thinks his way is the right way, we Indians think that the way God has given us is the best way for us; but God says in His Word by the prophet: "All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all—by His stripes we are healed." We all need to come to Him who is the great and only Physician of the soul—whether we are white or Indian, or any other race.

THE TEACHINGS OF OUR OLD MEN AND THE BIBLE

Our old men, too, taught us many things about how it would be in the latter days: of the hard times that would come on the earth, because the people would be disobedient. They taught us many things which they heard from our prophet. They spoke of the white man coming from the rising of the sun, and of the way he would teach us, and of how our own way would become less and less, and of how evil would increase more and more. All such things our old men tought us just as it is in the Bible, but one thing they did not know of which the Bible tells us and that is, that God would send His Son into the world to die for our sins and so make all who believe in Him free from the power of the evil one.

THE FOLLY OF WORSHIPPING ANYTHING THAT IS BENEATH US.

We know that all things have been created by God. We know that there are three orders of things created on this earth: the animal, the vegetable, and the mineral. The animal kingdom is the highest, and in that kingdom man is by far the most superior. He has life, he can act and think, and can do wonderful things. The plant, too, has life, but it cannot move from its place, it does not think, it merely grows, it is much below the animal kingdom. Then there is the mineral kingdom. It has no life, no activity and no development—it is the lowest order. Now since man—the highest being in the animal kingdom—thinks and is able to admire, to honor and to respect, it is natural that he should think of and admire and respect that which is above him and not that which is beneath him. It is therefore unnatural, foolish and wrong for man to admire in worship any animal (all of which are far below him), or anything that has grown out of the earth—things which God has caused to grow for Man's use but not to worship. It is still more absurd for man to worship anything that is in the earth, anything that is of the mineral kingdom—the lowest of them all. The natural and proper thing for man to do is to turn to his Creator, who is above him, and to admire, to honor and to worship Him. Of Him we are told that He is Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth, not by anything which He has created—all of which is below us—but by the eternal Son Himself and by His Spirit.

WATER AS A TYPE OF THE SPIRIT

God's Word is like good seed; but the best of seed thrown into the dust will not grow till moisture is added. Then the seed will swell and send forth roots and a plant, and so new life is started. So it is with the Word of God; we may hear it, but if we do not let the Spirit of God explain it to us, then there is no new life. But if we have the Spirit of God make the Word plain to us, then it will take root in us and new life will begin.

THE HEART THE SEAT OF THE ISSUES OF LIFE

The wise man says: "Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life." The Word of God puts good thoughts into our hearts and from there these good thoughts go to all parts of the body and builds it up; just the same way as the blood goes from the heart and builds up all the organs of the body. So we, if we continually think of the good things in the word of God, our whole body will become well and strong.

THE CHEYENNE CREATION STORY

(In substance)

Showing its Analogy to the Scriptural Account

The gods (two) first clothed the earth with grass and trees. It was very pleasing. Every plant was given a scent (which is its voice) and life.

The gods then created the animals, two of a kind.

The gods ordained the wind to carry water to feed, bless and multiply earth.

The gods decided that it would be well to create human beings—male and female—to rule the earth and all that was put into it. So they were instructed by the gods to have rule over all creation.

The time came when the gods prepared to return to their habitation above. They cautioned them (the human beings) not to touch nor to eat that which tastes good (sweet) until they would return to earth again.

There came a time when the gods returned to earth again and they knew at once that man and woman had not been careful. "Woe to you man and women," the gods said to them, and told them: "This is what you have done," saying this they picked up a chip (cow chip) and walked to a pond and cast the chip upon the water. As it floated he (one of the gods) said to man and woman: "Thus did I create you to live perpetually on the surface of the earth, just as the chip floats on the water; but here is what you have done," saying this he picked up a small stone and cast it upon the water of the same pond. "Look," he said, "The ripples, caused by the stone upon the water, mark the number of your years (of life); as the stone sinks into the water so your body goes into the earth and the bubbles—the air—is the spirit going back to the hand of the Maker."

G. A. Linscheid.

DIFFICULTIES AS A RESULT OF DIFFERENT VIEWPOINTS

Oftentimes there is trouble between people, because one does not see what the other one sees. I read a story about two knights who met at a tavern where a shield was hanging above the road. This shield was of gold on the one side and of silver on the other. When the knights met, they commented upon the color of the shield. The one being on the one side said the shield was gold, the other being on the other side said the shield was of silver. They quarrelled and finally came to blows about it. Another person stopped them and told them that they were both right and that they were both wrong. He told them to each step on the other side of the shield and look at it from the opposite side. When they had done this, they both realized that what the man said was true. Very often it is that way in life, for things appear different to different people. It is very foolish for one party to insist on being right and the other party being wrong, till we have placed ourselves into the other one's position to see the things as he sees them, and often we will then find that he, too, is right, and what is more both will find that neither one was altogether right.

Tuba City, Arizona, Aug. 24, 1937

Dear Friends of our Mission:

We are glad to give our testimony as to how we have been led into the Lord's work. It was in 1918, after almost two years of suffering in the Phoenix Government Sanitorium that the Lord definitely spoke to my soul. Though a Christian for some time, I still used to think that it was all right to enjoy the pleasures of this world. But one of my Indian Christian friends used to say, "Fred, I am burdened for you, because you often go to places where you would not think of taking Christ along." I wondered what kind of a burden that was until I came to know the Lord closer. So in distress and discouragement, because of my long illness, I knelt down and for the first time earnestly prayed to God with tears in my eyes, saying, "Lord, it is enough, I am willing either way to go or to stay. If my life can be spared to this world, I will henceforth live for Thee, but if not, then let me die." From that day on my temperature became normal and in about a month I was able to sit up.

The Lord has given me a wife and five children, after finishing my study for the ministry in the Los Angeles Bible Institute. We are now seeking to live for God in separation from the world and our chief joy is to preach Christ and Him crucified. Our blessed daily experiences with Christ lie in the secret of daily devotions at His feet. Faith is our daily victory over sin and its power.

Today we have a large class of non-Christian women at our sewing class to whom we preach the Gospel. We also have a nice class of children and some young people, as regular attendants of our Sunday School. Besides, we have the opportunity of visiting in many of the MoenCopi homes for which we are thankful.

Though we do not see any souls ready to break away from heathenism to accept Christ, yet we believe that God will save some from among the MoenCopis. I am reminded of God's word to Paul in Acts 18:9-10, "Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace: for I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee: for I have much people in this city." I am sure that you will rejoice with us that our Hopi Christians in Arailu have kept faith all these years.

May the Lord help us to pray more and to seek to do His will.

We are yours in His blessed service,
Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Johnson

Saved To Serve

Gal. 1:15, 16—"But when it pleased God who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by His grace, to reveal his son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen; immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood."

It is with thanksgiving to God for His divine providence in my early childhood, that I am now alive and able to work for Him.

In the verse quoted, the apostle Paul acknowledges his call from God when he was separated from his mother's womb. He lays emphasis on the fact that God had laid His hands on him in infancy. This seems to have been true in my case also.

I was born in the Hopi village Oraibi. When I was still very young my mother died, leaving me in the hands of my sister. It was the custom among the Hopi's then, that when a mother died and left a baby, the baby was to be buried with her, whether dead or alive. This was to happen to me, but my sister would not permit this and promised to take all responsibilities of caring for me.

Sister soon found out that she could not keep me much longer, as I was slowly dying, because of improper food, which consisted of the liquid of fresh corn. She took me to the Mennonite mission, when I was a year and three months old. They tell me that I looked like a three-month old baby, when I was brought to the orphanage. Here arrangements were made for me to stay. I'm told that I exercised my vocal cords when I caught my first glimpse of the white man.

Upon coming home, my sister was severely persecuted with whippings and scoldings for taking me to the mission.

The mission orphanage then in charge of Elizabeth Schmidt, was to be my new home, and again the gate of death was closed. Yes, God takes care of His chosen ones as he says, "Ye have not chosen me but I have chosen you and ordained you that ye should go and bring forth fruit and that your fruit should remain.

Yours because of Calvary,
Karl Johnson, John 3:30.

CHINA

The Present Situation in the Kai Chow East Suburb

By Mr. Chang Ching

(Mr. Chang has been employed in the China mission for about thirteen years and is one of our most energetic and dependable men. As chairman of the Kai Chow East Suburb Church Committee, he has a responsible position in the local church, corresponding approximately to our deacon.—S. F. P.)

Kai Chow is the place where the Mennonite Mission in China has developed the most and its history is the longest. Since the whole story cannot be told in a short paragraph, this article will be confined to a few matters relating to the present situation.

The officers elected by the church are chairman and vice-chairman, recording secretary, corresponding secretary, treasurer and assistant treasurer. The chairman and vice-chairman are elected for two years, all others for one year. The officers together compose the executive committee of the church which is responsible for administering the work of the church.

Sincere seekers who study the gospel at the spring or fall instruction classes, conducted by the church, who recognize their sins, wholeheartely repent and are baptised, are accepted as believers by the church. At present the number of church members is over 400, which does not include the names of any who have died, removed to other places, or have been expelled.

The activities which the church promotes are Sunday preaching services, Sunday School, Bible study classes, mid-week prayer meeting, Christian Endeavor, ushers meetings, Daily Vacation Bible Schools, and the Neighborhood Children's Sunday School.

To better promote the church work, a pastor has recently been secured who is a graduate of the North China Theological Seminary. Other men and women voluntary workers cooperate in the work.

The expenses of the church are met by the regular church offerings and the special spring and fall contributions solicited from the members. The annual expenditures amount to between $400 and $500 (Chinese currency).

We earnestly request all who love our church to continually pray for us.

The Present Situation in the Kai Chow Bible School

By Mr. Chang Ching

(Mr. Chang, author of the preceding article also, serves on the faculty of the Bible School. As "Director of Conduct" he as a position similar to "Dean" of a college. He is a graduate of the Nanking Theological Seminary.—S. F. P.)

This school was first opened in 1925 but afterward was closed for a few years, due to the conditions of the times. In 1930 it was reopened. To the present three classes have been graduated from the regular course. In 1933 an elective course and an elementary course were added and from this latter three classes have been graduated.

For purposes of administration the school is organized with a superintendent, a director of conduct, a director of studies, and a business manager. The last few years have shown progress in the various aspects of school work.

Over nine-tenths of the students come from our own field, but there is a small number that come from neighboring districts. The total number of students enrolled, men and women, number about 50, being divided about equally between the regular and the elementary courses. Only a small number have entered the elective course. Lately special attention has been paid to equipment and buildings for the school. At the same time the spiritual training of the students has been emphasized, with such things as cleanliness and exercise.

The curriculum has recently been rearranged, aiming to make Biblical knowledge a real part of daily life, also emphasizing such courses in general knowledge as necessary to prepare the student for his future work.

Students of our Bible School are found serving the church throughout our whole field and even in other churches. We hope that all who sympathize with this work will continually remember it in your prayers.

The Present Situation in the Yu Jen School of Nursing

By Mr. Wang. Jui-ting

(Mr. Wang is one of a family of orphan children raised by the mission and sent through a nurse's training course. He serves now as Principal of the School of Nursing and as Assistant Superintendent of Nurses in the Hospital. Recently he took a post-graduate course in Institutional Nursing in Peiping and, with his experience and training, is well-fitted for the position he now holds.—S. F. P.)

This school was started in 1930 through the tireless efforts of Miss Elizabeth Goertz. By now it has seven years of history, during which time it has gone through many hardships, but by God's grace and help and the prayers and gifts of you friends the school has made much progress. Herewith is a summary of the present situation.

A school board was organized for the school in May of last year and registration with the government was sought, in order to prepare nurses for the service in China. Happily, registration was granted by the Department of Education, which authorized the official title of "Hopei Province Private Yu Jen Higher Vocational School of Nursing."

At the same time the government began the registration of graduate nurses throughout the whole country. Graduates of our school to date number sixteen. These have all received the government certificate, for which we are highly pleased.

During the past years the school has had no regular buildings, so that at times there has not been sufficient room. On April 22nd of this year the school moved into the former Ladies' House, with arrangements for class rooms, office, practice teaching room, dormitories and playground. This makes a great improvement over the former situation.

On the 1st of July entrance examinations were held for new students, four men and four women are to be accepted. We hope thus to prepare workers for real service.

May all our friends in the Lord pray that the school may continually progress, in order to be of greater service in the Lord's work, this is our constant prayer.

Present Situation in the Kai Chow Hospital

By Mr. Ku T'ung-ch'ing

(Mr. Ku, one of our own boys, went through our schools and later graduated from Senior High School elsewhere. He has served in various capacities but seems to be definitely located in the hospital, now, where he acts as business manager and is indispensable. He is deeply spiritual and takes a great interest in all church and mission activities.—S. F. P.).

Medical work started early with the opening of mission work. However the present real hospital began in 1922, with the work of Dr. A. M. Lohrentz, followed by Dr. C. L. Pannabecker and the nurses, Miss Frieda Sprunger and Miss Elizabeth Goertz. Nothing need be said about the preceding years, since this article is concerned with the present situation.

Although the location of the hospital is in a very out-of-the-way place, still, from another viewpoint, it is rather central, for there is no other recognized hospital for over 100 miles on all sides. (Exception must be made here to the large Nazarene hospital, 50 miles to the north, and a small hospital under Chinese management, 30 miles west.—S. F. P.).

The hospital is organized with the following groups, the Hospital Board, the Staff, the Nurses and the workers. The staff consists of three doctors, six men and women nurses, three evangelists, and more than ten other members and workers, with three students. In a spirit of love all cooperate to carry on the work of the hospital. Our hope is through this work of healing, to bring many people to the Lord and to know God.

In the outpatient department of the hospital there have been, during this half year, about 30 to 40 patients daily. The total number of inpatients during the same half year has reached 340 and has already broken all previous records. This shows that the country people have some recognition of the ability of the hospital, in the diagnosis and treatment of disease, for even in this time, when the people barely have the means of livlihood, they come to the hospital for treatment in case of sickness. Because of this, we continually find the rooms and equipment for treating diseases in the hospital inadequate for use. For example, ward rooms are insufficient and we need electricity and x-ray equipment. As the patients increase, more attendants are needed, accoringly the School of Nursing, during this summer, is accepting eight new students who will be added to the hospital staff.

The hospital has opened a clinic for the treatment of Kala Azar at Pa Kung Ch'iao, in the southern part of our county, in order to save the many children who are afflicted with that disease. We also are preparing public health nurses to do public health work in the villages.

The hospital is now preparing to register with the government, in order that its work may be more clearly recognized by the public in general.

We request all those who are interested in the work to constantly pray that the hospital may glorify God.

The Present Situation in the Hua Mei Junior High School

By Mr. Liu Chung-fu

(Mr. Liu, or "James," went through our own Junior High School and then continued elsewhere, taking two years at Yenching University in Peiping and finishing his college work at Bluffton and Bethel Colleges in America. Many of you know him. He has proved unusually dependable in church and school work and is now Superintendent of the Hua Mei School.—S. F. P.).

We should praise the Lord together, because he has helped our school safely through the past year, in spite of many difficulties. Following are a few of the more important matters of the year.

Students. There was a total of 293 students during the past year, of whom 170 were high school students, the other 120 primary students. 42 of the students were girls. 34 students were baptized Christians, 45 others had attended catechism classes, while 11 more were members of the Catholic church. Of the others the greater part were Confucianists. Four-fifths of the students come from our own field.

There are many organizations among the students, but the one which has the greatest influence on the religious life of the students is the "Love the Lord Society." There are 72 members, besides many others who attend the meetings occasionally. The activities of the group include Bible study classes, prayer meetings, and evangelistic groups. At times they also solicit help for the poor.

Faculty. Last year there were twelve regular teachers, two voluntary teachers, and a school doctor and school nurse. Six members of the faculty are regular college graduates, four are senior high school graduates. Of the others, some are graduates of the old-style high school, some of special schools. All faculty members are baptized Christians.

Finances. The total running expenses for the past year were $6,300 (Chinese currency), of which $2,500 came as a grant through the mission, $3,000 came from student fees, the balance being contributions by foreign and Chinese friends.

New Plans. For the next year we plan to accept 200 high school students and 100 primary school students, to add one teacher for Chinese langauge, and one secretary. Of the old teachers four are being changed. In thus enlarging the scope of the school the buildings will be very crowded. The girl students need a separate yard, because it is not proper to have them in the same yard with the boys. The school needs a two-story building, the second floor to be used for library and the first for chemistry laboratory. The school also needs an English teacher, but, because the salaries of English teachers are very high, the school finances do not permit hiring one. We hope the mission board can send out an English teacher.

We request friends of the school to pray earnestly for us.

My Call To Service Among Lepers

When old acquaintances meet, they have a very important and yet a very common question to ask, "Do you have any job"?

I do not know how many times I have answered this question. Sometimes my friends were filled with contempt, when I have spoken of lepers and my service in their midst, and sometimes I have created surprise and interest. It has surprised me, too, how the Lord has caught hold of me to make use of my talents in this line of service; for I had never had any liking for lepers. Born and brought up in the same town where the Leper Home is, I was instructed strictly by my parents during my childhood, never to go to the Leper Home for any purpose. I obeyed them very honestly, except on Christmas programs.

My parent were very faithful Christians. They taught me to believe in the Lord, in prayer and remain in his fellowship. My father looked after the Untainted Boys' Home, and also worked as an evangelist. He is dead now; and has left behind my widowed mother, three sisters and five brothers. By the blessing of God two of my sisters are doctors and one a trained teacher. One of my brothers is a steno-typist in a Prince's college; I am the caretaker of Champa Leper Home with 600 inmates. The rest are still in their schools.

I passed high school at quite a young age and, because I had good sources of support, I was advised to join college for degrees, which I did. But within two years of my college, I discovered that degrees were not meant for me. I fell sick, so much so, that no one who visited me on my sick bed had hopes for my recovery. I had to give up studies. All my high ambitions of attaining degrees and acquiring positions in life were shattered for good. Here is the call. Here the bright sun of my fate dawned upon me as, on recovery from my sickness, I was summoned to join the staff of the Leper Home. But I said above, "I had no liking for lepers," no interest in caring for these cursed people, as the Hindus say, no talents to be spared for their welfare; and, yet in spite of all this, the Lord bestowed upon me His power to overcome the dislike for lepers. Now I rejoice in my little service. I rejoice in talking with my lepers, in working with them, in singing and in all the activities of the Home.

Many are very true Christians, much better than some of us. Yes, they are. It is very encouraging to hear them speak of the wonderful experiences they have had in living with the Lord. They forget for a time the affliction of this terrible disease and rejoice in the Lord. What a joy to be among such people?

I would have been like Jonah of the past, if I had not responded to my call. This would have blurred the brightness of my life and, if I had followed my own way, I would have been in the belly of a fish—darkness—not for three days only, but all my life. I thank God for the knowledge of His desire. I thank Him for the opportunity to use me in serving lepers.

I joined the service when very young, a bachelor—but accompanied by His power. I was married a year and a half ago and have a child.

"Take heed to the ministry which thou hast received in the Lord, that thou fulfill it." Col. 4:17.

Puran Chandra Banwar, Champa.

A TOUR OF FELLOWSHIP AND TESTIMONY

In the country round about the Basna Mission Station, small churches have been established in about 10 different villages. These small churches are made up of 8, 10, 12, or 20 Christian homes. It is a matter of rejoicing that in each church there are one or two Lay Leaders who carry on the spiritual ministry of the church. In the absence of the Missionary and the Shepherd, each Lay Leader, whom we call the Muktier, conducts Sunday worship, teaches the selected lesson, testifies, and in all ways helps the church. Beloved Friends, you should know that truly the glory of the Lord and the growth of His Kingdom is furthered by common people also. For we at the present time can truly see, with our own eyes, that in our field the minds of many are continually turned to the Lord by the witness and fellowship of ordinary folks. We rejoice that our Muktier brethren are not ashamed of the testimony of the Lord amongst their own folks. They do not this work on salary, but being volunteer workers, they support themselves through their occupation.

I rejoice to tell you that our Muktier brethren accepted the suggestion to close their work for one month, and go out to testify before others of the light of the Lord Jesus, which they themselves had gained. Thus a Gospel Team was formed by Rev. S. T. Moyer, and led of God. This included their Shepherd and one Mission Worker. So with joy and gladness on the 28th March, 1937, with musical instruments of drum and cymbals, they set off. Testifying enroute, they arrived at the Birra Church the next day noon.

Having rested in the afternoon, under the direction of Rev. Thiessen and Rev. Duerksen, they gave a program in the church which consisted of testimony, of Oriya and Hindi songs, accompanied by musical instruments. In the morning, with joy and gladness they departed for the Champa field. With the guidance of Dr. Penner, Baboo Sonsai, Deacon P. P. Asna, Baboo Benji, 11 meetings were conducted in the Champa area, including those in Bomnidihi and Darabhatta, before non-Christians and Christians.

After this the team went to Mungeli, a station in the Disciples of Christ field. With great joy and enthusiasm the Word of the Lord was revealed by these ordinary Muktier brethren before the congregation at Mungeli. From thence, under the leadership of Rev. D. A. McGavran, Ph. D., 23 meetings were conducted mostly among the Satnami non-Christians, throughout the Mungeli Tahsile. From thence the team arrived in the territory of Korba (S. T. M. a jump of 75 miles), and spread the Word of the Lord among non-Christians throughout Korba Zemindary, especially in 5 villages around Barpoli, 2 villages near Aurai, 2 villages at Bhankheti, 2 at Risdi, 2 in the Korba community, 5 at Durpa, by which 23 meetings were conducted under the guidance of Rev. P. A. Wenger, Pastor G. M. Roberts, Baboo Isreal Nundy, Bro. Budhu Singh. From thence we went to the church in Janjgir Tahsile, where before Christians and non-Christians the Word of the Lord sounded forth. Thus the tour of 28 days was completed, in which we conducted 66 meetings. The team wishes to thank most heartily the various churches visited for the worthy arrangements, help and guidance given, and asks that they remember the Team in their prayers.—S. Philip, Basna.

(Note by S. T. M. This team was made up of 7 members, of whom 5 were laymen. Three of the team had cycles, the rest went on foot. The distance traveled by foot was something over 200 miles. Dr. McGavran, whose articles you will have been reading in The International Missionary Review, and The World Dominion, in a personal letter wrote thus, —"You have a jewel in Philip. I have never heard preaching with as much conviction anywhere in India." Later personally he reported, "That team did a magnificent piece of work." Philip cannot speak nor write English, but only Oriya and Hindi. The above is a translation of his article, written at the request of the Mission Board Sec'y.)

Giving versus hoarding.—"It is a shame for a rich Christian to be like a Christmas-box, that receives all, and out of which nothing can be got till it is broken in pieces.—John Hall, D. D.

Janjgir Christian Endeavor

Janjgir, C. P., India, Aug. 4, 1937

The young boys and girls of this General Conference Mennonite Mission are always willing to study the Scriptures. In summer, when they have returned from their schools, P. W. Penner teaches them something from the Bible. This summer he taught the victorious life. In 1928 some of the youths in the summer Bible class received a new vision, and they formed a little group. They named it Bandhu-Bhagni Sangati (the association of brother and sister). This associetion tried to bring the young people into the Bible Class, and once a week they go out to preach the Gospel. It discontinued after the students joined their schools and colleges. Upon the opening of the Bible School, the students co-operated with our mission boys and girls, and re-opened this association again. In the same year Miss Rachel Banwar, who was an old student of the Funk Memorial School, took charge as headmistress of the Girls' Middle School. She is a lady full of zeal and spiritual courage. She devoted her leisure time to nurture this association, and named it the Janjgir Christian Endeavor.

At present there are 90 members in the Christian Endeavor. Last year Miss Rachel Banwar was the senior advisor. She served us most efficiently. This year she works at another place far from here. Our C. E. Members have been divided into four groups, called Syria, Persia, Samaria, and Galilee. Each group gets a chance, once a month, to conduct the meeting. There is a kind of competition among the groups, thus each group tries its level best to stage an interesting program. The C. E. also has several committees which look after the different phases of work, such as the program committee, which prepares a program for each week. We do not always take Biblical subjects. Sometimes we choose general topics, such as: "How far we Christians may take part in the Congress movement? What is the value of female-education, village uplift work? How can we render our congregation independent? The problem of Christian marriage, etc." The Lookout Committee, working among the people, persuade them to join our C. E. This committee also prepares dramas and acts them out among the people, so that they may learn to know our C. E. and join. The Working Committee keeps their eyes open to search for work for the unemployed C. E. members. It also opens S. S. classes among the non-Christians. They send groups to preach the Gospel among the surrounding villages. They go to the sick people for prayer, consolation, etc. This year the committee is going to open a nightschool for the illiterates. Although our society is not large, we do our work according to the C. E. pledges. Glad to intimate that our C. E. has been registered by name "Star C. E., Janjgir." In our province nowhere has this name been given to any other group.

We are very thinkful to Mrs. Johanna Edgar who lives in America. Though she has gone away from here, yet she remains in touch with us. She helped us by sending much excellent material for our C. E. Last Sunday a drama was staged, which was sent by her specially for this purpose, and impressed all much.

After the rendition some people came to me expressing their desire to become members.

The aim of our society is to help our church. The last Indian Church Conference convened at our place, and the Janjgir C. E. tried their level best to assist the church in arranging for the session of the Conference. We made some kind of a tabernacle by our help. The guests were given divers conveniences. A hotel was opened where, for a low rate, all people may derive benefits of it. We are highly grateful to Mrs. P. W. Penner who was the backbone of our hotel arrangements, and her presence warranted the purpose. The C. E. not only tried to think of the body, but they stressed hard, creating a spiritual environment. Morning devotions were observed at different places before sunrise. The C. E. choir furthermore prepared to sing new hymns, also to teach these songs to the audiences.

I am assured that the people desire a new life among the boys and girls, and surely among the members of the C. E. especially. Our C. E. has sent a duly framed pledge to the World C. E. Convention to be held. In case anybody should have opportunity to attend that convention, he will find occasion to behold this pledge.

I do entertain with the members this hope that the readers will also remember us daily before God's throne in their prayers, so that our C. E. may grow in spiritual grace more and more. "O Lord, remember me," Nehemiah prayed repeatedly. This is also my prayer.

Yours, Joel K. Asna.

Doings of Young People in India

Dear Friends in America:

Greetings from your friends in India. Now that your summer holidays will begin, or have begun, we thought you would like to know how we young boys and girls here in Janjgir spend our summer days.

This year the real hot weather did not come until late in April, and so the days were pleasant in April. We had merry little socials in the cool of the evenings. On Mamma's birthday we had one of those jolly parties. Early in the morning she and Papa had gone to see some friends. While she was absent, all the children, babies and young folks entered the house, hid under tables, beds, behind the piano and gramaphone, cupboard and doors. As soon as she entered, with one accord we all burst into a song, clapped our hands while hidden. Mamma surely enjoyed it, she danced and clapped her hands with the babies, etc. All of the singing sounded truthfully, like a thousand chicks bursting from their shells and cheeping.

There were other things interesting, occurring on the compound. Janjgir has always suffered from great lack of water. "Water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink!" Over here meant this, we were told, that water flowed in mighty streams underneath us, but we could not get a drop above the ground. For Janjgir—like the wise man's house—is founded on reliable rock, rock which is so deep in the ground that no one knows how many feet down it is. Well, last year a man from Australia told us the whereabouts of some of these big underground rivers. Then Papa began a well at the place shown, the rains started soon after, thus the work stopped. This summer it was resumed and the blasting of the well went on merrily. The well in the girls' boarding was drilled to get to the source of water. It was interesting for the children to watch the machine, its musical chug, chug, and the rings of smoke spouting out were a never-ending joy to them. Alas! although 175 feet were descended into the thick rock, no spring was found. But God has blessed us Janjgirians much, we actually sing songs of praise for the new well has many springs, the water gushing out, seems to be unlimited.

For May 13th the youth busily prepared a Mother's Day program. It was an attractive and beautiful service. It was touching to behold the big sons proudly lead their mothers to the front, to see the grandmothers being ushered to the front by their youngest grandchild who could walk, to the pipe organ strains of "He leadeth me" (on the gramaphone). The young mothers rendered a specially prepared song for that day, the middle-aged recited Scripture verses, the older ones, lead by Mamma, sang a song likewise. There were several testimonies given by mothers. The young folks worked hard in learning the English song, "My mother's prayer" in parts. The little children recited a poem in which they asked and answered questions. They sat in the audience. It was all like a natural conversation when they, one by one, sprang up and recited. A young mother recited a beautiful poem with the gramophone playing softly, "Dvorak's Humoresque." There was also a dialogue between two boys and girls, comparing and contrasting Bible Mothers, old fashioned mothers and the present mothers of the Church. Thus we spent a very happy and blessed Mother's Day.

Not only did we observe Mother's Day, but the youth prepared busily for Children's and Father's Day Sundays. Both services proved great blessings. In the Children's Day service we also had the blessing of children, as well as the baptism of a Mohammedan man who worked with the well-borers.

Early in summer we had two other baptisms, one was a lad whose parents became converted several years ago, the other was an old mother whose youngest son was baptized last year, who so zealously tried to win her for Christ as soon as he was baptized.

Papa had two Bible classes: one for the adults, the other for the young people, stressing victorious living. These classes were a real help and of great blessing to us.

April and May were filled with weddings: from a lawyer, an electrician, and teachers to tailors and servants, all were married in our church. The first two were in English, the electrician's wedding was fashionable. The young people decorated the church with pink and white crepe-paper streamers, plants, mango leaves, and flowers. There were also a maid-of-honor, a best man, two flower girls, and a page-boy. The entire color scheme was pink and white. The bridal party looked lovely, as the bride came down the aisle on her father's arm with her attendants. While the marriage vow was taken, softly a violin solo was played in the background (Gramophone). We had a tasty cake afterwards. The tailor's wedding resembled so much a biblical one. With songs and prayers the bridegroom and his party walked to Champa, more than 6 miles, to fetch the bride. After the wedding there, the bridal couple returned, sitting in a cart drawn by oxen and escorted by a singing host with huge torches in their hands. We also met them with songs and prayers, also torches in our hands, while every minute the boys banged off firecrackers. When the cart reached the bridegroom's home, another prayer was offered. Then the bride was carried into the house by a woman and the groom by a man, there we left them.

This summer again papa and mamma made it possible that the Christian children could earn a bit for their school clothes. Much repair-work is done during the summer, so that the poor people can earn a bit. About 70 children came for work daily. At 5:30 a.m. they came, stayed till 9:30 a.m. They worked busily. At 7 o'clock the gong went, from all over mothers and sisters came with breakfast. The children congregated in families under the trees. The food they ate was very simple, always rice soaked in water over night with a little salt, those that were a bit richer had an onion or a trifle vegetable. But the children did not mind the food, they were so very happy and contented. That is the best sauce.

We have borrowed Miss Schmidt's organ for church services, so the Janjgir congregation sings to an instrument. There exists a regular mixed choir now. At first it was a difficult work to have the singing harmonize, as the congregation thought it was their duty to lead the organ and not the organ to lead them. But now the choir is better trained, so no longer do the audience and the organ have different tempo and pitches. Only occasionally the choir, in its great zeal, forgets the time and pitch, and so we altogether make a glorious queer noise unto the Lord. This everyone thinks is just fine, except the person with a musical ear. Still, the choir has rendered several songs in four parts beautifully. Just last Sunday we sang, "Amazing Grace," in Hindi in parts, and it sounded lovely.

So many of the young people passed in one or another important examination this year, so, as they are an enterprising set of folks, they acted out "The Merchant of Venice", to celebrate their successes, and to amuse the audience.

Well, dear young people, we hope you will have just as jolly time in making others and yourselves happy; you will find yourselves blessed as we found ourselves blessed this summer.

Many of the young people have gone to the schools of this mission. Some very few have had the privilege of attending high school, on money given by the old girls of the Girls' School here at Janjgir, and through a very kind, but poor English friend. She sent 10 Pounds, which, converted into India currency, amounted to Rs. 130, just sufficient to send one girl to high school. How grateful we are! These boys and girls possess such high ambitions, but there is no money to fulfil these. The mission urgently needs educated workers, workers with a higher standard of living. The boys and girls feel this need, circumstances demand it, but the mission cannot send them for higher education. The result is that people from other missions are called in to do responsible work. There have been a few, very few, that have had matric qualifications. They have worked here, but generally large families are dependent on them, so when they can draw more somewhere else, where the mission is not so poor as ours, they feel that they have to leave the work here, so that they can support their own brothers and sisters for their schooling, etc. At present there is only one girl of this mission who is a matrculation-trained teacher. She is the only one teaching in this mission, all the others come from other places. What would you do with all these promising boys and girls who would become great leaders, if given more education in different aspects of knowledge, such as agriculture, handicraft, and college. God grant that some day the General Conference Mennonite Mission here in India can also boast of leaders, men and women with all around qualifications, as other denominations of India have.

With many greetings,
Your friend from India, Nellie A. Penner

The Worship in Syrian Christian Churches of Travancore, S. India

Before I begin to speak of the worship, I ought to say a little about the beginning of the churches.

Tradition says that these churches were started by the Apostle St. Thomas. The Bishops and other leaders of churches from Syria are now ruling over the church. Their Bishops in India are ordained by the Archbishop in Syria. Most of the Christians of Travancore belong to these churches.

When they started, they had just one church. But now there are four subdivisions, divided due to the differences in belief, worship, etc. They all ordain their priests from childhood. These children from that time on are respected and wear long, flowing garments of white color and are taught the Syrian language.

The very church building is different from other churches. The holy place is built very high and is separated from the rest of the church by a rent veil. Within the holy place they have a high table on which are several candlesticks and a silver cross.

The common clergymen are dressed in black and white, but the bishops have the many colored garments, looking very much like the garment of priests in Old Testament, and also have a kind of headdress, with cross drawn or stitched in front. When these bishops enter the church, they have a big rod with them, at the end of which is a cross. The bishops are not allowed to get married.

The service is held in the Syrian language, and the whole worship is in the form of hymns. During the whole service the people stand. They have no benches in their church but have mats to stand on, and they are not allowed to step into the church with shoes on.

The service differs according to the occasion but the ordinary Sunday service lasts for about four hours. At certain times during these services, they have incense burning in small chained containers, which the priest shakes towards the congregation, after blessing it. Throughout the whole service the incense is kept burning in the holy place near the priest. The veil is left as it is, for sometime during the service, when the priest and his assistants are just within. They have a kind of small bells, that are sounded between each portion of the service. Generally this is done by the young priests in training. Very little of the service can be understood by an outsider, but those who belong to these churches understand most of what is going on.

They give baptism to their infants, and right after baptism they serve them Holy Communion. In baptism they bathe the child in water and then anoint it in the holy oil especially prepared for the occasion. They have no confirmation after the baptism. In marriage the cross on a chain is passed round the head of the bride and bridegroom three times during the service as a benediction, and the service lasts for about 3-4 hours, all in hymns in the Syrian language.

In the beginning these churches did no Gospel work at all. They did not like to have low class converts among them. But now, I am glad to say, they are doing a good deal of Gospel work and adding many from all castes to their churches.

Mary John, Champa, C.P.

WHAT IS CHRISTIAN DEMOCRACY?

Brother Ratansingh is one of the older members of our church at Mauhadih (Birra), though he has been with us only ten years. He came to us from the Methodist mission. He and I have had many conversations already about the work of the Christian church in India, and what position the missionary should have in that church. He is a polite and kind brother and never "rubs" it in to the missionary, in public, as so many brothers love to do; but in private conversation he tells a person very frankly what he thinks is the trouble with one. He has told me, time and again, something like this: "Now you come from a democratic country, where it is the ideal that every man shall treat every other man as brother, and speak to him in a brotherly manner. Further, the Mennonite church is a church where autocratic authority is not at home. But, that never works in India. In India a person must either be on top or underneath. And very especially in the villages with the ignorant people. The villager must fear. If he does not fear, he is haughty and despises a person. Kindness and brotherly love is interpreted in India, especially among the ignorant and semi-educated as weakness. You have to show authority and people will fear you and love you." In this way he has spoken to me many times, and much more than this. Readers will agree with me, I think, that just this very thing is one of the very hardest for a democratic Mennonite missionary. Brother Ratansingh is quite right in the main, and that is what almost eats a person up sometimes. One wants to speak and treat people like brothers; and towards all non-Christians one wants to be what hometraining has taught us to be gentlemanly. And what does one find as the result of such an attitude? Very often sneering, being called weakling, thinking our message has no power, assuming that Christ, too, is merely a soft brother who cannot help much in this hard world. It is sometimes almost inevitable for a missionary to develop an attitude of "Thus saith the Lord." Now, if for eight or nine years a missionary is of necessity forced to live and act under such circumstances, and then when he suddenly again comes home to a democratic atmosphere and sometimes a sharp word slips him, then naturally people at home think, what in all the world is wrong with our missionaries? They come home and want to boss us.

This is a very short note as from one of our Indian brothers, and shows up in brief what the Indian temper is, which missionaries have to meet. Will readers kindly slip this into the pigeon hole labeled "Understanding others"? Thank you.—John Thiessen.

AND SO WE CAME

Jumuwati had finished telling me of her concern for the health of little nine year old Priscilla. It was easy to see that the child was "the apple of her eye."

"Have you only this one child?" was the question that naturally came to my lips. Then she told me her story.

"No, Memsahiba, I had four babies before little Priscilla came. They were born in the days when we were still Hindus, but we could not keep them. They died while still little. Our hearts were very sad. My sister was already a Christian and lived at Mauhaudih. So we made occasional visits here to see her. It was about a year before Priscilla was born that we were here again, and at that time we were really believers and wanted to be baptized. But, because we came from the territory assigned to another mission, the missionaries here did not feel free to baptize us. And we did not want to go to the other mission which was far from our home. We asked for prayer here in the church, and our special request was that God might grant to us the gift of a little one.

On the homeward way, which took more than a day, I had a strange experience. We had gone to sleep that first night and then I had a dream or a vision. A "Holy man" stood before me and said, "Fear not. Your prayer shall be answered and you shall have the gift of a little one." And the vision came true, for within that year Priscilla was born.

But instead of the joy we had looked forward to we had grief. I did not regain my strength. I steadily became worse and the baby did not get the nourishment she should have had. We both looked as though we would die. Friends and relatives offered advice, but I steadfastly refused to have any of the Hindu incantations and wizardy practised on me. Friends blamed my sickness to our leaving the old ways and the old gods. I pled to be taken to the Christian hospital in Basna. It was a long distance to go—about forty miles—and we went in a cart. (Two-wheeled and without springs.)

How kind the doctor was to me! By the grace of God and Dr. Dester's untiring care I slowly regained my health. And the Doctor Memsahiba took charge of my baby's feedings, so that she, too, began to grow. God was very good to us.

As the years went on, we still wanted to be baptized. My parents had come here to my sister's home and they had been baptized. But for us, with our home in the territory of the other mission, the old objection still held. Finally, a little more than a year ago the family inheritance that my husband and his brothers had, was divided. We sold our share and moved here. Then we were baptized. We do not have a large income—only what my husband can earn with weaving. But we are happy."

I looked at the two, mother and child. No wonder little Priscilla is such a charming child. Where such faith and courage abound, a little human flower cannot help but develop beautifully. And we are glad they came.—Mrs. J. R. Duerksen (Christena H.)

An Appeal for Prayer

In the southern range of Champa area there is a prominent caste of Hindus, called Chanauha. These people are spread over about a hundred villages. They are landowners and cultivators and are well up in their standard of living. Therefore, many low caste people depend on them for a livelihood; so these Chanauhus have a great influence over them. About 80 percent of the Chanauhus are literate and read their scriptures with respect and interest. About 60 percent of them are followers of Kabir. These Kabirpanthis speak high of their religion and creed. They know by heart many of their sacred poems and quote from them readily in their conversation with others. On this account Ramanandis (the followers of Ramanand) cannot oppose them in controversy. People from many castes have thus become followers of Kabir. They have also gone to the extent of debating with the Christians on points of religion, but they have not been able to withstand the power of the Spirit by which Christians speak. They hate Christians and always try to find fault with them. So much so that they despise reading Christian books. They speak friendly with a Christian, but on turning their back they upset everything. Persons ready for conversion sometimes refuse baptism because of fear of this caste. This we have discovered to our disappointment.

However, within the last few years, we have visited these Chanauhus especially, inviting ourselves to stay with them in their homes as their guests. This increased our acquaintance to such an extent that they began to know us and become interested in Christ. Some of them began to read our books, and God has so opened their eyes that they invited us to attend their religious gatherings, and gave us the privilege to witness there for Christ. Now they do not hate us so much and have begun to give us a little respect. But still the Christian religion is for them a great problem. They want our fellowship and in the darkness of this world try to see in us the light of Christ. They also want us to settle among them and lead them in their struggle for life in Christ, to live and to die with them. This struck us deeply and since then we have engaged ourselves in prayer that Christ might reveal His divine self and encourage them to confess Him openly. I appeal to the readers to remember with us in prayers these promising people; that God may send true Christians to this field and that seeing Christ in them they may accept the Lord. God is omnipresent and when we pray to Him with one accord we are ever near Him, however distant we are from each other.

Your co-worker in Christ our Lord,
P. P. Asna, Champa, C. P., India

An Indian Convert's Testimony

My pleasure consists in testifying what Jesus Christ has done for me, and still is doing. "He has saved me from sin and pollution of heathenism!" By caste my father was a barber, as Hindu, he was a strict worshipper of Mahadeo, one of the chief gods of Hinduism; he taught me to worship when I was a mere tot. According to his instructions, I worshipped the gods of my fathers diligently with great love and devotion. I used to fast regularly at the Hindu festivals, because my love went out to the Hindu religion. A little later a mission school for non-Christian children was opened in my village. There I received my early education where I first came to know about Jesus Christ. Then soon I was very earnestly craving to know more about His love for sinners. Fortunately, then, some Christian literature fell into my hands, and among that were Gospel portions. All were read with intense interest. My father belonged to the orthodox Hindu section. Seeing these books in my hands, he became exceedingly angry, and dissuaded me much to spend time on such literature, telling me that no gain lay in those books for me. However, I would not discontinue reading them carefully. Then wonderful comfort entered my heart, by studying the holy and wonderful life of Christ, how He suffered for sinners like me, and that He loved me heartily. Then the story how He gave His life for our redemption. The story of the cross sank deep into my heart, then changed my attitude toward Jesus.

After some years it happened that some evangelists, missionaries, etc. camped in my village Kirith some 15 miles from Janjgir. They repeated to us the story of what I had been perusing, namely, "The matchless love of Christ!" This melted my heart beyond all measure, until I finally resolved positively to become a Christian at heart. Pretty soon I was fully prepared to receive baptism and be admitted into the Christian church. But the fear of my father and mother! One day I expressed my intention to leave Hinduism and become an adherer to the Christian religion before my parents and others. They showed not only great surprise, but furiously filled with anger, telling me all sorts of bad things about the Christian religion and the Christians. In spite of all this dissuasion, I remained unmovable in my resolution. So much that one day my steps were directed to the Janjgir mission station to receive baptism. My father and other relatives followed me hastily and angrily, they then threatened me in various ways and treated me cruelly. After all proved of no avail, my father finally entreated me to return to them, bury him first, then go wherever I pleased. On that occasion I recalled the Words of Jesus, "Whosoever loveth his father and mother more than me, is not worthy of me." Thus I did not pay attention to my father's earnest request. In his anger he returned to his village in great disappointment, saying that from that day on, he regarded me dead to him. Now I was free to confess my faith in Jesus before many witnesses, through baptism. And I must confess, solemn peace entered my heart. Jesus has taken hold of my hand and leads on gently into a new life, and has continued so. Presently I am following Him rejoicingly, although the way is rough. I am certainly happy witnessing for Jesus, as I am continuing on the way of life. He who personifies the true joy, dwells in my heart; all has been left for Jesus Christ to obtain Him fully.

My great desire remained to complete my primary education, for this I was directed to the Mauhadei Mission School, where my studies were continued for two years. Upon finishing the primary course, a call for training was felt within, to attend the Bible School at Janjgir. God fulfilled my inward desire. Soon I was enrolled as a student in that school. As my educational qualifications were exceedingly limited, it was rather difficult to cope with the heavy course the first year. The second year went much easier, and by the goodness of the Lord I graduated from the three-years prescribed course successfully. During these three years I was greatly blessed, and made good progress in my spiritual life. At the close of each school term I was required to go with others on an evangelistic tour. At first much hesitation kept me from preaching before larger gatherings; but by the help of God I took courage and taught the people boldly. Now I go to testify for my Savior into the villages, telling the people who do not know Him with great joy about His love and saving power.

Recently with others we were out in two villages to preach the Gospel. My prayer remains that the Lord may use me humbly for His own glory and the extension of His kingdom in India. My steps are frequently directed amongst my own relatives, telling them of the new experience, and that Jesus died for them and that He is able to save them to the uttermost from sin, as it was in my case, then find the real peace of God. In one of the villages spoken above, my widowed mother resides, the father died in the meanwhile, sank into a Christless grave. The mother received me friendly and even did provide me with food, etc. for the time being. "Thus pray for me and my people of this great land, India. They are groping in darkness. Help to save them before the Christ comes again to receive His loved ones in the clouds of the sky!"

Yours in Christ's fellowship, Jonathan Massih.

The Funk Memorial Girl's School

The Funk Memorial Girls School, in my opinion is an ideal school, because it tries to fulfill educational aims. It gives ample condsideration to the physical, mental and moral development of all those who have the privilege of receiving instructions under its care and guidance.

It is hard to recollect what it must have been fifteen years ago, but it is quite easy and pleasant to describe it now. It is a great delight to see the changes that this school has made. Situated on the so-called backward area, this school has shown great efforts to keep up with the more privileged ones. In fact it has ventured even to compete with them. Its products, although not so highly reputed, as those of the more advanced schools, have developed enough to get along without much difficulty.

The school cares more for character building which is an outcome of the ideals of the school tone. This tone of the school is dependent entirely on examples, wise treatment, tact, high ideals of life and the setting of a high standard of true educational endeavors. As a whole, the tone of the school is good and hence no serious disciplining is required.

The main aim of the existence of this school, is to give such training to the pupils that they may be able to confront wisely and judiciously every situation that may face them on their future life. Education in this school includes (1) Physical Training, (2) Mental Training (3) and Moral Training.

Physical training is given both directly and indirectly. The pupils have regular game periods in winter. Then they thoroughly enjoy playing Basket-Ball, Volley Ball, Deck Tennis, and some Indian games, such as "Kho" and "Kabaddi." It gives me much pleasure to say that the girls attending this school are much stronger, more robust and healthy looking than those studying in other schools. Once a week every class has a drill period. I do not think I am boasting if I say that skill in games, good work, healthy complexion, elastic gait, fine muscles and sure development into healthy womanhood characterizes our girls. Drawing water from the well, cooking, cleaning rice and washing clothes are indirect ways of giving physical training. I must admit that the girls who undergo such a training make very good housewives.

The school curriculum trains the mind. It includes Mathematics, the most favorite subject in the syllabus, Languages, that is English, and the Vernacular, History, Civics, Geography, Domestic Science and Religious teaching. As you all know the advantages of studying these subjects, I need not waste time in making this description dry and dull.

In my opinion the moral training is the most important and most essential phase of education of any kind. Of course religious education contributes much towards this and yet there are some other means which help it to make it a success without making it too much of a show. I would not be mistaken, if I were to say that the study of Hygiene, Physiology and such Home Sciences also give moral training. The girls have a Bible course for a period of six months. Our girls may not be so good at their study of the selected subjects but they know their Bible quite well. This shows that this school is trying to fulfill its high ideals.

Every afternoon the girls have hand-work for an hour or so. Do the girls enjoy their hand-work period? I should say they do. I think they would rather sit whole days doing hand work than do regular studies in the class-rooms. They do most beautiful sewings, crotchet work and embroidery. This cultivates in them an appreciation for the beautiful. They get some knowledge of color schemes, and desire to have beauty with them.

The pupils take keen interest in the Christian Endeavor organization. Many of them are C. E. experts and take leading parts. It gives great satisfaction and creates a sense of pride, when one sees these so-called backward girls stand in front and give speeches, and lead the C. E. meetings. These are the girls which give hope for a brighter and better future.

The school has not been able to send many for higher studies, but a few privileged ones have gone through high schools. Some might expect them to be on the school staff here. In our middle school there are only two teachers who belong to this mission and school, and who have willingly offered their services. We can not demand from our girls to work here. Teachers from other missions have to be employed. The few privileged ones have gone where they think they ought to be. So very few of our girls have had the privilege of receiving higher education. If we begin to count them, the number would not exceed more than ten. The parents are so poor that they can not afford to send them. The financial condition of the mission is such that no one can be sent from the mission fund. The question arises, "Shall we educate our own children and give them a chance to work in the mission or invite outsiders and discourage our own girls?" Girls in this area have health, intelligence and brains but no money to receive higher education. If they only could have some more education, life in this Chhattisgarh would be on a higher standard.

What shall we do with our boys and girls who have finished their middle schools on this mission and who are going to? Haramoni Nand.

What Can the Mennonite Church Do for Its Youth?

Oh, I don't want to leave the impression that youth feels that nothing is being done. Many were conscious that something was in progress. Quite a number recorded the furtherance of Christian education by our colleges—Bethel, Freeman, Bluffton, Hesston, and Tabor. Retreats and the young people's page in the Mennonite were also mentioned. One student was conscious of the peace work of the Peace Committee, and several mentioned the Kansas Institute of International Relations. All of these are of great importance, yet youth as a whole is not conscious of any vital, far-reaching program—a program in which youth itself participates and has definite responsibilities and contributions to make.

That, then, leads to the question "What more can the Mennonite church do for its young people?" Can the church supply this need for a vital and unifying program? Can the church provide more responsibilities for youth? I feel confident that the church can!

In the first place, by combining the idealism, activity, and desire for responsibility on the part of our young people with our historic principles, a program can be developed that would not only challenge the best in our youth but would also revitalize our entire church program.

For example, we believe in the principle of peace. Practically every young person that responded to the questionnaire was conscious of that great principle. Many knew that one only. To the question "What distinctive contributions can the Mennonite church make to the world?" practically everyone named peace. So here is undoubtedly one of the greatest fields for Mennonite activity, the greatest possibility for youth activity and responsibility.

In Luke, chapter 8, verse 62, we find this statement: "No man having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God." That could very easily be stated, "No church having put its hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God." Menno Simons and that small group of Anabaptists put their hands to the plow of peace, and I'm wondering whether we are not beginning to turn back today.

Quite frequently I have heard young people remark about a conference or gathering of Mennonites, "They won't get anything done; all they can do is fight and quarrel over a lot of non-essentials. The elders are too selfish; they deal in tricky politics, show a lack of cooperation, and, consequently, get nothing done." Now, this statement may or may not be true. I hope it isn't. But regardless of whether it is true or not, that opinion exists and as such must be faced and eradicated. If it is true, then certainly we are turning back from the plow. For how can we show the world the way of peace if we ourselves cannot live it? And how can the church inspire youth to an uncompromising peace program if the elders set such an example?

Another thought expressed by youth is that we should take a more active part in working for peace. Talking peace is not sufficient; we must act. The principles of peace is the same as any other Christian principle in that, if it is not expressed or lived, it does not exist. For instance, love can exist only as we express it. If we attempt to bottle it up within ourselves, it will die. But the more we live it and express it, the more it grows.

The same is true of peace. If we wish to see peace in the world we are under obligation—I repeat, under obligation—to work and labor to bring it into existence. Christ said, "Blessed are the peacemakers." Notice that it is active—peacemakers, not peace-talkers or peace-believers: "Blessed are the peacemakers."

Yes, something is being done by the Conference for peace. We have a Peace Committee that is functioning. It has compiled three pamphlets, but it has no funds to publish them. That is how enthusiastic we are for peace. "No man having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God."

Here, then, is a place where that tremendous store of potential energy of youth can be put to useful service for the building of the kingdom of God.

In the second place, the principles of the simple life is one propounded by the church. I wonder whether a revitalized belief in that great principle would not make possible more funds for peace work and for Christian education; for establishing more churches; for paying our young ministers more and giving them work; for sending more young people to the mission fields; and for relieving the poor, the hungry, and the suffering at home.

By the simple life I don't mean going back to a life with no modern conveniences, but rather looking forward to a life where we have these conveniences but use them as a means to an end and not as an end in themselves. In other words, it is the attitude we have toward these material things that is of prime importance. If we would not live for the acquiring of goods but would buy only what is necessary for decent living, the money remaining that we so often spend for additional luxury and things we don't need, could be used to further these multitudinous Christian activities that we are neglecting today. I firmly believe that we have financial resources to further not only a true Christian youth program but a revitalized church program. I wonder whether we have not forgotten that great principle of Jesus and of our church fathers, the simple life. "No man or church having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, it fit for the kingdom of God."

Many other activities could be started for youth. I have already alluded to the further encouragement of our Christian colleges and helping our youth to attend those institutions. Such a program is extremely necessary if youth is to remain in the Mennonite fold. I feel that it is the church's responsibility to send, if not all, at least most of our young people to college where they get a solid, thorough Christian education, which is the ideal basis for whatever vocation they intend to enter. The church could help by providing scholarships for deserving students and also by building up the endowments of such institutions in order that they might better serve young people.

Another field where the church can do more for its youth is to find places for its young seminary graduates. These, our best-trained and most capable young people, have difficulty in finding openings for Christian service within our denomination. As you know, many as a result of this are now serving other denominations. The church most certainly should find Christian work for these young people.

This could be accomplished by establishing more churches in the localities where no churches exist and providing ministers for these churches that are now disintegrating for lack of adequate leadership. This would accomplish two great needs: that of holding our people together and providing challenging fields of service for our young ministers.

The enlargement of our foreign and home missions would also provide more work for our young people and, above all, would lend greater impetus to the spread of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Vocational guidance for our young people has been neglected. Someone has said that the Mennonites are interested in following up and helping only the ministers, missionaries, farmers, and teachers. Those entering other professions are given very little guidance and attention. We need Christian men and women in all vocations, and therefore, it is extremely important that the Mennonites contact, help, and encourage all young people when they further their studies in schools of higher learning.

Young people's retreats have in the past been a source of inspiration for young people. The inspiring Christian leaders selected have accomplished a great deal in the direction of a "united Mennonite youth in Christ." Yet one criticism of these retreats is that they have been limited primarily to our young people between the ages of fourteen and twenty. I feel that other retreats should be established to serve the great needs of our young people between the ages of eighteen and thirty. These people consist largely of our college, seminary, and university men and women, who are indispensable to the work of a united youth movement and also to the Mennonite church.

The young people's page in the Mennonite is very valuable in developing a united Mennonite youth behind some great Christian mission. Although my questionnaire disclosed the fact that half do not know what the official paper of the Mennonite youth is, I feel that it can serve the great purpose of welding a feeling of group solidarity around some challenging program.

The purpose of this talk this evening is not to leave the impression that nothing has been done by the church for its youth. Much has been done! And we as the Mennonite youth wish to extend our hearty thanks for all that has been done. But we are soliciting this evening some additional help for a vital youth program. Certainly all we can possibly do is not too much.

I have also spoken as though the development of a vital youth program and movement in the church is largely the responsibility of the church and older folks. To be sure, this is only partly true. For unless youth is willing to respond to the efforts made by the church, unless youth is ready to shoulder its responsibility in building a dynamic, united youth movement, and unless youth catches the Christian vision of the kingdom of God, then all efforts will fail.

But with the help, guidance, and inspiration of the older people and the dynamic convictions and actions of youth, we as a denomination can shake the very foundations of society for Christian living. We have it to offer—let's not break faith with our forefathers, and, above all, with Christ, but bear our cross and serve God and man.

Let us as young people and as a denomination place our hands to that great Christian plow of peace, simple life, justice, and the Word of God, and plow a deep and straight furrow on into that vast, dark, but glorious future for the glory of God and the building of the kingdom of God on earth!

"I Would be True"

Suggested hymns:

"Lead on, O King Eternal"

Problems:

1. Has the doctrine of Christian brotherhood any limits? How is it to be practically applied? Peter learned through the vision that the heterogeneousness of humanity could be turned into a great brotherhood of souls and laid against the heart of God as its home. "God considers carefully every person; he knows each one of us better than we know ourselves; but has no regard for what men regard as of chief importance in a person, such as wealth or rank or worldly knowledge or physical beauty and strength, except so far as the possession of these may indicate character. God does not see as man sees, as Samuel said to Jesse; men look on the outward appearance, but God looks on the heart." "God requires two things of us: toward himself, reverence; toward other men, uprightness, justice, service. Neither the religious nor the secular element may be omitted."

2. How does a "multitude" affect us? "Christ looked at men never with indifference, never with contempt, never with simple conplacence, but always with a deep, steadfast, abiding pity." What various means may be used to reach the various people—in foreign countries, in America, in our own community? The words, "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he send forth laborers into his harvest," imply "a willingness on our part that God should use us in his harvest-field in any capacity he pleases. When the farmer gathers his harvest, many things are to be done, and often he needs many hands to do them. Some he sends in to cut the grain, others to bind it; some gather into the barn, and others glean the field, that nothing be lost. So Christ will have a variety of labors for his servants in the great harvest-field; and no man can be of real use to him unless they are willing to work in any department of their Master's service, thankful for the privilege of doing the humblest service for such a Master and in such a cause."

3. Are our present day standards of living and methods of business in keeping with Christ's teachings? Are we remembering the welfare of our neighbors? "Christianity teaches that all men are brothers. It bids us bear one another burdens, put others before ourselves, become our brother's keeper. Modern business is competitive rather than cooperative. It looks for Number I first. It sometimes pulls down others; it does not seek to build them up. Christianity holds that the same principles of good will and mutual helpfulness that hold between man and man in private life hold also in business life".

4. How are church leaders to be chosen and trained? Is work in the church always accepted and regarded as responsible work? Are there conditions within the church which hinder rather than promote the work?

5. "There are three fundamental reasons for evangelizing the world from which it is impossible to escape: (1) The protection of our own Christian civilization; (2) The overwhelming need of the world and our ability to supply that need: (3) Loyalty to our profession of love to Jesus Christ." Rev. James L. Barton, D. D.

"Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

Knowing the Bible

Intermediate C. E. Topic, December 5, 1937

For Daily Study

Nov. 29. The Word a lamp. Ps. 119:105-112
Nov. 30. Food for the soul. I Pet. 2:1-5
Dec. 1. Conscience-piercing word. Heb. 4:12-16
Dec. 2. The comforting word. Isa. 40:1-10
Dec. 3. The word of promise. John 14:1-14
Dec. 4. The purifying word. John 15:1-12
Dec. 5. Topic—Why is the Bible worth knowing? 2 Tim. 14-17; Acts 17:10-12

The Bible the Center

Make the Bible the center of interest in your assembly room arrangement for this meeting. This can be done (1) by placing an open Bible, slightly raised on the upper side, on a small stand in the front of the room. Illumine it with a large candle placed directly back of it or an electric light reflected on it. Or (2) by making an electric poster out of a large cardboard box, showing the Bible with rays of light radiating from it.

1. Pre-Prayer Circle

Call attention to the many prayer promises in the Bible and read a few of them before you call for prayer participation. John 14:13,14; James 5:16 and others.

2. Praise Service

Prelude (instrumental) "How Firm a Foundation"
Leader: "Praise ye the Lord: for it is good to sing praises unto our God; for it is pleasant, and praise is comely."
Songs: 1. "Praise Him" 2. "More About Jesus" 3. "Wonderful Words of Life"
Announcements: Have something interesting to tell your society

3. Quiet Worship

(If you do not have the topic on the blackboard, announce it at this time)
Special Music: "Holy Bible, Book Divine"
Leader: II Tim. 3:14-17
Song: "Thy Word Have I Hid"
Quotations: What great men have said about the Bible
Prayer. (Let us give thanks for the Word of God)
Offering. "We give Thee but Thine own, whate'er the gift may be, All that we have is thine alone, a trust, O Lord from thee."

4. The Topic Discussed

a. Introducing the topic. The leader should mention the fact that so often we do not realize that there is no other book like the Bible. We do not appreciate its great value to us, or we would be more eager to know it. Mention some of the qualities that make it valuable to us, but leave the discussion of them to those who have topics.
b. Use the daily readings to tell why it is valuable to us
c. Topics and questions. (C.E. Quarterly)

- d. Consecration verses. (Ask the members a week ahead of time to come prepared to give a verse that has meant somthing to them)

5. Closing
   "Lamp Of Our Feet," sung or read
   Benediction verse: Ps. 19:14

What Great Men Have Said

Calvin Coolidge: "A man has deprived himself of the best there is in the world who has deprived himself of this, a knowledge of the Bible."

Sir Isaac Newton: (English astronomer and scientist) "We account the Scriptures of God to be the most sublime philosophy. I find more sure marks of authenticity in the Bible than in any profane history whatever."

William Gladstone: (English statesman) "If asked the remedy for the heart's deepest sorrows, I must point to "The old, old story,' told in an old book, and taught with an old, old teaching, which is the greatest and best gift ever given to mankind."

Ulysses S. Grant: "Hold fast to the Bible as the sheet anchor of your liberties; write its precepts on your hearts and practice them in your lives. To the influence of this book we are indebted for the progress made, and to this we must look as our guide in the future."

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

(Adapted)

"Twas the night before Christmas
When all through the house,"
Every creature was stirring,
Yes, even the mouse
Was frantically running mid hurrying feet
Lest she with them in collision should meet.

It was the night before Christmas. In this home there was so much to do as yet. Dora and her father had gone to town, for the papers had announced that all stores would be open until nine on Christmas Eve. Santa Claus was to walk the streets, too. Mr. Parker enjoyed going along the busy streets on this night, so he had left his shopping until now. It had happened, too, that prices had been cut on this last shopping night, so why should he not have left it until now. Dora had been so busy with school work and when vacation came she wanted to relax for a change. There were a few books she wanted to read and so she put off the thoughts of Christmas until this day. Why wasn't a day enough when one had not much to do. It was true, that soon after Thanksgiving, she had decorated two cedars in front of the home. She had felt like Christmas then. Theirs had been the first ones to be lighted and she had been proud of that but she had grown tired of the trees. She had hardly noticed them of late. Now, here in the busy streets, something of the Christmas spirit gripped her again as she hurried to purchase the gifts. Some were not quite what she would have liked to give but "they would do," she thought to herself as she put the bundles into the car and sat down to wait for her father. She was very tired for she had gone skating in the afternoon and she thought with a sigh of the kitchen floor which she would have to wash when she returned home. There would be more things to do, she knew that, for it seemed that on this night the work never seemed to end. And then she must wrap the packages. Another sigh escaped her lips. She thought of Christmas day. There was the morning, she loved that; there was the dinner, it would be good; then—it was all over with except that the rooms needed cleaning again and on the table and everywhere were stacks of dishes to wash. Sometimes she thought: "Why all the fuss for one short day?"

"How sad," we say, and isn't it? The experience which prompted me to write the brief sketch above, was a Christmas eve spent behind the counter of a small village in which it was customary not to close doors until the last customer had been satisfied. It was on that evening that the father of this story came leisurly in at close to ten o'clock. He didn't exactly know what more he wanted as he leaned against the counter changing his wad of tobacco to the other cheek. I couldn't satisfy him that night. He wanted a pair of work shoes for the day after Christmas. To me the night was holy, not to him. I shall never forget it.

In contrast to this stands the keeping of the Advent. We find its blessings in so many of our Mennonite homes. It is something good which has come to us to which we must hold on. What do we mean by Advent? What should the Avent season hold for us? Do you know? Do you know the little customs that make it so dear? Do your Juniors know? Tell them about it. They will love it. What an opportunity to tell them Christmas is not gifts and dinner and that is all. It is that the King might be born in the manger of the heart. How wonderful to leaf the calendar back four Sundays before Christmas and to begin to prepare for so great a King! The hinges of the heart-door are sometimes rusty and the door is faulty so that it does not open readily. Little by little, in the days of Advent, it gives way and lo, on Christmas morn, it stands ajar!

CHRISTIAN FRUITFULNESS

John 15:1-16

Topic: How Christians Become Fruitful

Meaning of Fruitfulness

Jesus uses a very familiar object to convey a message of divine truth to his disciples in the "Upper Room". The passage (v1) contains great comfort and encouragement for those who really are in Christ, as well as serious warning to those who do not abide in Him and do not bear good fruit (vs 2,6). Fruitfulness in the natural realm, we understand well. A life is fruitful in the Christian sense, when it produces abundantly those graces, achievements, fruits which are distinctly Christian in character. Christian fruitfulness has a two-fold element. One kind of fruit-bearing produces a Christlike character in which the "fruits of the Spirit" find expression (v5). The other kind consists more in achieving outward results for Christ (v16), "ye should go and bring forth fruit." The disciples were chosen and sent forth to win souls for Christ.

Importance of Fruitfulness

Production of fruit is the object in view in cultivating fruit trees and vines. Without fruit the husbandman is greatly disappointed. In the realm of the spiritual, in Christian fruit-bearing the case is similar. When fruitfulness is not manifest in the life of a disciple, Christ and God are much saddened. Christ came, lived among men, provided redemption, made atonement and sent the Spirit to help His disciples to live fruitful lives. God is pleased and glorified in a fruitful life (v8). Christ implies clearly that without fruit the discipleship is not real. The fruitless life is out of touch with Christ and will wither (v6).

Fruitfulness in winning souls to Christ is also very important. God carries on His work through men in whom the Spirit is actively living.

Conditions of Fruitfulness

In the material realm, conditions must be right for fruitfulness. Christ points out the conditions necessary for Christian fruitfulness. All that may hinder must be purged out of the life (v2). The heart must be cleansed through the Word (v3). The disciple must abide in Christ (v4), live in spiritual union with Him, let His life flow through him, even as the sap from the vine flows through the branches. Doing this, we shall be fruitful (v5).

In this fellowship with Christ there comes into the disciple's life a constant supply of grace. To maintain this fellowship—to live a fruitful Christian life—there must be constant obedience and exercise of faith, an abiding in Christ's love (v10).

Rewards of Fruitfulness

The bringing forth of the "fruits of the Spirit" carries with it largely its own reward—joy and peace of the soul. These are a by-product of Christian living (v11). No reward can be more desirable. Love also is fundamental in fruitful life (vs12,13).

Four great gifts are promised to those abiding in Christ: fruitfulness (v5); power in prayer when we are close to the mind and spirit of Christ (v7); fulness of joy—Christ's joy (v11); friendship with Christ (vs14,15) manifesting itself in love one to another (vs12,13). His faithful ones are His friends—not servants—and He is a friend to them. He has chosen us to "bring forth fruit", enduring fruit and to have power to prayer (v16). This is our high privilege.

A New Book on

War Peace Amity

By Rev. H. P. Krehbiel

Of books that treat of the curse of war and the need of its abolition and of the need for peace and ways to obtain it, there is no end. But many of us have been looking for a treatise that would go to the root of this war-peace problem and show that the peace to be aspired to cannot be a man-made peace, but it must be a peace such as God intended as the only cure for man's ills. Such a book has recently come off the press with the title and by the author given above.

The price for single copies is $2.00. In lots of a dozen or more, considerable discount.

The book, printed in large type, durably bound in brown cloth, contains 350 pages.

REFUSING TO GO TO WAR.—Very true, that millions have "resolved, no more to take any part whatsoever in war." Even several of the largest denominations, Methodists, Baptists, and others, at their conferences (representing many millions) have passed such resolutions. Many of these millions are vowing, that they will not even take any remote part; and in that they go farther than we Mennonites usually go, if we understand them right. This should make an impression upon our government. In fact, it would seem as though it would soon be impossible in our land, to declare war any more.—But (Oh, if only there were not always "buts") do we notice, how they usually "leave a back door open"? Their vowed purpose is rarely unconditioned. We usually are so happy, when we read of such wonderful resolutions, made by millions, that we overlook, or else soon forget, these conditions, or exceptions. The principle exception is: a defensive war, where obviously (?) our own land is in danger. But the latter is the case in nearly every war; at least it can be, and usually is, made the main excuse for going into war. Nearly every nation, in the World War, declared that they were not attacking another country; but they were "protecting" ("defending") their own land, and their own interests in other lands. America went into the World War, to uphold ("defend") Democracy; to "defend" our homes against the inroades of the terrible Hun; to "defend" our land against German militarism; and to keep the Kaiser away from our own doors:—Defensive all the way through! And nearly all other lands used very similar language. And—since to be on the offensive, in war, is of greatest advantage; and to carry on "our defensive war" 5000-7000 miles away, in another land (if possible, in the enemy's land) is most expedient, we went into France and took part in an offensive (i. e. de-fensive) warfare.

There we are! not only is the "back door" left open, in such conditioned non-resistance, but every side door is opened; and if expedient (and expedience counts everything in war) the front door must be opened, too! What then is the practical difference between an offensive and a defensive war, in our day at least? It obviously requires a far deeper conviction, than vowing only, not to take part in an offensive war. These good pledgers are mere pacifists, and that not unconditionally.—J. B. Epp.

REPRESENTATION.—Practically all we do in life is by habit. To a considerable extent that is as true of groups, such as churches, as it is of the individual. But as the conditions of life change, as they do so rapidly today, habits, even good ones for the time being, need to be changed or revamped. Our Mennonite conferences are apt to get into certain tracks or ruts that may hinder rather than further the best interests of the group, district or general. Thus one wonders whether we are not standing in our own light in the matter of handling representation at our gatherings. Take our young people, for instance. What a splendid group they are! Bright, alert, well educated, trained to solve problems, mostly God fearing, and desiring to be useful! We find them helpful in many ways in our church activities at home. But, in a resolution which they passed at the Bluffton session of the General Conference they plainly express the feeling that they are not given the recognition due them. This is the resolution: "Recommended that the churches consider the importance of electing at least one person under thirty to represent the congregation at General Conference." As we are rapidly approaching another session of the General Conference, the churches will do well, both for their own welfare and for that of the Conference, to heed this petition of the young people. Shouldn't we also stress larger numerical representation? In other matters we are about as democratic a body of church people as any that can be found. We have between 30,000 and 31,000 church members in the General Conference and thirty members, or a part thereof, entitle the churches to one delegate. That would give us more than 1000 delegates if each church were to send full representation. Yet, at the last session, in California, there were only about 275- delegates present. Some will say, that was due to distance and cost of the trip so far west. That argument has merit. But at that Conference was quite a group of young people, members of some of our churches, that could have acceptably acted as delegates had they been so commissioned. And, is it not a fact that auto travel, with four or more people in a car, reduces the expense to a minimum? So why not use good volunteers, especially younger people, where a church cannot afford to defray the expense of sending more than one delegate. Again, is it not about time that we should give the sisters of our churches the representation they deserve? Women can match men in almost everything they do. Why should some churches still be holding back in taking this step of giving the sisters the right to vote and to represent the church? One thing is sure, they are just as valuable in God's eyes as we men are, likely more so.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE are different today. They dress, talk, act differently from what the young people did twenty-five and fifty years ago. They are not always interested in the same things we were, and they do not always respond to the same appeals that stirred our hearts. They have more liberty and make use of it. They think as they please and sometimes do as they please. But we do not believe they are going to the dogs. They are different, but not necessarily worse than we were. Among our boys and girls, young men and young women, are many of high ideals and noble purposes. They mean to do what is right and will succeed in life. Let us continue to have faith in them.—Lester Hostetler.

The Modern Man

Hurry the Baby as fast as you can,
  Hurry him, worry him, make him a man;
Off with his baby clothes, get him in pants,
  Feed him on brain food and make him advance.

Hustle him, soon as he's able to walk,
  Into a grammar school, cram him with talk.
Fill his poor head full of figures and facts,
  Keep on a-jammin them in till it cracks.

Once a boy grew up at a rational rate,
  Now we develop a man while you wait.
Rush him through College, compel him to grab
  Of every known subject, a dip and a dab.

Get him in Business and after the cash,
  And by this time he can grow a mustache.
Let him forget he was ever a boy,
  Make Gold his God and its jingle his joy.

Keep him hustling and clear out of breath
Until he wins—Nervous prostration and death.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. Richert, Sec.

Taming, Hopei Prov., N. China, Oct. 6, 1937

Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kansas.

Dear Mr. Unruh:

Permit me to thank you most heartily, and so the General Conference Emergency Relief Committee, for the gift of fifty dollars to be used for the poor and the needy, as well as for the sick. That this gift is very timely you will know from the papers. Never in the history of our mission has our entire field been flooded like it has been this summer.

A severe earthquake, with the floods, has completely leveled many a home, yes, even villages. It must be very, very sad in the flooded areas. Thus far we have not been able to go out on account of the floods. Yesterday, two of our evangelists started out. By October the water is pretty chilly, and so both of the men, after wading a good deal, are ill today. The one with a light case of cholera, as it seems, and the other with a cold on his bowels. They found villages completely razed to the ground, so that they found it impossible to find the former homes, for the folks were sitting under mats. Well, this money, received just at such a time as this, seemed like a Godsent. I had already planned to give as much as I could spare in money and clothes, of the latter I had already fixed up a big bundle. I am deeply grateful for this money, though for the present I do not see how I can get it cashed, but I am sure there will be a way. —Later, I have found a solution.

Through the radio and the daily papers, you will perhaps know that we, i.e. our mission, are in the war zone. The men of our mission left about a week ago to take winter clothes to their families, and, with the situation getting so serious, it will be difficult for them to get back in. It is wiser anyway, for them to stay away. The fighting line is steadily pushing toward our district. There are three families, one doctor (lady), still here at Taming and, with me, four ladies. Just what the other missions will do I am unable to say. What I will do, I too, am unable to say. Everything is as peaceful as can be just now. Only folks are scared, panicky, restless, confused and terrified. One airoplane flew over Taming, and were those poor folks ever terrified. Every courtyard had to dig a dugout to seek refuge in, in case of an air-raid. But if God was not our refuge and strength and a very present help in trouble, I must admit, I too, would be terrified. As it is now, I am not a bit afraid, though I am thinking and praying to know what course to take. It just means living hour by hour. I am all packed up to leave. But, where shall I go? Most of our earthly goods will have to be left behind, surrendering it all to God. If in His mercy He sees fit to safekeep it for us, we realize we have received grace of which we were no more worthy than those who lost all.

It is so unfortunate that our government has taken the attitude they take. America is being criticized, despised and looked at with prejudice, because they all want all their subjects to leave and the ambassadors, too, all leave at every call from the government or the Japanese. They suspicion that U. S. is in league with Japan. Even in the villages they talk about it and say that U. S. refuses to sell arms and ammunition to China but they sell it to Japan. Some are beginning to eye even us now with suspicion. They think it very funny that the Americans are such cowards. The whole thing does look queer. It is just too unfortunate. And it does hinder our work.

We do request your earnest prayer for us here. We are in danger, perhaps in much greater danger than we realize, but under God's Almighty arm we are safe. Praise be to Him. Very kind greetings.

Sincerely, Agnetha Fast.

Schools and Education

CHRISTIAN EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE

In connection with a meeting of the Board of Education at Freeman, South Dakota, an educational conference of faculty members of Bethel, Bluffton, and Freeman Colleges as well as members of the Boards of Trustees of these institutions, and ministers, was called. This was the second annual conference, the first having been held at Bluffton College last year. The meeting was well attended by faculty members, board members and ministers of the Freeman community. In addition representatives were also present from Bluffton and Bethel Colleges.

A number of topics had been suggested for discussion but the one which the group was most inclined to discuss for the afternoon session was "What Are the Marks of a Christian College?" Among the things suggested that mark a Christian college were: Christ likeness . . . definite instruction along spiritual lines . . . Christ reigning supreme in every classroom . . . a Christian college enables students to fit themselves in a very complex world in the light of Christ's gospel . . . a Christion college develops the faith of a student; it does not test it . . . In a Christian college the students may see Christ in the personality of the teacher . . . in such an institution under full guidance with no sacrifice of scholarship, students are confronted with facts and theories in the light of Christian truth . . . and finally, "by their fruits ye shall know them."

The evening discussion centered mainly around "In What Way Should Our Mennonite Colleges Try to be Different from Other Church Colleges." It was suggested: Our Mennonite schools must build on the principles that have come to us from our forefathers . . . every faculty member ought to have a clear understanding of these . . . Mennonite students should predominate . . . our agricultural heritage must be recognized . . . there should be emphasis on a practical Christian life . . . a question was raised if competitive athletics properly belonged to a Mennonite college.

Also very impressive was a strong plea for a united front among Mennonites for Christian education, with some plans for the same, as presented by Willis Rich.

In addition to the exchange of thought the personal fellowship of this meeting was recognized as an inspiration for further service in the field of Christian education.—A. S. Rosenberger, Sec. Bd. of Education

Explanation

In a recent issue of THE MENNONITE a jotting concerning the honor system at Bluffton College perhaps left the impression that the system is a failure. A more correct interpretation would be that while the system is not functioning perfectly, there is no general disposition on the part of faculty or student to drop it.

The crux of the problem concerns itself with the comparatively few students who are inclined to take advantage of such a system. The faculty of Bluffton College believe that the majority of students abide by the honor system.

It would be realized that the standard of an honor system is unusually high. It puts the students entirely on their own honor while taking examinations. Naturally there are those who will fall short of this standard, but even these may finally realize either through penalty or personal conviction that it is better to abide by the system rather than to go back to the old system of proctors.

Our schools are not perfect and we have problems here as at other places but we still believe at Bluffton College that the honor system is working better than any other system would work.

Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving day is here again,
To thank for bounties we obtain.
Give thanks for blessings great or small
For God the giver gave them all.

We thank for sunshine and for rain,
For the sheaves of golden grain,
For shelter and for raiment too.
For health, for strength, and for work to do.

We only ask for daily bread,
But God will give us much more yet;
Give turkey, fruit and pumpkin pie,
Our needs so bountiful supply.

Should we not give to those in need
And helpful be in word or deed;
With gratitude our tribute bring,
To Him our gracious heavenly King.

I Wonder Why

J. H. Langenwalter

There are a great many things about which I have wondered in life, but I have not wondered more about anything than about the difference between people who are thankful and those who are not.

This business of wondering is really interesting and profitable, especially if you wonder about something worth while. People who are thankful are certainly worth wondering about. They do such strange things, and they do them in strange ways. The following are some of the things any one can find out about people who are thankful:

1. They think. One of our leading educators was quoted a few years ago as having said that less than two per cent of the American people ever think. That was an astonishing statement for the president of one of our largest universities to make. I have thought about it a great deal and have wondered why he should have made it—if he was quoted correctly. Some of the things which came to light indicate that he associates a great deal with people who are very selfish and not thankful. They engage in business and professional enterprises in which things are placed before personality. It also became manifest that he has been frequently called upon to defend some of their practices in order to be "diplomatic" with them. Perhaps that has nothing to do with the quotation issued in his name, but I wonder!

I also wonder what he would have said about the American people if he had had more opportunity to deal with people who are thankful!

2. They get at the heart of matters, things that matter. Superficial things and mere incidents in life do not disturb them. They seem to be looking at a goal far in advance of their present position, while others are stubbing their toes on pebbles. I wondered about that a long time until I discovered that it is because thankfulness makes one interested in the possibilities of life as a whole until one's horizon becomes so large that the immediate troubles do not disturb one so much. Mere ability is worth much, but the margin between real success and the ultimate disappointment of failure lies in the simple virtue of thankfulness. That is why so many great men and women in all walks of life, who have contributed so much to the good of mankind are so modest and so grateful to those who have given them at least standing room during the days of their struggles. No matter what the crowd said that hurt, they kept on thinking of the good which might come to the world if their dreams could be made to come true.

3. They find out what is right and then work for its achievement. It takes more than mere thoughtfulness to do that. One may have the ability to think, and think hard, and yet be bitter and selfish. No great end is achieved in that frame of mind. Paul suggests that our prayers, supplications and requests should be shot through with thanksgiving. If that is necessary, and history proves that Paul was right, then the same thing certainly is true of our life in general.

It takes thought, and the willingness to pay the price to think into the very heart of things, in order to find out what is right and then to work for it for all we are worth, but that is what a spirit of thankfulness makes possible for any one who will try his best.

I wonder why more people do not try to take advantage of the opportunities to be thankful.

Baggage Watchers

Armistice Day Sermon (condensed), Preached in the Eighth Street Mennonite Church, Goshen, Indiana
November 7, 1937

George S. Stoneback

"As is the share of him who goeth down into the battle,
Even so is his portion who remains with the baggage,
They shall share alike."

—I Sam. 30:24. (Smith and Goodspeed version).

Our text is an ordinance of David, following one of his outlaw raids on a city of the Amalekites. Several hundred men who had remained behind during the attack were being denied their share of the spoils by the men who had just returned from the front: but David said, "they shall share alike."

This was not the first time that such a law had been passed. In Numbers 31:27 there is recorded a similar law that came through Moses. The fact that it was repeated and that it held for so many years indicates that it was not an arbitrary ruling of a despot, but an expression of a universal principle. Natural laws and all lasting legal statues are never abritrary—they are descriptions of unalterable processes or principles. I think that David, although he may not have realized it, was expressing a basic truth when he said the words of our text.

When David said it he was thinking in terms of spoils, but his principle is true in more aspects. The same can be applied to the responsibility for war.

Nobody wants war. On October 5th our President ended his Chicago address by saying, "America hates war. America hopes for peace. Therefore America actively engages in the search for peace."

Nobody wants war—yet the world is full of actual and potential warfare. Nobody wants war, and yet we are all actively preparing for it. Who is to blame? Who is responsible? The Japanese war lords? Mussolini? Hitler? France? To be sure—but they have a lot of company. They do not bear the responsibility alone; the world is full of baggage watchers who share alike in the responsibility for wars and rumors of war.

England was most outspoken in protesting Italy's theft of Ethiopia. It was to England that Haile-Selassie fled when his kingdom was taken from him. England refused to recognize Italian sovereignty of Ethiopia until September 27th of this year. England was then doing her utmost to stop Italian intervention in Spain. Should Italy gain control, either directly or indirectly, of the land around the mouth of the Mediterranean, England's path to the East might be jeopardized. Therefore, when all else failed, England offered to recognize Italian control of Ethiopia if Italy would agree to withdraw her troops from Spain!

News flash! November 4, Berlin.—"Three Germans were decapitated for alleged espionage and high treason.' We raise our hands in horror at the methods employed by the German political machine; but America, Great Britain, and France are largely responsible for the fact that such a regime came to dominate Germany. At Versailles the victorious Allies tramped on their defeated foe—already laid low in the mud. They heaped on Germany the sole responsibility for the war, imposed an impossible indemnity, and refused her equal rights with the other blood-guilty nations. Now those same men (those who are still alive) are amazed at the bravado of Hitler—shocked at the pagan, unchristian methods he employs.

Both the United States and Great Britain were among the nations who protested Japan's bombing of Chinese civilians. However, both bear some of the blame. The horrors of ariel attack on defenseless civilians has long been foreseen, and plans have been presented to avoid it. One of the most workable plans yet offered was the one presented at Geneva in 1932. There were two chief points:

1. The internationalization of all civilian aviation.
2. The abolition of all military air forces.

It was Lord Londonderry, the British representative, who wrecked this plan. England felt the need for preserving the right to bomb open towns, because it was a useful means of controlling the hill tribes along the border of India.

Who knows how many of the planes that dropped the bombs were powered by American-made motors? It is almost impossible to estimate the amount of war material shipped from the United States. Much of it is sent in boxes marked "tractor parts," etc. However, it has been estimated that in 1937 we have exported thirty-three million dollars worth of planes, motors, and accessories. This will be an all-time high record. Senator Nye, who has made extensive investigations of such trade, tells us that most of the Japanese machine guns were made in America; all the shrapnell used by the Japanese was made from scrap iron shipped from the United States; and that the very bombs droped from the planes are made according to a formula sold to the Japanese government four years ago for six hundred thousand dollars by the corporation that recently made an alliance by marriage to the chief executive of the United States —the Du Pont Corporation!

They who go down into the battle and they who supplied the stuff shall share alike.

Let us come closer home. The church founded by the Prince of Peace has not a few representatives among the watchers of the baggage. During the war the church was one of the best creators of the bloodlust. The pulpit, not the post office, was the chief recruiting agency. Just a few years ago, it was a preacher who helped a senator to defeat the entry of the United States into one of the most forward steps toward peace.

There is a more insiduous way in which the church sits among the watchers of the stuff. Those who insist on an extremely literalistic proof-text method of Scriptural interpretation may not actually cause wars, but they provide the Scriptural basis and sanction for the rationalization of war. Those who say that there shall be wars and rumors of wars until the end, are simply pouring water on the mill of the militarists, so to speak.

I am happy that the leaders of the church who met in Oxford last summer took a clear stand against war. (See "The Mennonite" for November 7, pages 7 and 8.) As soon as the church as a whole takes such a stand, it will leave the congregation of the baggage watchers.

Let us come still closer home. Many common men are watchers of the baggage. "To repeat parrot-like that it is the influence of the armament makers" . . . that causes wars . . . "explains nothing. As truly might one say that fify million Americans drank bootleg liquor during fifteen years because Al Capone and other gangsters wanted to make a lot of money."*

To say that the common man is influenced by a bought press explains little more. There are two types of newspapers in every country that still retains some semblance of democracy. There are newspapers that aim to tell the truth about international events and avoid telling those events that might embitter our feeling against other countries. On the other hand, there are those that create suspicion of other peoples; urge strong defense; show pictures of soldiers, armaments, and the glories of war! Who is to blame that the Hearst-model jingo paper is the more popular? Who tells you which paper to buy? If you put down your two cents for a Hearst paper, it is not a Hearst nor the armament men behind him that force you to do so—it is a voluntary act, an act that aids the cause of war, an act that brands you as a baggage watcher.

We must stop putting the blame on a "guilty nation" or a "guilty class." The trouble with the world is not that it has a wounded finger or two; it has a disease in the blood stream. As long as the common man feels no responsibility for it, war will remain with us. We are all guilty—from the farmer who reaps the profits of war in higher prices for his wheat to the worker in the factory making essentials of war —we are all blood-guilty.

Every wage earner in the country is helping to finance America's newest bid in the armament race. About a year ago this country launched a cleverly conceived system of wage tax. One cent on each dollar earned goes into a social security fund. We thought it would go into a separate fund, but even Senator Norris admits that the money is going in to the general treasury to "balance the budget," to buy new battle ships, etc. We thought our money would be put into sound investments. If a rapidly depreciating battle ship is a sound investment, then we have not been duped. The United States is now building four new sixty-million dollar battle ships. It is hard to tell how much of your wage tax will be used to pay for them. How many people have protested? Some Mennonites in Lancaster protested, but only against receiving the fund once it comes due, not against paying the levy.

You are helping to support preparation for war—are you doing the same for peace? Do you belong to a peace society? Have you ever written to your representative in Congress asking him to vote for reduced armaments or the entry of the United States into the World Court or the League of Nations? The munitions makers are bringing constant pressure to bear on Congress in behalf of war: as long as we do not do the same in behalf of peace we are baggage watchers one and all!

"As is the share of him who goest down into the battle,
Event so shall his portion be who remains with the baggage;
They shall share alike."

Rev. David Toews in Hospital

Rev. J. J.Thiessen, 337 Fifth Ave. N., Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, writes under date of Nov. 16, that on October 30, Rev. David Toews had to be taken to a hospital in Saskatoon, to submit to an operation for bladder trouble; that he passed through it successfully, but that his condition had been aggravated by an attack of diabetes which both renders his condition more serious and necessitates postponement of a second operation. But at the time of the letter there seemd to be hope for the good brother's recovery. Sick as he is his thoughts are still occupied with some of the problems that await solution. Our united prayers are needed that our kind heavenly Father may spare the life of this valuable servant of His for some years, since his services in connection with the recent immigrants from Russia and their settlement in Canada are still so sorely needed.

CHRISTIAN REST

Matt. 11:28-30; Hebrews 4:1-11

Introduction

Christian Rest and Christian Peace are very closely related. The deepest craving of the human heart is for rest, and true rest is soul-rest, found only in God. Where there is peace of soul there is rest. Some Christians enjoy soul-rest far more truly than others and surely the majority live below their privileges in this respect. We may properly feel a deep concern about some things, which commonly is called worry. Paul felt the great weight of such anxieties (2 Cor. 1:7, 11:28). There is a wide difference between worry over external matters and the unrest of soul, the result of sin.

The Great Invitation vs. 28-30

Christ's invitation is all-inclusive to the heavy-laden with the burden of sin, with the cares of life, with a legalistic religion which does not bring peace to the soul. Jesus saw signs of fear, weariness, remorse, doubt, sorrow, in people's faces. He says in effect—cease your fruitless efforts to obtain rest, peace; accept Me, I will give you soul-rest. His promise is not rest FROM but rest IN our labor. He promises soul-rest, an inward peace, not depending upon outward circumstances.

Burden-bearing is made easy by our taking Christ's yoke (v2). It takes away the pain and strain of the load. He bears one end of the yoke, helps us obey His commands, which are not grievous to the trusting believer (v3), but will give rest to the soul. We learn from Christ himself (v2) the art of bearing life's inevitable burdens with ease. To the love-filled heart, all is easy.

God's Everlasting Rest vs. 1-9

God has purposed "from the foundation of the world" (v3) that man should enter into and share His rest. The Israelites failed, because of unbelief, to enter for a time, into the promised rest in Canaan which is typical of the true rest promised to the Christians. This same unbelief prevents many today. The Promise is made to all, in the gospel (v2) and must be accepted in faith to be profitable. Believers of all times, may enter into this rest (v3), the way is open through our implicit trust in God and Christ. Some deny themselves of the rest which Christ offers, through their unbelief (v6).

The offer of rest is a permanent one (v9). The trusting, redeemed people of God shall rest with Him. Only the treachery of hearts hardened by sin, can keep anyone out of this rest. There is only one rest in the world and that is found in God through Christ.

This rest will remain with us through all the changes of life when we have made peace with God.

Not by Works of Righteousness vs 10, 11

This rest is given to those who eagerly seek it, who sincerely want it. God has ceased from His creative work (v10). His people are to share His rest with Him, ceasing from their own efforts to win rest. Constant watchfulness is needed (v11) lest we slip into unbelief and miss the free gift of rest through Christ. He who comes to God through Christ, enters into rest and finds peace. The world does not have rest and can not offer rest. Rest and peace are not there. These come only through Christ.

Gems of Truth

A soul at rest is not synonomous with a soul at ease.

Rest is promised and provided, but it must be claimed.

Christ's yoke did not consist in a burdensome set of rules.

People need to learn to live one day at a time, and cast their anxieties upon the Lord.

THE NEW PROJECT

From "The Vine-Press," Middle District Y. P. Paper

At different times the subject of projects has been suggested. We are partly borrowing the idea of the project we are about to mention, at least the name.

We shall call it the "Spend-A-Day" project; and the idea is this: Let each member of the Christian Endeavor Societies (Senior, Intermediate and Junior) and the members of the Junior and Intermediate mission bands, select one day of the year, and give one dollar on that day, toward the support of a missionary gone out from the Middle District Conference; either foreign or home missionary. The money is then to be sent to Foreign and Home Mission Boards, to be used for this project.

Do you realize that twenty-one Missionaries from the Middle District Conference, have represented or are representing us on the home and foreign field?

Now the procedure. Let each member select a day and report to the president or secretary of their society what day they have selected. The president or secretary will take care of the matter and send the names and the dates to the Field Secretary, Miss Inda Sprunger, Berne, Ind.

Also designate with each name and date, whether to apply on Home or Foreign Missions.

A dollar! What are some of our dollars spent for? $33,000,000 yearly spent on face creams; $12,000,000 on lip stick and rouge; $40,000,000 on face lotions, hair oils; not mentioning finger waves, permanents, etc.

In giving, a man receives more than he gives; and the more is in proportion to the worth of the thing given.—George McDonald.

Annual Meeting of Men's Brotherhood of the Eastern District, West Swamp Church, Oct. 31

Res. 1.—Resolved that we thank our Heavenly Father for the blessings, inspiration and instruction we have received at this session of the Brotherhood, and further, we thank the Ladies' Aid of the West Swamp Church serving the dinner, and all others who have contributed to the success of the meetings.

Res. 2.—Resolved, that in view of our peace convictions for more than four centuries, and because of the crucial world conditions, we declare ourselves unalterably opposed to war, because it never brings any blessings to humanity. We therefore feel it very urgent that we make our convictions known to those who are our representatives in our democracy. We would further encourage each individual citizen to write his Senator and Representative and urge him in this special session of Congress to work for the enforcement of a strict neutrality.

Res. 3.—Resolved, that we believe in educating our children that they may serve others; not educating them solely for personal financial advantage, and we believe that in the small Christian college there is the opportunity so to educate our future leaders. It is our belief that the advantages of Bluffton College in meeting these requirements should be brought before our prospective students.

Res. 4.—Resolved, that we believe that attendance at our Conference sessions is a Christian privilege and duty which should be exercised more generally by the lay members of our churches.

Your committee recommends that a copy of Resolution Number 1 be sent to the Ladies Aid of the West Swamp Church, and also that a copy of the Resolutions, together with a concise statement of our project shall be mailed to all local chapters, members-at-large, pastors of all churches, and other prominent laymen in those churches not having local chapters, and to the editor of "The Mennonite."

Committee: Harold Rosenberger, Morris De Haven, Walter H. Temple

The project referred to above was adopted by the convention after listening to an enthusiastic and inspiring address on "Christian Education", especially as it applies to Bluffton College, which was delivered at the afternoon session by Paul Stauffer, Treasurer of the College, who came at the invitation of the Brotherhood to enlighten and inspire the audience with the needs of the college in its efforts to promote Christian Education.

A field of special effort for the Brotherhood was suggested by this address; that of boosting the College among our people and acquainting them with its advantages as well as with its needs.

As a definite project for the Brotherhood, the convention decided that the Brotherhood undertake the financial responsibility for the education of John Boehr at Bluffton College, allowing $250 a year for a four year term. It was felt that this is a very worthy project, in preparing one already acquainted with the Chinese language for missionary work in that field.

Another decision of the convention was the recommendation to local Brotherhood chapters or individuals, the financial assistance in the expense of repairing the boys' dormitory at Bluffton College.

The subject of Christian Education was further discussed at the evening session in an inspiring address by Dr. George A. Greiss, a prominent Lutheran pastor of Allentown. Ely R. Fretz, Secr.

NOTES FROM MANITOBA

Sent in by Benjamin Ewert

During the month of October Rev. H. J. Brown, returned missionary from China, visited 25 places among the Mennonites in Manitoba; giving interesting reports about China and the Chinese, the need of missionary work, the experiences, successes, etc. they have had there.

Saturday, October 23, a general conference of Mennonites in Manitoba convened in Gretna, in the Mennonite Collegiate Institute, in the interest of education among the Mennonites; putting special emphasis on the need of keeping up the German language. There was quite a gathering of Mennonite teachers, ministers and school friends, and a number of important topics came to discussion.

Beginning in the month of November at least 6 Bible Schools came into operation by and among the Mennonties in Manitoba. About the same number are conducted in Saskatchewan and also in Alberta by and among the Mennonites of these Provinces.

The enrollment of students in the Mennonite Collegiate Institute at Gretna numbered 80 at the beginning of November. Since then some more have been added. Four teachers are employed, including the one for the Bible School, which has its course separately in the Institute. Only once during the 45 years of the existence of this Institute has the enrollment been equal to the number of this year, some years only half or even less than this year's number.

For some time the Mennonite choirs of Winnipeg and Winkler have broadcasted their songs weekly from the broadcasting station at Winnipeg. They have been asked to do so by the broadcasting management and their service is appreciated very much, especially by German and Mennonite listeners.

On account of the drought and cropfailure in Saskatchewan the people of Manitoba, irrespective of nationality, denomination, etc, have gathered many carloads of garden products, feed, grain, and other articles of food, clothing, etc. and sent the same to the stricken parts of Saskatchewan. The Mennonites have, of course, also taken an active part in this act of benevolence.

ANNOUNCEMENT

by the Committee on Doctrine and Conduct

The Secretary of the Comittee on Doctrine and Conduct, Rev. Franz Albrecht has recently sent out to the leaders of our churches a number of different kinds of pamphlets for their approval and distribution, free of charge. And he wishes to announce that more of these may be obtained by leaders or other responsible persons, without cost.

The following pamphlets are now available:

"The Eternal Security Teaching," a thirty-two page pamphlet that discusses, very interestingly and with plenty of quotation from the word of God, the age-old question, whether a person that has once been saved by the grace of God can still get lost. This may be had only in English.

The Oath, a splendidly written discussion of the Oath from the biblical point of view, by Dr. A. Warkentin. This is a 16 page pamphlet and may be had either in English or German.

Diverse Baptisms is a brief, telling essay of four pages, setting forth the true, biblical exposition of the form of baptism.

CHURCH DEDICATION AT SHAFTER, CALIF.

An all-day dedication of the new Mennonite Church was held October 25. The materialistic growth of the church has been accomplished. Now we must grow spiritually. Such a growth can be realized only, if we remember that Jesus is the head of religion, the church building is the outward sanctuary. Around this theme the First Mennonite Church was dedicated. Many friends from different parts of California participated in the ceremonies incident to the formal opening of the edifice. Assisting Rev. Gustav Frey, the pastor of our church, were the Rev. H. J. Krehbiel and the Rev. J. H. Langenwalter of Reedley, this state. Dedication started at 10 a.m., as follows:

Reading by Miss Dona Goershing
Introductory words by the pastor and general song
Scripture Lesson: Ezra 8:10-13, and prayer by Rev. Frey
Reading list of articles encased in corner stone
Song by Young Men's quartet and benediction
Procession into the church, led by the ministers
Dedicatory sermon by Rev. H. J. Krehbiel
Songs by different choruses
German sermon by Rev. Frey and closing prayer by Rev. Lichti, Upland

At noon and at 6 p.m., lunch was served by the ladies in the basement

In the afternoon, several visiting ministers filled the pulpit

The evening service was conducted by the Y. P. society, the visitors taking a prominent part.

So we could not help but feel blessed over this event, and are truly thankful for our new church home.—Jake Neufeld, Corr.

Give Thanks--For What?

Mrs. Gerhard Friesen

The setting apart of a day in each year to remind ourselves to be thankful is a worthy practice. We are like the little boy who, when he receives an apple, must be reminded by his mother, "What do you say?" and then says a late "thank you." We are apt to forget to say thank you to our heavenly Father.

There is a value in doing this together and at the same time. One single live coal by itself does not give much warmth, and is likely to die; but many live coals heaped together give warmth and keep on glowing. A season of united recalling of God's blessings will help to warm our hearts and to kindle them into deep and whole-hearted Thanksgiving.

There are common everyday things that mean much to our lives which we may well put first in our list of thanksgiving. The beauty of the day! Truly, "Not a brooklet floweth, onward to the sea; not a sunbeam gloweth, on its bosom free; not a seed unfoldeth, to the glorious air, but our Father holdeth it, within His care."

"Our daily bread!" Our friends in Russia and China, who have often gone hungry, say a more deepfelt thank-you for food, clothing and shelter than do we.

Our homes! The place where we grumble the most, and are loved the best. Here we have folks who stand by when we make mistakes, who sympathize with us in our blues, who by their companionship and understanding inspire us to better, nobler living. "I would be true, for there are those to trust me, and I would be pure, for there are those who care."

Our friends! What would we do without them? How empty and barren our lives would be? We all like to share things, to love and to be loved, just to be together at times. The life of no one is complete without friends. Let us be truly grateful and thankful for them.

One writer says:

Give thanks for what?
The things you had forgot;
The fire on hearth; the cheerful kettle's hum!
Dear faded books—perhaps a friend has come
To share your day—someone has sent a flower,
Or else to one in need you gave an hour,
The things you have forgot.
Give thanks for what?

After all, "Thanksgiving" is "Thanks Living." We must show our appreciation of the good things our heavenly Father has given us by using them. Our homes, our health, our money, our time, our talents, —let us appreciate them by using them in happy service for Him and for the coming of his Kingdom.

What Makes Life Worth Living?

2 Cor. 3:6; I John 5:12; Col. 3:2

Young Peoples' Topic for Dec. 12

Meditation:

M., Dec. 6 Paul's answer. Phil. 1:21
T., Dec. 7 Jesus' cry of victory. John 17:1-5
W., Dec. 8 Samuel—the worthwhile life. I Sam. 12:1-5
T., Dec. 9 Noble living. Acts 20:17-38
F., Dec. 10 The advice of Jesus. John 9:1-7
S., Dec. 11 The unselfish life. Exodus 32:7-14

Suggested hymns:

"My Faith Looks up to Thee."
"Come Thou Almighty King."

Problems:

1. What form should the unity of Christian believers take and how can it be brought about? How does a unity of Christian believers make life more worthwhile? "The prayer of Christ which makes up John 17 is in some respects the most precious relic of the past. We have here the words which Christ addressed to God in the critical hour of his life—the words in which he uttered the deepest feeling and thought of his Spirit. Even among the prayers of Christ this stands by itself as that in which he gathered up the retrospect of his past and surveyed the future of his church; in which, as if already dying, he solemnly presented to the Father himself, his work, and his people. Recognizing the grandeur of the occasion, we may be disposed to agree with Melancthon, who, when giving his last lecture, shortly before his death said, 'There is no voice which has ever been heard, either in heaven or in earth, more exalted, more holy, more fruitful, more sublime, than this prayer offered by the Son of God himself.' "

2. How can we make it possible to obtain for our public offices men of Samuel's quality? — "Political expediency is much considered today, and often it seems that the heart of the people is sound, and turns at last to the man or the party on the side of the right. In all the confusion of methods and plans, of laws and policies, the citizen, the voter, the statesman, has only to seek the right. He will win in the end."

3. How does our knowledge of Christ make life worth living? What results would follow in this community if all knowledge of Jesus Christ were blotted out from the minds of the citizens? — "A plant, shut up in a dark cellar all winter, will lean lovingly toward some chink or crevice in the wall through which a tiny ray of sunlight struggles, to kiss its waning energies. Why does the plant turn toward the light? Because the sun is its life. It gladly hails its faintest touch; without the light it must die. So Christ is the soul's life. Without his light, bringing warmth and vitality, it dies." After Christ had declared himself the spiritual Light of the World, He called attention to that great truth by an illustration in the physical realm, by healing the man who had been blind since birth.

4. How can we get from our church life what God designs us to obtain from it? — "This is a very hard treatment of the poor, helpless world which cannot answer to defend itself. It gives us as we give ourselves to do it. It is our minister fulfilling our commissions for us upon our own souls. If we say to it, 'Make us noble,' it does make us noble. If we say to it, 'Make us mean,' it does make us mean. And then we take the nobility and say, 'Behold, how noble I have made myself.' And we take the meanness and say, 'See how mean the world has made me.' "—Philips Brooks.

5. Why does the knowledge of eternal life, make this life worth living? — "The life of which John has been speaking, eternal life, life in Christ, the only kind of life worth mentioning. What is meant by "Having the Son? It signifies the vital union with the Son of God that faith produces, the union that in its turn produces in us, as in the Son, the very life of the Father, his eternal life."

For Daily Study

Dec. 6. "This is my Father's World." Ps. 24:1-10
Dec. 7. "Holy, Holy, Holy." Isa. 6:1-8
Dec. 8. "Fairest Lord Jesus." Luke 2:40-52
Dec. 9. "O Master let me walk with Thee." Matt. 4:18-22
Dec. 10. "O little town of Bethlehem." Matt. 2:1-6
Dec. 11. "In the cross of Christ I glory." Gal. 6:12-18
Dec. 12. Topic — Great Hymns of Yesterday and Today. Ps. 149:1-3; Col. 3:16, 17

Purpose

This meeting should help your Intermediates to have a greater appreciation for the songs they sing and to develop a standard by which they can judge hymns for themselves.

I. Pre-Prayer Circle

Read a Prayer Hymn, such as "Take Time to Be Holy" before you ask for participation in prayer. Pray for the needs of your society.

II. Suggestions for Your Meeting

1. Try to bring out the meaning of every song that is used during this meeting by any one of a number of ways in which this can be done.
   a. Tell the story of the writing of the hymn.
   b. Tell an incident in connection with its use.
   c. Have them read the words silently while it is being played.
   e. Call attention to the meaning of the words.

2. Ask each Intermediate a week in advance to find out from his mother what her favorite song was when she was a girl and why. It will be interesting to list these on the blackboard and see how many of them have survived and are being used today.

3. Have someone give a talk or work out together some standards by which a hymn can be judged. This would probably include such points as (1) the music must be good, not jazzy; must bear repetition and grow upon you as you become more familiar with it; express the spirit of the words. (2) The words must be singable; be in harmony with the teachings of the Bible; beautiful and poetically correct; express the deepest religious longings and emotions of the heart.

III. Hymn Stories

1. Use "The Spacious Firmament" by Hayden as an instrumental number sometime during the meeting. Hayden said of the composition of the great oratorio from which it is taken that he knelt down every day and prayed to God to strengthen him for his work. It was immediately successful. When he was old he went again to hear his great composition performed. He was so moved by it that he rose and said, "No, it is not my work. It came from above." He always signed his compositions "In the name of the Master."

2. "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," is one of the most dignified hymns of the church and has lived through four centuries. Martin Lutner, author and composer of this grand hymn drew his inspiration from the forty-sixth Psalm, of which it is a paraphrase. It is said to have been translated into sixty different languages. Someone has called it "The greatest hymn of the greatest man in the greatest period of German history." One of the thrilling moments of the World's C. E. Conventions in Berlin, Germany, in 1930, was at the very opening when the C. E. band of 100 instruments played this mighty hymn. Then the chorus of 600 voices joined in the singing of it while that vast audience of 14,000 stood in reverence.

3. "The Church in the Wildwood." Back in 1865, a small group of faithful workers were struggling to finish a church in the little town of Bradford, Iowa. Money was scarce but enthusiasm ran high. Trees were donated and felled by volunteer labor. A mill owner sawed the lumber free of charge and willing workers put up the building. Some material had to be hauled a distance of 80 miles by team. It was painted brown because it was inexpensive and also fitting in its natural setting of trees. A young man by the name of William Pitt, who came to live in the small town of Bradford was struck by its simple beauty and wrote the words and music of the hymn before the church was finished. Today the "Little Brown Church" has become a shrine which thousands of tourists visit every year.

Questions for Discussion

1. What makes a hymn popular? Do all popular church hymns live? Why not?

2. How do hymns make us conscious of God?

3. What are some things that hymns tell us about God? Illlustrate.

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

Program Suggestions for December 12, 1937

The Forerunner of Jesus Coming Again

Opening service:

1. Prelude of hymn
2. Quiet moment. Prepare the children for it, asking them to "draw nigh unto God", "to be still and know" that He is near
3. Prayer by leader (Rise)
4. Repeat in unison Psalm 19:14
5. Sing in unison verse one of "Holy, Holy, Holy" (Be seated)
6. Responsive reading: Rev. 7:9-17
7. In unison sing "O Zion Haste", verse 1, 2, 3

Mission minutes: Since special mission numbers have been issued this month and this program is one of missions, give ten minutes to reports. There is much interesting material which our Juniors should know

Study period. Aim: to teach personal responsibility in preparing the way for Christ's coming again

1. Special music: verse one and four of "Must I Go and Empty Handed"
2. Introductory remarks using again "The Voice of Him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord." Use this to connect last study with evenings theme
3. How can we prepare the way for Jesus' coming again? Talks by juniors
   a. Matthew 24:14
   b. Matthew 5:13
   c. Matthew 5:14-16
   d. Mark 16:15, Matthew 28:19, 20
4. What must we have before we can help any one else to find Jesus? Answered by a junior with Acts 1:8
5. Sing in unison: "I Love to Tell the Story", verses 2 and 3
6. How the Bible describes one who tells the "story": Answered by a junior asking all to turn to Isa. 52:7 and to read it in unison
7. Story: by a guest choosing one in which a child helps to win a soul to Christ. Close with the thought of "Yet there is room" (from the parable of the great supper, Luke 14:16-24)
8. Prayer by guest speaker
9. Quote in unison verse of the month
10. Sing in unison song of the month
11. Leader's closing prayer

TO THE JUNIOR

It doesn't seem true that suddenly there should be no leaves on the trees. They seem so cold standing there so bare. How would you like to walk through a forest? If you can imagine trees like they look in spring and summer and autumn, then you may go with me. You will need paper and pencil because I want you to tell me what kind of trees these are in this forest as we pass them by one by one.

Now here is a beautiful tree, so strong, so mighty. I will tell you what I know about it and then you tell me the kind of a tree it is:

1. God had promised a son to Abraham. One day when Abraham was sitting under such a tree in his tent door in the heat of day, God appeared to him to tell him that now he would send this son. God never forgets a promise, you know. Gen. 18:1.

2. Rebekah had a nurse, Deborah. When Deborah died at Bethel, she was buried under such a tree. Gen. 35:8.

3. Gideon was sitting under such a tree when the angel of God appeared to him and called him to do a great task. Can you tell me what this task was? God performed miracles under these trees. Can you tell me what miracles? Judges 6:11-24.

4. A man was fleeing on a mule. When he came under a tree like this, his head caught in the branches. His enemy was told about it and so this man was killed. Do you know his name? II Sam. 18:9. God always punishes sin.

Here is another tree, so unlike the first, but isn't it beautiful? Shall I tell you about it?

1. The children of Israel were on their great journey through the wilderness. They had really just begun their long journey but, oh, how tired and hot and thirsty they were. You see, a desert is a place where many trees are not and where much water is not and so you can imagine how happy the Israelites were, when they came to a place, called Elim, and found twelve springs of water and seventy such trees to shade them from the heat of the sun. Isn't it wonderful how God cares for those that love Him? Exodus 15:27.

2. Deborah, not Rebekah's nurse, was a prophetess. She ruled Israel at one time. She dwelt under a tree like this which grew between Ramah and Bethel. Judges 4:4, 5. Have you ever thought about Deborah being the ruler of Israel. You know, a woman never rules a nation unless God can find no man that is strong enough to do it. And when the men are not strong then the nation is very, very weak. Sin makes a nation weak. We must pray that our nation be cleansed from sin. You and I are a part of our nation. It will help if we stay near to God.

3. It was from a tree like this that many of the throng broke off a branch and spread it in the way where Jesus was coming. Do you remember the song that this multitude sang? Matthew 21:1-11.

4. God wants you and me to be like such a tree. When shall we flourish like this tree? Psalm 92:12.

Oh, here we are at the water edge. Look a these lovely trees, leaning over far. They love to see their reflection in the water. It is a sympathetic tree because—do you know why? Guess the name and you will know. There is an interesting story connected with this tree. Something was hung upon its branches because the hearts could not sing. They were away from home. How could they sing? Do you know what was hung on the branches of such a tree? Have you guessed the tree? Psalm 137.

We have not gone far. Have you enjoyed the walk? Shall we go again some time?

Union Missionary Meeting of Mennonite Missionary Societies of Indiana, held at Topeka, Thursday, October 28, 1937

Prompted by a call coming from Mrs. Emil Sommer and Mrs. Mary Y. Burkhard, representatives of Mennonite missionary societies met at Shipshewana to arrange for an all day meeting sometime in the fall. The place decided on was Topeka, Ind., the date October 28. The Lord gave us a wonderful day. Not only was the weather all that could be desired, making it it possible for many to come from quite a distance, but the day's program was carried out in such a way that real blessing and inspiration emanated therefrom. A goodly number were in attendance from Goshen, Middlebury, Nappanee, Berne, Grabill, and other places surrounding Topeka, and faces which in the morning were strange, by evening were friendly and familiar.

The three sessions were opened by worship services, each developing some phase of the Master's words, "Launch out into the deep." First, there comes the challenge of Christ as He "calls us o'er the tumult, saying, Christian, follow Me." In following Him we hear His command to go and tell others. Our very influence must be yielded to the Master, so that others, seeing we have been with Jesus, will so be drawn to Him.

The greater part of the morning session was given to short reports on methods and projects that have been found helpful. Leaders of Junior and Intermediate societies, adult missionary socities, and Ladies' Aids exchanged practical and interesting suggestions. Several of the groups are studying missionary books in their meetings, others arrange their own programs, while still others spend the time at their meetings in sewing for missions or relief.

Mrs. P. A. Hauder of Goshen spoke briefly on "The Winona School of Missions." This school is conducted at Winona Lake for about a week each summer. Expenses are moderate and many societies have found it well worthwhile to send both girls and adults to this school.

The noon hour, during which a bounteous potluck dinner was served, was a time of happy fellowship and offered opportunity for social contacts, committee meetings, and viewing the splendid missionary exhibit which had been arranged by Miss Frieda Lehman of Berne. The Mennonite Book Concern also had a number of missionary books, Bibles and mottoes on display and for sale.

Following the afternoon worship period the election of officers was held. The personnel is: Mrs. Mary Y. Burkhard, Goshen, president; Mrs. Harry Yoder, Goshen (Silver Street) vice-president; Elva Schrock, Nappanee, corresponding secretary; Elma Sprunger, Berne, recording secretary, and Mrs. Earl Nufer, Topeka, treasurer.

Miss Mabel Sauder of Grabill, outgoing missionary to Africa, spoke on the theme, "Mothers and Missions," and showed how very closely the two are related. A mother's influence counts for much in the attitude her children will take toward missions, and many a mother will reap the reward along with her missionary son or daughter whom she has given to the Lord for His service. We have many examples in the Word of God of Mothers who reared their sons in the fear of the Lord and for His service.

Rev. and Mrs. Russel Schnell, missionaries on furlough, spoke very interestingly on their work in Belgian Congo. In the twenty-five years of Mennonite missions in Congo much has been done to bring the superstitious natives into the glorious freedom and liberty of the Gospel.—A black mammy presented herself for baptism but, being old and quite ignorant she was unable to answer all the questions that Mr. Schnell put to her, she was told to wait until later. She pleaded to be given another opportunity the next morning before the baptismal service. In the meantime she prayed, and when she was questioned the second time, her answers were all clear and correct. Would not our Lord say about her, "I have not found so great faith, no not in—America"?

Miss Irma Schneck of Pandora, Ohio, who for six and one-half years has represented the Sudan Interior Mission, gave a thrilling account of deliverance, protection and providence in Ethiopia, especially during wartime. Even as Paul, the great pioneer missionary, she has experienced at times that the rage of Christ's enemies have tended to the furtherance of the Gospel.

At the evening session Miss Inda Sprunger of Berne spoke on "Girls' Work." She told of how it is possible to arouse interest in missions by study books, contacts with missionaries, and in other ways. Her large class of girls has studied denominational missions in monthly meetings during the fall and winter months for some years.

Dr. Harold Bender of Goshen College gave the closing address, speaking on the Mennonites of Paraguay and Brazil. Mennonites during the last decade have repeated the history of four or five centuries in that they were persecuted and compelled to seek a new home if they would be true to their faith in God. Several thousand Mennonites left Russia and after suffering affliction and adversity finally landed in Paraguay and Brazil in South America, where freedom of conscience is granted them. Dr. Bender's address was a most interesting story interestingly told.

Mrs. Emil Sommers closed with a prayer of intercession and thanksgiving and the meeting adjourned until next year, when we hope to meet again, probably at Berne.—Recording Secretary.

Itinerary Bluffton College Gospel Team

The Bluffton College Gospel Team has announced its plans for a ten day Deputation Tour, extending from Nov. 20 to 30. The Mennonite Churches of Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota will be visited.

The following is the itinerary of the group: Nov. 20, Broadcast from WJBC, Bloomington, Ill., 6:30-6:45; Nov. 21, 10:00 a. m., Meadows, Ill., Rev. George Gundy, pastor; 2:30 p. m., Washington, Ill., Rev. Ben. Esch, pastor; 7:00 p. m., Normal, Ill., Rev. I. R. Detwiler, pastor; 8:30 p. m., Danvers, Ill., Rev. McNutt, pastor.

Nov. 22, afternoon, Orphanage at Flanagan and the Old People's Home at Meadows; evening, Peoria Mission, Rev. Sommers, pastor; Nov. 23, Donnelson, Iowa, Rev. Friesen, pastor; Nov. 24, Noble, Iowa, Rev. Delbert Welty, pastor; Nov. 25, Pulaski, Iowa, Rev. W. W. Miller, pastor; Nov. 26-28, vicinity of Mountain Lake, Minn.; Nov. 29, Sterling, Ill., Rev. A. C. Good, pastor.

The Men's Gospel Team of Bluffton College is in its fifth year of existence. It was organized when a group of students felt a special need for prayer and devotion and gathered in their rooms for this purpose. This spirit has been perpetuated year after year until it has become a strong spiritual force in the lives of the members, and has exerted an increasingly strong religious influence on the campus. The group hopes to convey some of the inspiration of these meetings through their deputation tours.

The group making the trip consists of President Albert E. Bohrer, of Normal, Ill.; and the quartet consisting of the following members: First Tenor, Donald Gundy, Meadows, Ill.; second tenor, Harleigh Rosenberger, Souderton, Pa.; baritone, Andrew Shelly, Pennsburg, Pa.; and base, Hiram Diller, Pandora, Ohio.

CORRESPONDENCE

KIKUNGSHAN, HONAN, CHINA, SEPT. 12, 1937

Below we give parts of a letter by the wives of our missionaries in China, avoiding repetition of items already reported by Rev. S. F. Panabecker in THE MENNNONITE of Nov. 2. The letter is addressed to the Foreign Mission Board.

On Sept. 1 and 7, letters again came urging all Americans to withdraw as soon as possible. Two days ago a telegram came urging everyone to make reservations on a special train going to Hongkong Sept. 20th, making connections with several President boats. Naturally all these communications are disturbing especially since the men are in the interior. II Timothy 1:7 as well as many other verses are of great comfort these days. We are conscious of a great volume of prayer going up for us by all you dear people in the homeland.

At the present we, mothers and children, are continuing to live on at Kikungshan, because the consul very emphaticallys says we should not return into the interior. We are especially affected because our field is in the danger zone. Also the School Board passed a decision that children belonging to non-cooperating missions must have at least one parent here, so that in case of evacuation they will be here to take care of their own children. Richard Pannabecker and Stanley Voth are both in high school so we feel it important to keep them there, the other children we have placed in school also to give them the advantage of mingling with other children. Tuition is quite high for non-cooperating missions—H. S., $220.00, grades, $180.00 a year. Miss Fast returned to Taming a few days ago with the hope that she can remain there for work. Miss Kuyf is remaining at Peitaiho because of consular advice.

You might be interested to know what other missions are doing. Many have cabled their Boards for advice. Some missions have decided to send their people whose furloughs are due next spring home at this time. One mission decided that those whose furloughs are due within two years should go home. Some missionaries have evaculated to Hongkong, others to Manila. However, many folks are beginning to feel that China is probably as safe as any place in the Far East. Many feel that if everyone were to go home now, it would be most difficult to open up work again in the future. Most of the men have returned to their fields in order to stay by their work.

Since the men will probably be very busy at their stations, we three women left on the mountain felt it wise to write you something about the present conditions. Since we receive no foreign mail, we are sending this by airmail. If you should write us, address us, House 16, Kikungshan, because folks here get foreign mail. Ours all goes via Tientsin and for some unknown reason is held up there. We receive neither letters nor magazines.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. S. F. Pannabecker
Mrs. Wm C. Voth
Mrs. C. L. Pannabecker

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, MT. LAKE, MINN.

Dear Editor and Readers:

We, as a church body and as partners in the great church of Jesus Christ, are indeed grateful for the many blessings God has bestowed upon us. Today we think especially of the time, when the Armistice was signed almost twenty years ago. The world cries for peace, and yet there is no peace! Rev. I. J. Dick, in his sermon this morning, pointed out the difference between the laying down of arms and real peace, and especially the peace of heart that comes to those that have accepted the Lord Jesus as their personal Savior and Redeemer.

Many visiting ministers have been with us this summer and we are very grateful to them and for the messages they brought. May their work not have been in vain.

During the summer months we have placed a new pipe organ into our church. This has necessitated several changes in the building, some of which have already been made and still others will have to be made before long.

August 31, Rev. and Mrs. I. J. Dick celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The congregation helped by serving meals to the guests and by giving a useful gift for the home of the honored couple. At the church services, Rev. P. R. Schroeder of Freeman, S. Dak., brother of the bride of twenty-five years, was in charge of the program. Other speakers were Rev. D. D. Harder and Rev. A. W. Friesen of Henderson, Nebr., a former schoolmate and close friend of Rev. Dick, who also spoke briefly. The three daughters of Rev. and Mrs. Dick, as well as the church choir, also took part in the program. In the evening a short program was rendered at their home.

Our church observed the Lord's Supper on October 10, and Harvest Festival on October 17.

Beginning with next Sunday, November 14, we shall have special services in our church. Rev. Henry Fast of Jenzen, Nebr., will deliver the messages to us.

On the evening of November 23 will be held our annual business meeting. May the proper actions be taken at the meeting, so that God may bless us in the future as he has done in the past.—H. M. Harder, Church Secr., and Corr.

IMMANUEL MENN. CHURCH, PRATUM, ORE.

On Sunday October 24, we were made to rejoice, when nine boys and twelve girls who have been in a training class since the first of the year, with Brother J. M. Franz as their instructor, were baptized and united with the church. One adult was welcomed by letter. May we as older Christians help these precious young people by prayer and example to grow into strong spiritual men and women.

Home coming and the Lord's supper was observed the following Sunday. A special treat on this occasion was the presence of two young Cheyenne men from Lame Deer, Mont. One of them is a member of the church there. Such occasions help us in a small measure to anticipate and visualize what a wonderful time it will be when all the redeemed from every land and nation shall meet with our blessed Savior who has made redemption possible and purchased enough salvation for every one. These young men are attending the Indian school at Chemawa just north of Salem.

Harvest thanksgiving was observed the first Sunday of November with a special thank offering for missions. Shall we not be truly grateful that we are still on the giving hand, not by any merits of our own, but by the infinite mercy and grace of God. He has blessed us with many spiritual as well as material blessings, not to consume them upon ourselves, but that we might bless the world. — Mrs. John L. Merryman.

WEST ZION CHURCH, MOUNDRIDGE, KAN.

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:

At this time the West Zion Church is actively engaged in a building program. When this is completed, we will have a much needed basement under the entire church, several extra classrooms on the main floor, and a new single main entrance in place of the two side entrances. It was hoped that this basement could be dedicated Thanksgiving day, but it will probably not be completed by that time. A minor improvement was made, when the north side of the church was shingled a few weeks ago. The members of the church did this work. For several Sundays during the summer, while the basement was being started, our morning services were conducted together with those of the Christian church, and later in the High School Auditorium.

The West Zion Church, with all the other churches of the town, held the Sunday evening meetings during the summer, as usual, in the park. These union outdoor meetings have been in progress for twenty-five years, and have always proved a source of inspiration and power.

At the annual Sunday school meeting held Nov. 7th, Mr. Warren White was elected superintendent.

From Nov. 28 to Dec. 3, a series of meetings is being planned. Dr. A. Warkentin of Bethel College will conduct the evening services, and Rev. Walter Goering of the Eden Mennonite church wil conduct the Bible study in the morning.

As we approach the close of the harvest season, and the annual Thanksgiving day is at hand, we are highly aware of the fact that we have been abundantly blessed this summer. Drought heat and grasshoppers, that have plagued us the last few summers, have vanished and our faith in the eternal goodness of God has been renewed. We thank Him at this time for the evil and the good he sends us. Both serve their purpose.—Correspondent.

—Mennonite churches of Allentown and Upper Milford Square, Penna., Rev. Howard G. Nyce, pastor.—The Ladies Mission Society of the Upper Milford church celebrated their 65th Anniversary on Sunday afternoon, October 24th. Mrs. P. J. Boehr was the speaker.—A number of the members of the Zionsville Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society, attended the Palm Schwenkfelder Ladies' Aid Anniversary on Sunday evening, November 7th, in the Palm Schwenkfelder church.—The Choir and the Pastor conducted a service in the Allentown State Hospital, on Sunday afternoon, November 21st.

—Rev. P. R. Aeschliman, Colfax, Wash., for many years traveling secretary of the Pacific District and virtual founder of that Conference, sends us a sermon sketch on "The Supreme Aim in Life," also a poem, entitled "Thanksgiving," by Mrs. Aeschliman. He recalls the time spent at the Halstead Mennonite Seminary, with the editor and others, almost 50 years ago, saying, "I have experienced much since those glorious days spent in charming Halstead. Those were the most beautiful days of my life. If there had only been a few hundred more, my work would have been easier and more effective. I believe our people expected too much of me poor "Schlucker." Have preached the Gspel in 18 or 19 states, and was often very tired and near a breakdown. But the dear Lord helped and I continued in good health."—We thank the good brother and sister for their contributions.

—The Eastern District Mennonite Young Peoples Union held a fall Rally on the afternoon of Nov. 7 at the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia. Dr. H. A. Fast, field secretary of the General Conference gave us a challenging message on "Youth on the March." He gave us numerous good points on practical Christian service and the possibilities of a United Mennonite Youth.—Miss Etta Davis from Lansdale, ordained to go to China, also gave a short message on "Leaving All and Following Him." As a whole we had a fine Rally. Ten societies were represented.—Norman A. Geissinger.

—Rev. P. H. Unruh, treasurer of the Emergency Relief Committee who sent some gifts to our flood stricken missions in China and India, has interesting letters from Missionaries P. A. Penner and Agnetha Fast. The latter is found in this paper, the other will soon follow.

—Mennonite Church, Langdon, N. D., Greetings to all the readers of THE MENNONITE. Rev. and Mrs. Duerksen came back the 5th of November from a five weeks trip to the south, refreshed and rested, ready to take up their work. We didn't have any services during their absence and are glad to have them back again.—Mrs. I. Veer, Corresp.

—Sunday to Wednesday evening, Nov. 14-17, Rev. A. H. Leamon of Chicago conducted special meetings and Bible Studies in the Flatland Mennonite Church, Quakertown. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander is pastor of this church.

—"The Herald," November Number of Rev. L. Hostetler's church paper, is just received. As usual it is full of good things. It reports that the Upland church had HOME-COMING DAY on Sunday, Nov. 14, with Dr. J. H. Langenwalter of Reedley speaking morning, afternoon and evening, also an organ recital by Prof. Joseph W. Clockey. During the week following Dr. Langenwalter gave a series of evangelistic, educational and inspirational Bible lectures on the theme, "How Jesus Dealt with People." In the evening he conducted a "Practical Bible Study in Psalms."—The church will observe "Universal Bible Day," Sunday, December 12.

—Bethel College is arranging to give a series of Lyceum programs in surrounding communities. The school is also giving radio programs over the Hutchinson, Kansas, station KWBG, Sundays at 3:15 to 3:45 p.m.

—Rev. G. S. Stoneback, acting minister of the Eighth Street Menn. Church, Goshen, Ind., is now among those pastors who is remembering us with his weekly bulletins. They picture an active, interesting congregation, busy in many phases of the Lord's work. Be sure to read Rev. Stoneback's Armistice Day Sermon, found on another page of this paper. We gratefully pass it on to our readers.

—Rev. Sam P. Preheim is closing out his furniture store at Freeman, S. D.—Freeman Courier.

—From "The Workers' Exchange, organ of the Pacific Conference, we glean that the mission work in that conference is growing rapidly, necessitating a recent special meeting of the Evangelization Committee. The Conference in its annual budget has obligated itself to give for the support of the Mission Church at Portland, $560.00; toward the salary of the pastor at Dallas $35.00 a month, and for the work at Newport and Deer Park, $300.00. The brethren at Dallas are looking forward to the erection of a new church. The church at Deer Park, which recently organized with 15 members, has received five more young people into membership by baptism. The congregation at Newport has unanimously elected Brother P. D. Unruh, one of its members, as leader and pastor, and he has accepted the call.—The new parsonage which the church at Colfax is erecting will soon be ready. This will be a great help for their pastor, Rev. Harley King, and family, who are now living about 15 miles from the church.

—"THE CHURCH VISITOR," is the title of a little sheet from the Mennonite Church at Inman, Kansas, Rev. J. E. Kaufman, pastor. The following is the Introduction under the heading: THE SPIRIT OF WORSHIP—This church lives by the love anl loyalty of its members and friends. Its privileges are open to to all who would walk with God. Its worship is designed to increase the hunger for righteousness. It strives to give rest for the weary, comfort for the troubled, hope for the downcast, and strength for correct living to all who come within its portals. Enter it not without a prayer for yourself, for him who ministers, and for those who worship with you. —The paper reports the dedication of the new English songbook, Treasure Songs, of the Western District Conference, which the church is using.—It announces also a week of Bible lectures by Dr. J. E. Hartzler, to be given at the Inman high school auditorium. The The church has a men's chorus, a mixed chorus, and a ladies' chorus.

—Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio.—The Women's Missionary Society of our church held its annual mission sale the Saturday before Thanksgiving, at the school building. All kinds of produce—dressed chickens, vegetables, fruits, pastries, home made candy, and fancy work were sold. There were also sold four large quilts and a quilted comforter, made by various organizations of the church. The entire proceeds of this sale will be given to missions. —The Men's Brotherhood of the church held its autumn meeting recently. One hundred men were present. An hour of good fellowship was enjoyed, after which a dinner was served prepared entirely by the men of the church. Music was furnished by the men's quartet of Bluffton College. Judge Pendleton of Findlay spoke on "The Relation of Religion to the Problems of Everyday Life.—Mrs. S. W. Steiner.

—In "The Grace Mennonite Church Messenger," Lansdale Pa., we find a pithy article on the subject, "Aim at Peace," by the pastor Olin Krehbiel. We shall bring it in The Mennonite soon. We also find this interesting paragraph: A RETREAT GROUND —There seems to be a good chance for the people of the east to have retreat grounds of their own. One man has offered the Conference a plot of raw land which could be turned over into such a camp. But much work will be needed to put it in shape. Do the young people want a retreat site and are they willing to pay the price in work—clearing the brush, and in funds, to put up cabins. As I see it, a place where young and old can meet God in His world and be built up in faith, is the greatest thing we can do for our people. What do you think?—Retreat Chairman.

—Between five and six hundred people visited the Germantown Mennonite Meeting House on Historical Day, part of the observance of the Constitutional Week. The hostesses were Mrs. W. S. Getz, Mrs. W. A. Temple and Miss Anna Bayley. The souvenir program carried a fine picture of the building, erected in 1770, replacing the earlier stone church. The original building was erected of logs in 1708. Mention was also made in the program of the fact that the first pastor, Rev. William Rittenhause, made the first paper made in the colonies.—Rev. and Mrs. Suderman, Oraibi, Ariz., on their recent tour through the eastern churches, visited the Germantown Meeting House, and spoke during the Sunday morning worship and participated in the Communion Service. The table, used as a Communion Table, is the table on which the first protest against slavery in America was signed. Rev. Howard T. Landis is the present pastor, being the fortieth pastor to serve the congregation since its organization over 250 years ago.—Walter H. Temple.

—Weekly News Letter No. 13, by Rev. P. R. Schroeder, Freeman, S. D., reports, among other things: Dr. G. B. Winrod, Wichita, Kansas, editor of "The Defender," will speak at Freeman College auditorium, Dec. 12-19. — The Union Thanksgiving service will be held at the North Church. Thursday, Nov. 25.—Some of the local students of Bethel College will be in the community during Thanksgiving vacation to bring Mission Band programs.—The pastor attended six meetings of the General Conference Executive Committee in Kansas, Oct. 18-22. While there he spoke to the Bethel College student body on "The Viewpoint Decides."—Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Kaufman of the Hoffnungsfeld Church, Moundridge, Kansas, were visiting in this neighborhood.

—Brother Benj. Ewert of Winnipeg, Manitoba, traveling minister among the Mennonites in Canada, sends us a page of "Notes," for which we are grateful. It would interest our readers to hear more often of his observations and experiences with the thousands of our brethren with whom he annually comes in contact.

The Advent of Our Savior

Tell out the joyful tidings,
Sent from the land above,
The voice of free salvation
And everlasting love!
Where sin is known, or sorrow,
The blissful news proclaim,
Till every land and nation
Shall hear the Savior's Name!

Repeat the Gospel story
Where death and darkness reign,
Beneath the shady banyan,
Or on the burning plain;
In earth's most desert places,
In every fragrant isle,
Where stand the frowning mountains,
And where the valleys smile.

Whisper the Words of Jesus
To all that are oppressed,
And welcome weary wanderers
Who come to Him for rest;
Tell of the matchless mercy
That burns within His heart,
And how His loving-kindness
Can heal the sorest smart.

Read out the heart of Jesus
To "whosoever will";
Tell how His love embraces
The worst of sinners still;
He calls the lost unto Him
From every land and shore,
And His shall be the Kingdom
And glory evermore!

—William Wileman.

EDITORIALS

A WORD ABOUT CORRESPONDENCE.—About a year ago we wrote to the churches of our General Conference, where it is assumed that there are subscribers of The Mennonite, begging for the appointment of a correspondent to this paper. And in due time the pastors or leaders of about ninety of our 140 or more churches graciously reported the name of some brother or sister who had either been elected at the annual meeting, or whom they considered competent to serve in the capacity of correspondent or "reporter." To these persons we then wrote a letter of encouragement and suggestions, and sent them self-addressed envelopes and cards, the latter to be used for jotting material. The result of these efforts shows some interesting facts.

Of the ninety churches that are supposed to have correspondents, 60 have been heard from, either through correspondence or jottings. That means that 30 churches, with persons intended to serve in the capacity of correspondent to this paper, have not been heard from this year. Two churches sent four and five correspondences respectively, a few three. These and others have also sent material for jottings. Generally speaking the correspondents of the churches to the east have been more faithful than those of the middle west and the north. Some pastors from Ohio east, two from the north, and two from the west have sent us their church bulletins or programs, with fresh material directly from the source, for the jottings columns, which we have appreciated very much, and no doubt our readers have also.

Would that our people might vision our Conference as a great, big family, with 31,000 members scattered over this broad land, and The Mennonite or Der Bundesbote as a large, sixteen-page family letter that makes its round among them once a week, recounting the interesting, worthwhile happenings in the different churches, and conference districts, with news from the mission fields, of the activities of the different conference boards: mission, publication, education, relief, peace, young people's work, etc., and bringing spiritual food in the form of sermons, doctrinal and devotional articles, Sunday school lesson sketches, and even some individual gossip, in the form of jottings! Then, if our correspondents would conscientiously supply this letter (paper) with short, spicy reports and all the families in the Conference take and read it, what an improvement that would mean! What an inspiration that would be! As real Christians do we not owe it to our papers to make what contribtuions we can for the good of all, and do we not owe it to our families to take and read the church paper just as much as the local newspaper or the daily.—There is still a month of 1937 left. If the churches not yet heard from still wish to say something, they may do so, but the contributions would have to be very brief.—To all those who have made contributions to The Mennonite as correspondents or in any other way, we here extend our heartfelt thanks.—To be continued.

HUMAN MACHINES.—You folks who are living and working on the farm, in God's out-of-doors, or are busy at some trade in small towns or villages, where the sunlight and fresh air have a chance to get at you, and where you can use your mind to think and plan and determine your actions and improve yourself in many ways: do you realize that yours is an enviable lot? Do you ever think of the hundreds of thousands, yes, millions, that are working in stuffy, poorly ventilated and often poorly lighted factories or industrial plants, sometimes called sweat-shops and, maybe, not improperly so? If you have never visited such a plant, where men and women, with intellects, desires, ambitions and feelings like yours are slowly stunned into mere machines, by doing the same thing over and over again, several thousand times each day, in a self-destroying, mind-dwarfing, sensibilities-deadening humdrum way: be sure to visit such a plant, the first time you can possibly get an opportunity to do so, or read the article by Gene Richard, one of the slaves at a large auto-factory, in this year's April number of "The Atlantic Monthly," and you will thank God that you still have control over yourself and are not machine controlled. And you will be more tolerant toward the factory worker and his demands, even to the extent of seeing some justice in his strikes. Here are a few extracts from the article mentioned:

"There is a shrill note. It is impersonal, commanding, and it expresses the entire power which orders the wheels set in motion. The conveyors begin to move immediately. Mysteriosuly the men are in their places and at work. A man near me grasps the two handles of the air wrench he holds all day long. This is the extent of his operation. He leans forward to each nut as the machine does its work. One nut—two nuts—one motor. It is not necessary for him to change his position. The conveyor brings the next motor to him. One position, one job, all day.

"Noise is deafening: a roar of machines and the groaning and moaning of hoists; the constant pssffft--pssffft of their hoses. One must shout to be heard. After a time the noise becomes part of what is natural and goes unheard.

"Truss works next to me . . . . We are putting fuel connections on the carburator. Between Truss and me we do three men's work. We cannot keep up. Luckily we know enough not to take it out on each other. We cuss and work in a fit of nervousness. The nut which is supposed to be previously tightened for me won't screw down, because it is a bit undersized. I try to tighten it with my fingers, but I keep slipping behind. I am losing my temper.—I finally discover how to put my wrench in the hole in such a way as to bite it into the soft brass and twist the lock nut down to where I can get a wrench on it—.

"Today I am thinking, as usual, depressed thoughts. I have heard these thoughts, some of them, expressed before, but now I am feeling them from dire reality. I have worked long hours this week. Each day I go to work in the dark and leave in the dark. I have not seen daylight since Sunday and it is Saturday afternoon. I feel strangely trivial and insignificant—. I realize how unimportant is personal worth here. When I come in the gate in the morning, I throw off my personality and assume a personality which expresses the institution of which I am a part. The only personality expressed here is the personality of the employer, through those authorized to represent him. There is no market for one's personal quality. Any expression of my own individual self beyond the scope of my work is in bad taste."—Alas, this is our machine age that makes machines out of rational human beings.

"THE GOOD OLD TIMES" said one of our aged members recently, "are not in the past. They are here and now." We agree. In the old days people had horses and buggies, mud roads, one-room school houses. They worked hard, saved their money, attended church. But not all did so. Many people were good, decent, and Christian; others were quarrelsome, dishonest, given to and drinking and sexual vices, and fearfully negligent of their duties towards God and the church. In some things people are worse now than they used to be; in others they are assuredly better. Anyhow, these times are our times and we might as well think of them as "good times." Our times are full of golden opportunities and they are good times in which to live.—Hostetler.

Grace Menn. Church, Lansdale, Pa.—Evangelistic meetings, Nov. 9, to 14, Rev. A. H. Leaman of Chicago, speaker. Then he goes to Flatland and Schwenksville churches. Conference Field Secretary, Rev. H. A. Fast, held three evening meetings in our church, Nov. 17 to 19.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. Richert, Sec.

Taming, Hopei Prov. N. China
October 7, 1937.

Following are extracts from a letter by Missionary Agnetha Fast:

"Thou are my hiding-place; thou wilt preserve me from trouble; Thou wilt compass me about with songs of deliverance. I will instruct thee in the way in which thou shalt go: I will counsel thee with mine eye upon thee." Psalm 32:7, 8.

Dear Brother Richert:

Through the radio and the daily press you will know something about the present conditions. But you will hear little of the situation of our mission and its missionaries, here in China, unless we write and unless the mail gets through. Mail has been much cut off. My home papers came through fairly well, but the church papers have come through very poorly. Three or four since the last of July, and this week five letters arrived from the homeland and it was a real treat as you can figure. Also two "Mennonites" came through.

Just while I am writing this a delegation of ten gentlemen called on me to request a donation as part share of this street's neighborhood for the repair of the wall, the high way leading from Taming to Hantan. I was very glad indeed to show my neighborliness and goodwill by giving my share. I trust it will also recompense in some measure for the disappointment the Chinese have received through the attitude the American government has taken in this present political upheaval. The Chinese do not admire us Americans for recalling all their nationals. The other countries have discouraged their citizens in a certain measure to vacate completely. Our own country has taken a cowardly attitude in the judgment not only of the more intelligent Chinese, but even the village folks are wondering about this attitude. Even they surmise that we must be in league with the Japanese. Dr. Alfred Tze expresses this feeling, in a radio address, Oct. 6, saying, "We have regretted that American missionaries have been called to evacuate China, they are our friends. This calling them home in effect again justifies our aggressor. The missionaries help to hold up the moral of our people and are needed for a time like this."

It is only too true that in a case like this, one cannot be neutral. Furthermore, we have a right to be in this country that has welcomed us and we have been called by God and sent by a Church body and not by the government. And in order to maintain a friendly spirit of brotherhood and at the same time "save the face" of our own country, if I might so call it, one feels very cowardly to retreat or desert. Then too, how much it seems to mean to the people even here in the interior to remain at our post of duty, I have realized more than once. People would get so frantic and panic-struck as soon as they heard that the missionaries were leaving. They almost "lost their heads." They have asked me time and again, how it was that I was not afraid. And this gives me a chance to witness for Christ, who gives that peace and calmness. And it was striking to notice the receptive responses to such a witness, and it could be plainly seen that they wished for such a possession.

Our missionary men have returned to Kikung to take some winterclothes up for their families and also some foodstuff, as their was already a shortage of food when I left. This leaves me alone on our mission, though the men hope to return, but with the north steadily pressing south toward our area, it might make it impossible for them to get back. However, I am not alone, for their are other missionaries still here at Taming, who have extended the most cordial invitation for me to come and stay with them. I have been praying for light just what step to take next. I have been thinking of going south to Kaichow and stay there a while. But between Kaichow in Honan and Taokou the robbers are usually pretty bad and will be more so, due to the extreme floods in that area.

Everything is still very peaceful up here. Just one airoplane has shown itself these three weeks that I have been in. The city had to build dugouts in every court. We also have five or six of these. Then we have been advised to put up our American flags, and so five of these are floating over our mission premises. However, these are not our hope and protection but the everlasting God, our Almighty Loving Father. It is unfortunate that our leaders are so frightened. It seems to me, if I were not here our mission premises would be completely deserted. The leaders are all so to say from other regions and as the Chinese is a man of the soil, he naturally choses at such a time to be among his own relatives on the old homeplace. There he is ready to lay down his life, if there is no other way. They need your prayers very much. The have not learned to be willing to lay down their lives for the cause of Christ and they have had so little of Christian experience.

October 9

Things are developing very fast now. Soldiers are pouring into the city from the south and from the north. The soldiers from the front are retrenching, while new ones are taking their place. I'm afraid before long our area will be in the midst of the battle, and the southern part will be completely razed to the ground. We do not hope for it, but they are building even concrete trenches around Kaichow, according to reports of some of our returned Hua Mei students. And around Tsing feng likewise trenches are being built. Around Taming so far there are none. But it is easily seen that they will put up a terrific fight along the Yellow R. It is well, that Ewerts are home on furlough and that the Kaichow folks are all gone, except of course our Christians and leaders. Much mission property is empty and I'm afraid it will become a problem how to keep out soldiers, for that would be very dangerous. I had hoped to go to Kaichow and I can still go by train. But the minute I begin to plan, I get so conscious-struck and so troubled, and only as I settle down, does peace enter my heart and the conviction that God wants me to stay. And I have very definite promises that all will be well with me if I will just trust Him, our—my Heavenly Father. And, if I at all believe in a God who lives, I must also believe that He has a mind and a plan, even for me. Further, I must believe that He has ears and can hear, and that He can speak and expects me to do what He wishes me to do. Every time I get restless, and I go to God in my prayers, there comes such a peace, such a wonderful realization of God's infinite care and love for me, that I am glad to remain and face it all. Perhaps He wants me to have a real message, a message that has been tested and tried and found workable, that I must stay on. And I am so glad I am not the only one of us foreigners here. And above all that I have God's presence with me. I only request your sympathetic prayers that I may really carry out God's message to these people. May my faith and trust not fail me. I know it won't, for if I try to obey God, would HE fail me, if I in this did not fail Him?

Remember your representatives daily before the throne of Grace, that we might prove worthy of our calling and be a bessing as long as God lends us breath. My best greetings to the other members of our Mission board.

Very sincerely yours,
Aganetha Fast.

—Invitation outside the Church near Tomley Hall, London: "Your lives are busy, useful, honest; but your faces are anxious and you are not what you want to be. There is within you another life, a buried life, which does not get free. When it really hears God's voice it will arise. This life will not be stirred by excitement. In the quiet of a place full of good memories, in the sound of fine music, in sympathy of fellow seekers, we may better wait God's call. It may be as you listen to the silence, to the music, or to the worship of others, God will speak, that the buried life will arise, and that you will have peace."

I was reelected correspondent." (Katie Schmitt).—We are glad for this, for this good sister is one of our faithful contributors on church happenings.

Christian Education

BOARD OF EDUCATION

The Board of Education of the General Conference held its annual meeting at Freeman, South Dakota. on October 26 and 27. All the members of the Board were present. Brother H. A. Fast, field secretary of the General Conference, also met with the group. During the two days session, the board enjoyed the hospitality of Freeman College and its faculty members, as well as that of local ministers and other Christian friends.

Among the most important items discussed were problems relating to the Sunday School Quarterly. The board is much gratified over the general acceptance of the new quarterly. For the first issue two thousand copies were printed. Now the number is over thirteen thousand. Dr. J. R. Thierstein, chairman of the Publication Board, and Dr. Warkentin, editor of the quarterly, met with the board. As a result of the general discussion, a committee consisting of the brethern D. J. Unruh, Lester Hostetler, and A. Warkentin were asked to prepare a complete curriculum of Bible instruction for our young people, and to also be responsible for preparing a plan for a young people's quarterly to be presented to the next General Conference. A few suggestions were made for the present quarterly, and the staff was reappointed for another year.

A discussion of the problems of a seminary and Bible school took much of the time of the board. The whole problem was reviewed, and in addition the board called in the brethern P. R. Schroeder and A. H. Claassen, representatives of the Northern District Conference, on the matter of a seminary. The whole problem is so large that the board felt it could not handle it alone and consequently drew up several resolutions which are to be presented to the Executive Committee for their counsel and in turn to be presented to the next General Conference. These resolutions embody a number of suggestions which the Executive Committee is asked to consider and to make an expression of its feeling in the matter.

In addition, the board is planning to send a questionnaire to a large number of ministers and other leaders in our churches to ascertain whether or not they favor the establishment of a seminary and Bible school, and requesting suggestions on this whole problem.

In fulfillment of its oversight over young people's work, the board asked Dr. Kaufman, B. Bargen, and D. D. Eitzen to constitute a committee to coordinate young people's work, with particular emphasis on retreats and the framing of a constitution. The young people's committee has carried on its greatest activity of late through the retreats and the young people's section of the Mennonite. The selection of a foreign mission project by the entire group of young people was commended.

The board has now in its possession the sum of one hunrded and eight dollars ($108.00) available as a student loan fund. Plans for the regulation of this fund are being completed.

Other items of interest follow:

The board regrets a drop in the number of schools offering teacher training courses . . . It seeks closer cooperation with the work of the district boards of education . . . . It has asked Brother H. A. Fast, field secretary, to keep in touch with Mennonite young people in seminaries and Bible schools . . . It has a model constitution to be presented to the next conference . . . It is working on the items to constitute "a church standard." . . . It plans to con-continue the Christian education section in the Mennonite . . . J. D. Unruh is to serve as editor of the next educational issue of the Mennonite and is also to represent the board at the next annual meeting of the Council of Church Boards of Education to be held in Chicago.

In order to carry on its work for the coming year, the board adopted a budget of twenty-five hundred dollars (2500.00). The two biggest items are those of the preparattion of the Sunday School Quarterly and the allowance for salary and travel for the field secretary. The board appreciates offerings that have been received from Sunday Schools and churches, and earnestly requests that these be continued.

Following the close of its session the board gave a public program in the Freeman College gymnasium which was well attended by the people of the community in which the work of the board was explained and inspirational addresses were given.

Ed. G. Kaufman, chairman,
A. S. Rosenberger, secretary.

— The Annual Mission Sale of the Buhler Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kansas, was held Wednesday evening, November 17, 1937, with the four women's missionary societies of the church sponsoring the event. Preceding the sale a fellowship supper was enjoyed by the members of the church and their guests. As a result of the sale $355 was collected for mission purposes. The four missionary societies which cooperated to make the sale a success are the Senior Society with Mrs. H. B. Buller as president, the Willing Workers, Mrs. N. B. Martens, president, the Mission Friends, Miss Susie Ratzlaff, president, and the Friendly Circle, Mrs. Reuben Unruh, president.—At the annual business meeting of the Buhler Mennonite Church which was held in October the Rev. J. M. Suderman was reelected pastor of the church.

— Mennonite Church, Summerfield, Ill., Nov. 17.—On Thanksgiving Day we had a Union service in our church and the student-pastor of the Evangelical and Reformed church brought the message.—The business meeting of the congregation is to be held on the afternoon of the second Thursday in December. We close our books for the year on December 1.—On Monday of each week I go to Eden Seminary at St. Louis to attend some special Bible courses arranged especially for the ministers of St. Louis and surrounding communities. There are about 75 ministers attending. At present we are studying the Prophecy of Jeremiah and the Gospel of John.—Elmer Basinger.

Next Session of General Conference Saskatoon, Sask., July 31 - Aug. 7, 1938

As is known the Canadian Conference had in 1935 invited the General Conference to meet in Canada. Time and place were later to be set. Then in July 1937, at its session the Canadian Conference chose Saskatoon, and recently the "first week in August" was suggested as the time. In response to further inquiry, the secretary of the General Conference received a letter, dated Nov. 20, in which this "first week" was clarified as meaning Sunday, July 31 to August 7.

It is practically impossible to name a time that would suit all of our churches from Texas to Canada and from Pennsylvania to California best, hence we must once in three years adjust ourselves as best we can both as to time and place.

Now since southern Saskatchewan had such a scant crop this year, the question rose in a few minds whether a suggestion of a change of location might not be forthcoming from there. However, instead the word came: "On our account no change of location need occur." (And it would be highly discourteous for the guests to try to tell the hosts to what place they should invite.) Hence, God willing, the next session of the General Conference, for the first time in 77 years, is to meet in Canada and at Saskatoon, Sask., beginning July 31, 1938.

Let us begin at once and continue through the conference session to focus all we do and leave undone on this one thought as our motto: "Guide Thou!" (Deut. 8:2; Ps. 25:5; 27:11; 43:3; Joh. 16:13; Rev. 7:17; etc.).

The Business Committee (E. J. Hirschler, Edgar Toevs, and J. C. Kaufman) planned to have a meeting on Nov. 26, at Bluffton, Ohio.

— The Right Way to Do.—Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, pastor of First Mennonite Church, Reedley, Calif., sends check, sufficient to cover advance subscription of The Mennonite and der Bundesbote, which brings him free copies of the Year Book and Bundesbote Kalender. Many thanks for the good example!

Christian Fellowship

I John 1:1-7; Revelation 21:1-7

TOPIC: Daily Fellowship with Christ and Christians

Introduction

John, the disciple whose fellowship with Christ was the most intimate of all, has left on record for us the most exalted sayings concerning fellowship with Christ and God. He would have us experience the fulness of joy in such fellowship, even as he had it with Christ.

Fellowship Experienced vs. 1-4

Fellowship implies knowledge, intimacy, conscious association. John testifies (v1) to what he has consciously heard and seen and touched—to that which was revealed, manifested in Christ, the eternal Word of life (v2), who is the true manifestation of God's life. John's witness has the weight of authority back of it (v3), that of constant association for three years. We, as Christians, too may know this fellowship in its reality with the Father and with Christ. Such intimacy fills the heart with joy to its fulness (v4). The closer the fellowship, the fuller will be the joy.

Conditions of Fellowship vs. 5-7

All are invited to this fellowship with Christ, however comparatively few enjoy it in truth. Too many decline to meet the conditions necessary. Before real fellowship is possible, we must become like God (v5). God is light, holy, the spiritual light, the sum of all holiness, righteousness and purity. There can be no fellowship between His holy light and the darkness of our sin. Fellowship with Christ and God is impossible so long as we "walk in darkness" (v6), but if we conform our lives with the revelation of God, "walk in the light," our fellowship is real (v7). The closer we keep to Him, the more easily we see our weaknesses and failings.

The humblest believing Christian who "walks in the light," may know the daily cleansing power of the atoning sacrifice for the sins of the world—may experience the constant cleansing from the guilt and the power of all sin (7b). This insures fellowship "one with another" and the conscious fellowship of eternal life.

Endlessness of Fellowship, Rev. 21:1-17

John assures us that this fellowship which begins here is experienced in its fulness only in the world to come, after "the first heaven and the first earth have passed away" (v1). The sea, in John's thought, the symbol of unrest, fears, loneliness and separation, shall be no more. All that hinders the full joy of fellowship shall be gone forever. The passing of the old order (v1) prepares for the coming in of the new (vs. 2-4). John sees, in his vision, the holy city "coming down from God out of heaven," not evolving independently of itself. Then God will dwell with His people—will tabernacle with them and be their God (v3). This is the thing of chiefest importance. His own will recognize Him. All former sorrow, trouble, and death will be forever past (v4). The new Jerusalem shall be all peace and bliss. All things shall be made new (v5). There will not be any veil before the Holy Place (Lev. 16:2). We shall quench our thirst at the fountain of life (v6). His free gift to us. God is the "beginning and the end" of all things and all He says is "true and faithful." He that overcometh the power of sin shall inherit all things (v7) and shall be God's son. To have the dignity of a son, and the fellowship of sonship with Him, will be an eternal reward which will be the source of endless joy—as great a reward as one can wish for.

Fellowship with God and Christ is our privilege here and hereafter.

Death and Eternal Life

Romans 6:23

Life is full of contrasts—heat and cold, bitter and sweet, joy and sorrow, life and death.

Nothing as sure as death. Nothing as glorious as eternal life. I Cor. 2:9: "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard," etc.

The Cause of Death:

Immediate causes—sickness, disease, accidents, old age.—Remote cause—Sin.

a. Physical death. Separation of soul and body.
Germ of death became active, when man sinned. Gen. 2:17.
Man was henceforth not permitted to eat of the tree of life and live.
Death of Adam and Eve not as sudden as that of Annanias and Sapphira
God had a plan of Salvation. Gen. 3:15.
With the exception of Enoch and Elijah, all have died so far.

b. Spiritual death. Separation of man from God.
Adam and Eve "hid themselves from the presence of the Lord." Gen. 3:8.
They had lost their innocence. They knew good and evil.
They lost their moral likeness of God.
They had been created in the image of God.
This image was now distorted.
They had been disobedient, had fallen away from God, had become sinners, died the spiritual death. Gen. 2:17.
This is the death that Scriptures often speak of.
Paul: "When we were dead in sin," etc.

Jesus: "Let the dead (spiritual) bury their dead." "This my son was dead and, behold, he lives."

Eternal death is the termination of spiritual death.

Matt. 25:41: "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels."

II Thess. 1:9: "Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord."

Punishment not limited. Wrong is always wrong. Time doesn't make wrong right.

Rev. 22:11: "He that is unjust let him be unjust still, he that is righteous let him be righteous still."

"The Gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ Our Lord." Rom. 5:21; II Cor. 9:15.

With this gift we have life. "In him was life."

He that hath the Son hath life, he that hath not the Son hath not life."

He is greater than sin. He forgives sins.

"Thy sins are forgiven thee."

Where sins are forgiven there is life.

John 11:25-26: "He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die."

As there is spiritual and eternal death, so there is spiritual and eternal life. He is the living one. He revealed Himself as such 40 days after the resurrection.

To John on Patmos He said: "I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last. I am He that liveth and was dead and behold I am alive for evermore.

He lives! Can he give life?

II Tim. 1:10: "He hath abolished death and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel," and Rom. 5:18.

If we are His and He is ours, we have this eternal life in spite of physical death.

Life continues with the Lord.

Paul says: "I desire to depart and be with Christ."

Jesus says to the thief: "Today, thou shalt be with me in paradise."

Life and death are something very real.

The spirit of God convicts of sin and death, or assures us of eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

The Supreme Aim in Life

P. R. Aeschliman

A very sad fact indeed, that the majority of the human family has no definite aim for this life here below, and much less for the lifte to come. A few thoughts taken from Philippians 3:7-12. 1. To win Christ. 2. To be found in Him. 3. To know Him and the Power of His Resurrection. 4. To obtain the Righteousness aproved of God. 5. To share in the sufferings and die like Jesus. 6. To share in the Resurrection of the Righteous.

Of all created beings the Human Being is the most favored of them all, that is, as far as we know and has been revealed to us! Created in the image of God, to walk with God, to labor for God, to call Him our heavenly Father and finally be led into our promised eternal Home by our blessed Savior, Jesus Christ. If we really believe that, will we still find time and reasons to murmur, to complain and be dissatisfied? More than that we are favored with and instructed in the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the real Bread of Life, to feed and nourish our soul and save it from a dying world into our eternal heavenly Home.

To no other created being, as far as we know and as has been revealed to us, has God our Heavenly Father manifested such great love, namely the Gift of His only begotten Son called the Supreme Gift. The Lord Jesus is not only so called but, in fact, He is the Supreme Gift of unspeakable worth. This greatest of all Gifts was made to an undeserving sinful, but still loved human Family. John 3:16.

The Apostle Paul, who was the writer of this beautiful letter, can be compared with the merchant man of the parable, who was seeking goodly pearls, and when he found the Real Pearl, the Pearl of Greatest Price, he did not hesitate and put it off for a more convenient day as so many do. Today is the day to act; tomorrow may be too late.

The Dear One, who so kindly invites, is also ready and willing to receive us into His divine heavenly Kingdom. No better time than on dear Christmas.

THE FULFILLMENT OF PROPHECY IN PALESTINE TODAY

Two years is a long time in the world in which we are now living. World-shaking events follow one another with incredible swiftness and with unpredictable surprises. And nowhere is this more true than in the political and religious center of the world, Palestine, which the Bible calls "the glory of all lands" (Ezek. 20:6, 15).

Two years ago George T. B. Davis wrote a remarkable series of articles for THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TIMES (later published as a book) on the fulfillment of prophecy in Palestine. Mr. Davis, known the world around for his evangelistic campaigns in distributing Testaments, and in his earlier work with Torrey and Chapman and Alexander in their evangelistic world tours, had been in Palestine four years earlier, in 1931, but when he revisited the land in 1935 he was astounded at the almost unbelievable developments that had taken place there in four short years.

But when, in the spring of 1937, he returned to Palestine for another visit of observation and study, he found so much that far transcends what he saw in 1935 that he has written for THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TIMES a new series of articles, reporting the latest facts and showing both the startling repitition of history and the glorious fulfillment of prophecy in the land of Abraham, David, Nehemiah and Immanuel.

This new series by Mr. Davis will begin in an October issue and continue until toward the end of the year. The articles will be illustrated by fresh and unique photographs brought from Palestine by Mr. Davis.

One of the early articles in this new and startling series on Palestine has as its title the question "Who Owns Palestine?" Mr. Davis discusses the question from every angle, showing the just claims of the British, the insistent claims of the Arabs, and then goes back to the indisputable authority of God's Word. This article is of the greatest value to Bible students, ministers, Sunday school teachers, as well as statesmen and international politicians. It gives an absorbingly interesting bird's eye view of Israel's career from the time of Abraham to that of Chaim Weizmann,—that is, from 1920 B. C. to 1937 A. D. In it we have God's own answer to the question, "Who owns Palestine?" There are, in Palestine today, about ten times as many Jews as returned from the Babylonian captivity under Ezra and Nehemiah. Today's figure is some 430,000 Jews. They did not have an easy time of it when they returned in the fifth century B. C.; they are not having an easy time of it in the twentieth century A. D. Artaxerxes had his problems with the Arabs and their friends long ago; Britain is having a critical time for the same reason today. All this is brought out by Mr. Davis, among many other striking parallels between the historic return of the Jews from Babylon and their return now.

Mr. Davis secured a full account, by an eyewitness, of the strikes and riots between the Arabs and the Jews during the entire time of the trouble. This first-hand story of a witness gives facts that it is impossible to secure in any other way.

Did you know that Palestine has now become one of the most important airway centers of the Near East? The airport is near Lydda, where Peter healed Aeneas. The runway for the plans to land and take off has been completed at a cost of nearly a million dollars. Mr. Davis talked with the engineer who built the runway, and with airplane officers, one of whom told him that they had had their breakfast that day at Athens, had cool drinks at Alexandria, their lunch at Lydda, and were expecting to have tea in Bagdad and supper at Bosrah. There will be more airplanes in and over that Land some day—perhaps in the near future; for God has promised: "As birds flying, so will the Lord of hosts defend Jerusalem; defending also he will deliver it; and passing over he will preserve it" (Isa. 31:5).

These are just a few of the extraordinary facts that will be discussed in this new series on Palestine and Prophecy.—The Sunday School Times.

Samaritan Work in Spain

by American Friends Service Committee, Philadelphia

Increasing food shortage in Catalonia reported by Alfred Jacob indicates the pressure for relief in Spain that will increase through the winter months.

"Here in Barcelona we are becoming very anxious about the prospects for the winter. There has been a tremendous influx of refugees from the North of Spain, and at the same time the sinking of so many foodships has made the supplies very short. I hardly know what the poorer people are living on. We feel it is of the utmost importance to maintain our canteen work and extend it if humanly possible, even though help is so desperately needed in other parts. We are still working on behalf of the children's colonies, which seem now to offer the only way of getting children out of Madrid; there are already a number supported in Catalonia by various foreign groups. Our big problem is to send in food to keep them all going."

On the other side of the war, in Asturias, Earl Smith and Dan West report, "unlimited need for child feeding and relief." After visiting war ruined villages to distribute clothing, Earl Smith writes:

"Perhaps a word would now be in order about our general feeling regarding the whole enterprise. I wish the people of North and South America would make an overwhelming offering of goodwill to the people of Spain. The first reason is the very need. Of course there is need; any war-torn country inevitably has among its victims thousands of innocent children. The fact that there is not more need is a tribute both to the Spanish authorities and to the fact that the Spanish people themselves care. But more is needed, for children, especially: blankets, warm clothing protective food, children's medical supplies. And we of North and South America also need. We need this attitude and experience of generous brotherliness, which partakes neither of partisanship nor of selfish aloofness. A great wave of loving-kindness on America's part will not win or lose the war for one side nor the other, but it may save some child from pneumonia and will surely mitigate the winter sufferings of a war-afflicted, good people." . . . .

"Within six weeks what will be needed? Everything we can get, especially warm clothes. With our own eyes we saw barefoot children and others poorly shod scratching sores on legs, arms, faces. In some villages at an elevation of about a mile, homes have been blown up, destroying bedding, clothing and furniture, and sometimes even domestic animals, as well as buildings. In one village every family needs help, even the mayor's name being on the list of families in dire need."

We are definitely planning now to help with clothing and blankets in two towns in the province of Asturias and two in that of Burgos. Also we hope especially to serve in badly afflicted towns and villages possibly out of reach of other social agencies.

MEDITATION

By Elizabeth Barr Haas

Father, I would be still; as still as the stillness of calm waters; as still as the hushed whisper of wind in tall grasses. I would be as still as the stars at midnight as still as the first hush of dawn on the mountain.

As one who listens with his physical ear for a sound that is sweeter than all others, I listen now with the ears of my heart, and softly a quiet peace comes stealing. It clothes me safely around; it bathes me in its tender, soothing waves. I am still at last, alone and very still. There is no world, no thought, no sound, nothing but infinite, boundless silence. My very heart stands still. It aches with a great ache. It cries aloud: "Where, oh, where is God.?"

Swiftly then the silence quivers with brilliant, piercing shafts of light. A voice within me trembles. Without words, without sound it speaks, and answers all my need. "My child," it says, and the silence rings with a thousand bells that echo to the very roots of my soul.

Slowly the stillness fades away. The sounds of the world return. I go back to my tasks strengthened and renewed, for in the secret place of the silence I have rested for one charmed moment against the shoulder of the Almighty.

"COOKIES, PLEASE"

As a sort of a Thanksgiving present, your editor for the Youth Section, received the following letter. The "cookies" referred to are the little epigramatic sayings which we used to run at the bottom of the pages, but which we have omitted for some weeks. Read this:

To the Keeper of the "Cookie Jar":

Doesn't he know that when children have received cookies—good cookies,—they have become spoiled and cry for more? When it isn't only that there are not cookies, but that the jar is missing, then they search: search low, search high, always hoping that somewhere must be the jar and when the jar is found —there may be some cookies left!

I'm hungry, hungry for "cookies." They tasted so good and now I can't even find the "jar." If it is broken, perhaps Santa will replace it with a fancier one. If the keeper of the jar is out of recipes, we, who tasted his "cookies," could supply him with new ones. — A just-a-wondering-one.

No, the jar is not missing. We know where it is,—but you know there is such a thing as over-eating, and we were afraid our readers might tire of what we knew were good recipes and good cookies, too. Over a long period of years we have been collecting these little sayings, and they have brought us many a moment of exhilarating thought, fine idealism, new resolves, and firmer determinations.

In fact, every morning we place them on the board in our school room, that "those who run may read." We have been amazed, at times, how far those little mottoes placed on the blackboard each morning carry their influence. The other day we ran across one of our former students, now a teacher who said that she too had begun to put those mottoes on the board every day. She too found that it did something to the atmosphere of the classroom, and did something both to her and to her children. She finds that the daily search for a little morsel for thought changes the entire character of her thinking for the day; gives purpose to early effort, and a tendency to meet the experiences of the day with cheerfulness, with optimism, with fineness of spirit.

But somehow, we felt perhaps running these little mottoes at the bottom of the page in this Youth Section did not mean so much to you readers as it always does to our students. Such letters as the above are encouraging, and we assure you if you like it we shall continue these little mottoes. In fact, we wish you would send us some that you find have been especially blessed to you. "The world is so full of a number of things," not so?

The whole incident reminds one of the importance of these crystals of human wisdom, often, we believe, absolutely God-inspired. After all, why should we go through the day thinking our own little thoughts, cramped by narrow environs and poor vocabulary (for thinking, you know is just silently talking to oneself), when we might just as well be turning over in our minds some of the finest thoughts which ever flowed through human mind. As we say these little things over and over in our minds, especially during the hours of the morning, we begin to take them for granted, and soon we would vouch they were true. (They are, of course, and always were; but we did not always affirm them as true for ourselves).

The punishment of a liar is that he eventually believes his own lies.

In this way we appropriate for ourselves the excrescence of goodness from the lives of others, and we tend, through thinking them, to become like them.

What do we mean by the Spirit of Christmas

Matt. 2:11; Luke 2:10-14

Young People's Topic for Dec. 19

Suggested hymns:

Christmas anthems.

Meditation:

M. Dec. 13. The Christmas spirit is the spirit of Christ. Phil 2:1-5
T. Dec. 14. The spirit of service. Matt. 20:25-29
W. Dec. 15. The spirit of adoration. Rev. 5:9-14
T. Dec. 16. The spirit of generosity. 2 Cor. 9:6-15
F. Dec. 17. The spirit of sympathy. Luke 10:30-37
S. Dec. 18. The spirit of peace. Rom. 14:19.

Problems

I. What is the Christmas Spirit? In which ways may we express our feeling of the Christmas Spirit?

" . . . . let us keep in mind that however our Christmas joy may be expressed and whatever sentiments the season may recall to our hearts, the single, golden purpose of Christmas is to remind us that when a babe was born in Bethlehem and laid in a manger there, God came to earth to live among men. The incarnation of God in Jesus Christ—here is the shining, holy fact from which Christmas derives all of its meaning and value. 'And the Word became flesh. and dwelt among us'—that is the spirit of Christmas. This brings the spirit of joy. "Christ came as light, joy, and peace, precisely what the world so greatly needed."

II. What great hopes center in the birth of Christ?

Among others we include, "peace on earth, salva- the atonement, human brotherhood, human progress, tion from sin, God's reconciliation with men through the new earth in which righteousness shall dwell."

III. Christmas brings the atmosphere of peace. Sometimes preaching peace seems futile and we may ask with Dr. Elliott, "Why preach peace when there is no peace." He, however, says that a continued and unified protest will bring results. It was a contniued protest against the Church that the Protestant form of worship became established.

The spirit of Christmas includes unselfishness. How would the promotion of this feeling carry on the work of peace? "The supreme cause of war is selfishness. "Whence come wars and fightings among you? Come they not hence, even of your lusts?" The fundamental national error is the error of believing that it is the right and duty of a nation to be selfish."

IV. The spirit of sympathy is the spirit which reminds us of our neighbors. In answer to the question "Who is my neighbor?" Jesus replied, "The man who needs you is your neighbor." "The service of the Good Samaritan is thorough. He aims at the entire restoration of the poor stranger. Thus charity is not content till it has thought out the real need of each case, and the best means of meeting it is so to prevent its recurrence."—Bishop C. G. Lang.

V. What is included in the spirit of generosity?

"Forced giving is not true giving at all. Consider the story of the Scotchman who intended to put a penny into the contribution box, but instead put in a gold guinea. In a flash he sought to retrieve the coin, but the collector would not allow it.

"Aweel, then,' said the Scotchman, "I'll get credit for a guinea up above."

"Na, na, mon," the collector answered, "Ye'd only get credit for the penny ye meant to gie."

"Purposed in his heart" implies "not only that the gift must be uncompelled, but made after deliberation, and intelligently."

Nativity Pictures

Intermediate C. E. Topic, Dec. 19, 1937

For Daily Study

Dec. 13. The birth of a King. Micah 5:1, 2
Dec. 14. Wisest of rulers. Isa. 11:1-9
Dec. 15. The word made flesh. John 1:1-14
Dec. 16. Son of David, Son of God. Rom. 1:1-7
Dec. 17. Divine condescension. Phil. 2:5-11
Dec. 18. His mission fulfilled. John 17:1-5
Dec. 19. TOPIC—Great pictures of the Nativity. Luke 2:8-18

Preparation

Since pictures of the Nativity are the topic of this meeting it will be quite essential that you secure at least some copies of the great paintings of the incidents in connection with the birth of Christ. There are many picture companies that can provide you with copies at a small expense. Perry Pictures Co., Malden, Mass., is one. However, it will arouse more interest among your members if each of them will try to collect as many copies as possible. Covers of magazines and Scripture calendars will furnish some. These should be brought at least a week in advance, so that the program can be built around what you have.

Mount them so that they are uniform in size. Prepare a frame to show them, which is open in the back so that the pictures can be changed as the meeting progresses. Place it on a stand or on the wall where it can be seen by all, with a spotlight focused on it.

Preprayer Circle

Read the picture of Christ presented in Isa. 11:1-5. Make your prayer circle a time of thanksgiving for God's gift to us in Christ Jesus.

Worship Service

"Joy to the world," (instrumental)
Read Luke 2:1-7
Picture: Mary, Joseph and the Babe
Hymn: "O, Come All Ye Faithful"
Picture: Adoration of the Shepherds
Hymn: "The First Noel"
Read, Matt. 2:1, 2; 9b-11
Picture: The Wise Men
Hymn: "We Three Kings of Orient Are"
Offering: "All things are Thine; no gift have we,
Lord of all gifts, to offer Thee;
And hence with grateful hearts today,
Thine own before Thy feet we lay."

Picture Interpretation

Pictures gain in value and interest for us as we are led to see all that the artist had in mind as he produced the masterpiece. So the contributions that your pictures will make to this meeting will depend much on their presentation. Give those who are to make the interpretations a set of questions well in advance for their guidance.

Getting the most out of a Picture

1. What seems to be the most important part of the picture?
2. List everything else you see in the picture.
3. Notice the arrangement. What has the artist done to make you see the most important part first?
4. Try to explain why the artist has put each element into the picture and what it adds.
5. Do you discover any new ideas different from the usual ideas of the Christmas story? What Christian beliefs are expressed?
6. What emotion do you experience as you look at the picture?

Closing Moments

Sing "O Little Town of Bethlehem," reading the last stanza silently as a closing prayer as it is being played very softly.

Benediction verse: Psa. 19:14

JUNIOR CORNER

TO THE LEADER

This year it is as though Thanksgiving were reaching across the short span of two days to clasp hands with Advent saying in a grateful voice, "Because of thee, I am." What a source of gratefulness was given to us in the coming of the Savior! There greatefulness comes when into our life has come the answer of a vital need: a need which we, ourselves, could never have supplied; for the answer of which we can never attain worthiness. There gratefulness, too, springs from a right perspective of ourselves and of our God. It is only he that comes to the manger in the spirit that the shepherds came, that will find in the Babe of Bethlehem the Christ of the cross. Only he who is ready to receive Him, will receive Him. The Advent season offers such an opportunity to lead the Junior to see his need of a Savior and to create a longing for Him. God will always answer the seeking heart.

The suggestion for the Christmas Program is this:

Perhaps there are some shut-ins in your church or in the neighborhood to whom an afternoon with the children would mean much joy and from whom the children could learn the blessed lesson of contentment, of quiet waiting upon God, of true happiness that comes when the Savior is truly King. If your group is a large one, it would be better to divide them into groups of about eight, supplying each group with a chaperon. Each group prepares the same program but goes to a different home or hopsital room or room where an aged one is.

Gather your juniors in the afternoon at the usual place of meeting for a brief period of preparation in song and prayer:

1. Call to quietness by leader's prayer
2. Sing verse three of "O Little Town of Bethlehem"
3. Check up on program which is to be presented
4. Sentence prayers by juniors asking blessings on their mission of carrying Christmas joy to lonely ones.

A skeleton outline for the program to be brought to the shut-ins could be:

1. Sing "Silent Night" outside of the home or the room of the shut-in before entering.
2. More Christmas songs after entering the room. In these the visited one should be asked to join
3. Prayer by leader
4. The Christmas story
5. Special music
6. Poem
7. Message from the shut-in
8. Presentation to the shut-in of a small token of love. (After you have selected your shut-ins, let the juniors, themselves suggest what little time they would like to give).
9. Special music
10. Closing prayer
11. A Christmas hymn in unison.

TO THE JUNIOR

Advent Eve

It was Saturday afternoon. David and his playmate, Robert who lived next door, were panting as they reached the top of the sloping street each pulling a sled. It was a wonderful street for coasting. Snow had covered it during the night. Not many cars came to interrupt the constant stream of coasters. It was what people called "a quiet street." But not this afternoon. Every girl and boy from blocks around seemed to be here. Their shouts and laughter resounded far in the cold, crispness of the day.

David and Robert had again reached the bottom. It never took long until one was there but the climb up, that was hard. David started almost on a run. Flinging his free arm in circuit, he turned and shouted back:

"Oh! I can hardly wait until tomorrow!"

"What's tomorrow?" Robert asked.

"Tomorrow? Why tomorrow is the First of Advent, of course," David answered surprised at such ignorance.

"What's that?"

David stood still as though struck with horror. He stared back at Robert and stammered:

"Why,-why, you don't mean to say that you don't know what Advent is? And the first Advent at that!"

By this time, Robert had caught up with David. The two started once more up the hill. David was just beginning to inform the playmate as to his definition of Advent when, from the top of the hill a voice called down:

"Hurry, David!"

David did hurry when he saw his mother beckoning him and his little brother, Jimmie clapping his hands. A sudden excitement due to the anticipation of that which would happen soon, pulsated through his being.

It was five o'clock when the three reached their home. Dusk had come early. Heavy clouds had gathered for some time and had completely veiled the bright sunshine of the afternoon. The little group entered by the kitchen way for the snow shoes must be carefully taken off. House cleaning had just been finished that afternoon. Even the kitchen floor shone with its new coat of wax.

"O mother!" exclaimed David, "I'm so excited!"

"Me, too," chimed in Jimmie, struggling with the stubborn boot which had not grown with the size of this years shoe.

Supper was already spread on the small kitchen table. It was a simple meal of rye bread, cheese and fruit. There would be hot milk for the boys to drink. David and Jimmie saw nothing of this. They stood quiet for a moment. All that they saw was the small lighted candle in the center of the table. It seemed a silent reminder of the wonderful things that were to come for this was Advent Eve.

Father was not yet at home. There was time for baths. On other days, baths seemed a nuisance but, tonight, no objection was offered. On this night, as very few other nights of the year, the boys were allowed to come to the table in bathrobes and bedroom slippers, for, immediately after supper, they would have to retire. Even to this early bedtime hour, the boys did not object.

Supper finished and prayers said, the boys scampered up the steps, running a race to see who could reach the bed first. Of course, David won, being so much the older.

"Who-oo!" they both said as in one breath. They were still shivering between the cold sheets when their mother reached the bed. She tucked the big, white featherbed, just covered freshly, close around the boys, kissed them on the forehead and with a last "Goodnight," she closed the door softly and hurried down the stairs.

There was much to do tonight. She loved this night. It seemed almost as wonderful as the night before Chirstmas. As she washed up the supper dishes, she thought with satisfaction of the jar of lovely Christmas cookies. Other jars were still waiting to be filled. There would be plenty of Pfeffernuesse this year, she knew, and the large fruit cake had turned out beyond her hopes. Her heart became so full of gratefulness, so full of love, so full of expectation.

"Oh God," she breathed softly as she put away the last clean cup, "come to me in a special way tonight, tomorrow, and all through the Advent season. Come to our little home. We love Thee."

She knew in her heart that God had heard her prayer. She knew that He would come in a special way.

Upstairs, in the north closet, was a large box.—(I will tell you about it next week).

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE CHURCH, INMAN, KAN.

Greetings! We of the Inman Mennonite Church and Sunday School are gratefully happy to report that God is blessing the Church in its work and growth.

Rev. and Mrs. John E. Kaufman have indeed meant a great deal to us and to the community, as a whole, since their arrival. We have come to realize more and more that God can grow trees, lift mountains, and fill space with singing stars, but He needs our help in the salvation of a lost world, and in comforting the broken heart. We praise God for the spirit of humility and gracious kindliness that is manifested in the lives of Rev. and Mrs. Kaufman as they labor in our midst. During this time, 39 members have been added to the Church.

There is a splendid attendance at the Church Services and the Spirit is present. The Young Peoples' C. E. and special meetings are also well attended. At all the meetings of the church our pastor is always ready to take part. We all need to work and pray that our Church will not be touched by the spirit of indifference so manifest in the world today.

We have recently closed a wonderful and inspiring week with Dr. J. E. Hartzler of Hartford, Conn.

The Ladies' Aid and the Friendship Circle are planning a Mission sale the third of December. The Friendship Circle will serve a banquet to the County Young People's Christian Endeavor, which is planning to meet with us the 27th of Nov.—Correspondent.

MT. LAKE, MINN. NOV. 16, 1937.

Greetings from the Bethel Church:

The summer of 1937 has passed and we are in the midst of an Indian Summer. We had a few days of severe cold, accompanied with a few inches of snow.

Our blessings this year are many even materially. Our fields with a few exceptions have yielded manifold. To show our appreciation to the giver of all good and perfect gifts, we observed our Harvest Festival on October 17, with services both in the German and English language.

Rev. John Bartel spoke in the German language and urged us to remember the giver of our blessings. In summing up some of our blessings, he also mentioned that the parsonage built in the summer of 1936 was nearly paid for, and we had expected to do so only at the end of 3 years. Rev. Lindscheid from Butterfield was our guest speaker, and spoke on the prayer of the Pharisee and sinner. We felt at the end of his sermon like praying, "Lord teach us to pray," for we saw ourselves very much like the Pharisee. He pointed out how materialistic and selfish our prayers are. We think too much of material gifts and forget the giver of them.

We were favored in having the Young Peoples' Retreat here this summer, with Rev. Arnold Schultz and Rev. H. A. Fast as leaders. Such occasions were great privileges to our youth and, no doubt, the good seed sown has already started to bear fruit. Rev. Underwood a converted Atheist spoke to us on several occasions and brought fine messages to an audience that increased in number each following night.

Our Sunday school enrollment is about 525. Since our church is centrally located in our village, we have an opportunity to open our doors to very many children and grown up people whose parents have no local church here. It is a great opportunity to do our home mission work.

From Missionary Aganetha Fast we hear that, in spite of warnings of the American Consul in China, she is pressing toward her own Mission in Taming. Missionaries fled on account of the danger of the war and flood, but she is trying to get back to where she feels God wants her to be. The bridges have all been washed away and it is most dangerous to travel as she does, but she has complete faith in the Lord and so she can go on.

Mrs. J. J. Vogt, a sister of Dr. P. R. Schroeder was relieved from her bed of long suffering. She was a charter member of the Bethel Mission Society, and her passing has been felt by those of us who have been privileged to work with her.

Best wishes to all readers for a truly thanks-full Thanksgiving.—Correspondent.

MENNONITE CHURCH, HALSTEAD, KAN.

Dear Readers of the Mennonite: The Halstead church was fortunate in getting Dr. J. E. Hartzler for a series of meetings, Nov. 8 to 11 inclusive. He lectured to a well filled house and the last evening the church was taxed to its capacity. Visitors from surrounding communities and cities were present. His messages were very interesting and he gave his listeners much food for thought. May they prove a blessing to all and may they be an incentive to better living. The themes of Dr. Hartzler's discourses were: Building Men for God, Psalm 8; The Jericho Way of Life, Luke 10:27; The Trinity of Christian Experience, Mt. 5:39-41; The Supremacy of Christianity, I John 5:4.

An unusual occasion was a dinner recently given by our congregation in honor of our organists, Miss Alma P. Ruth and William P. Schowalter. Having long felt fortunate in having two such dependable and accomplished musicians in our church service, it was felt fitting to give public expression to this sentiment in this manner. As a mark of their appreciation the church presented Mr. Schowalter with a portable radio and Miss Ruth with a brocaded chair.

The After-dinner prgram, presided over by chairman C. F. Haury, consisted of music and readings. Miss Irma Haury delivered the presentation speech and Miss Alma Ruth responded with an acknowledgment. Rev. Wedel in a short talk paid tribute to the history of musical instruments in sacred service and to appreciation of the work rendered by the honored guests. A sextette of girls sang a closing number.

Mr. Schowalter has served the Halstead church since 1908, previously having served as church organist at Friedelsheim, Germany, at the age of eleven. Full duties as organist at the Halstead church were assumed by Miss Ruth in 1915, having previously served the Garden church for ten years in a similar capacity prior to 1915.

The depressing note of the evening was that Mr. Schowalter could not be present in person, being at the bedside of his mother who is very ill. Miss Ruth considered the event somewhat in the nature of a farewell, having expressed her desire to retire from the onerous duties of full-time service.

FAMILY CHRONICLE

MARRIAGES

STUCKY-SIEMENS.—On Nov. 7, by Rev. T. A. van der Smissen at the Hebron Church near Buhler, Kansas, Marion J. Stucky and Welma Vadena Siemens were married. The wedding sermon was preached by Rev. J. C. Kaufman.—Text, Ps. 127:1.

DEATHS

CAROLYN MARY BOORSE, daughter of Horace G. and Ada, nee Landis, Boorse, was born July 28th, 1917. As a child she attended Bethany Mennonite Sunday School and Church, and on April 21st, 1933, she was baptized on confession of faith in Jesus Christ as her personal Savior and admitted into Bethany Church, where she has been a faithful member ever since.

In church, Sunday school, public school and at the Hospital where she started a nurses' training course, she was always a ready and willing worker.

Her thorough work in school and the esteem in which she was held by her teachers and classmates is reflected in the fact that in 1931 she was awarded the American Legion Award in recognition of high quality of courage, character, service and champion scholarship, upon the recommendation of her teachers and classmates.

Her earthly activities came to an end on Thursday afternoon, October 28th, bringing her age to 20 years and 3 months. Text used by her pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Phil. 4:8, 13. Interment, Quakertown Union Cemetery.

BROTHER RUDOLPH PENNER was born Sept. 7, 1857, at Wickerau, West Prussia. His parents were Henry Penner and Marie Penner, nee Suckau. He attended school in the city of Elbing. In 1872, in April, he was baptized there, on the confession of his faith, by Elder Carl Harder, and became a member of the Mennonite church. In the year 1900 he was married to Anna Sommer, and three years later they came to America, arriving here at Beatrice in October. They became members of our church in 1906. They lived on a farm until his health failed several years ago. During the last months he was steadily losing strength, but was really sick only a few days. He passed away Friday night, October 22, trusting in Christ Jesus, our Redeemer.

His age was 80 years, 1 month, 15 days. The family, his wife, four sons, four daughters-in-law, six grandchildren, and one brother are grieved over their loss of a dear husband, father, grandfather, and brother. But they say, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord which made heaven and earth.

He leadeth me, O blessed thought,
O words with heavenly comfort fraught!
Whate'r I do, where'r I be,
Still 'tis God's hand that leadeth me,
By His own hand He leadeth me.

—W. R. Penner.

—The Mennonite Choral Society of Berne, Ind., 150 strong, with Prof. R. A. Lantz of Bluffton College as director, will sing Haendel's Messiah at the Berne Mennonite Church, Sunday, December 5. The Bluffton College orchestra, under direction of Prof. Sidney Hauenstein will accompany the chorus and soloists. The soloists are: Miss Mildred Habegger of Berne, soprano; Mrs. Virgil Moser, Dayton, O., alto, Freeman Burkhalter, Berne, tenor; Wm. D. Venard, Chicago, bass.—Berne Witness.

—"Bluffton College announces that the course on marriage, started four years ago, will be offered again this year. It is one of the most popular with men and women students. This Ohio school pioneered with the idea. College students normally are intent on high achievements. What success is more important than matrimonial success? To make good in that career implies social and psychological qualities which will aid in all undertakings."—From a Toledo, Ohio, paper.

—War in the Holy Land, of the ambush and guerilla kind, is reported to be general, and may lead to serious conflicts. Native Arabs are resisting the encroachment of Jews and the partition of the land as proposed by England, holder of the Mandate. The work of Arab terrorists is so cleverly planned that the British appear to be helpless in stopping it.

—The Annual Corporation Meeting of Bethel College was held, as usual, the Friday after Thanksgivnig Day, Nov. 26. After a real spell of winter for about a week, beautiful, sunshiny weather had set in again and favored a very large attendance at this meeting. An 88 page, mimeographed book, containing reports of the various officers of the College and volumes of other interesting information, was passed out among the delegates and visitors. It showed that the school year 1936-37 had been the most successful in many respects, up until then. One of the resolutions passed gives the Administration and the Board authority to proceed with the erection of the first story of the contemplated Memorial Hall, to bring relief to crowded conditions. Messrs. Gerhard Zerger, R. A. Goerz, Lucas Horsch were reelected as directors; Mr. Nelson Krehbiel, formerly an alternate for Rev. P. A. Wedel, Aberdeen, Idaho, was elected a regular director. Rev. Arnold Funk is a new member.

—Japan's war in China bids fair to be long-drawn-out. With the steady advance of the Japanese deep into North China, the Chinese have now begun guerilla warfare which threatens to cut off the Japanese supply lines. Guerilla war is also reported in Manchuckuo. Germany and Italy are supporting Japan, while England France and Russia are said to be supplying munitions to the Chinese. — World Events.

—From the Mountain Lake Observer.—"A large crowd attended the lecture on astronomy, The Heavens are Telling," by Prof. P. H. Richert of the Bethel College faculty. President E. G. Kaufman also spoke at the meeting."—Th same paper reports an item with an idea that should be passed along. It is this: "Open House at the Mountain Lake public schools on Armistice Day. 150 parents and friends visited the class rooms that day. No special preparations were made, it was just as representative a day as possible." Ordinarily, on such visiting days, the schools and the children have a good deal of the artificial about them. Here they appeared in their every day condition.

Entirely too very few of our younger people are given representation as delegates in our conferences, excepting the Eastern. Have you at any time seen a lay delegate under thirty in the General Conference? Why even the younger ministers seem to be afraid to make themselves heard to any extent.

Advent Meditations

Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, thy king cometh unto thee: he is just and has salvation. . . Zech. 9:9.—Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God. . . Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert the highway for your God. Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low: and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain. And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together; for the mouth of the Lord has spoken it. O thou that bringest good tidings to Zion, get thee up on a high mountain . . . lift up thy voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God! Behold the Lord will come with strong hand . . . He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs in his arms, and carry them in his bosom. . ." Is. 40:1 ff.

Christmas Once More Coming

Joseph Taylor Britan

Once more the season rolls around
When joy, for Christian men, is found
In thinking of the Saviour's birth
Which angel choirs announced to earth.

It is the joy of sins forgiven,
Of man's condition felt in Heaven,
Of God's free gift of life and peace,
Of promised days when war shall cease.

When all the world shall brothers be,
And victory our Lord shall see
O'er Satan, sin, and anguished pain,
And death no more shall ruthless reign.

So shout aloud, ye angel choir!
And mortal man to Heaven aspire!
For Life eternal Thou dost bring
O Christ our Prophet, Priest, and King.

Once more a Christmas Day draws near,
And Christian hearts are filled with cheer.
We wish that all your coming days
May crowded be with joy and praise.

EDITORIALS

MORE ABOUT CORRESPONDENCE.—Correspondents and "reporters" are the editor's first aids. Man is by nature curious. He wants news, and we Mennonites are no exception. We want news, but as Christians we want news of a worthwhile, uplifting type. We want them for information, for comparison, for encouragement, for inspiration, not for sensation. In our churches and conferences we are endeavoring to build up our spiritual life. And in so doing we have our successes and our failures, our victories and our defeats, our mountain-top experiences and our drops into the slough of desponse. And as good brothers and sisters of our dear Savior Jesus Christ, what could be more helpful, more comforting, more inspiring than to relate to one another our experiences, at least as far as there is meaning to them. "Geteiltes Leid ist halbes Leid und geteilte Freude ist doppelte Freude." (Shared sorrow (or grief) is half sorrow; shared joy is double joy). This sharing of our experiences we of the General Conference can do through our church papers, and this is really the underlying purpose of our correspondence.

Now for a few suggestions: What should correspondence consist of? In answer to this question we quote suggestions from our readers: Happenings in the congregation, personal glimpses, reports of a helpful nature, NOT of trivial things. We do not say that we fully agree with all these hints, but they are food for thought. Briefly we would say that any worthwhile occurence that has not merely local interest, anything that is spiritually uplifting, intellectually generative, economically sound can be made fit material, yes, even the common place when shot thru with a moral thread. How long should correspondences be? Again we quote some readers: They should have short "newsy" items, not long discourses, should be in condensed form, readers are apt to skip long ones. Correspondents should not wait 6-7-8-9 months or almost a year, and then tell all that happened during that period, unless it is molded into a narrative of real interest. Better write every two or three months and make it short and telling. We are happy to note that quite a number of our correspondents are taking the "shorter route." Again we thank all who have taken the time and trouble to help enrich this section of THE MENNONITE.—To be continued.

FOLLOWING FASHIONS?—God has made all things good and beautiful. But unfortunately, sinful man has marred and disfigured many of them, most of all himself. Man, the crown of creation, with the stamp of the Divine upon him, is constantly being tempted by Dame Fashion to do things that make for show, for conspicuity, for effect. In order that poor mortals may the more strongly attract and the more readily entice, she invents for them outlandishly looking designs of apparel, styles of hair-dressing and headgear, rather than to help make us more handsome, more becoming in our natural state. There can be no wrong in a man dressing and grooming himself so as to bring out his manly qualities to full advantage. There can be no sin in a woman embellishing her form and features so as to make herself becomingly attractive. Becomingness (German: Schicklichkeit) is the word that expresses the idea that should guide us Christians in matters of this kind, not blind imitation of fashion which is decreed by people in Paris or New York that probably have few if any scruples of conscience as to the harm that may result from some of their inventions.—Even among the college students who as a rule are rather easy going in this respect, the boys tell the girls they hate the heavy use of the lipstick, and colored fingernails; while the girls put their stamp of disapproval on the boys' use of hair oil and the wearing of the stub mustache. Our Sunday Visitor, a national Catholic paper recently brought the following item from a young Catholic maiden, "No doubt all of us are now aware of the fact that skirts are 'coming shorter' this season. But however shamelessly the stylists are proposing that we expose our limbs, we women do not have to accept their fashions. For the past few years we have been sensible in dress, and still now, with frocks being shown so beautifully high at the neck and with decent sleeves, we can dress becomingly and yet modestly, if only we refuse to wear our skirts shorter than ten or at least eleven inches from the floor, which length is necessary to cover the knees properly when sitting. May I suggest that you start among your feminine readers a campaign for skirts of decent length? After all its up to us women to reject any fashion trend which proves so absurd as this one of short skirts.—Yours for Sensible Skirt Length."

Would that this fine young woman had included in her criticism the outlandishly shaped and awkwardly worn headgear now the fashion among women! If Catholic maidens can take such a decisive stand against short skirts, and so vigorously urge a campaign against them, our Mennonite sisters and their daughters, whose forebears have been the apostles of "the simple life," cannot afford to do less. Real Christians cannot be slaves to Dame Fashion and servants of God at the same time.

Fashionability is a kind of elevted vulgarity.— G. D.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. Richert, Sec.

Champa, C. P., India, October 12, 1937

Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kansas

My dear good Brother,—Greetings from the land we love and whose people we try to serve and bring to the feet of th Lord Jesus Christ.

I have lying before me four of your letters dated as follows: Aug. 25th, Sept. 6th, Sept. 8th, Sept. 14th, 1937. The remittances in these letters are as follows: $300.00; $64.00; $292.00; $127.47. Total $783.47. These drafts have been cashed and the proceeds have been sent to the Missionary of the Mauhadih Mission station. Enclosed, please find two signed receipts for these remittances. In the name of the Mission and especially in the name of the flood sufferers in Mauhadih, I wish to thank you and all the dear willing donors for this most needed and hence much appreciated help in this time of need. You are right in what you say about our churches, viz. "Ich freue mich, dass unsere Gemeinden eingreifen, wenn sie auf die Beduerfnisse aufmerksam gemacht werden." I have found this to be true in my experiences during the last 37 years, with perhaps one exception, and this is the scarcity of workers request. But, I can realize that this is not altogether the fault of the churches. When there are none to say: "Here am I, send me," then how can the churches meet our request for workers? Just now this request is most pressing. Some of us may drop out within a short time and if new workers are to be sent out, just at the time when we DO drop out, then it means that the Mission must, because of the inexperience of the new workers suffer greatly. Not only should new workers have 2 full years of uninterrupted language study, but also be hitched in the harness with an older more experienced missionary for a year or so. Hence, the pressing need, though at the moment we are, perhaps, able to hold down the work. Please make this a matter of prayer and if possible send us a qualified couple from your church. Doors for evangelism are wide open. My sister, her husband and Dr. Ella Bauman are in camp and they write that they have hardly enough time to eat and sleep; people eager to listen crowding around the house in which they are temporarily living. This is indeed good, though no new news.

Martha's and my health, though good is not what it was some years ago. More frequently now than before, we have to complain about this, that or something else. Then too, we get tired much sooner now than say, 20 years ago. I suppose that this is natural.

Martha has her flock of kiddies to take care of and my big family of lepers. The Quins that she recently took in from the Leper Home are doing well. But small children always cause trouble and much worry. Fortunately we have a good matron, one of our own girls. Lepers we have as always 600 with about thirty waiting for admission. Because of room and because the Mission to Lepers does not want me to have more than this number, we cannot take in the waiting ones. One leper is near death. I called on him this morning, as I always do. He is ready to become a Christian, but I fear that his desire is not of the right kind. He was sent here by a proud Brahman, but told that he should not become a Christian. This he has consistently refused to do for the last three or four years. Now, at the point of death, he listens. I will need wisdom to deal with this case.

Our other workers are well and busy. The Moyers will leave for home in December, Miss Lehman will leave somewhat earlier, and will be married in Alexandria. In her we have lost a fine nurse. I wonder who will take her place. For our 600 lepers, I have not yet found a nurse. I have done my best to secure one and have not succeeded, so I can leave the work with a good conscience, even if we do not get a nurse.

The weather is just now turning into the best time of the year. The nights cool and the days not too hot. Gardens doing well. Fields of rice wonderful to behold and everything just wonderfully beautiful and fruitful. For all this we thank the Lord. If now all the nations were at peace and quiet, we would be perfectly happy. But, we believe that before many months are over, the world will be aflame and the U.S. will again be included. May God have pity on this prodigal world of his.

With most cordial Greetings to you, your good wife and children, the church and all those that love the Lord and His appearing, we are,

Yours for India and its people,
P. A. and Martha Penner.

HOME MISSIONS

We have just received the intelligence that Brother Jacob H. Janzen and family have again arrived in Waterloo, Ont. The congregation there issued an earnest call for them to come back, and it was regarded as a call from the Lord. Both have almost recovered from their recent illness. He writes that in Vancouver much was started and much remains undone. His son-in-law, Brother Jacob B. Wiens, is his successor and now has charge of the services and of the Girls' Home. The group in the city is active. It has lately organized a good Young People's Society, and the rooms where the services were held were crowded. It was reported to the Board that there was a good church building and a parsonage aside of it, large enough for a Girls' Home, that could be bought for $3000 from the United Church of Canada. The Board asked our member S. S. Baumgartner, who lives in Portland, Oregon, and is a man who can judge buildings, to go to Vancouver and investigate the property. He pronounced the price reasonable and recommended to buy, which was done, and we have already possession of the property. This saves rent, and the people have already sent the Board and the contributors a letter of thanks. Home Missions can be greatly extended, if the people send us the means. We are truly grateful to the contributors. In the rural districts in British Columbia there is great need of meeting houses and also preachers.

Quite a number are acquainted with the fact that Brother and Sister Edmund Miller of South Dakota are now in charge of the Portland Mission. Sister Niswander who worked there for a number of years was released and called to the First Mennonite Church in Philadelphia, where she is now. For more than two years the Board was endeavoring to secure a suitable person for this place. Some may inquire, why a congregation with over three hundred members needs a person to do mission work in the community? The congregation is a twin sister to the Secretary of the Board who was born at the time when his father organized the First Mennonite Church of Philadelphia. At that time and for some years later, the members lived in the vicinity of the church. The church was located in a new part of the city which was not yet built up, and where the people could fetch their milk at a nearby farm. It was an "Uptown church." Now it is a "Downtown church," and for miles everything is built up. As the city moved out, there came a class of people that were unchurched and our people moved out into the suburbs, so not many members lived in the vicinity. Parents and children are not spiritually cared for and need just such a person to visit them and endeavor to get them to Sunday school and church service, which cannot be done by the pastor. Here is a mission field as needy as can be found in any large city. The pastor said we must do this to preserve the congregation. Hence the appointment of Sister Niswander.

Brother David Toews, our Canadian Board member, is in the Saskatoon hospital and had to submit to a serious operation. We are praying earnestly that he may soon be restored to health and strength again, for we need him very badly in the Home Mission work in Canada. On account of his indisposition the Board could not have a meeting.

A WORD FROM MISSIONARIES MOYER

Having finished more than eight years of service during this term in India, and physically feeling somewhat as a radio or an auto battery must feel when they are run down and their power is gone, we feel the need of recharging in the love of Christian America, and in the northern temperate zone. Thanks to the Mission Board, we are permitted to make plans for sailing this year end. We hope to arrive in New York the latter part of January. So no more mail from the U. S. will reach us here. Our temporary address in the U. S. will be c-o David Habegger, Berne, Ind.

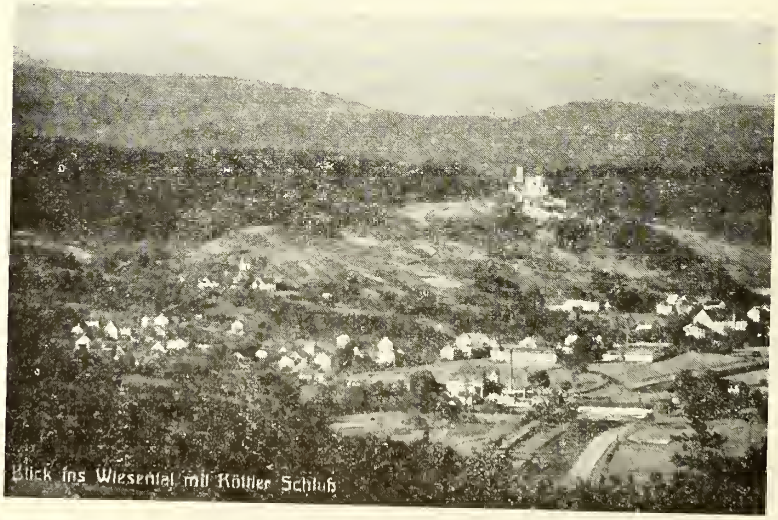
Christmas Reverie

Sister Frieda Kaufman

Part I.

Christmas was drawing near. Twilight with its purple shadows had fallen early from the December sky and had enveloped the small village which nestled at the foot of a wooded hill. The forester returning from his daily round of duties had paused long before he descended to the valley: the sky was so clear, the view of the Alps especially enchanting with the glow of sunset on eternal snows. Each peak reflected the beauty of passing day. With one last lingering look across the ruins of the great medieval castle which crowned the vantage point whereon he stood, he began his descent. Snow spread like a soft white blanket over the lower hills with their vineyards and over the valley dotted with picturesque villages. The snowfall had not been heavy enough to cover completely the dark branches of the spruce, pines and firs which outnumbered the beeches and oaks. Soon the entire horizon about him appeared like a gigantic dark wreath of Christmas green, completely encircling the valley: darkness deepened and lighted windows welcomed him as he neared the village.

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him shall not perish, but have eternal life. John 3:16.



For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Isa. 9:6.

The houses of Haagen were set close on both sides of its one street, for there was not much room between the foot of the hill and the swift flowing mountain stream which divided the valley. There were no shades to hide the view into the various homes which the forester passed, as he hastened to his own fireside. In one of these a large hanging lamp shed its soft light over a family seated about a long table. A huge tiled stove reaching from floor to ceiling spread its cozy warmth around them. The father was seated at one end of the table puffing away at a beautifully carved pipe, reading a paper. Between him and the mother who was knitting sat a little girl with a slate before her. She was laboriously shaping the letters for tomorrow's lesson. Every little while she would cast an inquiring look across the table to her two older sisters who were reading or to the two maids at the lower end of the table who were busy with the family mending. There seemed to be an air of expectancy in the room, the older ones, smiling occasionally at one another as they admonished the little one to do her best with her pencil. Everyone could see that she was trying to be not only obedient but also unusually industrious. Was not this the eve of December 6, St. Nicholas day? Surely the good saint would not forget to make his annual visit to all good girls and boys.

Suddenly from the distance there came the sound of tinkling bells and muffled shouts. Every one looked up. "That must be St. Nicholas." Mother opened her arms and held the little frightened girl close. The older "wiser" sisters peered through the windows announcing the advent of the saint. There was no doubt about his coming—now he was at the postman's house; now he was leaving the tinner's home. They called to the younger sister to come and see the nearing procession. She shrank back instead. Nothing on earth would have induced her to do so. When the sounds of approaching footsteps could be plainly heard ascending the steps and entering the vestibule of the home, even the shelter of mother's arms seemed insufficient. She fled to her father. There, encircled by his strong arms she faced St. Nicholas. Everyone in the room had arisen to greet him. He came accompanied by a most beautiful angel who was clad in white robes. A golden crown encircled the head around which a veil was closely drawn in oriental fashion. St. Nicholas carried a large pack on his back and a lantern in his hand. The angel had a rod with a golden star, a bell and also a writing tablet. Back of the two crowded a group of wide-eyed youngsters and various neighbors.

St. Nicholas greeted the family with a deep voice and then centered his interest entirely on the youngest member. Had she been obedient during th past year?

What about Sunday school attendance? The memorizing of scripture verses? How about prayers? To make sure that all was well St. Nicholas wanted to hear the memorized prayers repeated in a clear loud voice. Though the "Clear loud voice" was toned down markedly with fear and trembling, he and the angel seemed to be satisfied. Finally the assembled family was asked whether is considered the small girl worthy of a gift on Christmas eve. The affirmative answer (all past transgressions forgiven) was duly recorded by the angel to be transmitted to the Christchild in heaven. St. Nicholas became friendly, shook hands all around and bid goodbye. The angel who had not spoken a word led the way to the door. As St. Nicholas passed through the door he turned, opened his pack and sent several handfuls of nuts into the room as a parting greeting. Woe to the child which would reach out greedy hands before he was safely gone! St. Nicholas Eve etiquette demanded that one should stand with folded hands till the good saint was safely on his way. If sufficiently courageous one could join the procession at the next home and pick up nuts and sweets which had a way of dropping from the pack occasionally.

St. Nicholas eve ushered in the pre-Christmas season for the children of the Wiesen valley. Hearts and minds were now filled with joyous expectation. St. Nicholas was out of the way, a good report had reached heaven, surely the Christchild would not fail them. Parents and teachers centered the children's thoughts around Bethlehem, the holy nativity, shepherds, wise men, the gift of God. If one was very good, mother would let eager little hands stir the eggs and sugar with the huge wooden spoon for the Christmas cookies and press the dough into the carved wooden forms. What breathtaking excitement to see the dough loosen safely and reveal baskets of flowers, birds, animals and Christmas designs! The cookies had to lie on a board all night to "set" and were baked the following morning. The most perfect ones would find an honored place on the Christmas tree. Father and the older sisters covered nuts with goldleaf and gently put a tack into the end onto which a string could be attached to fasten it to the tree. Mother looked over the colored glass balls and various fancy candy forms and decorations which appeared on the Christmas tree year after year. The teachers gave the children verses to memorize as a greeting to parents on Christmas eve and the best specimens of writing and of other accomplishments were prepared as a tribute for the same occasion. The Christmas program of the school was held well in advance of Christmas and was a most joyous event with the gift of a sweet roll from the baker for every child in the village. What a treasured treat that was!

And at last December 24th, the long awaited day, arrived. Early in the afternoon all preparations were finished, and everyone dressed in his Sunday best. The long row of newly polished shoes disappeared from the hall as each pair was claimed by its owner. Mother emerged from the "best" room where she had spent most of the day and carefully locked the door behind her. Was ever an afternoon so long?

Dusk began to fall, and every bell in every church joined in the evening chorus of joy which resounded across the land. Those Christmas bells! Softly, gently the Silent Night, Holy Night" came from heaven to bless the earth through the Christchild. "Christkindli" —so say the Swiss. The children sat with the servants in the large kitchen, the little one was afraid to speak loud for fear of disturbing the Christchild which was about the house somewhere in the quiet hush of the evening. At last! At last there came the tinkle of a bell, the door of the "best" room opened and revealed the Christmas tree ablaze with candle light. All entered the room quietly and reverently for father stood beside the tree with the Bible in his hand. He read the Christmas story as recorded by St. Luke and then a prayer. Mother led the singing with her clear, sweet voice, always the same songs "Every year the Christchild comes to earth again," "Silent Night, Holy Night," "O thou joyous, Oh thou blessed Christmas time." During the singing, the Christmas tree and the Bethlehem story, portrayed beneath it, were viewed with joy and admiration. There was a wooden fence which father had made surrounding a green pasture. At one side sheep with curly wool backs stood on very stiff wooden legs. The shepherds were there and of course Joseph and Mary and the wise men all dressed in gilt edged crimson and blue robes. There was a small manger with the Holy Babe, but best of all an angel with wide spread wings, an exquisitely molded figure of wax. He was fastened to a branch of the tree by means of a rubber band and so much larger than all the rest of the group beneath him he always threatened annihilation to them. But nothing serious ever happened, except that a candle was placed too near him at one time and he began to melt.

Next came the presents and, of course, the parents' first. The children recited their verses. These had been carefully copied on fancy stationary with lace edges, the front page decorated with picture "cut outs" and inscribed with the parents name and words of love and gratitude. There were also gifts for the parents, simple tributes of love, often fearfully and wonderfully made. A bookmark, a pen wiper, suspenders or slippers in needlepoint for father; a knitted washcloth, a piece of crochet work or a fine piece of needle work for mother. Then the parents led their family to the table where each member of the household found a plate filled with cookies, sweets, a chocolate bar, an apple, an orange and a gift. The Christchild had passed through the house!

What a happy joyous evening! The older girls brought their Swiss zithers. New music had been practised secretly for this occasion at the home of friends. This was now presented to the assembled household. Then came folk songs. Everyone sang. Father was prevailed upon to yodle and yodle he did. He had a trick of aiding his natural talents along this line by inserting his little finger between his teeth, producing wonderful effects. One of the hired men played the mouth harp and he had a very fine one; the other one had an accordion. It was a wheezy old accordion, very asthmatic, but seeing it was Christmas eve it did its best. There was hot punch and raisin bread. There were baked apples and cookies baked with almonds instead of flour. There was candle light. There was the pungent odor of spruce. Christmas was grand! And when mother who had led the singing all evening put aside the usual reserve, took the mouth harp and showed her skill in "double playing" the whole family cheered. It was "gemuetlich," very "gemuetlich" to celebrate Christmas in this way.

And when one looked outside, the neighbors' windows revealed lighted Christmas trees and similar scenes of family celebrations. The night was dark. The stars were radiant, twinkling like lights on a giant Christmas tree. Soon serenading groups would pass along the village streets, the snow crunching beneath their feet. Joy everywhere! The Christchild had come to earth in the Holy, Silent Night.

CALLS FOR NATIONAL PENITENCE ON LYNCHINGS

Federal Council Issues Call to Prayer

New York, November 26—In view of the fact that anti-lynching legislation is now before the Nation, the Department of Race Relations of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America has today issued a call to prayer for all church people suggesting the use of the following prayer of penitence for this national sin:

"O God, how dare we lift our eyes to Thee, for we are guilty as a nation of tolerating the practice of vile mob murder of men.

If our prayers go unanswered before Thy throne, call to our remembrance Thine ancient rebuke to Thy people, that Thou wouldst not hear their prayers while their hands were filled with blood.

Cleanse our hearts, we beseech Thee, of the dark sin of race prejudice; forgive us for our unbelief in the sacredness of human personality which Thou has made in Thine own image; take away from us the uncontrolled passion of our hearts, and that violence of spirit which would make beasts of us all.

Make us to know the awful judgment of God which rests upon those having any personal part in lynching, and upon every community and state, and upon our people as a whole until we shall repent and turn away from this taking of human life. O God, forgive us! Create in us a clean heart and renew a right spirit within us. Help us, we beseech Thee, to bring forth fruits worthy of repentance that we may be redeemed from the foul clutches of this national evil, and may order all our ways in the fear and love of God. Amen."

PUBLICATION

SUBSCRIBERS AND SUBSCRIPTIONS

This is the time of the year when the managers of our church papers are obliged to remind our subscribers to pay up for another year. While there are some that do this voluntarily, the majority expect this reminder, which is all right. Handling subscribers is interesting and also saddening. The majority pay willingly and quite promptly, especially where the minister does his part. Some let the matter go until a second or third reminder is sent them or until they have the money to pay. A third class keep on taking the paper, one, two, three, etc., years, until the bill looks too large to pay, and then they order the paper dropped, without settling for the arrears. This is very disheartening to our managers and our Board, and one wonders how such Christians, Mennonites at that, square such practices up with their God. There is a fourth class, just like this last one, only they neither order the paper stopped, nor can anything move them to make some sort of a reply. That is still worse. Another but very small class are those who want the paper, and need it, but have not the means to pay. In genuine cases of this kind, charity is exercised, and ways are found to send the paper as a gift. Would it be asking too much of our ministers, to remind their members, at least once a year, of their obligations to the church papers, so that cases like the above might decrease?

As our annual congregational meetings are now in order, may we again remind our members, especially the leaders, of the Conference resolution, that efforts be made to place one of our church papers into every Mennonite home? The church can greatly help in this by appointing some missionary minded member to solicit subscriptions. Samples may be had for the asking, also some instructions. The churches have generally asked brethern to do this. We wonder if it would not be well to try some good sisters once?

NEW SUBSCRIBERS

New subscribers may have either the BUNDESBOTE or THE MENNONITE for $1.00 for the first year. Those that subscribe NOW will be credited until January, 1939. If they desire a calendar to go with the paper, they should add fifteen cents for the BUNDESBOTE CALENDAR or 20 cents for the YEAR BOOK. Orders for the German publications should be sent to C. E. KREHBIEL, NEWTON, KANSAS, for the English to MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, BERNE, INDIANA.—J. R. Thierstein, Chairman Board of Publication.

—Two important Resolutions before Congress.—Soon a resolution proposed by Mr. Ludlow may be taken up by the Congress. It proposes an amendment which would require a national referendum before this country went to war abroad. It is said that already more than half of our people are backing the amendment. Recently Senator Capper of Kansas has introduced a similar, though more definite resolution.

Sunday School Lesson

THE BIRTH OF JESUS

Luke 2:8-20

Topic: God's Gift of a Savior

Introduction

This lesson tells of the proclamation to men of the greatest event in all history, the most wonderful news of all time. Long before this time, the Messiah's coming had been prophecied, even the place of his birth (Micah 5:2). Now He has come. The world did not know it. Heaven knew it and there was great joy among the angels.

The Shepherds and the Angels vs. 8-14

The coming of the Lord and Savior, the King, was first made known to humble shepherds, men of faith with a deep appreciation of spiritual truth, who were faithfully attending to their humble duties in the field (v8). To these God sent His messenger with the glorious news (v9), and the glorious light, the ancient Shekinah, the token of the Lord's presence, shone round about them. Naturally they were startled, especially so with the angel speaking to them, and were afraid. Probably they, with all pious Jews, had been expecting the coming of "the consolation of Israel," but not in this manner.

The first words of the angel were words of comfort and assurance to allay all fears (vs. 10, 11). Great joy, not fear, shall fill their hearts. The message dispelled all fear—a message of salvation, not of judgment. The long-awaited Messiah, the Savior, Christ, the Lord, is born this very day in Bethlehem. This is the heart of the gospel, the best news this world ever heard. As Savior, He would save men from sin—as Lord, He would exercise authority over the lives of men. To the shepherds was given the honor of being the first ones to go and see this babe—the Savior amid such strange surroundings (v12). The host of angels proclaimed the great news in a wonderful song of praise (vs. 13, 14). Suddenly they were heard in the first great "Hallelujah Chorus." The angels' song looked Godward in grateful praise and manward in proclaiming the peace of God in Christ among men when good-will shall sway hearts.

The Shepherds and the Babe vs. 15, 16

The shepherds were wise men. They believed the message brought to them and were eager to see this Savior for themselves. We should be as ready to believe any fact or truth that God makes known to us. The shepherds came quickly (v16) and easily found the babe and its parents. They became the first apostles of his "Infant Fame." They sought the blessing and found it. Today many will not come, even under much urging and persuasion.

The Shepherds Witness for the King vs. 17-20

The shepherds, after seeing the Christ Child, could not refrain from telling others (v17). They did not fully understand the import of the message revealed to them by the angels, yet they could not be silent. They felt sure a great event had taken place. Wonder filled the mind and heart of all who heard (v18). Mary, the mother, pondered over all these things—the revelations given to her (Luke 1:26-55; 2:46, 55), and now the angel message at the child's birth. She did not know all they meant.

The shepherds returned to their flocks, but not in silence. They took up the old work but in a new spirit, "glorifying and praising God." They told the things they had heard and seen. The experiences of that night could never be forgotten. At Christ's manger-cradle, the great missionary work of Christianity began. The shepherds were the first ones to tell the good news.

Gems for Thought

We know that we have a Savior, Jesus Christ, the Lord.

Each Christmas should help us to understand a little better the greatness of the gift of the Christ Child.

Christ, the Lord, began in a stable the life He was to end upon the Cross.

Characteristic of Heathen Worship

as revealed in Belshazar's Feast (Dan. 5)
And Their Christian Counterparts

G. A. Linscheid

1. Carnal: The king made a great feast.
   Feasting and lasciviousness connected with worship is characteristic of heathendom.
   They that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth. John 4:24.
2. Blatant: To a thousand of his lords.
   The grandiose in worship is characteristic of heathendom.
   Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them. Matt. 18:20.
3. Compulsive: The king's invitation is equal to a command.
   Compulsory participation in worship is characteristic of heathendom.
   Whosoever will let him take, etc., Rev. 22:17.
4. Nocturnal: That night—Dan. 5:30.
   Use of the night for worship is characteristic of heathendom.
   Ye are all children of the light . . . of the day. I Thess. 5:5.
5. Ornate: He called for the vessels of gold.
   Ornamentation and form in worship is characteristic of heathendom.

O, worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness. Psa. 96.9.

6. Appropriative: Drank from vessels from the temple at Jerusalem.
   Appropriating from other religions anything that will serve their own purpose (The Lord's day—house—Word—name, etc.,) is characteristic of heathendom.
   None other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved. Acts 4:12.
7. Intoxication: They drank wine.
   Intoxication physical as well as mental by dancing, drumming, singing so as to have a mesmeric effect (or any other means to bring about that effect) is characteristic of heathen worship.
   The spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets. I Cor. 14, 32.
8. Irrational: They praised the gods of gold and of silver.
   Worshipping, or using in the worship, objects of a lower order as a means of approach to the higher is characteristic of heathendom.
   And I fell at his feet to worship him. And he said unto me, See thou do it not: . . . worship God. Rev. 19:10.
9. Fear: His thoughts troubled him.
   Worship to placate a wrathful being enjoins constant fear, which is characteristic of heathendom.
   Perfect love casteth out fear. I John 4:18.
10. Occultism: He called for the soothsayers.
   Seeking contact with the spiritworld and aid from it is characteristic of heathen worship.
   Should not a people seek unto their God? Isa. 8:19.
11. Confusion: They could not read the writing.
   Unreasonable worship leading to perplexity and confusion is characteristic of heathendom.
   Ye worship ye know not what: we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews. John 4:22.
12. Insincerity: Thou hast not humbled thine heart, though thou knewest all this.
   Clinging to the false in spite of better light is characteristic of heathen worship.
   I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision. Acts 26:19.
13. Doom: Mene, mene, tekel.
   Hopelessness is characteristic of heathen worship.
   It doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know . . . . we shall be like him. I John 3:2.

—The Fortune Magazine recently conducted a survey among 4,500 in the major geographical areas of America, on the question, Is religion in America gaining or losing ground? The answers were significant. Religion gaining, 24.8%; religion losing, 49.9%, religion standing still, 17.2%; religion has no influence, 1.3%; do not know, 6.8%.

Bethel College, Kansas

The fiftieth Corporation meeting of Bethel College was held on Friday, November 26, in which preparatory steps were taken for a proper celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the corner stone laying of the school. In his opening address, the President of the Board, Rev. P. K. Regier, spoke on laying up abiding treasures according to Matt. 6:20. He said that people are willing to sacrifice and carry on for Bethel College in order to give young people an opportunity to gather such treasures.

Four years ago some goals were set which should be reached by the time of the Golden Jubilee of the Corner-stone laying. Among these was the one to have Bethel free from indebtedness by October 12, 1938. Strenuous efforts have been made during the depression years, and our friends have succeeded in paying $55,000 on the debt, but $86,000 still remain to be paid.

There has also been a very decided increase in students attending the college. Third stories have been added to three rooming houses for students, and a fourth building, the Goessel Home, has been added. Again we are in dire need for more room. We would not like to add any more buildings until the debt is paid, but we cannot grow unless we build. What are we to do?

Could we build the basement of the Memorial Hall, providing it with a temporary roof which would not be very expensive, the boarding hall would be moved into that and the old dining hall could be rebuilt into another dormitory for men. The first story of the new structure could be erected for 25 to 30 thousand dollars and would relieve the pressure for a few years.

Many have helped in a self-sacrificing fashion, but many others take the attitude, "Let George do it." At any rate, what are we to do if "George" is not willing to contribute in proportion to his income? Does that relieve me of my own responsibility even though my financial strength is very much smaller?

In order really to celebrate a happy jubilee, this must be preceded by sacrifices. And, possibly the joy in the celebration will be in direct proportion to the sacrifices people have made.

Could we only agree to share the sacrifices equally, we could still reach our goal. Some one has made this proposal: Let us all from January 1 to October 12 contribute two per cent of our gross income to Bethel College, and we will be surprised at the large amount that will come in. Are you willing to do your part?

In the interest of Bethel College,

J. M. Regier.

Introducing Harold Ratzlaff

During the last half year the senior C. E. program material which appears weekly in these columns has been prepared by various assistant editors. During the summer months Miss Minna Regier, Whitewater, Kansas, edited this material; during the fall months Miss Dorothea Franzen, Hillsboro, Kansas, now teaching at Fontana, Kansas, carried on the work.

Beginning with the issue containing the material for December 26, Harold Ratzlaff, post-graduate student at Bethel College, will edit this section for a few months. Harold is now taking the special Bible course. Harold has been and is tremendously interested in this type of work, and we have fine prospects for some very valuable suggestions coming from his pen during these months. He has used the material himself as a member of program committees in the past in his own home church, and thus he knows from experience what the needs of young people are.

One of the encouraging things about the work of the Young People's section in THE MENNONITE is the fact that everyone who has been asked to help in the various phases of the work has done so gladly and willingly. It is encouraging that the students actively engaged in school work, as have been all those who have contributed to these columns of C. E. program material, have been glad to do this work.

We cannot help but believe that the Mennonite Church has a perfect right to look for its major contributions from those who have gone on with their education. We are convinced from our contacts with young people that they do not any more leave the Mennonite Church intentionally than they would leave their family intentionally. They are glad to work, given a work to do. They have enthusiasm and vision, and, generally, they bring resources to bear upon problems which they attack which others do not have who have been separated for a time from libraries and the school atmosphere.

As you use the materials which appear weekly in the Youth Section of the MENNONITE, therefore, will you not kindly remember Harold, blessing him and his work from week to week, and letting him know how you like his efforts. B.B.

Peace Broadcasts

Beginning Tuesday night, November 16 (9:45-10 p.m., EST) the National Council for Prevention of War initiated a new series of Peace Broadcasts, with Mrs. Florence Brewer Boeckel, author of BETWEEN WAR AND PEACE, bringing to the microphone each time, a Senator or Congressman, to question him on peace and war issues facing this country.

These programs, under the tile, "Between War and Peace," will be carried over the Inter-City Network, with outlets in New York City, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Boston, New Haven, Providence, Wilmington, York and Lancaster, Pennsylvania. Those who can should tune in on these broadcasts, as one of the better things now available on the radio, and should make a special effort to write to the station of their reception indicating their reactions to these programs.

Is There Room in my Heart for Jesus?

Luke 2:7; Eph. 3:17

Young People's topic for Dec. 26, 1937

Meditation:

M., Dec. 20 The Fast Closed Door. Rev. 3:20-22
T., Dec. 21 Demons in the Mind. Mark 5:1-15
W., Dec. 22 No Use for Jesus. Luke 4:16-21, 28-30
T., Dec. 23 Christ in the Individual. John 14:23
F., Dec. 24 Christ in the Home. Luke 10:38-42
S., Dec. 25 Christ in the Church. Romans 12:1-9

Suggested Hymns:

"I've Found a Friend, O such a Friend"
"O Jesus Thou Art Standing"

Problems:

1. How can we keep the many conflicting and distracting influences and forces, that claim a place in our hearts, from crowding Jesus out? In John 14:23, Jesus says, "If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." This verse puts it very simple and we must accept it just as it is. When indolence seeks to exert its authority, when self-seeking wants first place, when envy, ignorance, bigotry, and other forces all claim possession of our lives, then is when Jesus is forced out. Our hearts are not so big as to be able to hold all these influences and forces and Christ too. So we must keep our hearts pure. "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God". Pure means undivided. And we must give Jesus our undivided attention and listen to His voice. The reason we don't listen is because we are listening to something else—something closer by. So, then, we must shut out the voices of indolence, self-seeking, envy, ignorance, bigotry and any other forces pulling at our hearts and listen to the voice of Jesus if we would have room in our hearts for him.

2. In how far are we guilty of keeping our hearts closed to Jesus? "Behold, I stand at the door and knock. . ." Knocking on the door indicates a closed door. To whom then is it closed? Necessarily someone's soul was closed to God and there still are many souls closed to God. This is an obvious truth. And there are numerous things that keep the soul closed against God. We shall list just a few of them. First there is ignorance. That is, not knowing God. And not knowing God a soul is not aware of his need of God. "Souls perish for lack of knowledge." Second, reigning sin oftentimes fully possesses a soul. Hence God can not abide there as long as this state of things persists. Just as light can have no fellowship with darkness, so can sin have no fellowship with holiness. Third, love of the world—of temporal things absorb all the desires of the mind. Those things which are visible and apparently good, are preferred to that which is invisible and eternal. Worldly honor, worldly riches, worldly pleasures are all preferred to the honors, the riches, and pleasures which come from God. Fourth, we fail to take into consideration these things, that is, we do not look at what the consequences will be. Fifth, unbelief. The statements of revelation are not believed. Therefore, promises do not attract and the gospel produces no saving effect on the heart. Unbelief effectually closes the soul against God.

3. How can we bring about a greater respect for Jesus? In Luke 4:16-21, 28-30 we find that the people of Jesus' home town had nothing left for him, except to throw him down from the brow of a hill. Today, we find that the name of Jesus is despised or at least kept out of many places of business as well as many places of entertainment. What can we do about that situation? It is a duty to love Christ, and to believe in him. It is equally so, to profess both. His words require us to confess him before men—to be his witnesses—to be known as his friends—to walk in his steps—and to observe his ordinances. To neglect these is to be ashamed of him and to despise his words.

4. How can we avoid crowding Jesus out of our hearts, he must necessarily be given first place in the home. It is in the home where the child receives its first lessons of life. And if these lessons fail to include the lessons of a Christ-like life and of the love of Jesus toward men, then that individual whose home training is thus incomplete will be in darkness and thus in great danger of going through life in darkness, for he will not have the light of Jesus to light up the path of his life.

So it behooves us as parents or even as older brothers and sisters in the family to teach the little children about Jesus and his love for them and his way of life. The first of these lessons can be brought to the child even in early pre-school years, for Jesus' love can be comprehended and experienced just as vividly, if not more so, during the child's early years as it can be during later years. So let us make our homes, not only a place where children grow to man- or womanhood but also a place where the love and spirit of Jesus is at all times present.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

A Star Meeting

Intermediate C. E. Topic, Dec. 26, 1937

For Daily Study

Dec. 20 The star of faith. Mark 11:22-24
Dec. 21 The star of hope. I Pet. 1:3-9
Dec. 22 The star of love. I Cor. 13:1-8
Dec. 23 The star of mercy. Matt. 5:7
Dec. 24 The star of service. Matt. 20:20-23
Dec. 25 Follow the star. Col. 3:1-3
Dec. 26 Topic—Star-guided men. Matt. 2:1-12

Preparation

Make an electrically lighted star by cutting a five point star out of the side of a large cardboard box. Cover the opening with yellow tissue paper and put an electric bulb inside. Fix your star on the piano or in some other elevated position in the front of the room. It will be most effective of you can have your worship service with all other lights dimmed. Use stars for invitations to the meeting and topic assignments.

1. Pre-Prayer Circle

Read Matt. 2:1,2. Speak of the signs we have seen of His coming that make us thankful. Make this prayer service a time of worship

2. Praise Songs

"Joy To The World"
"O Little Town"
Announcements

3. Quiet Worship (With star light)

Instrumental (softly) "We Three Kings"
Reader: Matt. 2:1-8
Interlude: "We Three Kings" same as above, or a slow march in imitation of the tread of the camels.

Leader: "It was now the beginning of the third watch, and at Bethlehem the morning was breaking over the mountains in the east, but so feebly that it was yet night in the valley. The watchman on the roof of the old khan, shivering in the chilly air, was listening for the first distinguishable sounds with which life, awakening, greets the dawn, when a light came moving up the hill toward the house. He thought it a torch in some one's hand; next moment he thought it a meteor; the brilliance grew, however, until it became a star. Sore afraid, he cried out, and brought everybody within the walls to the roof. The phenomenon, in eccentric motion, continued to approach; the rocks, trees, and roadway under it shone as in a glare of lightning; directly its brightness became blinding. The more timid of the beholders fell upon their knees, and prayed, with their faces hidden; the boldest, covering their eyes, crouched, and now and then snatched glances fearfully. Such as dared look beheld the star standing still directly over the house in front of the cave where the Child had been born."

Interlude of music as before.

Reader. "In the height of this scene, the wise men came up, and at the gate dismounted from their camels, and shouted for admission. When the steward so far mastered his terror as to give them heed, he drew the bars and opened to them. The camels looked spectral in the unnatural light, and, besides their outlandishness, there were in the faces and manner of the three visitors an eagerness and exaltation which still further excited the keeper's fear and fancy, so that he fell back, and for a time could not answer the question put to him. "Is not this Bethlehem of Judea?"

But others came, and by their presence gave him assurance. "No, this is but the khan; the town lies farther on." "Is there not here a child newly born?"

The bystanders turned to each other marvelling though some of them answered, "Yes, yes."

"Show us to him!" said the Greek impatiently.

"Show us to him!" cried Balthasar, breaking through his gravity; "for we have seen his star, even that which ye behold over the house, and are come to worship him."

The Hindoo clasped his hands, exclaiming, "God indeed lives! Make haste, make haste! The Saviour is found. Blessed, blessed are we above men!" (From "Ben Hur" by Wallace)

Music interlude: "Silent Night"

Reader: Matt. 2:11

Hymn: "O Come All Ye Faithful" (all singing)

4. Topic Discussion

Five talks to match the five points of the star

1. God guides us through His Word
2. God guides us through prayer
3. God guides us through Christian friends
4. God guides us through circumstances
5. God guides us through our conscience

5. Closing Moments

Close with a poem or song of trust in God's guidance

Benediction verse: Ps. 19:14

JUNIOR CORNER

Advent Eve

It had not been touched since it was put there in the days after Christmas. Mrs. Hauser remembered when she had put it there. Another Christmas had seemed so far away then but now it was so near again. She stooped over the box and opened it carefully. Yes, there they were, the boxes marked "One", "Two", "Three", "Four". She took them out, closed the lid of the big box and tiptoed downstairs lest she awaken the sleeping boys.

Putting the boxes on the big chair, she knelt down beside them. She didn't know how long she had stayed there but she knew when she arose, that the door of her heart was open to the coming King. She knew that He was coming now. Oh, she must get the home ready! She must make it beautiful! Already she had opened one of the boxes. It was the one which held the large transparency. She set it tenderly on the table near the window and lighted a small lamp behind it. Stepping back, she viewed it long. It was the manger scene. Always it seemed to say to her: "No matter how lowly the place, when Jesus enters, it becomes full of glory." She returned to the unopened boxes singing softly:

"How silently, how silently,
The wondrous gift is given!
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven."

Mrs. Hauser picked up the smallest box. She loved it because of what was in it. Removing its lid, she smiled at the little group, nestled peacefully in green tissue straw. She knew just where she would place it. Here, on the little bookcase was just enough room. Carefully she arranged the group: the little manger in which the Christchild was bedded she placed in the center; to the right the kneeling angel, to the left the one standing. Both looked toward the manger in adoration and prayer. Mrs. Hauser walked to the buffet and returned with a miniature candle and holder. This she placed near the group. How beautiful it was, all in white. She felt the Christ, grown-up, would like it.

It was growing late. She must hurry. Mr. Hauser would be home soon. She wanted to be ready then. Quickly she cleared the top of the piano and set two scripture transparencies there. Putting a lighted candle behind each, the letters became illumined: "Daughter of Zion Rejoice", "Behold Thy King Cometh Unto Thee."

From the last box, Mrs. Hauser took the large Christmas candle in its holly wreath. It made a beautiful center piece for the dining table. Two tall tapers would look lovely on the buffet. She set them there. In the still unlighted corners of the room she placed white candles. Sometime later, nearer to Christmas, she would add the cones and spruce.

"And now the kitchen," she said to herself as she walked toward her desk. A smile of inner joy lighted her face as she thought of the surprise that awaited the boys in the morning. It was a little Advent house. They had never seen one. She knew that they would love it. They would enjoy opening its windows one by one as each new morning came. There would be an Advent verse in each window which they would memorize. She thought she would not allow them to open the new windows unless they could recite the previous verse. They would enjoy, most of all, to open the door, she thought. That would be on Christmas day. When they opened it, they would find the Babe in the manger and underneath it, in tiny letters, the words of John 3:16.

Mrs. Hauser placed the little house in the center of the kitchen table. It was so cozy to eat breakfast here. Into it she put a lighted candle. It was beautiful, even now, with all its windows shut.

She set the table hurriedly with her best dishes and silver. She could see the little group, sitting around the table. There would be ryebread, soft boiled eggs, fruit, raisin "Stritzel" and the first Christmas cookies. The boys were waiting for these cookies. She had not allowed them any before. She liked the thought of keeping the first cookies for Advent morning. With special tenderness she placed the family Bible near Mr. Hauser's plate. He would read the first prophecy, the promise of a Redeemer. Next to her plate, she put the little book from which she would read the Advent poem which spoke of Jesus knocking at the door of our hearts.

She could see it all now: how she would tiptoe down in the early hour of the morning and break the silence with the chords of a Christmas hymn. It would be the first Christmas song in their home this season. She could see Mr. Hauser coming down the stairs followed by the two excited boys. They would join their voices with hers. How the melodies would ring! Still singing, they would walk to the kitchen, each finding his place. She could see the boys faces light up when their eyes would rest upon the house with its many windows tightly shut. She could feel now the impressive silence that would prevail during the reading of scripture and the poem. She knew that when the prayer would be spoken, the heart of each one around the little kitchen table would say: "Yes, come Lord Jesus."

Mrs. Hauser was just setting the tiny candles behind the small transparencies when Mr. Hauser entered. Together they viewed the table and especially the little transparencies at each plate. All were child-angel scenes. One, especially, was sweet. It showed a little angel serenading at the door of a lowly cottage accompaning itself on a violin, not seeming to mind the cold that its bare feet must feel. Its whole little heart seemed intent on spreading Christmas joy.

Mr. Hauser, who had been studying the scene, set it back in its place. "So let us also be ready to go out to spread Christmas joy in this cold, cold world," he said softly.

Together they walked through the rooms. It was so beautiful whichever way they looked. Each lighted candle seemed to be a place of warmth and love. Before the large transparency they stood still. Mrs. Hauser began softly to sing the last verse of "Away in the Manger." Mr. Hauser joined her:

"I love Thee Lord Jesus,
I ask Thee to stay
Close by me forever
And love me, I pray.
Bless all the dear children
In Thy tender care
And take me to heaven
To live with Thee there."

It was their evening prayer. One by one they put out the candles and turned off the lights. Each one thought of the morning when all would be lighted again and when the boys would be there.

"Bless us all," Mrs. Hauser said softly. She had had such a wonderful day. It was Advent Eve. She was ready for the King. The King was coming. She knew He was.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS AT NEWTON CHURCH

During the current week, Sunday, Dec. 5, to Sunday, Dec. 12, the First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, is having a series of evangelistic meetings and Bible study hours. Dr. Lewis Sperry Chafter, Pres. of the Dallas (Texas) Theological Seminary, gives the sermons and Dr. A. Warkentin conducts the Bible studies based on Hebrews, chapters 6-13. These are being held in the forenoon. Dr. Chafer speaks in the afternoon and evening, and on Sundays also in the forenoon. The following are the themes of Dr. Chafter's discourses: Sunday, Dec. 5: Winning Souls by Prayer; Who is Jesus Christ?; Why did Christ Die? Monday: God is Propitious; The First Sin in Heaven. Tuesday: The Penalty for the Christian's Sin; The First Sin on Earth. Wednesday: The Cure for the Christian's Sin; The Finished Work of Christ. Thursday: A Three-Fold Parable; The Saving Work of God. Friday: Experiencing the Power of God; By Grace are Ye Saved. Saturday: Conditions Governing a Spiritual Life; The Jailer's Question. Sunday: The Christian's Position in the World; Justified without a Cause; Born from Above.

What No Man Can Say

Edna Reeck Brown, Spokane, Washington

Yesterday I went with my mother to look at same furniture in which she was interested. When we were ready to leave, the clerk who had graciously waited on her, said with utmost courtesy, "Thank you, Mother, and call again!"

As soon as we were in the elevator, I said facetiously: "What did he call you, Mom? I don't know that I like to hear just anybody calling you 'Mother.' "

And it did sound out of place to me—but he thought nothing of it. He was just being polite and obviously was in the habit of calling every middle-aged or elderly woman "Mother."

This clerk, in applying superfluous misnomers to his customers, well represents the far more erroneous group who assume a patronizing attitude toward God. Although God is a perfect stranger to them, they address Him as "Father." Many do this knowingly, arguing that we are all God's children, that He is the Heavenly Father of all mankind. Others claim relationship when there is none, although they may be sincere—but sadly deceived.

Those of the first class (who reason that because God is the Creator all creatures can claim Him as Father) surely know nothing of what the Bible teaches on this subject.

Either they have not chosen to understand or accept the rudimentary doctrine of the second birth, or they are totally ignorant of it. They do not grasp the system of adoption that sinners must embrace before becoming sons of the most High. Possibly they have never read: "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God . . . Ye (the Christians) have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God."

Does not the Bible plainly teach that we are all born in sin and that in order to receive the Spirit of God and become one of His children we "must be born again"—by accepting Christ as our Savior? Does it not likewise teach that "that which is born of the Spirit is spirit" and "that which is born of the flesh is flesh" (John 3:6)?

How then, can the fleshly claim relationship with the spiritual? How can a sinner call God his Father, when he has denied God the privilege of adopting him as His child? How can anyone who has not received this Holy Spirit (which comes at conversion; See Acts 2:38) call Jesus "Lord," "Master," "Savior"?

God wanted to make it plain—so plain that no one could misunderstand. This He does in 1 Cor. 12:3: "No man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost."

There is a "great gulf" between the sinner (the natural man) and God the Father, and this gulf is bridged only by the acceptance of Jesus as one's Savior. The penitent's prayer, "Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou son of David" is the initial step in establishing a son-Father relationship.

The Bible cites many instances in which the about-to-be-born again soul first calls Christ "Lord." "Lord, if thou wilt," cried the leper, "Thou canst make me clean" (Luke 5:12). "Lord, remember me . . . " (Luke 23:42) said the malefactor to Jesus on the cross. And so throughout the ages this cry has been carried, and those who earnestly seek the Lord find Him, and are taken into the family of God where all are united by the Holy Spirit. Then Jesus is the Lord, and God is the Father.

Thus it is that "no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost." It is meaningless and useless for the unrepentant sinner to call Jesus Lord. He cannot, for he has not been born of the Spirit. "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his" (Rom. 8:9). Spiritual things are for the spiritual; earthly things are for the earthly. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God. For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." So it is that "he that is joined unto the Lord is one spirit" (I Cor. 6:17).

No man, we find, can receive the Holy Spirit unless He accepts the gospel of salvation. (In whom [Christ] ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise. Eph. 1:13). And no man can call Christ "Lord," or God "Father" unless he can do so by the Holy Ghost. Certainly the membership of God's family should be settled by His Word!

Then there is that second great class of duped people—those who cry "Lord, Lord," but are on the wrong track. Did not Christ say, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven: but he that doeth the will of my Father"? He went on to say, "Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity" (Matt: 7:21-23). Think of it! Even among the great Christian workers there will be many who will not be able to substantiate their claim of relationship to the Lord.

Only through obedience to Him can we gain the right to call Him Lord. He Himself said: "And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" (Luke 6:46).

Can we in truth call Jesus "Lord," and God "Father"?

An Appeal to the Christian Conscience

Twenty eminent Christians from China have signed an appeal to Christians all over the world to take their share of the responsibility for the maintenance of peace and justice in the world. "We are convinced," they write, "that in a world which is so interwoven in its political, social and economic relationships, peace is indivisible and war cannot be localized. This ghastly thing going on before our eyes in China may ultimately develop into a world-wide conflagration. No individual or group could maintain a detached position. We Christians have often been reticent and passive in international affairs. The Christian Church has in the past made general pronouncements against war, but it has been silent on specific international issues which lead to war. Vital religion cannot be separated from humanity. The Christian Church must keep alive its conscience in a big international crisis such as the one now obtaining in the Far East, or its vitality is sapped and future doomed. Our Christian conscience must needs be kept alive by expressing itself in action. The present Sino-Japanese crisis may prove a test of the moral strength of the Christian Church throughout the world. Let us take stock of our faith in this hour of crisis and repent for our common failures in the endeavor of the past. Then let us turn to God once more and pray that His guiding hand will lead us out of the present chaos.

"We have a deep sense of the seriousness of the situation and seek a humble realization of the contagiousness of sin. Against the will of God, barbarous warfare is threatening humanity. Our earnest hope is that the Sino-Japanese conflict may not be viewed as a local and remote quarrel between Japan and China alone, nor be regarded as some transient political problem outside the realm of religion. We appeal to Christian people all over the word, including those in Japan, to share with us the sense of responsibility in this perilous hour, and to adopt whatever measures are within their power to set in motion the corporate conscience of the Christian Church. So far as Christians in China are concerned, there is a readiness to undergo sacrifice to support any move to uphold true peace and justice in international relations and to witness to the strength of the Universal Christian Church."

Among those signing the appeal are leaders of the following Christian organizations in China: National Christian Council, Christian Literature Society, Chinese Christian Centre, National Committee Y.M.C.A., National Committee for Christian Religious Education, National Committee Y.W.C.A.

CORRESPONDENCE

WEST ZION CHURCH, MOUNDRIDGE, KAN.

As we near the close of another year, the words of the Psalmist are suggested: "Bless the Lord, oh my soul, and forget not all his benefits." There have been many material as well as spiritual blessings for which to be thankful.

A number of visiting ministers from nearby churches have brought us helpful messages, when our minister exchanged pulpits with them.

Sunday, June 20, was a memorable day for the Mrs. Wm. Galle family. The morning service was dedicated to this family, in honor of the deceased, Rev. Wm. Galle, the first minister of our church. Rev. Galle passed away seventeen years ago and it was the first time the family was together since the day of their father's funeral. Rev. Menno Galle of Lind, Washington filled the pulpit on this occasion. He had preached his first sermon in West Zion just twenty years before.

September 26, at a C. E. program, sponsored by the mission committee, Rev. and Mrs. P. J. Wiens gave interesting accounts of the mission work in India.

Our minister, Rev. P. K. Regier, is again teaching Bible in the local high school.

During the summer months a basement was added to our church building, and other improvements are being made. The new arrangement will provide for much needed class rooms for the church school.

On Nov. 2, Rev. P. H. Richert of the Tabor church, led the midweek Bible discussion and prayer service, at the opening meeting. He gave us a deeper insight of missions and the Christian's duty toward the same. Rev. Regier has selected some of the great chapters of the Bible as the basis of these mid-week meetings.

We are looking forward to the series of meetings to be held in our church in the near future, when Dr. A. Warkentin, of the Bethel College faculty and Rev. Walter Goering of the Eden church are to be with us.—Correspondent.

DEATHS

MRS. EMMA BERGDOLT, daughter of John and Katherine Kraemer, was born near Trenton, Clinton Co., Ill., on January 2, 1872. Several months ago she received a paralytic stroke and gradually became weaker and more helpless until her end came shortly after midnight on Thursday, Nov. 4, 1937. She attained the age of 65 years, 10 months, and 2 days.

On June 7, 1885, she was baptized and received into the fellowship of the First Mennonite Church at Summerfield and remained a faithful member until death. On March 31, 1903, she was united in marriage with Jacob Bergdolt. This union was blessed with 7 daughters, six of whom are still living, one daughter having died in infancy.

She leaves to mourn her departure, her deeply bereft husband, six daughters, three grandchildren, one brother and many other relatives and friends. Funeral services were held from her home near Trenton and the Mennonite church at Summerfield on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 6. The services were in charge of her pastor, Rev. Elmer Basinger. Interment was made in the Summerfield cemetery.

MRS. JACOB S. DESTER, daughter of John C. and Agnes Krehbiel Eberle, was born July 16, 1871, near Donnelson, Iowa. She was baptized, September 27, 1885, by Reverend Christian Showalter and joined the Mennonite church. In 1890, the family moved to Moundridge, Kansas.

On April 16, 1893, she was married to Jacob S. Dester, son of John and Katherine Rupp Dester. In 1895, Mr. and Mrs. Dester moved to Grant County, Oklahoma, where they bought a homestead right near the present site of Deer Creek. Here they lived for seven years, then moved to Deer Creek to make their home, where her husband became one of the pioneer business men.

Mrs. Dester was an active and faithful member and Christian all her life. She and her husband became charter members of the Mennonite Church at Deer Creek. Religion for her, was a matter of inner experience and outward expression in activity rather than words. She dearly loved the Lord Christ and His Kingdom. She was deeply interested in Missions, Christian Education, and especially in those in need in her community. She always took a helpful interest in the personal welfare of others.

On July 5, 1936, after a prolonged illness her husband preceded her in death. For the last two years she has been in poor health, and on November 8 she became ill with pneumonia, was taken to the Blackwell Hospital, where she passed away very quietly and peacefully, on November 18, having attained the age of 66 years, 4 months and 2 days.

Her departure is mourned by five children, one daughter-in-law, two sons-in-law, and five grandchildren: Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dester and son of Long Beach, California; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. G. Kaufman and their two children of Newton, Kansas; Laura Ellen Dester of Oklahoma City; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Malm and children of Logan, Utah, and Dorothy Mae Dester of Deer Creek. She also leaves two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Charles Krehbiel and Mrs. Dan Krehbiel of California, and C. F. Eberle of McPherson, Kansas. All of her daughters were with her at her bedside. Her son, John, was unable to come because of an accident.

The entire family will remember her as a sympathetic and understanding mother ready to share their joys as well as their sorrows.

Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon, November 21. The Reverends J. F. Moyer, Herbert Miller, A. S. Bechtel, and W. R. Stuempky took part in the services, and spoke in high appreciation of the departed and words of comfort for those left behind.

Her toil is past, her work is done and they are fully blest
She fought the fight, the victory won and entered into rest
Then let our sorrows cease to flow
  God has recalled His own
But let our hearts in every woe
  Still say "Thy will be done."

SELMA BULLER BERG, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth Buller, was born February 13, 1910, near Hillsboro, Kansas, and died from a kidney complication in the Hospital in Hillsboro, October 28, 1937, aged 27 years, 8 months and 15 days.

On June 19, 1927, she was baptized on her confession of faith in Jesus Christ as her Savior, by Rev. John Plenert, and admitted into the fellowship of the Johannestal church. This faith in Christ gave her much joy as she neared the close of her day.

On July 15, 1933, she was united in marriage with Edward Berg by Rev. John H. Epp. They lived very happily together for the brief space of four years, sharing joys and sorrows.

She leaves to mourn her departure, her deeply bereaved husband Edward Berg, her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Buller, three brothers and two sisters as follows: William, Laura, wife of Henry Ratzlaff, Theodore of Chugwater, Wyoming, Menno and Agatha at home with their mother; her parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Andreas Berg, 7 sisters-in-law, 8 brothers-in-law, 7 nieces and 6 nephews.

Funeral services were held at the Johannestal church. Rev. S. M. Musselman and Rev. John H. Epp, officiated.

— Rev. C. H. Dirks, pastor of the Mennonite Church at Hutchinson, Kans., kindly sent us several of their Sunday service bulletins, very neat little folders, apparently printed on a small press by himself. From these we cull the following: Now, since you have had time enough to consider the matter of getting the Mennonite into your home, we are ready to receive your subscription. There is good reading material in this paper. Something should be done, let's do it now.—A ten weeks Bible School course will begin here Sept. 29. Anyone may enroll. This will fill a long felt need.—A week later: The Bible School had a fine start. So far, 30 have enrolled.—Union Thanksgiving services were held in this church, the Mennonite Brethern, and one Presbyterian church participating.

—Mrs. Noah Zuercher of the First Church, Bluffton, Ohio, with the help of a girls' society, recently secured 23 new subscribers for the Mennonite. That's a splendid piece of service for the church. Would that every one of our churches had a group of sisters to follow suit! Sincere thanks to these kind helpers! The churches have usually appointed brethern to sell our church papers. Why not try sisters for a change, like Bluffton did!

—Rev. G. S. Stoneback of the Eighth Street Church, Goshen, Indiana, in a Sunday worship program: The first day of Advent is set aside by the Tuberculosis Society as Christmas Seal Sunday. The Society is doing excellent work in preventing and curing this dread enemy of mankind. An outstanding preacher has said, "In common with all thoughtful citizens I am eager in my support of the National Tuberculosis Association."

—Rev. Wilmer S. Shelly, pastor Wadsworth, Ohio, Church, in their Sunday bulletin, among other things, says: A Training School for Sunday School teachers and officers will again be conducted in Wadsworth, to run for six weeks. (Would that all Mennonite communities might follow this example).—A religious drama was recently given entitled, "He Came Seeing," based on the miracle of restoring the blind man's sight.—This church joined in the Nation-wide week of Prayer for Revival.—The Young People of this church have undertaken to solicit $1100.00 for the purpose of retiring the parsonage debt. (A good plan to use the young folks.)—A benevolent offering was taken to assist in the building of the New Mennonite church at Lima, Ohio.

—Burrton, Kans. Menn. Church.—The Burrton Mennonite Church is happy to report that our Sunday School and church attendance has been very good. Prof. Bennie Bargen of Bethel College spoke and the Buhler Grade Teachers sang at a recent C. E. meeting. The Ladies' Missionary Society under the direction of the pastor's wife have been packing boxes for Christmas. A program to be given Christmas evening is being prepared by pupils and teachers of the Sunday School.—Minnie Richert.

—Geary, Okla. Menn. Church.—The annual union Thanksgiving services at Geary were held this year in the Geary Menn. Church, Rev. Keasling, a visiting evangelist, brought the message. At noon the members of our church had their Thanksgiving dinner together in the church basement. Careful planning made possible a full, well prepared meal, served efficiently, on festively decorated tables. Over ninety were present to enjoy the fellowship of the occasion.—Mrs. Frantz.

—Peter Neufeld, Medford, Okla., has become a new subscriber to the Mennonite. He has also sent in a travelogue of a trip made to the Pacific coast which we shall try to bring when space can be found.—Rev. P. P. Tschetter, Pretty Prairie, Kansas, is another new subscriber.

Our Forum

Dear Editor:

A few thoughts in regard to "The Young People Are Different Today" in the last issue of THE MENNONITE.—A number of things are listed in which they are different from what they were twenty-five or fifty years ago. "But we do not believe that they are going to the dogs. They are different, but not necessarily worse than we were." This and what follows provokes consideration. Because the writer of the editorial is in no ways the only one who entertains such ideas about the youth of today.

1. The young people of today are in many ways different in their thinking and actions, because to them opportunities for acquiring knowledge and training are available that were unknown to their fathers. Besides, at their disposal are magazines, radios, movies, all kinds of games, plays, autos, and what not. Of most of these things we had no idea, but they occupy the minds of today's youth to overflowing. Yet, a number of traits are left in which they are alike, which they have in common, viz.: the old nature, depravity of heart, or as King David of old expresses it in Ps. 51:5, "Behold I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin my mother did conceive me."

2. A minister and other Christians should not be so much concerned whether the youth nowadays is not worse than their predecessors were fifty years ago. Maybe they are not. But if one takes note of the reports of our dailies, and of the revelations of our juvenile courts and statistics, one has real cause for alarm and should seriously hesitate to make assertions which are at variance with existing facts. An ever increasing criminal wave is sweeping the country. Of this our juveniles constitute a large part. And do not statistics show that there are 27,000,000 boys and girls in the United States who have never darkened the doors of a church or Sunday school? This condition constitutes a very serious problem for our educators, magistrates, and even ministers.

3. Apart from this sad picture, of what avail is it to pat the back of our youngsters, assuring them: You are not worse than your fathers and forefathers used to be? Are they not lulled into security? Is their conversion not rendered more difficult, even made impossible? It is of no avail, whether our youth is not worse, even if many have high ideals and noble purposes—things ever so commendable for success in life. Unless they are born again, they can not even see the kingdom of God.

Our young people are intrusted to us. We ought to be concerned about their spiritual welfare more so than about their physical. "I have set thee a watchman unto young and old (unto the house of Israel) . . . if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall surely die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require of thine hand." Ezek. 33:8-9.—C. H. Friesen.

Christ for the World, the World for Christ

By Edwin C. Graber

CHRIST FOR THE WORLD, our Savior died
To save us from a Hope-less doom;
Our Light, our Way, our Staff, our Guide.
This world is but an anteroom.

Forgetting this, we toy with sin
As with a bauble, till enticed,
We lose that which would let us in:
One muses, is THE WORLD FOR CHRIST?

The Small Manger

By Joanna Sudermann Andres

God, almighty though Thou art,
Thou wouldst dwell within my heart,
Thou dost seek a lowly place
For the manger of Thy grace.

Lowlier this could not be;
What have I to offer Thee?
What have I that I could bring?
Naught there is to greet a King.

Naught but need of grace divine;
Naught but want to have Thee mine.
Here in love's soft candle light,
Come to me on this still night.

Like on Bethlehem's silent plain.
Let the joy notes ring again
Of the Savior's lowly birth
In a manger on the earth.

Here the manger, seek not far,
Here a door that stands ajar;
Here is darkness for the Light,—
Come to me on this still night.

Come, See the Christ

by Edna R. Brown

Come, O people, come this Christmas morn
And kneel before the Christ-babe that was born
Long years ago in Bethlehem's stable-inn.
Come, O people, apart from this world's din.

Come with reverent hearts and quiet tread
To worship the infant Saviour in His manger-bed.
Come and offer contrite hearts—and love—
And find the peace that comes from God above.

Come and gladly crown the Christ-child King;
Your humble homage and allegiance bring.
O, make Him Master of your heart and mind;
Come, O people, the true joy of Christmas find.

Gift for Christmas

By Helen Frazee-Bower

What can I give to men whose empty eyes
Trouble my thinking at this Christmastide?
Lord, make me humble, loving, strong, and wise,
That I may give them Christ, the crucified.

Let me not choose the lesser gifts of earth,
That pass in dust and are futility:
Lord, at this sacred season of Thy birth,
Lead me from giving things, to giving Thee.

What can I give to Thee, oh, God above?
(There is so little that our God could need)
And yet, in all my dreams, Thy heart of love
Is wounded still: I see it break and bleed
With naught to staunch the flow—except I bring Some ransomed soul, called home from wandering.—Sunday School Times.

Christmas Reverie

Sister Frieda Kaufman

Part II

Our family bid farewell to the lovely Wiesen valley before I was nine years old and we came to the Kansas plains and settled in the little town of Halstead. The decorations for the Christmas tree came with us. We arrived in July. In those early days spruce trees were not shipped across the land for the holiday season. We tried to purchase a small pine or cedar for our first Christmas in America, but no one in Halstead had one to spare. Nothing daunted, father cut a suitable stick from some tree, drilled holes into it, inserted branches from a neighbor's cedar and built a lovely Christmas tree which served its purpose very well. When mother wanted to add the last touch and, as usual, hang our little angel Gabriel on the tree, all that was left of him was a flat pink mass of wax in his little box. His dear spun glass wings, which had always been my special delight protruded from the wreckage in a most pitiful manner. He had not been able to survive his first Kansas summer, and we felt his loss keenly.

It was natural that the life and customs of our adopted country should become our own ere long. Our new church home used the evening of December 24th for the Christmas celebration of the Sunday School, so our family observance began to take place on Christmas morning. We all attended church on Christmas day. It was usually crowded, for it was customary to observe the Lord's Supper in Holy Communion on this day, which commemorates His coming "in the flesh to dwell among us". (John 1:14)

Two years later mother went to be with the Christ child in heaven, but she left us not only the heartache and longing for her devoted care and tender love, but also a heritage of faith and assurance of things eternal. Then God in his mercy granted me a vision of the Saviour, which has made Him the fairest of ten thousand to my soul, and so it was natural that Christmas has not only retained its wondrous charm for me, but that the joys of this season have deepened and have become ever more precious as the years passed by.

A true Christmas is a state of the heart and its observance does not depend on any favorable surroundings. If I were to tell you the story of the most precious experience of Christmas which I have had, I would tell you about a Christmas Eve spent all alone with a patient so desperately ill with typhoid fever, that she knew nothing of time or place. The people lived on a farm and had no house. They lived in that section of a barn which should later on become a granary. The husband of the sick woman had become ill, also, and since there was no one to help me in caring for the patients, he had gone to a hospital some thirty miles away. It took every bit of my strength to take care of one delirious and very restless patient night and day. Relatives of the patient took care of the live stock and brought us necessary supplies and there was no lack of comfort. But they had their own families and no one thought of spending Christmas eve with us. How well I remember that "Silent, Holy Night". It is impressed upon my memory with its every detail sharply outlined: the heavy snow, the bitter cold of the evening! The patient was restless but soon after 8 p.m. she fell asleep. I dressed warmly and stepped outside for some fresh air, and walked up and down before a window through which I could observe my charge. Across the snow I could see the dark shadows of trees which surrounded other farm homes, but it so happened that not a single lighted window greeted me with a ray of cheer. I turned my eyes upward. Though earth had no lighted window, heaven seemed all ajar. What a beautiful sky it was! The stars were brilliant and massed in their most beautiful array, just like the darkest, longest nights of the year reveal them at Christmas time. To the nurse keeping quiet vigil with the sick wife and mother "under the quiet stars that night, darkness was changed to wondrous light" like to the shepherds of long ago. Being chilled I came in and since the patient was still asleep I lighted the lantern and passed from the kitchen directly to the barn. The drowsy cattle and horses looked with dazed eyes at the lantern and the intruder, little dreaming what their presence meant to the lonely nurse. However, she did not remain lonely, for the message of the Holy Nativity of the lowly humble birth came to her heart as never before. There was nothing to distract or hinder. Here was a perfect setting for Christmas Eve! The Mighty Creator of heaven and earth, born a little Babe, lying in a manger! Our little brother! . . . I shall never forget that night.

Time passed on and I became partly responsible for the observance of Christmas in an institution which is our home. What joy it was to make this festive season a time of spiritual refreshing, of joy and happiness to the household.

Since the early Christians soon began to commemorate the events of the earthly life of our Lord in sacred cycles or periods of each year, the four Sundays preceding Christmas, mark the time of the Advent, or the coming of the Lord. "Prepare ye the way of the Lord" is therefore the sacred motto for the pre-Christmas season.

In the holy quiet of Saturday eve preceding the first Sunday in the Advent we observe the Lord's Supper. We know of no better way to center our hearts around Him, "until He come." In the living room a lighted transparency with the illumined verse "Behold Thy King cometh unto thee", lighted candles in shining brass holders and a few twigs of cedar, pine or spruce, do not only give the room a festive touch, but are a constant reminder of the coming of the King.

HOW CONSECRATION IS RELATED TO REGENERATION

By Albert C. Wieand

When "the rich young ruler" came to Jesus he asked two questions, and got two answers, according to Mt. 19:16-22. His first question was, "What good thing shall I do that I may have eternal life," and his second was, "What lack I yet?"

To the first question about how to enter into life Jesus replied that the secret of entering into life was to assume the right inner attitudes towards God and man, as set forth in the law, the heart, or inner care of which is the ten commandments.

At another time, as Luke 10:25-28 tells us, when a lawyer asked the same question, Jesus gave the same reply in slightly different words. This time the law of life was summed up as being right inner attitudes towards God and man, i.e., loving God supremely, absolutely, and loving one's fellow men equally with oneself.

"This do," Jesus said, "and thou shalt live."

On still another occasion Jesus said, "On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets."

Here then we have Jesus' answer explicitly and repeatedly given that "entering into life," or being "born again," or regeneration, depends upon right attitudes towards God and man. In other words, being born again from above and of God, so as to obtain eternal life, and so to become the children of God, can take place only when the inner central self (or soul, or spirit) is by faith, repentance and obedience surrendered to God as revealed in Christ. Whenever or wherever this is done by any man, then the Spirit of God takes possession and control of the inner self and he is "born of the Spirit," "born of God."

The other question "the rich young ruler" asked was, "What lack I yet?" To this Jesus replied (Mt. 19:21), "If thou wouldst be perfect, go, sell all that thou hast," etc.

But what does, "If thou wouldst be perfect" mean over and above "If thou wouldst enter into life?" Just what distinction does Jesus intend here to make between "entering into life" and "being perfect?" And exactly wherein do the conditions differ? Just what does all this mean in terms of human experience? And is the distinction between the two experiences fundamental and vital?

Peter claims a bit later that he and the other apostles had fulfilled these second conditions. Now just wherein essentially was the difference in attitude between the rich young ruler and the apostles? In what sense could it be meaningfully said that Peter and the other apostles were "perfect"?—to use the word Jesus did. In what sense was Peter's inner essential attitude different from the Rich Young Ruler's?

Peter's words, I think, reveal the secret. "Lo (a) We have left all, and (b) have followed Thee." Jesus amplifies Peter's words, defining what the phrase "left all" means,—"houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or children, or lands, for my sake."

Just this is what the rich young ruler was not willing to do. And the refusal of this buried him in oblivion, while the obedience to this condition of "being perfect," transformed the humble fishermen into the greatest among the worlds benefactors.

On another occasion Jesus taught the same truth in other words, as recorded in John 15:9-11. These words sum up the teaching of the allegory of the vine and the branches. They are words spoken to men who, Jesus says, "are already clean," that is, born again.

And what is the import of this teaching? It is that absolute devotion to Jesus, entire consecration to Him, full unlimited obedience, utter devotion and commitment to Christ is the secret of "abiding," of "bearing much fruit," and of "fullness of joy." Brother, "your joy may be made full." Are not these Our Lord's very own words to you?

Summary

On the basis of these discussions then, are we not justified in concluding?—that, while

(1) Regeneration, or the New Birth is essentially the commitment, by faith in Christ, of one's inner central self to God, and the taking possession thereof by the Holy Spirit.

(2) Sanctification, or Entire Consecration, consists in the commitment, by faith in Christ, of all one's possessions, all one has or hopes for, to God, to be disposed of absolutely and used altogether as God shall direct or desire.

In practice this might mean as it did to one of God's children, for a man who is already a Christian (one who has already given his inner central self to God), to "take an inventory" of all one's possessions: of all his "houses and land," his "silver and gold," his "father and mother," and "wife and children," and friends, health, talents, education, occupation and field of service, etc., etc.

Then when the inventory is absolutely complete of all one has or hopes for, the next step is to go thru the list, item by item, and give it over to God irrevocably, without mental reservation or misgiving.

And when all has been thus laid on the altar as a "whole burnt-offering," it remains to dare to believe that God will accept your offering and "answer by fire,"—and purify,—and consume it, when and as He shall choose.

This is what happened to two of the finest young ministers I know, about a year ago. And they confess to a new experience of joy, of reality, of answered prayer, and of greatly enlarged service and enriched fruitfulness,—just as the Lord promised (Jn. 15:7, 8 and 11). Others, too, I know who are still living in the shallows, whose lives are greatly unsatisfactory both to themselves and others,—and all because, like the rich young ruler, they have failed to yield wholly to Christ. They, too, went away sorrowful. Will you?

What Christmas Means to Me

(Sent in by a Christian brother)

More than interchange of gifts, a week's delights, or child's ecstacy. "Better Deserve and not Receive, than Receive and not Deserve." But the mind travels back in memory to childhood's anticipations, child prayers for innumerable things, memories unmarred by sophistications, memories I would not now ignore, recalling those all-golden yesterdays of dear delights, when life was new, when we could not possibly vision a happier world than this, when Christmas obscured for the moment earth's tearful scenes that do not pause. So today "memories come a-trooping through, with whispering hopes, and loves, and you." Christmas means now more than things, therefore costs more. A dear mother near promotion to Glory, murmured, "Take care of my Baby". Not easy to say, even when committing to good hands. And the Bethlehem Babe was not on a pleasure jaunt. He fell into evil hands, of men who, like the hound on the tiger's track, would destroy God's only Son on His mission of mercy. But God in utter abhorrence of sin, did not abandon, but with unutterable love, drew nearer to His erring children. For, though in the race the mind is made to outstrip the heart, Christmas brings the more precious things of the heart to the fore,—special relationships, indissoluble ties of kindred, and salvaged from the wreck of time, are these and more—those friends of mine. Christmas means a close-up acquaintance with God through His Son, who to an unhappy world became its Light, without which men could not find their way; lifted earth's burdens, that we bear our lot with hope, made life more tolerable. Christmas is generous to share to every earth-bound soul something of Heaven's Gift which, once bestowed, is forever our own, if appropriated in sanctified living and consecrated service. For, "if we cease to give, we cease to have, it is the Law of Love." For this Unspeakable Gift to earth, becomes at once a personal one to those who receive Him as such to their hearts, and a Personal Saviour to all who in turn yield their best to Him who gave Himself in exchange "For the Life of the World." Well, may the earth rejoice!—T. Richardson Gray, Edgewood, Iowa.

He who would know Christ must endeavor to conform his life wholly to the life of Christ.—a Kempis.

EDITORIALS

THE GIFT OF GOD.—Many, many of the readers of this paper are blessed with almost innumerable gifts: health, home, family, wife, husband, father, mother, children, brother, sister, relatives, friends, kind neighbors, comforts of life, crops, a good, free country and a Christian community to live in, the Church, the Bible, the Sunday School, good schools, a work to do or opportunity for work, and what not! Who can count the blessings, one by one, that a kind heavenly Father has showered upon so many of us! But, alas, the world is full of people not thus blessed, unfortunates in one way or another, who are without most of these blessings. Yet, there is one gift that all such may have, a gift that also outweighs any and all gifts that have been showered upon us, and that is the gift of our Savior, whose nativity we are now about to celebrate again. This gift all may own, and use, and enjoy, and be helped by and made happy, even in tribulation, and above all—saved by it. O, what a gift, this inmeasurable expression of God's love! O, how rich we Christian folks really are! How we should warm up at this thought! How we should reciprocate God's favor for this inestimable Gift of his Son, in giving of our substance and ourselves, if necessary, in caring for the hungry, the thirsty, the naked, the sick, the imprisoned, of whom there are so many in this sin-ridden, troublesome world. Can we fully, truly enjoy this Christmas season without acting the good Samaritan to as many needy as possible? We are stewards of God, and he has a right to ask for an accounting from us, in behalf of "the least of these his brethren." Are we going to heed his claim upon us?

CORRESPONDENCE ONCE MORE.—This time it is JOTTINGS we wish to discuss. At one of the latest conferences the question was raised, whether we had not better discontinue that section of THE MENNONITE. The question was met with a general protest, and a strong vote to retain it. The jottings seem to be popular, and readers have been heard to remark that they always read them first. That is because we are by nature news-hungry. And these short bits of happenings, fresh from sources somewhere within the confines of our Mennonite brotherhood, seem to satisfy this hunger at least to a degree. Only in selecting the material, care must be exercised that jottings in a church paper should have a spiritual or at least morally practical flavor. They must not appeal to morbid curiosity, as secular news often do.

Now since the readers want such news, how is the editor to get them, and the right kind? Would he get them if he were to subscribe for all the newspapers that are published in our Mennonite communities? Yes, he might get some. But that would cost quite a purse, and it would take too much time to scan all the papers involved. No! that plan would hardly work. A much better way is, if the different churches will each appoint a suitable, competent person to furnish brief reports of worthwhile happenings in their midst. We should have, each week, reports of church happenings from a few churches in the east, the north, the middle west, and the pacific coast for the jottings column, especially of things yet to come, in addition to what has already occurred. O, how that would add interest and engender brotherly feeling among us!—Will not our churches, please, appoint some suitable person to furnish jotting items, and from time to time a longer message in the form of correspondence. The editor of this paper is ready to supply such reporter-correspondents with stamped cards for the jottings and stamped envelopes for correspondences, all at his own expense, just so it will help get these reporters to write. What should such jottings bring? Anything that is worth reading among brethren in any part of our conference away from home. That is a very general answer, but it means more than a dozen itemized suggestions.—Again we wish to express our appreciation and gratitude to those good souls who have supplied us with information from their churches during this year.

An Appeal to American Christians to Help the Distressed

Following here is a letter the contents of which should appeal to Christian sympathy of our churches, and should induce us to help in this greatly needed Samaritan work, as we celebrate the coming of Him who is the great Samaritan of us all.—Editor.

To the Editor of the Mennonite:

In response to the urgent request of representative ministers and laymen I have accepted the chairmanship of the Sponsoring Committee for a united Christmas appeal which the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America is making in behalf of those who are suffering most from the national and racial antagonisms in the world today. I shall be glad if you will print this letter in your columns as a means of letting your readers know about this great venture in Christian goodwill.

The pent-up feelings of the Christians of America and their desire to do something about the present tragedies in the world must have a practical outlet. The one plan on which they can all agree is to unite in caring for those who are in deepest distress throughout the world. The birthday of Christ affords the best of all opportunities both for a Christian witness to a war-torn world and for sacrificial giving in the spirit of Christ.

Three great groups of sufferers are to be included in the joint appeal: countless civilian victims of the war in China, the children on both sides of the civil war in Spain and the Christian German refugees who have been impoverished and forced to leave their homes as a result of the cruel laws against "non-Aryans."

The united appeal of the Federal Council will support and reinforce in every way the separate relief appeals made by several communions, and opportunity will be given to designate any gift for the special fund of any denomination. Gifts not otherwise designated will be turned over to established and well-recognized Christian agencies working in each of the three fields. The money for China will be expended through such agencies as are designated by the Foreign Missions Conference of North America; the contributions for Spain will be placed at the disposal of the American Friends Service Committee (Quaker); the contributions for the German refugees will be administered through the American Committee for Christian German Refugees.

The Christmas appeal will be made through local churches and it is hoped that all pastors will plan now for a share in this movement through an offering on the Sunday before Christmas or, if it be more convenient, on some other Sunday in December. The goal of the appeal is an offering, whether large or small, from every congregation in America as a part of a united testimony of Christian love and sympathy.

A distinguished group of the most trusted leaders in all major communions (of the Protestant Churches) have agreed to join in sponsoring the appeal. (Here follow the names of twenty prominent denominational leaders and several outstanding laymen.)

Very sincerely yours,
J. R. Mott, Chairman, of Committee of United Christmas Appeal.

CHRISTIAN CONSECRATION

Philippians 1:12-26

Topic: What Christian Surrender Means

Introduction

Christian consecration consists in giving self to God to be used as He sees fit. Paul goes to the very heart of this in Romans 12:1. It is difficult to imagine a life more wholly devoted to God than Paul's was. Paul wrote this epistle from Rome while a prisoner, yet he was contented and joyful in being permitted to preach and teach the Gospel. His great purpose was to magnify Christ, whether by freedom or imprisonment, by life or by death. His chief concern was for the success of God's work.

Witness of Paul's Bonds vs. 12-18

The measure of our service to Christ depends on the degree of our consecration, not on our circumstances. Paul wished to assure the Philippian Christians that his imprisonment was promoting the cause of the Gospel (v12). His bonds in Christ, he considers a badge of honor (v13). Paul, chained to a soldier of the Praetorian guard, had opportunity to speak to many of these, as they were changed often. The soldiers and people saw that he was not an imprisoned criminal. The name of Christ lodged in the minds of these and was spread widely. Paul, at liberty preached to many; Paul, in captivity preached to more.

The Christians, aroused by his example, spake the word as never before (v14). His courage was contagious. Then, as now, there were those who would hinder the work of Paul, stirring up opposition (vs 15, 16). He was not disturbed by these, his only concern was that Christ be preached. He sank all personal considerations out of sight in his defence of the gospel (vs. 17,18). He will rejoice in the proclaiming of the truth of Christ, even by his adversaries. Joy is the supreme theme of the Epistle to the Philippians.

Confidence in Prayer vs. 19-21

Paul endeavors to ease the anxiety of his Philippian Christian friends, over his personal fate, by declaring his conviction that God is answering their prayers for him and his work (v19), by an outpouring of the Spirit of Christ. This is the only true relief in trouble. Paul had experienced this. Intercessory prayer was the secret and source of his power and strength. He feels sure his enemies will not be able to frustrate his work (v20). He earnestly expects that his boldness for God will bear fruit in his own life and in the lives of others. He states very pointedly, the great purpose of his life in verse 21. Life for him, is so full of Christ that He sums it all up. Life means Christ because he is one in spirit with Him and death can only make that oneness complete—death is gain.

Full Consecration to Christ vs. 22-26

Paul faces life or death with equanimity. He scarcely knows which to choose. If he remain here, Christ will continue to be magnified by his life (v22) and more fruit will reward his labor. He is unable to decide which is really best for Christ's cause (v23). His personal desire is to go and be with Christ. However he is thinking more of others than of himself (v24). In the spirit of full consecration, he leaves it entirely in the Lord's hands (v25). He feels he still has work to do on earth and is confident God will preserve his life as He sees is best. This is true Christian consecration, surrender—giving the whole of self to God—our will to do His will.

Paul fully consecrated all his talents to God's use. Ours are not to lie idle.

Paul's consecration included a readiness to suffer for Christ's sake. His sufferings were inevitably connected with his mission as the Apostle to the Gentiles. He was ready to lay down his life, if need be, for his Master. We need the heroism of Paul today. Phil. 3:13, 14.

Oklahoma Bible Academy

The O.B.A. at Meno, Okla., offers a special Bible Course this school year, to begin Jan. 3, 1938, continuing for 6 or 8 weeks and ending with a special Bible Conference of eight days, beginning on Sunday and ending on Sunday. Below is a proposed outline of the course. The subjects for the eight-day Bible Conference will be announced later.

The following is the tentative daily program:

Bible I: Gospel according to Luke

Bible III: Gospel according to St. John and Ephesians

Evangelism (See outline below)

Sunday School Teacher Training (See outline below)

Pastoral Work (See outline below)

Church and Mennonite History (See outline below)

Part or all of the work may be taken.

The plan is to give four class periods a week on each subject, with a review on Friday. This is for the purpose of giving in condensed form, what was taught during the week, to accommodate those who can possibly come in only one day in the week.

This special Bible course is intended for evangelists, S. S. teachers, pastors, and other church workers. Those from a distance that desire accommodations for board and lodging should write early to Rev. August Schmidt, so provision can be made, as our dormitory is filled with regular students.

We would ask all who have a real interest in the Lord's work to pray that the O. B. A. in its activities may be fully guided by the Holy Spirit.

Yours in His blessed service, J. B. Frey.

Emergency Relief

REMEMBER

Dear Readers of THE MENNONITE:

For us Christians "IT IS MORE BLESSED TO GIVE THAN TO RECEIVE." At Christmas time, especially, as we commemorate the coming of THE GREATEST OF ALL GIFTS, CHRIST, who gave His all for us, our hearts and hands ought to open wide to give all we possibly can, to help lighten the burden of the distressed and suffering millions the world over.

There are, first our needy brethren in Canada, in Mexico, South America, and our missions in India and China damaged by floods. Next there are the war stricken, starving, freezing children in Spain; the homeless, destitute war sufferers in China! Shouldn't our Christian hearts pour out in sympathy and love to those OUR NEIGHBORS, whom we are to love as ourselves?

The distress in Spain is growing, and how tragic must be the war-torn sights and the plight of the people in China. In Canada there is that great debt, increased by about $35,000 through deaths and otherwise. There is also a debt owed the German government contracted by the brethren in South America. —Let us give until it hurts. Let us pray God to give us willing hearts and hands, and multiply our gifts.

John Lichti, Chm., Relief Board.

CORRESPONDENCE

UPPER MILFORD CHURCH, ZIONSVILLE, PA.

Upper Milford Church is glad to report news items that may be of interest to the readers of THE MENNONITE. The Ladies Aid Society of the church celebrated their 56th Anniversary on Sunday afternoon, October 24. An interesting program was arranged for the occasion, consisting of recitations, special music, vocal and instrumental. The address was given by Mrs. J. B. Boehr.

Rev. Howard G. Nyce, our pastor, assisted by the church choir conducted the services at the State Hospital, Allentown, Pa., Sunday afternoon, November 21.

The choir of the First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa., the sister congregation of this charge, rendered a Thanksgiving Cantata ("A Golden Harvest") in our church Sunday afternoon, November 28.

A two Manual Estey reed organ which has been used in our church from 1876 (the year our present church was built) to 1932, and all in all 67 years, has been donated to our Indian Mission station, at Oraibi, Arizona. In 1932 our church was improved and a new pipe organ was installed, but the old organ was continued in use in the primary department. It is in good order, as an instrument and also in appearance. When Rev. and Mrs. Suderman of our Indian Mission station, at Oraibi, Arizona, were visiting our church this past summer, they were interested in the organ for use in their meetings. The Ladies Aid Society of our church is sponsoring a plan to send the organ to the mission station, freight prepaid, as a donation from the congregation.—Daniel R. Schantz, Corr.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, BERNE, IND.

Once more we must let our voice be heard before the year 1937 comes to a close, which is soon to be.

What is uppermost in our mind at this writing, we cannot refrain from saying, is the rendition of "The Messiah" by the Choral Society of the church last Sunday, Dec. 6. This was under the leadership of Prof. Russell A. Lantz of Bluffton College, and accompanied by the Bluffton orchestra. The strains of this Oratorio of Oratorios are still ringing in our ears, as they sounded from the choir loft and filled the building, which was packed with people. How thankful we are that it was ever put into the mind of man to write this masterpiece, and that it is now our privilege and joy to sing it.

This presentation was a little earlier than was desired, due to the conflicts on the other Sunday nights in December, as somehow "The Messiah" seems to belong to Christmas. Of course we know that at the time when the Saviour's birth was announced to the shepherds there were no snowflakes swirling and dancing in the air around Bethlehem, but in our country we like to associate snow with Christmas season, and so we were delighted when Providence favored us with gently falling snow which covered the ground with a light blanket for the evening of this day. All in all, it was a wonderful time, and our hearts were thrilled in anticipation of the time when all the redeemed shall stand, not around a Babe in a manger, but around Messiah's throne, and join in the great Hallelujah Chorus to the King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

The election of Sunday School officers for the year 1938 was just held, and due to the necessary resignation of Mr. Edison Sprunger, who has so faithfully served for a number of years as Superintendent, it was necessary to choose a new Superintendent, which resulted in the election to this office of Mr. Freeman Burkhalter. We pray for him that he may be used of God in this office.

The children of the Sunday School are busy with preparation for the Christmas program, and are on tiptoe with expectancy waiting for that day, the one special day of gladness and joy for the children. God bless them!

Blessings continue to be ours on every hand, and our prayer is that in turn we may be a blessing to others, even to the ends of the earth.—Martha Gilliom, Correspondent.

EMMANUEL CHURCH, NOBLE, IOWA

Dear Readers: We are very thankful for the fruitful year we have had. Man proposes, God disposes. Rev. Delbert Welty has now been our pastor for two years and has preached the word of God richly and honestly. On September 26 we celebrated harvest festival. The week following we were richly blessed in a series of evangelistic meetings brought to us by Rev. Grover Soldner. Let us pray that our government may not again lose all reason, and repeat the error as it did in 1914. Jesus has taught, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." November 24 we were visited by the Bluffton College Gospel Team. The singing by the quartet and the sermon by Brother Shelly brought rich blessings to a full house. On November 28 Carl Landes brought us the morning sermon. The church choir is practicing the cantata "The Cross Triumphant." With a thankful heart for good health in our church, I wish you a Merry Christmas. May the Prince of Peace rule our hearts.—P. P. Graber, Crawfordsville, Iowa.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, BEATRICE

Dear Editor and Readers: When we pause and think a moment, we find that we are in the last month of the year. This undoubtedly brings to our minds many occasions and incidents of praise and thanksgiving to God for his wonderful protection and guidance. On the other hand we will admit that we have so many times come short of the Glory of God, during the past eleven months of this year. If God has still given us grace, we should improve ourselves in the future.

In the fall of the year it was the privilege and honor of our church to welcome six new members into the congregation. The new members were Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Epp and daughter Helen, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Miller, and Mrs. Louie Wiebe. Rev. Epp serves our congregation the first and third Sunday of each month in the German and English language. Rev. Epp and Brother Miller have charge of the Bible class on Thursday evenings, where we are discussing the book of Acts.

Rev. J. M. Regier and Prof. David Richert visited our church in behalf of Bethel College. They gave an illustrated talk on astronomy and the college campus.

The choir rendered a Thanksgiving Program. Both the Junior and the Senior choirs are practicing Christmas cantatas.

We have already elected the superintendent and the teachers for the children's classes, and on the 12th of December we expect to hold election for the adult classes. It is our prayer that God may bless the newly elected workers and the Sunday school work as a whole the coming year.—Corr. W. R. Penner.

Spiritual Banquets

From Philadelphia:

"First Church C. E., Philadelphia, celebrated with a Thanksgiving Dinner of Spiritual food. Seated about the table, lit with candles, the group went from course to course (See menu herewith) by absorbing well-prepared topics on the meaning and significance of the day. Music from the opening hymn to the Doxology was most appropriate."

The program shown herewith were neatly typed, and then folded in a little cover, on which was pasted a big turkey, and the name of the guest, after which they were neatly tied with a colored ribbon — just the sort of thing any church group could do anywhere.

We feel that those C. E. groups which share their successful programs with others through these columns have certainly caught the spirit and purpose of the Youth Section of our Church papers. We suggest that every society which uses or appreciates the contributions which appear in these columns resolve to send the best program of the year to the Youth Section of THE MENNONITE, once a year.

Doxology

Think for a moment of all the effort that goes into a really GOOD program! Why should it be necessary for committees everywhere to be cracking their skulls over what to do next, when splendid programs are being worked out all the time, and which would be perfectly good in another church. We have in mind, just now, some of the splendid Armistice Day programs which, to our knowledge, requires hours and hours of preparation, and which would be an inspiration in any church, losing practically none of their value through having been used twice.

That would make for SPIRITUAL BANQUETS ON A LARGE SCALE!—B. B.

Going to Gloryland

I'm on my way to the Gloryland. Undoubtedly you are too. There's a lot of fun on the way, isn't there? It's the deep, joyous kind that doesn't disappear when little annoyances bother a person. It makes one feel like singing a lot; sometimes it makes one say "Praise the Lord" for no reason whatever.

We pass on the way a great many people, however, who are not going in the same direction. I wonder if some of them even know about the Gloryland, much less how to get there. I'm sure the woman who sat next to me in the street-car yesterday didn't know about it. The look in her face told me that. Perhaps I should have said something to her, but my shyness held me back. Imagine being shy when I could give her the most comforting news in the world!

Yes, I must keep my heart fixed on the gloryland and the One who is the true and living Way to it; but I must not forget to motion passersby to join me as I go along. It is not fair to keep the way a secret. They have as much right to it as I.

There are the folk with whom I work. The girls in the office, and even the manager, ought to know about the Way to the Gloryland. When the subject is approached they may excuse themselves, — "can't really understand it," "seems fantastic," "all right for some one else," "can't be bothered." It's too bad how they cheat themselves out of a really good time in life. Some of them may think seriously on the subject, and who knows, may some day join our company. I'm not going to let their indifference discourage me, but just keep a look-out for some one else who might be interested.

Reports from the foreign fields tell us that the natives are coming in great numbers to pause and listen to the missionaries as they point out the Gloryland and Him who is the Way to it. The trouble there is that many are too far away from the missionaries to see and hear. The missionaries are too scarce.

Here I sit at home and wonder what I can do for my Lord when out in India, and China, and Africa the missionaries cry out for assistance in their vast task! Perhaps you feel the same way about it. What should we do about it? Can we say less than "Lord, here am I, send me"? —Helene Wiens, Chicago, Ill.

Problems in Daily Living

(Consecration Meeting)
Luke 9:57-62
Young People's Topic for Jan. 2, 1938

Suggested Hymns

"I Would be True," "Take My Life and Let it be."

Meditation:

M. Dec. 27. Problems of Honesty. Rom. 12:17
T. Dec. 28. How to Handle Gossip. II Thess. 3:11-18
W. Dec. 29. How to Control Anger. Prov. 15:1, 2
T. Dec. 30. How to Face Discouragement. Acts 16:19-25
F. Dec. 31. How to Keep on Good Terms with People. Rom. 14:19.
S. Jan. 1. How to Act Toward Foes. Rom. 12:17-21

Problems:

I. Discipleship Desired (vs. 57).—There are many who desire the benefits of being a Christian, if it involves no obligations. They are willing to believe, but not to obey. They want Christ as their Savior, but not as their Lord. They believe in His death, but not in His resurrection.

Such a separation between the Saviorhood and the Lordship of Christ is quite common, but not permissable. Salvation is to be had on the simple condition of faith, but there must be coupled with it a willingness to obey the Risen Lord. The Lord knows the hearts of men. He wants devoted disciples, disciples who mean it when they say, "I will follow Thee whithersoever Thou goest."

II. Discipleship Described (vs. 58).—The certain man talking in this verse evidently expected that following Christ would lead to greatness, glory, gain. Jesus saw the mistake and at once explained that the way of a true disciple is just the opposite. The disciple must be like his Master, who was so poor that He had "not where to lay His head."

But those words mean more than just Jesus' poverty. They refer to Christ's coming rejection. In this verse (v.58) Christ's rejection, suffering and death are set forth. Foxes have shelter, birds have protection, but for Him there was no place to lay His head, not even when He came to die, for He was crucified. To follow Him, then, means to go with Him into suffering and death, and also to share in His resurrection.

III. Discipleship Deferred (vs. 59).—"Suffer me first to go bury my father." Clearly this man was a procrastinator. In that day it was common practice to bury the dead on the very day of their death. So the truth of the matter is, this man wanted to defer discipleship until after his father died. And that may not have taken place for many years.

We find many such procrastinators today and even among young people. They want to defer salvation, service, and even consecration until some later day. Some say they want to wait until they are older others until they are through college, or even until they get married and find a life's work. Back of such procrastination is usually the same condition of heart, namely a desire to enjoy the things of this world a while longer. The Lord gives no guarantee for the future. He demands an immediate, clean-cut decision for Him. So, let us not be procrastinators in our resolve to follow Him.

IV. Discipleship's Duty (vs. 60).—This verse has two conditions. The first is negative. "Let the dead bury the dead." Under the law it was defiling to touch a dead body. The priests, especially, had to maintain a strict separation from defiling things. So separation from all that is defiling is the true duty of discipleship today. Through Christ our contact with the world is broken, and we are no longer under obligation to it.

The other condition is positive. "Go thou and preach the Kingdom of God." God has need of young people who will go out and proclaim His Word. It is the greatest work to which a human being could be called. He calls to us in youth. Let us not delay our decision to obey Him.

V. Discipleship Deliberated (vs. 61).—Missionaries tell us that natives sometimes come to the mission and are persuaded that they need to be converted. Before they actually take the step of becoming a Christian, however, they wish to go back to their village just once more. As a rule such natives never come back. One more indulgence in the things of the world constitutes such a lure that they never break away from it. It is always fatal to attempt to compromise when God has called for a definite decision.

VI. Discipleship's Demands (vs. 62).—"No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God." Any one who has plowed a first furrow across a field knows how very important it is to keep his eye on the marker at the other end to the field. So it is with discipleship.

God wants our whole-hearted service. Shall we not then in this first consecration meeting of this new year, make sure that we have given ourselves wholly to the Lord? Let us remember that consecration is not only for service, but also for full and complete possession.

A Ship Meeting

A touch of interest and realism can be added to the topic by carrying out the idea of a ship in connection with "steering or drifting." A poster with a boat drifting toward an iceberg or a waterfall, with the topic lettering, will arrest the attention. Small ships cut from cardboard can be used for assignments or invitations. Other ideas, such as seating in a semicircle like an observation room, the program put into the hands of the members in the form of a "Log" S. S. "Intermediate Christian Endeavor" will sail from Pier 1938." Time and Place.

Suggested Songs

"Fling Out the Banner," "Who Will Our Pilot Be," "Follow The Gleam," "Give of Your Best," "True-hearted, Whole-hearted."

Quiet Worship

Use the two Scripture passages, Heb. 2:1-4 and Phil. 3:12-16; several devotional songs, sentence prayers and fitting poem for this part of the meeting.

For the Leader:

Explain the difference between steering and drifting, by using the boat as an illustration. Describe a day begun without any definite purpose and one in which we set out to accomplish a number of things to show the difference between the two attitudes.

Paul had one aim in life, to live for Christ. Anything that hindered him in reaching this goal was cast aside. Anything that helped him, no matter how small or how painful or difficult, he welcomed. He was like the captain of a ship, who is given one responsibility, to bring the ship safely into port. He keeps this before him continuely and nothing is allowed to interfere with reaching his goal. We need a goal in our society, we need a goal in our personal lives. That will settle many questions for us. All we need to answer is, "Will it help?" or "Will it hinder?" to determine our action.

Society Goals for 1938.

1. If your society has a definite program, a number of things you hope to do during the next six months, let it be presented. There is nothing that will so arouse the interest of your members as giving them a number of definite things to look forward to, which your society expects to do.

2. Some worthy goals for your society.
   a. Making your meetings Christ-centered
   b. Every meeting carefull planned with the leader
   c. Holding a pre-prayer circle to pray definitely for the meeting
   d. Attending conventions and retreats
   e. Missionary meetings and projects

Personal Goals for 1938.

Your pledge can well be used for the basis of these goals. "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I promise Him that (1) I will strive to do whatever He would have me do. (2) I will make it the rule of my life to pray and read the Bible, (3) to support the work and worship of my church, (4) and to take part in the meetings and other activities of this society. (5) I will seek to bring others to Christ, (6) to give as I can for the spread of the Kingdom, (7) to advance my country's welfare, (8) and promote the Christian brotherhood of man." Have some one speak briefly on these as a personal goal for 1938.

The Quiet Hour A Help

On one occasion Peary, the Artic explorer, supposed he was traveling toward the North Pole at the rate of ten miles a day. He found, however, that the ice floe on which he was moving was drifting toward the equator at the rate of twelve miles per day. So he was really moving away from his goal. But he never would have discovered it if he had not looked skyward to get his bearings. Just so we cannot be sure we are advancing toward our goal unless we look upward.

HAVE YOU TRIED THIS?

Hold a short installation service for your newly elected officers. They will take their responsibilities more seriously. It will help them to do their service "as unto the Lord." Your society members will be more loyal to them. Copies of an effective installation service, using colored candles, can be had for the asking from the editor of this department.

Program Suggestions—January-June

January: "GOD"
Aim: A study in the nature of God that shall lead to a fuller trust in Him.

February: "SO LOVED"
Aim: A study in the love of God as revealed in Bible incidents that shall lead to a deeper devotion to Him.

March: "THE WORLD"
Aim: A study of the world and its need of a Savior; a study of Christ's command to the Church and of the mission work which the Church is doing in answer of this command.

April: "THAT HE GAVE"
Aim: A study of the truth that all the Kingdom building is done not by man but through him.

May: "HIS ONLY BEGOTTEN SON"
Aim: A study of Jesus as the Son, the Savior, the Friend which shall lead to fuller understanding and deeper love for Him.

June: "THAT WHOSOEVER BELIEVETH ON HIM SHOULD NOT PERISH BUT HAVE EVERLASTING LIFE."
Aim: A study of the truth that salvation is a gift bestowed upon simple belief.

Program Outline for January, 1938

Theme: "GOD"

January 2: God the Father
January 9: God the Present One
January 16: God the Powerful One
January 23: God the Knowing One
January 30: God the Faithful One

Verse of the month: "Oh Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me. Thou knowest my downsitting and my uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off." Psalm 139:1, 2.

Song of the month: "We praise Thee, O God, our Redeemer, Creator" (Mennonite Hymnal)

Suggestions for January 2, 1938

God the Father

New Year's Prayer Service in charge of leader. Let this be a fifteen minute service. Gather the children in the back of the church. Allow the first five to hold unlighted candles. Walk to seats to the soft playing of a hymn. Let those, bearing candles, set the same into the holders which have been placed on a table in front of the group. Begin the service with the singing of appropriate hymns. Close song service with "God will take care of you." The Lighting of the Candles: Let these candles represent the five themes for thanksgiving. These five themes could be the program outline for January:

1. Candle One: Thanking for God our Father
2. Candle Two: Thanking because God is always present
3. Candle Three: Thanking because God is powerful
4. Candle Four: Thanking because God knows all things
5. Candle Five: Thanking because God is faithful

Lead the children to enter into these prayers. At the close blow out four of the candles, leaving Candle One burning which represents the theme for the evenings study. Lead into study period by singing in unison the hymn for this month: We praise Thee, O God, our Redeemer, Creator.

Study Period:

1. "Like as a father": Talks by Juniors
   a. Like a father, God provides for his children: Ps. 103:13, Matt. 6:25-32
   b. Like a father, God punishes his disobedient child: Deut. 8:5; Prov. 10:1a
   c. Like a father, God gives good gifts to His children: Matt. 7:11
   d. Like a father, God comforts His children: Is. 66:13
   e. Like a father, God wants His children to have that which will cause them to live, not die: Luke 12:32; John 3:36; Ps. 133:3
2. Special music: "His Eye Is on the Sparrow"
3. Heart-talk: "Trusting Him in 1938" by leader
4. Song in unison: "Guide me, O Thou great Jehovah"
5. Closing prayer

TO THE JUNIOR

"Once there was a tiny baby,
Lying in the strangest bed;
'Twas a manger in a stable
Where the cows and oxen fed.

And it was the sweetest baby
Ever brought by angel wings
Down to earth, for it was Jesus,
And He is the King of Kings.

Yes, and He was something better
He was more than just a King!
For He came to be our Saviour
And the gift of life to bring.

O I wish that for His birthday,
Some nice present we could bring;
But we are so young
And we have not anything.

Yes, we have, for we can give Him
In our hearts a home;
We can give ourselves to Jesus—
He will take us if we come."

CORRESPONDENCE

SARON MENN. CHURCH, ORIENTA, OKLA.

Many times during this Thanksgiving season were we reminded of the great goodness of God as the Giver of every good and perfect gift and were led to keenly feel the need of more consecrated and truly grateful living. Our annual mission sale and Thanksgiving supper were held in the church basement on Nov. 23. We again had the pleasure of having Missionary and Mrs. Linscheid and some of their friends from Canton with us. Rev. Linscheid led the devotionals preceding the sale. Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Frey of Meno, alsa were with us.

For the beginning of the year the two Brethren P. Kroeker and August Schmidt were ordained to the ministry. Rev. J. B. Epp officiating.

In February Rev. E. Neuenschwander of McPherson, Kansas, held a series of meetings. Souls were stirred and a number of young people surrendered their lives to God. After catechism instruction had been given them by Rev. August Schmidt, eight young people were baptized and became affiliated with our congregation on August 15. Rev. J. R. Duerksen from Kingman, Kansas, officiated. At that time the Lord's Supper was observed. In September Rev. Bergen from Goltry, Okla. was called to baptize another young sister.

The Ladies' Chorus from Hesston College, Hesston, Kansas, rendered a very nice program, when on their tour in spring. Among other blessings shared with us we number the frequent musical renditions by pupils from the O.B.A. and Mens Chorus' from Meno, Okla. and services by Rev. J. B. Frey, Meno, Okla., by Rev. Sol. Mouttet, Inola, Okla., Rev. H. A. Fast, Newton, Kansas, and D. Gaede, California.

On Nov. 19 the Young People's Meeting had as their guest speaker Rev. J. B. Frey who spoke of his experiences at the Arizona Mission.

At present our Sunday School folks are busily preparing the Christmas program. We do pray that our efforts may be directed to only glorifying God in the Highest.—Correspondent.

EBENEZER MENN. CHURCH, BLUFFTON. O.

Nov. 7: The evening service was omitted here, to visit the Lima Mission Church. The "Living Link Class" presented the church with an altar lamp, thus favoring the pastor.—Nov. 14: The Swiss Men's Community Chorus, under direction of Alvan Burkholder, favored us with an inspiring song service.—First and second week of November Brother Kliewer, our pastor, visited many homes, speaking words of cheer and comfort.—German services in afternoon of Nov. 21, with a thirty minutes German song service.—A collection of materials was taken to Rev. Kliewers to be sent to the needy in Canada and Kentucky.—A pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Geiger, Nov. 14, when they celebrated their fifty-third wedding anniversary. All their children were present from far and near.—Nov. 24: A contribution for the Community Hospital at Bluffton was made.

Fourth week of November was preparatory service week. Monday evening: Sermon on "Exortation" by our pastor; Tuesday: "A Memorial" by Rev. Fisher; Wednesday: "A Soul Tonic" by Rev. D. J. Unruh; Thursday: Thanksgiving sermon by pastor; Friday: "Restoration" by pastor.—Sunday, Nov. 28: A. M., Communion service, text, "Life in the Blood" by Rev. Kliewer, assisted by Rev. Templin. Offering for Ezra Steiners, our charge in Thibet . . . P. M., Annual Missionary program: Speaker, Miss Elizabeth Hilty, returned missionary from China.—Nov. 29: The snowflakes gently falling remind us of Isa. 1:18, "Your sins shall be as white as snow."—Correspondent.

HOFFNUNGSAU MENN. CHURCH, INMAN, KS.

The Hoffnungsau Mennonite Church Mission Society, consisting of "The Ladies Aid" and "The Happy Hour Club" held their annual Mission Sale at the church on Nov. 13. A free lunch was served to all present and the sale netted a total of $500.00.

On Thanksgiving Day we observed our Harvest and Home services and collected for our Foreign and Home Missions the sum of $716.00. Our minister A. J. Dyck preached the Thanksgiving Sermon based on the parable of The Good Samaritan, stressing the thoughts: 1. Whatever is yours is mine if I can get it; 2. Whatever is mine, is mine to keep; and (3) Whatever is mine, is mine to share with others, the murderer, the Levite and the Samaritan.

Rev. A. J. Dyck spent a week in service at the Ebenezer Church at Gotebo, Oklahoma. Rev. Henry Hege, pastor. The meetings closed with Communion Services on Sunday, Nov. 21.

The Church Board of the church at Carnegi also held a meeting with Rev. A. J. Dyck, chairman of the Home Mission Committee, while he was in Oklahoma, and made arrangements for the year 1938.

FAMILY CHRONICLE

MARRIAGES

BARTELL-MARTENS.—On Nov. 28, by Rev. T. A. van der Smissen, at the Hebron Church, near Buhler, Kansas, Allen Bartell and Selma Martens were united in marriage. Wedding sermon preached by Rev. J. M. Suderman.

DEATHS

MISS HELENA JANSEN, daughter of Cornelius and Helena von Riesen Jansen, passed away November

9, 1937, at her home in Pasadena, California. She was born in Berdjansk, Russia, November 14, 1859, from which place she came to Canada with her family in 1873, and two years later to Beatrice, Nebraska. This was her home until nineteen years ago when she moved to Pasadena. Here she transferred her membership from the Beatrice Mennonite Church to the Mennonite Church of Los Angeles where she was a faithful member until the time of her death. Originally there were in the family two sisters, Margaret, and Anna (Mrs. Aaron E. Claassen), and three brothers, Peter, John, and Cornelius. Of these the only one to survive her is the last named, now residing in Los Angeles. Also surviving is Miss Anna Dirks, ninety-two years of age, who has been her constant companion for over thirty years.

Because the Mennonite Church was a number of miles distant, and because of infirmities brought on by illness and age, Sister Jansen, during the past several years, worshipped frequently at the German Methodist Church located but a half block from her home. For that reason, too, the funeral services were conducted by the pastor of that church, the Reverend F. W. Elger, a man who knew her life well. The pall bearers and the quartet which sang both German and English songs were, however, all from the Mennonite Church. Interment was made in the Mountain View Cemetery of Los Angeles.

Throughout her life the deceased was deeply interested in every type of Christian service. This is well indicated in the following tribute by a friend who knew her intimately:

Helena Jansen, we shall not forget Thee
  Thy influence will live on,
Through Thy paintings and Thy music
  Through Thy poetry and song.
Oh, the long, long years of suffering,
  Yet a smile upon Thy face
Until the SILENT ONE came quickly,
  Took Thee to Thy God in space!
The FAITH Thy Parents gave Thee,
  Thou didst keep until the end.
And the MANY, who were near Thee
  Knew Thee as their LOVING FRIEND.

—Mabel Fossler.

KATHERINE WILHELMINA SCHOWALTER, nee Risser, was born August 19, 1858 in Friedelsheim Rheinbayern. In her youth she received religious instruction from her minister, Rev. Jacob Ellenberger, who also baptized her. Since her mother passed away, she took over the responsibility of housekeeping for her father until her marriage in 1886 to Abr. E. Schowalter. This marriage was blessed with four children.

Soon after their marriage they immigrated to America and moved onto a farm southwest of Halstead. Because of failing health of her husband they returned to Germany in 1890, and later again to America to their farm. In 1915 they moved to Halstead where they resided until her death.

On November 15 she became seriously ill and peacefully passed away, at the local hospital on Nov. 26, to her everlasting home. She learned to know her Savior in her youth and we have the assurance that she now abides with Him forever. She reached the ago of 79 years, 3 months and 7 days.

Funeral services were held from the Mennonite church at 2:30 p. m., Monday, the Rev. David C. Wedel and the Rev. J. J. Hammel, preaching the funeral tribute. Interment was in the Halstead cemetery.

DORA A. KREHBIEL passed away at Liberty, Mo., Sunday morning, Nov. 21, 1937, at 9 a. m. Miss Krehbiel was born December 23, 1872 in Washington county, Iowa. At the age of eleven years she was brought to Harvey county, Kansas, by her father, Herman Krehbiel, where she resided until 1900 when she moved to Reno county. She was a member of the Mennonite church.

For the past nine years Miss Krehbiel has been residing with her sister, Mrs. Mollie Foster of Kansas City, Kansas, until she passed away Sunday morning. She reached the age of 64 years, 10 months and 29 days.

Services were held Nov. 24 at 2:30 p. m. from the McCarthy and Dreese funeral chapel, the Rev. David C. Wedel officiating. Burial was in the Halstead cemetery. Mrs. Foster accompanied the body here for services.

SUSIE JANZEN-BULLER, of Medford, Okla., daughter of Heinrich P. and Lena Janzen, nee Bergen, was born Nov. 16, 1897, near Wankomis, Okla. She grew to womanhood near Medford. On May 11, 1913 she was baptized, and joined the Mennonite church, later transferring to the Church of God, of Numa, Okla. Aug. 15, 1924, she was married to Jake B. Buller, and the couple made their home north of Numa, Okla. To this union was born one daughter. Mrs. Buller's death followed a critical illness and a period of several months of failing health. She passed away in an Enid hospital on Dec. 2, at the age of forty years and 16 days.

She is survived by her husband, Jake B. Buller, daughter Maxine, 10 years old, her mother, Mrs. Lena Janzen, Enid, two brothers, John H. Janzen, Enid, and Jake B. Janzen, Hutchinson, Kansas, and two sisters, Dr. Helen Prioitt, Enid, and Mrs. Clarence Neufeld, Hutchinson.

Funeral services were held Dec. 5, 1937, in the Christian Church, Medford, Rev. John Lichti and Rev. Tront, officiating. Interment in the Rosemand Cemetery, near Medford. May she rest in peace!

—Rev. H. T. Unruh, Pastor First Menn. Church, Bluffton, Ohio, writes: Our church council at its last meeting decided to send a copy of our bulletin to you every week. You may glean through the same and take whatever you please for the Mennonite. We put on a special campaign and have secured 26 new subscribers. We like our Bluffton field very much. We think our morning services are so inspirational, due to the church edifice and the attitude of the worshippers. The Mennonite now is a paper I love to read, and I hope the new subscribers will fall in love with it, too.—Editor: We thank Bro. Unruh for these kind words, and would that all church councils might follow the action of the Bluffton board, and send their bulletin to the editors of our church papers.

—Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kansas. During the week of November 28th-December 3rd, a series of religious meetings was conducted by Rev. J. N. Smucker of the Bethel College Church in the Buhler Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kansas. Rev. Smucker based his sermons on the Lord's Prayer, using one phase of the prayer for each of his six inspirational talks. The meetings were well attended and much spiritual blessing was derived from them. — Mrs. Harold M. Regier.

—Zion Menn. Church, Souderton, Pa., Rev. E. Bohn, Pastor.—The annual father-son banquet was held Nov. 17, with Rev. Probst, pastor of the Lutheran church as speaker. It was a good meeting.—The East Coast Bluffton College reunion was held at Grace Church, Lansdale, Nov. 27. A goodly number of ex-students and friends of the school were present.—A splendid peace program was rendered in our church on Armistice day. A resolution was passed to observe such a meeting every year on this day.—On Sunday, Nov. 21, and Monday and Tuesday evening, Dr. H. A. Fast, field secretary spoke to us on the work and needs of our Conference.

—Rev. A. J. Dyck, Pastor of the Hoffnungsau church, Inman, Kansas.—Enclosed find check to pay for my subscription to THE MENNONITE for the year 1938.—I was glad when at the last Conference in McPherson the resolution was passed to have our own Junior S. S. Quarterly. We need quarterlies which stress our Mennonite principles. If we succeed as well as we have with our senior quarterlies, we will be richly blessed through the same. We wish you God's richest blessings in the endeavor to get these quarterlies.—With many wishes for the "Holiday Season" and in your work in the New Year, Sincerely yours, A. J. Dyck.

—"The Mennonite Messenger", Sugar Creek, Ohio.—We are just in receipt of the Christmas number of this church paper, published by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Stauffer. It is another beauty, full of good things, and very suggestive of the Christmas spirit. Bro. Stauffer certainly spares no effort nor cost to make the paper pleasing to the eye as well as spiritually helpful and uplifting. He uses high class advertising to help defray expenses, and thinks it would be well if our church papers could be made a bit more attractive in like manner.—The young people of the church very ably and dramatically presented Eastman's great peace play, "The Great Choice." The play was directed by Mrs. Stauffer.—The Batasna girls and the Women's Miss. Society have sent baby quilts and dolls to the Montana Indian Mission.—Corn husking is history again for this season. The huskers handled 3465 shocks, earning $193.60 with which to do good.

—Portland, Oregon, Dec. 6th, 1937.—Yesterday was a happy day here in our little Church in Portland. We had the pleasure to hear Brother J. M. Franz from Pratum on the subject "Bringing into the Temple the Lame Man." He also received six members into the Christian fellowship of the church by the right hand of fellowship. They were Rev. and Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Wiens, and Rev. and Mrs. Baumgartner. The work is going on quite well under Rev. Miller's leadership. They are generally liked. If ever it be your lot to come this way make it a point to attend the little church on N. E. 23rd and Webster.—S. S. Baumgartner.

— DO YOU KNOW? (Concerning our church paper, The Mennonite): 1. Who is the editor? 2. Where it is printed? 3. What it contains? 4. How often it comes and for what price? 5. Who should keep the paper?—ANSWERS: 1. J. R. Thierstein. 2. At Bethel College, Kansas, and by student printers. 3. It contains interesting information about Foreign and Home Missions, Church Schools and Conference activities. Also inspirational articles on Doctrine, Devotion, Practical Christian Living, Peace, etc. Also a Sermon Sketch, Sunday School lesson, Christian Endeavor material, Correspondence, Notices, Reports and News Jottings. 4. Comes weekly for the small sum of $1.50. 5. No Mennonite home can afford to be without it. It is more important than a newspaper or magazine.—Rev. Olin Krehbiel, in "The Grace Mennonite Church Messenger."

—Dr. J. E. Hartzler started a series of meetings in the Bethesda Mennonite Church, Henderson, Nebr., on Sunday, December 5. Monday forenoon, when he had conducted the Bible study for about half an hour, he began to feel considerably uneasy. The meeting was closed. And, upon examination, the local doctor advised that the patient be taken to a hospital for an appendix operation. As Brother Hartzler had gone through a siege of illness at the Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kansas, and had been taken care of so well he desired to be taken there at once in his own Buick. This was done by Rev. A. W. Friesen, elder of the Bethesda church. The party arrived at the Newton hospital at about 8 p. m. Monday night, and the patient was operated on during the night. He rallied well and at present is improving quite satisfactorily.

—Immanuel Mennonite Church, Pratum, Ore.—On Nov. 28 our Junior Choir favored us with a concert during the evening worship hour. The group is doing very creditable work under the leadership of Roy Rutschman.—Thanksgiving Day was observed as usual by having a joint service with our neighboring M. E. Church. Guy Drill, pastor of the First Christian Church in Salem brought a very timely and instructive message.—Corr.

—The Swiss Choral Society of the Freeman, S. D., neighborhood presented The Messiah on Sunday evening, Dec. 5, at the Salem Zion or North Church, with Prof. Gerhard Toews, music instructor in Freeman College, as director.

—Whether you are hungry or not, you will feed your body twenty-one times a week. Why not throw a bone to your soul, at least once a week, even though it may not seem very hungry. The poor thing may be too weak from starvation and neglect to make its wants known anyway.—J. A. Holmes.

—Lawrence Burkhalter, son of Rev. Paul A. and Mrs. Ada Wenger-Burkhalter, missionaries in India, has just graduated from school and will soon teach the children of the missionaries there.

New Year Prayer

Open to me the gates of righteousness: I will go into them, and I will praise the Lord.—Psalm 118:19.

Our Heavenly Father, we pause at the opening of this day to place ourselves in harmony with Thy great plans. We know it is unwise and sinful to oppose or attempt to hinder Thy purposes. Hear our humble appeal for Divine wisdom, for spiritual sensitiveness to Thy message, for broader views of our duty, and for the peace of God which fills the soul when working in full harmony with Thee. Let each of these blessings be given to all whom we love. Incline them to stop and pray—to watch and act, under the impulses which come from Heaven. Make known Thy love and law to all people in all lands, and hasten the era, when all mankind shall accept the teachings of Thy Son, and of the Holy Prophets, and thus in sincere agreement live in peace with all, and in full obedience and devotion to Thy Holy Will. We ask these great blessings in the Name of our Lord Jesus, Thy Son, and our Redeemer. Amen.—Russel H. Conwell, D. D., Philadelphia, Pa.

"Happy New Year"

Edna R. Brown

"Happy New Year! Happy New Year!"
Comes the greeting far and near.
Young and old the wish express,
Spreading joy and happiness
By these simple words of cheer.

What mean these words we so oft hear—
Though the wish be most sincere?
Wide the meaning we confess
Of "Happy New Year".

Some may mean a bright career,
Or constant smiles, but not a tear,
Or health or wealth our lives to bless.
But Christ alone brings happiness,
And you may have, while He is near
That truly happy "New Year".

Questioning

by Grace Noll Crowell

I ASKED the New Year, "what am I to do?"
The whole year through?"
The answer came: "Be true."

I asked again, "And what am I to say
To those who pass my way?"
"The kindest words," he said,
"That you can say."

"What thoughts am I to think, day long, year long?"
And clearly as a quick-struck gong
The answer: "Think no wrong."

"And what roads take across the earth worn sod
Where many feet have trod?"
Swift came the answer: "Those that lead to God."

Failures and the Right Direction

The apostle Paul says, Forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. This makes a splendid motto to follow in the New Year. But forgetting the past is not so easy, and Paul's memory often reverted to the bygone. However, instead of letting his past failures and mistakes hinder him, he used them as stepping-stones on which to climb higher in his service for God and humanity. Much depends on which way we are headed this new year. A man driving slowly along the road in the Adirondacks on New Year's Day stopped at a barn and, hearing some one milking inside, called, "Is this the right road to Chestertown?" The answer was, "Yes, it's the right road, if your are headed in the right direction." If right with God, then come what may. With perfect faith, you can face each day.—Some boiler builders, when asked if one of their boilers ever exploded, replied, "No, we wish one would, if no one were hurt, for we should like to know where the weakest part was. With this knowledge we could build a stronger boiler."

Failure is, in a sense, the highway of true success, inasmuch as every discovery of what is false leads us to seek earnestly after what is true, and every fresh experience points out some form of error which we shall afterward carefully eschew.—Keats.

Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths."—Prov. 3:5-6.

A New Year Suggestion

All through the Old Testament we find the sad spectacle of the chosen people slipping away from God. Thinking Christians have felt, for some time, that we are guilty of the same sin, all the more so, because this scientific, materialistic modern world has put at our disposal countless things that claim our attention and attachment because of the comfort, convenience, and pleasure they offer and easily, but, mostly unawares, become our idols, while God is apt to be neglected if not forgotten. It is eternally true that: Man cannot serve God and mammon, his heart is not big enough to worship the true God and idols at the same time. Now that conditions in the world are in such a muddle that the wisest do not see a way out, Christian leaders everywhere are urging a return to God as the only remedy to save the world from impending doom; this return to be to the point where the divine command, "thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart . . . soul . . . might" will find serious application. But our Savior taught us, to love God truly involves loving our neighbor (any human being in need) as ourselves.—So what would be more Christ-like and more pleasing to God than if those of us who read this would make our return to a closer contact with God our prime objective throughout the New Year. That will involve a more determined and intensive study of God's word; definite hours set aside for meditation and communion with God; true family worship, morning and evening; regular and interested attendance upon all religious services in the church; undivided support of the spiritual and financial program of the church; giving, not only what we can easily spare but until it begins to hurt, so as to practically demonstrate our love for our neighbors, which means, among other things, active and prayerful support of relief work and missions; doing all we can to give our children and young people a Christian education and bring them up in the fear of the Lord; not only talk peace but actually become peace-makers; keep the Sunday as God requires it; shun the use and support of anything: object, practice, institution, companionship, social function: that hinders a Christ-centered life. "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true . . . honorable . . . just . . . pure . . . lovely . . . of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. Richert, Sec.

Dear Readers of THE MENNONITE:

From disturbed China across the Pacific we wish all of you a blessed Christmas and a joyful, prosperous New Year!

It seems strange and inconsistent to think of a happy Christmas season when, just before I sat down to write this, the sirens blew an air raid signal. Bombers are zooming over China with death and destruction under their wings. Thousands of refugees are fleeing from place to place. Hundreds of wounded soldiers leave the front daily. All hospitals are overcrowded, staffs inadequate, medical supplies short. We went through the China Inland Mission Hospital here in Kaifeng today and saw the line of seriously wounded soldiers. On arrival here many had had no dressings from one to two weeks.

We men, Dr. and Rev. Pannebecker and I, are enroute to our stations. We came from our Annual Workers' Conference which was held at Kikungshan. Our families we left there. The war front is getting close to our China Mission field. How soon it will reach Tamingfu and Kai Chow we know not. But for the present, at least, we want to continue work as best we can. Some of our Christians and the families of our leaders have already gone farther south. Peace and quiet have fled from our field; yes, from most of China. These are dark and trying days. People are afraid, are lost, away from home, looking for a place of refuge, for comfort of heart. For peace! At this Christmas tide, instead of peace there is war.

But in just such dark days in Israel, Jesus came and the angels sang out the message, "Peace on earth, goodwill to men". Jesus is still our only hope and Saviour who gives comfort and peace. We are glad that we can proclaim this message of peace. Pray fervently with us for His peace to come and reign in the hearts of thousands here and now! "Peace I give unto you—not as the world giveth."—Wm. C. Voth.

P. S. My husband sent the above here to be typed and sent by airmail. On the day he wrote it, Nov. 12, Tamingfu, where our Mission station is, was taken by the Japanese. Severe fighting rages in that area according to newspaper and radio reports. On the 17th the paper stated that all foreigners are safe and gave the number of Americans as four. Since there were five (adults) we believe that Miss Fast had probably left for Kai Chow or other parts of our field. She planned to do so, and we fervently hope that is the case.

The advance at first seemed to be eastward to join the Tsinpu line, but the last report was that the Japanese "were halted in their advance southward by the arrival of Chinese reenforcements." Should they continue southward it is possible that our whole field will be effected.

Mr. Voth and the other men left Kaifeng by ricksha Nov. 13, going first to Ch'ang Yuan, where the Ewerts were formerly stationed. We trust they will be of some comfort to the distressed Christians. Up here on the mountains we are having heavy snow and sleet, all trees are clothed in ice and snow. We are thankful for warm houses and fuel for heating.

Yours in Christ, Mrs. Wm. C. Voth.

Christmas Reverie

Sister Frieda Kaufman

Part II (Concluded)

The next morning the first Sunday in the Advent is ushered in with a concert of sacred music. We have a "pick-up" from the Victrola to the radio and also many good records. As a rule Evan Williams opens the holiday season for us with the song, "Open the Gates of the Temple", closely followed by the recitative and aria from the Messiah "Comfort Ye My People" and "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted". Members of the household usually furnish some instrumental music, or a solo or special selection arranged for voices. We begin the concert at 5:30 A.M. and go to the dining room in procession at 6:15. This is also in festive array. There are lighted candles on each of the four long tables, small twigs of evergreen, and a card or a star at each plate with a Bible verse suited to the season. While the large family quietly finds its place at the tables, a choral is sung and all remain standing as an Advent poem is read and the blessing is asked. An Advent tree occupies a place of honor in the room. In our case, this is a small artificial evergreen decorated with 28 gold stars one for each day of the sacred pre-Christmas season. From the very top a lighted candle represents this first Sunday of the Advent telling us "That the true light which lighteth every man" is now coming to the world. After breakfast we recite in unison a memorized prophecy concerning the coming of the Saviour. We do this every morning during the entire Advent season, beginning with the prophecy in Genesis 3:15 and ending with Malachi 4:2a. As a scripture lesson for the day, we then read the portion of scripture in which this verse is embodied, following this up with verses from the new Testament which record the fulfillment of this prophecy most clearly. Though the breakfast by candlelight and special music remains for the Advent Sundays alone, a sister usually manages to give a radio concert to the household daily while the others are dressing for breakfast We have so much music which is suited to the season that we need many days to enjoy it all. We could never crowd it into one Christmas day. But let no one think that we have celebrated so long in advance that Christmas has lost its charm when it arrives. No heart can ever reach the height, nor the depth, nor the breadth of that wondrous love which is revealed in the Babe of Bethlehem. He is the fountain and source of true joy, bounteous joy!

Carol singers become numerous during the last week preceding Christmas day, some bring most helpful and sacred messages in song, others evidently make the frolic of the outing their chief concern,—all help to add to the season's joy. Programs are given at the Home for the Aged. Groups of children come with their teachers and entertain the assembled household, singers from churches give the shut-ins an advance performance of their Christmas music. Love and kindness find varied ways to express themselves. On the eve of December 23 the sisters give their program of song at the Home for Aged and at various times the Newton Concert Band followed this with an outdoor concert of Christmas airs. O thou joyous Christmas Season!

The hospital also takes on an ever more festive appearance as Christmas Day approaches, and busy hands complete the final preparations on December 24. A large illumined transparency portraying the Nativity is placed in the corridor where the celebration with the patients and their friends is to take place. There is a tree resplendent in lights and tinsel. Sprays and garlands of Christmas green are placed here and there. Small Christmas trees are carried to the patient's rooms, also a small plate with cookies and sweets.

Such a happy busy day! Mysterious looking boxes and a large tree have disappeared through the door leading to the dining room and thereafter it has remained tightly closed. There is much merriment as food is served in the kitchen directly from the stove cafeteria style. During the afternoon the auto must well nigh become dizzy. Groups of sisters and nurses hurry hither and thither and the baskets of supplies which have been prepared days in advance reach their destination to relieve want and bring Christmas cheer. Since the saddest place to spend Christmas must surely be a jail, a group goes there with songs and a gospel message about the One who has been sent "to proclaim liberty to the captives and the opening of the prison to them that are bound". (Isaiah 61:1)

Quietly, softly, the "Holy, Silent Night" descends from heaven with its message of peace and joy for all, even to the sick and dying. All who can be carried within the hearing of the program are assembled, and the Christmas story of God's wondrous love resounds through the house in song, in scripture, in prayer. What a blessed, holy hour full of worship and praise!

After the patients are tucked in for the night, as many of the household as possible and their guests assemble for the procession to the dining room singing carols as they descend the stairs. Standing before the large lighted tree decorated with white only, the group sings Christmas carols and the oldest member of the household, our Sister Hillegonda in her 90th year, reads the Christmas story from St. Luke and offers a prayer.

The lights on the Christmas tree are extinguished and in another moment an artistic stall portraying the Christmas scene is illumined. There they are—the Wise Men, the Shepherds, the cattle, the sheep, Joseph and Mary, all in adoration of the Holy Babe. The figures are of terra cotta, 12 inches high, beautifully molded, and above them is an angel, not carrying a little golden trumpet as the one of former days, but bearing in uplifted hands the legend "Gloria in Excelsis Deo". And some one has very carefully examined the invisible wire on which he is suspended from the ceiling within the stall, so that no harm may come to him and the scene beneath his outspread wings.

The group gathers closely around the Nativity scene, there are more carols (childhood favorites) and visiting children are given an opportunity to recite a Christmas poem, to sing, or to contribute anything they choose. Then all gather around the simply but beautifully decorated tables, bright with candle light for a treat of Christmas cookies and punch. The mail is distributed which has been secreted away for days. Gifts are unwrapped and there is much merriment for there are often clever verses and surprises of all kinds.

Then groups may form to go out to serenade, others gather about the radio in the sitting room, still others hasten away to some church to attend a late service. And the erstwhile small girl from the Wiesen valley, who has long ceased to be small and whose graying hair speak of many Christmases come and gone, may pause a bit to think of childhood days and the loved ones gone. She knows them safe in the everlasting arms, and with a grateful happy heart she realizes that as the years have passed Christmas has become richer, fuller, deeper, sweeter. Joy, abundant joy! The Christchild has come to earth again in the Holy, Silent Night!

SOME HIGH LIGHTS ON THE SERMONS

by Rev. H. P. Fast in First. Menn. Church, Mountain Lake, Minn., Nov. 14-21

1. God is Love. Saved or unsaved, God loves you. The breadth of his love—around the world; the length—to the beginning of creation; the depth—to the most fallen soul; the height—a sinner lifted to the right hand of God.

2. A good man lost and a bad man saved. The Pharisee was just, was thankful, went to church, prayed, was benevolent, but was lost. The Publican saw his sin, prayed for mercy, sought his righteousness in the right place.

3. Man's Greatest Enemy—Sin. Thousands are friends of sin, and love it. Sin enslaves, separates, breaks fellowship, brings reproach, excludes from glory.

4. The Greatest Question in Life: What about Jesus? Either the gospel will melt your heart, or you will harden yourself against it. The Jesus question is personal; you choose your own destiny. The question demands action: accept forgiveness and you have the greatest experience anyone can make. Some people think their conscience would be all right if they could get rid of the preacher. Settle the question, and you can have eternal life now, a present possession.

5. "Ye must be born again." One of life's imperatives. When people accept the second birth as God's gift, a miracle happens. The agents God uses are his Word and his Spirit. Where Christ enters a heart, there is no room for self-glory.

6. Behold, the bridegroom cometh. The evening shadows are drawing nearer. People don't know what to do about the sin that abounds. No call will spur the child of God to purity like this one: the bridegroom cometh. Let these four witnesses speak: the prophets, the angels, Paul and Christ. Be so prepared for his coming that you can always say: Come, Lord Jesus.

7. Signs of his coming. Multiplied sin. Ingratitude. Unspiritual churches. I hope I am prepared to leave this world when crime gets the upper hand. It will be a great day when I move out of this body into a new one. There are times when I say: When can I go? Who wants to be on this corrupting earth when the salt is removed?

8. Remember the Lord Jesus. Remember his suffering, his life, his return. Remember him in: sickness, in poverty, in death, in happy hours, in temptation, at the daily task. Don't talk about your church affairs to anyone but the Lord. Remember Christ, and he will heal your wounds, cleanse your life, and keep you prepared for his return.

9. God never changes in his Power, his Love, his Judgment of sin. It is a mystery to me how people can hear the gospel message and not heed it. God dealt with sin in Noah's day. He will deal with it in the future. I find it in Scripture. Now he is a savior; one day he will be a judge. I have made my choice. Have you?

It was a season of instruction and growth for the church. We will remember the teachings of the evangelist, and our light will reach a little farther in this dark world as a result.

Our congregation had the annual assembly Nov. 23. It was decided to raise the capita assessment from $2.50 to $3.00; to enlarge the speaker's platform; to repair the floor; to raise $300 for sanitary improvement; and to give $100 to the local Bible School. The financial report for 1937 was very encouraging.

Christmas greetings to Mennonites everywhere.

MEDITATION ON "THE ETFRNAL SECURITY TEACHING"

by J. L. Stauffer

In the Mennonite of Nov. 23, as well as "der Bundesbote" of the same date, appeared an announcement by the Committee on Doctrine and Conduct, of the mailing of certain literature to the various ministers of our General Conference churches, against supposedly false doctrines, for their approval and distribution in the churches. The writer of these Meditations would have it clearly understood that it is not his intention to raise his voice in defence of any doctrine, because any doctrine squarely based on the Word of God will stand by itself. Neither is it his intention to criticize our Committee on Doctrine and Conduct. On the contrary, we rejoice that our Committee feels the need to raise a voice against dangerous doctrines. We have learned, however, in the course of years, not to swallow every bait with hook, line, and sinker. Therefore, after studying carefully the booklet on The Eternal Security Teaching, we find the author of that booklet to be very unfair, to say the least. We should like to draw the attention of our dear readers to just two unfair statements out of many.

On page 10 they will find the following words: "If a limited atonement is the teaching of Scriptures, as Calvinists would have us believe," etc. Is this fair? As far as the writer of these Meditations is acquainted with Calvinism, this statement is extremely unfair. The author of the booklet would have us believe that the limitation of the atonement comes from God, while it is a fact that the Calvinists, with few exceptions, believe that it is by the choice of man that the atonement is limited. The author of said booklet bases his accusation on the theory of predestination. We do not believe in foreordination in extreme, as some do. Nevertheless we know that it is a scriptural teaching. This teaching is brought out in a very clear way in the Epistle to the Ephesians, the Epistle that deals with the believers most exalted position in heavenly places in Christ Jesus, and his most intimate fellowship with his Lord, the key-phrase being: In Him. Based on this fact, I ask the kind reader of Mr. Stauffer's booklet, are the author's conclusions fair? Are we General Conference Mennonites ready to reject this precious teaching altogether because of extremists in either direction?

Furthermore were we grieved to note that the author of the booklet puts the stamp of heresy upon some of the most spiritual Bible teachers of all times. Thus, for example, he tries to brand Dr. C. I. Scofield, the author of the Scofield Reference Bible and The Scofield Bible Correspondence Course, as a false teacher, in other words, he points him out as an heretic. This Bible, as well as the Correspondence course, has been a blessing to tens of thousands, in bringing them to a better knowledge and into a more intimate fellowship with their Lord. Mr. Stauffer also puts the stamp of heresy upon Dr. Lewis Sperry Chafer of the Biblical Seminary of Dallas, Texas. (See page 17). We had the rare privilege to listen to some of the most scriptural expositions by Dr. Chafer, just a few days ago, in the First Mennonite Church at Newton, Kansas. On that occasion I showed to Dr .Chafer Mr. Stauffer's misconstrued interpretation of one of Dr. Chafer's statements, torn out of its context, and the Doctor confirmed that he is grossly misinterpreted. Who is this Mr. Stauffer, anyway, who dares to lift his voice and pen against Bible teachers of world renown? Mr. Stauffer names but a few, but we could add a long list who are of the same faith. By attacking a few, Mr. Stauffer attacks all of the same faith, saints of God upon whom God himself has placed the stamp of approval by filling them with his Holy Spirit, to bring salvation to hundreds of thousands of souls. Mr. Stauffer indeed undertakes a great task to tell the whole world that all such servants of God are heretics.

Would it not be fair to compare the expositions of these men with the booklet on "The Eternal Securty Teaching"? Why is it that Mr. Stauffer never mentions Ephesians 1:13,14; 4:30, and similar passages, Are we ready to pass judgment without investigation? The author of these Meditations has come to the conviction that, to judge anything without investigation, is exceedingly unjust. Are we ready to stand against the world's Bible teachers and accept the radical opinion of one man? We must confess that we never read an exposition on "The Security of the Believer", outside of what the Bible teaches. But we are now tempted to do so, and, to be able to judge fairly, we must place an exposition on "Security" alongside of Mr. Stauffer's attack on this doctrine.

If I understand our Committee on Doctrine and Conduct, they request the ministry, as well as the laymen, to examine the book for themselves. Now, speaking about dangerous doctrines, we all know it is an open secret, that there are real dangers of false doctrines IN OUR MIDST. Unless we must, we would not like to be specific. But shall we as General Conference Mennonites allow a doctrine in our midst which, when matured, teaches that "God is only a principle, Jesus Christ an idealistic man who was willing to give his lifeblood for his convictions, the Holy Spirit merely an influence, the Word of God the fragmentary discovery by the human mind of a God who, in reality, does not exist, except in the creative qualities of the human mind. Therefore, God has not created man according to the scriptural record, but man's mind is the creator of God. Intercessary prayer is futile, since God exists only in the mind of man, prayer in general is good, because it is meditation and self purifying." Are we ready to give our principles in exchange for a doctrine like this? The writer believes we should unite all our forces against this doctrine of Modernism and Universalism which are in our midst and which are a real danger to our Mennonite youth. We are justly standing up for our youth today, so why not protect them? Are we willing to fall prey to such who are opposing our principles, who ridicule the foundation of our fathers, next to the Holy Bible the Catechism, not only ridicule it but take a stand against it? Are we willing to join hands with such that endeavor to break up our churches? So much for the public.—We are willing to give all the information we can on this last statement to the Committee on Doctrine and Conduct, or any member thereof, if so desired.

THE HUMILIATION

Text: Hebrews 2:14, 15, 17, 18; 5:7-9

But none of the ransomed ever knew
How deep were the waters crossed;
Nor how dark was the night that the Lord passed through Ere He found His sheep that was lost.
Out in the desert He heard its cry—
Sick and helpless, and ready to die.

Our Redeemer took the Humiliation upon Himself step by step. He went a long road down, down into the dark night of suffering for us. Meditate on Him.

1. The Incarnation.. a. He partook in flesh and blood. "Since then the children are sharers in flesh and blood, he also himself in like manner partook of the same." Heb. 2:14; Rom. 8:3. b. He bound himself to human society. "It behooved him in all things to be made like unto his brethren." Heb. 2:17; Mt. 17:17. c. He placed Himself under the Law. "God sent forth his Son—born under the law." Gal. 4:4.

2. Bodily Trials. a. Deprivations. He hungered. Luke 4:2. "The Son of man hath not where to lay his head." Matt. 8:20. b. Mistreatment. "Spit in his face—buffet him—smote him." Mt. 26:67; Is. 53:3-4; 50;6. c. Fear. "His sweat became as it were great drops of blood." Luke 22:44; Heb. 5:7, 8; Psalm 22:12-21.

3. Becoming a curse. a. Betrayal. "Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss?" Luke 22:48. b. Denial. "I know not the man." Matt.. 26:31, 69:75. c. Scorn and mockery. "Hail, King of the Jews! He saved others; himself he cannot save." Mk. 15:18, 31; Ps. 22:7-9. d. Illegal Sentence. "Pilate, wishing to content the multitude—delivered Jesus." Mark 15:15. e. Curse. "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Mt. 27:46; 2 Cor. 5:21; Gal. 3:13.

4. Death.. a. The bitterness of death, see Psa. 88:5-8, 14-17. "And might deliver all them who through fear of death were all their life time subject to bondage." Heb. 2:15. b. The Purpose of Death. "The wages of sin is death," Rom. 6:23. "The son of man came—to give his life a ransom for many." Matt. 20:28; 1 Tim. 2:6. c. The Power of Death broken. "Having despoiled the principalities and powers." Col. 2:13-15; Heb. 2:8, 14, 13; 2 Tim. 1:10; Col. 1:22.

"Lord, whence are those blood-drops all the way
That mark out the mountain's track?"
"They were shed for one who had gone astray Ere the Shepherd could bring him back."
"Lord, whence are Thy hands so rent and torn?"
They're pierced tonight by many a thorn."

But all through the mountains, thunder-riv'n,
And up from the rocky steep,
There arose a glad cry to the gate of heav'n
"Rejoice! I have found my sheep!"
And the angels echoed around the throne,
"Rejoice for the Lord brings back His own."

Some Discoveries as a Minister

My sermons last less than one hour; my life preaches all during the week. My largest audience is not in the church auditorium.

We ministers are many times looking for better methods, while God is looking for better ministers. In a crisis, God usually looks for a man rather than a method.

The Gospel has no self-propagating power. It moves as we, who have been intrusted with it, move. What responsibility!

No amount of scholarship can make up for a shortage of prayer; nor will diligence, study, or magnificent gifts supply its lack.

Prayer puts the sermon into the preacher's heart, enabling the preacher to put his heart into the sermon.

It is better not to choose sermon subjects, but let sermon subjects choose you.

The best and most logical place to end a sermon is in the air, but to do this the sermon must pass through every part of the one who delivers it. To illustrate, "Brain builds its skeleton of thought; passion covers it with flesh and blood; experience clothes it in everyday garments; imagination makes it live; the body keeps its feet on the ground; originality gives it its own gait; common sense removes its artificiality; revision straightens its tie. But in delivery, it leaves the organism which gave it birth, and begins to live a life of its own, does better things than had been planned, and astonishes its parent."

One other discovery, also made by many devout prophets of the past, is "gather your materials together and then set fire to them in the pulpit."

THE GOSPEL OF MARK—A PREVIEW

Mark 10:25-45

Introduction

Mark wrote the "Gospel of Service". The aim of the six months lessons from Mark is, "to lead the student to appreciate how Jesus in his life and teachings emphasized service to all men; to help the student to devote his life to the task of carrying the Gospel to the lost world". This lesson is intended to give us a general view of the Gospel of Mark.

John Mark, the author, lived in Jerusalem with his mother, Mary, and was more or less in touch with the ministry of Jesus from the beginning. He evidently wrote his Gospel for the Gentiles. He starts with the beginning of Christ's ministry and tells briefly, concisely, of the miracles of Jesus which prove His divinity, and of the sacrifices He made for us and the service we should render to all. He wrote particularly to show that Jesus is the Son of God.

Request of James and John vs. 35-37

Jesus had completed His Perean ministry and was on the final journey to Jerusalem for His last passover feast. His disciples, filled with high hopes, could think only of His establishing a glorious temporal kingdom. James and John, aided by their mother, Salome, asked a special favor (v35)—a very large and indefinite request—and so much like many of our prayers. We ask for whatever we desire, not considering whether it is best so for us. They are more definite in verse 37. They expected a temporal kingdom and being in Christ's "inner circle" of disciples, did not hesitate to ask for the highest positions. They were wholly without the true spirit of the Gospel. Probably their primary motive was personal glory and advantage, rather than opportunity to render good service to their people. The Gospel plan has no place for selfishness. Sacrifice is its central principle (v45). James and John asked for the highest places before they had rendered any notable service to others.

Jesus' Answer to James and John vs. 38-40

"Ye know not what ye ask". Jesus tells them they do not understand the full implication of all involved in their request. They asked without wisdom and knowledge. So we pray too frequently. He puts a searching question (38b) to them, practically saying they must drink the cup of suffering and be baptized with the baptism of blood and tears, to be really worthy to sit on His right and on His left hand. Christ asks of us, are you willing to undergo, to venture all for me?

Jesus makes it clear (v40), that in God's kingdom favors are not handed out after the fashion of men. That which they asked for is prepared for and given to those who deserve it (Rev. 3:21). There will be no favoritism in Christ's kingdom. We enter heaven by virtue of a new birth through Christ and faith in Him.

The Attitude of the Ten vs. 41

They heard of it, were displeased. Jealousy possessed their hearts. They believed James and John had taken an unfair advantage of them.

Jesus' Sermon to all the Disciples vs. 42-45

Jesus understood the self-seeking spirit in their hearts. He called them to Him and explained the fundamental difference between the organization of His church and secular governments. Among the Gentiles, greatness consists in having a place of authority, lordship, and power. Among them greatness shall consist in a readiness to be of service. One of the chiefest of the fundamental teachings of Christ's Gospel is found in verses 43 and 44. The Church of the living Christ is in the world to perform a service to mankind. He who would be greatest, chiefest must be willing to be of service to ALL. The greatest thing any of us can do is to inspire others to do noble deeds, to move some one to thank God for our influence, our service.

Notice to Pastors and Church Leaders

(Please read this this to your church)

Most of THE MENNONITE subscriptions expire in December. So this is the time of renewing. The renewal price is $1.50, with the YEARBOOK, a 60-page annual, full of interesting material, as a premium. Separately this costs 25 cents. Expiration reminders have been sent out. May we hope that all present subscribers will promptly pay up and continue taking the paper!

If, perchance, there are any that do not care for the paper longer, they should notify our business office at Berne, Indiana, and pay the amount in arrears. To ask that the paper be stopped, without paying the arrears, is not Christian, it is worse than heathen do.

To heads of families that do not take either one of our church papers: CHRISTLICHER BUNDESBOTE or THE MENNONITE, we suggest this: You are not doing justice to yourselves and your loved ones. As a Christian household you need the church paper at least as badly as you do the secular newspaper. Subscribe now! You may have either paper for $1.00 the first year.

TO PASTORS AND LEADERS: You are hardly doing your duty, unless you do what you reasonably can, to help put one of the church papers into each family of your church. They are a real aid to the spiritual life of your members. Among the livest churches in our Conference are those that have the largest number of subscribers. APPOINT SOME FAITHFUL MEMBER AS SOLICITOR.

Renewals and new subscriptions should be sent to Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana.

Some pastors are kind enough to take and send in in renewals and orders. This kindness is greatly appreciated.—Chm., Board of Publication and Editor of THE MENNONITE.

PUBLICATION

Explanation and Announcement

For some time the Board of Publication and many of the more far-sighted brethren of our Conference have felt we should own and operate our own printing plant. This sentiment was crystalized in the form of two resolutions at the Bluffton conference session in 1933, as follows: Resolution 68b: The Conference gives the Board of Publication permission to purchase and operate a printing plant, after the indebtedness of the Board is met, and if the Board then sees it feasible to make such a purchase and engage in printing. Resolution 69b: Resolved . . . that the Board be allowed to send a man into the field . . . to collect money (to satisfy the creditors) and if possible create a fund for the purpose of buying a printing plant.

The debt here mentioned was paid from a fund graciously created by the churches during the Diamond Jubilee Year, 1935, in conformity with an ardent desire to finish sixty-five years of blessed conference history without debt. The Board of Publication is also convinced that it is feasible for us, as a Conference, to own and operate a printing plant, alone or unitedly with another already in operation, if this can be done advantageously. Offers of such joint operation have already been made to the Board.

For more than fifty years we of the General Conference have hired our printing done, forty of them at non-competitive bids, which kept our Publication Board at considerable disadvantage financially, until a mounting debt compelled it to call for competitive bids. Since then we have fared better on printing prices. Now, if others, even at reasonable prices find the printing business worth while, why should we not appropriate such an advantage to ourselves. Printries do not operate just for pleasure.

That is one reason why we should have our own plant. Another is, the bulk of printing needed by our Conference is growing. We have just added the Senior Sunday School Quarterly to our publications, and the churches call for similar literature for the lower units of our Sunday School classes. So why not gather ourselves together, and supply the Board of Publication with the funds necessary for this purpose. If all do their bit, we will soon have enough to do us. It is estimated that at least $10,000.00 is needed. The generous hearted, dear couple, Brother and Sister L. M. Ledig of Upland, Calif., have given the project a splendid start by a $100.00 gift. Through contributions from churches and individuals this has been raised to $2000.00. That puts us pretty well on the way.

After several attempts to find a suitable brother to solicit further funds for this purpose, we have now engaged REV. E. J. NEUENSCHWANDER of McPHERSON, KANSAS, who will commence soliciting in the Western District early in January. And there are indications that Rev. S. P. Preheim of Freeman, South Dakota, will be engaged to canvass the Northern District. The other districts will be visited later.

May we ask the ministers, leaders and members of our churches to help these brethren expedite their efforts and to respond liberally to their solicitations. May we also remember them and the work of publications, generally, in our prayers, to the end that we may all do what is pleasing to God.

For the Board of Publication,
J. R. Thierstein, Chairman.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE NEWS ITEMS

At the recent meeting of the Board of Trustees of Bluffton College, it was voted to authorize the preparation of preliminary plans for an endowment campaign to be instituted early next fall. The Executive Committee of the Board and the college officials are to prepare plans for the campaign which are to be presented to the Board in its annual meeting to be held in April, 1938.

The success of Bluffton's refinancing project makes satisfactory provision for the payment of the debts of the institution and leaves the way clear for building up the endowment for the school. Demand by the Ohio College Association that the endowment must be increased and the urgent need of the college for more regularly established income make the need of increasing the endowment very vital. A goal of $500,000.00 must be reached over a period of years.

Continuing the college's annual Christmas tradition, the Bluffton College Choral Society presented Handel's Messiah in its thirty-fifth rendition on Sunday evening, December 19. The chorus and the soloists presented an effective rendition of this great oratorio under the direction of Professor Russell A. Lantz accompanied by Mrs. Pearl Mann at the piano and the Bluffton College Orchestra under the direction of Professor Sidney Hauenstein.

—Juvenile Delinquents.—The reform schools of the U. S. house about 30,000 juvenile delinquents. These young prisoners, about 20,000 of whom are boys, have been found guilty for anything from rape to stealing a stamp. Since many of them are probably criminals in embryo, they constitute quite a problem. Edward Carpenter, town marshall of the village of Powhatan, Ohio, has found that spanking is a good cure for these recalcitrant boys. He takes his victims to the public square, up-ends them over a barrel and goes to work. The punishment never takes longer than five minutes. Since the application of this method of punishment the delinquency in Powhatan has been decreased 60 per cent. Pathfinder.

What is Most Important in Daily Living

Isaiah 55:6-9

Young People's Topic for Jan. 9, 1938

Meditation:

M., Jan. 3 Private Prayer. Matt. 6:1-15
T., Jan. 4 Helping the Helpless. Luke 10:25-37
W., Jan. 5 Keeping good Health. Prov. 4:20-27
T., Jan. 6 Respecting Everybody. Acts 10:25-28
F., Jan. 7 The Practice of Justice. Micah 6:6-8
S., Jan. 8 Helping the Church. Eph. 5:14-21

Suggested Hymns:

"My Faith Looks up to Thee"
"My Hope is Built on Nothing Less"

Problems:

Without a doubt, the most important thing in our daily living is to be obedient to the call of God. Not even the love that holds Christian families together is as important as is obedience to God's call. Love between parents and children endures only in the present world, while our response to God is eternal in its effects.

What, then, are some of the problems in regard to the call of God?

I. What is the Call to Salvation? "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found." Seek "ye"! The call is personal. Everybody must make this response to God for himself. It can never be experienced by one person for another.

It is a reasonable call. The proverbial search for the needle in the haystack is nearly sure to be fruitless, because the object is so very small with respect to its surroundings. Not so with God. God is present everywhere and may be found.

However we must seek him. In order to be saved the individual must become seriously interested in his own soul's welfare. That is, he must be under the conviction of sin. Luther was profoundly convinced of his sin, and very seriously did he seek for a way or a means by which to overcome it. Then, and not until then, did he find salvation.

II. What is the Call to Devotion? "Call ye upon Him while He is near." The call to devotion is a call to prayer. Such fellowship with God is possible; God is not far away. He has been brought near through Christ. Christ revealed God as a person, as a sovereign and, to the believers, as a Father. So, as a person, God sees and hears our prayers. As a sovereign He can make all things right, and as a Father He can commune and does commune with His children. All this is made possible through the work of Christ—the sacrificial giving of Himself on the Cross—by which the barrier between God and man is removed.

So, then, we should pray sincerely with an ever present willingness to do God's Will. Such prayer, when offered in the Name of Jesus Christ, is acceptable to our Father.

III. What is the Call to Separation? "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord." Separation has a two-fold character. That is, we turn "from," and at the same time "to." It would be dangerous to have a clean, but empty heart. Jesus once spoke of that situation (Matt. 12:43-45) and pointed out that the once-departed spirit returned with seven others. Thus the man was worse off than he had been at the start. That is why self-reformation, or merely forsaking sin, is not sufficient. We must turn to the Lord and give Him our heart for a dwelling place. With His coming is accomplished the departure of the spirit. Then we are able to yield obedience to the call of God.

IV. What is the Call to Appreciation? "For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts." Here the prophet is talking about forgiveness of sins and the restoration of fellowship with God. It is so wonderful that man can not understand it. It took the mind of God to conceive it.

This revelation is a call to appreciate what God has done for us. The greatness of what He has done for us should hold us in awe, and its eternal blessedness should make us grateful to Him.

— The founder of the Salvation Army, General William Booth, made the following prophecy in 1878, which appears to be coming true if not already fulfilled. "The chief dangers which confront the coming century will be, Religion without the Holy Ghost, Christianity without Christ, forgiveness without repentance, salvation without regeneration, politics without God and heaven without hell."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

Our Missionary Field

Intermediate C. E. Topic, Jan. 9, 1938

For Daily Study

Jan. 3 Our field the world. Matt. 13:36-43
Jan. 4 The field is around us. Acts 8:1-8
Jan. 5 Eager for new fields. Romans 1:1-12
Jan. 6 Home mission fields. Luke 10:1-9
Jan. 7 Missionary scouting. Acts 13:1-3
Jan. 8 Work by the wayside. Acts 8:26-40
Jan. 9 Topic—Our missionary field. John 4:35-38; 10:16

Plan for the Month

The topic for this Sunday is the beginning of a series of four on the subject of "Our Missions." This succession of missionary topics calls for careful planning so that the interest may not lag and the greatest benefit may be derived from the study.

The missionary committee might take charge of these meetings, appointing a different leader to be responsible for each meeting. Have them all meet with the missionary committee and make general plans for the month. Then let each leader with some helpers work out the details. While assembling material for the first meeting, keep the other topics in mind.

A Missionary Scrap Book

A very interesting project for the society to work out in connection with these topics would be the making of a Missionary Scrap book. Let members collect material all month. Interesting clippings of the fields, pictures of stations and missionaries cut from old church papers. The society might be divided, and each group assigned to one field. The book when completed could be donated to the Sunday School library. If the scrap-book idea is used, announce it as the first meeting so the Intermediates can begin collecting material at once. Leave the making of the scrap-book for a later meeting.

A Missionary Map

A large map of the world showing the location of our mission stations will add much to the interest and value of these meetings. Beaver board can be used for its construction. At the first meeting the fields will be located as talks are given about them, using a thumb tack and a narrow green streamer which is also fastened on the border of the map where the name can be written. White streamers can be used on the second Sunday for the missionaries. Red for the task to be done, standing for sacrifice, and blue for the last Sunday, signifying our loyalty through gifts.

Pre-prayer Circle

I Tim. 2:1 urges us to pray for all men everywhere. Pray for the different mission fields and the workers there

Quiet Worship (Can be preceded by several selected songs and announcements)

"From Greenland's Icy Mountains", one stanza

Leader:

"God, be merciful unto us and bless us,
And cause thy face to shine upon us.
That thy way may be known upon the earth,
Thy salvation among ALL nations."

Sing: "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations"

Leader: How large is our missionary field?

Response: Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel."

Sing: "Jesus Shall Reign." Stanza one and two (Vary the worship service for Jan. 16 by asking, "Who shall go? Whom shall we send?" Response, Acts 1:8b. Song, "Here Am I, Send Me"

Sentence Prayers

Presenting the Topic

Assign the five mission fields, China, India, Arizona, Oklahoma and Montana to five different people for a report. Give them time to gather material in school and the library, the pastor and the Mission society secretary. For this meeting ask them to study and tell about: 1. Size of field. 2. Population. 3. Characteristics of people. 4. Climate. 5. Language. 6. Other difficulties that missionaries encounter.

It would be interesting to have this part of the meeting in the form of an aeroplane trip. Have someone who is interested in geography act as pilot. He would choose a route covering all the places to be studied, giving something of a description of what will be seen enroute between stations. Upon ariving at a field he could greet the one who has made a study of that field and through questions bring out the facts.

Mission Minutes

Announcements

Study Period

1. The lighting of the candles by chairman (See previous program)
2. Repetition of verse of the month: In charge of leader
3. Song in unison: "O Worship the King." vs 1,2,4
4. "Power Belongeth Unto God." Have a large sheet of poster paper fastened substantially. This could be headed attractively with the words "Power Belongeth Unto God" printed into the design. The following verses could be distributed to your juniors a few days previous to this meeting, asking them to find a picture that would give the thought of the verse. On this picture ask them to write their reference. At the meeting these juniors could step to the poster, tack the picture with the reference anywhere they wish, read the verse and take their seat again. This poster could then be given to the Beginners or Primary department for use and enjoyment. Verses: II Chr. 16:8; II Chr. 20:6; Job 38:8; Ps. 29:3-5; Ps. 89:13; Ps. 104:30,32; Isa. 26:4; Jer. 32:17; Dan. 3:17; Matt. 19:26; Ps. 62:11.

6. God Shows His Power: Talks by juniors
   a. God shows His power in creation of this world. Gen. 1
   b. God shows His power in the great flood. Gen. 7
   c. God shows His power through fire. Gen. 19:23-28
   d. God shows His power at the Red Sea. Ex. 14:21-31
7. God shows His power in the Heart of Men: Choose a story in which a heart is completely changed by God
8. Speaker's prayer
9. Closing hymn in unison: "We Praise Thee, O God, our Redeemer, Creator"

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE CHURCH, RANSOM, KANSAS

Editor:

A group of the Volunteer Band of Bethel College gave a very interesting program on Living for Christ in our church on Sunday afternoon, November 15. Rev. A. E. Kreider accompanied them.

The Young Mothers' Class of our Sunday school sponsored a food sale and bazaar recently, realizing about $40.00 which they intend to use for church purposes.—The Women's Missionary Society gave an interesting program on Stewardship in the church on Sunday evening, December 5.

A choir of twenty-five voices is practicing the Christmas cantata, The Lost Carol to be given Friday evening, December 24.—The Workers' Conference of our church meets every three months to discuss the various phases of the work of our church to make it more efficient.—The Sunday school pays for twenty subscriptions for The Mennonite and then gives the paper to families interested in the paper.—A. Albrecht.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, MADRID, NEBR.

From western Nebraska I can report that the weather has been very favorable for the late replanted corn, as the killing frost has held off until nearly the middle of October, so that the corn is well matured. The yield varies from a failure on the hard soil to twenty-five bushels per acre on the good sandy sil. Corn picking is nearly finished by now.

The fall wheat looks very promising, especially on summer fallow-ground, as we had a good three-inch rain the first of September, our best seeding time, which gave the wheat a very good start, and a good shower in October, which will help the growing wheat well through the winter. Most fields are well covered with growth, so that we do not have to fear soil blowing as has been the case for the last several years.

In June we had the privilege of having our former pastor Rev. John Bartel from Mountain Lake in our midst. He was with us on Sunday, June 20, and held a number of evening services the week following. Shortly after harvest Rev. P. R. Schroeder from Freeman, South Dakota, was in our midst on account of church errands.

Brother N. P. Jansen, leader of our church, feeling that the work of the church could not be carried on successfully, together with Rev. John Warkentin, formerly a member of the Bruderthal Conference, has resigned, and our church is at present standing without a leader. May the Lord guide and direct that a competent, God sent leader may come in and continue the work of the Lord.

Here comes to my mind one very obvious need that our field secretary Rev. H. A. Fast has discovered in visiting our smaller struggling churches. He writes as follows, "It appears to me that they have too often been left to shift for themselves in a discouraging struggle that has maintained nothing more than a mere existence. Many of these groups could, I believe, under wise and adequate leadership and with sufficient assistance from the Conference have grown into self-sustaining churches. Now, one often wonders whether they won't soon pass out of existence with the passing of the older residents. The problem, it appears to me, is not merely one for which the Home Mission Board must find a solution. I think it is larger than that. It is a problem which the Conference as a whole should clearly see and for which they should make wise and adequate provision. Are not these some of the stakes that need to be strengthened?" I hope that Rev. Fast can make it possible to visit our little church, as we need his assistance.

Our first attempt of a daily vacation Bible school was made this summer and was considered most successful. The Bible school, interdenominational in nature, was conducted in the First Mennonite Church of Madrid from August 23 to September 3 with four classes. As it appears difficult to procure teachers for such work here, we employed the same teachers that had been employed by the M. B. church the two weeks just prior to our school. The total enrollment was ninety-two, which is about equal to the total enrollment of our Sunday school. Pupils attending were from the First Mennonite Church, the M. B. Church, the Methodist, and the Pilgrim Holiness.—P. A. Regier.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, LIMA, OHIO

Greetings to all our friends in the Conference. We rejoice for the many blessings we have received during the past year. I am writing this one year from the day we held the first service in our new church. Due to improvements that needed to be done during the summer, the building was not dedicated until the last Sunday in September. There were three services. Prof. E. J. Hirchler, president of the Conference, was with us during the Sunday School and taught the lesson. Rev. John Esau gave the Message in the morning worship service. In the afternoon, Rev. P. A. Kliewer and Rev. C. H. Suckau gave the messages, Rev. D. J. Unruh of St. John Mennonite church, Pandora, presided and also gave the dedicatory message. Special music was furnished at both services. In the evening the Men's Chorus from Berne gave a musical program, which was very enriching to all present. We were glad for all the visitors who came to enjoy the services with us. Rev. Suckau gave a series of lectures on Prophecy during the week following.

Evangelist Harold Reed of Ada, Ohio, was with us the last two weeks in November and conducted evangelistic meetings. We were all blessed through his messages. We feel that much was accomplished for the honor and glory of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior. We are now preparing for a Christmas program by the children. How eager they are to take part, and our aim is to plant in their hearts the real meaning of Christmas.

Will you remember us in prayer? We are in need of devoted Sunday School teachers. Prayer changes things. He will supply all our needs, if we but put our trust in Him.—Mrs. Reuel Bixel, Act. Corr.

DONNELSON, IOWA, DEC. 8, 1937

Readers of the Mennonite: Recently the Gospel team of Bluffton College visited our church, their program was well attended and greatly appreciated.

Rev. Friesen was speaker at the Union Thanksgiving service held in the Methodist church. In the evening the Ladies' Missionary Society gave a program of talks, songs and a short play. This program was followed by the annual Children's sale. Articles for this sale were brought by the children and returns are to be used for improvements in the local church. This Thanksgiving season was truly a time to express our thankfulness for an abundant harvest, and for the enjoyment of good health, as we have had little serious illness among our people, beside many other blessings.

On the evening of Nov. 26, Rev. Carl Landis of Bluffton, Ohio, visited our church and presented the cause of peace most effectively.

Our church has joined with the other churches of the town in Union Sunday evening services. On Sunday evening Dec. 19, our choir will give the cantata "The Song and the Star." The various organizations of our church have been active and the departments of the Sunday School are planning for a "White Christmas" again this year.

With best wishes for a happy holiday season.

EDEN MENN. CHURCH, MOUNDRIDGE, KS.

"But we glory in tribulations also, knowing that tribulation worketh patience; and patience, experience, and experience, hope." Rom. 5:3-4. Such are the words that come to our minds as we think of the experiences of our community in the past few weeks.

Three funerals for adult members of our congregation have been held recently. On October 27 were held funeral services for Mrs. John C. Goering, who died Oct. 24 in the McPherson County Hospital after a brief illness. The funeral services of Edward L. Stucky, who had passed away after a short illness in the Halstead Hospital, were held one week later. Humanly speaking, a tragedy happened on November 19 when Mr. and Mrs. Edd Krehbiel and two of their daughters were on their way to Newton. Due to slippery roads an auto accident occured in which Mrs. Krehbiel, a sister of Mrs. Goering, was fatally injured. She was taken to the Bethel Hospital where physicians diagnosed her case as being beyond human help. She accepted the diagnosis with composure saying, "As God will, I am ready if He calls." She was in the hospital over two weeks. During this time, although paralized almost completely, she was conscious of practically everything that was going on about her. Her smile, words, songs, and attitude in general were a great inspiration to all who visited her. It reminds us again that there must be something glorious to look forward to, after our earthly pilgrimage is over. On December 4, 9:20 P.M., she was finally called to her heavenly reward. Funeral services were held at the Eden Mennonite Church, December 7. Rev. P. P. Wedel and Rev. Walter Gering preached in the German and English languages respectively. Interment was made at the church cemetery, at which Rev. Walter Gering officiated. Mrs. Krehbiel and Mrs. Goering were both middle-aged mothers and Mr. Stucky was in the prime of life.

Incidents such as these seem tragic, when we think of the earthly circle left broken. On the other hand, how glorious and inspiring is the thought that we have the assurance from the lips of those who passed on, that we can meet them again, if we do our part through the grace of Christ!

Rev. and Mrs. Walter Gering, whom our church has called to minister to us, though with us only about six months, have certainly won the respect and love of all who have come in contact with them. In spite of a very heavy visiting schedule, they find time to visit the sick, attend all meetings at the church, and do other things to spread a bit of cheer. Since Rev. Gering has become our pastor, he has started the Young People's Bible Study Hour. The young people meet every Wednesday night to discuss young people's problems from the young people's point of view. Such problems as "The Christian and Prayer," "The Holy Spirit" and "The Christian and His Life Work" are discussed at these gatherings. This fall our Junior Christian Endeavor has been reorganized. They have meetings two Sunday afternoons a month. They are very well attended.

On Dec. 5 we held our annual Sunday School business meeting. Besides the Sunday School officers, twenty-five teachers were elected to serve in the junior department. In the senior department each class elects its own teacher. At a church meeting after the Sunday School, it was decided to have two- thirds of our morning church services in the English language.

A worthwhile Christmas program was rendered by the Junior Department of our Sunday School. May the Christmas Season have been to us and to each of our readers a renewed source of inspiration.

Sincerely, Correspondent

DEATHS

MRS. EDWARD KREHBIEL.—Marie (Wedel) Krehbiel was born in McPherson County, January 3, 1893, where she also spent her entire life, with the exception of three years spent in Upland, California, with her parents. While in California she was baptized December 2, 1906, by Elder M. Horsch, and became a member of the Upland Mennonite church. In 1909, upon the return of her parents to Kansas, she transferred her membership to the Hoffnungsfeld Mennonite church of Moundridge. In the year 1910, May 26th, she united with Edward Krehbiel in holy wedlock, and later became a member of the Eden Mennonite church. Eight children, five sons and three daughters, were born into the family.

She was especially gifted in the ability to record her thoughts in the form of poetry. She committed any songs and hymns to memory which also were of much comfort and strength to her in the hours of sickness.

Friday, November 19, while on the way to Newton with her husband and two daughters, she was critically injured in an auto accident, due to slippery roads. She was immediately taken to the Bethel Hospital of Newton where upon examination she was declared beyond human help. She accepted the diagnosis of the doctors with quietness, saying: "As God will, I am ready, if he calls." On December 4, at 9:20 P. M. she passed away, attaining an age of 44 years, 11 months and 1 day. She leaves to mourn her departure her husband, four sons (one having died in infancy), three daughters, one daughter-in-law, two grandchildren, a mother in law, five brothers, four sisters, and many relatives and friends.
